Roads and parking lots at SIU-C under repair

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

Repair and improvement of roads and parking lots at SIU-C is currently being conducted as part of a five-year program to upgrade the University infrastructure.

The work is scheduled to be completed by mid-July, according to Physical Plant spokesman Duane Schroeder. Roads at SIU-C have an average life span of about 15 years before needing major repair work, he said.

The roads being repaired are Lincoln Drive, the drive by Pulliam Hall, and Douglas Drive to McLafferty Road.

The work includes the installation of subsurface drains and resurfacing. Schroeder also said that a material known as "petro-mat" will be installed to retard cracking and increase the longevity of the roads.

Also included in construction plans for this summer is the upgrading of several parking lots on campus, including lots near the Physical Plant and Washington Square. Schroeder said that the bulk of the work on the lots is resurfacing work.

The road and parking lot work should be completed by mid-July, according to Schroeder. The work is being done by E.T. Simonds Construction Co. of Carbondale at a total cost of $713,718. Funding will come from campus parking and traffic revenues.

Another major improvement project being done this summer is the upgrading and repairing of the Route 51 pedestrian overpass. The work calls for the installation of a waterproof membrane to seal the structure, resurfacing and general repair.

The work is the first major repair of the overpass, Schroeder said. Work on the overpass, which will be closed until June 15, is also being done by E.T. Simonds.

Panel says crops unhurt by acid rain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acid rain by itself does not seem to damage major crops or some trees much or at all, the government's acid rain research panel reported Monday.

But some conifer species in Eastern U.S. forests show drastic slowdowns in growth over the past 20 years and an adequate explanation cannot be found in natural factors alone, such as insects or drought, said Chris Bernabo, the scientist who heads the 12-agency research program.

Bernabo, who is with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, called the crop finding both "significant" and "not surprising."

Early studies suggesting that acid rain damaged crops were "poorly designed," with natural causes of damage "overwhelming," he said.

The result is not surprising, he added, because farmers are "applying sulfur and nitrogen to crops 10 or more times (heavier) than acid deposition," and farmers typically control the acidity of their soil.

The debate over what to do about acid rain began only a few years ago focusing on acidified lakes in the Northeast where fish cannot live, but increasingly has shifted to forests.

Bernabo said it was clear that sulfuric acid in rain hastens the acidification of lakes. However, he added, "The threat to forests is much larger than the threat to lakes."

The report to Congress, the second from the National Acid Precipitation Assessment Program, said in a brief summary of crop research last year that "simulated acid rain did not affect the yield of potatoes."

Highly acidic rain hurt soybean seedlings, "but overall soybean leaf area damage was small, and apparently did not affect yield."

Of two varieties of soybeans tested in less acidic rain in Illinois, one — the Williams variety — was insensitive, while another — the Amsoy — showed an 8 percent decline in yield.

Two varieties of corn were insensitive to highly acidic rain.

Hearing for Mace is June 29

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

A preliminary hearing for George Mace, SIU-C professor who was charged with battery and aggravated assault with a handgun after an incident involving two SIU-C students, has been set for June 29 at 9 a.m. in Jackson County Circuit Court.

The charges stemmed from a

May 25 incident during which Mace, a former SIU-C vice-president, allegedly waved a handgun at two SIU-C students as his vehicle followed theirs on Route 51. Later, Mace allegedly assaulted the two students in a restroom at the SIU-C Travel Service, according to Captain Carl Kirk of University Security.

One of the students and Mace were sprayed with Chemical Mace during the incident at the travel service, where Mace was arrested by security officers.

According to Kirk, David Jaques, of Route 4, Carbondale, and Mark Webb, of Route 2, Murphysboro, told police they were traveling north on Route 51 at Makanda Road in a travel service vehicle when another car attempted to pass them.

They said an oncoming car forced the other car back into the northbound lane and that the driver, whom they later identified as Mace, had "given them the finger."

Kirk said the students told security officers that the driver of the other car waved a handgun at them as the vehicles

Roundup! Campus woods sprayed

By Ed Foley
Staff Writer

The contact herbicide Roundup was applied to the honeysuckle plants in Thompson Woods early on the mornings of June 8 and 9, according to Campus Natural Areas Committee Chairman Robert Mohlenbrock.

The application of the herbicide, agreed upon in late April by the committee, is part of an attempt to control what many fear may be the choking out of other vegetation by the honeysuckle's dense growth. Prior to the Roundup application Physical Plant workers cut away by hand most of the above-ground growth of the plant.

The CNAC's effort to get the spraying done during the intersession break apparently had more to do with the emotional reaction of many people to the spraying of chemical herbicides than with any dangers associated with the product Roundup. George Kapusta, professor in plant and soil sciences, was enthusiastic about the use of the product. "It's the safest product" possible, he said. "It's very safe, very sensible, and very commonly done. Some people you can spray water on and they'll contract some sort of illness, but if the University waited until all the students were gone to spray the woods, it was undoubtedly because of the emotionalism involved with the prospect of herbicide spraying."

"Roundup is a very, very safe product."

Others agreed. Randy Kempa, of the Student Environmental Center, a group which vehemently protested the cutting away of underbrush from Thompson Woods last fall, spoke approvingly of the herbicide program. "Roundup is probably the best way to deal with the honeysuckle situation in Thompson Woods," he said. "It has the advantage of being selectively applied. Speaking strictly for myself, I've got no problem with it."

Mohlenbrock pointed out that one of the great advantages of the herbicide is that it will kill the plant at its roots.

Bursar filled by late registrants

By David Liss
Staff Writer

The lines were long at the Bursar's Office in Woody Hall Monday.

"At one point they were out the door," said Ruby Bacon, assistant bursar in the cash payment division.

Students were crowding in for the traditional first-day-of-class registration. Many were surprised to find that their registration had been canceled due to lack of payment, ac-ording to Ms. Bacon.

Those who have to reregister must first go to their advisers and get a signed registration form, she said. Then they must make a prepayment at the Bursar's Office before registering.

A $15 fee will be assessed on those registering late," said Ms. Bacon. The fee does not have to be paid before registration.

Bomb suspect given hearing

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) * A former mental patient arrested in the planting of 24 pipe bombs in three states, including five in Chicago, was given a court hearing Monday in his hospital room, where he has been recovering from severe burns suffered when a bomb exploded in his rented car last week.

Earl J. Garrison, 24, a federal prisoner in the St. Paul Ramsey Medical Center, entered no plea at the hearing, which was described by U.S. Magistrate Brian Short as Karr's "initial appearance" before authorities, rather than an arraignment.

The only people who entered Karr's room were Short, public defender Dan Scott, a court reporter and U.S. Attorney James Rosenbaum.

Reporters were barred by Short's order because burn victims are highly susceptible to infection.

Short said Karr was read his rights and was told he would be represented by Scott. Short set bail at $300,000 and scheduled a preliminary hearing for June 21.

He was taken to the medical center after being burned in an explosion Friday in Mason City, Iowa, 125 miles south of Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The auto explosion triggered a federal investigation and search of Karr's boarding-house room in Minneapolis. Authorities said items seized from the car and nearby debris appeared to match those used to make pipe bombs planted in 24 locations in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois.

passed Boskeydell Road.

Webb and Jaques told police they believed the other driver then turned into a convenience store. They returned to the travel service and reported the incident to SIU-C Security.

As security officers attempted to locate the vehicle described by the students, Mace arrived at the travel service and allegedly assaulted the students in the men's restroom.

Security officers arrested Mace at 3:30 p.m. after breaking up a scuffle in the restroom between Mace and the students. No injuries resulted from the fight, police said.

Kirk said an unloaded handgun was found in Mace's vehicle, but did not recall the make or caliber of the weapon. He also declined to allow a reporter to see the University Security report on the incident.

Travel Service employees present during the incident also declined to comment.

Mace passed a sobriety test administered by security officers. He also voluntarily took a breathalyzer test for alcohol in the bloodstream that security officers offered for "information purposes only." Mace registered a reading of 0.10, which is the legal limit for operating a motor vehicle.

Kirk said Mace "came in handcuffed" and "would not be treated any differently than anyone else."

Kirk said Mace was released after posting a $100 bond.

Mace is an associate professor in the Political Science Department but is not teaching classes this summer. He could not be reached for comment Monday.

Fox River cleanup may take week

ELGIN (AP) - Cleaning up thousands of gallons of gasoline that spilled into the Fox River may take another week to 10 days, Deputy Chief Warren Danielson said Monday.

About 9,700 gallons of gasoline leaked from an above-ground, corroded storage tank at the Boncosky Oil Co. into the river. The spill, discovered Saturday, was being cleaned up by workers from Petrochem Services of Lemont.

Danielson said cleanup crews would have to excavate an area about 300 feet by 1,000 feet to remove gasoline that had soaked into the ground.

Eagleton says no to bid in 1986

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, who was forced to step aside as the Democratic vice presidential nominee in 1972 because of a history of mental health problems, announced Monday that he will not seek re-election in 1986.

"There will be times when I'll miss it greatly," the three-term Democrat said at a news conference. "But I'm very comfortable with this decision. It's time to go."

Eagleton, joined by his wife, Barbara, firmly denied that he was suffering from any current health problems.

Slight drop seen in wheat crop

WASHINGTON (AP) - The winter wheat harvest now edging through the nation's bread basket is expected to produce 1.96 billion bushels, down 1 percent from the 1983 harvest of 1.99 billion bushels, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Even so, if the harvest turns out as predicted, it will be the fourth largest in U.S. history and will mean a buildup in total wheat stockpiles, along with further downward pressure on prices paid to farmers.

Center funding meeting on Thursday

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

A meeting in Washington on Thursday among most of the officials involved in Carbondale's downtown conference center project may help to clear up confusion over current funding problems.

The meeting, scheduled for 3 p.m. Thursday and to be held in U.S. Rep. Paul Simon's Washington office, will bring together city officials, center developer Stan Hoyer, representatives from the Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (both involved with the project), Simon, and U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon or one of his top aides.

According to Don Monty, director of community development, one of the main topics to be discussed will be whether the FmHA will transfer its guarantee of bonds issued previously for the center to a new set of bonds.

Although the FmHA no longer backs such bonds, there is a possibility it could extend its December 1984 deadline instead of issuing a new guarantee, Monty said.

The city also wants to see if the FmHA will expand its guarantee to cover the full amount of the bonds needed for the project, which has increased in cost due to a reduction in size of the construction site.

Hoyer proposed a new financing plan to the city last month in which the city would guarantee the bonds, but he said Monday that there was reason to believe the FmHA would back the bonds.

"If the meeting is successful, we won't need the city to back the bonds," he said.

Whether HUD would take back its Urban Development Grant of $2 million for project land acquisition will also be discussed at the meeting. Monty said HUD believes private risk is part of the spirit of granting money for community development projects. HUD expressed disfavor with the idea of the city backing the bonds, he said.

If HUD did ask for the money back, the $600,000 that the city has already used and would have to pay back might be taken out of the city's general fund, according to Monty.

An exemption that allows projects involving conference centers to issue more than $10 million worth of bonds means the city has favorably resolved problems it had concerning an IRS regulation that no more than $10 million worth of bonds can be issued for a community development project, Monty said.

The previous set of bonds, which are unuseable because of project delays, will be wiped out in December 1984, and the new set, worth between $12 million to $15 million, would then be issued, according to Monty.

Relocation plans stall as rail projects are nixed

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

There will be some short-run construction delays for Carbondale's Railroad Relocation project because of the elimination of a U.S. 51 overpass and a Piggyback rail facility from the project, according to a city official.

However, Eldon Gosnell, Railroad Relocation unit director, said time saved because of less work resulting from the eliminations should offset the time lost due to contract renegotiations. He said the project should be finished near the original completion date of late 1985.

Illinois Central Gulf Railroad informed city officials on May 29 of plans to discontinue its Piggyback trailer-on-flatbed loading facility in Carbondale so that it could consolidate the railroad. The railroad will continue to serve Carbondale with Piggyback through facilities in Paducah, Ky., and East St. Louis.

While E.T. Simonds Construction Co. of Carbondale calculates and documents the amount of money it has already spent on the two discontinued projects, some construction work will continue on other areas of the project, Gosnell said.

A meeting early next week between city and state officials and representatives of the construction company should help to determine which unused materials the company will buy back from the city. The city and state will then attempt to agree on the new decreased contractor costs.

The total amount for the proposed Piggyback facility was $560,000. Labor costs were nominal, Gosnell said.

Gosnell expressed disappointment because of the two losses. The loss of the Piggyback facility means businesses will be less attracted to Carbondale and its trailer-loading facility, he said. Illinois Central Gulf's announcement caused a "great deal of problems," Gosnell said.

because it was untimely and caused complications due to the amount of work already in progress on the entire project.

Kudos to Hartzog and Saluki trackmen

For Lew Hartzog, men's athletics director and track coach, it was the culmination of 24 years as head of one of the most successful track and field programs in the country.

For many of the SIU-C trackmen, it was the end of their collegiate careers, and one of the last steps toward qualifying for the BIG meet -- the Olympics in Los Angeles.

For almost everyone concerned, it was an end to an era as the Salukis headed to Eugene, Ore., for the NCAA Track and Field Championships.

So, why not finish in style?

The SIU-C track team did just that, finishing in fifth place at the outdoor championship May 30 to June 1. Several individual accomplishments resulted in a strong 55-point total for the Salukis. Some of the high points of the meet and the season for SIU were: -- Hartzog was named National Coach of the Year for the second time in three years. This is an extraordinary achievement, and a great way for Hartzog to end his 24-year career as track coach.

-- Michael Franks' second-place finish strengthened his status as one of the premiere 400-meter runners in the country. He beat several runners who have gotten more recognition, such as Sunder Nix of Indiana and Sunday Uti of Iowa State, and his chances of making the U.S. Olympic team look better than ever.

-- Steeplechaser Edison Wedderburn placed third in his event with a time of 8:30.70, an SIU-C record.

-- The mile relay team, which holds the unofficial indoor record, had to come back strong after a near-disaster on the last exchange in the finals, when Elvis Forde and Franks got their feet tangled. In spite of the mishap, the team finished fourth. Even so, this relay team, which also includes Parry Duncan and Tony Adams, has a legitimate claim to ranking as the best relay foursome in the country.

-- John Sayre placed second in the decathlon with a point total of 7,891. Sayre had struggled most of the latter part of the season with back and groin injuries, but shrugged off cramps to take the runner-up spot. The first-place finisher set an NCAA meet point total record. Sayre also set a meet record, breaking his own decathlon pole-vaulting mark with a vault of 16-8.75.

Congratulations are in order all around for the Saluki squad. Their fifth-place finish was the highest placing by a team east of the Mississippi River.

While SIU may be losing a track coach and many outstanding runners, the Saluki tradition will live on with Bill Cornell, who was Hartzog's assistant coach and will take over as head of the program. We wish him and all the Olympic hopefuls luck in their futures.

We also wish Lew Hartzog the best in continuing his duties as men's athletics director. Thanks for a great season, men.

Cubbies may have what it takes; the fans are the undesirables

Well, well. Isn't it surprising to see the Chicago Cubs in first place? No, it isn't and that statement's coming from a lifelong diehard St. Louis Cardinal fan.

The Cubs do indeed have a very fine ballclub. They have the best hitting lineup in the National League and their defense is raising some eyebrows, particularly the gold glove exploits of Ryne Sandberg, the best second baseman in the senior circuit, and Bob Dernier, who has made some spectacular plays while covering centerfield.

However, it is only early June and there are the long, hot months of July and August to go, plus the crucial September stretch drive. Boisterous Cub fans kind of remind me of the White Sox fans of '83 who were put in their place by the Baltimore Orioles. I guess when you haven't participated in a World Series since 1945, and haven't won since, gasp! 1908, you better cheer, too, if your favorite team was in first place on June 11th.

From the Cardinal fans' point of view, this doesn't bother us at all. After all, other than the New York Yankees, the Cards have won the most world championships, 9, with the latest coming in 1982. That's a far cry from 1908. No wonder Cub fans are so bitter toward the Cardinals -- it's just plain envy and jealousy.

Cardinal fans talk about Darrell Porter's great hitting in the '82 World Series against Milwaukee, Bob Gibson's awesome strikeout display against Detroit in '68, the World Championship in 1967 over Boston or Ken Boyer's grand slam in the Cardinals' 1964 World Series win over the Yankees. Cub fans talk about how they almost won Eastern Division in 1969 -- that's about it.

Well, the Cubs are very good this year, and unfortunately for many Cardinal fans, the Redbirds are bad. Whitey Herzog will be but a memory in St. Louis as long as he keeps trading one-of-a-kind players like Keith Hernandez, and if he keeps playing washed up pitchers such as Bob Forsch or choke artists like Willie McGee.

Yes, the Cubs are strong and not only is their hitting exceptional, but their pitching, when healthy, is vastly underrated. The Cubs are doing exactly what the late, great Cardinals of 1982 did: winning games in the late innings, pulling out games they should've never won, and protecting late-inning leads with great relief pitching and remarkable defense. Ryne Sandberg, Jody Davis, Ron Cey, Larry Bowa, etc., all have class. Too bad the Cub fans don't. -- Gary Usselmann, Master's Program, Public Administration

Overheated hype goes straight to heart

NEXT TO the FCC code book on the desk of television station managers, there must be another book -- something called the "Encyclopedia of Hype."

That is the only explanation I can fathom for a phenomenon that's been hurtling across the skies from a local TV station into my home in recent weeks. This particular station is one of the most severely afflicted victims of a devastating disease, the Hype Syndrome.

Virtually all television networks and stations are under its spell -- some worse than others.

One symptom is self-back-patting. ABC News, for example, frequently runs a promotion in which newscasters sing the praises of anchor Peter Jennings. After 30 seconds, one concludes that Jennings is the Zeus of journalism ... a behemoth of broadcasting, if you will.

BUT LOOK who ABC found to sing Jennings' tune: Barbara Walters, Hugh Downs, Ted Koppel. They all work for ABC.

You can't exactly expect any of them to call Jennings a sniveling East Coast brat

Jay Small
Staff Writer

(whether he is or not) with the folks who sign the checks breathing down their necks. It's hype, pure and simple.

(Don't think I'm picking on TV, though. Newspapers are often just as guilty. When the fashion section becomes "Styles" or "Trends" and the features section becomes "Living," "Spectrum" or "Tempo," someone in the newsroom has borrowed a copy of the Encyclopedia of Hype from one of the TV station managers mentioned earlier.)

PERHAPS THE most awful example of hype I've witnessed,

'If you get as far as a 'Yup' or 'Nope' with most folks around here, you've found the passions and feelings of the area.'

though, began as just another innocent promotional slogan: "KFVS 12 ... Serving America's Heartland."

Well, OK. The slogan is so vague that America's Heartland could mean anything from Jackson County to the entire United States east of the Rockies. It is not necessarily inaccurate. Somewhere in that realm of possible locations is America's Heartland.

To be a true heartland, after all, a piece of real estate must possess qualities which liken it to the human heart. The body as a whole must rely on its health. And it must, figuratively, represent the passions and feelings of the whole, as well.

IN SHORT, it's got to have heart.

That would have been fine, as long as KFVS-TV in Cape

Girardeau stuck to the slogan. But promos were only the beginning.

On virtually every newscast, KFVS anchors have begun to use the term "Heartland" -- not as a reference to the Midwest, the Plains or the Rockies, but in reference to their viewing area. An example:

"Well, it looks like we can expect showers in the Heartland tonight."

This development presents some problems, both mechanical and definitional.

If, for example, the Heartland is confined to the borders of the KFVS coverage map, would those fringe areas which receive Grade B signals be "Half-Heartland"? And does the Heartland shift to another part of the country when a storm knocks out the KFVS transmitter?

A GREATER problem is the simple inaccuracy of the name. The middle Mississippi and lower Ohio River valleys simply do not fit the job description for America's Heartland.

If you get as far as a "Yup" or "Nope" with most folks around here, you've found the passions and feelings of the area. We are not world-changing, shockingly sensitive people. Look elsewhere for the passions and feelings of America's Heartland.

The rest of the nation isn't exactly counting on our every move, either. We grow a lot of food; we mine a lot of coal. But food and coal can be found elsewhere. Anything we produce is icing on the cake.

It is wrong to liken the river valleys to such a vital organ. This area is a nice place to live, but lots of folks wouldn't want to visit here. The nation doesn't mind having us around, but it could survive without us.

I'd suggest KFVS find an organ in the body fitting this description, except I'd be leery of the result:

"KFVS 12 ... Serving America's Splendid."

Carbondale opens maintenance plant

By Mike Majchrowitz
Staff Writer

With a snap of scissors and a tangle of red, white and blue ribbon, the city of Carbondale officially unveiled its new public works garage Saturday.

The 15,000-square foot facility, located at Michaels and West Willow streets, will allow the city to consolidate three of its public service functions. According to Mayor Helen Westburg, the building will house the Public Works Department, the Streets and Maintenance Department, the Equipment Maintenance Department and some of the Water and Sewer Department.

Street Superintendent Wayne Wheelers said he believes the $427,800 garage will save the city money.

"It certainly reduces our costs. We don't have to drive clear across town for maintenance, some of the materials and such are not spoiling outdoors, and I'm sure it's reducing the city's cost somewhat," Wheelers said.

The construction of the facility allowed the city to demolish its Northeast Wastewater Treatment Plant on North Wall Street as well as trade the old public works garage at 300 E. Main for a 16-acre tract of undeveloped land on Tower Road at the edge of the city. While City Manager Bill Dixon said he can see some potential use for the Tower Road property, the city has no immediate plans for its use.

The original plan for the public works garage was to expand the existing facility on East Main, but that plan was dropped when area residents protested the harm it would do to the neighborhood appearance.

"The City Council was responsive to the feelings of the neighborhood and decided not to expand at our present location," the mayor told the small crowd that gathered for the ribbon cutting ceremony.

Funding for the garage came from a 20-year loan from the Mid-American Bank and Trust of Carbondale and partially from the city's general funds. Construction was contracted from Robert L. Morgan Builders, Inc. of Murphysboro.

Student Center receives face lift after 14 years

By David Liss
Staff Writer

People entering the south side of the Student Center may notice that the outside looks a little brighter. The limestone has been sandblasted for the first time since construction was completed in 1970.

"The stone was very dirty," said Eleanor Robinson of Robinson Tuckpointing and Waterproofing Co. "The sandblasting takes off a very thin layer of stone and leaves a clean surface."

Several thousand pounds of fine-grained highly abrasive silica sand were used for the project, which was completed at the end of May.

The Communications Building is also scheduled for exterior work this summer, Robinson said. The work will include caulking, tuckpointing and waterproofing.

Other projects scheduled at the Student Center include the construction of a retaining wall at the north end and the replacement of carpet on the second floor and in the bookstore. Bids for the purchase of new carpet will be discussed at a Board of Trustees meeting June 14.

"It should be about a $150,000 job," said Student Center Director John Corker.

Corker said the retaining wall should keep drainage from damaging the surrounding landscape. He said the wall will cost about $5,000 to construct and should be completed within the next few weeks. Electrical outlets will be installed in the area as well.

"The outlets will provide electricity for outdoor food stands during nice weather," Corker said.

Program set for studies in London

SIU-C will launch a study-abroad program next fall that will take students to the Bloomsbury campus of the University of London.

The self-sustaining program will be administered by the American Institute for Foreign Study, a private Connecticut-based organization which provides overseas study and travel programs for students and teachers nationwide.

Classes will be taught by faculty members from SIU-C and five other participating universities. Each school will send one faculty member who will teach three courses and help coordinate a course on "British Life and Culture." Richard M. Blumenberg, professor of cinema and photography, will teach fall semester classes in film analysis, film planning and scripting, and contemporary film history.

"The University has been interested in a semester-abroad program in London for a number of years," said Jared Dorn, assistant director of the Office of International Education. "After looking very carefully into several programs, we think we've found the perfect one."

The cost to students is $2,795 which includes meals and housing, counseling, cultural and social events, and faculty support services. The fee does not include deposits on housing, SIU-C tuition or air fare.

Brochures describing the program are available at International Services, Thomas Saville, adviser with International Services, said the registration deadline is June 27.

Bill would fund repair work at Touch of Nature

By Ed Foley
Staff Writer

SIU-C's Touch of Nature Environmental Center will receive $900,000 for its first major renovation work in 30 years if a bill introduced by state Sen. Kenneth Buzbee (D-Makanda) and passed by the Senate becomes law. A Buzbee spokesman called its chances in the House "excellent."

The 3,200-acre facility is in "terrible" condition, according to its director, Phil Lindberg.

"The center is in about the shape any set of buildings would be in that were 30 years old and had had no real renovation," Lindberg said Monday. "It's difficult to pinpoint specific repairs needed when everything is in such bad shape."

The funds, if released, will be used to repair cabins, offices, camping areas and other projects.

Buzbee, in a press release dated June 1, said that the renovations would "allow Touch of Nature to continue to serve as an outstanding, year-round recreational area."

Lindberg said that the facility currently "just meets (building and health code) standards." Without the repair money, Lindberg said the closing of one of the center's two camps is a distinct possibility, possibly within the year.

Asked about his priorities should the final appropriation fall short of the proposed $900,000, Lindberg called the sewer system "a disaster."

"You have 3.54 miles of clay tile sewer that was put in 30 years ago. Today, it's literally falling apart. Tree roots are pushing it up, the treatment plant is full of dirt and rocks, and something has got to be done about it very soon," he said.

Other problems at the center include office space which frequently has no heat or air conditioning and lodges and dining halls that are in need of renovation, according to Lindberg.

Gary Lewis of Gary Lewis and the Playboys sings at Shryock.

Gary and Playboys whip up non-sticky kind of nostalgia

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

A Concert Review

It was an evening of sugar-coated, but not sticky, fun when Gary Lewis and the Playboys entertained at Shryock Auditorium Saturday night.

The performance was a benefit for learning, physically and mentally disabled children sponsored by the Carbondale Jaycees.

Lewis, the son of comedian Jerry Lewis, acted enthusiastic singing '60s hits such as "This Diamond Ring," "Count Me In" and "Everybody Loves a Clown."

Lewis' boyish presence was complete with blue jeans, running shoes, a sport shirt, black curly hair and a gentle, innocent smile. The innocence was the core of the nostalgic Lewis created.

He brought back memories of days when men wore penny loafers and white socks and women sprayed Adorn on their hair. At one point in the show - before Lewis sang "Holiday Inn" - he said that that song was the hit that he and the Playboys had before he did his part "for Uncle Sam."

The sentiment fit and the audience, made up largely of people in their 30s and their kids, seemed to appreciate it.

But though the concert on the whole had an air of charm, it seemed to be rushed. Lewis and his band seemed to dart onto the stage and after about 40 minutes darted off when the audience, which nearly filled the auditorium, obviously wanted more.

But aside from that, the concert was enjoyable. It gave young people a chance to hear music from a time when there were no FM rock stations and fewer rock subgenres.

'Temple' is a movie of TV age

By Phil Milano
Staff Writer

Steven Spielberg has achieved the near impossible - made a movie containing more heart-stopping moments than "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

But the literal rollercoaster pace of "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," Spielberg's latest throwback to the good-old-days of action - adventure movie shorts and nickel bags of popcorn, sacrifices even the slightest hint of character development.

Not that people are looking for an intellectual experience when they enter a theater to watch Indy do his stuff. The television-nurtured generation, it seems, has grown to appreciate short takes and less dialogue in order to accommodate shortened attention spans.

But this is too much. Harrison Ford, as Jones, grunts and smirks his way through the movie as only Ford can. His little oriental sidekick, Short Round, played energetically by

A Film Review

Ke Hung Quan, steals just about every scene containing more than two lines of dialogue. But the problem is there aren't very many of those scenes.

"Indiana Jones," filmed on location in Sri Lanka off the coast of India, takes place in time before "Raiders," although the sequence of the episodes isn't all that important.

The movie starts off with a nightclub brawl in Shanghai that nearly exhausts the audience as well as Jones and his cohorts, and from there on it's non-stop action, as Jones escapes some nasty customers and flees to India.

The fact that we really don't know why Jones takes Willie Scott, a song-and-dance girl played by beautiful Kate Capshaw, with him isn't important, because the plot itself really isn't important. This movie thrives on a solid founation of outrageous stunt sequences, with plot and character development weaved thinly around those sequences. Capshaw is there simply so the movie will have its female lead.

Jones gets involved in more dangerous exploits when he helps a small Indian village that lost a sacred, life-sustaining stone. Indy searches for the stone, and the audience gets a chance to sweat through some of the wildest stunts on film since, well, "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

A note of caution. Although the movie is made with the spirit of having some good, clean fun, parts of it may be too intense for small children. Some of the visuals are surprisingly graphic for a PG film.

This is a tight, well-made action film, but the pace is too ferocious and perhaps misdirected. That, along with a lack of "real" people who the audience can care about, keeps "Indiana Jones" from being a great movie.

Summer lineup promises to be 'the best ever'

By Duane Crays
Entertainment Editor

Something for everybody. It's an old cliché that has been used over and over, but this year's summer movie lineup offers just about everything — adventure, romance and comedy.

With an all-star lineup including "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," "Star Trek III: The Search for Spock," "Once Upon a Time in America," "Streets of Fire," "Top Secret," "Beat Street," "Gremlins" and "Ghostbusters," Hollywood producers are predicting that this will be the movie's biggest summer ever. They may be right.

Although their films face competition from the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles later this summer, Hollywood studios haven't appeared worried. Instead, they have moved up their release dates to allow for the games. That, coupled with the fact that nobody was willing to compete with "Indiana Jones," created a backlog of seven movie premiers in just two weeks.

Those seven movies have hardly missed a beat.

"The Search for Spock" has set a record with a single-day gross of $9.6 million. "Indiana Jones" held the previous one-day mark of $9.3 million. Returns for "Ghostbusters" and "Gremlins" which opened last weekend, have not been published yet, but the University 4 Theaters in Carbondale has been enjoying good business.

The competition from these four films has hurt "Once Upon a Time in America," "Streets of Fire" and "Top Secret," but Hollywood seems unworried. Instead, producers are preparing to release even more films soon. Here's the best of the summer releases coming to Carbondale: "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" — High adventure awaits as Jones (Harrison Ford) saves an Indian village. Kate Capshaw costars. Now showing at the Varsity.

"Star Trek III: The Search for Spock" — James Kirk (William Shatner) risks everything to journey back to Genesis to find his friend. Now playing at the Fox.

"Ghostbusters" — Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd and Harold Ramis battle ghosts in the Big Apple. Sigourney Weaver ("Alien," "The Year of Living Dangerously") and Rick Moranis ("Second City TV") costar. Now playing at the University 4 Theaters.

"Gremlins" — A small-town boy's Christmas turns into mayhem when his father returns from the Orient with a most unusual gift. Stars Zach Galligan and Phoebe Cates. Directed by Joe Dante ("The Howling," "Twilight Zone — The Movie.") Now playing at the University 4 Theaters.

"Once Upon a Time in America" — Robert DeNiro and James Woods star in Sergio Leone's epic tale of two hoods who rise to political prominence in the 1960s. Over one hour's worth of film was cut from the original. Now playing at the University 4 Theaters.

"The Last Starfighter" — Universal peace is the prize where the characters play video game-like battles for keeps. Stars Robert Preston and Lance Guest. Release date scheduled for July 13.

"Streets of Fire" — Director Walter Hill's ("48 Hours") stylish tale of rock n' roll and violence in another time. Stars Diana Lane. Good soundtrack. Now playing at the Saluki.

"Top Secret" — A spy movie spoof by Jim Abrahams, David Zucker and Jerry Zucker — the team behind the comedy sensation "Airplane."

"Rhinestone" — Dolly Parton teams with cabbie Sylvester Stallone to form a country duo in New York City. Due for release June 22.

"The Pope of Greenwich Village" — Mickey Rourke ("Diner," "Rumblefish") and Eric Roberts star as two down-and-outers who grab some Mafia money. Costars Darryl Hannah (Splash.) Look for this film or "Red Dawn" as the sleeper for the summer. To be released June 22.

"Cannonball Run II" — Burt Reynolds is joined by Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis, Jr. and Shirley MacLaine in the sequel to the 1981 comedy. To be released June 29.

"Conan the Destroyer" — Arnold Schwarzenegger returns with his pecs to battle former basketball great Will Chamberlain and rock star Grace Jones. Release date is set for June 29.

"Red Dawn" — A group of Soviet paratroopers invade a small Colorado town. The sleeper of the bunch. To be released on Aug 17.

"Jungle Book" — Fun for the whole family as the Walt Disney classic is set for re-release July 13.

Playhouse starts season with mystery

By Margaret Calcott
Staff Writer

Summer Playhouse '84 promises to provide another summer of quality entertainment with a diverse payroll including two musicals, an Agatha Christie murder mystery and a Neil Simon comedy.

Summer Playhouse will kick off its season with "The Hollow," a whodunit by Agatha Christie.

The story takes place in England in the 1940s at an estate called The Hollow, where a group of British well-to-dos gather for a weekend reunion. Unfortunately, their idea of a good time is foiled by the murder of one of their comrades and the suspicions and accusations that follow.

Main characters in "The Hollow" include Faith Potts as the eccentric Lady Angkatel, Doug Blines as Inspector Calhoun and Chris Banholzer as the starlet Veronica.

"The Hollow," which features a unique puzzle-design set that begins with an empty stage and gradually emerges as the plot develops, will run June 21 to 24 at 8 p.m.

"Annie," a musical by Charles Strouse and Martin Charnin, will be the second Playhouse production this season. It's the story of a girl who leaves the orphanage where she was abandoned in search of her parents and a place to call home during the Depression.

Laura Hileman of Mount Vernon will star as Annie. Eighteen other girls from Southern Illinois will complete the cast of orphans. Eric McCluskey plays Daddy Warbucks; Chris Banholzer, Mrs. Hannigan; and Lee Shakelford, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Billed as an "anthem to optimism," "Annie" will run June 29 to July 1 and July 5 to 8 at 8 p.m. Matinees will be held at 1 p.m. July 1 and 7.

Neil Simon's "California Suite" will provide the summer's comic relief. It follows the lives of four zany characters who check in at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

A New Yorker comes to the hotel to reclaim a child lost in a divorce, while a Jewish Chicagoan must explain to his wife why there is a hooker in his bed. A London actress appears with hopes of winning an Academy Award, and two Philadelphia couples who come for a friendly vacation together end up in a brawl.

"California Suite" will be directed by Robert Shank in his directing debut at SIU-C. The characters will be played by Calvin McLean, director of "The Hollow," Chris Banholzer, Lin Sagovsky, Eric Swan and Marcie Cocking, who is a senior at Murphysboro High School.

"California Suite" is both funny and touching, making it one of Simon's most sophisticated comedies. It will run July 12 to 15 at 8 p.m.

The season will close with "A Little Night Music," a Stephen Sondheim musical based on a film by Ingmar Bergman.

Among the songs in "A Little Night Music" is "Send in the Clowns." The cast will include former Miss Southern Illinois Brenda Sanders, a music major from Carleville, who also has a role in "Annie." "A Little Night Music" will run July 20 to 22 and July 26 to 29 at 8 p.m.

RCA, mayor feud over Reagan album

DIXON (AP) - When Ronald Reagan recorded a Bible album 30 years ago, he told the stories of Solomon and Abraham. Now the record has sparked a battle in his boyhood town reminiscent of another religious tale - David and Goliath.

The subject of the battle is "Ronald Reagan Reads Stories from the Old Testament," a 1954 RCA album that recently has been re-released by Mayor James Dixon and his business partners in the northern Illinois town where the president grew up.

Dixon, an attorney, said Monday that the copyright of the original record expired in 1980. He contends he and his partners now have the rights to the religious album.

But an RCA spokesman in New York said the company "is convinced" it has the rights to the Reagan record and has sent the Dixon businessmen a cease-and-desist order.

The album, which is being marketed primarily through religious bookstores, includes stories about Abraham and Solomon.

"We have the third story,"

Dixon said. "It's David and Goliath."

Dixon said RCA notified the Dixon businessmen that a performance contract gave the company exclusive rights to marketing the album. But the mayor said RCA didn't mention a copyright and has given them no reason to halt sales.

"We will continue until there is some reasonable evidence for what they're claiming," Dixon said.

RCA disagrees. A spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said: "We have the rights and are going to protect our rights."

The spokesman declined to specify what, if any, action will be taken, however.

Dixon said the album is not only popular because of Reagan but because it is timely.

It's "a collectible," he said. "It's fitting for the times because of the arguments about prayer in school."

Dixon said about 5,000 albums and 5,000 cassettes of the Reagan recording will be sent out this week. Some changes have been made in background and in the progression of the readings on the album.

Performing artists sought at audition

By Carys Edwards
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois performers will once again be offered the chance to demonstrate their abilities when Southern Illinois Arts hold its second annual auditions to find the top artists for area performances.

Actors, musicians, dancers, jugglers, magicians, choral groups and others may be among the three to five acts selected at the auditions to be held July 14 in Belleville, said SIA Executive Director Jean Shisler.

"Audience appeal, marketability, quality and type of performance" will be taken into consideration by the nine judges, she said. They hope to find varied acts, but "what we're really looking for are performances that appeal to children. We find a strong need for these," she added.

Acts that are selected will be marketed by SIA to schools and communities throughout 34 Southern Illinois counties. SIA will act as their booking agent and receive 10 percent for each performance, which will cost the sponsoring organizations up to $150.

Shisler said that SIA would select the top acts for the communities and that the communities will be assured of reliable and high quality performances.

"It's a service for the artists as well," she added. "Local artists make money and are able to perform in communities which they wouldn't have been able to perform in otherwise." Patrick Drazen who heads one of last year's winning acts, the folk music band "Green Grass," said his band benefitted from the arrangement.

"They (SIA) had a lot more contacts with organizations around the state and were able to recommend us to places we hadn't heard of," he said.

Other artists selected in 1983-84 were pianist Donald P. Beattie, a visiting assistant music professor from SIU-C, and the Jackson County Stage Company, who performed Anton Chekov's play "The Bear."

This year's winners will be expected to have flexible hours and be willing to travel within a 125-mile radius of their homes. Deadline for applications is June 29.

Plan to expand Rec Center introduced

By David Liss
Staff Writer

Overcrowding has long been a problem at the Recreation Center, according to William Bleyer, director of intramural-recreational sports.

"We were overcrowded the day we opened," Bleyer said, "and we have been ever since."

That's the main reason behind the introduction of an expansion plan for the Recreation Center. The plan, presented at the Intramural-Recreational Sports Advisory Board meeting in April, calls for the addition of eight racquetball courts, two squash courts, two gymnasiums and a large multipurpose room.

"Our original plans included these additional facilities, but the bids were too high," Bleyer said.

What currently stands is all that the school could afford at the time, he said.

The addition would be constructed where the running track is now, according to Bleyer. The northeast wall, which makes up one side of the dance, martial arts and golf rooms, would be the starting point and would make up the

'The field house would look something like an airplane hangar.'

- William Bleyer

south wall of the new racquetball courts. A hall would connect the addition to the existing facility.

The plan would cost $4.5 million to $5 million to complete, Bleyer said. The original facility cost $11 million at the time of its completion on June 12, 1977, he said.

"The addition would have cost $1.75 million if we'd done the whole thing at once," Bleyer said. "That's where we made our mistake."

An alternate plan currently being considered by the Advisory Board is the construction of a field house in the same location, he said. The field house, instead of having the same type of construction as the existing Recreation Building, would be a metal prefabricated structure.

"The field house would look something like an airplane hangar," Bleyer said.

It would contain eight racquetball courts, room for gymnasiums, three meeting rooms and a much-needed indoor track.

"We have a nationally recognized track and field program here at SIU," said Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs. "But we are in the ridiculous position of not having an indoor track."

The track could be used for intramural-recreational activities as well as competition, he said.

With the use of drop-down partitions like those in the existing gymnasium, the field house would be "programmable," according to Bleyer.

"It could be used for basketball, volleyball, track meets, concerts, table tennis, rollerskating, or just about anything you can think of," he said. "It could be changed to fit any need."

The floor of the field house would be a rubber-like surface similar to what is in the

"That type of multipurpose floor is a little safer than concrete and easier to maintain than wood," Bleyer said.

The cost of the field house would be around $3 million, Bleyer said.

"I feel the field house plan is better because of its flexibility and cost considerations," he said.

The original Recreation Center has been paid for completely, according to Bleyer, and is supported by student fees.

"It's my dream to find a way to finance the addition other than through student fees, which is how the original structure was financed," Swinburne said.

The project is still in the "dream stage," Swinburne said. The SIU Board of Trustees must grant final approval, according to Bleyer. Private investors might provide one source of income, he said.

"Right now we just can't provide adequate space for the students, faculty and alumni," Bleyer said. "This addition would take care of all our overcrowding problems."

ROTC cadet wins Guard recognition

Brenda K. Larson, Air Force ROTC cadet at SIU-C and an administrative sciences major, has been recognized as Airman of the Year by the Illinois Air National Guard.

The honor is given annually to a cadet for exceptional performance and leadership while in the National Guard.

Larson is an administrative specialist assigned to the Resource Management Squadron, 483rd Tactical Fighter Group, in Springfield.

When she graduates from SIU-C in May 1986, she will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force.

Southern Illinois Edsel owner has last laugh

WEST LIBERTY (AP) — Did you hear the one about the traveling salesman from this Southern Illinois town?

They joked about Perry Piper cruising the country in his Edsels. But he says he got the last laugh, founding the Edsel Owners Club and owning 14 of the autos that were once described as the worst car ever made but today are worth several thousands of dollars.

With what could be considered a $50 pile of metal in any junkyard, Piper and other members of the Edsel Owners Club have restored the old Fords into gleaming classics.

For Piper, 73 and retired from his salesman's rounds, a love for the Ford Motor Co. embarrassment resulted from the demise of another car. He was a Packard man.

He bought Packards in 1951, 1953 and 1955 and was ready to buy another in 1957. But then they quit making Packards.

He decided to buy an Edsel. No dealer would trade for his Packard, however, and it wasn't until 1959 that he could afford the Edsel, with its famous square shape and grill that was said to look like a horse harness.

Ford made only 111,000 Edsels for the model years 1958 to 1960. Less than 3,000 1960 models were manufactured before Ford abruptly ceased production in November 1959.

A September 1963 issue of Life magazine described the Edsel as the worst car ever made.

But that hasn't dulled Piper's enthusiasm. In fact, he agrees, to a certain extent, with the car's critics.

"The first cars had bugs and they tried to get them out too quickly," he explained Sunday.

He also said people weren't interested in all the gimmicks on the Edsel. Some 28 accessories never before offered were available.

But when the Edsel was in proper driving order, it was a smooth-riding car, Piper says.

As owner of 14 Edsels — not all roadworthy — Piper is eager to tell the tales Edsel lovers love.

"I wanted to trade the '59 in for a new car in 1961," Piper said, "and I knew I made a mistake. I couldn't get anything in trade for my Edsel."

He considered other Fords, but they just didn't ride like his Edsel. He looked for a used Edsel. Still no luck.

"Dealers wouldn't take them; they were valueless. But then I got to thinking, there must be other people with Edsels out there," he said.

So he bought magazine advertising to find out who those people were. The post office soon started handling 4,000 letters a week from Edsel enthusiasts everywhere.

The Edsel Owners Club was formed soon after. But it was when Piper received a call from a California man, Edsel Henry Ford — no relation to the automaker — and made him president pro-tem of the club that media attention was bestowed in celebrity fashion.

Piper says it was a Wall Street Journal front-page article on the 10th anniversary of the car's death that led to the ultimate value of the Edsel.

One Edsel owner the newspaper talked to said he wouldn't take $5,000 for his car if he couldn't get another one

Measure to revive Title IX awaiting action in U.S. House

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

A bill that would restore institutionwide coverage of Title IX of the 1972 Education Amendments is currently waiting for action in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The bill is in response to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in the Grove City College case in Grove City, Pa. The court ruled that Title IX, which bars sex discrimination in any educational program or activity receiving federal financial aid, does not apply to all activities at a recipient institution, but only to the particular program receiving federal funds.

According to Marsha Wice, staff member of the House Education and Labor Committee, the bill would change the regulatory language in the law to statutory language, which would help to restore the institutionwide coverage originally intended by Title IX.

The Reagan administration opposes the bill, saying that it would open the way for more federal intrusion into state and local governments, since most public universities are funded by a state or local government. The administration also contends that the legislation is so broad that, if passed, the federal government would have to expand its enforcement activities.

Wice said there is a difference between coverage and enforcement.

Wice said that there is a difference between coverage of an institution by Title IX and enforcement of the law. The law covers the recipient of any federal funds, but enforcement is much narrower, she said.

For instance, since the SIU system receives Pell grants, the entire system is covered under Title IX. However, if SIU-C were to practice discrimination in administering Pell grants, enforcement action would be taken against SIU-C, not the entire system.

Under the much narrower court interpretation of Title IX, if SIU-C practices discrimination in athletics, the title is not enforceable, since SIU-C's Athletics Department receives no federal aid. However, if the bill passed action could be taken against the University if it discriminated in its Athletics Department since students are eligible for Pell grants at SIU-C.

Wice said that action might consist of several measures, the final resort being the termination of funding to an institution. Wice also said that no funds have ever been terminated under Title IX.

Wice said that one of the effects of the new bill would be that the Department of Education would reopen several terminated investigations into violations of Title IX.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., chairman of the House Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education, has stated that the administration's opposition to the bill "demonstrates again the administration's disregard for the protection of women, minorities, the handicapped and elderly from discrimination in federally supported institutions."

Simon has also said the administration's objections were a smokescreen for its philosophical objections to civil rights enforcement, and that he would fight against any proposed amendments to the bill.

If passed, the bill would also amend Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act prohibiting racial discrimination, Section 504 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act prohibiting discrimination against the handicapped and the 1975 Age Discrimination Act prohibiting age discrimination. The amendments to these acts would be similar to those made in Title IX.

'Mind Game' still unsolved after year and a half

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Krypton's cryptic contest has created a crisis.

In the 1.5 years since the Museum of Science and Industry's "Dr. Krypton" devised the "Mind Game," a contest of 50 riddles to publicize the museum's 50th anniversary, no one has won the prize of $5,000 in gold and a $5,000 computer system.

Most people have forgotten about the contest, but a few riddle-solvers continue to haunt the museum, re-examining the exhibits that hide the answers.

The Rev. Gregory P. Holicky has submitted 2,237 entries, more than one-quarter of the total. Sixty-one people have entered, but 27 submitted only one entry. That means the other 34 players are responsible for about 239 entries each, on the average.

Sherry Goodman, in charge of the contest, said she's on a first-name basis with many contestants by now.

Klasek in new post; shuffle nears end

Charles Klasek

By Anne Flarza
 Staff Writer

The appointment of Charles Klasek, director of international education, to the position of associate vice president for academic affairs (services) brings the University one step closer to the final reorganization of the academic affairs office.

Klasek is the last person to be appointed to one of the four associate vice presidencies, positions which were created based on the recommendations of the Committee on Academic Priorities.

Klasek was the unanimous choice among nine candidates in the search limited to University applicants.

Klasek will be in charge of continuing education programs, the Office of Regional Research and Service, international education activities and the community development program formerly under the College of Human Resources.

Klasek, who begins his new duties on July 1, has directed SIU-C's international education operations since 1978. He is a tenured professor in the Department of Curriculum, Instruction and Media, which he joined in 1971. He won the Amoco Foundation Outstanding Teacher award in 1977.

In addition to the elimination or relocation of some programs to other areas, the move fixed chief administrative duties under four associate vice presidents responsible for planning, budgeting, research and services.

The other vice presidents, already named, are Ben Shepherd, planning; Ernest Lewis, budgeting; and Barbara Hansen, research administration and dean of the graduate school.

Eliminated by the action were deans' positions in continuing education and General Academic Programs, which was renamed Undergraduate Academic Services and placed under Shepherd. Klasek's former position was also eliminated.

Robert Ratcliffe, former dean of continuing education, will take a new post as director of continuing education at the Law School for one year, according to Ernest Lewis.

Lewis said because Ratcliffe's former position has been eliminated, the University must give at least 12 months notice before terminating his employment.

Dan Hopson, dean of the Law School, said Ratcliffe will be responsible for further developing and enhancing the continuing education program at the Law School. He will also be in charge of developing a law-based education program for grammar and high school students in the area.

Federal restrictions end on SIU-C tract

By Jim Ludeman
 Staff Writer

The U.S. Department of Education announced on May 29 that SIU-C has been granted a deed of release for the federal real property transferred to it in 1963. SIU-C now owns the property free and clear of restrictions imposed by the federal government.

According to David Grobe, Director of Facilities Planning at SIU-C, the University had acquired the land through what he called a "quit claim deed," by which the previous owner of the property just "quits" any claim to the land. When the federal government transferred the land to SIU-C under the deed, it made the provision that the property had to be used for educational purposes for a set duration, after which time any restrictions or provisions would be lifted.

The land, near Belleville, is being used for research purposes by the Plant and Soil Sciences Department of the SIU-C School of Agriculture. The research being conducted is diverse, according to George Kapusta, faculty member in the Plant and Soil Science Department. Kapusta said that the department is conducting agronomic research on certain crops, and part of this research involves soil fertility, where nutrients and their effective application are being studied. Other types of research include pest control and soil conservation. The soil conservation research includes studies on "no till" or reduced tilling for farmers, a practice which involves not turning the soil over in the autumn after harvesting. Such a practice helps reduce soil erosion, Kapusta said.

The department is conducting some its research on a cooperative basis with the University of Illinois.

Bryson moved to acting dean in resources

Seymour Bryson, associate dean of the College of Human Resources, has been named acting dean of the college, effective July 1.

His appointment was announced by SIU-C President Albert Somit on the recommendation of John C. Guyon, vice president for academic affairs and research. Bryson replaces Samuel Goldman, who requested reassignment to the College of Human Resources.

Bryson has been associate dean of the college since 1977 and holds faculty rank as professor in the Rehabilitation

Seymour Bryson

Institute. He served as acting dean of the College of Human Resources from 1978 to 1980.

Bryson, a former basketball player at SIU-C, has been a member of the faculty since 1969. He earned his bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees at SIU-C.

Ratcliffe trial set for July 12; rescheduled after jury waived

A July 12 trial date has been set for Robert Ratcliffe, former dean of continuing education, who was charged with drunken driving last August after the University vehicle he was driving struck a house trailer.

The trial, which was set for June 11, was rescheduled last week at a pretrial conference after Ratcliffe and his attorney, Richard White of Murphysboro, waived a jury trial.

Unless further motions are filed, Judge David Watt will preside at 9 a.m. in the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro, according to Stan Irvin, assistant state's attorney for Jackson County. Irvin will prosecute the case for the state. Ratcliffe and John and Linda Childers were injured on Aug. 6 when Ratcliffe's car crossed south U.S. Route 51 at Boskydell Road and knocked the Childers' trailer an estimated 11 feet off its foundation.

Ratcliffe, who will become director of continuing education at the Law School on July 1, had attended a picnic at the SIU-C Touch of Nature Environmental Center near Little Grass Lake on the night of the accident.

The maximum penalty for a conviction of driving under the influence, a Class A misdemeanor, is a $1,000 fine and up to one year in jail.

1 dead, 1 missing in rafting accident

ALGONQUIN (AP) - A young woman is dead and her fiance was missing and presumed drowned after they tried to go over a Fox River dam in a raft and were caught in a dangerous backwash called "the boil."

Rescue workers were still searching Monday for the body of David Lee, 25, of Schaumburg, who went over the dam Sunday in an inflatable raft with Susan Gruber, 23, also of Schaumburg, and William Langdon, 24, of Hoffman Estates.

Ms. Gruber was thrown from the raft and her body was recovered downstream. Langdon stayed with the craft and eventually was pulled to safety.

John Helfert, Algonquin-Lake in the Hills fire chief, said the three young people put the raft in the water just above the dam. Despite signs warning boaters to stay away from the dam, they apparently decided to "shoot it for sport" Sunday evening, he said.

After going over the dam, the raft got caught in the backwash, known as "the boil," which pushed it against the face of the dam.

Langdon and Lee jumped out in an attempt to free the craft. During the attempt, the raft jerked and Ms. Gruber was spilled overboard.

Langdon was able to make it back into the raft. He eventually grabbed a hose thrown by a bystander and was pulled to safety on the west shore.

Paramedics attempted to revive Ms. Gruber but she was pronounced dead on arrival at Sherman Hospital in Elgin.

Music professor takes first place in U.S. competition

Eric P. Mandat, assistant professor in the School of Music, won the National Association of Composers-USA Performers Competition in Los Angeles.

Mandat played his own composition for solo clarinet, "Tricolor Capers," and a piece by James Primosh titled "Particles" to take first place in the competition.

Preliminaries for the national competition were held by taped audition. Mandat was among 12 finalists chosen to participate in the competition held at the Arnold Schoenberg Institute of the University of Southern California.

Mandat received a $200 cash award.

Peltier's attorneys file motion

'Biased' judge ouster sought

FARGO, N.D. (AP) - Attorneys for Indian activist Leonard Peltier have filed a motion asking a "prejudiced" federal judge to remove himself from the case, an attorney said Monday.

"We're struggling to get rid of this prejudiced judge, this totally prejudiced judge," William M. Kunstler, a New York attorney representing Peltier, said in a telephone interview. "He is totally biased and prejudiced against Peltier."

Peltier, 39, who is half French Chippewa and half Sioux, is serving two life sentences in the slayings of two FBI agents during a 1975 shootout on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota. He is being held at the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion and the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners at Springfield, Mo.

An appeals court panel recently ordered a hearing on new evidence that could mean a new trial for Peltier. A hearing date has not been set.

"The rest of Leonard's life rests with this case, this hearing," Kunstler said.

The motion filed Friday in federal court here asks that U.S. District Judge Paul Benson disqualify himself because of remarks he allegedly made at a April 14 seminar for attorneys on sentencing procedures, Kunstler said.

On May 30, Benson denied Peltier's request for a transfer to the Metropolitan Correctional Center in New York.

Benson allegedly remarked that Peltier's sentence was justified because the American Indian Movement leader could not be rehabilitated, Kunstler said.

In addition, Kunstler contended Benson was "hand picked" by the FBI to hear Peltier's case.

If the motion to remove Benson is denied, Kunstler said he would appeal to a higher court.

Williamson County food bank provides relief to poor, elderly

Carys Edwards
Staff Writer

Agencies that help feed the poor in Southern Illinois are now able to buy food cheaply from a food-bank service which opened Wednesday in Williamson County.

The new Land of Lakes food-bank provides food for collection by churches and organizations which then distribute it free to the needy, according to Williamson County Board Chairman Clarence Stocks.

Anyone on the low-income, poverty level will benefit from the bank, Stocks said. This includes the young, the old and the unemployed.

The food will be stored in an 8,000 square-foot warehouse in Johnston City and sold at 12 cents a pound to agencies throughout 13 Southern Illinois counties, Stocks said.

Participating counties include Williamson, Jackson, Pope, Saline, Massac, Alexander, Johnson and Union.

Project Director Don Forquer said they are now in a 30-day trial period, and on the first day there was plenty of demand for the service.

"The first stock of food is sold out already," he said, "and there's more truck loads coming in."

Forquer said the idea was initiated about two years ago by Stocks and County Commissioner William Mattingley when they realized the need for the service. Initially funded by state and local grants, the program should be self-supporting after three or four months, he said.

Forquer said before the Johnston City food bank began, churches and organizations had to travel to Springfield or Indiana to buy food cheaply. The gas cost as much as the food itself, he said.

"Now there's a distribution service right in this area," he added.

According to Stocks, the food from the bank is good, but it may be mislabeled or too much has been produced by the dealers, so they donate it or sell it cheaply. Most of it comes from large distributors in Springfield, he said.

"All kinds of food" will be distributed from the Land of Lakes food bank Forquer said. "Canned foods, biscuits, crackers, soup, anything that's nutritious that'll help the needy people and also senior citizens."

Exotic weapons tested at secret site

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Sleek white jets with nondescript red markings lift off at dawn, returning at dusk from super-secret "Star Wars" rehearsals on the Nevada desert.

In a corner of the nation's nuclear testing ground, in the shadow of the Groom Mountains 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas, America is developing exotic 21st century weaponry and matching defenses.

Some call it Area 51, others refer to it as Dreamland or Groom Lake. The civilians and military who are shuttled there daily won't even acknowledge its existence.

In active use since the early days of the U-2 spy plane, Area 51 - now said to be working on the "Stealth" bomber and laser technology to knock out weapons in space - has remained one of America's most closely guarded military secrets.

No one will say for the record what goes on in Area 51, although workers and officials have said privately that work on the space defense system is among the projects.

An Air Force three-star general was believed to be flying a Soviet MiG-23 out of the secret base when the jet crashed on an adjoining nuclear test site April 26. Lt. Gen. Robert M. Bond, 54, vice commander of the Air Force Systems Command, was killed.

The Air Force has refused to discuss the crash except to say Bond was flying "an Air Force specially modified test craft."

Ranchers who graze cattle in the area, hunters who stalk chukar and quail and miners have been told they are no longer welcome in the mountains bordering the testing ground.

"The reason we don't allow people there is based on national security," said Air Force Col. Bob Smith, a Pentagon officer stationed at the Nevada Test Site's operations office.

A guard at a newly built shack on the lone road leading to Area 51 refuses to tell visitors what government agency he works for. A voice on a radio 25 miles away tells the guard to be quiet until "leadership" arrives. The anonymous voice also orders planes to remain on the ground while strangers are in the area.

Area 51 was in the news again last month when it was learned the Air Force had taken a 139-square-mile area of land north of the desolate testing area without bothering to formally withdraw it from public domain.

Salukis a 9-4 conference mark and pushed their record to .500 for only the second time all season. The victories also earned the Salukis the home field advantage in the MVC tournament.

However, any momentum from the Salukis' late-season surge was quickly squelched in the first game of the MVC tournament against Wichita State.

Trailing 3-1 going into the ninth inning, the Salukis put the tying runs on second and third with one out, only to see the game end in a bizarre double play.

With pinch-runner Michael Jackson at second base, Steve Finley chopped a routine ground ball to Wichita first baseman Dan Juenke. Juenke tagged first base, then found Jackson standing in no-man's-land between second and third base. Jackson had broke for third base on the play, only to find Steve Boyd holding his ground at third. Jackson frantically retreated back to second base, but was tagged out easily on Juenke's throw.

Gary Bockhorn, a victim of no offensive support all season, was the losing pitcher, dropping his record to 5-6.

The Salukis, still reeling from their stunning loss the day before, were eliminated by Illinois State the next day 17-6. The loss was the worst beating of an SIU-C team since 1981 and was the first time an Itchy Jones team failed to finish above .500. They closed the season at 20-72.

"I thought we played well at the end of the season," Jones said, "but the loss to Wichita State kind of took the starch out of us because we came back the next day and got very poor pitching. But when you play enough ball over a period of a year, you're going to get beaten badly a game or two. You just hope its not in the last game of the year, that its not in the tournament and you hope its not at home. We happened to accomplish all three."

Jones received some bad news last week when he learned that centerfielder Steve Finley will be out for the summer with a broken leg.

Salukis dethrone Shockers to gain MVC Sports Title

On the strength of its cross country, indoor and outdoor track and baseball teams, SIU-C won the Missouri Valley Conference All-Sports Title. The Salukis dethroned Wichita State, winners of the title the last four years. The Salukis had not won the award since the 1976-77 season.

SIU-C took conference titles in cross country, indoor track, outdoor track and baseball. Each was good for 10 points. Second place finishes gained nine points, third place eight, etc. The Salukis totaled 67.5 points. Illinois State finished a close second with 66 points.

The Salukis' lowest point score came in basketball. The Salukis had their first winning season since 1978-79, going 15-13. But their fifth place tie with Bradley netted them just 5.5 points.

The Saiuki football squad, despite winning the I-AA Championship, finished second to Tulsa in the MVC and gained nine points. The Salukis' golf and tennis programs received six and seven points.

Wichita State finished third with 62 points. The Shockers were followed by Indiana State, Tulsa, Bradley, West Texas State, Drake and Creighton.

established in 1981 and 1982. Sayre will now prepare for the Olympic trials, which he has already qualified for.

The Salukis did endure some misfortune during the meet when a poor baton exchange dented the record-setting 1,600 relay team of Elvis Forde, Michael Franks, Parry Duncan and Tony Adams a chance to win their event. They ultimately finished fourth with a time of 3:03.94.

"It was just one of those freak accidents," said Cornell of the mishap. "We had a six to seven yard lead when Forde collided with Franks on the baton exchange. Everybody knew we should have won the event."

Oklahoma won the 1,600 relay with a time of 3:03.06.

Franks was able to place second in the 400-meter dash however with a time of 45.20. The junior speedster also finished eighth in the 200-meter dash with a time of 20.76.

Other Saluki athletes who fared well included Edison Wedderburn, who established a school record in finishing third in the 3,000 steeplechase with a time of 8:30.70.

Forde finished seventh in the 400 with a time of 46.71. Chris Bunyan ended in 12th place in the 10,000-meter run with a mark of 29:19.59 while John Smith also finished 12th in the shotput.

Oregon, the host school, won the team title with 113 points. Washington State finished second with 94.5 points.

The Salukis tuned up for the NCAA finals by competing in the Gatorade track classic May 18-19. It was not an outstanding performance for SIU-C, as its highest finish came in the 400-meter dash where Franks placed fourth with a time of 45.63. Stephen Wray also tied for fourth in the high jump with a mark of 7.5.

"We went to the Gatorade Classic trying to stay tuned, and it might have been too soon after the MVC meet," said Cornell. "But that's where Sayre qualified for the NCAA finals. So the trip was certainly worth its while."

The Missouri Valley Conference meet, held May 12 at McAndrew Stadium, gave the Salukis yet another opportunity to capture the conference crown. SIU-C has won the MVC track title every year since 1975, when the Salukis entered the conference.

SIU-C compiled a meet record 263.5 points, far outdistancing Illinois State's 106.5 points. The Salukis won 15 of the 20 events en route to the victory.

Six conference records were broken by Saluki athletes during the meet. Sayre established a new pole vault record with a mark of 17-1; Smith broke the hammer record with a toss of 193-4; Wray set a record in the high jump with a leap of 7-3.5; Forde shattered the record in the 400-meter dash with a time of 45.91; Franks topped the 200-meter dash record with a time of 20.75; and the 1,600 relay team of Forde, Franks, Duncan and Adams set a new record by turning in a time of 3:04.60.

Saluki diver Schmisser dies after fall

By David Wilhelm Sports Editor

SIU-C diver Eric Schmisser died May 20 after falling 35 feet and suffering severe head injuries.

Schmisser, 20, was at a party in Champaign on a third floor balcony when he began climbing an aluminum drain pipe. The pipe broke and Schmisser fell onto a porch.

Schmisser had just completed his sophomore year at SIU-C and had been voted the Most Improved Diver on last season's swimming team.

Expos power past Cubs, 2-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Tim Lincecum led off the ninth inning Monday by cracking his ninth home run of the season on the first pitch from Lee Smith to lead the Montreal Expos to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Smith, 3-4, had put down an Expo rally in the eighth inning in relief of starter Rick Reuschel. Reliever Bob James, 2-3, who pitched two innings, was the winner.

The Expos had tied it 1-1 in the eighth. Reuschel, bidding for his first major-league shutout in five years, took a four-hitter into the inning but left after Derrel Thomas singled.

SUMMER '84 WORKSHOPS

Boyd refuses Boston offer; Salukis end with loss

By Greg Severin
Staff Writer

Saluki catcher Steve Boyd has nixed a Boston Red Sox offer and will return to SIU-C for his senior year.

The Red Sox made Boyd their fifth-round pick last week in Major League Baseball's annual June draft. Although the Red Sox made "a good offer," according to Boyd, it wasn't enough to lure him away from school.

"The offer was close to what I was looking for and that made my decision even more difficult," said Boyd. "It just wasn't enough for me to give up my education and scholarship here."

Boyd said he decided against signing with the Red Sox because their No. 1 pick was also a catcher.

"He has to be thought of a little bit more than me because of my bat," Boyd said. "That has to weigh on your mind."

Boyd was selected more on his defensive abilities than his bat. Moreover, Boyd has been plagued by injuries throughout his career at SIU-C. This past season he injured his knee in a collision at home plate during the Salukis spring trip to Miami.

The injury sidelined Boyd for close to a month and when he returned to the lineup, he saw his batting average plummet from .380 to .254.

Saluki Coach Itchy Jones said last week he felt Boyd would benefit with one more year of college baseball.

"I think Steve would have a difficult time hitting in pro ball right now," said Jones. "I'm just basing it on what he's done here and the injuries he's been through. When you get into pro ball, there is no sympathy because you have to play every day. It is your livelihood and if you go on the disabled list a lot, you're just shortening your career."

In his fourteen years as coach at SIU-C, Jones has had 67 players sign professional contracts. During that period, Jones has told only one other player, Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays, not to sign.

"Dave Stieb went ahead and signed anyway and it turned out to be a good move for him," Jones said.

Boyd said his decision to turn down the Boston offer and stay in school was his own.

"Coach Jones didn't try to persuade me either way," Boyd said. "It was just my orientation towards school and the money that was being offered. It was my decision either way."

The selection of Boyd in the fifth round of the draft was one of the few bright spots in an otherwise poor season for the Salukis.

After a slow start, which saw the Salukis lose countless one-run games, they rebounded the last two weekends of the regular season by taking five out of six games from Creighton and Indiana State to win the Missouri Valley Conference.

The five victories gave ...

Trackmen brace for next year

NCAA meet yields wins for Salukis

By Mike Frey
Staff Writer

The NCAA track and field championships, held May 28-June 2 at Eugene, Ore. proved to be a success both on and off the field for the SIU-C team.

The Salukis, thanks largely to the stellar performance of decathlon participant John Sayre, captured fifth in the team standings with 55 points.

The finish was the second best in SIU-C history. The Salukis finished fourth in the 1982 NCAA championships.

Furthermore, it was announced that venerable SIU-C Coach Lew Hartzog was named 1984 NCAA coach of the year during the meet. It was the second time in three years that he has received the honor. Hartzog retired this season as Saluki track coach after 24 years, but will retain his duties as SIU-C athletics director.

"We went in there knowing we could finish in the top 10, and we were very happy that we finished fifth," said SIU-C assistant coach Bill Cornell, who will take over as head coach next season. "We could have finished as high as fourth, but some things just didn't happen."

Sayre finished second in the decathlon with 7,891 points, behind George Mason's Rob Muzzio. Muzzio compiled a record-shattering 8,227 points to take the victory.

But Sayre's performance was equally impressive because he was battling a groin and back injury he sustained at the Texas relays in early April. Sayre was unable to compete in the decathlon again until May 18 in the Gatorade Classic at Knoxville, Tenn., where he qualified for the NCAA finals.

Sayre fought off both cramps and exhaustion to win two of the 10 decathlon events. His best performance came in the pole vault where he set a new meet record with a mark of 16-8.75. Sayre also took first in the javelin with a toss of 204-8.

SIU-C gained 12 points from Sayre's performance. His mark in the pole vault broke the record of 16-4.75 which was

Bill Cornell recruits five for track team

By Mike Frey
Staff Writer

Bill Cornell faces a formidable task in replacing outgoing SIU-C track and field Coach Lew Hartzog next season.

The new Saluki mentor has wasted little time in filling the gaps that have been created by the departure of 14 seniors from this year's outstanding squad.

"This is the strongest team SIU has ever had," said Cornell of the 1984 squad. "But 14 of our 24 team members are graduating. There will be some holes to fill."

Cornell has already brought in five recruits, all of which are expected to help the Salukis immediately.

They include Carbondale native Felipe Martin, who will transfer from Parkland Community College in Champaign. Martin is expected to compete in the triple jump for SIU-C. His personal best in the event is 51-4. Martin could also see action in the hurdles. Martin has three years of eligibility remaining, as he was red-shirted at Parkland his freshman year.

Cornell has also recruited three of Illinois' top sprinters. They are Steve Breathett and Eric Gray of Kankakee and Tom Adams of Rock Island. Gray and Breathett could replace Parry Duncan and Elvis Ford on SIU-C's record-setting 1,600 relay team. Breathett is also an accomplished long jumper.

Bill Cornell

Adams is the brother of Tony Adams, who will be a senior on next year's Saluki squad. The younger Adams is expected to compete in the 200-meter dash for SIU-C.

Cornor Mason of Paducah, Ky., rounds out the list of current Saluki recruits. Mason was the 1984 Kentucky state champion in both the 100 and 400-meter dashes. Mason will be a sprinter on the SIU-C team.

"I wouldn't be recruiting them if they couldn't compete," said Cornell of the five new Salukis. "We are expecting them to step in and score points right away."

Overall, Cornell thinks that his recruiting effort has been successful, although he is still looking for a few more athletes.

"I think our recruiting has gone well," he said. "But I still need to find a couple of distance runners, a hurdler and another weightman."

Fullerton takes College World Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Eddie Deiser allowed two infield singles in the first inning, then did not allow another hit through the seventh as third-ranked Cal St. Fullerton captured the NCAA College World Series title with a 3-1 victory over defending champion Texas Sunday night.

Deiser, 8-2, left the game after suffering a leg cramp while warming up for the eighth inning. Reliever Scott Wright came on to hold Texas scoreless over the final two innings for his 22nd save of the season.

Texas, 60-14, scored its lone run in the first inning as Elanis Westbrook reached on an infield hit, was sacrificed to second and scored on Rusty Richards' single behind second base.

Fullerton State picked up its first run in the second inning when John Bryant was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on a single to center by Kirk Bates.

The Titans, 66-20, added two runs in the fourth when Bob Caffrey led off with a single and scored on a triple to right center by Bryant, who came home with the final run of the game on a sacrifice fly by George Sarkissian.

The Longhorns managed just three other baserunners against Deiser before the 5-foot-8 senior left-hander left the game.

Wright gave up a pinch-hit double with one out to Doug Hodo, then retired the next five Longhorns to wrap up the championship and add to his single-season NCAA save record.

Fullerton State's John Fishel also entered the record book when he singled in the seventh inning. It was his 13th hit of the Series, tying the record set by Keith Van Horne of Arizona in 1976.
