

The Iowa Review

Volume 45
Issue 3 Winter 2015/16

Article 15

2015

A Wait to Be Found

Emily Sieu Liebowitz

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

 Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Sieu Liebowitz, Emily. "A Wait to Be Found." The Iowa Review 45.3 (2015): 97-97. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.7652>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

EMILY SIEU LIEBOWITZ

A Wait to Be Found

Let slide ladders ring on steep staircases.
A curled formula: there, always. I sit bayless for the first time, a river to lake they all imply ocean.

I curate bodied land, tying gray steps
when they stood self-reflexive—a glitter listing to control the tide. Glued together beat envelopes a contorted wishless list.

Stomped current, I expand waves' breaking—fractures furthering long waste inside landings. Drawn lines barring direction to ebb, expanding together the slanted straining of horizon.

Flat mist-stained texture bridges every trapped hue under troubles: iron hours spring foam. Pleased in-flowering circles a cursed rapid, turns growth into foreign bricks.

Crashed on sharp rungs, frontiers slid buoys to distance. Slips are a box of implied silver.
Promises a hint of height: an edge. It said,
“gather on that edge”