SIU-C tries new tactics to attract students

By John Stewart Staff Writer

Faces with the prospect of declining numbers graduating high school students for the next 10 years. University Relations has produced two new publications to attract prospective students to SIU-

Last fall, more than 30,000 Illinois high school seniors were mailed the first of the new brochures, "Why SIU-C?", according to Jack Dyer, director of University Relations. The brochures were mailed to all seniors meeting minimum entrance requirements of the University.

About 8500 applications are received by SIU-C each year, but typically only 40 percent of those accepted ever register and attend classes. In an effort to improve that no-show rate, a brochure is being mailed this week to urge ac cepted applicants to enroll, Dyer said. "This is the Place!" features six full-page color pictures depicting the beauty of the SIU-C campus and some specific educational settings. It is expected to be sent to about 7000 accepted applicants.

SIU-C will meet with in-creasing competition for new and transfer students in the next 10 years, as effects of the end of the baby boom will start to apply pressure on universities to maintain enrollments.

The University agreed to truy the Bracy Building in Marion in August 1982, Virginia Cline, the building's owner, said Monday. University officials denied that a purchase agreement was made, but confirmed that a maintenance worker from Marion was con-

The University originally leased the building from September 1981 to September '82 at a rate of $120,000 per year. When the lease ran out, Shaw said, the University agreed to maintain the building and pay utility bills estimated at about $4,500 per year.

The law was struck down as unconstitutional by a federal appeals court that said the legislation's main purpose was promoting religion.

Reagan balks on U.S.-Soviet talks

WASHINGTON (.\P) - President Reagan, setting the stage for a fight with Congress over curbing arms in space, said Monday it would not be wise to open negotiations with the Soviet Union on a treaty banning satellite-killer weapons that the Kremlin possesses and the United States still is developing.

In a report to Congress, Reagan said, "No arrangements or agreements beyond those already governing military activities in outer space have been found to date that are judged to be in the overall interest of the United States and its allies."

The new brochures are part of an effort to help keep enrollment constant at SiU-C so downscaling doesn't occur here, Dyer said. nuclear freeze politics has come to the rhyme-riddled world of Theodor Geisel, a.k.a. Dr. Seass, popular author of such children's books as "The Cat in the Hat " and "Green Eggs and criticized by some reviewers for his failure to end the story on a happy note. Inspiring happy thoughts about the nuclear arms race is not an easy task. That is one of the failures of the freeze failures of the movement.

In their efforts to educate people on the necessity of en-ding the threat of nuclear destruction, supporters of the movement tend to emphasize too heavily the horrifying success. They seem not to realize the: the fear of war can inspire fatalism as well as "For, although it is true fear can overwhelm us, hope cannot be purchased with the refusal to feel," author Susan Griffin wrote, describing the need for understanding the con-sequences of nuclear war, in a recent edition of Mother Jones magazine.

BUT MOVIES such as "The Day After," and the speeches of freeze leaders such as Dr. Helen Caldicott, that work so hard to instill right feeling in the public, in their extremity do overwhelm

Caldicott has said that as long the threat of nuclear an nihilation looms over us, the work done on curing disease is meaningless. People who hear that, and who aren't moved to believe in the possibility of success of the freeze movement, are pushed either to despair or, worse, to follow the cause of those who believe that nuclear weapons can long exist without being used.

When freeze advocates fail to be convincing, they create a tool for the lovers of the big bomb — someone who can't care about the outcome of the nuclear debate, or who thinks that nuclear weapons guarantee the survival of the values (Eat bread butter-side up!) they really threaten to

GRIFFIN IS right, we need to know the effects of nuclear war to understand the dire need for the freeze. Those who love the bomb will never heed the call of the freeze movement. But to win converts among the great mass of undecided, freeze leaders need more than fear as a tool. Advocates need to put out the message more clearly that individuals can work to prevent the horrifying from happening. There is no better place to start spreading that message than-among children, and no better person to spread it than

Dr. Seuss. Children know much about fearing nuclear war. The mushroom cloud has replaced musiroom cloud has replaced the werewolf in many children's dreams. They need to know as well that their nightmares will go away. And if that means making them a little naive, then better naivete on the side of the freeze than on the side of those who believe the bomb is our

Opinion & Gommentary

Diamond debuts are sure signs of spring

MUCH AS CHRISTMAS does for the young and young at heart, for diehard fans of America's favorite pastime, the baseball season seems to take forever to get here.

But it has arrived - at last.

After what truly was a long, cold winter, the National League opens its 109th season and the American League its 84th season this eek. By Wednesday, all 26 major league teams will have played their season openers and armchair coaches across the country will be muttering, grumbling and generally having a great time.

There is something very American about baseball. The sport is right up there on the list of secred bits of Americana with hot dogs, apple pie and Chevrolet.

UNLIKE THE RULES of other sports, those of baseball are simple and the strategy hasn't changed during the decades. "Hit 'em where they air't" (and try to prevent your opponents from doing so) is still the general idea. It's a slow-paced game which provides ample opportunity to wander to the refrigerator or ballpark vendor to grab some peanuts and a beer — preferably a Budweiser if you're in St. Louis, an Old Style if you're in the Windy City

The Cub-Cardinal rivalry is alive and well in Southern Illiniois. St. Louis fans hope that this year's club will erase memories of last year's dismal record and return to the form that brought a World Championship in 1962. Cub fans simply recite the the six words they have repeated since childhood: "This year, things will be different."

White Sox fans undoubtedly would settle for a modified repeat of last year, when the "winning ugly" men of Comiskey Park finished 20 games ahead of second-place Kansas City before losing in the divisional playoffs.

The beginning of the season is particularly sweet because even Cub fans can legitimately argue that their team is a pennant contender. "They're only three games out of first," the fans will plead, conveniently ignoring that only four games have been played.

THOSE VISIONS of pennant banners are a nice diversion for Saluki baseball fans. Three straight losses last weekend dropped the Saluki record to 6-11, and extended the team's losing streak to six — tying a school record. But anyone who knows Saluki baseball isn't worried about that.

One of the most basic lessons of baseball is patience. The adage that the game isn't ever until it's over —as Yogi Berra has told us — applies to win-loss records as well. In Southern Illinois, where SIU-C baseball Coach litchy Jones is close to being a living legend, people have learned not to count the Salukis out of the race. The Salukis' home opener Twesday — a sure sign a spring — is sure to draw a

Letters Learning resources serves SIU...

When the axe falls, it falls on service organizations. This seems to be an automatic, if not redundant, administrative response. Bureaucrats are known for being logical and unbending not for creativity, so maybe we should just say goodbye to the Learning Resources Service. It now stands on only one leg from drastic cuts which left heads spinning.

I refer readers to the March 29th letter by Vern Cornell — one of the few examples of publicity for LRS that I have een in my five years at SIU-C. seen in my nwe years at 510-6. This kind of publicity a year ago, along with some internal policy changes, may have saved Learning Resources. It may have turned the service into a monetarily profitable area as we'l as a scholastically profitable one. Unfortunately, our favorite bureaucrats chose the easy way out, like knifehappy surgeons anxious to make a buck — or save a buck.

Morris Library, at one time was known throughout the nation for its magnificent collections and programs. Now it's hard to get a film or a book that has been copyrighted after that has been copyrighted after 1968. Money gets wasted on useless facilities as in the Bracy Building 'scandal,' rather than targetting money for new up-dated materials and services, and improving what we already

Learning Resources provides services that are elementary and necessary to education. But instead of being improved and promoted, it is slowly having the rug pulled out from under it. While sports funding is on the rise, SIU-C students and faculty can mourn over the demise of the Learning Resource Service in Morris Library. — Charles Firth, Senior, Technical Careers

...also helps local high schools

in reference to the possible closing of the Learning Resources Service at SIU-C, I am shocked! This is not only a tremendous service for students and faculty at SIU-C. but for me as well. I am the art teacher at Anna-Jonesboro High School and find the Self Instruction Center and Film

Center to be a very valuable resource in educating my students

The loss of this service will be sorely missed. I only hope there is time for reconsideration of this illogical action.—Kathy Kelly, Art Instructor, Anna-Jonesboro High School.

LRS cut will help party reputation

In responding to the call of supporting the Learning Resources Service, I have some even better ideas.
Not only should the budget for the LRS be cut, but Dr. Guyon should close it down. We really don't need it. Furthermore, the library should be closed down. We don't need that either. All of that good knowledge in finding a job could be purchased in the University Bookstore. By the same token, the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures should be closed. Americans don't need to talk strangely. Close down the Recreation Center, we can all just go down to the road and jog to stay healthy.

Close down or cut as much as possible all of those wastes.

Just emphasize those moneymaking departments and keep the Student Center flourishing so we can proudly tell our friends and families that we are in the most practical university not one cent was wasted.

What about our 'reputation? Don't worry about that. I am very sure that we will win a national reputation as a party university. —Sebastian S.P. Chou, Graduate, Department of Higher Education

Prayer compromise is needed

"The government of the United States is in no sense founded on the Christian religion."

These words may shock the sensibilities of some, but they are just as true today as they were when President Washington wrote them near the close of the 18th century.

Washington and the rest of the Founding Fathers would certainly breathe a sigh of relief at the recent Senate defeat of the proposed constitutional amendment allowing organized prayer in the public schools. We can all thank our respective creators, where that applies, that our elected representatives in Washington think enough of the basis on which this country was founded to withstand the potential wrath of the 81 percent of Americans who support a "voluntary" prayer amend-

OF COURSE, support of purely voluntary prayer in the public schools is only a tad more controversial than supporting peace, or coming out in favor of "good weather." The issue is a bit more complex than

First, the Supreme Court has never outlawed voluntary prayer in the public schools. Its 1962 decision merely enjoined formal prayer organized by teachers. Students are free to pray, individually and to themselves. The notion that God looks with dis-ain on children's prayers ut ess in-toned in unison by 25 vol. is has of late fallen into disfavor with theologians, and a prayer designed to offend no denomination is bound to be so innocuous as to be meaningless mush anyway.

copalian minister one Episcopanan minister suggested that government-sponsored prayer has about as much to do with with deeply held personal beliefs as prostitution has to do with love.

HIS OPINION is consistent with that of the National Council of Churches. The NCC lobbied as long and as hard as anyone against the proposed amendment, because it realizes that the establishment clause of First Amendment probably the best friend religion has. As Justice Black made clear in the Court's 1982 opinion, the First Amendment separation of church and state separation of cnuren and state was, above all, an attempt to preserve religion in the face of the inevitable corrupting influence of government. The fluence of government. The framers initially considered supporting all religious through tax support, but abandoned this pian with the realization that their cause would be better served by a complete They believed that the people knew what was best, and could support their own religions

CHIEF JUSTICE Burger's opinion in the recently decided Pawtucket, R.I., nativity scene case, while splitting the Court, did exhibit a little political savvy. The current uproar over the church-state issue may have convinced the Court that "wail of separation" not be such a good expression take literally. Calling it merely a "useful" guidline, the Court allowed state funding of a Christmas display and, some feel, may be willing to open the crack a bit wider in a test case crack a bit wider in a test case involving voluntary prayer — a concept neither endorsed nor disallowed by the Court in it's '62 and '63 decisions.

The Court would be wise to take this step. The hair's-breadth away from which this country appears to be from tinkering with the Constitution means that some compromise ssary. Voluntary prayer, with the Court's blessing, may be the bone to toss to those outraged by the President's inaccurate claim that under current law prayer in the classroom is illegal. It's not, but perhaps the limits should be clearly defined, before that horrors of horrors - a con-stitutional convention, is upon

Mechanic's extra effort appreciated

You may have had times when an employee at a business put forth a small effort on your behalf. The effort may have been trivial, but it relieved you of a bothersome "headache." You may also have had times when an employee simply could not muster sufficient human capacity to lift the smallest finger to help you, and your headache was compounded. Well I had the best of times and the worst of times on a recent evening and it has forever changed who I'll let handle my automotive business. Maybe it will influence you too.

I had just sold my car and needed to remove the old license plates. My tool box was unavailable and the few kitchen tools that I struggled with could tools that I strugged with could not loosen the rusty nuts and holts. So I drove to the nearest gas station. The young mechanic "on duty" simply could not spare a squirt of WD-40 penetrating oil or the use of a screwdriver for 15 seconds.

"I just wouldn't be able to help you there," he droned. And was much too occupied with buddy and a wrestling agazine to take a moment to lend me a hand.

I drove my compounded headache to Glenn's AMOCO on East Main Street. In a matter of seconds the young mechanic himself was out with tools and liberal splashes of WD-40. Presto! No more headache. No charge.

Glenn, if you're out there thanks. −B.F. Greene. Associate Rehabilitation Professor

Heartfelt thanks from Gary's gang

On behalf of Sen. Gary Hart's presidential campaign, I would like to thank the voters of Southern Illinois for their en-thusiastic support in the Demo_ratic primary on March

The Gary Hart slate carried five of six delegates to victory in the 22nd Congressional district. These Southern Illinois will be residents our representatives at the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco from July 16 through 20.

The winning Hart delegates are Lloyd Haims, Dianne Meeks and Sal Stacey Carbondale, Joel Spenner, of

God is lucky to have America on His side

Recently in a New Yorker "Talk of the Town" article, the writer suggested that while in the past national leaders were accustomed to insist that God was on their side, today often their claim is that they are on God's side.

President Reagan's pressed views were given by the writer as illustration of this latter - and equally less-thanhumble — position. Later, on March 6, in an address to the National Association of Evangelicals in Columbus, Ohio, the President seemed to document what the New Yorker had asserted. According to press reports Reagan said, "I firmly believe that the loving God who blessed our land and made us good and loving people should never have been expelled out from America's schoolrooms."

This statement raises an This statement raises an interesting theological question, one concerning the power of God — or, rather, concerning the weakness of God. From the observation the president made, it may be deduced that he believes that God does not have the power to he wherever he desires. In fact, the use of the term "expelled" suggests the image of God as a resisting schoolboy being en-cluded from schools throughout the nation. And on the basis of the nation. And on the basis of the prayer amendment proposed by Reagan, one sees him, in a parallel image, taking God by the hand (the an-thropomorphism is pertinent here) and, in all humility, guiding him back into the guiding him back into the classroom — conceivably aided in the rematriculation effort by the Rev. Jerry Falwell and many other righteous citizens.

_Letters_

Considering the effect that all the political activity regarding the prayer question might have upon God, it can be speculated that if he is accustomed to sleep (though it is said God never sleeps) he will be able to rest more securely knowing that those leaders are at work to counter his weakness by means of government arrangements. Surely God is fortunate to be Salrely God is fortunate to be living at a time when such diligent, patriotic Americans can so painlessly protect him.— E. Earle Stibitz, Professor Emeritus, English

Religion already lives in public classrooms

I'm writing in response to the March 22 letter, "Coerced religion doesn't belong in public writer The assumes President Reagan's prayer amendment will force religion on his child, and would inject it into the public schools.

First, Reagan's prayer amendment calls only for voluntary prayer. No forcing of doctrines of belief in God is called for called for

Some think this allowance will "breach the wall between church and state." But Reagan cruren and state. But Heagan intends only to give a freedom, not take one away. This in no way unseparates the two en-tities or results in one in-duencing the other. What people fail to consider is how Christians feel about prayer. Christianity is not something we put on and take of like a shirt. It s a lifestyle we take wherever we go; prayer plays a central role in that lifestyle.

So what's infringing about Christians (or anyone else) christians (or anyone else) praying together in an empty room before school or during free time? Do we force the standard of wearing bras and skirts on ERA advocates? No!

Secondly, the writer assumes that public schools are religion-ee. Are they? Before you label Christianity a religion, make note: Biblically, religion is man seeking God; Christ is God seeking man.

If however, by "religion-free" the writer means that "faith, doctrines, and rituals" should not be in school, I've got news for him.

Sweeping the schools is "humanism." You're afraid of a bias for God — how about the other extreme? The U.S. Suprome Court declared humanism a "religion" and "faith." Webster's defines it as "...a dectrine, attitude, or way of life centered on human in terests...that often rejects teresis...that often rejects supernaturalism." Cherished humanist teaching, macro-evolution, demonstrates the extent its doctrines have crept into the curriculum.

Organic chemist Winkie Pr they says this teaches that one family of species (say 'dog') changes into another family (say 'horse'), without intelligent planning (anti-God). Pratney says that for something to be true scientific fact, it must be observed and repeated; yet nothing even approaching a complete change that reproduces is observed.

So why is evolution often taught as if proven, when it is not? Biologist James Coppedge's research reveals that ...Darwin...and other early evolutionists did not start in direction...because of scientific evidence, but because of emotional and spiritual bias

This same hatred for God and the Bible that perpetrated Karl Marx's 'Communist Manifesto" inspired key U.S. politicians and educators to sign their 'Humanist Manifesto' This same sign thei Manifesto.'' Thia philosophy infiltrates your child's mind.

We're so paranoid that Christianity will poison our kids that humanism sneaks right by. Worse yet, it's completely funded by you, the taxpayer. # Tax checkoff to help preserve non-commercial game in state

By Darren Hillock Student Writer

Not that he has anything against bald eagles, but Alan Woolf of the Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory at SIU-C would rather see money from the new illinois income tax non-game wildlife checkoff go instead for animal protection programs for which there is no other source of funding.

Still, some money must be spent on animals, like the bald eagle, that capture the public's interest, Woolf said.
Illinois has become the 30th state to institute a checkoff on the state income tax form for voluntary contributions to a fund for non-game wildlife fund for non-game wildlife conservation. Checkoffs for funds for veterans and child abuse prevention are also on the form. By checking Line 12a, 12b or 12c a person may con'ribute up to $10 of a tax refund to each of the funds. Married couples may contribute up to $20

A conference was held in December 1983 at Sangamon State University is Springfield to establish priorities for the wildlife fund. Areas of need were ranked by participants. Woolf conducted the meeting on research at the conference. research at the conference

Woolf said he would like to see some of the money spent on gathering information about animals that aren't on the endangered list or hunted. This information about animals' habits could be used to educate teachers and students, he suggested.

Woolf cited the weasel as an example of an animal whose habits need to be examined

"We know hardly anything about weasels in Illinois," Woolf said.

The consensus at the conference was that understanding species and habitats should be the top priority, according to a report on the conference. This was followed by the need to educate the public and provide for creation and preservation of habitate

With this program Illinois will have, for the first time, funding not only for protection of endangered species and game animals but for other species as well.
"I'm delighted to see such legislation passed in Illinois," seid Willard Klimstra, director of the Cooperative Wildlife
Research Laboratory. "It enables a much broader cross-section to make contributions."

Woolf said that in the past, wildlife programs have been supported largely by hunter's license fees and by farmers who provide wildlife habitat or their land. The tax checkoff, however, will enable urban as well as rural people to con-

Urban people could be the success of the program, he added

Woolf would prefer that animals such as bald eagles that have other well-funded protection not get a lot of money from the new fund, he said. Instead, he would rather see the money spent on animals that need help and can still be saved. Neither should those for

Civil War era to come alive during Makanda re-enactment

By Elaine Wilkinson Student Writer

An episode in American history will come to life April 14 and 15 at the 6th Annual Battle of Makanda

Men and women brought together by their fascination with the Civil War era will travel from half a dozen states to Makanda to participate in a re-enactment of a Civil War

Carbondale will be represented by Crossland's Brigade, 7th Kentucky Cavalry, C.S.A., named for Col. Edward Crossland of the 7th Kentucky Cavalry, Buford's Division of Forrest's Cavalry, organized in May 1864.

Crossland's Brigade is under the supervision of Lt. Col. James Ness, a faculty member in the School of Technical Careers

"Everything is as authentic as it can possibly be," ac-cording to Ness, who said the "living history" concept is of major importance in a re-enactment. Participants may even assume the identities of actual people, he said. Ness said that as many as 1,000 spectators and between 200 and 300 enthusiasts are expected to attend, including units from Indiana, Missouri, units from Indiana, Missouri, Tennessee, Georgia and Texas. Participants from Southern Illinois will include the 31st Illinois Infantry, 54th Illinois Light Artillery, be said.

Among the weekend's activities are a target-shooting match, tactical skirmish, competitive drills, uniform competition, a ladies tea and a military ball.

The final event will take place

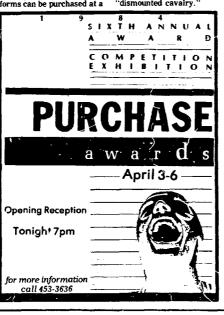

The final event will take place at 1 p.m. Sunday. Participants will re-enact the maneuvers and basic troop movements which took place at Logan's Crossroad in eastern Kentucky, where the Union scored a where the Union scored a victory on Jan. 19, 1862. "It's all well organized and controlled." Ness said. "Since we do deal with live powder and use real firearms, there are certain safety rules."

According to Ness, the cost of a period firearm, about $200, may discourage potential members of the brigade, especially students. He said uniforms can be purchased at a variety of specialty shops, but most are handmade.

Crossland's Brigade has traveled to Tennessee. Mississippi and Wisconsin to participate in historical re-enactments, Ness said. The seven-member group usually meets weekly on an informal Jay Hammond, a multi-purpose player for the Saluki baseball team, displayed his three gloves and catcher's gear at Monday's practice. Hammond will probably catch in Tuesday's home opener, a double-header with the Evansville Aces.

Versatile freshman fills Salukis' holes

By Daryl Van Schouwen Staff Writer

Call him a jock of all trades. A master of none?

"Sooner or later, I'd like to concentrate on one position," says Jay Hammond, the Saluki baseball team's all-purpose guy.

For now, Hammond will play anywhere. In SIU-C's home opener Tuesday at Abe Martin Field, he'il probably don the tools of ignorance and catch. As a freshman, he's not about to get choosy.

After Kerry Boudreaux, the backup catcher to the disabled backup catcher to the disabled Steve Boyd, injured his thumb against David Lipscomb Monday, Hammond, who possesses a strong throwing arm, was asked by Coach Itchy Jones if he would catch last weekend at Louisville. He didn't hesitate.

"Being a freshmar, any opportunity to play is advantageous," said Hammond, who caught two games for Lis high school in Worthington, Ohio, because a Boston Red Sox scout wanted to see if he could catch.

He has meandered his way back to the backstop position since then. A shortstop in high school, Hammond was converted to third base when he came to SIU-C last fall. But in his first game, on the Salukis' spring trip, he played first base.

Then, in a 10-7 loss to Miami, Hammond was called on to pitch in the sixth inning after the Hurricanes had depleted the Saluki bullpen.

"I couldn't run straight from the bullpen," Hammond said. 'I had never taken pitching seriously. But I liked coming in as a reliever in a tough situation. It got my adrenalin pumping.

With one pitch, Hammond got Chris Hart, a 351 hitter, to hit into a double play. Using primarily a curve ball, he finished the game, yielding one

On the receiving end of the battery at Louisville, Ham-mond said he enjoyed himself, despite the acnes and pains which came with the territory the following day.
"I liked the challenge," he

Pitching coach Jerry Green said he admired Hammond's willingness to catch. While not making anybody forget Mickey Cochrane back there, Green

Georgetown wins NCAA title

Georgetown, winning its 11th straight game, beat Houston 84-75 in the NCAA championship game Monday night at Seattle to win its firstever national title

Georgetown, 34-3, entered the second half with a 40-30 lead, and Houston couldn't pull any closer than five points in the last 20 minutes.

Houston's Akeem Olajuwon picked up his fourth foul early in the second half, and he went to the bench. The Cougars, 32-5, cut Georgetown's 10-point lead down to five, but that was as close as they would get. The two teams traded baskets, and each time that it appeared Houston might pull to within three, Georgetown would score

The Cougars started out strong and looked as if they might run away with the game. They hit their first seven shots, six of them from the outside, as they built a 14-4 lead. But the Hoyas came back and outscored Houston 28-8 to take a 32-22 lead with 5:20 left in the first half. Georget-wn built its lead mainly through its 10 of fensive rebounds (Houston had four), which the Hoyas converted into 10 points.

Houston didn't die, though, cutting the lead to 34-30 on Michael Young's jumper with 2:35 left in the half, before Georgetown went into the lockerroom at halftime ahead

Young scored 18 points, almost all from the outside, and Alvin Franklin scored 21 for Houston. Georgetown's Reggie Williams scored 19.

The Salukis will use pitchers Sunny Clark and Eileen Maloney, who both pitched effectively against Lincoln, when they play Tuesday. Clark is 2-4 and has completed all six of her starts. She has an earned run average of 0.67, despite allowing more hits than innings pitched

"She bends but she doesn't break," Shuki Coach Kay Brechtel oat x said.

Maloney is 0-2 with an ERA of 2.55, but was very sharp in the late innings of her last start.

The SIU-C attack is led by Tonya Lindsey and Pam Flens. Lindsey, who bats leadoff, is hitting .565, while Flens has four of SIU-C's five RBI

SIU-C will probably start an outfield, right to left, of Kathy Richert, Flens, and Kelly Nelis; and an infield of Kathy Freske at third, Lindsey at shortstop, Susan Jones or Sandy Wasfey at Susan Jones or Sandy Wastey at second base, and Nancy McAuley at first base. Cindi Knight will probably be the designated hitter and Toni Grounds or Kelly Lehto will

Golfers take 5th at Illini meet

By George Pappas Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's golf team finished fifth out of 12 teams in the Illini Golf Invitational at the Savoy Country Club over the past weekend.

Illinois won the meet, shooting a 729 and barely edging out Purdue's 730 mark. Wisconsin finished third with a wisconsin limined third with a a two-round total of 737 and Western Michigan finished fourth with a 744. The Salukis scored 751, beating out Bradley and Western Illinois by a stroke. Iowa placed eighth with a 763. Rounding out the bottom were Nebraska-Wesleyan and SIU-E, tied at 774, and St. Francis, which shot 823. Loyola did not bring a full team.

Prior to the Invitational, Saluki Coach Mary Beth McGirr said she would be happy if the Salukis finished in the top

"I thought we played very well," McGirr said. "And I "I thought we played very well," McGirr said. "And I think this was a good confidence builder for the team finishing in the top five, especially after they played those tough courses in Florida which could have tore down their morale."

The Salukis were led by John Schaefer, who finished sixth with rounds of 69 and 76 for a 146 total. Schaifer was one of two golfers that shot under a 70 on the 73-par Blue course. The other golfer to do it was Illinois' Ed Slattery, who won the invitational with a two-round total of 140 (68 and 72). Purdue's Lenny Hartlefe tied Illini's John Zyboran for second place with a 143.

Saluki Scott Briggs finished in a four-way tie for seventh place, shooting a 146. McGirr said she was impressed with Briggs's

Meade hoping for top seed in Mideast

By George Pappus Staff Writer

The Mideast Region Gym nastics Committee met Monday to decide which teams will make it from the region to the NCAA Gymnastics Chem-pionships April 12 in Los Angeles.

The results of the meeting will not be distributed until the NCAA Rules Committee meets

Tuesday morning to vote on the results of the four regions: the East, Mideaut, Midwest and West. However, the final results of team averages and records this season indicate strongly which teams will represent three of the regions, Saluki Coach Bill Meade said.

leade, whose 14-2 Salukis are fighting for the top seed against Minzesota for the Mideast region, said that UCLA should win the West region, Nebraska win the west tegals, west as as the Midwest and Penn State the East. Meade said he is not sure who will win the Mideast seed. According to NCAA rules, since Minnesota won the Big 10 Championship two weeks ago, they will get into the NCAA Championship before the other Big 10 contending teams: Illinois, Ohio State and Iowa. "We have a very good chance of being selected the Mideast extative because of our high average, the strength of our schedule (the hardest in the nation) and because of our dualmeet record against top-ranked teams,' Meade said."

The strange statistic, though, is that Ohio State has the best average in the Mideast region and the second hest average in the nation, whereas Minnesota has the fifth best average in the region and the 12th best in the Ohio State has a 279.61 average, Iowa 278.30, SiU-C 278.14, Illinois 278.07, and Minner at a 276.86. With all this at hand, it might be safe to assume that the Salukis will get the top seed in the Mideast region (based on their average and record) with Minnesota seeded No. 2. Ohio State could get the third seed, Iowa State fourth, and Illinois fifth.
