When it came to politics, Joe Viterisi, '54, used to sit on the sidelines and gripe. While he made plenty of suggestions, he just didn't want to get involved.

But that was before 1978, when a friend said, "Hey, Joe, you've got some good ideas. I think you should run for office." The friend put out a nominating petition for people to sign at Joe's Market, a small neighborhood grocery store Viterisi owns in Paducah, Ky. "Gosh, before I knew it, 300 people had signed that darn thing," Viterisi said recently. "Like it or not, I was committed to running for city commissioner. I was shocked that people would actually sign a petition for me."

Another surprise came at election time. He won.

"Since I'm somebody who works hard and doesn't shirk responsibility, I accepted the challenge and went to work on some of the problems I'd always complained about," he said. His hard work paid off when he was re-elected in 1981 to an additional two-year term.

And diligence and tenacity have propelled Viterisi to a higher office. In November 1983, he defeated Charles Wood 4,719 to 4,181 to win a four-year, non-succeeding mayoral term. Viterisi took office in January 1984.

Paducah is a western Kentucky community of about 30,000 people. Surrounded by the Ohio, Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers and close to Lake Barkley and Kentucky Lake, Paducah is about 75 miles southeast of the SIU campus.

Joe Viterisi, a 1954 SIU graduate, no longer gripes about politics from the sidelines. He's been elected to office in Paducah, Ky., each year since 1979.

His Honor, the Mayor

Paducah is under the city manager form of government. The city manager runs the day-to-day affairs, while the mayor presides over meetings of the five-member city commission, which adopts a budget and establishes policies to be carried out by the city manager. The mayor also makes appointments to various boards and represents the city at different functions.

One of Viterisi's initial acts was to hire a city planner and launch a development plan for Paducah. "We lost a Sears and Penney's in the downtown area and that put a big dent in our city payroll tax revenue," he said. "I'm now working with other city agencies to attract new businesses and industries to the community. We really have to hustle to lower our 10% unemployment rate."

Viterisi, 58, credits his tenacious behavior to his family upbringing and his SIU education in business administration as the "building block" of his career success.

His father, Peter Viterisi, came to Herrin, Ill., in 1902 from Orti, a town in the hills of southern Italy. His father became a coal miner in the Bobby Dick mines and fought overseas in World War I. After the war, he returned to Italy for three years and married Domenica Canale.

Viterisi's parents then returned to Herrin. His father died in 1970. His mother, 86, still lives in Herrin. His oldest sister, Ann Hindman, and her husband, Paul, are the owners of the Park Avenue Motel in Herrin. His younger brother, Domenick, is an electronic research engineer in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Viterisi enlisted in the Navy shortly after he graduated from Herrin High School in 1943. After a 39-month Navy stint on the USS Mt. McKinley and participation in two atomic bomb testings in the Bikini Islands, he returned to Southern Illinois and became a ward clerk at the Veteran's Administration Medical Center in Marion.

But it soon became apparent that employment opportunities would be limited because he didn't have a college degree. "After I got passed over for promotions a couple of times, it dawned on me what the problem was. So I went over to Carbondale and enrolled in business administration at SIU. I've never regretted that decision," he said.

Supporting himself with the G.I. bill and a 45-cent-an-hour job at the SIU registration center, Viterisi commuted from Herrin and was graduated in 1954.

"I almost flunked my last quarter at school. The placement center got a call from Texaco for a business grad to take a job in Sparta. I had a wife and two kids, so I grabbed it. It paid $325 a month. Fortunately, I was always one to take good notes. It pulled me through the remainder of the quarter and I graduated."

Texaco was good to him. By 1960, he was working in Tulsa as an administrative clerk. But he wanted to be closer to home. He left Texaco and moved to Paducah to become the general manager of Farmer's Market. In 1965 he became office manager at Wilson Chevrolet and Cadillac, Paducah's largest auto dealership. But he struck out on his own in August 1970 by purchasing the neighborhood store where he's been ever since. "It has given me an opportunity to provide for my children and use all the business skills I learned at SIU. I've never had to hire anyone to do my bookkeeping or accounting. My schooling helped me deal with any business situation," he said.

While he's tending to mayoral duties, his wife, Kathleen, runs the store. His four children are Julia Hannan of Campbellville, Ky.; Joe of Paducah; Jean Snodgrass of Bowling Green, Ky.; and Jane of Bloomington, Ind.

Viterisi has just retired after spending 33 years in the Navy Reserve. He is a member of the Kiwanis, Elks and the SIU Alumni Association. "Everyone should contribute time and service to his community if he can," he said.

Viterisi isn't sure if he'll stay in politics after 1987, when his mayoral term expires. "I'd like to take some time off to travel and see this great country of ours," he said.

Brig. General Baker visits SIU campus

Air Force Brigadier General Thomas A. Baker, '57, said he was "delighted to be back" to the SIU campus on April 27-28, 1984, his first visit to Carbondale in 27 years. Baker was a guest at the annual Air Force ROTC Dining-Out, attended by some 400 persons. He is one of the highest-ranking persons in the military to have attended SIU.

Baker is stationed at the U.S. Air Force Headquarters in Washington, D.C., where he is the director of international programs. His duties are primarily "security assistance": training and equipping the air force personnel of 54 countries.

An Air Force ROTC cadet while at SIU, Baker later trained as a fighter pilot. He has been based in Texas, Arizona, Nevada, West Germany, Thailand, England, and Saudi Arabia. In 1968, he earned an MBA from Arizona State University.

He is a command pilot with over 4,300 flying hours in a variety of tactical aircraft. Among his military decorations and awards are the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal with two oak leaf clusters, and the Air Medal with one oak leaf cluster.

While pursuing his bachelor's degree in business, Baker decided to also take advantage of the Air Force ROTC program at SIU. His interest in aviation, flying and ROTC has led to a satisfying and impressive military career. "Air Force ROTC continues to offer bright, aggressive young people the chance to grow quickly and professionally," he said. "Young officers receive a lot of responsibility relatively quickly compared to the private business sector."

The Air Force will continue to play a very important part of the U.S. defenses, Baker said. "But there is also recognition in the Air Force that the cost of weaponry is going up all the time. We have to keep defining what our 'reasonable requirements' are."

Public support of the military has "turned around" since the Vietnam War, Baker believes. "My gut feeling is that the public understands the military and the need to keep our defenses strong."

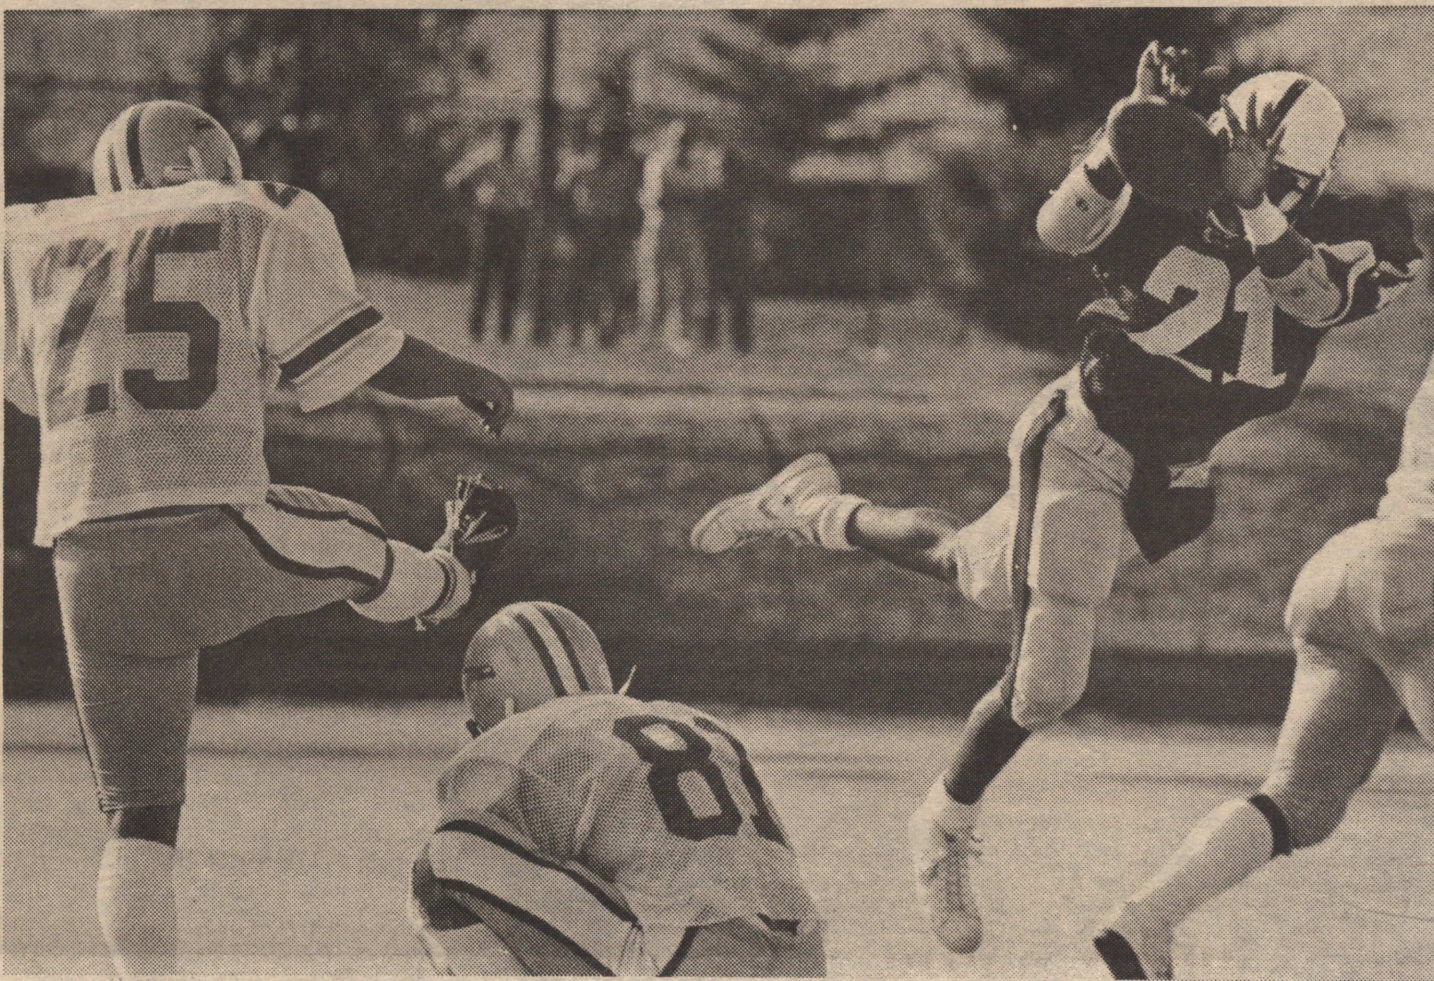

That pleases him, of course. But he is equally pleased by the greater representation of women in the Air Force, "more than any other branch of military service," he said. "We offer more attractive careers to women because the Air Force has fewer direct combat positions" which by law exclude women "and more technical service opportunities. In 1972, the Air Force was only two percent female. This year, 12 percent of Air Force personnel are women."

As a student at SIU, Baker was most influenced by the large number of older Korean War veterans who were taking advantage of the G.I. Bill. "They were more mature. They had definite goals. They had a strong appreciation for an education." Those attitudes rubbed off on him, Baker said, and helped him remain serious about his courses.

His promotion to brigadier general came on Sept. 1, 1982, upon his return to Washington, D.C., from Europe, where he had been assistant deputy chief of staff for operations. Baker was born in Golconda, Ill. He and his wife, Beverly Rudy Baker, have two children: Laura and Doug.

24th Doctoral Degree. A Ph.D. in geology, aimed primarily at coal research, has been recently approved as SIU's 24th doctoral offering. The Ph.D.-level study of coal is only the third such program to be offered in the U.S. The other two programs are at Pennsylvania State University and West Virginia University. In the works for about a decade, the program was pioneered by Russell R. Dutcher, acting dean of SIU's College of Science. The Ph.D. offering will complement the University's coal research projects and will emphasize exploration, extraction, characterization and utilization of coal, according to Dale F. Ritter, acting chairman of SIU's Department of Geology. The program will be in full swing by the fall of 1985 and will be graduating nine Ph.D. students each year by 1990.

Musical Honors for Mandat. Eric P. Mandat, assistant professor in the School of Music, won top honors in the National Association of Composers-USA Performers Competition held May 5, 1984, in Los Angeles. Mandat played his own composition for solo clarinet, "Tricolor Capers" (1981), and a piece by James Primosh titled "Particles." Mandat was among 12 national finalists chosen by taped audition. In addition to a $200 cash award, Mandat will perform in a concert series on the West Coast, in Chicago and in New York.

Terry Taylor joins ranks of Saluki pros as first-round pick of Seattle Seahawks

Terry Taylor, SIU cornerback and member of the 1983 1-AA championship football team, was the 22nd person to be drafted into the National Football League on May 1, 1984.

The 5-11, 176-pound All-America cornerback was chosen in first round selection by the Seattle Seahawks. He is only the second football Saluki ever to be selected as a first-round pick. In 1971, Lionel Antoine was a first-round draft of the Chicago Bears.

Earlier this year, Taylor rejected a four-year, $800,000 contract from the United States Football League, for whom he was the 26th player drafted in January. He was also the second player taken in the second round by the USFL Chicago Blitz, a team which eventually signed his teammate, Donnell Daniel (6-0, 190-pound defensive cornerback from Elgin, Ill.).

Taylor has a 4.39 speed in the 40-yard dash, a major reason for his high rating by the pro football scouts. He intercepted eight passes last season and had 20 interceptions in his SIU career, a school record. He also blocked two punts and three field goal attempts last year, despite being hampered with a knee injury.

His defensive antics earned the Youngstown, Ohio, native spots on the All-

Missouri Valley Conference team and on the Kodak All-America team.

In addition to Taylor and Daniel, three other 1983 football Salukis have signed professional contracts: Rick Johnson, 6-2, 183-pound quarterback from Carol Stream, Ill.; Brad Pilgard, 6-7, 260-pound offensive tackle from Woodstock, Ill.; and Cecil Ratliff, 5-11, 170-pound split end from Markham, Ill. Johnson is a first-string quarterback with the Tulsa Outlaws. Pilgard and Ratliff signed free-agent contracts with the Dallas Cowboys and the Buffalo Bills respectively.

The quintet brings the former Saluki footballers active pro representation to eight. Other Salukis who currently play professional football are John Harper, a second-year inside linebacker for the Atlanta Falcons; Jim Hart, a 17-year veteran quarterback for the St. Louis Cardinals who recently signed a contract with the Washington Redskins; and Kevin House, a fourth-year wide receiver for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Fourteen other Salukis have played in professional football: Lionel Antoine (Chicago Bears 1972-78); Houston Antwine (New England Patriots 1961-71, Philadelphia Eagles 1972); James Battle (Minnesota Vikings 1963); Isaac Brigham (Dal-

Three SIU alumni are NFL referees: William (Bill) O'Brien, J.W. Sanders and Carver Shannon.

McDonald house planned for Springfield

A campaign to raise $550,000 for a Ronald McDonald House in Springfield, Ill., has already received $100,000 in pledges. SIU's School of Medicine is one of dozens of organizations in downstate Illinois that are supporting the campaign.

The Ronald McDonald House will provide a temporary residence for families of seriously ill or injured children receiving treatment at Springfield-area hospitals. About 60 similar residence units are now operating across the country. They offer cheerful, inexpensive, convenient housing and a way that families can draw support from each other during a time of stress and confusion.

Dr. Richard H. Moy, dean and provost of the SIU School of Medicine, is serving on the volunteer fund-raising advisory board. Support for the campaign is also being donated by the School's Office of Biomedical Communications, Office of Public Affairs and Word Processing Center.

Donations should be made payable to Kids at Heart, Inc., and mailed to Marion Richter, Springfield Marine Bank, East Old State Capitol Plaza, Springfield, IL 62708. For additional information on the campaign, call (217) 528-3314.

New Wings. A twin-engine airplane valued at $74,000 has been given to the SIU Foundation by the Pownail Co. of Prairie View, Ill. The six-passenger Model 88 Beechcraft Queen Air is earmarked for the aviation technology program at SIU's School of Technical Careers. Shown in the photo are (l. to r.) STC dean Harry G. Miller; SIU Foundation president Stanley R. McNally; Ronald D. Kelly, director of Airport Operations; Clarence G. Dougherty, vice president for Campus Services; and Charles Priester, who owns Pal-Waukee Airport in Wheeling, Ill., and who arranged for the gift.

Resident Tuition Privileges. Some types of Missouri and Kentucky students will be able to attend SIU-Carbondale and SIU-Edwardsville at in-state tuition rates. Based on a three-year experiment for extending in-state tuition to these students, SIU's Board of Trustees adopted a policy for the in-state rates on April 12, 1984. Missouri students who enroll for no more than six hours per semester at SIUC or nine hours per quarter at SIUE can pay in-state tuition. Out-state tuition is generally three times the in-state rate. During the three-year trial period, ranks of Missouri graduate students at SIUE swelled by 131% and undergraduate enrollment went up by half.

Low-demand degree programs to be phased out this fall

For the past two and a half years, campus committee members in the SIU system have worked thousands of hours to examine more than 120 degree programs offered at SIU. The committees studied the usefulness of the entire curriculum, suggested priorities, and found ways to consolidate or revamp some programs to make them more cost-efficient.

On June 14, 1984, the SIU Board of Trustees approved the recommendations and empowered SIU President Albert Somit to institute them. The recommendations "will enhance the overall quality of the University's academic programs," said SIU Chancellor Kenneth A. Shaw.

According to SIU's Academic Affairs and Research planning document, the changes—if fully implemented by Somit—will serve to eliminate degree programs

"with unacceptably low student demand; that are in large part duplicative of existing programming within the institution; that lack intellectual depth and focus; and that compete for resources with existing programs which the University has given higher priority."

Although only modest short-term savings are expected from the degree program changes, there is potential for additional savings in the future "to support improved quality of existing programs," according to the report.

Programs Eliminated

Slated for elimination at SIU are:
—the associate degree program in Correctional Services in the School of Technical Careers,
—the bachelor's and master's program in

Latin American Studies offered by the College of Liberal Arts,

—the master's degree program in Human Development offered by the College of Human Resources,

—the master's degree program in Environmental Design offered by the College of Human Resources, and —the master's degree program in Home Economics Education offered by the College of Education.

Students currently enrolled in those programs will be able to complete their degrees.

Revamped and Renamed

Scheduled for revamping are the B.S. major in Technical Careers offered by STC's Division of Advanced Technical Studies and the Ph.D. major in Education.

The Department of Guidance and Educational Psychology would be renamed the Department of Educational Psychology.

Relocation

Seven bachelor's degree programs in the College of Human Resources are being relocated: the Child and Family program and the Clothing and Textiles program will move to the College of Education; the Division of Comprehensive Planning and Design program and the Design program will move to the College of Communications and Fine Arts; the Consumer Economics and Family Management program and the Interior Design program will be relocated in the School of Technical Careers; and the Food and Nutrition program will move to the School of Agriculture.

Traditional Engineering

The Board of Trustees also approved plans to convert the bachelor's degree program in engineering (made up of four specializations in Electrical Sciences and Systems Engineering, Engineering Mechanics and Materials, Mining Engineering, and Thermal Environmental Engineering) to a more traditional engineering program. In the future, engineering majors would be offered in electrical engineering, civil engineering, mining engineering and mechanical engineering.

Largest salary increases called for by Somit and Shaw

In a bid to bring pay rates up to the levels of comparable schools, SIU Chancellor Kenneth A. Shaw has recommended salary increases ranging from 10 to 16 percent for SIU system employees next year (Fiscal Year 1986, beginning July 1, 1985).

Shaw presented his plea for sweeping salary increases to the SIU Board of Trustees on June 14, 1984. Faculty salaries at SIU fall as much as 22.4 percent below the mean of peer institutions. "We must be concerned with equity, and our figures are geared to that end," Shaw told the Board. "We must also be aware of market conditions and the need to be competitive."

Faculty and staff salaries lag behind by as much as 29 percent compared to median salaries of comparable universities.

Under Shaw's proposal, SIU faculty members would receive salary hikes of 16 percent and professional staff and civil service workers would receive 12 percent raises. SIU system administrators would receive 10 percent increases. SIU School of Medicine faculty would receive 12 percent hikes and its civil service employees would receive 16 percent raises.

The proposed increases take into consideration both inflation (based on a projected 6 percent rate) and catch-up raises to bring the pay up to rates of comparable institutions.

In early May this year, SIU President Albert Somit asked Shaw for 20 percent raises for all civil service, faculty and professional staff, and 10 percent raises for top administrators. He pointed out that FY85 raises, which started July 1, 1984, averaged only 6 percent.

Recent studies by the Illinois Board of Education show that SIU faculty and professional staff salaries are 19.4 percent below the median for the comparison group. Civil service salaries are 18 percent behind those of the state code departments and School of Medicine salaries are 29 percent behind.

Figures compiled by John H. Baker, executive director for Planning and Budgeting at SIU, show that faculty and professional staff would need a one-year 29 percent raise to catch up with median salaries of their peers, civil service employees would need a one-year 27 percent increase, medical school personnel would need a one-year 34 percent hike, and top administrators a one-year 17.6 percent increase.

The proposed operating budget submitted to the Board for FY86 also called for a 10 percent increase for library materials, a 24 percent increase for telecommunications and an overall increase of about 14.9 percent compared to the FY85 projected budget.

"The magnitude of this increase should not give false hope to our University colleagues," Shaw warned. "Success in obtaining this level of funding would require some combination of an increase in taxes, an improvement in the economy greater than we have seen thus far, and an increase in higher education's share of existing state funds."

Triple Effort for Nancy DeGryse. A divorced parent, a part-time worker, a full-time student: Nancy Warren DeGryse's triple job over the last two years has been difficult at times, but ultimately worth it. Through her studies at SIU, she has changed careers from elementary education to electronics. On May 12, 1984, SIU awarded her a B.S. degree in technical careers and an associate degree in electronics technology. Job offers came in long before she finished her final exams. She chose Texas Instruments, Inc., Houston, where she is now a product marketing engineer. Help came from dedicated faculty members and her four-year-old son, Nicholas (shown with his mother in the photo). Nicholas is "an exceptionally good boy," she said. She was among four women to graduate from the School of Technical Career's electronics program this year.

Bob Odaniell to retire after 33 years of service to SIU Alumni Association

J. Robert (Bob) Odaniell, executive director of the SIU Alumni Association and director of SIU's Alumni Services office, has announced plans to retire on August 31, 1984. He will work part-time for the University for two years as a special assistant for alumni programs.

To many SIU alumni, Odaniell is the key link between the graduates and their alma mater. For the past 33 years, he has devoted his career and a good part of his personal life to SIU and alumni activities, including the establishment of alumni clubs, the organization of class reunions and the promotion of many alumni programs, such as group insurance, tours and summer camping activities.

A 1951 graduate of SIU, Odaniell joined the University in March 1951 as a field representative. He was named acting director of Alumni Services in July 1952. In June 1954, he assumed the titles of executive director of the SIU Alumni Association and director of Alumni Services.

Odaniell's career has spanned the growth years of SIU, when enrollment soared from some 3,175 in 1954 to over 22,000 in 1983. During that period, SIU changed from primarily a teachers' college to a full university now offering more than 120 undergraduate majors. Odaniell has served under six SIU presidents and has witnessed a growth in the University budget from some $16 million in 1955 to $196 million in 1983. Over 4,800 people graduated from SIU this spring, compared to approximately 400 people who received degrees in Odaniell's graduating year (1951).

Throughout his career, Odaniell has been active in regional and national councils and associations for the betterment of alumni programs and services. While still acting director of SIU Alumni Services in 1954, Odaniell was named the secretary of the Joint Alumni Council of Illinois, which represented the six Illinois state universities. In 1959, he became president of that group. He also served on the regional and national boards of the American Alumni Council and on the regional board of its successor, the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). In 1981, the Great Lakes District of CASE presented Odaniell with the Distinguished Service Award, only the second time that such an award had been given.

Among the accomplishments of the SIU Alumni Association during Odaniell's leadership were the establishment of three important Association honors: the Roscoe Pulliam Memorial Scholarship given by the Association each year since 1953; the

To find the right gift, he went to his own inventory—that of Schoolhouse Software in Elk Grove Village, Ill. Swick has given 22 computer-game programs, valued at $60-100 each, to the Office of Teacher Education. His company specializes in educational games, some of which he writes himself. The games are classroom tools for teaching subjects such as arithmetic, language arts, foreign languages and social studies. Swick teaches German at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect, Ill., and has been in the computer program business for about 15 years.

Alumni Achievement Award, launched in 1958 to honor individuals for professional achievements and outstanding service to the Association and to SIU; and the prestigious SIU Alumni Association's Great Teacher Award, given annually since 1960.

Odaniell married the former Marilyn Brewster, '51, on September 8, 1951. The couple has six children (Cora, David, Tim, Tom, Jeffrey and Stephen) and one grandchild.

A retirement luncheon has been arranged to honor Odaniell on August 4, 1984, at 12 noon in Ballroom B of the Student Center. The tribute will include a "roast" by some of his friends and the presentation of a book of memories. Part of the $10 charge for the luncheon will go toward a gift for Odaniell. To make reservations, phone Nadine Lucas at (618) 453-2408, or send your check (made payable to the SIU Alumni Association) to the SIU Alumni Office, Student Center, Carbondale, IL 62901.

The Fall 1984 issue of the new Alumnus magazine will contain a lengthy retrospective of Bob Odaniell's years of service to SIU and the Association.

Association board proposes increase in membership dues

A $5 increase in annual individual dues and a $6 increase in annual family dues are being proposed by the SIU Alumni Association Board of Directors.

The membership dues increase, which would go into effect on January 1, 1985, would be the first in five years for the Association. The proposal will be presented to members of the Legislative Council on October 20, 1984, during Homecoming.

The increase is important for a number of reasons, said Bob Odaniell, executive director of the SIU Alumni Association. "Over the last five years, the cost of operating the Association has gone up quite a bit. The Association also desires to be of greater service to alumni and the University. Among the changes is the publication of a quality magazine which will begin this fall, replacing the tabloid we now publish."

The increase will be within the mid-range of membership fees now charged by midwestern universities. These dues fall between $10 and $24 per year for individual members.

Under the proposal, annual individual dues would increase from $10 to $15. Annual memberships for families (where both husband and wife are alumni of SIU) will increase from $12 to $18.

Three-year memberships would increase from $30 to $40 for individuals and from $36 to $50 for families.

Life memberships would also increase, going from $150 to $250 for individuals and from $175 to $300 for families. Life membership dues could be spread out over a five-year period: five annual payments of $60 each for individuals and five annual payments of $70 each for families. (Individuals and families who are now making annual payments as life members would keep paying at the old rate.)

The proposal also calls for special discounted rates for alumni who are 55 years of age and older. Individual annual dues would be $10, family annual dues would be $15, and life memberships would be $100 for an individual and $150 for a family. Under the current dues structure, no discount is offered to older adults.

If the proposal is passed, all memberships received through December 31, 1984, would be honored at the current rate.

New design for Alumnus: a quarterly magazine!

Beginning with the Fall 1984 issue, to be published this September, the Alumnus publication will become a quarterly 32-page magazine with separate color cover. The decision to move from a bi-monthly newsprint tabloid to a quarterly magazine was made by the SIU Alumni Association's board of directors at their spring meeting on April 28, 1984.

As a quarterly magazine, the Alumnus will be designed for easier readability and the inclusion of more important information and in-depth feature articles of interest to all graduates.

The new Alumnus will be mailed in the spring, summer, fall and winter seasons. SIU Alumni Association members will receive each issue as part of their membership fees. The fall issue will also be sent to all graduates of record as a way of promoting membership in the Association.

Among the standing columns of the new Alumnus will be feature articles on faculty, departments or research activities of SIU; feature articles on alumni; news of the Carbondale community; a photo feature; news of the classes, the campus and the Association; and a letters column.

We invite you to send us your news, comments and reminiscences of SIU. Address your letters to:

SIU football fund-raiser in St. Louis this month

The 1983 SIU football squad may be gone as a team, but it isn't forgotten as a source of alumni pride. Among the other football fund-raisers planned for this year is the "First Annual Tribute to the Football Salukis," hosted by SIU alumnus Vincent J. Sauge, '62. Sauge came to SIU in 1958 on a football scholarship.

"I was so proud of the Salukis," says Sauge, referring to the football team's I-AA national championship last year, "that I wanted to do something for them and my alma mater. I like how it felt to win the championship. I want to give the new coach, Ray Dorr, every opportunity to continue the Salukis' winning legacy. And I hope the fund-raiser will encourage other SIU alumni to get involved in ways of

Klasek heads Services unit

Charles B. Klasek, the director of International Education at SIU since 1978, assumed the new title of vice president for Academic Affairs and Research (Services) on July 1, 1984.

Klasek has developed a close kinship with the international community. In his new administrative position, he will help broaden the scope of SIU's community service mission by boosting overseas efforts.

One long-term goal is the establishment of a center for international community development, which would work closely with the School of Agriculture and the School of Technical Careers.

In Klasek's new post, he will be responsible for Continuing Education, Regional Research and Service, International Education, and Community Development. He'll oversee about 75 employees.

Among his other goals are finding additional support for Touch of Nature, more instructional television, reviving the Vietnamese Study Center, and bolstering international studies.

The goal is $30,000. Put on your dancing shoes and ease on down to Oz disco.

saying 'thank you' to the University."

Sauge wants to raise $30,000 for the football Salukis to use in recruitment, equipment purchases, and travel.

Sauge's 12,000 sq. ft. nightclub, Oz, is a popular spot in the metropolitan St. Louis area. It is located at the intersection of Illinois 3 and Monsanto Ave., in Sauge, Ill. (Heading east across the Mississippi River on the Poplar Street Bridge, turn south on Ill. 3.) The unincorporated area of Sauge was named after Leo Sauge, Vince's grandfather.

Sauge is donating food, liquor, music costs and the use of his nightclub for the fund-raising event. All money raised will be given to the SIU football team.

Tickets cost $30 each. Ray Dorr will introduce his staff and newly recruited SIU football players from the St. Louis area and will show 1983 season highlights. There will also be a raffle for prizes.

All SIU alumni, faculty, staff, students,

Money for the scholarships is raised each year in the Jackson County Alumni telefunds.

Telefund reaches 5,267 grads offering $19,110 to students

The Spring Alumni Chapter Telefund campaign came to a close in early June with $19,110 being pledged for student scholarships. During the Telefund, 253 alumni volunteers talked with 5,267 alumni, whose pledges will fund scholarships for incoming SIU students living in their areas.

The SIU Foundation and the SIU Alumni Association sponsored the event, which began in early February. The Telefund was billed as a "no-lose campaign," one that will benefit a number of deserving SIU students.

Alumni volunteers from 14 participating SIU Alumni Association chapters conducted the Telefunds from central locations in their areas. The Telefund also provided a social opportunity for the volunteers, who usually met together for dinner following the calls.

The May 1984 Alumnus (page 5) listed Telefund campaign results for the 10 alumni chapters that had hosted the events through April 16. The additional four chapters and their results are:

St. Louis County

13 volunteers, 308 alumni called, $1,510 in pledges. Don Truesdale, '76, chair.

Randolph County

17 volunteers, 290 alumni called, $782 in pledges. Barbara Brown, '76, chair.

Union County

9 volunteers, 262 alumni called, $1,245 in pledges. Roger Dillon, '70, chair.

Washington, D.C.

8 volunteers, 111 alumni called, $595 in pledges. Ed Roberts, '71, chair.

"We are very pleased with the number of chapters and volunteers who participated in this year's campaign," said Anne Carman, Director of Annual Giving at the SIU Foundation. "It was a pleasure to work with these volunteers in raising money for student scholarships."

Plans for the 1985 Spring Alumni Chapter Telefund campaign are underway. If you want to become a part of a program that will benefit the top new SIU students living in your area, contact Anne Carman or Gina Mitchell at the SIU Foundation, 1301 W. Chautauqua, Carbondale, IL 62901, or phone (618) 529-5900.

Burn team researching ways to reduce victim's injuries

A severe burn injury is one of the most devastating injuries a human being can sustain and survive. Each year Americans suffer more than 2 million burn and fire-related injuries, with 70,000 of those requiring some hospital care. Nine thousand people die from burn and fire-related causes.

Research on burn injuries is now being conducted by Dr. Elof Eriksson, associate professor of plastic and reconstructive surgery at SIU School of Medicine, and the burn team based at Memorial Medical Center, Springfield, Ill. They are exploring ways to reduce the devastation of burn injuries for the 150 burn victims the team treats each year.

The burn research areas include the investigation and evaluation of different skin substitutes, including various types of synthetic skin as well as biological materials such as pig skin and allografts, thin slices of sterile skin from deceased donors.

"The basic research in the understanding and treatment of burn injuries is in a very exciting phase now," said Eriksson.

"We know of better temporary skin substitutes. Better immunosuppression will allow us to use allografts for several weeks. And tissue cultures of the patient's own skin will probably be a source of permanent skin grafts in the future. In the laboratory, skin can be expanded from one square inch to 1,000 square inches in three weeks."

The psychological aspects of a burn injury are also a critical part of its treatment. "The patients are in pain; they are in a new environment where they know no one and often they cannot see. Our job is getting them and keeping them oriented. They need a proper sense of reality," explained Eriksson.

"We are fortunate here in Springfield to have an excellent burn team at Memorial," Eriksson said. The team includes two other burn surgeons—Jack Baldwin and Reid Hanson. Other team members are other physicians; the burn nurses; the physical, occupational and respiratory therapists; a social worker; a dietician; a psychologist; and a chaplain.

New Hall of Famers include Dick Garrett, former Laker

Dick Garrett, an all-star member of the 1967 Saluki basketball National Invitational Tournament team, will be among 10 SIU alumni athletes inducted into the SIU Hall of Fame on Sept. 15, 1984.

Garrett ranks eighth in SIU history in scoring (1,337 points). His 46-point effort against Centenary in the 1968 Saluki finale is still the record single game high at the University. He was a second-round draft choice of the Los Angeles Lakers. Following a solid pro career in Los Angeles, he played with the New York Knicks, the Buffalo Braves and the Milwaukee Bucks before retiring. Garrett lives in Milwaukee.

Formal induction for Garrett and the nine other SIU athletes will take place during the Sept. 15 football game between SIU and Western Illinois University at SIU's McAndrew Stadium. They will join 85 others who have been inducted into the Hall of Fame in past years.

The nine other 1984 Hall of Fame honorees are:

—Nancy Smith Blegen, Sycamore, Ill., a member of three undefeated women gymnastics teams (1965-67). She placed second in two world trampoline championships and was a two-time All-American.

—Joanne Hashimoto Champ, Sacramento, Calif., a silver medalist gymnast for the U.S. in the 1967 Student World Games in Tokyo. She placed fifth in the 1967 Collegiate Nationals and won a collegiate crown in the uneven bars the following year.

—Helen Meyer Jerz, Globe, Ariz., SIU's leading scorer in field hockey with 126 career goals, including a single-season high of 44 when the Salukis placed sixth nationally in 1978. She was also an outstanding softball pitcher and outfielder, compiling a 27-19 mound slate and a 1.79 ERA in 356 innings. She was chosen SIU Female Athlete of the Year in 1976-77.

—Patricia L. Matreci, St. Louis, SIU's sixth-leading scorer in field hockey, softball team captain and third baseman of the 1978 state and regional championship team. She hit .317 her last two years at SIU.

—Joe L. Ramsey, Decatur, Ill., the leading SIU basketball scorer and rebounder in 1964. During his last two seasons, he led the Salukis to the NCAA College Division tournament. He is now the head basketball coach at Millikin University.

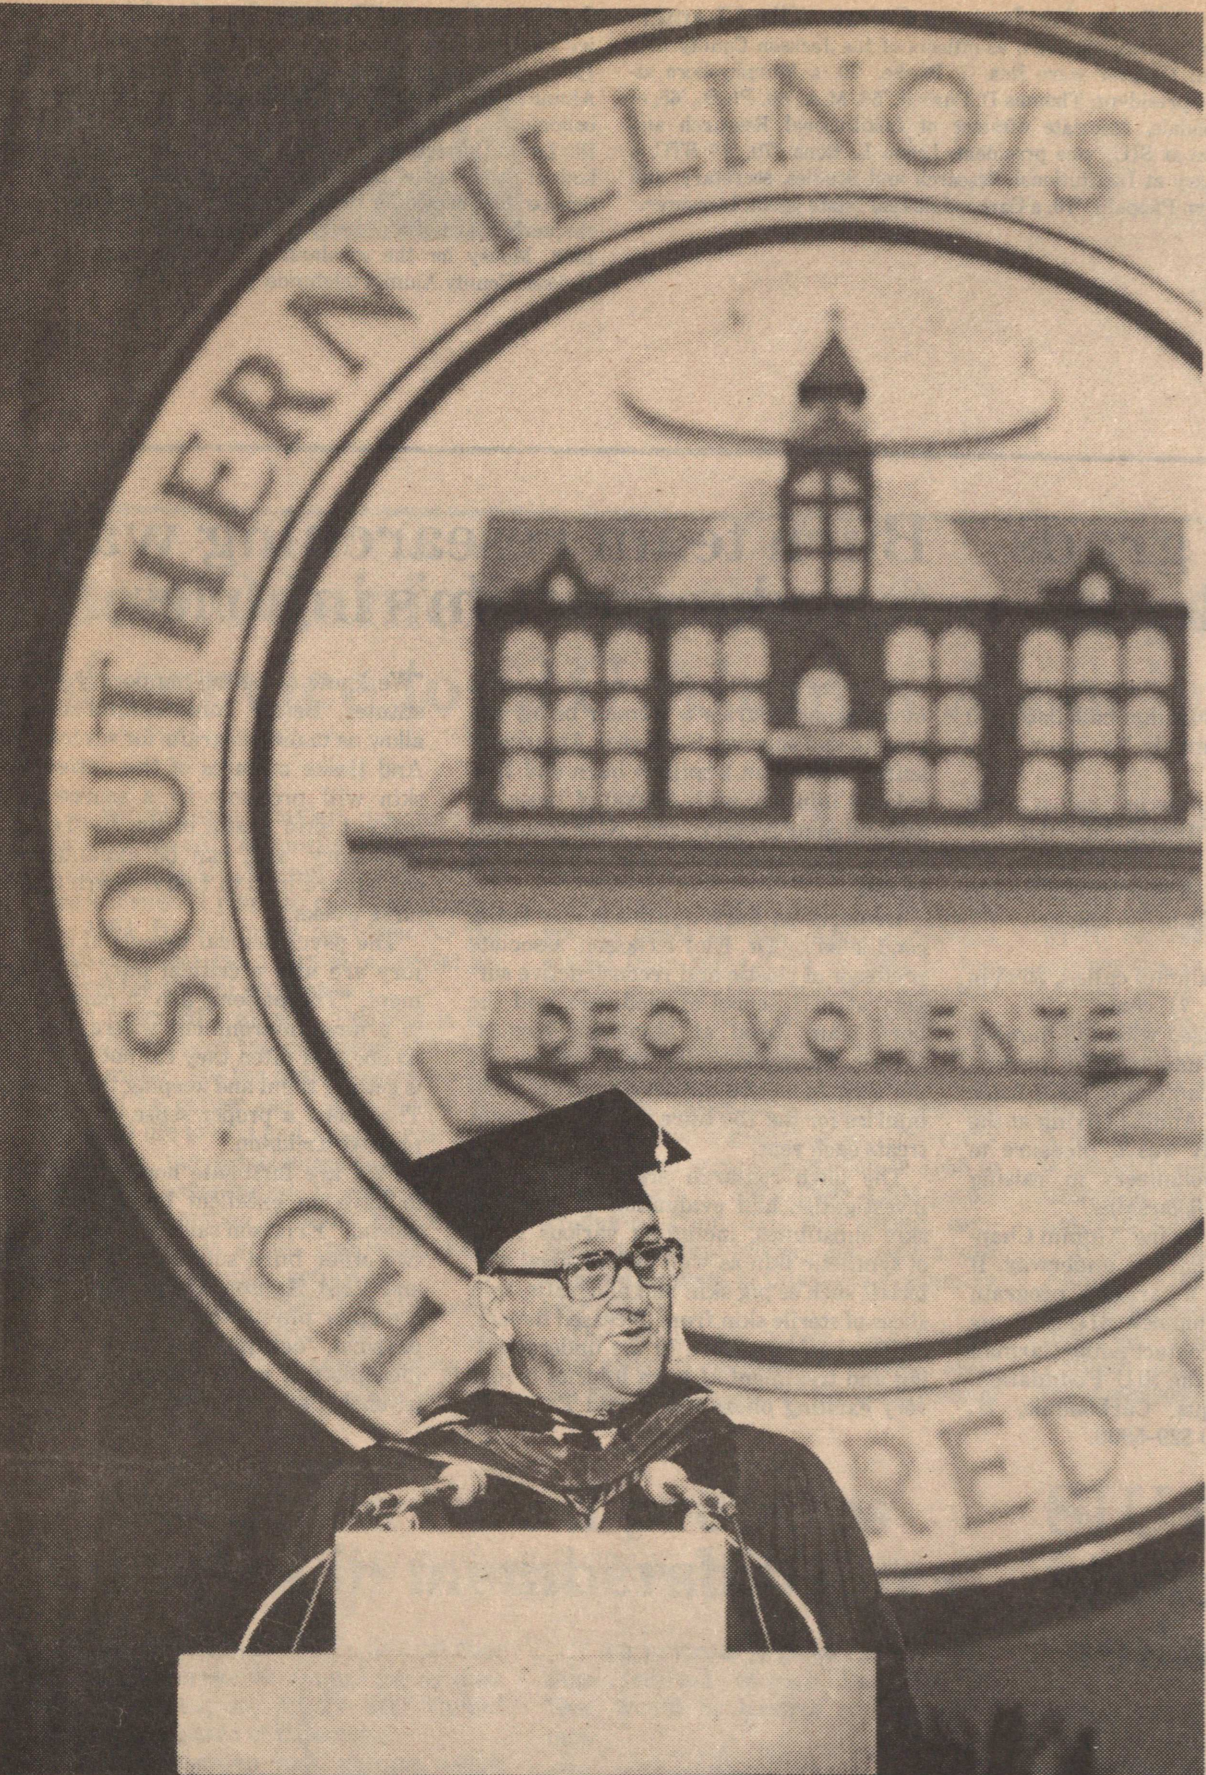

—Don Sheffer, Christopher, Ill., a letterman in basketball, tennis and cross country during his 1942-46 career at SIU. Sheffer was basketball team captain as a senior when the team was 20-6 and claimed the NAIA championship. During his final season, he set a single-game scoring record of 36.

—Bethel Stout, Wichita, Kan., a participant in six sports while at SIU between 1966 and 1970: baseball, basketball, track, volleyball, field hockey and badminton. She was a four-year starter on basketball teams that were 34-6 overall. She continues to hold school records in the discus and shotput. She starred on the Saluki's first national-qualifying volleyball team.

—Stephanie L. Stroman, New York City, a Student World Games competitor in gymnastics and a three-time All-American. She placed third in the floor exercises at the AIAW National Championships in 1975.

Helen Meyer Jerz is one of seven women who will be inducted into the SIU Hall of Fame this fall.

Graduation

Fred Basolo (above), awarded SIU's honorary Doctor of Science degree on commencement day, May 12, is a 1940 SIU alumnus who is internationally known for his pioneering work in organometallic chemistry. Following the three commencement ceremonies that day, new alumni and parents gathered at the SIU Alumni Association tent (below) set up near the arena. Over 4,800 persons received SIU degrees in May and June, the largest graduating class in the University's history.

Springfest & Cardboard Regatta

Candy the Clown (far left) passed out promotional balloons during SIU's Springfest '84 on April 28. Beautiful weather (a real relief from weeks of cold rain) made the day particularly welcome to the thousands of off-campus visitors and SIU students and staff who attended a variety of activities, booths and concerts. The SIU Alumni Association had a good spot in the festivities (left). And the 11th annual Cardboard Boat Regatta (below) attracted media attention in Chicago and points south, as well as on the national Sports Time cable network.

Springtime at Southern

Maroon & White

Moving Up

(Editor's note: Thomas Holloway was among the SIU business graduates mentioned in our article, "All Business," in the May 1984 issue. The following information came to our attention the day before publication of that issue.)

Just a brief note to update the biographical information which I forwarded to you in January.

On March 20, 1984, I was elected to serve on the Board of Directors of the Colonial Bank of Granite City, an affiliate of my principal employer, First Granite City National Bank.

On April 17, 1984, I was elected President of First Granite City National Bank. In addition to previously held responsibilities in the commercial lending area, I have assumed responsibility for the over-all management of the bank.

In March, my wife, Lisa, and I became the parents of our first child, a son, Samuel Price Holloway.

Many thanks for the recognition that you have given me.

Thomas E. Holloway, '72, MBS '74
Granite City, Ill.

Delta Sig Reunion?

I would like to hear from Delta Sigs of the 1930-34 era to plan a reunion at the SIU Homecoming on October 20, 1984. Please write.

Theater Update

Thank you very much for the very flattering article in the March 1984 Alumnus. It was a real treat to see it. . . .

There are two errors in the article, one because of my own lack of knowledge and the other probably through a misunderstanding during the interview.

Peter Goetz is playing the father, not the son, in the Broadway play, Brighton Beach Memoirs. What I meant to say was that when Peter played my father in Come Blow Your Horn at SIU in 1967, he played an older father in that show than he is playing now. So he is getting younger roles as he gets older. . . .

Peter was signed to play in a Woody Allen film, but his part was cut from the script before they began filming. . . . I didn't know this until I saw him last month in Brighton Beach Memoirs and talked about it with him.

Catch the Caribbean

The cordiality...the colors...the cultures... the compelling experience of a
Caribbean cruise.

For 10 memorable days—January 13–23, 1985—you can join other SIU alumni on a fantastic voyage, a luxury cruise from Miami to five of the most magnificent spots in the Caribbean islands: St. Thomas, Antigua, Barbados, Martinique and St. Croix.

Step aboard the Nordic Prince, one of the Royal Caribbean Cruise Line's best. And enter into a floating palace that will delight you with a variety of superb food and entertainment. Travel/Holiday magazine voted the cuisine among the world's best, with Escargot Bourguignonne, Coq au Vin au Chambertin, and tender Kansas prime rib.

Take advantage of swimming and other recreation. Music. Dancing. Relaxing under the warm sun.

The cruise ship leaves Miami at 5 p.m. on January 13. You'll spend four full days at sea and one full day at each port of call:

- St. Croix. . .enchanted sidewalk cafes, golf, a picnic at Buck Island National Park.
- Martinique. . .exotic flora, colorful native dress, an atmosphere that combines French and West Indian.
- Barbados. . .coral beaches, native markets, botanical displays at Andromeda Gardens.
- Antigua. . .the yachtsmen's favorite, Clarence House, a delightful climate.

St. Thomas. . .shopper's paradise, bargains, Danish heritage.

The delightful warmth of the Caribbean is especially welcome in the middle of your cold winter season.

The cruise is available in a price range of $1,810 to $3,765 per person, which includes round-trip air fare between Miami and 133 U.S. and Canadian cities, shipboard meals, special alumni cocktail parties and mixers, and many extras.

You'll be glad you decided to cruise with the Alumni Association this winter!
