Intramurals can use beer sponsorship

A CONTROVERSY is brewing over beer company sponso; ship of SIU-C intramural sports. The director of intramurals and the director of intramural recreation are in opposite corners, and an independent advisory board has been formed to break the deadlock.

independent advisory board has been formed to break the deadlock. William Bleyer, director of intramural recreation, said he has mixed emotions about the issue. He said the intramural office has a responsibility to keep student fees as low as possible. Last year the brewery supplied over $4,000 in advertisements and T-shirts—money which would otherwise have come from the intramural office. But, Bleyer added, "I wouldn't want the student to think we are sponsoring anything of this nature in terms of promoting alcoholic beverages."

JOYCE CRAVEN, director of intramurals, said it was "ridiculous" to have to wait to take action when so many other campus and student organizations accept beer company spon-

One of those other organizations is the Student Programming Council, the student group that brings concerts to SIU-C. According to Beth Franck, assistant coordinator of University programming to Beth Franck, assistant coordinator of University programming who acts in an advisory capacity with SPC, beer company sponsorship is "very important to SPC."

"The students benefit from their sponsorship. We receive movies from Schlitz in exchange for using their logo in our ads," she said. "But the most visible support we get is from Miller. They sponsor the Sunset Concerts series. Those concerts are very expensive. There is no way we could put on those shows without Miller's support.

"We are not forcing students to drink. We're just putting on the best shows we can with what we have to work with. If we thought it was unethical, we wouldn't do it."

BEER COMPANY sponsorship is not an evil in itself if that sponsorship is handled correctly — without giving any exclusive rights to any company and making all relationships clear and aboveboard.

Students are bombarded with beer ads everywhere. Sports heroes hawk their favorite brands of beer from every TV station during every sporting event. The Heileman label on intramurals T-shirts and the logo used in connection with intramurals would just be a negligible drop in the bucket in comparison with the flood of media ars.

It is not logical to assume that beer company sponsorship of in-tramurals is going to sway anyone's mind, one way or the other, about drinking. The intramural office should concentrate on having the best intramural program possible, and trust the students to make up their own minds on moral issues.

-Letters----For $35, you could add gold

Your article of Aug. 30 with regards to the International Education Office contained serious discrepancies that need to be corrected and clarified. While appreciating the drop-ping of the $10 processing fee for the I-20's, it must be noted that the I-20's, it must be noted that the fee is charged by the In-ternational Education Office and not by the United States Immigration Service, as erroneously stated in the headline accompanying the

Furthermore, I doubt that the I-20 forms cost $35 as implied by Mrs. Walker. If they do cost that much, then why charge only $10 and not $35. The forms should be printed on gold-edged paper for that price, which they are not. The quality of paper in my most expensive textbook, which cost $38 for 200 pages, is of similar quality as the paper on which the 1-20 is printed. As for the fee being a "reality of life," well, only Mrs. Walker seems to believe in that notion, whatever she meant by it. whatever she meant by it. I appreciate the fact that Illinois appreciate in fact that it into a lax payers pick up a portion of the cost for my education here, but 70 percent of the tab is an overly exaggerated statement, unless, of course, Mrs. Walker can do some research and provide us with the relevant figures.

However, she should also bear in mind the revenue generated by us foreign students which, when put against the taxpayers' contribution to education, simply compensates and makes up for their generosity. Many Car-bondale retailers will attest to this fact. The DE carried an article on such an issue earlier this year, so hopefully Mrs. Walker can obtain the facts from the DE editors and save them for her future reference hefore. DE should be a tool in anti-rape battle

Julie Guadagnoli's discussion of rape and the meaning of freedom was so insightful and Ireedom was so insignitul and eloquent that I rush to my desk to commend her. I like it that her last point was that the DE could and should be made an effective tool in the battle against rape. I could not agree

Although it is a given fact that American society is a mass of contradictions. I still see it as an outrage that the majority of us do not retch when someone blurts out, "She was asking for it." Most people do not retch— they swallow it. And there it is. Better than half the population, supposedly free, cannot go for a stroll, take the night air, without having it interpreted as an invitation for a sociopath to rape them.

The Dir. reports a rape as an isolated incident, exactly the way it would report a car that was driven off a cliff at Giant City: "A rape occurred last night at such-and-such corner; the rapist is reported to be so tall and of such color skin, etc." But the DE can and should discern that individual rapes are not freak occurrences, but rather pieces of a larger pic-ture, part of an ongoing attack on the freedom of more than half its readership. The DE should report rapes as the outrages they are and give them prominent front page coverage all the time. all the time.

The one point I would like to have seen Julie Guadagnoli's article go into more detail about is the question of taking rides from "male friends." Such a from "male friends." Home brings dream and reality together

MANY PEOPLE, including me, feel homesick after a few years away from home. The idea of home has a special meaning attached to it. A home isn't just a house—it is a dream and a reality put into one. When you are thousands of miles away from home, you dream of being at home; but somehow it seems so near, yet so far.

seems so near, yet so far. A home can be anywhere. Distance doesn't matter. But no matter what sort of place home is, there's always no place like it.

In a sense, SIU-C is "home" to most, if not all, of us. We have spent sever:: years at SIU-C, years that warrant a place in our memories. We make friends and, sometimes, enemies. We have good times and bad. We succeed and we fail. We enjoy and we also get bored. See, it's just like home.

FOR INTERNATIONAL FOR INTERNATIONAL students, it is sometimes agonizing to adapt to SIU-C as a temporary home. Consequently, there is a strong, built-in tendency for international students to gather into various communities ac-

For quite a number, fitting For quite a number, fitting into this community, created in a foreign land, is an impossibility. Loneliness sets in and establishes a sense of isolation. St. Elsewhere doesn't always work for everybody. Isolating oneself is socially and mentally unhealthy. It retards our thinking and our attitude towards our fellow men and women.

Place alone can never fully explain the human sense of home. The very idea of home resists definition but the resistance is usually unresistance is usually un-successful. While a place of nativity usually becomes home, many people really appreciate a home only after being away from it for some time

HOME ITSELF can be many things. It can be a house, a neighborhood, a state a country, a room. It is the feeling of being at home and being wanted that really becomes the essence of home.

The meaning of home keeps people living in conditions that, people living in conditions that, to an outsider, seem most unlivable. Thus, home can be in blazing deserts, in freezing igloos, in hot volcanic paths and in fertile flood plains. It can be in the winters of New Hampshire or in the summers of Florida. It can be in the highrise apartments in New York or in a small hat in a village in India. small hut in a village in India. For nomadic herdsmen, there is no such thing as a permanent home; the endless path becomes their home.

'It is the feeling of being home and being wanted that becomes the essence of home.'

> HOME, ALTHOUGH a special place, is not merely a place. It is where the heart is, but it can also be where hate is. But a home is always the seed and seat of love. Human atand seat or tove. runnar attachment to places, as to persons, is sealed by rage as well as love. The one sealed by love is the stronger, as can be summarized from the views of Free! Dorfman and Robert Dorfman, an author and one thousands of Chileans or thousands of Chileans banished by General Augusto Pinochet, once protested about the "intolerable homelessness" he has suffered for nine years the pleaded, without success, for the Pinochet government to "let us come home." Robert Frost describes home as "the place where, when you have to go there, they have to let you in." Unfortunately, this definition does not work in politics.

DESPITE its ambiguity, the idea of home is usually accompanied by a sense of identity and belonging. Identity and the thought of belonging to a place are sources of patriotism and nationalism. Like charity, education and other noble pursuits of the human mind begin at home. It is at home that we cultivate our manners, respect, character. manners, respect, character, personality and values. It is where we seek comfort and peace of the mind.

While at SIU-C, we may or may not view it as a home. Our attitude towards places determines both views. It is really up to us to make any place a real home.

For me, even the Daily Egyptian newsroom can be a home, where amid rushes and noises, I find comfort working on the video display terminal from which this column is

Fine art, photographs are in Art Alley show

By Lisa Nichols Staff Writer

Works ranging from the artistic watercolor expressions of artist Celine A. Chu to the technical and fine art approaches of Andrew Leach to the news photos spanning a quarter of a century of events at SIU-C by Robert "Rip" Stokes are on display in the Art Alley on the second floor of the Student Center until the end of September.

On the opening night of the show Tuesday, Chu and Leach were on hand to offer comments were on hand to offer comments on their respective works. Chu said she began painting when she was a child, but has only taken it seriously for the past three years. "There aren't too many artists who can make a living by painting," she said. Before she began working on her watercolor paintings, Chu'taught art and clothing design and illustration classes at Shawnee College.

Chu said she dislikes keeping track of how many hours she spends painting each work. "The actual painting might take only a few hours, but that doesn't include the preliminary technical and thought processor." sketches and thought processes I go through before I begin to paint," she said.

Chu said she usually paints from photographs and sketches

SIU board to discuss budget items at meeting

By Phillip Florini Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees has budget items for the 1985 fiscal year on its agenda at its September meeting Thursday in Edwardsville.

The budget - taking the form of Resource Allocation and Management Program planning documents — will include operating requests, a priority list of capital projects sought by SIU and expanded and improved program requests for both campuses. The RAMP documents are scheduled to be presented to the Illinois Board of Higher Education on Oct. 1.

The board requested $186 million for fiscal year 1984, but received a recommendation from the IBHE of about $173 million for operations, grants and capital improvements. The IBHE figure was an 11.7 percent increase for 1984 over fiscal year 1983.

Chancellor Kenneth A. Shaw submitted RAMP guidelines last month, stating that the University will ask for new money to cover 6 percent salary increases, plus additional catch-up raises totaling 4 percent for faculty and staff and 6 percent for civil service employees.

Salary and general price increases included in the 1985 fiscal year budget were scaled down by the board at its July meeting in response to the General Assembly's 1984 appropriation for the SIU system.

Increase requests were cut from 10 percent to the present 6 percent, while the 4 percent for faculty and staff and 6 percent increases for civil service workers were maintained.

increases for civil service workers were maintained.

The request for general price increases was also cut by the board in July from 10 percent to 6 percent. Increases for utilities at SIU-C of 11.1 percent and for library material, proposed at 17 percent, were kept intact.

An amendment to the RAMP document for fiscal year 1985 is also scheduled to be addressed Thursday by the board, regarding a revision in the expanded and improved program requests and special analytical studies.

In the board's July meeting, SIU-C received an appropriation of $116.3 million after Gov. James Thompson's tax increase passed. Out of that appropriation, the University's engineering programs received $375,000; computer science received $142,000; and $300,000 was allocated for the purpose of instructional equipment.

'Horse-a-thon' set; pledges to benefit riding association

A "horse-a-thon" will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in Carbondale.

Participants have collected pledges to be given to the Pegasus Therapeutic Riding Association. To earn the pledges, they will ride from the Carbondale Park District's Doug Lee Park on Grand Avenue, to Illinois Avenue, down University Avenue and back to Grand Avenue.

The Pegasus Association provides riding scholarships to handicapped people. The program is based on the belief that riding gives handicapped people therapeutic, educational and recreational benefits.

WSIU-TV fall schedule includes new, old programs

Along with many of the old favorites, WSIU-TV's fall programming schedule contains some new, as well as "classic" programs which station officials believe will add to the increasing viewership the station has had the last three Station Manager Allan Pizzato said although the fall programming schedule is just now being released, the station has already added some programming changes, such as extending the "MacNeil-Lehrer Report" to an hour instead of a half-hour.

One of the new specials the station will have this fall is a program titled "Vietnam: A Television History" which is a historical view of the war from beginning to end. Pizzato said the program will premier at 8 p.m. Oct. 4 and 5 and will be broadcast at 8 p.m. Tuesdays for 12 weeks.

Other new programming the station will offer includes the "Jack Benny Show" at 8:30 p.m. on Fridays, and Costello films at 9 p.m. on Fridays, Pizzato said the station decided to air these two shows because they are "classics," and they think there will be an audience for them.

think there will be an audience for them.

Some of the programs Pizzato said will be returning include "Nova," "Sneak Preview," and "Firing Line." Pizzato added that "Masterpiece Theater" will be returning at a p.m. Sundays and will be repeated at 9 p.m. Tuesdays.

The station will continue running the early double feature Saturday night movies.

Flea market, auction included in 'solar day'

The retrofit demonstration center, 808 S. Forest, will be the site of Solar Flair Day 9 a.m. to Solar Flair Day is a fund-raising auction, yard sale and open house. Dick Hunter, local auctioneer, will have a variety of donated items on the auction of donated terms on the auction block.

"Solar energy isn't out of reach for homeowners and renters. It's here and now and renters. It's nere and now and this retrofit demonstration center will prove it," said Yo Tullar, vice president of the board of directors of the Shawnee Solar Project, in an in'ormation sheet on the center. The flee workets will be held information sheet on the center. The flea market will be held in the backyard of the retrofit house. Spaces will be sold until Saturday. The cost of renting a single space is $8, a double space, $15. All proceeds will go to Shawnee Solar Project, a non-profit, community-based organization.

The idea behind the retrofit house project is to give people a nouse project is to give people a chance to find out first hand what they can do to conserve energy by using solar power. Nancy Reed, executive director of the project, said.

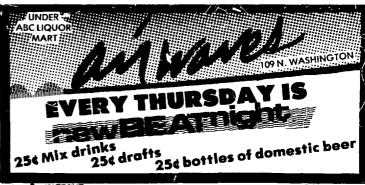

The conservation measures used are inexpensive and uncomplicated. Solar energy installations can work to cut down home energy bills, Reed

A typical single family house was transformed by the Shawnee Solar Project into an energy efficient solar demonstration center. A ver-tical wall collector, solar water heater and passive solar win-dow wall are in use.

Volunteers are needed to put the finishing touches on the retrofit house and to work in the resource center which has a library with over 1,400 volumes.

"A quiet revolution is taking place." People are building good, solar efficient hames south of town," noted Hugh Muldoon, former Shawnee Solar Project director.

Hunter has confidence in team, but spikers face tough weekend

By Sherry Chisenhall Sports Editor

Women's volleyball Coach Debbie Hunter has the market virtually cornered on f. th.

After her team was drubbed 15-1 in the fifth game of its match with Wisconsin Sunday, Hunter talked only of the promise her young team showed.

The Salukis are facing a weekend of correction against some fairly powerful Midwest teams, and Hunter still said the teams should emerge over .500.

"There's not an inkling of an attitude of defeat on the learn,"
Hunter said Wednesday. "It athtude of defeat on the learn," Hunter said Wednesday. "It was pretty apparent after a game and a half Sunday tha' Wisconsin had the edge, and a that time I would have con-sidered us ar underdog. With a team this young showing such progress, I think we'll create a season to remember

SIU-C has a decided edge in the first of its four weekend matches. The University of matches. The University of Evansville will visit Carbondale Thursday night, and although the Aces return eight letterwinners, they still can't measure up to SIU-C's front line.

The Aces return eight veterans, five of them starters on last year's squad, but hang only the the 5-foot-6 to 5-foot-9 range. The team notched a 29-19 record last year in its first season as an NCAA Division I school, and this year the team is charter member of the North Star Conference Experience will be the Aces' trump card.

Heading the roster for Coach Linda Wambach's club is Jenny Schulz, a 5-foot-9 middle blocker Schulz, a 5-1001-9 mindle blocker from Evansville. The senior has three years of varsity ex-perience and holds team records with 43 solo blocks and 80 assisted blocks.

Joining Schulz is Kim Seib, a 5-foot-6 junior hitter who posted a record 83 digs last season.
