CATALOGUE FOR 1991-1992

BRUNSWICK, MAINE

AUGUST 1991

In its employment and admissions practices, Bowdoin is in conformity with all applicable federal and state statutes and regulations. It does not discriminate on the basis of age, race, color, sex, sexual orientation, marital status, religion, creed, ancestry, national and ethnic origin, or physical or mental handicap.

The information in this catalogue was accurate at the time of publication. However, the College is a dynamic community and must reserve the right to make changes in its course offerings, degree requirements, regulations, procedures, and charges.

Bowdoin College supports the efforts of secondary school officials and governing bodies to have their schools achieve regional accredited status to provide reliable assurance of the quality of the educational preparation of its applicants for admission.

The Purpose of the College

BOWDOIN COLLEGE believes strongly that there is an intrinsic value in a liberal arts education, for the individual student, for the College as an institution, and for society as a whole. Historically, the arrangement of courses and instruction that combine to produce liberal arts education has changed and undoubtedly will continue to change, but certain fundamental and underlying goals remain constant.

It is difficult to define these goals without merely repeating old verities, but certain points are critical. The thrust of a liberal arts education is not the acquisition of a narrow, technical expertise; it is not a process of coating young people with a thin veneer of “civilization.” That is not to say that liberal arts education in any way devalues specific knowledge or the acquisition of fundamental skills. On the contrary, an important aspect of a sound liberal arts education is the development of the power to read with critical perception, to think coherently, to write effectively, to speak with force and clarity, and to act as a constructive member of society. But liberal arts education seeks to move beyond the acquisition of specific knowledge and skills toward the acquisition of an understanding of humankind, nature, and the interaction of the two, and toward the development of a characteristic style of thought that is informed, questioning, and marked by the possession of intellectual courage. When defined in terms of its intended product, the purpose of the College is to train professionally competent people of critical and innovative mind who can grapple with the technical complexities of our age and whose flexibility and concern for humanity are such that they offer us a hope of surmounting the increasing depersonalization and dehumanization of our world. The College does not seek to transmit a specific set of values; rather, it recognizes a formidable responsibility to teach students what values are and to encourage them to develop their own.

Liberal arts education is, in one sense, general, because it is concerned with many different areas of human behavior and endeavor, many civilizations of the world, many different aspects of the human environment. It seeks to encourage the formation of habits of curiosity, rigorous observation, tolerant understanding, and considered judgment, while at the same time fostering the development of varied modes of communicative and artistic expression. This concern for breadth and for the appreciation of varying modes of perception is combined with a commitment to study some particular field of learning in sufficient depth to ensure relative mastery of its content and methods. In short, a liberal arts education aims at fostering the development of modes of learning, analysis, judgment, and expression that are essential both to subsequent professional training and to the ongoing process of self-education by which one refines one’s capacity to function autonomously as an intellectual and moral being.

To achieve these goals, the faculty of the College must strive constantly to live up to their commitment in their course offerings, as must students in their course selections. The commitment is a collective one on the part of the College community. Each of the academic components of the College is under a heavy obligation to make its field of study accessible in some manner to the entire student body and to satisfy the needs of the nonmajor as well as those of the specialist.

The College is not and should not be insulated from the problems of the world. Rather, the College is a collection of people deeply involved in their community, their nation, and their world. When liberal arts education is faithful to its mission, it encourages and trains young people who are sensitive to the crucial problems of our time and who have the kind of mind and the kind of inspiration to address them fearlessly and directly. This is its goal and the standard by which it should be judged.

Historical Sketch

BOWDOIN COLLEGE was established by charter from the General Court of Massachusetts on June 24, 1794, after repeated petitions to the commonwealth by citizens who wanted to provide educational opportunity in the District of Maine, then a rapidly growing territory. Various names for the new institution were considered; the choice of "Bowdoin" was influenced both by a desire to honor the late governor of the commonwealth, James Bowdoin II, and by intimations received from his son, James Bowdoin III, of a substantial gift toward endowment. Brunswick was selected as the site for the College in 1796, but the erection of a building to house the College was not accomplished until 1802 because it had been difficult to convert into cash the lands that had been granted by the General Court. On September 2, 1802, the Reverend Joseph McKeen was installed as the first president of the College. In his inaugural speech, McKeen called upon those assembled to remember that "literary institutions are founded and endowed for the common good, and not for the private advantage of those who resort to them." On the next day Bowdoin began its active educational life with eight students and one faculty member in addition to the president.

The story of Bowdoin in its early years is an index to its entire history. Its first president was a man of religion and of science. Its first benefactor was a diplomat, statesman, and gentleman of broad culture; and the inheritance of his extensive library, his scientific instruments, and his fine collection of art established at the College a lasting conviction of the wisdom of strength in these areas of institutional resources. The College's original Board was composed of strongly religious men, individually devoted to the Congregational Church as thoroughly as they were to the democratic ideals of a new nation.

During McKeen's presidency and that of his successor, Jesse Appleton, the curriculum was rigidly prescribed and strong in the classics. In the field of science, mathematics was soon joined by the study of chemistry and mineralogy. The College, though small, had several distinguished teachers, and among the early graduates were several marked for future fame: for instance, Nathan Lord (1809), for thirty-five years president of Dartmouth; Seba Smith (1818), early humorist; Jacob Abbott (1820), prolific author of the "Rollo" books; William Pitt Fessenden (1823), for a short time President Lincoln's secretary of the treasury; Franklin Pierce (1824), fourteenth president of the United States; Nathaniel Hawthorne and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, both of the Class of 1825; and John Brown Russwurm, of the Class of 1826, Bowdoin's first black graduate, publisher, and governor of the colony of Maryland in Liberia at the time of his death in 1851.

President William Allen, called in 1819 from the presidency of Dartmouth, introduced modern languages and fought the legal battles necessary to establish Bowdoin as a private college independent of the new state of Maine. In 1820 the College established a medical school, which in the 101 years of its existence trained many doctors, most of whom practiced in Maine. It is believed that two members of the Class of 1849 were among the first black doctors to receive medical degrees in the United States. In 1921, when the needed clinical facilities and technical equipment had become too complex and expensive for a small institution to supply, it was deemed expedient to discontinue the school.

Bowdoin was established more on faith than endowment, and its finances suffered severely in the aftermath of the panic of 1837. Leonard Woods, a professor of biblical literature at Bangor Theological Seminary, was chosen as president in 1839 and served until 1866. During his term, Bowdoin's growth was slow and steady. Social fraternities appeared on the campus in the 1840s, followed by organized athletics in the late 1850s. As the controversy over slavery worked toward a climax, the home of Professor Smyth was a station of the Underground Railroad for escaped slaves; and here, in another professorial household, Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote the book that was to arouse the conscience of a nation, Uncle Tom's Cabin. During the Civil War, the College sent into the service a greater number of men in proportion to its size than any other college in the North.

The twenty years following the Civil War were the most critical in the history of the College. After President Harris's short term of four years (1867-71), Joshua Lawrence Chamberlain, Maine's most distinguished war hero and governor of the state for four terms following his return to civilian life, was elected president. During these two administrations the curriculum was modernized somewhat. An engineering school established in 1871 survived for only ten years. Its most famous graduate was Admiral Robert E. Peary (1877), who led the first expedition to reach the North Pole. The Bowdoin Orient, which claims to be the oldest continuously published college weekly in the country, appeared first in 1871.

President Chamberlain, for all his great services to the College, state, and nation, was unequal to coping with the difficulties now besetting the institution: inadequate endowment and equipment, decreasing enrollment, dissension among the faculty and Boards. Probably no one else connected with either group could have succeeded in the circumstances. Chamberlain's resignation in 1883 provided an opportunity to secure from outside the College the strong leadership imperatively needed.

The inauguration in 1885, after a two-year interregnum, of the Reverend William DeWitt Hyde marks the real beginning of another era. He brought to his task of rejuvenating the institution a boundless physical capacity that was matched by his awareness of a modern and changing world and by scholarly ability. He built the College figuratively and literally, introducing new subjects into the curriculum and enlarging the physical facilities on the campus by over 100 percent. During his presidency, enrollment increased from 119 in 1885 to 400 in 1915, and the endowment rose from $378,273 to $2,312,868. He emphasized teaching as the responsibility of the College and learning as the responsibility of the students. His vigor permeated the whole life and spirit of the College. It was during President Hyde's term that Bowdoin's philosophy of its students and of its faculty members as responsible, independent individuals became fixed.

Kenneth C. M. Sills succeeded President Hyde after the latter's death in 1917. He carried forward his predecessor's program, seeing the College successfully through the upheavals concomitant to two wars. During his presidency, Bowdoin gradually changed from a "country college" into a college of national standing. Physical facilities were improved and increased. The faculty grew from 32 to 81; enrollment, from 400 to double that figure; and endowment, from $2,473,451 to $12,312,274. Student activities were expanded, and the fraternity system was developed into a cooperative and democratic component of student life.

President Sills was succeeded by James Stacy Coles in the fall of 1952. During his fifteen-year tenure, Bowdoin met the rapidly changing demands of society and students by adopting curricular innovations, expanding the size of its faculty, and improving its facilities at a faster pace than during any comparable period in its history. It was during these years that Bowdoin thoroughly revised its curriculum, extended honors work to all gifted students, introduced independent study courses, initiated an undergraduate research fellowship program, and started its pioneering Senior-Year Program. To accomplish these academic improvements, the College expanded the size of its faculty by over a third, to 109, and raised salaries to a level that has enabled it to continue attracting and retaining outstanding teachers. The value of the College's plant showed a similar dramatic increase. Dayton Arena, Morrell Gymnasium, Chamberlain Hall, Wentworth Hall, Coles Tower, Coleman Hall, Gibson Hall, and Hawthorne-Longfellow Library were constructed. Pickard Theater was constructed in Memorial Hall; Massachusetts Hall, Hubbard Hall, and three dormitories were renovated; and the Moulton Union and Dudley Coe Health Center were enlarged.

President Coles resigned at the end of 1967. Following the acting presidency of Athern P. Daggett, Roger Howell, Jr., a member of Bowdoin's Class of 1958, Rhodes scholar, and chair of the Department of History, became the tenth president of the College on January 1, 1969. Only thirty-two at the time of his election, Howell had already achieved prominence as a scholar of British history.

Under his leadership, Bowdoin expanded its curriculum to include Afro-American studies, a major in biochemistry, and courses concerned with the environment. In 1970, the College began admitting women undergraduates and gradually increased its enrollment from 950 to 1,350. Other accomplishments included the development of a highly sophisticated computing center, an increase in student representation in the governance of the College, and the successful start of a ten-year, $37,775,000 fund-raising campaign.

President Howell resigned on June 30, 1978, and returned to full-time teaching at the College. Willard F. Enteman, provost of Union College, was inaugurated Bowdoin's eleventh president on September 22, 1978.

Enteman resigned on December 31, 1980, and Professor A. LeRoy Greason became Bowdoin's acting president on January 1, 1981. Greason, a graduate of Wesleyan University, received his graduate degrees from Harvard. He joined Bowdoin's English department in 1952. Between 1952 and 1981 he also served as dean of students for four years and as dean of the College for nine years.

On October 9, 1981, Greason was inaugurated the twelfth president of Bowdoin College, the fourth member of the faculty to be named to the office. During his term as president, Bowdoin strengthened its traditional liberal arts curriculum and expanded its offerings to include interdisciplinary programs such as arctic studies, Asian studies, and women's studies. Distribution requirements were reestablished, environmental studies and computer science programs were enhanced, and greater emphasis was placed on developing first-year students' writing skills.

The $56 million Campaign for Bowdoin, completed in 1979, received support for thirteen new faculty positions, allocated $15 million for student scholarships, and provided for major capital improvements and new facilities, including a library expansion project, a new field house and swimming pool, and the Hatch Science Library, which opened in January 1991. In 1987, Greason was honored by the endowment of an academic chair in his name, to benefit the creative arts at Bowdoin. He retired from the presidency in June 1990.

On March 3, 1990, the Governing Boards approved the appointment of Robert H. Edwards as thirteenth president of Bowdoin College. Edwards, a graduate of Princeton and Cambridge universities and the recipient of an LL.B. from Harvard University, brings extensive international experience to the Bowdoin presidency, having served the Ford Foundation in Pakistan, the Middle East, and Africa from 1965 to 1977 and headed the Department of Health, Education, and Housing for the Secretariat of His Highness the Aga Khan in Paris from 1986 to 1990. Edwards was president of Carleton College from 1977 to 1986. He was inaugurated the thirteenth president of Bowdoin College on October 26, 1990.

General Information

BOWDOIN is an independent, nonsectarian, coeducational, residential, undergraduate, liberal arts college located in Brunswick, Maine, a town of 20,500 situated close to the Maine coast, 25 miles from Portland and about 120 miles from Boston.

Terms and Vacations: The College holds two sessions each year. The dates of the semesters and the vacation periods are indicated in the College Calendar on pages vi–vii.

Accreditation: Bowdoin College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

Enrollment: The student body numbers about 1,400 students (57 percent male, 43 percent female; last two classes 54/46 percent and 55/45 percent); about 150 students study away one or both semesters annually; 90 percent complete the degree within five years.

Faculty: Student/faculty ratio 11:1; the equivalent of 130 full-time faculty in residence, 95 percent with Ph.D. or equivalent; 18 athletic coaches.

Geographic Distribution in Entering Class of 1995: New England, 50 percent; Middle Atlantic states, 21 percent; Midwest, 9 percent; West, 7 percent; South, 7 percent; international, 6 percent. Forty-two states, one U.S. territory, and 14 countries are represented. Minority and international enrollment is 17 percent.

Statistics: As of June 1991, 27,546 students have matriculated at Bowdoin College, and 20,551 degrees in courses have been awarded. In addition, earned master's degrees have been awarded to 274 postgraduate students. Living alumni include 11,372 graduates, 1,916 nongraduates, 88 honorary graduates, and 261 graduates in the specific postgraduate program.

Offices and Office Hours: The Admissions Office is located in Chamberlain Hall. General administration and business offices are located in Hawthorne-Longfellow Hall, the west end of the Nathaniel Hawthorne–Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Library. The Development and Alumni Relations offices are located at 83 and 85 Federal Street. The Office of Career Services is in the Moulton Union. The Counseling Service is in the Dudley Coe Health Center. The Department of Physical Plant is in Rhodes Hall.

In general, the administrative offices of the College are open from 8:30 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday.

Telephone Switchboard: The College has a central telephone switchboard located in the Moulton Union. All College phones are connected to this switchboard. The number is (207) 725-3000.

COLLEGE CHARGES AND BILLING INFORMATION

College Charges 1991-92: The charges for tuition, room rent, board, and fees for the year are listed below. These do not include costs for travel, books, or personal expenses; students must budget for such items on their own.

	By Semester		Total For the Year
	Fall	Spring
Tuition	$8,035.00	$8,035.00	$16,070.00
Board	1,562.50	1,562.50	3,125.00
Room Rent
Residence Halls	1,232.50	1,232.50	2,465.00
Pine and Harpswell
Street Apartments	1,700.00*	1,700.00*	3,400.00*
Other Apartments	1,407.50*	1,407.50*	2,815.00*
Student Activities Fee	80.00	80.00	160.00
Health Services Fee	75.00	75.00	150.00
Continuation Deposit			300.00+

* When normal occupancy is varied, rates may change accordingly.

+ The continuation deposit is required of all students who plan to continue at Bowdoin. Due March 1, it is applied to the fall semester bill. Failure to register or to occupy College housing will result in forfeiture of this deposit unless appropriate permission has been obtained from the Deans' Office.

For planning purposes, students and parents should anticipate that tuition and other charges may increase each year to reflect program changes and other cost increases experienced by the College.

College Bills: Statements and bills covering College charges will be sent to the student unless the cashier has been requested in writing to direct them to someone other than the student. Semester statements will be sent to every student regardless of the payment option selected. Information about payment options is on pages 10-12.

Registration and Enrollment: All students are required to register at the opening of each semester in accordance with schedules posted at the College and mailed to students registering for the first time. A fee of $20 is assessed for late registration.

Refunds: Refunds of tuition and fees for students leaving the College during the course of a semester will be made in accordance with the following refund schedule:

During the first two weeks	80%
During the third week	60%
During the fourth week	40%

During the fifth week	20%
Over five weeks	No refund

Refunds for board and room will be prorated on a daily basis in accordance with the student's attendance as it relates to the College's calendar, after adjustments for fixed commitments and applicable overhead expense. Students who are dismissed from the College within the first five weeks for other than academic or medical reasons are not entitled to refunds. Financial aid awards will be credited in proportion to educational expenses as stipulated in a student's award letter, but in no case will they exceed total charges to be collected. Application for a refund must be made in writing to the cashier of the College within 30 days of the student's leaving.

Tuition: Any student completing the number of courses required for the degree in fewer than eight semesters must pay tuition for eight semesters, although the dean of the College is authorized to waive this requirement if courses were taken away from Bowdoin. The accumulation of extra credits earned by taking more than four courses during a semester shall not relieve the student of the obligation to pay tuition for eight full semesters at Bowdoin College.

There are opportunities at Bowdoin to receive financial aid in meeting the charge for tuition. Detailed information about scholarships, loans, and other financial aid may be found on pages 20–26.

Room and Board: Entering first-year students are guaranteed housing and are required to live on campus. They may indicate their residence needs on a preference card issued by the Dean of Students' Office during the summer preceding their arrival at Bowdoin. The associate dean of students coordinates housing accommodations for the remaining classes through a lottery system, the most equitable approach given the College's limited space for housing.

Residence hall suites consist of a study and bedroom, provided with essential furniture. Students should furnish blankets and pillows; linen and laundry services are available at moderate cost. College property is not to be removed from the building or from the room in which it belongs; occupants are held responsible for any damage to their rooms or furnishings.

Board charges are the same regardless of whether a student eats at the Moulton Union, Coles Tower, or a fraternity. Students who live in Bowdoin facilities, except apartments, are required to take a 19-meal or 14-meal board plan. Partial board packages are available to students living off campus or in College-owned apartments.

Other College Charges: All damage to the buildings or other property of the College by persons unknown may be assessed equally on all undergraduates. The student activities fee is set by the student government, and its expenditure is allocated by the Student Activities Fee Committee.

Health Care: The facilities of the Dudley Coe Health Center and the Counseling Service are available to all students. All Bowdoin students are enrolled in health and accident insurance through the College; insurance offers year-round coverage and can be extended to cover leaves of absence or study away.

Bills are rendered by the College for many medical services provided through the health center. Most of these costs are covered by student health insurance. A pamphlet specifying the coverage provided by student health insurance is available from the cashier. Any costs not covered by insurance will be charged to the student's account.

Motor Vehicles: All motor vehicles, including motorcycles and motor scooters, used on campus or owned and/or operated by residents of any College-owned residence or recognized fraternity must be registered with Campus Safety and Security. The registration fee is $10 a year for students living in College housing. For students living off campus in apartments and fraternities, registration is free. Failure to register a motor vehicle may result in a fine of $25. Students wishing to register a vehicle for a period of time less than one semester must make special arrangements with Campus Safety and Security. All students maintaining motor vehicles at the College are required to carry adequate liability insurance. Parking on campus is limited and students will be assigned parking areas according to their living locations.

PAYMENT OPTIONS

Students and their parents or guardians may pay the College charges as they fall due each semester or in accordance with Bowdoin's ten-month installment plan. They may also arrange to pay the total due by using a mixture of these two payment arrangements.

The payment dates in the Bowdoin-sponsored payment plans may not be deferred for the convenience of families using guaranteed student and parent loans, or other tuition payment programs. Both long- and short-term financial arrangements should be made far enough in advance to assure payment on the required dates. Special problems or emergency situations may be discussed with the cashier at any time.

Students with unpaid bills may not register for or attend classes, nor are they eligible for academic credit, semester grade reports, transcripts, or degrees.

Option I

Payment by Semester: On about July 15, a bill will be sent for the tuition, board, room rent, and fees for the fall semester. Credits (funds actually received) and tentative credits (funds not yet received but expected to arrive) will also appear on the bill. Bowdoin scholarship grants, payments from the family, or any other cash payments are examples of credits. Non-Bowdoin scholarship aid that has been reported, payments arranged for under the Bowdoin Installment Payment Plan, etc., are examples of tentative credits. The balance due is the difference between all charges and all of the credits and tentative credits. The bill for the spring semester will be sent on about December 15.

Late Payment Charge: The balance due each semester will be considered overdue if not paid within 15 days of the billing date, and any unpaid balance will be subject to a late charge of 12.5% per annum.

Option II

The Bowdoin Installment Payment Plan (IPP): The Bowdoin Installment Payment Plan spreads the charges for a full year over ten months, beginning July 1. This program is administered on behalf of the College by the Knight Insurance Agency, Inc., of 855 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116.

Eligibility: Any parent or guardian of a Bowdoin undergraduate is eligible for this plan.

Application Deadline: Eligible participants are urged to apply by June 15. Applications made after the start of the program (July 1) must be accompanied by an initial payment sufficient to become current with the regular payment schedule. Applications for the ten-month plan will not be accepted after August 15.

Amount to be Financed: The amount to be financed under IPP may not exceed the total net annual charges (total annual charges less scholarship and loans). If the amount to be financed is less than the net annual charges, the difference will appear as a balance due on the Bowdoin semester bill subject to the provisions of Option I. The minimum amount that may be financed is $1,000.

Finance Charge: A finance charge will be applied at an annual percentage rate of 10% beginning on August 1.

Schedule of Payments: The first of ten monthly payments will be due on July 1, and subsequent payments will be due on the first day of each month thereafter until the entire unpaid interest and principal under IPP are paid.

Optional Payments: Additional optional payments over the basic schedule may be made at any time without penalty. The unearned finance charge will be rebated based on the actuarial method.

Application Fee: A $50 nonrefundable application fee must be submitted when returning the IPP application.

Consumer Credit Sales Agreement: The parent and/or guardian must sign a Consumer Credit Sales Agreement providing for the payment of scheduled installments.

Payment Coupons: Parents or guardians will receive a book of dated coupons to identify each payment. Each monthly payment with coupon should be sent to the Knight Insurance Agency, Inc. (855 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116), which will handle the processing and accounting of the IPP for Bowdoin.

Interest Statements: The Knight Agency will send statements of finance charges in January.

Delinquent Payments: In addition to the finance charge imposed under the IPP, a late charge of 5% of the monthly payment, or $5.00, whichever is less, will be charged on any monthly payment in default for a period of ten days or more.

Acceleration: If any payment is overdue by 30 days or more, Bowdoin shall have the right to declare the entire unpaid balance in the IPP account immediately due and payable. The acceptance of partial payments shall not be considered a waiver of any such default. Upon payment in full, the unearned finance charge, if any, will be rebated based on the actuarial method.

Insurance: Insurance coverage for IPP is optional and is offered independently of Bowdoin College by the Knight Insurance Agency, Inc.

Admission to the College

IN MAY 1989, the Governing Boards of Bowdoin College approved the following statement on admissions:

Bowdoin College is, first and foremost, an academic institution. Hence academic accomplishments and talents are given the greatest weight in the admissions process. While accomplishments beyond academic achievements are considered in admissions decisions, these are not emphasized to the exclusion of those applicants who will make a contribution to Bowdoin primarily in the academic life of the College. In particular, applicants with superior academic records or achievements are admitted regardless of their other accomplishments. All Bowdoin students must be genuinely committed to the pursuit of a liberal arts education, and therefore all successful applicants must demonstrate that they can and will engage the curriculum seriously and successfully.

At the same time that it is an academic institution, Bowdoin is also a residential community. To enhance the educational scope and stimulation of that community, special consideration in the admissions process is given to applicants who represent a culture, region, or background that will contribute to the diversity of the College. To ensure that the College community thrives, special consideration in the admissions process is also given to applicants who have demonstrated talents in leadership, in communication, in social service, and in other fields of endeavor that will contribute to campus life and to the common good thereafter. And to support the extracurricular activities that constitute an important component of the overall program at Bowdoin, and that enrich the life of the campus community, special consideration in the admissions process is also given to applicants with talents in the arts, in athletics, and in other areas in which the College has programs. The goal is a student body that shares the common characteristic of intellectual commitment but within which there is a considerable range of backgrounds, interests, and talents.

One can analyze the profile of Bowdoin's most recent class and make a rough prediction of a particular student's chances for admission to the next class. In recent years, Bowdoin has admitted approximately one out of five candidates. Sixty percent of those admitted will have graduated from a public school, and 80 percent of this group will have ranked in the top 10 percent of their graduating class. Well over half of the independent-school graduates will have been in the upper fifth of their class. Although Bowdoin does not require that a student seeking admission take a prescribed number of courses, the typical entering first-year student will have had four years each of English, foreign language, mathematics, and social science, and three and a half years of laboratory sciences. Further, most will offer studies in arts, music, and computer science.

Candidates applying to Bowdoin College are evaluated individually by members of the admissions staff in terms of four general factors:

Academic Record: Bowdoin is particularly interested in the superior student who seeks out and has excelled in a demanding college preparatory curriculum. Emphasis is placed especially on academic performance in the junior and senior years of secondary school.

References: As standardized test scores are an optional admissions requirement, the recommendations of the candidate's college advisor and two academic subject teachers are important. Perceptions of the candidate's motivation, joy in the learning process, creativity, determination, and aptitude help the admissions staff sort out the truly distinguished from the able.

Talent: Because of its small size and the variety of its academic and extracurricular offerings, the College is looking for a depth of talent and accomplishments in a few areas rather than surface involvement in many.

Class Composition: Rather than measure each individual candidate against fixed admissions standards, the College seeks a class full of differences: students with varied talents, of many backgrounds, from different places, with different points of view.

APPLICATION AND ADMISSION PROCEDURES

Early Decision: Each year Bowdoin offers admission to approximately one-third of its entering class through its Early Decision program. Those candidates who are certain that Bowdoin is their first choice and have a high school record that accurately reflects their potential should seriously consider this option, since it may resolve the uncertainty of college admission early in the senior year. Bowdoin is in agreement with other colleges regarding the general ground rules, which are as follows:

1. When candidates file a formal application for admission, they must state in writing that they wish to be considered for Early Decision and that they will enroll if admitted. Early Decision candidates may file regular applications at other colleges, but only with the understanding that these will be withdrawn and no new applications will be initiated if they are accepted on an Early Decision basis by their first-choice college. In other words, only one Early Decision application can be made, but other regular applications may be initiated simultaneously.

2. The completed Personal Application form and formal request for Early Decision addendum, a School Report form, a secondary school transcript of grades, and the two Teacher Comment forms must be submitted to Bowdoin by November 15. Decisions on Early Decision candidates whose applications are complete by November 15 will be announced by late December.

3. Candidates admitted via Early Decision who have financial need as established by the guidelines of the College Scholarship Service and based on the Financial Aid Form will be notified of the amount of their award at the time they receive their Early Decision acceptance, provided their financial aid forms are on file at Bowdoin. It is Bowdoin's policy to fund all needy students who are admitted via Early Decision.

4. The submission of College Entrance Examination Board or American College Testing scores at Bowdoin is optional as an admissions requirement. Applicants need not be deterred from applying for Early Decision because they have not completed the CEEB or ACT tests.

5. An Early Decision acceptance is contingent upon completion of the senior year in good standing.

6. Most candidates not accepted under the Early Decision program will automatically be transferred to the regular applicant pool. Each year a number of applicants who are deferred under Early Decision are accepted in mid-April, when decisions on all regular admissions are announced. A number of students, however, are denied admission at Early Decision time.

7. Responsibility for understanding and complying with the ground rules of Early Decision rests with the candidate. Should an Early Decision candidate violate the provisions of the program, the College will reconsider its offer of admission (and financial aid, if appropriate) to the candidate.

Regular Admission. The following items constitute a completed admissions folder:

1. The student's application form submitted with the application fee ($40) as early as possible in the senior year. The deadline for receiving regular applications is January 15.

2. School Report: The college advisor's estimate of the candidate's character and accomplishments and a copy of the secondary school record should be returned to Bowdoin no later than January 15. A transcript of grades through the midyear marking period (Midyear School Report) should be returned to Bowdoin by February 15. If a student matriculates at Bowdoin College, the School Report and secondary school transcript will become part of the permanent college file and will be available for the student's inspection.

3. Recommendations: Each candidate is required to submit two Teacher Comment forms, which should be given to two academic subject teachers for completion and returned as soon as possible and no later than January 15. If students have any outstanding strength, particularly academic, that they feel should be documented in their Bowdoin application, they should have their teacher, coach, or club advisor write to Bowdoin directly. For a student matriculating at Bowdoin College, required references will become part of the permanent college file.

4. College Entrance Examination Board or American College Testing Scores: Applicants are not required to submit results of CEEB or ACT tests. A candidate's overall academic record will always be considered first, with motivation, discipline, personality, and sensitivity viewed as important factors. If submitted, the CEEB or ACT scores will probably be helpful to the Admissions Committee in reaching a decision, but they will play a secondary role. The candidate is responsible for making arrangements to take the College Board examinations and for seeing that Bowdoin receives the scores if he or she wants them to be considered as part of his or her application. Should Bowdoin receive the scores on the secondary school transcript, these scores will be inked out before the folder is read by the Admissions Committee. Candidates may report their scores or instruct the College Board to send the scores to Bowdoin. Students choosing to submit their SAT and Achievement Test scores should complete the entire battery of examinations no later than January of the senior year. The College's policy regarding the CEEB or ACT test scores favors the student who is a superior achiever in the classroom but who may not fare so well on national standardized tests. Eighty-five percent of the public school graduates offered admission to the Class of 1994 ranked in the top 10 percent of their senior classes.

N.B.—Since standardized test results are used for academic counseling and placement, all entering first-year students are required to submit scores over the summer prior to enrolling.

5. Visit and Interview: A personal interview at Bowdoin with a member of the admissions staff or senior interviewer is strongly encouraged but not required. Distance alone sometimes makes it impossible for candidates to visit the College. The Bowdoin Alumni Schools and Interviewing Committees (BASIC) are available in most parts of the country to assist those applicants. (For further information on BASIC, see page 250.) Candidates' chances for admission are not diminished because of the lack of an interview, but the interview impressions often prove helpful in reaching a decision. In the Bowdoin interview, students should be prepared to talk informally about their academic record (bringing an unofficial transcript is helpful), interests, talents, and goals. Ten carefully selected and trained Bowdoin senior interviewers conduct interviews to supplement regular staff appointments from September to January.

The Admissions Office is open for interviews throughout the year, except from January 15 to May 1, when the staff is involved in the final selection of the class.

6. Notification: All candidates will receive a final decision on their application for admission by early April. A commitment to enroll is not required of any candidate (except those applying for Early Decision) until the Candidates' Common Reply date of May 1. Upon accepting an offer of admission from Bowdoin, a student is expected to include a $300 admissions deposit, which is credited to the first semester's bill.

7. Candidates requiring an application fee waiver may petition for one through their guidance counselor using the standard CEEB form.

Deferred Admission: Admitted students who wish to delay their matriculation to the College for one year in order to gain increased maturity or experience may request a deferment from the dean of admissions. It is Bowdoin's policy to honor these requests and to hold a place in the next entering class for these students. A $300 nonrefundable admissions deposit must accompany the deferral request.

Admission with Advanced Standing: Bowdoin recognizes the College Entrance Examination Board and the International Baccalaureate programs and may grant advanced placement and credit toward graduation for superior performance in those programs. Applicants to Bowdoin are encouraged to take advantage of these programs and to have test results sent to the Admissions Office. Inquiries may be directed to the registrar.

Decisions on both placement and credit are made by the appropriate academic department in each subject area. Some departments offer placement examinations during the orientation period to assist them in making appropriate determinations. Every effort is made to place students in the most advanced courses for which they are qualified, regardless of whether they have taken AP or IB examinations before matriculation.

Determinations of advanced placement and credit are made during the student's first year at Bowdoin. First-year students may apply a maximum of eight course credits toward the degree from the following sources: Advanced Placement Program, International Baccalaureate Program, and college credits from other institutions earned prior to matriculation.

Transfer Students: A limited number of students from other colleges and universities will be admitted each year to sophomore or junior standing at Bowdoin. The following information pertains to transfer candidates:

1. Candidates should file a transfer application by April 15 and include the $40 application fee. Applicants must arrange to have submitted at the same time transcripts of their college and secondary school records, statements from deans or advisors at their colleges, and at least two recommendations from current or recent professors. Interviews are strongly recommended but not required. As soon as it becomes available, an updated transcript including spring semester grades should also be sent. Candidates whose applications are complete will normally be notified of Bowdoin's decision by late May. The deadline for midyear transfers is November 15; midyear candidates are notified by early January.

2. Transfer candidates should have academic records of Honors quality ("B" work or better) in a course of study that approximates the work that would have been done at Bowdoin, had they entered as first-year students.

Bowdoin accepts transfer credit for liberal arts courses in which a grade of C or higher has been received. Further, transfer students should understand that although they may expect an estimate regarding class standing upon transferring, official placement is possible only after updated transcripts have arrived at our Registrar's Office and have been appraised by the dean of the College and the appropriate departments.

3. Candidates entering the junior year will be given preference. Two years of residence is required for a bachelor's degree from Bowdoin. Students who have completed more than four semesters of college work are not eligible to transfer.

4. The financial aid funds available for transfer students are limited by commitments the College has already made to enrolled students and incoming first-year students. All transfers are eligible for aid, based on financial need. Applicants for aid must file a Financial Aid Form with the College Scholarship Service by April 1.

Special Students: Each semester, as space within the College and openings within courses permit, Bowdoin admits a few special students who are not degree candidates. In general, this program is intended to serve the special educational needs of residents in the Brunswick area. Those who already hold a bachelor's degree from a four-year college are normally ineligible for the program, although exceptions may be made for teachers wishing to upgrade their skills or for Bowdoin graduates who need particular courses to qualify for graduate programs. One or two courses are charged at a special rate of $1,000 and no more than two courses may be taken each semester. No financial aid is available for special students. Interested applicants should submit the completed special student form and enclose the $40 application fee at least one month prior to the beginning of the semester. Inquiries should be addressed to the transfer coordinator in the Admissions Office.

PROCEDURE FOR APPLICATION FOR FINANCIAL AID

Bowdoin is one of more than 1,000 colleges that ask candidates for financial aid to file information through the College Scholarship Service, CN6300, Princeton, NJ 08541. This organization was formed to simplify application procedures and to make decisions on awards as equitable as possible. Each applicant for financial aid must submit the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application (which is included with the Application for Admission) and must also obtain the Financial Aid Form (FAF) from his or her school and request the College Scholarship Service to forward a copy of this statement to Bowdoin. March 1 is the deadline for filing these applications (for Early Decision applicants, the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application should be filed by December 1).

Candidates should not be discouraged from applying to Bowdoin College for lack of funds. Because of its extensive scholarship grant and loan programs, Bowdoin's financial aid policy is designed to supplement family efforts so that as many students as possible can be admitted each year with the full amount of needed financial assistance. In 1990–91, approximately 40 percent of the entering class of 400 students received need-based grants. The amount of assistance intended to meet the individual's need is calculated from the information in the Financial Aid Form. The average award of grant and loan was about $13,613. Additional material about the program of financial aid at Bowdoin may be found on pages 20–26. Awards of financial aid are announced with the letters of admission.

All correspondence concerning first-year and transfer admission to the College and scholarship aid should be addressed to the Dean of Admissions, Bowdoin College, Brunswick, ME 04011; tel. (207) 725-3100.

Scholarships, Loans, and Financial Aid

BOWDOIN COLLEGE's financial aid policy is designed to supplement family resources so that as many students as possible can attend the College with the full amount of needed assistance. Scholarship grants, loans, and student employment are the principal sources of aid for Bowdoin students who need help in meeting the expenses of their education. Bowdoin believes that students who receive financial aid as an outright grant should also expect to earn a portion of their expenses and that they and their families should assume responsibility for repayment of some part of what has been advanced to help them complete their college course. Consequently, loans and student employment will generally be part of the financial aid award. All awards are made on the basis of satisfactory academic work and financial need, which is a requisite in every case. Applications for financial aid should be submitted to the director of student aid, who coordinates the financial aid program. Submission of the required application forms guarantees that the student will be considered for all the financial aid available to Bowdoin students, including grants, loans, and jobs from any source under Bowdoin's control.

Since its founding, Bowdoin College has been fortunate to have had many close friends, including alumni, faculty, and others, who have either bequeathed or made outright gifts in support of its endowment for scholarships and loan funds. Information on the availability of scholarship and loan funds may be obtained through the College's Student Aid Office. Questions regarding endowed funds and the establishment of such funds should be directed to the Office of Development.

In 1990-91, Bowdoin distributed a total of about $6,724,000 in need-based financial aid. Grants totaled about $5,150,000 in 1990-91 and were made to about 40 percent of the student body. Long-term loans continue to be an integral part of financial aid, supplementing scholarship grants. The College provides about $750,000 to aid recipients each year from loan funds under its control; another $750,000 in loan aid comes from private lenders under the terms of the Stafford program. On the recommendation of the director of student aid, long-term loans may also be made to students not receiving scholarship grants. These loans, including Stafford Loans, Perkins Loans, and Bowdoin College Consolidated Loans, bear no interest during undergraduate residence. Interest is charged at 5% for the latter two loans; interest on Stafford Loans is set initially at 8%. Payment over a ten-year period begins six months after graduation, or separation, or after graduate school; two or three years of deferment are possible for various categories of service or internships. Perkins Loans also provide for the cancellation of some payments for persons who become teachers and/or who serve in the Peace Corps or Vista. Small, short-term loans are available upon application at the Business Office.

The student employment program offers a wide variety of opportunities to undergraduates. These include direct employment by the College, employment by the fraternities, and employment by outside agencies represented on the campus or located in the community. College policy is to give priority in hiring to students of recognized financial need. However, there is no limitation on students as to who may work on campus. Employment opportunities are open to all students who are interested, able, and willing to work. Commitments for employment are not made to first-year students until after the opening of College in the fall. The annual student payroll currently stands at about $675,000.

The College participates in the Work-Study Program established under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, the Supplementary Educational Opportunity Grants Program established under the Higher Education Act of 1965, and the Pell Grant Program established under the Higher Education Amendments of 1972. The College also works closely with several states that can provide handicapped students and those receiving other forms of state aid with financial assistance to help with their educational expenses.

Application for Financial Aid: Students who wish to be considered for financial aid must submit an application each year. A Bowdoin Financial Aid Application is included with the application materials for admission to the College. March 1 is the deadline for filing these applications with the Office of Student Aid (for Early Decision applicants, the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application should be filed by December 1). In addition, all candidates for aid must submit the Financial Aid Form (FAF) of the College Scholarship Service by March 1.

Continuing students must also complete the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application and the Financial Aid Form of the College Scholarship Service between February and April. Forms and more detailed information are available from the Student Aid Office.

Prematriculation Scholarships: About 170 first-year students each year receive prematriculation awards to help them meet the expenses of their first year. Recently the awards have ranged from $500 to $20,000. As noted above, some awards are direct grants, but most include the tender of loans. The size and nature of these awards depend upon the need demonstrated by the candidates. Applications should be made by March 1 of each year. Candidates will be notified of a prematriculation award at the time they are informed of the decision on their applications for admission, usually about April 15.

The general basis for determining the amount of all prematriculation scholarships is the individual's financial need. Need is determined by an analysis of the statements of financial resources submitted to the Student Aid Office on the aid forms.

First-year students who hold prematriculation awards may be assured of continuing financial aid that meets their needs in subsequent years if their grades each semester are such as to assure progress required for continued enrollment (see General Regulations, "Deficiency in Scholarship," pages 30–31). In the junior and senior years, the proportion of financial aid offered as a grant will be progressively decreased, and that offered as a loan increased, except in the case of certain scholarships where the award must be made as a grant.

All awards of financial aid made in anticipation of an academic year, including the first year, will remain in effect for the full year unless the work of the holder is unsatisfactory. Awards for such students may be reduced or withdrawn for one semester. Awards may also be reduced or withdrawn for gross breach of conduct or discipline.

General Scholarships: Awards similar to prematriculation scholarships are granted to undergraduates already enrolled in college on the basis of their academic records and their financial need. Normally, these awards are made at the end of one academic year in anticipation of the next, but applications may be made in November for aid to be assigned during the spring semester on a funds-available basis. Awards made for a full year are subject to the same provisions covering prematriculation awards, but those made for a single semester are not considered as setting award levels for the following year.

Graduate Scholarships: These awards are made to students who have completed their work at Bowdoin and are pursuing advanced study at other institutions. Application should be made in writing to the director of student aid. They are described below.

Graduate Scholarships

ARTS AND SCIENCES

Charles Carroll Everett Scholarship: The net income of a fund bequeathed by Mildred Everett in memory of her father, Charles Carroll Everett 1850, D.D. 1870, LL.D. 1894, is given to that graduate of Bowdoin College whom the president and faculty shall deem the best qualified to take a postgraduate course in either this or some other country. (1904)

Timothy and Lynn Hayes Scholarship Fund: This fund was given by Timothy and Lynn Hayes for support of postgraduate or undergraduate studies in the social sciences, i.e., those branches of knowledge which deal with the institutions and functioning of human society and with the interpersonal relationships of individuals as members of society. (1970)

Guy Charles Howard Scholarship: The income of a fund bequeathed to the College by Ethel L. Howard in memory of her brother, Guy Charles Howard 1898, is to be used to enable "some qualified student to take a postgraduate course in this or some other country, such student to be designated by the faculty." (1958)

Henry W. Longfellow Graduate Scholarship: This fund was established by the daughters of Henry W. Longfellow 1825—Alice M. Longfellow, Edith L. Dana, and Annie L. Thorpe—for a graduate scholarship “that would enable a student, after graduation, to pursue graduate work in some other college, or abroad if considered desirable; the work to be done in English, or general literature, and the field to be as large as possible—belles lettres in a wide sense. The student to be selected should be one not merely proficient in some specialty, or with high marks, but with real ability in the subject and capable of profiting by the advanced work, and developing in the best way.” (1907)

The Wilmot Brookings Mitchell Graduate Scholarship: This fund was established by Hugh A. Mitchell '19 “to honor the memory of my father and his love for Bowdoin.” Professor Mitchell was a member of the Class of 1890 and from 1893 to 1939 Edward Little Professor of Rhetoric and Oratory. The award is made by the president upon recommendation of a committee composed of the three senior professors of the Department of English “to a member of each graduating class who has majored in English and intends to teach English, the winning candidate to be selected on the basis of character as well as superior ability and talent for teaching.” The award is to be used to help defray the costs of graduate work in a leading university in this country or England. (1965)

Galen C. Moses Postgraduate Scholarship: The income of a fund bequeathed by Emma H. Moses in memory of her husband, a member of the Class of 1856, is awarded to the student most proficient in any natural science during his or her undergraduate course, who shall actually pursue a postgraduate course in such science at any recognized college or university; said income to be paid to such student for a period not exceeding three years, unless he or she sooner completes or abandons said postgraduate course. (1934)

O'Brien Graduate Scholarship: This fund, given by Mrs. John Washburn, of Minneapolis, in memory of her uncles, John, William, Jeremiah, and Joseph O'Brien, is used to support a “scholarship, preferably a graduate scholarship, for a student, or students, to be selected annually by the faculty, who shall be deemed most suitable to profit by travel or advanced study, either in this country or abroad.” (1937)

Nathan Webb Research Scholarship in English or English Literature: The income of a fund bequeathed to the College by Dr. Latham True in memory of his wife's father, the Honorable Nathan Webb, LL.D. 1890, is used to support a scholarship of $1,200 annually. The recipient must have received an A.B. from Bowdoin, preferably be unmarried, and use the scholarship in the study toward a Ph.D. “If deemed advisable, the said scholarship may be awarded to the same student for two or three years in succession, but no longer.” (1963)

LAW AND MEDICINE

Garcelon and Merritt Fund: An award from the income of this fund, established in memory of Seward Garcelon M1830 and Samuel Merritt M1843, is appropriated annually for medical scholarships. The larger part of the amount is awarded to students pursuing their studies in medical schools, and the remainder may be assigned to students in the College who are taking premedical courses; but, at the discretion of the Board of Trustees, all of the income available may be assigned to students in medical schools.

Awards are made only to “worthy and struggling young students in need of pecuniary aid,” and preference is given to graduates and former students of Bowdoin College. Applications from those who are not graduates or former students of Bowdoin College, but who are residents of the state of Maine, may be considered after they have completed one year in medical school. (1892)

Henry Lincoln Johnson Scholarship Fund: This fund, established by Helen B. Johnson, registrar emerita of the College, in honor of her father, Henry Lincoln Johnson '07, College physician from 1927 to 1947, is used to provide graduate scholarships for medical students who are residents of Maine.

George and Mary Knox Scholarship Trust: This fund, created under the will of George B. Knox '29, is used to provide scholarships for Bowdoin graduates attending Harvard Business, Law, and Medical Schools. (1984)

Lee G. Paul Scholarship: The income of a fund established by Lee G. Paul '29 is used to provide financial assistance to graduates attending the Harvard University School of Law and requiring financial aid.

To qualify for a scholarship award from this fund, a student must have been admitted to the College only after meeting all requirements for admission applicable to all candidates for admission and must have met during his or her undergraduate years at the College at least the minimum standards of performance expected of all students.

There is to be no discrimination either in favor of or against any student because of race, color, creed, sex, or disadvantaged background in the award of scholarships from this fund. (1964)

Dr. Clinton Noyes Peters and Alice F. Peters Medical Education Fund: The income of a fund established by the will of Dr. Clinton N. Peters '10, M1914, is used to aid Maine-born medical students who are graduates of the College and have been accepted by or are attending medical school. Any funds not used for medical school scholarships are used for aid to Maine-born undergraduates who have indicated an intention to attend medical school.

Robinson-Davis Fund: The income of a fund given in trust under the will of Beatrice R. Davis in memory of Frank W. Robinson and Dr. Horace A.

Davis is used to provide graduate scholarships for students, preferably natives and residents of Maine. Forty percent of the income is to be used for those who intend to study and practice law. The balance is for those who intend to study and practice medicine. (1972)

Earl Kendall Van Swearingen Scholarship Fund: The income of a fund established by the bequest of Eleanore Maria Van Swearingen is used to support a "scholarship or scholarships to be awarded to the best premedical students for their medical education." (1969)

SPECIAL FUNDS

Harold Hitz Burton Student Book Fund: This fund, given in honor and memory of the Honorable Harold Hitz Burton '09, LL.D. '37, by members of the Bowdoin Club of Washington and others, is used to assist needy Bowdoin undergraduates in the purchase of books required in their courses. The fund is administered by the dean of students. (1967)

Class of 1940 Memorial Fund: This fund is used for the assistance of students or for such other purposes as the president and Governing Boards may from time to time deem more useful. (1988)

Computer Loan Fund: This loan fund was established to enable members of the faculty and administrative staff to purchase computer equipment for professional and personal use. The fund is administered by a committee comprising the vice president for administration and finance and treasurer, the dean for academic affairs, and the chair of the academic computing committee. (1984)

Davis Fund: This fund, established by Walter G. Davis to encourage undergraduate interest in international affairs, is administered in such manner as the president of the College may direct. (1934)

Mason-Le Cannellier Fund: This fund was established in honor of William R. Mason and Jean and Monique Le Cannellier "for the purpose of providing loans and/or grants to admitted, nonmatriculated first-year students (with preference to those of middle-income families) to facilitate travel or the pursuit of an alternative nonacademic experience for a few months or a year before the students commence studies at Bowdoin." Awards are made at the discretion of the dean of admissions. (1982)

W. Cranston Brewer Memorial Fund: This fund is used to help individual Bowdoin undergraduates at a time of unexpected needs. (1988)

Dean Paul Nixon Discretionary Fund: This fund, established by E. Jeffrey Gilman '40 and his wife, Barbara Drummond Gilman, in honor and memory of Paul Nixon, who joined the faculty of Bowdoin in 1909 and served as dean of the College from 1918 to 1947, is administered by the dean of students, "with an award to be made whenever the dean feels that a student deserves encouragement and a 'pat on the back'—not necessarily for a great action but for any of those moments which call for a 'pat on the back.'" (1981)

John L. Roberts Fund: This fund, given by John L. Roberts '11, is used to assist some underprivileged scholar, other than a teacher or one contemplating teaching, to do research in any field he or she may choose. (1958)

Richard White Foundation Fund of Bowdoin College: This fund was established by the Richard White Foundation to provide food and recreation at Thanksgiving and Christmas to the "two members of the first-year class most in economic need." (1978)

The Curriculum

BOWDOIN does not prescribe specific liberal arts courses for all students. Instead, each student determines, with the help and approval of an academic advisor, an appropriate pattern of courses. To ensure that students explore the breadth of the curriculum before settling upon a major, they are expected to complete two courses each in natural science and mathematics, social and behavioral science, and humanities and fine arts; two courses must also be designated as non-Eurocentric studies. Courses, it is assumed, do not lead simply to other courses in the same subject. Properly taught, they should raise questions and evoke a curiosity that other disciplines must satisfy. The College also recognizes through its course offerings the importance of relating a liberal education to a society whose problems and needs are continually changing.

The breadth of a liberal arts education is supposed to distinguish it from professional training, and its depth in one field, from dilettantism, although in fact it shares qualities of both. Bowdoin encourages students to extend their concerns and awareness beyond the personal. At the same time, the College helps students to integrate curricular choices in accordance with individual intellectual needs. Interaction between the students and their academic advisors is a vital part of this educational experience.

Each student is assigned an academic advisor at the start of the first year. Students generally maintain this relationship for the first two years. Whenever possible, the dean of students assigns advisors on the basis of students' intellectual interests. Advisors and students meet regularly during orientation prior to fall semester classes and on an individual basis thereafter. During the first week of classes, the student selects courses and receives approval from the advisor through a signature on the registration card.

Students elect a major during the second semester of the sophomore year. After registering for a major, a student is advised by a member of his or her major department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE DEGREE

To qualify for the bachelor of arts degree, a student must have

1. successfully passed thirty-two courses;
2. completed a departmental major or majors, an interdisciplinary major, or a student-designed major (a departmental minor may be completed with any of the preceding);
3. spent four semesters (passing at least sixteen courses) in residence, at least two of which will have been during the junior and senior years;
4. completed at least two semester courses in each of the following divisions of the curriculum: natural science and mathematics, social and behavioral sciences, humanities and fine arts; and two semester courses in non-Eurocentric studies.

DISTRIBUTION REQUIREMENTS

Distribution requirements should normally be completed by the end of the sophomore year. Students must take two courses from each of the three divisions of the curriculum, with two courses in non-Eurocentric studies. A course that satisfies the non-Eurocentric studies requirement may also count for its division. Because these requirements are intended to apply to the college liberal arts experience, they may not be met by advanced placement or international baccalaureate credits, but may be met, under the supervision of the Recording Committee, by credits earned while studying away from Bowdoin. Areas of distribution are defined as follows:

Natural Science and Mathematics: Biochemistry, biology, chemistry, computer science, geology, mathematics, neuroscience, physics, and certain environmental studies courses.

Social and Behavioral Sciences: Afro-American studies, economics, government, psychology, sociology and anthropology, and certain Asian studies, environmental studies, history, and women's studies courses.

Humanities and Fine Arts: Art, classics, education, English, dance, German, music, philosophy, religion, Romance languages, Russian, most history courses, and certain Asian studies and women's studies courses.

Non-Eurocentric Studies: Students must take two courses that focus on a non-Eurocentric culture or society, exclusive of Europe and European Russia and their literary, artistic, musical, religious, and political traditions. The requirement is intended to introduce students to cultures fundamentally different from their own and to open their minds to different ways in which other people perceive and try to cope with the challenges of life. Though courses treating North American and European topics will not normally count toward this requirement, courses on African-American or Native American cultures will meet the requirement when the emphasis is clearly on those cultures and their differences from the predominant culture of the United States. Language courses do not meet this requirement. Approved courses are indicated by a swash (§) in the list of "Courses of Instruction" in this catalogue.

GENERAL REGULATIONS

Course Load: Students are required to take the equivalent of four full courses each semester. Students wishing to take more than five courses must have the permission of the dean of students. A student may not take five courses in the semester following the receipt of an F without the dean's approval. Juniors or seniors who have accumulated extra credits may apply to the dean for permission to carry a three-course load once during their last four semesters at Bowdoin. No extra tuition charge is levied upon students who register for more than four courses, and, by the same token, no reduction in tuition is granted to students who choose to register for three courses.

Course Examinations: The regular examinations of the College are held at the close of each semester. An absence from an examination may result in a grade of F. In the event of illness or other unavoidable cause of absence from examination, the dean of students may authorize make-up of the examination.

Course Grades: Course grades are defined as follows: A, excellent; B, very good; C, fair; D, poor; F, failing. A grade of D indicates work that in at least some respects falls below the acceptable standard for academic work at Bowdoin; only a limited number of D grades may be counted toward the requirements for graduation (see "Deficiency in Scholarship," below).

In independent study courses that will continue beyond one semester, instructors have the option of submitting at the end of each semester, except the last, a grade of S (for Satisfactory) in place of a regular grade. A regular grade shall be submitted at the end of the final semester and shall become the grade for the previous semesters of independent study. Prior to September 1991, Bowdoin used a four-point grading system of High Honors, Honors, Pass, and Fail.

Incompletes: With the approval of the dean and the instructor, a grade of Incomplete may be recorded in any course for extenuating circumstances such as family emergency, illness, etc. At the time an Incomplete is agreed upon by the dean, the student, and the instructor, a date shall be set by which all unfinished work must be submitted by the student to the instructor. Ordinarily, this will be no later than the end of the second week of classes of the following semester. The instructor should submit a final grade within two weeks of this date. If the course work is not completed within the specified time limit, the registrar will change the Incomplete to Fail. Any exceptions to this rule or a change of the specified time limit may require approval of the Recording Committee.

Credit/Fail Option: A student may elect to enroll in a limited number of courses on a Credit/Fail basis. Graduation credit is given for courses in which a grade of Credit is received. A student may elect no more than one course of the normal four-course load each semester on a Credit/Fail basis, although a student may elect a fifth course any semester on a Credit/Fail basis. No more than four of the thirty-two courses required for graduation may be taken on a Credit/Fail basis; courses in excess of the thirty-two required may be taken for Credit/Fail without limit as to number. No course may be changed from graded to Credit/Fail or vice versa after the first week of classes. Most departments require that all courses taken to satisfy requirements of the major be graded.

Grade Reports: A report of the grades of each student is sent to the student at the close of each semester.

The Dean's List: Students who in a given semester receive grades of A or B in at least the equivalent of four full-credit courses (no grade lower than a B) are placed on the Dean's List for that semester. A grade of Credit or Satisfactory may not be substituted for one of the required letter grades. A student whose Satisfactory grade is later converted to an A or a B, and who thereby becomes eligible for the Dean's List, will be placed on the Dean's List retroactively.

Deficiency in Scholarship: Students are expected to make "normal progress" toward the degree. Normal progress is defined as passing the equivalent of four full-credit courses each semester. Students may not matriculate in a fall semester if they are more than two course credits short of normal progress. Students who fail to meet this matriculation standard are expected to make up deficient credits in approved courses at another accredited institution of higher education.

The Recording Committee is responsible for ensuring that students' academic records meet acceptable standards. To monitor substandard academic performance, Bowdoin uses a system of academic probationations.

Academic Probation: Students will be placed on academic probation for one semester if they

1. receive two Fs, one F and two Ds, or four Ds in their first semester as first-year students at Bowdoin;
2. receive one F or two Ds in any one subsequent semester;
3. receive a cumulative total of four Ds or two Fs during their tenure at Bowdoin.*

Students will remain on academic probation if they receive one D while on academic probation. Students who are on academic probation will be assigned a special probationary advisor through the Deans' Office. Students who are on academic probation are not eligible to study away.

Academic Suspension: Students will be subject to academic suspension if they

1. receive four Fs in their first semester as first-year students at Bowdoin;
2. receive two Fs, four Ds, or one F and two Ds in any subsequent semester;
3. receive one F or two Ds while on academic probation;
4. receive a cumulative total of three Fs, two Fs and two Ds, one F and four Ds, or six Ds during their tenure at Bowdoin.*

Students who are suspended for academic deficiency are normally suspended for at least one academic year. Suspended students must apply for readmission and must present grades of C or better in approved courses from another accredited four-year institution to make up their credit deficiency before they will be approved for readmission. Students who are readmitted are eligible for financial aid, according to demonstrated need.

*In the computation of cumulative grades for probation, suspension, or dismissal, grades earned in the first semester of the first year are given half weight.

Permanent Dismissal: Students will be subject to permanent dismissal if they

1. incur a second academic suspension; or
2. receive a fifth F or a ninth D, or some equivalent combination of Fs and Ds where one F is equivalent to two Ds,* during their tenure at Bowdoin.

Maximum Residency: No student will ordinarily be permitted to remain at Bowdoin for more than nine semesters of full-time work.

Senior Course Selection: A student may be required to take a course in his or her major department in each semester of the senior year at the department's discretion.

Leave of Absence: A student in good standing may, with the approval of his or her advisor, apply to the Recording Committee for a leave of absence for nonacademic pursuits for one or two semesters. The leave must begin at the end of a regular semester. A student on approved leave is eligible for financial aid upon his or her return. A student wishing to apply for a leave of absence for one or both semesters of an academic year must submit an application by March 1 of the previous academic year. Applications for leave of absence submitted during the fall semester requesting a leave for the next spring semester will be considered only in the most urgent circumstances. Academic credit may not be transferred to Bowdoin for courses taken while on leave.

THE MAJOR PROGRAM

Students may choose one of six basic patterns to satisfy the major requirement at Bowdoin: a departmental major, two departmental majors, an interdisciplinary major, a coordinate major, a student-designed major, or any of the preceding with a departmental minor. Each student must choose a major by the end of the sophomore year after consultation with the department or departments involved. No student will be accepted as a major in any department until that student has passed the courses required for admission to that major. Students may add or change majors and/or minors until the end of the first semester of their senior year. Changes by seniors in interdisciplinary or self-designed majors require the approval of the Recording Committee. A student who has not been accepted in a major department may not continue registration.

Options for major programs are described below.

Departmental Major: All departments authorized by the faculty to offer majors specify the requirements for the major in the catalogue. A student may choose to satisfy the requirements of one department (single major) or to satisfy all of the requirements set by two departments (double major). A student may drop a second departmental major by notifying both the registrar and the department concerned at any time.

Interdisciplinary Major: As the intellectual interests of students and faculty alike have reached across departmental lines, there has been a growing tendency to develop interdisciplinary majors. Interdisciplinary majors are designed to tie together the offerings and major requirements of two separate departments by focusing on a theme that integrates the interests of those two departments. Such majors usually fulfill most or all of the requirements of two separate departments and usually entail a special project to achieve a synthesis of the disciplines involved.

Anticipating that many students will be interested in certain patterns of interdisciplinary studies, several departments have specified standard requirements for interdisciplinary majors. For descriptions of these interdisciplinary majors, see pages 136–38.

A student may take the initiative to develop an interdisciplinary major by consulting with the chairs of the two major departments. A student may not select an interdisciplinary major after the end of the junior year.

Student-Designed Major: In some cases, a student may wish to pursue a major program that does not fit either of the patterns described above. The faculty has authorized a pattern that permits a student working together with two faculty members to develop a major program that may draw on the offerings of more than two departments. Guidelines for the development of student-designed majors are available from the Registrar's Office; student-designed majors require the approval of the Recording Committee. Students should apply for a student-designed major before the end of the sophomore year.

Coordinate Major: The coordinate major is currently offered only in relation to the Afro-American Studies Program and the Environmental Studies Program. For a specific description of these majors, see pages 39–44 and 97–101.

Departmental Major and Departmental Minor: Students may fulfill the major requirements of one department and meet the minor requirements of any other department or program, subject to the approval of that department or program.

The Minor: All departments and some programs offer a minor program consisting of no fewer than four courses and no more than seven courses, including all prerequisites. A minor program must be planned with and approved by the student's major department, and approved by the student's minor department. A minor may be dropped at any time by notifying both the registrar and the department or program concerned, but may not be added after the end of the first semester of the senior year.

Independent Study: With departmental approval, a student may elect a course of independent study under tutorial supervision. A department will ordinarily approve one or two semesters of independent study for which regular course credit will be given. A definite plan for the project approved by the department and the tutorial advisor must be presented to the registrar by the end of the first week of classes. Where more than one semester's credit is sought for a project, the project will be subject to review by the department at the end of the first semester. In special cases the Recording Committee, upon recommendation of the department, may extend credit for additional semester courses beyond two. In independent study courses that will continue beyond one semester, instructors have the option of submitting at the end of each semester, except the last, a grade of S in place of a regular grade. A regular grade will be submitted at the end of the final semester of independent study and will become the grade for the previous semesters of independent work.

There are normally two kinds of independent study and each should be registered for under the appropriate course number. A directed reading course designed to allow a student to explore a subject not currently offered within the curriculum shall be numbered 291, 292, 293, or 294. An independent study that will culminate in a substantial and original research, fine art, music, or creative writing project or that is part of a departmental honors program shall be numbered 401 or higher. In most departments, the project will consist of a written dissertation or an appropriate account of an original investigation, but projects in music, the fine arts, and letters are also encouraged. Independent study may not be taken on a Credit/Fail basis.

THE AWARD OF HONORS

Departmental Honors: The degree with honors, high honors, or highest honors in a major subject is awarded to students who have distinguished themselves in that subject. The award is made by the faculty upon recommendation of the department.

All written work in independent study accepted as fulfilling honors requirements shall be deposited in the library in a form specified by the Library Committee.

General Honors: General Honors are awarded on the basis of all grades in a student's final six semesters at Bowdoin, except that a student who receives a grade of D or F in any course at Bowdoin or in any course at an institution from which academic credit is being transferred to Bowdoin is normally not eligible for General Honors. Students who have studied at Bowdoin for fewer than six semesters are normally not eligible. The Recording Committee considers petitions for exceptions to the normal criteria.

A degree cum laude shall be awarded to a student who receives at least 75 percent grades of B/Honors or A/High Honors. Within these grades, there must be two grades of A/High Honors for each grade of C/Pass.

To receive a degree magna cum laude, a student shall fulfill the requirement for a degree cum laude, with the additional stipulation that at least 30 percent of the grades must be A/High Honors in addition to the grades of A/High Honors balancing the grades of C/Pass.

The degree summa cum laude shall be awarded to a student who receives at least 70 percent grades of A/High Honors and the balance B/Honors.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Architectural Studies

Although the College offers no special curriculum leading to graduate study in architecture, students interested in a career in this field should consult with members of the Studio Art Division of the Department of Art as early as possible. In general, students should develop the ability to conceive and articulate architectural and spatial concepts in two and three dimensions and to render visual ideas through drawing and model making. The recommended course may be found on page 50.

Arctic Studies

A concentration in arctic studies, offered through the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, the Department of Geology, and the Peary-MacMillan Arctic Museum and Arctic Studies Center, provides students with opportunities to explore cultural, economic, and environmental issues involving arctic lands and peoples. Students interested in the Arctic are encouraged to consult with the director of the Arctic Studies Center in order to plan an appropriate interdisciplinary program, involving course work and fieldwork at Bowdoin and in the North.

Engineering Programs

Through an arrangement with the School of Engineering and Applied Science of Columbia University and with the California Institute of Technology, qualified students may transfer into the third year of an engineering option after completing three years at Bowdoin. Admission is assured with the recommendation of the coordinator of the 3-2 programs. Then, after the completion of two full years at the engineering school, a bachelor of arts degree is awarded by Bowdoin and a bachelor of science degree by the engineering school. Students should be aware that admission to these schools does not assure financial aid.

To fulfill the requirements of these programs, the student must start planning early. All students must take Physics 103, 223, 227, 228, Chemistry 101, 102, Mathematics 161, 171, 181, and Computer Science 101. In addition, a student taking the physical sequence is expected to complete Physics 300 and an additional course in mathematics, physics, chemistry, or computer science. For the chemical sequence, Chemistry 251, 252 is expected. The student should also have at least ten semester courses outside of physics, mathematics, chemistry, and computer science. Economics is strongly suggested.

Students who wish to complete four years at Bowdoin may apply to Columbia for admission on a 4-2 program. Students who have Honors grades in the sciences and are recommended by the coordinator are automatically admitted.

Students who wish to apply as regular transfer students into the junior year of any other engineering program must make the necessary arrangements themselves. Such students should apply to the Recording Committee for permission for study away. Upon the successful completion of the engineering program, a Bowdoin degree is awarded.

Because this program requires tight scheduling of courses, students should consult regularly with James H. Turner of the Department of Physics.

First-Year Seminars

Please see First-Year Seminars on pages 101–7.

Health Professions

Members of the Health Professions Advisory Committee chaired by the advisor for the health professions, C. Thomas Settlemire, Departments of Biology and Chemistry, are available to discuss career interests and undergraduate course programs. The Office of Career Services maintains a collection of reference materials regarding careers in the various health professions, as well as information about summer internship programs. In addition, Sue Livesay, associate director, is available to discuss career planning in the medical sciences.

A meeting of students interested in the health professions is held at the opening of College each fall. Other meetings intended to be of help and interest to students preparing for health professions are announced during the year.

Legal Studies

Students considering the study of law should consult with the staff of the Office of Career Services. Members of the Legal Studies Advisory Group include Craig A. McEwen, Department of Sociology and Anthropology; Richard E. Morgan and Allen L. Springer, Department of Government and Legal Studies; Lisa Tessler, Office of Career Services; and George S. Isaacson, Esq. They can advise students on the best ways to design a coherent liberal arts program that relates to the study of law and allied fields.

Bowdoin participates with Columbia University in an accelerated interdisciplinary program in legal education. Under the terms of this program, Bowdoin students may apply to begin the study of law after three years at Bowdoin. Students who successfully complete the requirements for the J.D. at Columbia also receive an A.B. from Bowdoin.

Teaching

Students with an interest in teaching in schools or enrollment in graduate programs in education should discuss their plans with personnel in the Department of Education as soon as possible. Because courses in education and psychology, along with a major in a teaching field, are necessary for certification, it is wise to begin planning early so that schedules can be accommodated. An extensive resource library in the Department of Education office contains information about graduate programs, summer and academic year internships, volunteer opportunities with youth and in the schools, and public and private school openings. Career advising and placement services are also available.

OFF-CAMPUS STUDY

Bowdoin offers its students the opportunity to participate in a variety of programs sponsored by other institutions and organizations. Study away must be approved by the College's Committee for Off-Campus Study and the student's major department; requests must be submitted to the registrar prior to March 1 of the year preceding attendance. Many specific programs and requirements for participation in them have been approved (see page 38 for information on Twelve-College Exchange).

Foreign Study: Students may apply for study in virtually any country. The Deans' Office has a list of programs that have been approved. Information, including student evaluations, is also available from the Deans' Office. Deadlines for application to foreign programs vary; a student should consult with the committee early in the year preceding anticipated participation.

Domestic Study: Study at other institutions in the United States should be considered primarily as an extension of Bowdoin's academic program. Therefore, a student's academic motivation is the essential criterion for approval. Bowdoin has a number of defined exchange programs; to attend any institution not currently approved, a student must, after consultation with his or her advisor, present evidence that the study requested will be undertaken in at least a comparable academic environment. It is the student's responsibility to apply to Bowdoin and to the other institution for acceptance.

Approved programs include the City Semester at Boston University, Williams College/Mystic Seaport Program, the National Theater Institute, Washington Semester programs of American University and Boston University, SEA Semester at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, and the Twelve-College Exchange (see page 38). Forms for and information about these programs are available in the Deans' Office.

In all off-campus study programs, credit will be transferred only for grades of C-minus or better, and an official transcript must be submitted to Bowdoin's registrar.

Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome

The Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome, established in 1965, provides undergraduates with an opportunity to study classical art and archaeology as well as Greek and Latin literature. Students must take four courses and may take a fifth. The center operates two semesters each academic year. Further information about the program may be obtained from Barbara Weiden Boyd in the Department of Classics.

Intercollegiate Sri Lanka Education (ISLE) Program

Bowdoin is the administering college of the ISLE Program, a one- or two-semester program of study in Kandy, Sri Lanka, under an affiliation agreement with the University of Peradeniya. Other sponsoring institutions in the ISLE consortium are Bates, Carleton, Hobart & William Smith, and Swarthmore colleges, Cornell University, and the University of Pennsylvania.

The ISLE program is designed to provide an authentic intellectual and cultural experience for fifteen to twenty advanced students with academic interests in South Asia. Curricular offerings include required language study and at least one course in history, Buddhist philosophy and practice, social and gender issues, literature and folklore, economics, government, and dance, as well as a period of independent study. Bowdoin grants five course credits for successful completion of the program. While in Sri Lanka, students live with host families and visit important archaeological and religious sites on the island. After the program's conclusion, students are encouraged to tour in India or Southeast Asia.

ISLE was established by Bowdoin in 1981, and is now accepted as one of the finest study-abroad programs in Asia. Interested students should consult with John C. Holt of the Department of Religion and the Asian Studies Program.

South India Term Abroad (SITA) Program

Bowdoin is the primary sponsor of an annual program of undergraduate studies in Tamil Nadu, India. Other SITA consortium members are Amherst, Bates, Dickinson, Franklin & Marshall, Hobart & William Smith, Smith, and Whittier colleges and George Washington University. The SITA Program provides a one-semester standardized curriculum of courses designed for non-South Asian specialists, and an optional second semester of individually tailored studies for exceptional students. Fall semester courses include language, history, religion, social issues, and culture, followed by an independent study period. Bowdoin grants five course credits for successful completion of the program. Students live with host families for much of the semester and tour various parts of South India as part of the program.

The Bowdoin faculty advisor for the SITA Program is Sara A. Dickey, Department of Sociology and Anthropology and the Asian Studies Program.

The Swedish Program in Organizational Studies and Public Policy

The Swedish Program is sponsored by the University of Stockholm and a consortium of American colleges and universities, including Bowdoin. It offers students the opportunity to spend either a semester or a year studying comparative institutional organization and public policy in complex industrial societies. Most courses are interdisciplinary in nature. Required courses include Swedish language and The Swedish Model: An Interdisciplinary Approach. A sampling of elective courses for 1991–92 includes Women and Equality, Scandinavia in World Affairs, and The Economy in the Welfare State. The two-week orientation and some courses involve extensive study trips, and there are week-long study visits to Berlin and Budapest. Students reside with Swedish families in and near Stockholm or in campus dormitories. The Bowdoin faculty advisor is David J. Vail, Department of Economics.

Twelve-College Exchange

Bowdoin has joined with Amherst, Connecticut, Dartmouth, Mount Holyoke, Smith, Trinity, Vassar, Wellesley, Wesleyan, Wheaton, and Williams to form the Twelve-College Exchange program. Students from one college may apply to study for a year at one of the other colleges.

Bowdoin students wishing to participate in the exchange program should make application to the office of the dean of the College by February 1 of the year prior to their intended participation in the program. Detailed information on the course offerings of the participating colleges is available from the dean's office. Application is normally made for two semesters. The exchange affords students the opportunity to take courses that are not offered at Bowdoin or to study specialized aspects of their major fields of concentration with faculty members who have achieved preeminence in those specialties. Course work satisfactorily completed at any of the participating colleges will receive credit toward a degree at Bowdoin.

Courses of Instruction

Arrangement: The departments of instruction in the following descriptions of courses are listed in alphabetical order.

Time and Place of Classes: A schedule containing the time and place of meeting of all courses will be issued before each period of registration.

Year Courses: Courses marked with an asterisk are year courses and if elected must be continued for two consecutive semesters.

[Bracketed Courses]: All courses that are not currently scheduled for a definite semester are enclosed in brackets.

§Non-Eurocentric Studies Requirement: Courses marked with a swash will satisfy one semester of the non-Eurocentric studies requirement.

Independent Study: See pages 32–33 for a description.

Prerequisites: Unless otherwise stated in the description, a course is open to all students.

Course Numbering. Courses are numbered according to the following system:

10–49	First-year seminars
50–99	Courses intended for the nonmajor
100–199	General introductory courses
200–289	General intermediate-level courses
290–299	Independent study: Directed reading
300–399	Advanced courses, including senior seminars and topics courses
400	Independent study: Original or creative projects and honors courses

Afro-American Studies

Administered by the Committee on Afro-American Studies

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR STAKEMAN, Director

Afro-American studies is an interdisciplinary program, designed to bring the scholarly approaches and perspectives of several traditional disciplines to bear on an understanding of black life. Emphasis is placed on the examination of the rich and varied cultures, literature, and history of black people in Africa and in the African diaspora, including the United States, the Caribbean, and Latin America. Such a systematic interdisciplinary approach captures the historic, multifaceted quality of Afro-American scholarship and allows the student to integrate effectively the perspectives of several academic departments at the College.

Requirements for the Major in Afro-American Studies: The major in Afro-American studies consists of five required core courses, a concentration of four additional courses, and a one-semester research project, for a total of ten courses. The core courses—Afro-American Studies 101 or 102; Sociology 208; English 275 or 276; History 241 or 245; and History 261, 262, or 267—have been chosen to give the student a thorough background for the study of the black experience and to provide an introduction to the varied disciplines of Afro-American studies.

The five-course concentration is intended to bring the methodologies and insights of several disciplines to a single problem or theme. Suggested concentrations are Race and Class in American Society, Cultures of the African Diaspora, Political Economy of Blacks in the Third World, the Arts of Black America, and the coordinate major. Appropriate courses to be taken should be worked out by the student and the director of the Afro-American Studies Program. Alternatively, the student and the director may devise a concentration around another specific theme and submit a proposal to the Committee on Afro-American Studies for its approval. In addition, the research project, normally completed in the senior year, allows students to conduct research into a particular aspect of the black experience. Students may complete their research project as part of a 300-level course cross-listed in the program, or as an independent study under the direction of one of the program's faculty. Students should consult with the director concerning courses offered in previous years that may satisfy the program requirements.

Coordinate Major in Afro-American Studies: The purpose of the coordinate major is to encourage specialization in Afro-American studies within the framework of a recognized academic discipline. This major is, by nature, interdisciplinary, and strongly encourages independent study. The coordinate major entails completion of an ordinary departmental major in sociology, anthropology, or history. The student is expected to take those courses within the major department that are cross-listed in the Afro-American Studies Program insofar as departmental major requirements permit. In addition, the student must take Afro-American Studies 101 and four other courses outside the major department approved by the director of Afro-American studies. Students electing the coordinate major are required to carry out scholarly investigation of a topic relating to the Afro-American experience; not more than one of the elective courses may normally be an independent study course (Afro-American Studies 290 or 400).

A study of the pantheons and tales of gods and heroes in English translation from a range of geographical areas and language groups of sub-Saharan Africa. The tales are analyzed for form and content, with some comparisons to relevant classical and European material.

[§101. The African Diaspora.]

(Same as History 161.)

§102. The Autobiography of African America. Fall 1991.

MR. STAKEMAN.

A survey of the history of African Americans as it is revealed through the autobiography, one of the first literary genres developed by African Americans. Uses the autobiography as a source to examine African-American thought and experience. Works to be covered include such classic autobiographies as Equiano's Travels, Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, Richard Wright's Black Boy, and The Autobiography of Malcolm X, among others. (Same as History 131.)

[§201. The Pan-African Idea.]

(Same as History 242.)

§208. Race and Ethnicity. Fall 1991. MS. THOMPSON.

The social and cultural meaning of race and ethnicity, with special emphasis on the politics of events and processes in contemporary America. Analysis of the causes and consequences of prejudice and discrimination. Examination of the relationships between race and class. Comparisons between the status of racial and ethnic minorities in the United States and their status in other selected societies. (Same as Sociology 208.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

241. The Civil Rights Movement. Fall 1992. MR. LEVINE.

Concentrates on the period from 1954 to 1970 and shows how various individuals and groups have been pressing for racial justice for decades. Special attention is paid to social action groups ranging from the NAACP to the SNCC, and to important individuals, both well known (Booker T. Washington) and less well known (John Doar). Readings mostly in primary sources. Extensive use of the PBS video series "Eyes on the Prize." (Same as History 243.)

Spring 1992. MR. STAKEMAN.

Considers how specific historical contexts have shaped and reflected the development of a distinctly African-American church, theology, and folk religion by focusing on black religious music in the Americas. Examines the different interactions of African and European cultures which have produced a variety of African-American cultures, the social role of the black minister, the social stratification of black Protestant denominations, the social roles within church services, the social welfare functions of churches, and black millenarianism. Topics include slavery and the spiritual, the black peasantry and folk blues, urbanization and gospel music. (Same as History 245.)

Examines the comparative evolution of slavery from ancient times through the nineteenth century. After a careful consideration of a number of reference points from the Old World—Ancient Greece, Rome, and Christianity—the bulk of the course investigates slavery in Latin America and the United States. Topics include the nature of slavery; slavery, power, and the legal process; the slave trade; the family; religion; rebellions and everyday forms of resistance; and abolition and its aftermath. (Same as History 256.)

An introduction to African political and economic development prior to large-scale European penetration of the continent. The principal focus is the relationship between economic growth and social organization in the Sudanic belt, Ethiopia, and Southern Africa before 1800. Topics include the growth of long-distance trade, the origins and structure of divine kingship, the expansion of slavery and serfdom, and the impact of Islam. Readings emphasize original African sources where possible. (Same as History 261.)

MR. KILLION.

The roots of contemporary African economic dependency often are traced to the impact of the Atlantic slave trade during the period from 1500 to 1850. This course focuses on the slave trade from an African perspective, exploring the relationship between the trade and economic and political change in all parts of Africa. (Same as History 262.)

Fall 1991. MR. KILLION.

A history of the interaction between European colonialists and African peoples in the region between the Sahara desert and the Zambezi River. Focuses on the process of colonial conquest, the impact on African socioeconomic systems, the construction of colonial states, resistance and liberation movements, and the survival of colonial politico-economic structures into the postcolonial period. (Same as History 267.)

[§275. African-American Fiction.]

(Same as English 275.)

[§276. African-American Poetry.]

(Same as English 276.)

301. Race and Gender in American Society: A Dialogue. Fall 1991.

MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of the similarities and differences in the ways race and gender have affected American society. Topics include the nature of inferiority (biological and religious theories of inferiority, visual representations of inferiority), control over the body of another (marriage, slavery, plantation mistresses and slaves), race and gender in the organization of labor (from labor unions to affirmative action), and the gender/race politics of resistance (the suffrage debates, racism in the feminist movement, sexism in the black movement). Emphasis on the debate that has occurred around each of these issues. Classroom debates, frequent short writing assignments, and student participation in discussion. (Same as Women's Studies 301.)

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

334. Research in Twentieth-Century African-American History.

Fall 1992. MR. LEVINE.

Bowdoin has extensive source collections on this subject: papers of the Congress of Racial Equality and of the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee; White House Central Files of Civil Rights during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations; F.B.I. surveillance records; and much more. This seminar involves research centering on this material.

Prerequisite: Any course in twentieth-century U.S. history. Preference will be given to students with previous background in African-American history. (Same as History 334.)

The Department of Art comprises two programs: art history and criticism, and studio art. Majors in the department are expected to elect one of these programs. The major in art history and criticism is devoted primarily to the historical and critical study of the visual arts as an embodiment of some of mankind's highest values and a record of the historical interplay of sensibility, thought, and society. The major in studio art is intended to encourage a sensitive and disciplined aesthetic response to one's culture and personal experiences through the development of perceptual, creative, and critical abilities in visual expression.

Requirements for the Major in Art History and Criticism: Nine courses, excluding independent study and first-year seminars. Required are Art 101; Art 212 or 226 or a course in classical archaeology; Art 222, 232, 242, and 252 or 254; two of Art 303 through 390; and one other course chosen from art history courses numbered between 110 and 399. Art history majors are also encouraged to take courses in French and/or German, history, philosophy, religion, and the other arts (literature, music, theater, dance, and the visual arts).

Interdisciplinary Majors: The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in art history and archaeology, and art history and religion. See page 136.

Requirements for the Minor in Art History and Criticism: The minor consists of five courses of which at least three must be at the 200 level and at least one at the 300 level.

The major and the minor in studio art are described on page 49.

Courses in the History and Criticism of Art

10. The Worldview in Renaissance Art. Fall 1991. MR. OLDS.

(See page 102 for a full description.)

101. Introduction to Western Art. Fall 1991. MS. WEGNER.

A chronological survey of the art of the Western world (Egypt, the Near East, Europe, and the European-based culture of North America), from the Paleolithic period of prehistoric Europe to the present. Considers the historical context of art and its production, the role of the artist in society, style and the problems of stylistic tradition and innovation, and the major themes and symbols of Western art. Required of majors in art history, majors in studio art, and minors in art history. This course is a prerequisite for most upper-level courses in the history of art.

§110. Introduction to East Asian Art. Spring 1992. MR. OLDS.

A chronological survey of Chinese, Korean, and Japanese art from prehistoric times to the present. Considers the painting, sculpture, and architecture of East Asia in the context of historical developments and the major religions of the Orient. (Same as Asian Studies 110.)

[§120. Introduction to South Asian Art.]

(Same as Asian Studies 120.)

[204. History of the Graphic Arts.]

209. Introduction to Classical Archaeology: Greece. Fall 1991.

MR. SMITH.

A chronological survey of the archaeology of Greece, from the Neolithic to Alexander the Great. Considers the nature of archaeological evidence, and the relationship of classical archaeology to other disciplines such as art history, history, and the classics. Material studied includes architecture, sculpture, vase painting, and the "minor arts." (Same as Archaeology 101.)

210. Introduction to Classical Archaeology: Rome. Fall 1992.

MR. SMITH.

The archaeology of the Hellenistic kingdoms and Rome, from Alexander the Great to Constantine. First, attempts to define characteristic features of Hellenistic culture, then traces the emergence of a distinctively Roman civilization from both this background and native Italic traditions. Considers the nature of archaeological evidence, and the relationship of classical archaeology to other disciplines such as art history, history, and the classics. Material studied includes mural painting, architecture, sculpture, and the "minor arts." (Same as Archaeology 102.)

211. The Birth of Greek Art. Spring 1992. MR. SMITH.

Examines the art of archaic Greece (seventh and sixth centuries B.C.) and considers the qualities characteristic of archaic Greek culture. Primary emphasis on the archaeological evidence from a variety of media: architecture, sculpture, and vase painting. Literary and historical sources provide a broader cultural context. (Same as Archaeology 307.)

212. Medieval Art. Spring 1992. MS. DOCHERTY.

Key monuments of medieval art are examined in the context of the social and intellectual history of Europe and the Near East. Covers late Roman and early Christian art, and the art of the Byzantine Empire, the Dark Ages, and the Carolingian, Ottonian, Romanesque, and Gothic periods. Special emphasis on the art and architecture of the great medieval abbeys and cathedrals.

Prerequisite: Art 101 or consent of the instructor.

222. Art of the Italian Renaissance. Fall 1991. MR. OLDS.

A survey of the painting, sculpture, and architecture of Italy in the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth centuries, with an emphasis on major masters: Giotto, Masaccio, Donatello, Brunelleschi, Alberti, Botticelli, Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Titian, and Michelangelo.

Prerequisite: Art 101 or consent of the instructor.

224. Mannerism. Spring 1992. MS. WEGNER.

An examination of the concept of Mannerism in art and literature. Artists include Pontormo, Rosso, El Greco, and Bellange. Investigates several related themes: the role of fantasy and imagination in the arts; ideal beauty, the erotic, and the grotesque; and the challenge to preexisting artistic values established by the High Renaissance. Readings from sources in translation include love poetry, criticism, artists' manuals and biographies, scientific writings on the senses, formulas for ideal beauty (male and female), and descriptions of court life and manners. The class makes use of the Bowdoin College Museum of Art collection of sixteenth-century Italian drawings. Students with interests in art, music, literature, women's studies, or the history of science are urged to enroll.

[226. Northern European Art of the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Centuries.]

232. Baroque Art. Spring 1992. Ms. WEGNER.

The art of seventeenth-century Europe. The naturalistic and classical revolution in painting carried out by Caravaggio, Annibale Carracci, and their followers in early-seventeenth-century Rome, and the development throughout Europe of these trends in the works of Rubens, Bernini, Georges de la Tour, Poussin, and others form one major theme of the course. The second is the rise of an independent school of painting in Holland. The development of Dutch landscape, still-life, genre, and portrait painting is discussed in relation to artists such as Frans Hals, Jan van Goyen, Jacob van Ruisdael, and Jan Vermeer. The unique art of Rembrandt is studied in this context. Connections between art, religious ideas, and political conditions are stressed.

Prerequisite: Art 101 or consent of the instructor.

242. European Art of the Nineteenth Century. Fall 1991.

Ms. DOCHERTY.

A survey of painting and sculpture in Europe from 1750 to 1900, with emphasis on the art of France, England, and Germany. Individual artists are studied in the context of movements that dominated the century. The art criticism of Winckelmann, Baudelaire, Ruskin, Zola, and Aurier, the changing relationship of art and artists to society, and the late-nineteenth-century sources of modernism are also discussed.

Prerequisite: Art 101 or consent of the instructor.

252. Modern Art. Fall 1991. Ms. MARSTINE.

A study of the rise and development of the modernist movement in visual art in Europe and the Americas, beginning with the major figures of post-impressionism and examining in succession expressionism, fauvism, cubism, futurism, constructivism, Dada, surrealism, the American affinities of these movements, the Mexican muralists, and the Canadian Group of Seven. A theoretical ground for this study is the definition of "modernism" and the problems presented by its social situation, its relation to other elements of culture, its place in the historical tradition of Western art, and its invocation of archaic, primitive, and Oriental cultures.

Prerequisite: Art 101, 242, or consent of the instructor.

[254. Contemporary Art.]

262. American Art from Colonial Times to the Civil War.

Fall 1991. Ms. MARSTINE.

A survey of American architecture, sculpture, and painting from their colonial origins through their development into a distinctive national tradition. Emphasis is placed on understanding American art in its historical context. Readings in primary sources. Field trips to the Bowdoin College Museum of Art and environs of architectural interest.

264. American Art from the Civil War to the Present Day.

Spring 1992. Ms. DOCHERTY.

A continuation of Art 262. Emphasizes architecture through Richardson, and the American tradition in painting and sculpture in the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Homer, Eakins, Ryder, Sargent, Whistler, Sloan, Wyeth, and other outstanding and representative artists of the period are included.

Prerequisite: Art 101 or consent of the instructor.

Seminars in Art History and Criticism

The seminars are intended to utilize the scholarly interests of members of the department and provide an opportunity for advanced work for selected students who have successfully completed enough of the regular courses to possess a background. Admittance to all seminars requires consent of the instructor. The department does not expect to give all, or in some cases any, seminars in each semester. As the seminars are varied, a given topic may be offered only once, or its form changed considerably from time to time.

332. Studies in Seventeenth-Century Art: Rembrandt van Rijn.

Fall 1991. Ms. WEGNER.

Explores the art of Rembrandt in the context of his society. Examines Rembrandt's unique interpretation of biblical and classical subjects in light of the preexisting textual and visual traditions. Investigates the myths of Rembrandt's art and life as promulgated by his biographers. Readings include recent interpretations of Rembrandt by Alpers, Schwartz, and others. Addresses the continuing questions of authentication using actual examples of Rembrandt's paintings and prints held in Boston collections.

Prerequisite: Art 101 or consent of the instructor.

342. Problems in the History of Landscape Painting. Spring 1992.

MR. OLDS.

Examines major developments in the history of landscape painting in Europe, America, and the Far East, with an emphasis on the spiritual, psychological, and philosophical aspects of these developments. Among the artists to be covered are Leonardo da Vinci, Pieter Bruegel the Elder, Rembrandt, Jacob van Ruisdael, Constable, Caspar David Friedrich, the American Luminists, Winslow Homer, Monet, Van Gogh, Guo Xi, Shen Zhou, Sesshu, Tohaku, and certain twentieth-century American painters and photographers.

364. Topics in American Art. Knowledge, Skill, Truth, and Beauty: Science and the Arts in American Culture. Fall 1991.

Ms. DOCHERTY.

A study of the influence of science on the life and thought of the American people, with particular emphasis on the response of American artists to science in various periods and its effect on the character of American art.

Prerequisites: Art 101 and consent of the instructor.

291–294. Intermediate Independent Study in Art History.

ART HISTORY FACULTY.

401. Advanced Independent Study and Honors in Art History.

ART HISTORY FACULTY.

Studio Art

Requirements for the Major in Studio Art: Eleven courses are required in the department, to include Art 150, 160, 250, and 260; four other courses in the studio division, at least one of which must be numbered 270 or higher; Art 101; and two other courses in art history. Students undertaking an honors project in their senior year will be required to take Art 401 in addition to the eleven courses required of the major. Majors are also strongly advised to include study of history, philosophy, religion, literature, and music among their remaining courses.

Requirements for the Minor in Studio Art: Art 101, 150, 160, either 250 or 260, plus two additional studio courses, at least one of which must be numbered 270 or higher.

Studio courses without prerequisite are frequently oversubscribed; preference in enrollment is then given to first- and second-year students as well as to juniors and seniors fulfilling requirements of the studio major or minor.

150. Drawing I. Fall 1991. Ms. LOFQUIST AND MR. WETHLI.

Spring 1992. MR. WETHLI.

An introduction to drawing, with an emphasis on the development of perceptual, organizational, and critical abilities. Studio projects entail objective observation and analysis of still-life, landscape, and figurative subjects; exploration of the abstract formal organization of graphic expression; and the development of a critical vocabulary of visual principles. Lectures and group critiques augment studio projects in various drawing media.

Enrollment limited to 25 students.

160. Painting I. Fall 1991 and spring 1992. MS. LOFQUIST.

An introduction to painting, with an emphasis on the development of perceptual, organizational, and critical abilities. Studio projects entail objective observation and analysis of still-life, landscape, and figurative subjects; exploration of the painting medium and chromatic structure in representation; and the development of a critical vocabulary of painting concepts. Lectures and group critiques augment studio projects in painting media.

Prerequisite: Art 150. Enrollment limited to 25 students.

170. Printmaking I. Fall 1991. MR. WETHLI.

An introduction to intaglio printmaking, including etching, drypoint, engraving, monotype, and related methods. Studio projects develop creative approaches to perceptual experience and visual expression that are uniquely inspired by the intaglio medium. Attention is also given to historical and contemporary examples and uses of the medium.

Prerequisite: Art 150 or consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 20 students.

180. Photography I. Spring 1992. MR. MCKEE.

Photographic visualization and composition as consequences of fundamental techniques of black-and-white still photography. Class discussions and demonstrations, examination of masterworks, and field and laboratory work in 35mm format. Students must provide their own 35mm nonautomatic camera.

Enrollment limited to 32 students.

190. Architectural Design I. Spring 1992. MR. GLASS.

An introduction to architectural design. Studio projects develop skills in program and context analysis, conceptual design principles and processes, and presentation techniques.

Enrollment limited to 25 students.

250. Drawing II. Spring 1992. MS. LOFQUIST.

A continuation of the principles introduced in Art 150, with particular emphasis on figurative drawing. Studio projects develop perceptual, creative, and critical abilities through problems involving objective observation, gestural expression and structural principles of the human form, studies from historical and contemporary examples, and exploration of the abstract formal elements of drawing. Lectures and group critiques augment studio projects in various drawing media.

Prerequisite: Art 150.

260. Painting II. Spring 1992. MR. CORNELL.

A continuation of the principles introduced in Art 160, with studio problems based on direct experience.

Prerequisite: Art 160.

270. Printmaking II. Spring 1992. MR. CORNELL.

A continuation of the principles introduced in Art 170, with particular emphasis on independent projects.

Prerequisite: Art 170 or consent of the instructor.

280. Photography II. Fall 1991. MR. MCKEE.

Review of the conceptual and technical fundamentals of black-and-white photography and exploration of the different image-making possibilities inherent in related photographic media such as 35mm and view cameras. Seminar discussions and field and laboratory work. Students must provide their own nonautomatic 35mm camera.

Prerequisite: Art 180 or consent of the instructor.

295–299. Intermediate Independent Study in Studio Art.

STUDIO ART FACULTY.

350–359. Advanced Studies in Studio Art. Spring 1992. MR. WETHLI.

A continuation of principles introduced in lower division drawing and painting courses, with increasing emphasis on independent projects.

Prerequisite: Art 250 or Art 260 or consent of the instructor.

370. Printmaking III. Spring 1992. MR. CORNELL.

Advanced projects in printmaking.

Prerequisite: Art 270 or consent of the instructor.

401. Advanced Independent Study and Honors in Studio Art.

STUDIO ART FACULTY.

Open only to exceptionally qualified senior majors and required for honors credit. Advanced studio projects undertaken on an independent basis, with assigned readings, critical discussions, and a final position paper.

Asian Studies

Administered by the Committee on Asian Studies

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR SMITH, Chair; PROFESSOR HOLT; ASSISTANT PROFESSORS DICKEY (on leave for the academic year),
 GILDAY, AND WEN;
 INSTRUCTOR SATOH (on leave for the academic year);
 VISITING INSTRUCTOR CHATTERJEE;
 LECTURER HAYASHI; VISITING LECTURERS ISHIDA AND SOIFER

Students in Asian studies focus on the cultural traditions of either East Asia (China and Japan) or South Asia (India and Sri Lanka). In completing the major, each student is required to gain a general understanding of both culture areas, to acquire a working proficiency in one of the languages of South or East Asia, to develop a theoretical or methodological sophistication in one of the disciplines constitutive of Asian studies (e.g., history, religion, literature, anthropology, etc.), and to demonstrate a degree of applied specialization. These principles are reflected in the requirements for an Asian studies major. Student-designed majors focusing on cross-cultural topics in the humanities and/or social sciences are also encouraged. Normally, such student-designed majors will contain a strong disciplinary grounding (e.g., four courses in economics), as well as a significant number of relevant courses focused on Asia.

Study Away: Foreign study for students interested in East Asian studies is highly recommended. Established programs in Hong Kong, Taiwan, Japan, and the People's Republic of China are available. Consult the department for information about various programs.

Requirements for the Major in Asian Studies: One can major in Asian studies by focusing on a particular academic discipline (e.g., religion) or by focusing on a particular geographic and cultural area (e.g., South Asia). In both cases, eight courses are required in addition to the study of an Asian language. These eight include Asian Studies 101, a senior seminar, and other courses as described below. A student who wishes to graduate with honors in the program must also write an honors thesis, which is normally a one-semester project.

The major requires courses from four categories:

1. Language. Two years of an East Asian language or one year of a South Asian language, or the equivalent through intensive language study.
- 2a. Discipline-specific courses. Four courses from a single discipline, one of which is normally a senior seminar. Currently, students may elect anthropology, history, literature, or religion; or

- 2b. Area-specific courses. Four courses that focus on the student's area of specialization, two in one discipline and two in another. One of these is normally a senior seminar. The possible areas of specialization are Japan, China, and South Asia.

3. Two courses that include a geographic area other than that of one's language concentration. One of these must be Asian Studies 101.
4. Two other courses to be chosen in consultation with the student's advisor. If the student has elected a disciplinary track in anthropology or religion, one of these may be Anthropology 101 or Religion 101.

Requirements for the Minor in Asian Studies: Students focus on the cultural traditions of either East Asia or South Asia by completing: (1) Asian Studies 101; (2) a concentration of at least three courses in one academic discipline or geographic area; and (3) one elective in Asian studies.

Program Honors: Students contemplating honors candidacy in the program must have established records of B/Honors and A/High Honors in program course offerings and present clearly articulated, well-focused proposals for scholarly research. Students must prepare an honors thesis and are examined orally by the program faculty.

First-Year Seminars in Asian Studies

(Same as Religion 17.)

(See page 102 for a full description.)

§22. Chinese Strategy. Spring 1993. MR. SMITH.

(Same as History 22.)

(See page 102 for a full description.)

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

MR. GILDAY.

Readings in original texts from India, China, and Japan provide the basis for an exploration of basic patterns of thought and cultural expression in South and East Asia.

§110. Introduction to East Asian Art. Spring 1992. MR. OLDS.

A chronological survey of Chinese, Korean, and Japanese art from prehistoric times to the present. Considers the painting, sculpture, and architecture of East Asia in the context of historical developments and major religions of the Orient. (Same as Art 110.)

[§120. Introduction to South Asian Art.]

(Same as Art 120.)

234. Women, Power, and Identity in South Asia. Spring 1992.

MS. CHATTERJEE.

Examines the familiar assumption that women are an oppressed group in the Third World. Focuses on South Asia to address debates that are central to women's studies and anthropology. Emphasis is given to questions of representation, subjectivity, and the crafting of multiple selves; and to self-representation by women as a political act of empowerment. Topics include concepts of tradition in South Asia, patriarchy, women as the objects of social reform, the imaging of female power (e.g., Kali), and the women's movement in India. Readings cover the colonial and postcolonial periods, middle- and working-class women, and ethnic and caste groups. (Same as Anthropology 234.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology, sociology, or Asian studies, or consent of the instructor.

Ms. CHATTERJEE.

An introduction to cultures and societies of South Asia, including India, Nepal, Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka. Issues of religion, family and gender, caste, and class are examined. The lives of people in this region are explored through ethnographies, novels, and films, as well as in-class simulations of marriage arrangements, religious ritual, and caste ranking. (Same as Anthropology 235.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in sociology, anthropology, or Asian studies, or consent of the instructor.

Ms. DICKEY.

In South Asia, political identity is often based on "primordial" ties such as caste, religion, ethnicity, language, and region. Political leadership involves various strategies for addressing and transcending these communal interests. This course examines the development of different political identities and the importance of issues such as personality politics and patronage in electoral leadership in several South Asian countries. (Same as Anthropology 236.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology, sociology, or Asian studies.

[§237. Relations of Power in India and China.]

(Same as Anthropology 237.)

§240. Religion in Ancient India. Fall 1991. MR. HOLT.

Analytic study of religious thought and practice in the formative period of Hinduism as these are reflected in the Vedas, the Upanishads, the Yoga Sutras, the Bhagavad Gita, and the theological and philosophical expositions of Sankara and Ramanuja. (Same as Religion 220.)

MR. HOLT.

Critical study of the popular character of traditional devotional

Hinduism as it emerges in the mythologies of the Puranas, in iconography and in the poetry and songs of the sant traditions of medieval India. Concomitant consideration of Islam and the emergence of the Sikh tradition, culminating in a study of the nineteenth- and twentieth-century "Hindu renaissance." (Same as Religion 221.)

[§242. Buddhist Thought.]

§243. Buddhism, Culture, and Society. Spring 1992. MR. HOLT.

A study of the ways in which Buddhist religious sentiments are expressed aesthetically and politically within the social and cultural histories of India, Sri Lanka, and Burma. Emphasis upon the transformation of Buddhism from a world-renouncing ethic to a foundational ideology of society and culture. (Same as Religion 223.)

An examination of the historical, cultural, economic, and social forces that affect the political processes in India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka. (Same as Government 227.)

§270. Chinese Thought in the Classical Period. Spring 1993.

MR. SMITH.

An introduction to the competing schools of Chinese thought in the time of Confucius and his successors. (Same as History 270.)

Fall 1992. MR. SMITH.

Addresses material culture in China from ca. 400 to 100 B.C., while the great unification of empire was occurring. Topics include what people ate; how they wrote, fought, and built; how we know such things about them; and how this civilization can be compared with others. (Same as History 271.)

An introduction to premodern China, focusing on the first half of the Ch'ing dynasty (1644–1911). Discussion of societal relations and their justifications: state organization, human interaction, ideology. Culminates in a day-long simulation of elite society in the eighteenth century. (Same as History 274.)

[275. Modern Chinese History.]

(Same as History 275.)

§276. Chinese Politics. Fall 1991. MR. MANNING.

A basic introduction to contemporary politics in the People's Republic of China. A brief overview of Chinese history is followed by a survey of contemporary analyses of the Chinese political process.

Emphasis is given to Chinese political culture, the major political institutions, current policy issues, and change in the post-Mao era. (Same as Government 281.)

An examination of the domestic and international sources, as well as the evolution, of Chinese foreign policy. (Same as Government 284.)

MR. SMITH.

Addresses problems in the creation and early development of the Tokugawa (1600–1868) state and society, including the transformation of samurai from professional warriors into professional bureaucrats, the Confucian challenges to Buddhism, and the unanticipated growth of a quasi-autonomous urban culture. (Same as History 278.)

[§283. Classical Japanese Literature in Translation.]

[§284. The Modern Japanese Novel in Translation.]

A historical introduction to the religious culture of premodern Japan, from the archaic age of myth and magic to the collapse of civil order in the fifteenth century. Classic literary, religious, and historiographic texts are used to focus attention on perennial themes in the history of Japanese religion. (Same as Religion 224.)

An introduction to the major trajectories of Japanese religion and culture from the sixteenth to the twentieth century, with particular attention to problems of continuity, change, and interpretation during the modern era. (Same as Religion 225.)

§370. Problems in Chinese History. Every fall. MR. SMITH.

Reviews the whole of Chinese history. Students develop their research skills and write a substantial research paper. (Same as History 370.)

290. Intermediate Independent Study.

400, 401. Advanced Independent Study and Honors.

Language Courses

Chinese 101. Beginning Chinese I. Every fall. MS. WEN.

An introduction to Putonghua (Mandarin) and the written language. Five hours of class per week, plus assigned language laboratory.

- Chinese 102. Beginning Chinese II. Every spring. Ms. WEN.
A continuation of Chinese 101.
- Chinese 203. Intermediate Chinese I. Every fall. Ms. WEN.
A continuation of Chinese 102. Five hours of class per week, plus assigned language laboratory.
- Chinese 204. Intermediate Chinese II. Every spring. Ms. WEN.
A continuation of Chinese 203.
- Chinese 307. Introduction to Classical Chinese I. Every fall. Ms. WEN.
Offers exposure to a wide variety of premodern writings in the original. Students learn the fundamentals of the classical language, developing a surer foundation for modern Chinese, and through this process are introduced to important philosophical schools and literary texts.
- Chinese 308. Introduction to Classical Chinese II. Every spring.
Ms. WEN.
A continuation of Chinese 307.
- Japanese 101. Beginning Japanese I. Every fall. MR. HAYASHI.
An introduction to standard modern Japanese. Five hours per week, plus assigned language laboratory.
- Japanese 102. Beginning Japanese II. Every spring. MR. HAYASHI.
A continuation of Japanese 101.
- Japanese 203. Intermediate Japanese I. Every fall. MR. HAYASHI.
A continuation of Japanese 102. Five hours per week, plus assigned language laboratory.
- Japanese 204. Intermediate Japanese II. Every spring. MR. HAYASHI.
A continuation of Japanese 203.
- Japanese 205. Intermediate Japanese III. Fall 1991. Ms. ISHIDA.
- Japanese 206. Intermediate Japanese IV. Spring 1992. Ms. ISHIDA.
- Sanskrit 101. Introductory Sanskrit I. Every fall. Ms. SOIFER.
An introduction to the structure and content of Sanskrit, the most important religious and literary language of South and Southeast Asia. Sanskrit's 3,000-year history makes it one of the most ancient and vital in the Indo-European family of languages. Includes basic grammar, vocabulary, and Devanagari script, with primary emphasis placed on developing translation skills.

A continuation of Sanskrit 101.

Biochemistry

Administered by the Committee on Biochemistry

PROFESSOR STEINHART, Chair of Committee;

PROFESSORS HOWLAND AND PAGE; ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR SETTLEMIRE

Requirements for the Major in Biochemistry: All majors must complete the following courses: Biology 101, Biology (Chemistry) 261, 262; Chemistry 101 and 102, or 109, and 225, 226, 251; Mathematics 161, 171; and Physics 103. Students should normally complete the required biochemistry core courses by the end of their junior year. Majors must complete three courses from the following: Biology 113, 114, 116, 201, 202, 302, 304, 306, 308, 400; Chemistry 210, 240, 252, 270, 330, 400; Physics 223, 227, 228, 260, 400. In addition, majors must complete one of the following: Biology 212, 213, or 215. Students may include as electives up to two 400 courses. Finally, a student intending to carry out a laboratory independent study course in biochemistry should first take Biology 212, 213, or 215. Students taking independent study courses for the biochemistry major should register for Biochemistry 401, 402, etc.

Biology

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR SETTLEMIRE, Chair;

PROFESSORS HOWLAND AND STEINHART;

ASSOCIATE PROFESSORS DICKINSON (on leave for the academic year),

PHILLIPS, AND WHEELWRIGHT; ASSISTANT PROFESSOR JOHNSON;

VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR BRATTON;

LABORATORY INSTRUCTORS BRYER, GARFIELD,

HAUPTMAN, AND WINE (spring semester)

Requirements for the Major in Biology: The major consists of seven semester courses in the department exclusive of courses in the 400 series. Majors are required to complete five core courses, including Biology 101 and 102 and three of the following: Biology 113, 114, 115, and 116. Majors are also required to complete two other courses within the department, one of which must be either a 200-level course with a laboratory or a 300-level course. In addition, majors must complete Mathematics 161, Physics 103, and Chemistry 225. Students are advised to complete Biology 101 and 102 and the mathematics, physics, and chemistry courses by the end of the sophomore year. Students planning postgraduate education in science or in the health professions should note that graduate and professional schools are likely to have additional admissions requirements in mathematics, physics, and chemistry.

Interdisciplinary Major: The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in biochemistry and neuroscience. See pages 58 and 151–52.

Requirements for the Minor in Biology: The minor consists of four courses within the department at the 100 level or above, appropriate to the major.

[51. The History of Science.]

52. Horticulture. Spring 1993. MR. STEINHART.

An introduction to ornamental horticulture and the cultivated plants of agriculture. Topics include basic plant physiology, anatomy, and taxonomy relevant to horticulture; the effects of environmental factors on plant growth; cultivation and propagation of plants; the history of plant science and the origins of plants of horticultural interest; plant pests and diseases; and landscape and greenhouse design. Topics in economic botany and ethnobotany, such as plant sources of structural materials, fibers, dyes, drugs, and spices, are also discussed. Three hours of lecture/demonstration each week, plus occasional laboratory meetings or field trips.

54. Concepts in Ecology and Evolutionary Biology. Every other spring. Spring 1993. MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

An overview of evolution, the unifying concept in biology, and an application of evolutionary and ecological principles to environmental problems. Lectures deal with the patterns and mechanisms of evolution, emphasizing the mechanisms of natural and sexual selection. Ecological concepts relating to conservation biology are discussed, with a focus on tropical ecosystems. Field trips introduce students to general taxonomy and the natural history of Maine.

Designed for nonmajors; not open to students who have taken Biology 101 or 102. Enrollment limited to 75 students.

101. Introductory Cell Biology. Every fall. THE DEPARTMENT.

Examination of fundamental biological phenomena, with special reference to cells. Topics include ultrastructure, growth and metabolism, cell division and molecular genetics, early development, immunology, membrane transport, and the interaction between viruses and host cells. Lectures and three hours of laboratory work per week. Understanding of high school chemistry is assumed.

102. Biology of Organisms and Populations. Every spring.

THE DEPARTMENT.

A study of the properties of organisms and populations, with evolution as a central, unifying theme. Topics include the origin of life; the mechanisms of evolution; a survey of the kingdoms of living organisms; the physiology, morphology, and development of animals and plants; and the effects of the environment on populations. Lectures and three hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Biology 101.

113. Genetics and Molecular Biology. Every fall. MR. STEINHART.

Integrated coverage of organismic and molecular levels of the genetics of eucaryotes and procaryotes. Topics include the structure and function of chromosomes, the mechanisms and control of gene expression, recombination, mutagenesis, the determination of gene order and sequence, and genetic engineering technology and applications. Students contemplating postgraduate studies in biological science are strongly encouraged to enroll in Biology 215.

Prerequisite: Biology 102.

114. Comparative Physiology. Every spring.

The relationship between structure and function in organ systems and in invertebrates and vertebrates as a whole. The interdependency of organ systems is considered. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work or conferences per week.

Prerequisite: Biology 102.

115. Ecology. Every fall. MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

Principles concerning the interactions between organisms and their environment. Topics include population growth and structure, processes of speciation, succession, energy flow, biogeochemical cycling, and the influence of competition, predation, and other factors on the abundance and distribution of plants and animals. Laboratory sessions, field trips, and group research projects emphasize the natural history of local plants and animals (both marine and terrestrial) and their interactions. One weekend field trip included, as well as an optional trip to the Bowdoin Scientific Station on Kent Island.

Prerequisite: Biology 102.

116. Developmental Biology. Every spring. MR. PHILLIPS.

An examination of current concepts of embryonic development, with emphasis on their experimental basis. Topics include morphogenesis and functional differentiation, tissue interaction, nucleocytoplasmic interaction, differential gene expression, and interaction of cells with hormones and extracellular matrix. Project-oriented laboratory work emphasizes experimental methods. Lectures and three hours of laboratory per week.

Prerequisite: Biology 102.

152. Plant Physiology. Spring 1992. MR. STEINHART.

Topics include the nature and control of growth and differentiation, water and nutrient translocation, metabolism, hormone physiology, and physiological ecology of plants. Laboratory work stresses the association of structure and function in tissues and organs of higher plants and includes an introduction to field botany. Lectures and three hours of laboratory per week.

Prerequisite: Biology 102.

156. Marine Ecology. Fall 1991. MR. GILFILLAN.

The relationships between organisms and their environment are considered in the context of animals and plants living in the sea. The concept of marine communities living in dynamic equilibrium with their physical-chemical environment is introduced, and the influences of human activities on the ecology of marine organisms is explored. (Same as Environmental Studies 200.)

Prerequisite: A college-level science course or consent of the instructor.

160. Marine Invertebrate Zoology. Spring 1994. Ms. JOHNSON.

Ecology, morphology, and phylogeny of invertebrates, with emphasis on morphological and phylogenetic relationships between groups. Representatives of all major and most minor phyla are collected, observed alive, and studied in some detail. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week. Several one-day field trips are required.

Prerequisite: Biology 102.

163. Biology of Marine Organisms. Fall 1991. Ms. JOHNSON.

The study of the biology and ecology of marine organisms. Laboratory sessions, field trips, and group research projects emphasize the natural history and functional morphology of marine animals and plants, and their interactions with each other as well as with their physical environment. Marine organisms to be considered include algae, plankton, intertidal and subtidal invertebrates, seabirds, and marine mammals. Lectures and three hours of laboratory work or field trip per week. One weekend field trip included.

Prerequisite: Biology 102.

201. Microbiology. Fall 1991. MR. SETTLEMIRE.

An examination of the structure and function of microorganisms, primarily bacteria, with a major emphasis on molecular descriptions. Subjects covered include structure, metabolism, mechanism of action of antibiotics, and basic virology. Students contemplating postgraduate studies in biological science are strongly encouraged to enroll in Biology 213 and 215.

Prerequisites: Biology 102 and Chemistry 225.

202. Immunology. Spring 1993. MR. SETTLEMIRE.

Covers the development of the immune response, the cellular physiology of the immune system, the nature of antigens, antibodies, B and T cells, and the complement system. The nature of natural immunity, transplantation immunology, and tumor immunology are also considered. Students contemplating postgraduate studies in biological science are strongly encouraged to enroll in Biology 212.

Prerequisite: Biology 102.

203. Comparative Neurobiology. Fall 1992. Ms. DICKINSON.

A comparative study of the function of the nervous system in invertebrate and vertebrate animals. Topics include the physiology of individual nerve cells and their organization into larger functional units, the behavioral responses of animals to cues from the environment, and the neural mechanisms underlying such behaviors. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Biology 102. Biology 114 is recommended.

205. Biomechanics. Spring 1992. Ms. JOHNSON.

Uses an experimental, theoretical, and field approach to examine the quantitative and qualitative characterization of organismal morphology, and to explore the relationship of morphology to measurable components of an organism's mechanical, hydrodynamic, and ecological environment. Lectures, laboratory work, and field trips emphasize (1) analysis of morphology, including the statistical analysis of the shape of whole groups of organisms, the quantitative and qualitative description of the shape of individual organisms, and the analysis of the mechanical and molecular organization of tissues; (2) quantitative and qualitative characterization of micro- and macro-scale water movement; and (3) quantitative and qualitative analyses of the ecological and mechanical consequences to organisms of their interaction with their environment.

Prerequisite: Biology 102. Introductory physics and calculus strongly recommended.

MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

A study of the biology of birds, including anatomy, physiology, distribution, and classification, with an emphasis on avian ecology and evolution. Through integrated laboratory sessions, field trips, and an independent research project, students learn identification of birds, functional morphology, and research techniques such as experimental design, behavioral observation, and field methods. There will be an optional field trip to the Bowdoin Scientific Station on Kent Island.

Prerequisites: Biology 102 and/or 115, or consent of the instructor.

212. Laboratory in Molecular Biology and Biochemistry. Every spring. MR. HOWLAND.

Experiments employing contemporary techniques in molecular biology and biochemistry. Emphasis on isolation and physical properties of nucleic acids, isolation and kinetics of enzymes, and composition and activities of biological membranes. Techniques studied and used include radioisotopes, spectrophotometry, electrophoresis, chromatography, scanning electron microscopy, and the use of microcomputers. This course is a logical precursor to independent study in the areas of molecular biology and biochemistry.

Prerequisites: Two from Biology 113, 201, 261, or 262.

213. Laboratory in Microbiology, Cell Biology, and Immunology.

Fall 1991. MR. SETTLEMIRE.

Lectures and laboratories to include culture and experimental investigation of the properties of procaryotic and eucaryotic cells. Techniques to be used include tissue culture; light, fluorescence, and electron microscopy; cytometric assays of cell properties; and several immunochemistry principles, including immunoelectrophoresis and enzyme-linked assays. One to two hours of lecture and three to six hours of laboratory per week. Students contemplating postgraduate studies in biological science are strongly encouraged to enroll in laboratory courses. This course is a logical precursor to independent study in cellular and molecular biology.

Prerequisites: Previous or concurrent enrollment in Biology 113, 116, 201, or 202.

215. Laboratory in Molecular and Cellular Genetics. Fall 1992.

MR. STEINHART.

Lectures and experiments focusing on the concepts and techniques of contemporary molecular and cellular genetics. Techniques to be used include cytogenetic analysis, production and selection of mutant cells, genetic transformation, analysis of gene transcription and translation, and genetic engineering. Methods include cell culture, microscopy, radioisotope labeling, and electrophoresis. One to two hours of lecture and three to six hours of laboratory per week. Students contemplating postgraduate studies in biological science are strongly encouraged to enroll in the laboratory courses. This course is a logical precursor to independent study in the areas of cellular and molecular biology.

Prerequisite: Previous or concurrent enrollment in Biology 113, 116, 201, or 202.

261. Biochemistry I. Every fall. MR. HOWLAND.

Proteins and enzymes. An introduction to the chemistry and biology of small biological molecules, macromolecules, and membranes. Emphasis on kinetics and mechanisms of enzymic reactions and upon equilibrium and non-equilibrium thermodynamics underlying biological processes. (Same as Chemistry 261.)

Prerequisite: Chemistry 226.

262. Biochemistry II. Every spring. MR. PAGE.

302. Virology. Spring 1992. MR. STEINHART.

A study of plant and animal viruses, beginning with lectures on fundamental virology and followed by student-led seminars based on the primary literature. Covers taxonomy, structure, replication, pathogenesis, and epidemiological aspects of viruses.

Prerequisite: Biology 113 or 201.

303. Advanced Developmental Biology. Fall 1991. MR. PHILLIPS.

The study of the principles and processes of embryonic and post-embryonic animal development, stressing mechanisms of cell and tissue interaction and morphogenesis. Students read original journal articles and participate in discussions. Laboratory projects include the use of the scanning electron microscope to study a specific developmental question.

Prerequisites: Biology 116 and consent of the instructor.

304. Topics in Biochemistry and Molecular Biology. Spring 1992.

MR. HOWLAND.

A seminar that deals, at different times, with such topics as biological energetics, membrane biochemistry, medical genetics, the molecular biology of development, and plant molecular biology.

305. Neuroethology. Fall 1993. MS. DICKINSON.

A study of the neuronal control of behavior, emphasizing the roles of specific neuronal properties and interactions in sensory processing, controlling motor output, and learning. Students read and discuss original journal articles and conduct laboratory projects on the control of relatively simple behaviors.

Prerequisite: Biology 114, 203, or Psychobiology 265, or permission of the instructor.

306. Advanced Molecular Genetics. Spring 1993. MR. STEINHART.

A seminar focusing on the application of the methods of contemporary molecular genetics and biotechnology to fundamental problems of plant and animal biology. Topics include cellular differentiation, hormonal regulation, responses to environmental stress and disease, cell transformation, agricultural and medical applications of genetic engineering, and new approaches in population and human genetics. Reading and discussion of articles from the primary literature.

Prerequisite: Biology 113.

308. Biochemical Endocrinology. Spring 1992. MR. SETTLEMIRE.

A study of how the endocrine system is involved in the regulation of metabolism and development, with an emphasis on the biochemical mechanisms. The processes involved in the production and release of the hormones are also examined. Students contemplating postgraduate studies in biological science are strongly encouraged to enroll in Biology 212.

Prerequisite: Biology 261.

400. Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Joint Appointment with Biology: ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR SETTLEMIRE

Courses at the 50 level are introductory, do not have prerequisites, and are appropriate for nonmajors. Courses at the 100 level are introductory without formal prerequisites and lead to advanced-level work in the department. Courses 200 through 259 are at the second level of work and generally require only the introductory courses as prerequisites. Courses 260 through 290 are normally taken in the junior year and have two or more courses as prerequisites. Courses 300 through 390 normally are taken in the junior or senior year and have two or more courses as prerequisites.

Requirements for the Major in Chemistry: The required courses are Chemistry 101, 102, 210, 225, 226, 240, 251, 252, 254, and any two courses at the 300 level or above. Students with strong high school backgrounds can begin with Chemistry 109 instead of the two-semester Chemistry 101, 102 sequence. In addition to these chemistry courses, chemistry majors also are required to take Physics 103 and Mathematics 161 and 171. Because the department offers programs based on the interests and goals of the student, a prospective major is encouraged to discuss his or her plans with the department as soon as possible. The chemistry major can serve as preparation for many career paths after college, including the profession of chemistry, graduate studies in other branches of science, medicine, secondary school teaching, and many fields in the business world. Advanced electives in chemistry, along with additional courses in mathematics and physics, also allow students to meet the formal requirements of the American Chemical Society–approved chemistry major. Students interested in this program also should consult with the department as soon as possible.

The department encourages its students to round out the chemistry major with relevant courses in other departments, depending on individual needs. These might include electives in other departments that provide extensive opportunities for writing and speaking, or courses concerned with technology and society, to name a few areas. Students interested in providing a particular interdisciplinary emphasis to their chemistry major should consider additional courses in biology and biochemistry, computer science, economics, education, geology, mathematics, or physics.

Independent Study: A student wishing to conduct a laboratory independent study project (Chemistry 400) must have taken at least one of the following courses: Chemistry 254, Biology 211, or Biology 212.

Interdisciplinary Major: The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in biochemistry, chemical physics, and geology and chemistry. See pages 58, 136, and 137.

Requirements for the Minor in Chemistry: The minor consists of five chemistry courses appropriate to the major, including Chemistry 101 and 102, or Chemistry 109.

50. Topics in Chemistry. Spring 1992. Chemistry and the Environment. MR. PAGE.

The study of chemistry as it relates to environmental issues, with emphasis on air and water pollution. Begins with a brief survey of chemistry, with many lecture-demonstrations to illustrate the topics discussed. No background in science is necessary. Not open to students who have had a college-level science course.

101. Introductory Chemistry. Every fall. MR. NAGLE AND MR. PRODNUK.

An introduction to chemistry, including chemical stoichiometry, the properties of gases, atomic and molecular structure, and the periodic properties of the elements. Lectures, conferences, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

102. Introductory Chemistry. Every spring. MR. CHRISTENSEN.

Topics include the properties of solids, liquids, and solutions, ionic and nonionic equilibria, acid-base equilibria, elementary thermodynamics, chemical kinetics, oxidation-reduction, and electrochemistry. Lectures, conferences, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 101 or consent of the instructor.

109. Advanced General Chemistry. Every fall. MS. STEMMLER.

Designed for students with strong backgrounds in secondary school chemistry. Equilibrium properties of gases, liquids, and solutions; the first and second laws of thermodynamics; oxidation-reduction reactions; and the rates of chemical reactions. A placement exam, the high school record, and consultation with the department will guide the student in selecting this course or the 101-102 sequence. Lectures, conferences, and three hours of laboratory work per week.

210. Quantitative Analysis. Fall 1991. Ms. STEMLER.

Methods of separating and quantifying inorganic and organic compounds using volumetric, spectrophotometric, electrometric, and gravimetric techniques are covered. Fundamentals of gas and liquid chromatography and the statistical analysis of data are addressed. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 102 or 109.

225. Elementary Organic Chemistry. Every fall. MR. TRUMPER.

An introduction to the chemistry of the compounds of carbon. Provides the foundation for further work in organic chemistry and biochemistry. Lectures, conference, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 102 or 109.

226. Organic Chemistry. Every spring. MR. TRUMPER.

A continuation of the study of the compounds of carbon. Chemistry 225 and 226 cover the material of the usual course in organic chemistry and form a foundation for further work in organic chemistry and biochemistry. Lectures, conference, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 225.

An introduction to the chemistry of the elements. Chemical bonding and its relationship to the properties and reactivities of coordination compounds, organometallic compounds, and covalent and ionic solids are emphasized. Topics in bioinorganic and environmental inorganic chemistry are included. Provides a foundation for further work in inorganic chemistry and biochemistry. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisites: Chemistry 102 or 109.

251. Physical Chemistry I. Every fall. MR. CHRISTENSEN.

Thermodynamics and its application to chemical changes and equilibria that occur in the gaseous, solid, and liquid states. Macroscopic behavior of chemical systems is related to molecular properties by means of the kinetic theory of gases and statistical mechanics. Also included is the study of chemical kinetics.

Prerequisites: Chemistry 102 or 109, Physics 103, Mathematics 171, or consent of the instructor. Mathematics 181 recommended.

252. Physical Chemistry II. Every spring. MR. CHRISTENSEN.

Development and principles of quantum mechanics with applications to atomic structure, chemical bonding, chemical reactivity, and molecular spectroscopy.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 251 or consent of the instructor. Mathematics 181 recommended.

254. Physical Chemistry Laboratory. Every spring. MR. PRODNUK.

Experiments in thermodynamics, kinetics, spectroscopy, and quantum chemistry. Modern experimental methods, including digital electronics, computer-based data acquisition, and the use of pulsed and continuous lasers, are used to verify and explore fundamental concepts of physical chemistry. The physical chemistry laboratory emphasizes a modular approach to experimental design. The development of scientific writing skills is also an important focus. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisites: Chemistry 251 and 252 (generally taken concurrently).

261. Biochemistry I. Every fall. MR. HOWLAND.

(See Biology 261, page 63.)

262. Biochemistry II. Every spring. MR. PAGE.

An introduction to metabolism. Topics include pathways in living cells by which important biological molecules are synthesized, and the bioorganic chemistry of nucleic acid and protein synthesis. (Same as Biology 262.)

Prerequisite: Chemistry 261.

270. Molecular Structure Determination in Organic Chemistry.

Fall 1991. MR. TRUMPER.

Theory and applications of spectroscopic techniques useful for the determination of organic structures. Mass spectrometry and infrared, ultraviolet-visible, and nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) spectroscopy are discussed. Heavy emphasis is placed on applications of multiple-pulse Fourier transform NMR spectroscopic techniques. Lectures and up to two hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 226.

310. Instrumental Analysis. Spring 1992. MS. STEMMLER.

Theoretical and practical aspects of instrumental techniques such as nuclear magnetic resonance, infrared, Raman, X-ray fluorescence, and mass spectrometry are covered, in conjunction with advanced chromatographic methods. Signal processing, correlation techniques, and computer interfacing are explored. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisites: Chemistry 210 and 254, or consent of the instructor.

[320. Advanced Organic Chemistry.]

330–339. Advanced Topics in Chemistry.

330. Bioorganic Chemistry. Fall 1991. MR. PAGE.

An introduction to structure and mechanism in bioorganic chemistry. Concepts and methods of physical organic chemistry are applied toward understanding the factors that govern the catalysis of reactions by enzymes.

Prerequisites: Chemistry 226 and 251, or consent of the instructor.

[331. Atmospheric Chemistry.][333. Chemical Ecology.]335. Topics in Physical Chemistry: Gas-Phase Chemistry and Dynamics. Fall 1991. MR. PRODNUK.

A survey of experimental and theoretical topics and gas-phase physical chemistry. Advanced kinetics, ion-molecule reactions, molecular beams, generation and characterization of Van der Waals complexes, scattering theory, and theoretical methods such as phase space theory, RRKM, and ab initio quantum chemistry are studied. Applications to interstellar and atmospheric chemistry are discussed.

Prerequisites: Chemistry 251 and 252.

340. Advanced Inorganic Chemistry. Spring 1992. MR. NAGLE.

An in-depth coverage of inorganic chemistry. Spectroscopic and mechanistic studies of coordination and organometallic compounds, including applications to bioinorganic chemistry, are emphasized. Bonding in solid-state inorganic compounds is also included.

Prerequisites: Chemistry 240 and 252 (the latter may be taken concurrently).

[350. Photochemistry: Light, Chemistry, and Life.]290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

For students intending to conduct a laboratory research project, either Chemistry 254, Biology 211, or Biology 212 is required.

Classics

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR BOYD, Chair; PROFESSOR AMBROSE;

VISITING PROFESSOR ROSS (fall semester);

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR SMITH; INSTRUCTOR HALL

The Department of Classics offers two major programs: one with a focus on language and literature (classics), and one with a focus on classical archaeology (classics/archaeology). Students pursuing either major are encouraged to study not only the languages and literatures but also the physical monuments of Greece and Rome. This approach is reflected in the requirements for the two major programs: for each, requirements in Greek and/or Latin and in classical archaeology must be fulfilled.

Classics: The classics program is arranged to accommodate both those students who have studied no classical languages and those who have had extensive training in Latin and Greek. The objective of classics courses is to study the ancient languages and literatures in the original. By their very nature, these courses involve students in the politics, history, and philosophies of antiquity. Advanced language courses focus on the analysis of textual material and on literary criticism.

Requirements for the Major in Classics: The major in classics consists of nine courses. At least six of the nine courses are to be chosen from offerings in Greek and Latin and should include at least two courses in Greek or Latin at the 300 level; one of the remaining courses should be Archaeology 101 or 102. Students concentrating in one of the languages are encouraged to take at least two courses in the other. Classics 51 and 52 may not normally be counted toward the major.

Classics/Archaeology: Within the broader context of classical studies, the classics/archaeology program pays special attention to the physical remains of classical antiquity. Students studying classical archaeology should develop an understanding of how archaeological evidence can contribute to our knowledge of the past, and of how archaeological study interacts with such related disciplines as philology, history, and art history. In particular, they should acquire an appreciation for the unique balance of written and physical sources that makes classical archaeology a central part of classical studies.

Requirements for the Major in Classics/Archaeology: The major in classics/archaeology consists of ten courses. At least five of the ten courses are to be chosen from offerings in archaeology, and should include Archaeology 101, 102, and at least one archaeology course at the 300 level. At least four of the remaining courses are to be chosen from offerings in Greek and Latin, and should include at least one at the 300 level. Classics 51 and 52 may not normally be counted toward the major.

Interdisciplinary Major: The department participates in an interdisciplinary program in archaeology and art history. See page 136.

Requirements for the Minor: Students may choose a minor in one of five areas:

1. Greek: Five courses in the department, including at least four in the Greek language;
2. Latin: Five courses in the department, including at least four in the Latin language;
3. Classics: Five courses in the department, including at least four in the classical languages; of these four, one should be either Greek 204 or Latin 205;

4. Archaeology: Six courses in the department, including either Archaeology 101 or 102, one archaeology course at the 300 level, and two other archaeology courses;
5. Classical Civilization (Greek or Roman): Six courses, including
 - a. —for the Greek civilization concentration:
two courses in the Greek language;
Archaeology 101;
one of the following: Classics 11 (or any other appropriate first-year seminar), 51, or 52; or Philosophy 111; or Government 240; or History 201;
and two of the following: Archaeology 201, 203, or any 300-level archaeology course focusing primarily on Greek material; Philosophy 331 or 335; Classics 290 (Independent Study) or any 200- or 300-level Greek or classics course focusing primarily on Greek material.
 - b. —for the Roman civilization concentration:
two courses in the Latin language;
Archaeology 102;
one of the following: Classics 11 (or any other appropriate first-year seminar) or 51; or Philosophy 111; or Government 240; or History 202;
and two of the following: Archaeology 202 or any 300-level archaeology course focusing primarily on Roman material; or Classics 290 (Independent Study) or any 200- or 300-level Latin or classics course focusing primarily on Roman material.

Other courses in the Bowdoin curriculum may be applied to this minor if approved by the classics department.

Classics and Archaeology at Bowdoin and elsewhere: Archaeology classes regularly use the outstanding collection of ancient art in the Bowdoin College Museum of Art. Of special note are the exceptionally fine holdings in Greek painted pottery and the very full and continuous survey of Greek and Roman coins. In addition, there are numerous opportunities for study or work abroad. Bowdoin is a participating member of the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome, where students in both major programs can study in the junior year (see page 36). It is also possible to receive course credit for field experience on excavations. Interested students should consult members of the department for further information.

Students contemplating graduate study in classics or classical archaeology are advised to begin the study of at least one modern language in college, as most graduate programs require competence in French and German as well as in Latin and Greek.

First-Year Seminar in ClassicsClassics 11. The Hero and Antihero in Greek Literature.

Spring 1992. MR. AMBROSE.

(See page 102 for a full description.)

Archaeology

Archaeology 101 and 102 are offered in alternate years.

101. Introduction to Classical Archaeology: Greece. Fall 1991.

MR. SMITH.

A chronological survey of the archaeology of Greece, from the Neolithic to Alexander the Great. Considers the nature of archaeological evidence, and the relationship of classical archaeology to other disciplines such as art history, history, and the classics. Material studied includes architecture, sculpture, vase painting, and the "minor arts." (Same as Art 209.)

102. Introduction to Classical Archaeology: Rome. Fall 1992.

MR. SMITH.

The archaeology of the Hellenistic kingdoms and Rome, from Alexander the Great to Constantine. First, attempts to define characteristic features of Hellenistic culture, then traces the emergence of a distinctively Roman civilization from both this background and native Italic traditions. Considers the nature of archaeological evidence, and the relationship of classical archaeology to other disciplines such as art history, history, and the classics. Material studied includes mural painting, architecture, sculpture, and the "minor arts." (Same as Art 210.)

At least one of the following 200-level courses will be offered each year:

[201. Athens, the "School of Hellas."](Same as Classics 201.)202. Rome of the Caesars. Spring 1992. MR. SMITH.

The first Roman emperor, Augustus, boasted that he found Rome a city of mud brick and left it a city of marble; subsequent emperors were equally eager to leave their mark on the imperial capital. How did they transform the city's physical appearance? What were the political and cultural goals of imperial Roman building programs? The answers to these questions are sought in the archaeological material from Rome, as well as in historical sources such as Suetonius's biographies of the emperors and comparative material from elsewhere in the empire.

(Same as Classics 202.)

203. Greek Religion. Spring 1993. MR. SMITH.

The ancient Greek language had no word for "religion," and for the ancient Greek, piety was more a matter of correct ritual action than of belief. Archaeology provides vital documentation of the historical ritual activity of the Greeks (often in contrast to their own mythical accounts). This course surveys the diverse primary sources (archaeological, literary, epigraphic) and considers various recent approaches to interpretation.

[204. Pompeii: Everyday Life in A.D. 79.]

(Same as Classics 204.)

At least one of the following 300-level courses will be offered each year:

[301. Greek Painting and Mosaic.]302. Greek and Roman Numismatics. Spring 1993. MR. SMITH.

Surveys Greek and Roman coinage by examining a series of problems ranging chronologically from the origins of coinage in the seventh century B.C. to the late Roman empire. How do uses of coinage in Greek and Roman society differ from those of the modern era? How does numismatic evidence inform us about ancient political and social, as well as economic, history? One class each week is held in the Bowdoin College Museum of Art, and course assignments are based on coins in the collection.

[303. Criticism and Aesthetic Theory in Antiquity.]307. The Birth of Greek Art. Spring 1992. MR. SMITH.

Examines the art of archaic Greece (seventh and sixth centuries B.C.) and considers the qualities characteristic of archaic Greek culture. Primary emphasis on the archaeological evidence from a variety of media: architecture, sculpture, and vase painting. Literary and historical sources provide a broader cultural context. (Same as Art 211.)

Classics

51. Classical Mythology. Fall 1992. Ms. BOYD.

Focuses on the mythology of the Greeks and the use of myth in classical literature. Other topics considered are recurrent patterns and motifs in Greek myths; a cross-cultural study of ancient creation myths; the relation of mythology to religion; women's roles in myth; and the application of modern anthropological, sociological, and psychological theories to classical myth. Concludes with an examination of Ovid's use of classical mythology in the Metamorphoses.

[52. Greek Literature in Translation.]

- [201. Athens, the "School of Hellas."]
(Same as Archaeology 201.)
202. Rome of the Caesars. Spring 1992. MR. SMITH.
(Same as Archaeology 202.)
203. Greek Religion. Spring 1993. MR. SMITH.
(Same as Archaeology 203.)
- [204. Pompeii: Everyday Life in A.D. 79.]
(Same as Archaeology 204.)
211. Tyranny and the Individual in Ancient Rome. Fall 1991.
MR. ROSS.

Primary focus is on the emergence of tyranny in ancient Rome, where, after five centuries, republican government finally yielded to absolute despotism. Considers the republican system and its institutions, and the pressures on them; the apparent ease with which the change to the principate of Augustus was made at the time; and the reality of the tyranny of Tiberius and Nero. Roman history thus provides a context for the study of tyrannies in the modern era.

No previous acquaintance with Roman history is expected or necessary. Readings from Tacitus's Annals and other sources, such as Petronius's Satyricon, in translation. Robert Graves's novel I, Claudius and George Orwell's Animal Farm provide further background.

221. Women in the Life and Literature of Classical Antiquity.
Spring 1992. MS. BOYD.

Examines the experiences of Greek and Roman women as represented in both literary and documentary sources. Topics include the portrayal of women in ancient myth and literature, women's role in state and private religious activities, women in the elite, the legal and social status of women, family and household organization, relations between men and women, and scientific knowledge and folklore about women. These and other topics are followed chronologically through the two cultures, with special emphasis given to the coincidences and conflicts between literary images of women and the realities recoverable through documentary evidence.

Prerequisite: Any classics or women's studies course, or permission of the instructor.

Greek

101. Elementary Greek. Every fall. MR. AMBROSE.

A thorough presentation of the elements of accidence and syntax based, insofar as possible, on unaltered passages of classical Greek.

102. Elementary Greek. Every spring. MR. AMBROSE.

A continuation of Greek 101. During this term, a work of historical or philosophical prose is read.

203. Plato. Every fall. THE DEPARTMENT.

204. Homer. Every spring. MR. HALL.

One of the following advanced Greek courses will be offered each semester:

[301. Homer: The Odyssey.]

[302. Lyric and Elegiac Poetry.]

303. The Historians. Fall 1991. MR. AMBROSE.

Focuses on the histories of Herodotus or Thucydides. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

304. Comedy. Spring 1992. MR. AMBROSE.

305. Tragedy. Spring 1993. MR. AMBROSE.

Focuses on the works of Aeschylus, Sophocles, or Euripides. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

306. Plato and Aristotle. Fall 1992. MR. AMBROSE.

[307. The Orators.]

[308. The Alexandrian Age.]

Latin

101. Elementary Latin. Every fall. MR. SMITH.

A thorough presentation of the elements of Latin grammar. Emphasis is placed on achieving a reading proficiency.

102. Elementary Latin. Every spring. MR. SMITH.

A continuation of Latin 101. During this term, readings are based on unaltered passages of classical Latin.

203. Cicero. Every fall. THE DEPARTMENT.

A rapid review of grammar followed by readings from Cicero and a brief introduction to Latin poetry.

Prerequisite: Latin 101 or two years of secondary school Latin.

204. Studies in Latin Literature. Every spring. Ms. BOYD.

An introduction to different genres and themes in Latin literature. The subject matter and authors covered may change from year to year (e.g., selections from Virgil's Aeneid and Livy's History, or from Lucretius, Ovid, and Cicero), but attention is always given to the historical and literary context of the authors read. While the primary focus is on reading Latin texts, some readings from Latin literature in translation are also assigned.

Prerequisite: Latin 203 or three to four years of high school Latin.

205. Horace and Catullus. Every fall. THE DEPARTMENT.

Prerequisite: Latin 204 or equivalent.

One of the following advanced Latin courses will be offered each semester:

301. The Historians. Spring 1993. Ms. BOYD.

Focuses on the works of Livy or Tacitus. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

[302. Ovid: *The Metamorphoses.]

303. Elegiac Poetry. Fall 1992. Ms. BOYD.

[304. Cicero and Roman Oratory.]

[305. Virgil: *The Aeneid.]

306. The Roman Novel. Spring 1992. MR. HALL.

[307. Satire.]

[308. Roman Comedy.]

Computer Science

PROFESSOR TUCKER, Chair; ASSISTANT PROFESSORS GARNICK
(on leave spring semester) AND RAMSHAW

Computer science, in general, is the study of algorithmic problem solving, computers, their potential, and their limits. In particular, it is the study of algorithms and data structures, including their formal properties, their implementations on real and abstract machines, their programming languages, and their applications in other disciplines and society at large. Computer science is a scientific discipline, in the sense that many of its courses are accompanied by experimental laboratory activities. Students use the laboratories not only to develop programs but also to test hypotheses about the properties of algorithms, data structures, and computers. Computer science is also a mathematical discipline, sharing significant subject matter, methods, and notations with mathematics.

The computer science curriculum is designed to introduce students to the discipline at various levels, and to expose its interdisciplinary ties in the sciences and humanities. Students normally begin by taking an introductory computer science course (50 or 101) or first-year seminar (10). Computer Science 10 and Computer Science 50 are terminal courses. Computer Science 101 is required for the major or minor in computer science, yet it is open to students majoring in any discipline.

Students can explore the discipline in greater depth by majoring or minoring in computer science or choosing an interdisciplinary major in computer science and mathematics. These options provide a foundation for graduate study in computer science or a related field, or for a wide range of computer-related professional careers.

Requirements for the Major in Computer Science: The major consists of nine computer science courses and two mathematics courses (Mathematics 171 and 228), for a total of eleven courses. The computer science courses in the major are the two introductory courses (Computer Science 101 and 102), four intermediate “core” courses (Computer Science 220, 231, 250, and 289), and three elective courses (i.e., any computer science courses numbered 300 or above). Depending on individual needs, Computer Science 290 or 400 (Independent Study) may be used to fulfill one or two of these elective requirements.

Requirements for the Minor in Computer Science: The minor consists of five courses, Computer Science 101, 102, 220, 231, and Mathematics 228.

Interdisciplinary Major: The department participates in an interdisciplinary major program in computer science and mathematics. See page 137.

Students who are interested in a student-designed major that combines computer science with another, related discipline are encouraged to discuss their ideas in detail with the department.

Independent Study, Honors, and Student/Faculty Projects: Advanced students are encouraged to consider taking an independent study course (Computer Science 290 or 400), which sometimes can be done in collaboration with an ongoing faculty research project. Independent study projects in disciplines that strongly overlap with computer science are also encouraged.

10. Computers, Society, and Thought. Fall 1991. MR. RAMSHAW.
(See page 102 for a full description.)

[50. Computer Literacy.]

101. Introduction to Computer Science I. Every semester.

THE DEPARTMENT.

Emphasis on logic, problem specification and algorithm design, disciplined style and documentation, recursion, procedural abstraction, computer organization, and contemporary social issues in computing. A procedural programming language (Pascal) and an experimental laboratory environment are used to reinforce principles introduced in the lectures. A survey of the major subject areas of computer science provides a foundation for further study.

102. Introduction to Computer Science II. Spring 1992.

MR. TUCKER.

An introduction to principles of data abstraction, complexity of algorithms, and verification of algorithms, which are central subjects in the field of computer science. Particular data types include lists, stacks, queues, strings, binary trees, and files. Linked lists, arrays, and other implementation strategies are evaluated. Laboratory experiments complement the lectures, and team projects are assigned.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 101.

220. Computer Organization. Fall 1991. MR. GARNICK.

Computer systems are organized as multiple layers. Each layer provides a more sophisticated abstraction than the layer upon which it is built. This course examines system design at the digital logic, microprogramming, and assembly language layers of computer organization. Laboratory work familiarizes students with a particular machine through assembly-language programming.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 101.

231. Algorithms. Every spring. MR. TUCKER.

The study of algorithms concerns programming for computational expediency. The course covers practical algorithms as well as theoretical issues in the design and analysis of algorithms. Topics include trees, graphs, sorting, dynamic programming, NP-completeness, and parallel algorithms. (Same as Mathematics 231.)

Prerequisites: Computer Science 102 and Mathematics 228, or consent of the instructor.

250. Principles of Programming Languages. Fall 1991.

MR. RAMSHAW.

A comparative study of programming languages and paradigms, with special attention to object-oriented languages (Eiffel), functional programming languages (Lisp), and parallelism. Principles of programming-language design, including syntax, semantics, and compiling.

Prerequisites: Computer Science 102 and 220, or consent of the instructor.

289. Theory of Computation. Every fall. MR. FISK.

The theoretical principles that underlie formal languages, automata, computability, and complexity. Topics include regular and context-free languages, finite and pushdown automata, Turing machines, Church's thesis, Gödel numbering, and unsolvability. (Same as Mathematics 289.)

Prerequisite: Mathematics 228 or consent of the instructor.

290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

[300. Topics.]

310. Operating Systems. Fall 1991. MR. GARNICK.

A study of the major issues in the design of modern operating systems. Dominant themes are scheduling techniques for processes and resources, historical perspectives via case studies, and trade-offs among design choices.

Prerequisites: Computer Science 102 and 220, or consent of the instructor.

[335. Parallel Computing.]

360. Compiler Construction. Fall 1991. MR. TUCKER.

Introduces principles of programming language translation. Topics include lexical analysis, formal grammars, parsing, code generation, and optimization.

Prerequisites: Computer Science 220 and 250, or consent of the instructor.

[365. Formal Methods and Software Systems Seminar.]

370. Artificial Intelligence. Spring 1992. MR. RAMSHAW.

Explores the principles and techniques involved in programming computers to do tasks that would require intelligence if people did them. State-space and heuristic search techniques, logic and other knowledge representations, and statistical and neural network approaches are applied to problems such as game playing, planning, the understanding of natural language, and computer vision.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 102.

[375. Natural Language Processing.]

400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Economics

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR GOLDSTEIN, Chair;
 PROFESSORS FREEMAN AND VAIL;
 ASSOCIATE PROFESSORS FITZGERALD AND JONES;
 ASSISTANT PROFESSORS CONNELLY, DECOSTER,
 DEGRAFF, JOHNSTON, AND ORTMANN

The major in economics is designed for students who wish to obtain a systematic introduction to the basic theoretical and empirical techniques of economics. It provides an opportunity to study economics as a social science with a core of theory, to study the process of drawing inferences from bodies of data and testing hypotheses against observation, and to study the application of economic theory to particular social problems. Such problems include Third World economic development, the functioning of economic institutions (e.g., corporations, government agencies, labor unions), and current policy issues (e.g., the federal budget, poverty, the environment, deregulation). The major is a useful preparation for graduate study in economics, law, business, or public administration.

The major consists of Economics 101 and 102, three core courses (Economics 255, 256, and 257), two advanced topics courses numbered in the 300s, and two additional courses in economics numbered 200 or above. Economics 101 is a prerequisite for Economics 102, and both are prerequisites for most other economics courses. Prospective majors are encouraged to take at least one core course by the end of the sophomore year, and all three core courses should normally be completed by the end of the junior year. Advanced topics courses normally have some combination of Economics 255, 256, and 257 as prerequisites. Qualified students may undertake self-designed, interdisciplinary major programs or joint majors between economics and related fields of social analysis.

Students are strongly encouraged to complete Mathematics 161, or its equivalent, prior to the core courses.

Interdisciplinary Major: The department participates in an interdisciplinary major in mathematics and economics. See page 137.

Requirements for the Minor in Economics: The minor consists of Economics 101 and 102; 255 or 256; and any two additional courses numbered 200 or above.

101. Principles of Microeconomics. Every semester.

THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to economic analysis and institutions, with special emphasis on the allocation of resources through markets. The theory of demand, supply, cost, and market structure is developed and then applied to problems in antitrust policy, environmental quality, energy, education, health, the role of the corporation in society, income distribution, and poverty. Students desiring a comprehensive introduction to economic reasoning should take both Economics 101 and 102.

102. Principles of Macroeconomics. Every semester.

THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to economic analysis and institutions, with special emphasis on determinants of the level of national income, prices, and employment. Current problems of inflation and unemployment are explored with the aid of such analysis, and alternative views of the effectiveness of fiscal, monetary, and other governmental policies are analyzed. Attention is given to the sources and consequences of economic growth and to the nature and significance of international linkages through goods and capital markets.

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

207. International Economics. Fall 1991. MR. JONES.

An analysis of the factors influencing the direction and composition of trade flows among nations, balance of payments equilibrium and adjustment mechanisms, and the international monetary system. Basic elements of international economic theory are applied to current issues such as tariff policy, capital flows and international investment, reform of the international monetary system, and the international competitiveness of the American economy.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102.

208. American Economic History and Development. Spring 1992.

MR. JOHNSTON.

A survey of trends in the U.S. economy from colonial times to the present. Emphasis is placed on factors explaining economic growth and on the distinction between growth and welfare. Business cycles, labor and capital markets, transportation, and the importance of the international economy for U.S. development are discussed.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102, or consent of the instructor.

209. Financial Markets. Fall 1991. MR. DECOSTER.

Introduction to the domestic financial system. Topics include the functions, structure, and operation of debt and equity markets; interest rate determination; portfolio theory and the capital asset pricing model; the efficient markets hypothesis; the structure and functions of the financial services industry; bank management; and the nature and effects of financial regulation.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102.

210. Economics of the Public Sector. Spring 1992. MR. FITZGERALD.

The economic role of government. Deals with theoretical and policy issues of government expenditures and revenues in meeting such social goals as allocative efficiency and income redistribution. Issues on the current political agenda are given special attention.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102.

[212. Labor and Human Resource Economics.]

213. History of Economic Thought. Spring 1992. MR. ORTMANN.

A presentation of the history of economic doctrines in terms of modern industrial organization theory. Framing the insights of classic economists in this way, the course shows that they had surprisingly modern concerns. Emphasis on Smith, Mill, Marx, a few marginalists and Austrians, the German Historical school, the American institutionalists, and Keynes.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102, or consent of the instructor.

[214. Comparative Political Economy.]

216. Industrial Organization. Fall 1991. MR. ORTMANN.

A study of the organization of firms, their strategic interactions, and the role of information. Introduces basic game-theoretic concepts, with which most problems of industrial organization can be solved.

Prerequisite: Economics 101 or consent of the instructor.

217. The Economics of Population. Spring 1992. Ms. DEGRAFF.

A study of the interaction of economic variables and population processes, especially fertility, mortality, and migration. The first half of the course focuses on economic determinants of population; the second half, on the consequences of population growth for the economy.

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

218. Economics of Resources and Environmental Quality.

Fall 1991. MR. FREEMAN.

The economic dimensions of environmental quality and resource management problems faced by the United States and the world. The relationships among population, production, and pollution; the role of market failure in explaining the existence of pollution; evaluation of alternative strategies for pollution control and environmental management; the adequacy of natural resource stocks to meet the future demands of the United States and the world.

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

§219. Underdevelopment and Strategies for Development in Poor Countries. Spring 1992. MR. VAIL.

The major economic features of underdevelopment are investigated, with stress on economic dualism and the interrelated problems of poverty, inequality, urban bias, and unemployment. The assessment of development strategies emphasizes key policy choices, such as export promotion versus import substitution, agriculture versus industry, plan versus market, and capital versus labor-intensive technologies. Topics include the Third World debt crisis, environmental sustainability, and rapid industrialization in East Asia.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102, or consent of the instructor.

221. Marxian Political Economy. Spring 1992. MR. GOLDSTEIN.

An introduction to the philosophical and methodological foundations of Marxian theory and the Marxian analysis of capitalistic economic development. After a brief introduction to the Marxian method, the basic analytical concepts of Marx's economic theory are developed from a reading of volume 1 of Capital. Subsequently, the Marxian framework is applied to analyze the modern capitalist economy, with emphasis on the secular and cyclical instability of the economy and appropriate policy prescriptions.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102.

[§222. International Trade and Economic Development.]

223. The International Economy since 1850. Fall 1991.

MR. JOHNSTON.

A survey of trends in the international economy since the industrial revolution. Primary emphasis on the role of trade in industrialization and growth. Other topics include the spread of the industrial revolution from Britain; the role of domestic and international financial markets in growth; the nature and causes of international business cycles; the international nature of the Great Depression; and economic growth since World War II.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102, or consent of the instructor.

255. Microeconomics. Fall 1991 and spring 1992. MR. FREEMAN AND MR. JONES.

An intermediate-level study of contemporary microeconomic theory. Analysis of the theory of resource allocation and distribution, with major emphasis on systems of markets and prices as a social mechanism for making resource allocation decisions. Topics include the theory of individual choice and demand, the theory of the firm, market equilibrium under competition and monopoly, general equilibrium theory, and welfare economics.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102. Enrollment limited to 40 students. Elementary calculus will be used.

256. Macroeconomics. Fall 1991 and spring 1992. MR. DECOSTER AND MR. JOHNSTON.

An intermediate-level study of contemporary national income, employment, and inflation theory. Consumption, investment, government receipts, government expenditures, money, and interest rates are examined for their determinants, interrelationships, and role in determining the level of aggregate economic activity. Policy implications are drawn from the analysis.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102. Enrollment limited to 40 students. Elementary calculus will be used.

257. Economic Statistics. Fall 1991 and spring 1992. MS. CONNELLY AND MR. GOLDSTEIN.

An introduction to the data and statistical methods used in economics. A review of the systems that generate economic data and the accuracy of such data is followed by an examination of the statistical methods used in testing the hypotheses of economic theory, both micro- and macro-. Probability, random variables and their distributions, methods of estimating parameters, hypothesis testing, regression, and correlation are covered. The application of multiple regression to economic problems is stressed.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102. Enrollment limited to 40 students.

Courses numbered above 300 are advanced courses in economic analysis intended primarily for senior majors. Enrollment in these courses is limited to 18 students in each unless stated otherwise.

301. The Economics of the Family. Spring 1992. Ms. CONNELLY.

Microeconomic analysis of the family, its roles, and its related institutions. Topics include marriage, fertility, labor supply, human capital formation, savings, consumption, bequests, and the family as an economic organization.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 257, or consent of the instructor.

302. Business Cycles. Fall 1992. MR. GOLDSTEIN.

A survey of competing theories of the business cycle, empirical tests of cycle theories, and appropriate macro stabilization policies. Topics include descriptive and historical analysis of cyclical fluctuations in the United States, Keynesian-Kaleckian multiplier-accelerator models, NBER analysis of cycles, growth cycle models, theories of financial instability, Marxian crisis theory, new classical and new Keynesian theories, and international aspects of business cycles.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 256, or consent of the instructor.

303. Models of Economic Growth. Spring 1992. MR. JOHNSTON.

A survey of growth theory and its applications. Topics include qualitative and quantitative analyses of economic growth, both within and across nations and regions, and the application of economic models to specific time periods. Models to be studied include Malthusian models; the staples thesis; Harrod-Domar models; Rostow's "take-off" hypothesis and the role of leading sectors; neoclassical growth models; and endogenous growth models. Students develop their skills through a series of quantitative exercises, short essays, and a research paper on a topic of their choice.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 256, or consent of the instructor.

308. Advanced International Trade. Spring 1993. MR. JONES.

The study of international trade in goods and capital. Theoretical models are developed to explain the pattern of trade and the gains from trade in competitive and imperfectly competitive world markets. This theory is then applied to issues in commercial policy, such as free trade versus protection, regional integration, the GATT and trade liberalization, foreign direct investment, LDC debt, and the changing comparative advantage of the United States.

Prerequisite: Economics 255 or consent of the instructor.

309. Monetary Economics and Finance. Fall 1991. MR. DECOSTER.

Advanced study of monetary and financial economics. Topics include portfolio theory and asset pricing models; financial market volatility and the efficient markets hypothesis; options and futures; mergers and acquisitions; monetary and financial theories of the business cycle; and issues in the conduct of monetary policy.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 256 and Mathematics 161, or consent of the instructor.

310. Advanced Public Economics. Fall 1992. MR. FITZGERALD.

A survey of theoretical and empirical evaluations of government activities, considering both efficiency and equity aspects. Topics include public choice, income redistribution, benefit-cost analysis, analysis of selected government expenditure programs (including social security), incidence and behavioral effects of taxation, and tax reform. Current public policy issues are emphasized.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 257, or consent of the instructor. Not open to those who have taken Economics 210.

[312. Advanced Analysis of Labor Market Policies.]

316. Econometrics. Fall 1991. MR. GOLDSTEIN.

A study of the mathematical formulation of economic models and the statistical methods of testing them. A detailed examination of the general linear regression model, its assumptions, and its extensions. Applications to both micro- and macro-economics are considered. Though most of the course deals with single-equation models, an introduction to the estimation of systems of equations is included. An empirical research paper is required.

Prerequisites: Economics 257 or Mathematics 265, and Mathematics 161, or consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 25 students.

318. Environmental and Resource Economics. Spring 1993.

MR. FREEMAN.

Analysis of externalities and market failure; models of optimum control of pollution and efficient management of renewable and nonrenewable natural resources such as fisheries, forests, and minerals; benefit-cost analysis, risk-benefit assessment, and the techniques for measuring benefits and costs of policies.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 257.

320. Economics, Technology, and Progress. Fall 1991. MR. VAIL.

An investigation of economic and other forces influencing the pace and direction of technical change, as well as the implications of new technology for human well-being and ecological sustainability. Theoretical viewpoints, from Adam Smith to neoclassical "induced innovation," are analyzed, with emphasis on Marxian and institutionalist interpretations. Empirical cases include agricultural mechanization, "scientific management," biotechnology, robotization, and technology transfer to the Third World.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 257.

329. Open-Economy Macroeconomics. Spring 1992. MR. JONES.

The implications for macroeconomic policy of international linkages through goods and financial markets. Topics include exchange rate determination, balance of payments crises, the measurement of international capital mobility, monetary and fiscal policy impacts in an open economy, international policy coordination, and the history and reform of international monetary institutions.

Prerequisite: Economics 256.

355. Topics in Advanced Microeconomic Theory: The Theory and Practice of Games and Decisions. Spring 1992. MR. ORTMANN.

Many problems in business, politics, and everyday life can be framed in simple game-theoretic terms. Introduces the essential ideas of noncooperative game theory and asymmetric information. Also introduces the student to the use of experimental methods in economics.

Prerequisite: Economics 255 or consent of the instructor.

400. Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Education

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR MARTIN, Chair (fall semester);

VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR KAUFMAN;

MS. PIERSON, Director of Programs in Teaching and Coordinator of Voluntary Programs, Chair (spring semester);

MS. HUMPHREY, Associate in Education

There is no major in education.

Requirements for the Minor in Education: The minor in education consists of four courses.

Requirements for Certification to Teach in Public Secondary Schools: Because teaching in the public schools requires some form of licensure, the education department provides a sequence of courses leading to certification for secondary school teaching. This sequence includes the following:

1. A major in the discipline the student intends to teach, such as history, Spanish, biology, mathematics, or English. Public schools rarely offer more than one course in subjects such as sociology, philosophy, anthropology, art history, religion, or economics, so students with interests in those and similar fields should meet with Ms. Pierson as soon as possible to develop a program that will include those interests within a teaching field. While students' programs of study at Bowdoin need not be seriously restricted by plans to teach, majors and minors should be chosen with teaching possibilities in mind.

2. Five courses offered by the Department of Education: one 100-level course; one 200-level course; and Education 301, 302, and 303.
3. Two courses in the Department of Psychology, including a course in human development or learning theory.
4. Volunteer experience in school or with youth groups.

Because education is not a major at Bowdoin, students interested in teaching as a career must plan the completion of course work for certification carefully.

Requirements for Teaching in Private Schools: State certification is not usually a requirement for teaching in independent schools. Thus, there is no common specification of what an undergraduate program for future private school teachers should be. In addition to a strong major in a secondary-school teaching field, however, it is recommended that prospective teachers follow a sequence of courses similar to the one leading to public school certification.

There is a further discussion of careers in teaching on pages 35–36.

[101. Education in the Twentieth Century.]

102. History of American Education. Every other year. Fall 1991.

Ms. KAUFMAN.

A study of the evolution of American educational ideas and institutions through the mid-twentieth century. Enduring themes that have shaped American education, such as the purpose of schooling, the nature of the curriculum, and the training and role of the teacher, are traced through the works of such figures as Horace Mann, Mary Lyon, W. E. B. DuBois, and John Dewey.

105. Topics in Education: The History of Women and Education.

Spring 1992. Ms. KAUFMAN.

Examines the dual role of women as students and educators from the time of the American Revolution, when leaders assigned women the role of preparing citizens for the new republic, to the present day. Some issues to be explored are coeducation, separatism, equity, and diversity. Examples of women who used teaching as a route to achieving personal autonomy are included.

201. Schools and Communities. Every other year. Spring 1992.

Ms. KAUFMAN.

A study of the relationships among schools, parents, and their communities. Through fieldwork in local communities, students observe how large issues, such as the purpose of schooling, the influence of federal and state governments, and the role of parents, work themselves out on the local level.

Prerequisite: Education 101 or 102, or consent of the instructor.

[202. Education and Biography.]

[250. Law and Education.]

301. Teaching. Fall 1991. Ms. KAUFMAN.

A study of what takes place in classrooms: the methods and purposes of teachers, the response of students, and the organizational context. Readings and discussions help inform students' direct observations and written accounts of local classrooms. Peer teaching is an integral part of the course experience.

Prerequisites: Senior standing, one Bowdoin education course, one psychology course, and consent of the instructor.

302. Student Teaching. Spring 1992. Ms. HUMPHREY.

Because this final course in the student teaching sequence demands a considerable commitment of time and serious responsibilities in a local secondary school classroom, enrollment in the course requires the recommendation of the instructor of Education 301. Recommendation is based on performance in Education 301, the student's cumulative and overall academic performance at Bowdoin, and the student's good standing in the Bowdoin community. Required of all students who seek secondary public school certification, the course is also open to those with other serious interests in teaching. In addition to daily work in the local school, weekly on-campus class and conference meetings and writing projects are required. Grades are awarded on a Credit/Fail basis only. Education 303 must be taken concurrently with this course.

Prerequisites: Senior standing, three Bowdoin education courses, including Education 301; two psychology courses, including one in human development or learning theory; volunteer experience in the schools; and consent of the instructor.

303. Curriculum. Spring 1992. Ms. HUMPHREY.

A study of the knowledge taught in schools; its selection and the rationale by which one course of study rather than another is included; its adaptation for different categories of students; its cognitive and social purposes; the organization and integration of its various components.

Prerequisite: Education 301 or consent of the instructor.

290. Intermediate Independent Study.

400. Advanced Independent Study.

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR LITVAK, Chair;
 PROFESSORS BURROUGHS, DIEHL (on leave spring semester),
 KASTER, AND REDWINE; ASSOCIATE PROFESSORS GOODRIDGE, REIZBAUM, AND WATTERSON; ASSISTANT PROFESSORS COLLINGS,
 KIBBIE (on leave for the academic year), AND SUDAN;
 LECTURER PEMBERTON (on leave for the academic year);
 VISITING LECTURER CALHOUN (spring semester)

Requirements for the Major in English and American Literature: The major requires a minimum of ten courses, three of which must be chosen from offerings in English literature before 1800 (English 200, 201, 202, 210, 211, 220, 221, 222, 230, 231, and 250). Only one of these three courses may be a Shakespeare course. Seven additional units may be selected from the foregoing and/or English 10–29 (first-year seminars, not more than two); 61–62 (Creative Writing, only one); 101–103; 240–281; 300–399; 291–292 (independent study); and 401–402 (advanced independent study). Regular courses (English 50–59) and independent studies (English 296–297; English 406–407) in film and communication do not count toward the major. Students who intend to major in English should take a minimum of three courses in the department before declaring the major. Credit toward the major for advanced literature courses in another language, provided that the works are read in that language, and other exceptions to the requirements, must be arranged with the chair.

Majors who are candidates for honors must take the honors seminar in the fall of their senior year, write an honors essay, and take an oral examination in the spring.

Requirements for the Minor in English and American Literature: At least five of the above courses, excluding all courses in film and communication.

English 10–29

First-Year Seminars in English Composition and Literature

Open to first-year students. The first-year English seminars are numbered 10–19 in the fall; 20–29 in the spring. Usually there are not enough openings in the fall for all first-year students who want an English seminar. First-year students who cannot get into a seminar in the fall are given priority in the spring. The main purpose of the first-year seminars (no matter what the topic or reading list) is to give first-year students extensive practice in reading and writing analytically. Each section is normally limited to 15 students and includes discussion, outside reading, frequent papers, and individual conferences on writing problems.

English 101 and 102

Survey Course in English Literature

A reading course, with examinations, designed to familiarize students with the main currents of English literature, from Anglo-Saxon times to the twentieth century. Limited to 75 students each semester, with preference given in English 101 to sophomores, juniors, and AP first-year students (in that order) and in English 102 to students completing English 101 and to first-year students completing a first-year seminar.

- 101. Every fall. Fall 1991. Ms. SUDAN.

Provides a broad introduction, from the beginnings to the end of the eighteenth century. Individual works are studied in the context of major stylistic, thematic, and historical developments. Special attention is given to genre and prosody. Major writers include Chaucer, Shakespeare, Donne, Milton, and Pope.

102. Every spring. Spring 1992. MR. LITVAK.

Emphasizes major stylistic, thematic, and historical developments, from the Romantic movement at the end of the eighteenth century, through the Victorian age, and into modern British poetry. Major writers may include Blake, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Shelley, Byron, Keats, Brontë, Tennyson, Arnold, Dickens, Rossetti, Browning(s), Yeats, Eliot, and Woolf.

103. The Bible in Literary Focus. Spring 1992. MR. LONG.

A study of selected narratives and poems, with emphasis on the diverse imaginative worlds of the Bible and, accordingly, on various modern approaches to literary study. Attention is also given to the Bible as a wellspring of images and motifs for Western literary artists. (Same as Religion 204.)

Courses in Film, Communication, and Writing

[50. Public Speaking.]

51. History of Film. Every fall. Ms. KASTER.

Examines the development and growth of film from its pre-filmic origins to the present. Early work of Lumiere, Melies, and Porter is studied, followed by the seminal work of Griffith to establish the language of film with its ability to manipulate space and time. The work of Eisenstein is studied for montage, the work of Renoir for mise-en-scène, the work of Welles for manipulation of sound. The films of a variety of auteur directors, important film genres, and national film movements are studied, and may include auteurs Fellini, Ford, Truffaut, Bergman, Kurosawa, and Hitchcock; the Western, film noir, and musical genres; and Italian neorealism, the French New Wave, the New German Cinema, the Australian New Wave, the Cinema Novo of Latin America, and the New Japanese Film movements.

52. Electronic Film Production. Every spring. Spring 1992.

Ms. KASTER.

The class examines and masters the elements of electronic film production, including screenplay writing and storyboard construction; operation of the video camera, VCR, sound mixer, and lighting kit; and postproduction techniques of electronic editing, multiple-track sound editing, and Chyron computer graphics. The class is divided into four crews for the production of four films.

Prerequisite: English 51 and consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 20 students.

- §53. The New Latin American Film. Fall 1991. Ms. KASTER.

An introduction to the major Latin American films from the late 1950s to the present. Emphasis on the films and directors who sought to create a new vision, a new voice, for Latin America by exploring for the first time previously ignored "national realities": marginal urban populations, culturally and economically isolated groups, indigenous communities, repressive dictatorships. Special attention is given to the most important film movements, including the "1960 Generation" in Argentina and the "Cinema Novo" movement in Brazil. Films include those by Argentines Leopoldo Torre Nilsson, Fernando Birri, Fernando Solanas, Luis Puenzo, and Maria Luisa Bemberg; Brazilians Nelson Dos Santos, Glauber Rocha, Hector Babenco, Carlos Diegues, and Leon Hirzman. Additional films from Cuba, Mexico, Uruguay, Chile, and Bolivia. Enrollment limited to 30 students.

60. English Composition. Spring 1992. Ms. REIZBAUM.

Practice in expository and critical writing, with special attention to the preparation, writing, and analysis of student essays. Focuses on different modes of composition through an examination of essay writing by several authors.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

61. Creative Writing I. Spring 1992. Mr. WATTERSON.

Course format is part workshop, part tutorial. Concentrates exclusively on the writing of poetry.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

64. The Reporter's Craft. Spring 1992. One time only.

Mr. CALHOUN.

A writing seminar devoted to the study and practice of firsthand observation of contemporary events. The course has two parts: (1) a close examination of the stylistic devices, rhetorical strategies, and ethical stances of some noted practitioners of reportage (John McPhee, Joan Didion, V. S. Naipaul, Janet Malcolm, Randy Shilts, and Frances Fitzgerald), and (2) frequent exercises in journalistic writing to be critiqued by the class and by the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students. Writing sample required.

296, 297. Intermediate Independent Study in Film and Communication. Ms. KASTER.

406, 407. Advanced Independent Study in Film and Communication. Ms. KASTER.

Advanced Courses in English and American Literature

200. Old English. Every other year. Fall 1991. Mr. BURROUGHS.

An introduction to Old English language and literature. Readings in the original, supplemented by materials in translation.

201. Chaucer. Every other year. Spring 1992. MR. BURROUGHS.
Emphasis on The Canterbury Tales.
202. Topics in Middle English Literature. Fall 1992. Epic and Romance. MR. BURROUGHS.
Focuses on the dominant narrative traditions of medieval poetry. Works include Beowulf, Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde, Gawain and the Green Knight, and Malory's Morte D'Arthur. All Middle English works are read in the original.
210. Shakespeare's Comedies and Romances. Every fall. Fall 1991. MR. WATTERSON.
Examines A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, As You Like It, The Winter's Tale, Cymbeline, Pericles, and The Tempest in light of Renaissance genre theory.
211. Shakespeare's Tragedies and Roman Plays. Spring 1992. MR. WATTERSON.
Examines Hamlet, Othello, Macbeth, King Lear, Julius Caesar, Antony and Cleopatra, and Coriolanus in light of recent critical thought. Special attention is given to psychoanalysis, new historicism, and genre theory.
220. English Literature of the Early Renaissance. Every other fall. Fall 1991. MR. REDWINE.
A critical study of the literature of the sixteenth century, with emphasis upon Elizabethan nondramatic poetry.
221. English Literature of the Late Renaissance. Every other spring. Spring 1992. MR. REDWINE.
A critical study of the literature of the seventeenth century exclusive of Milton, with emphasis on the poetry of Donne, Jonson, and their followers.
222. Milton. Every other year. Fall 1992. MR. REDWINE.
A critical study of his chief writings in poetry and prose.
230. The Politics of Genre in Restoration and Early-Eighteenth-Century Literature. Every other year. Fall 1991. Ms. SUDAN.
This survey of the drama, poetry, and prose of Restoration and early-eighteenth-century England focuses on how writers turned to satire as a weapon in the social and political battles of the time, and how this is related to their project of destroying, redefining, or purifying conventional genres (such as the heroic tragedy or the pastoral). We consider the emergence of a literary marketplace, and its effect upon ideas of authorship. Writers include Dryden, Gay, Pope, Swift, Richardson, and Fielding.

231. The Ideology of Imperialism in Eighteenth-CenturyLiterature. Spring 1992. Ms. SUDAN.

Examines how England's developing imperialist ethic is represented in the literature of the eighteenth century. Focusing on how issues of nationalism, sexuality, gender, and genre intersect with the production of literary identity, we consider such writers as Milton, Swift, Pope, Richardson, Thomson, Johnson, Gray, and Burke.

240. Romanticism and Its Other. Every other year. Fall 1992.

MR. COLLINGS.

Explores the polemical and political works of the English Romantic period, read in the context of ongoing politics, national and international (and with special attention to the politics of nationality and gender), of the French Revolution. Writers include Burke, Paine, Blake, Wordsworth, Coleridge, De Quincey, P. B. Shelley, Mary Shelley, Keats, Byron, and Carlyle. Though the chief emphasis is on close interpretation of major dramatic, poetic, and prose texts, the course also explores, through related contemporary representations and interpretations of the Revolution, the practical and theoretical problems encountered when reading literary works in a historical context.

241. Victorian Poetry and Prose. Spring 1993. MR. LITVAK.

Readings in the poetry of Tennyson, Arnold, Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, Christina Rossetti, and Swinburne, and in nonfictional prose by Carlyle, Newman, Mill, Ruskin, Pater, and Wilde.

250. The Rise of the Novel. Every other year. Spring 1993.

Ms. KIBBIE.

This course traces the emergence of the novel in the eighteenth century as a distinct genre that absorbed earlier kinds of writing but also provided something new. Authors read include Bunyan, Behn, Defoe, Richardson, Fielding, Sterne, Smollett, and Burney. Enrollment limited to 40 students.

251. The Romantic Novel. Every other year. Fall 1991.

MR. COLLINGS.

Readings in novels of the Romantic period. Authors include Godwin, Radcliffe, Edgeworth, Austen, Mary Shelley, Scott, and others.

252. The Victorian Novel. Every other spring. Spring 1992.

MR. LITVAK.

Emphasizes the social and political significance of novels by Emily Brontë, Charlotte Brontë, Charles Dickens, Elizabeth Gaskell, Wilkie Collins, George Eliot, Anthony Trollope, Thomas Hardy, and George Gissing.

- 260. Twentieth-Century British Poetry. Every other year. Fall 1992.
Ms. REIZBAUM.
Authors include Eliot, Auden, Yeats, Hugh MacDiarmid, Stevie Smith, Dylan Thomas, Seamus Heaney, and a further selection from contemporary Scottish and Irish poetry.
- 261. Twentieth-Century British Fiction. Every other year.
Spring 1993. Ms. REIZBAUM.
Includes such figures as Stevenson, Joyce, Lawrence, Woolf, Beckett, Lessing, and Jean Rhys.
- 262. Modern Drama. Every other year. Fall 1991. Ms. REIZBAUM.
Focuses on British and American dramas, including the works of Stoppard, Wilde, Ntoke Shange, Beckett, Albee, Wasserstein, and some Continental playwrighting (Brecht, Ibsen).
- 270. American Literature to 1860. Every other year. Fall 1992.
Ms. DIEHL.
An overview of American literature from its beginnings to the American Renaissance. Examines the diverse cultural heritage that shapes the American literary tradition. Readings include a wide range of writers, both canonical and noncanonical, in an attempt to redefine the contributions of Native American, women, African-American, and Hispanic authors, with the aim of drawing from these differing cultural voices a redefinition of a rich and distinctive emergent American literary culture.
- 271. American Literature 1860–1917. Every other year.
Spring 1993. Ms. GOODRIDGE.
Examines the dominant tensions and ideologies of the mid-to-late-nineteenth century by looking at some tentative connections between the ideologies of slavery and capitalism. Writers include Melville, Hawthorne, Davis, James, Crane, Gilman, and Chopin.
- [272. American Fiction 1917–1945.]
- [273. American Fiction since 1945.]
- 274. American Poetry in the Twentieth Century. Fall 1991.
Ms. GOODRIDGE.
Poets include Frost, Stevens, Williams, Moore, Bishop, Brooks, Lowell, Merrill, Rich, and Plath. Enrollment limited to 40 students.
- [$275. African-American Fiction.]
(Same as Afro-American Studies 275.)
- [$276. African-American Poetry.]
(Same as Afro-American Studies 276.)
- [280. Women Writers in English.]

[281. Forms of Narrative.]

300. Literary Theory. Every other year. Fall 1991. MR. LITVAK.

An analysis of semiotic, deconstructive, psychoanalytic, feminist, Marxist, African-American, and gay and lesbian theories of literature.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

310–350. Studies in Literary Genres. Every year.

Lectures, discussions, and extensive readings in a major literary genre: e.g., the narrative poem, the lyric poem, fiction, comedy, tragedy, or the essay. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

335. Feminist Literary Criticism. Fall 1991. MS. DIEHL.

An examination of major theoretical issues addressed by contemporary feminist critics. Readings are drawn from influential literary, psychoanalytic, and critical texts. Authors include Cixous and Clement, George Eliot, Freud, Gilbert and Gubar, Henry James, Melanie Klein, Clarice Lispector, Elaine Showalter, and others. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

336. Sophistication and the Idea of Culture in Modern Western Literature and Film. Fall 1991. MR. LITVAK.

What is sophistication? Does it have a history? What is its relation to the idea of culture? How does sophistication operate as a social value? How does it vary from one cultural context to another? How is it involved in the construction of class, race, gender, sexuality, and nationality? How does it interact with the cultural politics of antisophistication? Who produces it and who consumes it? Who gets to decide what counts as sophistication? What does it mean to attempt sophistication in a mass medium like film? What is the role of sophistication in contemporary literary and cultural studies, and in the theory and practice of a liberal arts education? We consider these questions as we analyze novels by such authors as Jane Austen, Honoré de Balzac, Gustave Flaubert, Henry James, Edith Wharton, Theodore Dreiser, Nella Larsen, Evelyn Waugh, and Gloria Naylor; films by such directors as Ernst Lubitsch, Jean Renoir, George Cukor, Billy Wilder, Douglas Sirk, John Schlesinger, Spike Lee, and Woody Allen; and critical works by such writers as Matthew Arnold, Oscar Wilde, Raymond Williams, Roland Barthes, Susan Sontag, and Pierre Bourdieu. Frequent evening screenings of films in addition to regular class sessions.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

337. Hamlet and the Critics. Fall 1991. MR. WATTERSON.

Traditional humanistic interpretations of the play are weighed against readings grounded in contemporary poetics (psychoanalytical, feminist, new historicist) in order to assess the urgency of “rewriting the Renaissance.” The relative merits—and deficiencies—of reconstruction and deconstruction are explored in a seminar designed to assist students in identifying and strengthening their own critical orientation toward texts.

Prerequisite: Enrollment in honors program or consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

338. Carnival. Spring 1992. MR. COLLINGS.

A discussion of the history of the body as exemplified in the history of carnival, primarily in England. Examines Renaissance carnivals and fairs, neoclassical depictions of the public body, Romantic anxiety at grotesque spectacle, mid-nineteenth-century fascination with urban subcultures of poverty, and the bodies that speak in certain Freudian case histories. Literary texts include works of Jonson, Pope, Wordsworth, Mayhew, Freud, and several others, which we discuss using the theories of Bakhtin, Elias, and Stallybrass and White. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

339. African-American Fiction by Women. Spring 1992.

MS. GOODRIDGE.

Writers include Morrison, Walker, Naylor, and Angelou.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

340. James Joyce. Spring 1992. MS. REIZBAUM.

A close study of the work of James Joyce in its historical and contemporary critical contexts. Readings include The Dubliners, A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man, Ulysses, and selected essays and poems.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Environmental Studies

Administered by the Committee on Environmental Studies

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR LAINE, Program Director;

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR SIMON; LECTURER GILFILLAN;

VISITING LECTURER RICHERT; MS. KOULOURIS, Program Coordinator

Requirements for the Coordinate Major in Environmental Studies:

The major involves the completion of a departmental major and the following seven courses:

Required environmental studies courses:

1. Environmental Studies 101, Introduction to Environmental Studies.

2. Senior seminar: A culminating course of one semester is required of majors. Such courses are multidisciplinary, studying a topic from at least two or three areas of the curriculum. Environmental Studies 390, 391, 392, or 393 will meet this requirement.

3. Five courses approved for environmental studies credit: These courses are designated "Environmental Studies" or are cross-listed with environmental studies. The distribution of these five courses is as follows:

a. One course from each of the three curriculum areas: the sciences, social sciences, and arts and humanities.

b. Two elective courses: These courses may be chosen from environmental studies or the approved cross-listings. However, students are urged to consider Environmental Studies 290 and 400, intermediate and advanced independent studies, in consultation with the program.

101. Introduction to Environmental Studies. Every year. Fall 1991.

MR. LAINE.

An examination of how the earth's major environmental systems work and an analysis of the relationship between these systems and such fundamental issues as population growth, resource and energy quality and sufficiency, and environmental quality. Explored in depth are the meaning and usefulness of scientific information and insights for such complex questions as quality of the atmosphere and climatic change, depletion of fresh water, loss of soil productivity, loss of genetic diversity, toxic contamination and waste disposal, and tropical deforestation.

Enrollment limited to 75 students, with preference given to first- and second-year students. Required for environmental studies majors beginning with the class of 1995.

115. Introduction to Environmental Sciences. Every spring.

MR. LEA AND MR. GILFILLAN.

An interdisciplinary introduction to the environmental sciences. Course material includes surficial and environmental geology and marine and aquatic ecology. In addition to classroom work, there are weekly sessions of laboratory work or fieldwork that focus on local environmental problems. (Same as Geology 115.)

Prerequisite: Environmental Studies 101 or consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 25 students; preference given to students intending to major in either geology or environmental studies.

200. Marine Ecology. Fall 1991. MR. GILFILLAN.

The relationships between organisms and their environment are considered in the context of animals and plants living in the sea. The concept of marine communities living in dynamic equilibrium with their physical-chemical environment is introduced, and the influence of human activities on the ecology of marine organisms is explored. (Same as Biology 156.)

Prerequisite: A college-level science course or consent of the instructor.

220. Environmental Law. Fall 1992. MR. DELOGU.

An examination of how society responds to environmental problems, considering a range of alternative legal strategies. Concepts in remedies, administrative law, and constitutional law, as well as economics and the sciences, are used to understand these problems and probable solutions.

236. Environmental Analysis: Political Philosophy and Policy.

Spring 1992 and fall 1993. MR. SIMON.

Examines aspects of the environmental crisis, with special emphasis on political issues. Topics include our relation to and responsibility for nature in light of the present crisis; the adequacy of the conceptual and political resources of our tradition to address the crisis; the interconnection of scientific, moral, political, and policy factors; and the philosophical critique of methodological approaches such as cost-benefit analysis. (Same as Philosophy 236.)

241. Principles of Land-Use Planning. Spring 1992. MR. RICHERT.

Land—how it is used, who controls it, the tension between private and public rights to it—is central to today's environmental debate. Land-use planning is inevitably part of that debate. It is a bridge between the physical environment (the land) and the social, economic, and political forces affecting that environment. The course exposes students to the physical principles of land-use planning and the legal and socioeconomic principles that underlie it.

Prerequisite: Junior or senior standing. Preference given to environmental studies majors.

258. Environmental Ethics. Fall 1992 and spring 1994. MR. SIMON.

The central issue in environmental ethics concerns what things in nature have moral standing and how conflicts of interest among them are to be resolved. This course examines the ethical theories and assumptions that inform the debates over this issue and in general over how to treat the environment. Specific topics to be covered include utilitarianism versus rights theory, the nature and justification of anthropocentrism, animal liberation and the rights of nonhuman sentient things, preservation of endangered species, the ethics of preserving the wilderness, the moral status of nonsentient living things, holism versus individualism, the land ethic, and attitudes toward land use. (Same as Philosophy 58.)

- [315. Environmental Models for Growth Management.]
- [335. Regulating Chemicals in the Environment: Scientific, Legal, and Economic Aspects.]
- [390. Seminar in Environmental Studies: Ecology and Democracy.]
391. Seminar in Environmental Studies: Merrymeeting Bay.
Spring 1992. MR. LAINE.
Exploration of the watershed of Merrymeeting Bay, with emphasis on the relationship between land use and surficial geology. A significant portion of the course is devoted to student projects. Enrollment limited to 15 students. Preference given to senior environmental studies majors.
392. Seminar in Environmental Studies: Advanced Topics in Environmental Studies. Spring 1993. MR. SIMON.
(Same as Philosophy 392.)
393. Seminar in Environmental Studies: Local Marine and Aquatic Ecosystems. Spring 1992. MR. GILFILLAN.
Exploration of local marine and aquatic ecosystems, with emphasis on factors influencing water quality. A significant portion of the course is devoted to student projects. Enrollment limited to 15 students. Preference given to senior environmental studies majors.
290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE PROGRAM.
400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE PROGRAM.

*Courses marked with an asterisk will receive environmental studies credit with the approval of the instructor. It is expected that a substantial portion of the student's efforts will focus on the environment.

First-Year Seminars

The purpose of the first-year seminar program is to introduce college-level disciplines and to contribute to students' understanding of the ways in which a specific discipline may relate to other areas in the humanities, social sciences, and sciences. A major emphasis of each seminar will be placed upon the improvement of students' skills—their ability to read texts effectively and to write prose that is carefully organized, concise, and firmly based upon evidence. Students who have particular difficulty with writing will be identified by the Deans' Office and will be advised to enter special tutorial classes.

Each year a number of departments offer first-year seminars. Enrollment in each is limited to 16 students. Sufficient seminars are offered to ensure that every first-year student will have the opportunity to participate during at least one semester of the first year. Registration for the seminars will take place before registration for other courses, to facilitate scheduling. A complete listing of first-year seminars being offered in the 1991–92 academic year follows:

Anthropology 11. Family Life in the European Past. Fall 1991.

MR. KERTZER.

A study of how and why family life changed over the past 2,000 years of European history, with particular emphasis on the period from 1700 to 1914. Among the topics to be covered are extended family households and the emergence of the nuclear family, the question of patriarchy and the position of women in the family, the changing lives of children, explanations for the emergence of widespread birth control, and the relationship between economic and political change and change in family life. Differences in family relations among different parts of Europe are also identified and explanations explored.

Art 10. The Worldview in Renaissance Art. Fall 1991. MR. OLDS.

Examines the work of two artists, Leonardo da Vinci and Pieter Bruegel the Elder, who took a particular interest in the social and natural contexts of human life, from the position of the human being in the cosmos to the relationship of the individual and society. Readings from Leonardo's notebook and certain sixteenth-century philosophers complement the study of the artists' paintings and drawings. No prior knowledge of the history of art is required.

A systematic study of early-eighth-century sacred histories, which comprise the foundational texts for the Japanese imperial system and provide a colorful introduction to the traditional Japanese world of meaning. (Same as Religion 17.)

§Asian Studies 22. Chinese Strategy. Spring 1993. MR. SMITH.

An investigation of traditional strategy, the philosophical and historical contexts from which it arose, and its embodiment in novels from the imperial period. (Same as History 22.)

Classics 11. The Hero and Antihero in Greek Literature.

Spring 1992. MR. AMBROSE.

An examination of the concept of the hero and antihero in the literature of ancient Greece. Through lecture and discussion, the class traces the nature and development of this concept in different genres and historical eras. Readings are selected from epic, tragedy, comedy, and philosophical dialogue. No background in the classical languages is required.

Computer Science 10. Computers, Society, and Thought. Fall 1991.

MR. RAMSHAW.

Focuses on the many areas of social and ethical concern raised by the rapid evolution of computer technology, including privacy, security, computer crime, computer reliability, software piracy, and the effects of computers on the workplace. The latter part of the course is devoted to an in-depth exploration of the limits of artificial intelligence and of whether computers can be said to "think." Students can expect significant reading and writing assignments; no technical background with computers is required.

Dance 12. The Ballet: European Theater Dance from Louis XIV to the Present. Fall 1991. Ms. VAIL.

An exploration of Western classical dance from the mid-seventeenth to the twentieth century. Through readings, films, and live performances, students analyze style in light of contemporaneous music and art as well as the broader social context. Emphasizes the development of dance literacy and critical writing skills. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed. (Same as Dance 121.)

English 10. Theme and Technique in Twentieth-Century Lyric.

Fall 1991. MR. BURROUGHS.

Examines some of the tensions and accommodations between lyric tradition and historical circumstance in the present century. Poets include Yeats, Eliot, and Auden.

English 11. Artifice. Fall 1991. MR. COLLINGS.

A discussion of various strategies for making life into art: wit, seduction, style, risk, challenge, and deception. Authors may include Etheredge, Laclos, Doyle, Nietzsche, Wilde, Borges, and Baudrillard.

English 12. Reading Women. Fall 1991. Ms. DIEHL.

An introduction to issues raised by contemporary feminist literary theory. Authors include Mary Shelley, Charlotte Brontë, Emily Dickinson, Louisa May Alcott, Ellen Glasgow, Virginia Woolf, and Margaret Atwood. In addition, students read essays that pertain to feminist criticism.

English 13. Contemporary Fiction. Fall 1991. Ms. GOODRIDGE.

Close readings of fiction from recent and current issues of the New Yorker.

English 14. Satire. Fall 1991. MR. REDWINE.

Examines different methods and objects of satire in works of Sir Thomas More, Shakespeare, Jonson, Voltaire, Swift, Butler, Twain, Huxley, and Orwell.

English 15. Modern Jewish-American Literature. Fall 1991.

Ms. REIZBAUM.

Investigates the category of Jewish-American literature by examining the variety of works designated as such. For example, the course explores the Jewish figure as cultural outsider, and humor as a response to oppression. Authors include Emma Lazarus, Henry Roth, Philip Roth, Grace Paley, Bernard Malamud, Isaac Bashevis Singer, and Cynthia Ozick.

English 20. Secular Pilgrims. Spring 1992. MR. BURROUGHS.

The theme of the pilgrimage as it evolves out of the Enlightenment. Writers include Swift, Johnson, Fielding, Twain, and Conrad.

English 21. Gender and Sexuality in Romantic Literature.

Spring 1992. MR. COLLINGS.

An examination of perceptions of gender, desire, seduction, marriage, adultery, and pregnancy in Lewis, Austen, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Byron, and Percy and Mary Shelley.

English 22. Twentieth-Century Autobiographical Writing.

Spring 1992. MS. GOODRIDGE.

Students read autobiographies, journals, letters, and memoirs as a way of assessing the strategies and functions of "self-fashioning" in the twentieth century. Writers include Woolf, Bryher, H. D., Bishop, Lowell, Nabokov, Hellman, Benjamin, Barthes, and Sontag.

English 23. The Politics of Sexuality. Spring 1992. MS. SUDAN.

Examines how sexuality functions as a locus for political debate by exploring the ways in which literature, film, and other texts shape our views about sexual norms and behavior. Topics include the place of sexuality in social arrangements such as marriage and the family, sexuality as a basis for defining gender, sexuality as a means of both political resistance and political control, and contemporary debates about abortion, pornography, and homosexuality. Texts include Brontë's Jane Eyre, Engel's The Origin of the Family, Private Property, and the State, Freud's Dora, Kate Chopin's The Awakening, Virginia Woolf's Mrs. Dalloway, and several films.

English 24. Drama. Spring 1992. MR. REDWINE.

Emphasis on the close reading and discussion of plays by Shakespeare, Molière, Ibsen, Shaw, Beckett, and others.

Geology 17. The Maine Coast: Present, Past, and Future. Fall 1991.

MR. LEA.

Introduces students firsthand to geological field methods and approaches to scientific research through a study of one of Maine's greatest resources, its coast. Through several weekend and half-day field trips and classroom work, students collect information to construct a record of sea-level changes over the last 12,000 years, examine modern coastal environments and processes, and assess the impacts of coastal developments. Class projects include brief reports of field studies and an independent paper.

History 11. Women in Britain and America: 1750–1920. Fall 1991.

MS. McMAHON.

A comparative examination of the contribution of women to and the consequences for women of "modernization." Topics include industrialization and the varieties of employment for women, Victorian culture and domesticity, and women's rights and woman suffrage. Relies heavily on primary sources: letters, diaries, essays, prescriptive literature, fiction; secondary sources are used as guides in the reading of those contemporary sources. Designed to teach students how to subject primary and secondary source materials to a critical analysis.

§History 16. History of Brazil. Spring 1992. MR. PINO.

The largest Latin American nation is also the least known to most North Americans. The course surveys the drama of Brazilian history from the Portuguese conquest in 1500 to the emergence of Brazil in the late twentieth century as the most economically advanced Third World nation. The following topics are highlighted: slavery, monarchy, and the growth of the coffee industry; the Vargas regime; the coup of 1964 and the national security state; the transition to civilian rule; and the Brazilian debt.

The Cuban Revolution recently celebrated its thirtieth anniversary. This seminar offers a retrospective of a revolution entering "middle age" and its prospects for the future. Topics include U.S.-Cuban relations, economic and social justice versus political liberty, gender and race relations, and literature and film in a socialist society.

History 18. The Vietnam War. Spring 1992. MR. LEVINE.

An examination of the Vietnam War from the Vietnamese and American viewpoints. Major topics include the nature of Vietnamese society, the impact of French colonialism, the cold war background (domestic and foreign) to American involvement, and the impact of the war on Vietnam and the United States.

§History 22. Chinese Strategy. Spring 1993. MR. SMITH.

An investigation of traditional strategy, the philosophical and historical contexts from which it arose, and its embodiment in novels from the imperial period. (Same as Asian Studies 22.)

Music 10. Words in Music. Fall 1991. MS. DAVIDIAN.

Explores the relationship between music and poetry in late-nineteenth-century vocal music, with special attention given to German and French art songs. The composers to be studied include Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann, Berlioz, Brahms, Fauré, and Debussy. The following questions are raised: Why and how are poems set to music? Can music capture or complement the mood of a poem? and Does a great poem inspire a great song?

Philosophy 11. Free Will. Fall 1992. MR. CORISH.

An examination of the question of whether or not we have what has traditionally been called free will. Are our actions free, or at least partly free; or are they wholly caused, or determined, in some sense that makes the notion of freedom inappropriate in descriptions of actions? Today the question is often dealt with in terms of the related concept of moral responsibility. Are we really responsible agents, as our tradition tells us we are? This question then leads to a number of others. What do we mean when we say that people are responsible for their actions? Are the concepts of moral and legal responsibility of permanent human importance, or should they be replaced by concepts that are more suited to certain contemporary deterministic views of human nature? What role does reasoning play in human action? Can reasoning be understood in deterministic terms? Readings in contemporary and older materials are used as the basis for the seminar discussions.

Philosophy 13. Basic Problems in Philosophy. Fall 1992. MR. SIMON.

Examines through a reading of a number of classic texts some of the basic problems in Western philosophy. What is philosophy? What are the nature and limits of human knowledge? What is the relationship between mind and body? Are we free or determined? What is the place of moral value in the world and what is the relation between morality and religion? Focuses on understanding the texts as a basis for class discussion.

Philosophy 14. Literature as Philosophy. Fall 1991. MR. MCGEE.

After a presentation of the explicitly philosophical background of the literary works to be studied, the philosophic life-attitudes expressed in them are examined to determine their adequacy as philosophy and their relevance to conduct. The literature varies from time to time but always includes one major contemporary work and one major older work.

Philosophy 15. Self and Self-Knowledge. Fall 1991. MR. CORISH.

What is the self? What knowledge do we have of the self? Is that knowledge similar to or different from our knowledge of the world about us—that is, is knowledge of the subject similar to or different from knowledge of an object? These and other questions (e.g., personal identity, the unconscious, emotion) are discussed. Readings range from ancient (Plato, Aristotle, Augustine) to modern (Locke, Hume, Kant) and contemporary.

Philosophy 16. Moral Problems. Spring 1992. MR. SIMON.

Our society is rife with moral controversies. This course examines a number of moral problems with two goals: (1) to encourage more systematic and analytic thinking about a number of complex and difficult moral issues, and (2) to raise questions concerning how to think about moral problems, that is, to examine how moral reasoning proceeds. Each semester the problems to be studied are drawn from a list including abortion, suicide, euthanasia, capital punishment, obligations to starving peoples, affirmative action, discrimination and equal opportunity, sexuality and pornography, human rights and civil disobedience, creationism, sociobiology, and war and nuclear deterrence.

Psychology 20. Thinking and Problem Solving. Every fall.

MRS. SMALL.

This course considers the nature of thinking and problem solving, strategies for solving problems, the various components of thinking, and common fallacies of human reasoning. Applications to academic and nonacademic problems are explored. Writing is emphasized, both as a problem and a means for clarifying our thinking.

A systematic study of early-eighth-century sacred histories, which comprise the foundational texts for the Japanese imperial system and provide a colorful introduction to the traditional Japanese world of meaning. (Same as Asian Studies 17.)

Sociology 13. Is the United States a Society in Decline? Fall 1991.

MR. ROSSIDES.

Introduces students to macrosociology, or the study of overall social systems. The course's main theme is the current controversy over whether or not American society is in decline. Readings include material from standard sociological works as well as from the recent spate of articles and books arguing pro and con that the United States is declining. Questions to be raised include, Has opportunity for Americans declined? Is the American middle class shrinking? Has the United States developed a unique pattern of economic growth and declining living standards? and Is global capitalism good for American society?

Course requirements include oral presentations, short research papers, and a final examination.

Foreign Language Literature Courses in Translation

Each year the Departments of Afro-American Studies, Asian Studies, Classics, German, Romance Languages, and Russian may offer literature courses in English translation that are open to students with no training in the foreign language. A list of such courses follows. For full course descriptions and prerequisites, see the appropriate department listings, pages 39, 52, 69, 112, 174, and 180.

Geology

PROFESSOR HUSSEY, Chair; ASSISTANT PROFESSORS LAINE AND LEA

Students interested in majoring in geology should consult with the chair of the department as soon as possible, preferably in their first year.

Requirements for the Major in Geology: The major consists of the following core courses: Geology 101, 102, 201, 211, and 241; and no fewer than four courses from the following electives: Geology 221, 222, 256, 262, 265, 270, and 278. Geology 101 and 102 should be taken during the first year. Geology 50 and 115 ordinarily will not count toward the major except as approved individually by the department for exceptional circumstances. Majors are advised to take Chemistry 101 and 102, Physics 103, and Mathematics 171 by the end of their junior year. These ancillary science courses are generally a requirement for admission to graduate study and for employment in the field of geology. A field trip is taken during the spring vacation to illustrate the varied aspects of the geology of selected areas of the United States. All geology majors, coordinate majors, and interdisciplinary majors are required to participate in at least one of these trips during their junior or senior year.

Interdisciplinary Majors: The department participates in formal interdisciplinary programs in geology and physics and in geology and chemistry. See page 137.

Requirements for the Minor in Geology: The minor consists of two courses chosen from Geology 50, 101, 102, and 115, and two courses chosen from Geology 201, 211, 221, 222, 241, 256, 262, 265, and 270.

17. The Maine Coast: Present, Past, and Future. Fall 1991.

MR. LEA.

(See page 104 for a full description.)

50. Geology of Ocean Basins and Margins. Spring 1992.

MR. LAINE.

The processes of erosion and sedimentation of shoreline and near-shore environments, emphasizing the delicate equilibrium of these environments; the morphology of and physical processes operating in the ocean basins; the origin and evolution of ocean basins in light of recent research in plate tectonics; the paleontologic and climatic record preserved in ocean sediments. Three hours of lecture per week. No previous experience in science courses is assumed.

101. Introduction to Physical Geology. Every fall. MR. HUSSEY.

Lectures devoted to the composition and structure of the earth and the dynamic equilibrium processes that shape the surface of the earth. Field and indoor laboratory studies include the recognition of common rocks and minerals, the interpretation and use of topographic and geologic maps, and dynamics of processes that shape our landscape. A one-day field trip is taken to York County to examine evidence for glaciation, recent sea-level changes, structures and types of metamorphic rocks, and sequence of intrusion of four major magma series. Three lectures and one three-hour laboratory per week. No previous experience in science courses is assumed.

102. Introduction to Historical Geology. Every spring. MR. HUSSEY.

The principles involved in the interpretation of geologic history as deciphered from the rock record and a review of present knowledge of the evolution of the earth and its inhabitants. Laboratory work includes the recognition of fossils and their modes of preservation, interpretation of geologic maps, and a summary of the geologic history of the principal tectonic belts of North America. A three-day field trip is taken in the spring to illustrate important aspects of the geologic history of the southern and central coastal Maine area. Three hours of lecture and one three-hour laboratory per week.

Prerequisite: Geology 101 or consent of the instructor.

115. Introduction to Environmental Sciences. Every spring.

MR. LEA AND MR. GILFILLAN.

An interdisciplinary introduction to the environmental sciences. Topics include surficial and environmental geology and marine and aquatic ecology. In addition to classroom work, weekly sessions of laboratory work or fieldwork focus on local environmental problems. (Same as Environmental Studies 115.)

Prerequisite: Environmental Studies 101 or consent of the geology department. Enrollment limited to 25 students; preference given to students intending to major in either geology or environmental studies.

[121. Arctic Landscapes.]

201. Earth Materials. Spring 1993 and spring 1995. MR. HUSSEY.

The identification, crystallography, classification, origin, manner of occurrence, and uses of the principal rock-forming and economic minerals; hand specimen identification of igneous, metamorphic, and sedimentary rocks, and sediment types. Three hours of lecture and one three-hour laboratory per week.

Prerequisite: Geology 50 or 101, Chemistry 101, or Physics 103.

211. Optical Mineralogy and Crystallography. Fall 1991 and fall 1993. MR. HUSSEY.

A study of the optical principles and methods of mineral identification using the polarizing microscope. Laboratory work includes the examination and identification of minerals in thin section and as grains in immersion oils using the polarizing microscope; elementary morphological crystallography. Three hours of lecture and one three-hour laboratory per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 101, or Geology 101, or Physics 103.

221. Sedimentology. Fall 1991 and fall 1993. MR. LEA.

An examination of sedimentary processes and the composition of sedimentary rocks. Process-related topics include the behavior of sediment-moving fluids, dynamics of sediment transport and deposition, and interpretation of depositional processes from sedimentary structure and texture. Petrologic topics include identification of sediments in hand specimen and thin section, and diagnosis of sedimentary rocks. Three hours of lecture and one three-hour laboratory per week. Includes local field trips to observe sedimentary processes.

Prerequisites: Geology 101 and Physics 103, or consent of the instructor.

222. Stratigraphy and Depositional Systems. Spring 1992 and spring 1994. MR. LEA.

Survey of the earth's depositional systems, both continental and marine, with emphasis on interpretation of sedimentary environment from sedimentary structures and facies relationships; stratigraphic techniques for interpreting earth history; and introduction to subsurface analysis of sedimentary basins. Three hours of lecture and one three-hour laboratory per week. Includes local field trips during laboratory periods and a possible three-day trip over spring break.

Prerequisite: Geology 221 or consent of the instructor.

241. Structural Geology. Fall 1992 and fall 1994. MR. HUSSEY.

The primary and secondary structures of rocks, and the interpretation of crustal deformation from these features. Laboratory work includes structural interpretation of geologic maps, construction of cross sections, and the use of stereographic projections and orthographic constructions in the solution of structural problems and presentation of data. Three hours of lecture and one three-hour laboratory per week. Frequent field trips during laboratory periods and weekends.

Prerequisite: Geology 101, or Geology 50 with consent of the instructor.

256. Environmental Geology. Fall 1991 and fall 1993. MR. LAINE.

The application of geological and geomorphological principles to the understanding and solution of contemporary and future land-use issues. Principles are mastered through both lectures and the reading of case studies. Field exercise emphasizes observation, mapping, and analysis of geologic information relative to local environmental problems.

Prerequisite: Geology 101 or consent of the instructor.

262. Petrology. Spring 1992 and spring 1994. MR. HUSSEY.

The classification, description, and genesis of the common rock types. Laboratory work is devoted to the identification of rocks in hand specimen and examination of thin sections with the use of the polarizing microscope. Three hours of lecture and one three-hour laboratory per week. Weekend field trip during April.

Prerequisite: Geology 211.

265. Geophysics. Spring 1993 and spring 1995. MR. LAINE.

An introduction to interpretation methods in geophysics. Topics to be examined include seismic reflection and refraction methods, gravity and magnetic modeling, and electrical and thermal prospecting. Specific applications of each of these methods are drawn from the fields of marine geophysics, regional geology, hydrology, and environmental geology. No formal lab is given, but students should expect to spend several full Saturdays in the field making geophysical observations.

Prerequisites: Physics 103, Mathematics 161, and one of the following—Geology 101, Physics 223, or Physics 227.

270. Geomorphology. Fall 1992 and fall 1994. MR. LEA.

The concepts of landform development, emphasizing the relationships between surficial processes and form. Topics include work of streams, waves, wind, and glaciers; climatic geomorphology; and historical aspects of landscape development. Three hours of lecture and one three-hour laboratory per week.

Prerequisite: Geology 101 or consent of the instructor.

278. Quaternary Environments. Spring 1993. MR. LEA.

The Quaternary period is a subdivision of geologic time that includes both the present day and the ice ages of the Pleistocene. Hallmarks of the Quaternary include dramatic and cyclic climatic change, the development of modern landscapes and ecosystems, and the rise of the human species. We examine methodologies for Quaternary environmental and climatic reconstruction, the geologic record of Quaternary environmental change, and implications of such change for the earth's future. Topics include Quaternary glacial and periglacial systems, sea-level fluctuations, paleoclimatic records of ocean sediments and glacier ice, stratigraphy and dating methods, response of plant and animal communities to environmental change, and theories of climatic change.

Prerequisite: Geology 101 or consent of the instructor.

PROFESSOR HODGE, Chair;

PROFESSORS CAFFERTY AND CERF (on leave for the academic year);

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR O'CONNOR; TEACHING FELLOW BUCHRIESER

Requirements for the Major in German: The major consists of seven courses, of which one may be chosen from 51, 52 and the others from 205

205–402. Prospective majors, including those who begin with first- or second-year German at Bowdoin, may arrange an accelerated program, usually including study abroad. Majors are encouraged to consider one of a number of study-abroad programs with different calendars and formats.

Requirements for the Minor in German: German 102 or equivalent, plus any four courses, of which two must be in the language (203–398).

51. German Literature and Culture in English Translation.

Every fall.

Enrollment limited to 50 students. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

Berlin: Metropolis Past and Present. Fall 1991. Ms. CAFFERTY.

The cultural history of Berlin as a modern city and the urban roots of modernity. Berlin as nurturer, inspiration, and subject for literature, film, the arts, and popular culture. Three major periods of focus: nineteenth-century beginnings, Berlin of the 1920s, and divided Berlin. Major emphasis on literature and film. Authors include Fontane, Brecht, Isherwood, Schneider, Wolf, Müller, Fassbinder, Wiene, Lang, Sander, Wenders, and others. Films in German with English subtitles. Readings in English.

52. Myth and Heroic Epic of Europe. Spring 1993. MR. HODGE.

Myths, legends, sagas, and other folk literature of the Germanic, Celtic, Slavic, and Finno-Ugric traditions, e.g., the prose and poetic Eddas, Song of the Volsungs, Beowulf, Lay of the Nibelungs, the Mabinogian, the Cycle of Finn, the Cycle of Ulster, Marko the Prince, and the Kalevala. Where possible and desirable, comparisons may be drawn with other mythologies; mythological and legendary material may be supplemented by relevant folkloric, Arthurian, and semihistorical literature. In English.

101, 102. Elementary German. Every year. Fall 1991. Ms. CAFFERTY.
Spring 1992. Ms. O'CONNOR.

Three hours per week of training in grammar, speaking, composition, and reading. One hour of conversation/drill with teaching assistant or teaching fellow. Language laboratory also available.

203, 204. Intermediate German. Every year. Fall 1991. MR. HODGE.
Spring 1992. Ms. CAFFERTY.

Three hours per week of reading, speaking, composition, and review of grammar. One hour of conversation/drill with teaching assistant or teaching fellow. Language laboratory also available.

Prerequisite: German 102 or equivalent.

205. Advanced German Language. Every year. Fall 1991.
Ms. O'CONNOR.

Designed to increase oral fluency, compositional skills, and understanding of spoken German. Stylistics and idiomatic usages may be emphasized.

Prerequisite: German 204 or equivalent.

308. Introduction to German Literature. Every year. Spring 1992.

MS. CAFFERTY.

Introduction to methods of interpretation and critical analysis of works of German literature by genre: e.g., prose fiction, expository prose, lyric poetry, drama, opera, film, etc. Develops students' sensitivity to literary structures and techniques and introduces terminology for describing and analyzing texts.

313. The Development of Literary Classicism. Fall 1991.

MR. HODGE.

Begins with the reaction against the Age of Reason and continues into the later works of Goethe and Schiller.

Prerequisite: German 204 or equivalent.

314. The Romantic Movement. Spring 1992. MR. HODGE.

Its literary philosophy, several schools of thought, and preferred genres, including consideration of such representative or influential figures as Tieck, W. and F. Schlegel, Kleist, Arnim, Brentano, Chamisso, Eichendorff, E. T. A. Hoffmann, and Schopenhauer.

Prerequisite: German 204 or equivalent.

315, 316. Literature of the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries.

Fall 1992 and spring 1993. THE DEPARTMENT.

German literature from approximately 1830 to 1945. Such authors as Hebbel, Storm, Meyer, Keller, Hauptmann, Hofmannsthal, Mann, Kafka, and Brecht are included.

Prerequisite: German 204 or equivalent.

317. German Literature since 1945. Fall 1992. THE DEPARTMENT.

Representative postwar authors from East and West Germany, Austria, and Switzerland.

Prerequisite: German 204 or equivalent.

319. The Short Prose Form. Fall 1991. MS. O'CONNOR.

Unique theory, form, and content of the German Novelle as it has developed from Goethe to the present.

Prerequisite: German 204 or equivalent.

398. Seminar in Aspects of German Literature and Culture.

Every spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

Work in a specific area of German literature not covered in other departmental courses, e.g., individual authors, literary movements, genres, cultural influences, and literary-historical periods. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

Prerequisite: German 204 or equivalent.

German Film. Spring 1992. Ms. O'CONNOR.

Classics of German film from expressionism to the New German Cinema, 1920–80. Focus on both the historical context and film aesthetics. Directors may include Lang, Murnau, Wiene, von Sternberg, Riefenstahl, Herzog, Fassbinder, Sander, von Trotta, and Schlöndorff.

Requirements include attendance at film screenings outside class hours. Films in German with English subtitles. Discussions in German. Readings in German and English.

290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Courses within the department are divided into five fields: American government (Government 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 210–211, 250, 270, 301, 302, 304, and 341), comparative politics (Government 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 230, 235, 275, 280, 281, 320, 321, and 362), political theory (Government 225, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 250, 255, 341, 342, 343, and 344), international relations (Government 226, 227, 235, 260, 261, 270, 271, 275, 280, 282, 283, 284, 361, 362, and 363), and public policy (Government 203, 204, 210–211, 255, 270, 275, 301, 304, and 341). Every major is expected to complete an area of concentration in one of these fields.

The major consists of one Level A course, six Level B courses, and one Level C course, distributed as follows:

1. A field of concentration, selected from the above list, in which at least two Level B courses and one Level C course are taken.

2. At least one Level B course in each of three fields outside the field of concentration.

3. Students seeking to graduate with honors in government and legal studies must have an excellent academic record. Interested students should contact the honors director for specific details. Students must prepare an honors paper, which is normally the product of two semesters of independent study work, and have that paper approved by the department. One semester of independent study work may be counted toward the eight-course departmental requirement and the three-course field concentration.

Requirements for the Minor in Government and Legal Studies: A minor in government and legal studies will consist of one Level A course and four Level B courses from three of the departmental subfields.

Level A Courses

Government 100

Introductory Seminars

Topics and course requirements will vary from seminar to seminar and year to year according to the interests of the instructor. All are designed to provide an introduction to a particular aspect of government and legal studies. Students are encouraged to analyze and discuss important political concepts and issues, while developing research and writing skills.

Enrollment is limited to 20 students in each seminar. First-year students are given first priority; sophomores are given second priority. If there are any remaining places, juniors and seniors may be admitted with consent of the instructor.

[101. Comparative Politics.]

102. Caribbean Forms. MR. POTHOLM.

A look at the political landscape of the Caribbean Basin, with particular emphasis on the survival of polyarchal forms in the region, and a comparison of political ingredients found in a number of situations. Some relevant examples to be studied are Barbados, Trinidad, Haiti, Jamaica, Puerto Rico, and Grenada.

103. The Pursuit of Peace. MR. SPRINGER.

This seminar examines different strategies for preventing and controlling armed conflict in international society, and emphasizes the role of diplomacy, international law, and international organizations in the peace-making process.

104. Aspects of Comparative Politics. MR. MANNING.

An introductory examination of the principal features of political power in liberal democratic, communist/post-communist, and Third World political systems. The course compares and contrasts political dynamics, with special emphasis on political culture, structure and institutions, parties and elections, and the policy-making process, both within and across the three political worlds.

106. Aspects of Political Theory. MS. YARBROUGH.

Introduces students to the fundamental issues of political life: What is justice? What is happiness? Are human beings equal or unequal? What is the relationship between private property and liberty? Private property and justice? Are there moral standards that are prior to law? If so, where do they come from? Nature? History? Through a close reading of Plato, Aristotle, the Bible, Machiavelli, Locke, Marx, and Nietzsche, students examine the answers to these and other questions.

108. Liberalism Ancient and Modern. MR. FRANCO.

An introduction to political philosophy focusing on the fundamental contrast between the classical and modern horizons. After considering the "liberalism" of ancient authors, the course examines the foundations of modern liberal democracy and its impact in the United States. Readings include Plato's Apology; Aristotle's Politics; Locke's Second Treatise; The Federalist Papers; and Tocqueville's Democracy in America.

109. Sources and Types of Conflict in International Society.

MR. CALABRESE.

An examination of why conflict occurs within and between states, with particular emphasis on conflict in the Middle East (e.g., the Iranian revolution, the Lebanese civil war, the Arab-Israeli conflict).

Spring 1992

107. The Resurgence of the Islamic Religion and Politics.

MS. AYUBI.

An investigation into the nature and historical development of Islam to present times, with emphasis on the interaction between religion and politics in the Middle Eastern, African, and Asian countries.

160. Introduction to International Relations. MR. CALABRESE.

Identifies and explains patterns of interaction among nation-states. Focuses on developments since World War II, but many lectures draw on material from other periods. Such topics as the nature of humankind and the causes of war, revolutionary change, and the role of international law and organization are considered. Enrollment limited to 75 students.

Level B Courses

Level B courses are designed generally for students with a previous background in government and legal studies. All, unless otherwise noted, require that a student have taken a Level A course or have received the consent of the instructor. Course requirements will vary, but most courses at this level adopt a lecture format. All Level B courses are limited to 50 students.

[200. Local Governments.]

201. Law and Society. Spring 1992. MR. MORGAN.

An examination of the American criminal justice system. Although primary focus is on the constitutional requirements bearing on criminal justice, attention is paid to conflicting strategies on crime control, to police and prison reform, and to the philosophical underpinnings of the criminal law.

Prerequisite: Junior standing.

202. The American Presidency. Spring 1992. MS. MARTIN.

An examination of the presidency in the American political system, including presidential selection, advisory systems, the institutionalized presidency, and relations with Congress and the courts. Problems and techniques of presidential decision-making.

[203. Elections, Parties, and Interest Groups in America.]

204. Congress and the Policy Process. Fall 1991. MS. MARTIN.

An examination of the U.S. Congress, with a focus on the congressional role in the policy-making process. Topics include recent changes in the budgetary process, congressional procedures and their impact on policy outcomes, and executive-congressional relations.

210. Constitutional Law I. Every fall. MR. MORGAN.

The first semester deals with the development of American constitutionalism, the power of judicial review, federalism, and separation of powers.

Prerequisite: Junior or senior standing, or consent of the instructor.

211. Constitutional Law II: Civil Rights and Liberties.

Every spring. MR. MORGAN.

The second semester deals with questions arising under the First and Fourteenth Amendments.

Prerequisite: Government 210.

§223. African Politics. Fall 1991. MR. POTHOLM.

An examination of the underlying political realities of modern Africa. Emphasis on the sociological, economic, historical, and political phenomena that affect the course of politics on the continent. While no attempt is made to cover each specific country, several broad subjects, such as hierarchical and polyarchical forms of decision-making, are examined in depth. A panel discussion with African students and scholars is held at the end of the course.

[224. West European Politics.]

[226. Middle East Politics.]

§227. Ethnicity and Politics in South Asia. Spring 1992. Ms. AYUBI.

An examination of the historical, cultural, economic, and social forces that affect the political processes in India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka. (Same as Asian Studies 258.)

230. Soviet Politics. Spring 1992. MR. MANNING.

An introduction to the domestic politics of the USSR. Examines Soviet society in terms of political, economic, and social development, highlighting the failure of liberalism in Russia, the nature of Stalinist totalitarianism, and the explosive impact of Gorbachev's reforms. Focuses on changing institutions, the revitalization of political processes, the emergence of a civil society, and nationalism, with a view toward analyzing the consequences of Gorbachev's "restructuring" of Soviet society.

[235. Advanced Comparative Government.]

240. Classical Political Philosophy. Fall 1991. MR. FRANCO.

A survey of classical political philosophy, consisting mainly of a careful examination of Plato's Republic and Aristotle's Politics. The modification of Greek political philosophy in the Roman world (by Cicero) and its transformation under the impact of Christianity (by St. Augustine) are also considered.

241. Modern Political Philosophy. Spring 1992. MR. FRANCO.

A survey of modern political philosophy beginning with Machiavelli and passing through the social contract tradition as elaborated by Hobbes, Locke, and Rousseau. Examines the overthrow of the classical horizon, the movement of human will and freedom to the center of political thought, the origin and meaning of rights, the relationship between freedom and equality, and the separation of church and state.

[243. Idealist Theories of the State: Rousseau to Hegel.]

244. Liberalism and Its Critics. Spring 1992. MR. FRANCO.

An examination of liberal democratic doctrine and of religious, cultural, and radical criticisms of it in the nineteenth century. Authors include Burke, Tocqueville, Mill, Marx, and Nietzsche.

[250. American Political Thought.]

255. Approaches to Political Science: Quantitative Analysis in Political Science. Fall 1991. Ms. MARTIN.

An introduction to some of the methodological approaches used in studying political phenomena, including the use of quantitative methods. Topics include the benefits and limitations of various research methods, research design, measurement, survey research and public opinion polls, and basic statistical programs.

No prior experience in computing or statistical analysis is assumed or necessary.

260. International Law. Fall 1991. MR. SPRINGER.

The modern state system, the role of law in its operation, the principles and practices that have developed, and the problems involved in their application.

270. American Foreign Policy: Its Formulation and the Forces Determining Its Direction. Spring 1992. MR. SPRINGER.

The major theories concerning the sources and conduct of American foreign policy since World War II. The approach emphasizes the interrelationship of political, social, and economic forces that shape U.S. diplomacy.

Prerequisite: Sophomore standing.

[271. Soviet Foreign Policy.]

[§275. Advanced International Politics: Rich Nations/Poor Nations.]

§281. Chinese Politics. Fall 1991. MR. MANNING.

A basic introduction to contemporary politics in the People's Republic of China. A brief overview of Chinese history is followed by a survey of contemporary analyses of the Chinese political process. Emphasis is given to Chinese political culture, the major political institutions, current policy issues, and change in the post-Mao era. (Same as Asian Studies 276.)

282. Third World Security. Fall 1991. MR. CALABRESE.

An examination of the different definitions of security in the Third World, as well as the sources and manifestations of insecurity at the individual state and regional levels.

283. International Law and Organization. Spring 1992.

MR. SPRINGER.

An examination of the development of international law and organization in the area of global environmental protection. Topics include transboundary pollution, ocean dumping, and global climate change.

§284. Chinese Foreign Policy. Spring 1992. MR. CALABRESE.

An examination of the domestic and international sources, as well as the evolution, of Chinese foreign policy. (Same Asian Studies 277.)

Level C Courses

Level C courses provide seniors (and juniors, with the consent of the instructor) an opportunity to do advanced work within their fields of concentration. This may be done in the context of a seminar or through independent study with a member of the department, or through the honors seminar.

Requirements for the Major in History: The departmental offerings are divided into the following fields: Europe (may be divided into two fields: Europe to 1715 and Europe since 1500), Great Britain, the United States, Asia, Africa, and Latin America. In meeting the field requirements, courses in Europe between 1500 and 1715 may be counted toward early or modern Europe but not toward both of them. At least one field must be in Asia, Africa, or Latin America. Students may, with departmental approval, define fields that are different from those specified above. The program chosen to meet the requirements for the major in history must be approved by a departmental advisor.

The major consists of ten courses, distributed as follows:

1. A primary field of concentration, selected from the above list, in which four or more courses are taken. One of the courses must be numbered in the 300s, selected with departmental approval, in which a research essay is written.

2. Two supplemental fields, in each of which two courses are taken.

3. In addition, each student must take two courses in fields outside history but related to his or her primary field of concentration. These courses might be taken, for example, in art history, government, English, any of the language departments, anthropology, sociology, and classics.

All history majors seeking departmental honors will enroll in at least one semester of the Honors Seminar (History 451, 452). Its primary requirement is the research and writing of the honors thesis. In addition, the seminar is to provide a forum in which the students, together with the faculty, can discuss their work and the larger historical questions that grow out of it.

With departmental approval a student may offer for credit toward the history major, college-level work in history at other institutions. This work may represent fields other than those that are available at Bowdoin. A student who anticipates study away from Bowdoin should discuss with the department, as early in his or her college career as possible, a plan for the history major that includes work at Bowdoin and elsewhere.

The first-year seminars listed under History 10–25 are not required for the major, but such seminars may be counted toward the required ten courses.

Before electing to major in history, a student should have completed or have in progress at least two college-level courses in history.

History majors are encouraged to develop competence in one or more foreign languages and to use this competence in their historical reading and research. Knowledge of a foreign language is particularly important for students planning graduate work.

Each major must select a departmental advisor. A student should plan, in consultation with his or her advisor, a program that progresses from introductory to advanced levels. The courses numbered in the 300s presuppose a reasonable background understanding. They are open with the consent of the instructor to history majors and other students, normally juniors and seniors.

Enrollment in history courses numbered 50–299 is limited to 50 students each.

Requirements for the Minor in History: The minor consists of five courses, three to be taken in a field of concentration chosen from the list specified by the department for a major. The remaining two are to be in a subsidiary field selected from the same list.

East Asian Studies Concentration: Majors in history may elect the East Asian studies concentration, which consists of the following requirements: four courses in East Asian history, including at least one research seminar; two courses in a field of history other than East Asian; and four semesters of Chinese or Japanese language.

Foreign study for students interested in East Asian studies is highly recommended. Established programs in Hong Kong, Taiwan, Japan, and the People's Republic of China are available. Consult the instructor in East Asian history for information about various programs.

Course Selection for First-Year Students: Although courses numbered 10–25 and 101–102 are designed as introductory courses, first-year students may enroll in any courses numbered 201–279.

10–25. First-Year Seminars.

The following seminars are introductory in nature. They are designed for first-year students who have little background in history generally or in the period and area in which the particular topic falls. Enrollment is limited to 16 students in each seminar.

Objectives are (a) to cover the essential information relating to the topic, together with a reasonable grounding in background information; (b) to illustrate the manner in which historians (as well as those who approach some of the topics from the point of view of other disciplines) have dealt with certain significant questions of historical inquiry; and (c) to train critical and analytical writing skills.

The seminars are based on extensive reading, class discussion, oral reports, two or three short critical essays, and an examination.

- 11. Women in Britain and America: 1750–1920. Fall 1991.
Ms. McMAHON.
(See page 104 for a full description.)
- §16. History of Brazil. Spring 1992. MR. PINO.
(See page 105 for a full description.)
- §17. The Cuban Revolution. Fall 1992. MR. WELLS.
(See page 105 for a full description.)
- 18. The Vietnam War. Spring 1992. MR. LEVINE.
(See page 105 for a full description.)
- §22. Chinese Strategy. Spring 1993. MR. SMITH.
(Same as Asian Studies 22.)
(See page 105 for a full description.)
- §103. Asian Civilizations. Fall 1991. MR. SMITH.
An introduction to selected texts of South and East Asian civilizations, emphasizing Buddhist cultures in India, China, and Japan. Frequent short papers, several longer papers. (Same as Asian Studies 101.)
- 104. History on Film. Fall 1991. MR. NYHUS.
Explores topics in Renaissance history as realized visually by important modern directors. Considers such topics as urban life, the peasant family, the decline of feudalism and the rise of the modern state, witchcraft, and imperialism and the New World, as well as issues of historiography and the ways in which film as a medium both reinforces ideological assumptions about the past and calls them into question. Films to be screened include The Decameron (Pasolini), The Return of Martin Guerre (Vigne), The Seventh Seal (Bergman), Henry V (the Olivier version of Shakespeare's play), Day of Wrath (Dreyer), and Aguirre, the Wrath of God (Herzog). Ancillary readings include primary texts, among them screenplays, narrative history, interpretive history, film criticism, and essays on historiography and methodology.
- 105. Medieval Spain. Every other year. Fall 1991. MR. NYHUS.
A survey of medieval Spain serving as an introduction to medieval studies. Reviews the many cultures—Visigothic, Islamic, Jewish, and Christian—that flourished in medieval Spain and the relations among these cultures.
- 124. Music and Society during the Renaissance. Spring 1993.
MR. GREENLEE AND MR. NYHUS.
This analysis of music and society focuses on the interrelations between music and the church, class structure and social values, and on the differing concepts of the Renaissance in historical and musicological literature. (Same as Music 125.)

MR. STAKEMAN.

A survey of the history of African Americans as it is revealed through the autobiography, one of the first literary genres developed by African Americans. Uses the autobiography as a source to examine African-American thought and experience. Works to be covered include such classic autobiographies as Equiano's Travels, Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, Richard Wright's Black Boy, and The Autobiography of Malcolm X, among others. (Same as Afro-American Studies 102.)

[§161. The African Diaspora.]

(Same as Afro-American Studies 101.)

201. Ancient Greece. Spring 1993. MR. NYHUS.

A survey of the political, social, and economic history of Greece from the second millennium B.C. through the Hellenistic period. Focus on the fifth century B.C. Extensive selections of Herodotus and Thucydides, as well as dramatists, poets, and philosophers.

[202. Ancient Rome.]

203. Europe in the Middle Ages, 1050–1300. Spring 1992.

MR. NYHUS.

A survey covering political and social institutions as well as intellectual and cultural movements of Europe in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries.

206. Florence and Strasbourg during the Renaissance.

Spring 1993. MR. NYHUS.

An analysis of the economic, social, and political structures of two key cities of the Renaissance, together with the culture that made them famous.

207. Culture and Society in Sixteenth-Century Europe.

Spring 1992. MR. NYHUS.

A survey of Europe in the sixteenth century paying equal attention to Mediterranean and northern societies. Special focus on the relation of literature, art, and music to the study of societies.

211. Europe 1517–1715: Reformation to Louis XIV. Spring 1992.

MR. KARL.

The Reformation serves as introduction to the social, political, and intellectual development of continental Europe to the death of Louis XIV.

212. Europe 1715–1848: Enlightenment, Revolution, and Napoleon. Fall 1992. MR. KARL.

A survey of continental European evolution from the beginning of the eighteenth to the mid-nineteenth century, focusing on the role of the French Revolution in that development, and directed toward the problem of European community.

214. Europe 1939 to the Present. Spring 1992. Ms. TANANBAUM.

A survey of the last fifty years of European history, with a focus on the history of World War II, the origins of the cold war, the division of Europe, Eastern Europe under Stalinist rule, the revival of Western Europe, the Western Alliance, and the political and economic development of Europe since 1945. Special attention is also paid to cultural trends in East and West.

215. Nazi Germany. Fall 1991. MR. KARL.

After a brief survey of German development, considers the rise of National Socialism and concentrates on the character and nature of the Nazi dictatorship.

217. History of Russia to 1825. Spring 1992. MR. KARL.

A broad survey beginning with medieval Russia but concentrating on the rise of Muscovy, Peter the Great, and the development of autocracy and serfdom down to the Decembrist revolt.

218. History of Russia: 1825 to the Present. Spring 1993.

MR. KARL.

Begins with the reign of Nicholas I and focuses mainly on the long-term coming, course, and aftermath of the Revolution of 1917.

220. Judaism, Christianity, and Antisemitism. Fall 1991.

Ms. TANANBAUM.

An analysis of the persistence of anti-Jewish attitudes throughout history, with a special emphasis on the Hitler regime's attempt to destroy European Jews and their culture. Begins with an overview of the Greco-Roman world and medieval Europe. Concludes with an examination of the cultural phenomenon of antisemitism. Readings focus on primary texts and secondary analysis. Students have the opportunity to develop individual research projects. (Same as Religion 205.)

221. History of England, 1485–1688. Fall 1991. Ms. TANANBAUM.

A survey of the political, cultural, religious, social, and economic history of early modern England from the reign of Henry VII, the first Tudor ruler, to the outbreak of the Glorious Revolution. Topics to be considered include the Tudor and Stuart monarchs, the Elizabethan Settlement, the English Civil War, Oliver Cromwell, and the Restoration.

223. History of England, 1750–1990. Spring 1993.

Ms. TANANBAUM.

A social history of modern Britain from the rise of urban industrial society in the mid-eighteenth century to the present. Topics include the industrial revolution, acculturation of the working classes, the impact of liberalism, the reform movement, and Victorian society. Concludes with an analysis of the domestic impact of the world wars and of contemporary society.

229. The Growth of the Welfare State in Britain and America: 1834 to the Present. Spring 1993. MR. LEVINE.

A study in the comparative history of the ideology and institutions of the welfare state in two countries that are similar in some ways but quite different in others. Readings in the laws, legislative debates, ideological statements, and economic and sociological analyses.

230. Interpretations of American History. Fall 1991. MR. LEVINE.

Considers four or five topics from the American Revolution to the present, all related to social change, including the American Revolution, slavery, Jacksonian democracy, the cold war, and the philosophy of history. Students read different works on the same subject and in class discuss how and why historians come to different conclusions about the same subject. This course is particularly useful for history majors, since there is some explicit concentration on the philosophy of history and historiography. Nonmajors may find the course useful as a review survey of American history and for practice in reading analytically and writing critical essays. Students should not buy books before the first class, since not all students will read each book.

231. Social History of Colonial America, 1607–1763. Fall 1991. MS. MCMAHON.

A study of the founding and growth of the British colonies in North America. Explores the problems of creating a new society in a strange environment; the effects of particular goals and expectations on the development of the thirteen colonies; the gradual transformation of English, African, and Indian cultures; and the later problems of colonial maturity and stability as the emerging Americans outgrew the British imperial system.

233. American Society in the New Nation, 1763–1840. Spring 1992. MS. MCMAHON.

A social history of the United States from the Revolutionary era through the age of Jackson. Topics include the social, economic, and ideological roots of the movement for American independence; the struggle to determine the scope of the Constitution and the shape of the new republic; the emergence of an American identity; and the diverging histories of the North, South, and West in the early nineteenth century.

240. The United States since 1945. Spring 1992. MR. LEVINE.

Consideration of social, intellectual, political, and international history. Topics include the cold war; the survival of the New Deal; the changing role of organized labor; Keynesian, post-Keynesian, or anti-Keynesian economic policies; and the urban crisis. Readings common to the whole class and the opportunity for each student to read more deeply in a topic of his or her own choice. Preregistration limited to first- and second-year students. Others may enroll as room is available.

[§242. The Pan-African Idea.]

(Same as Afro-American Studies 201.)

243. The Civil Rights Movement. Fall 1992. MR. LEVINE.

Concentrates on the period from 1954 to 1970 and shows how various individuals and groups have been pressing for racial justice for decades. Special attention is paid to social action groups ranging from the NAACP to the SNCC, and to important individuals, both well known (Booker T. Washington) and less well known (John Doar). Readings mostly in primary sources. Extensive use of the PBS video series "Eyes on the Prize."

(Same as Afro-American Studies 241.)

§245. African-American Religion and Its Music: Redemption Songs. Spring 1992. MR. STAKEMAN.

Considers how specific historical contexts have shaped and reflected the development of a distinctly African-American church, theology, and folk religion by focusing on black religious music in the Americas. Examines the different interactions of African and European cultures which have produced a variety of African-American cultures, the social role of the black minister, the social stratification of black Protestant denominations, the social roles within church services, the social welfare functions of churches, and black millenarianism. Topics include slavery and the spiritual, the black peasantry and folk blues, urbanization and gospel music. (Same as Afro-American Studies 245.)

246. Women in American History, 1600–1900. Fall 1992.

MS. MCMAHON.

A social history of American women from the colonial period through the nineteenth century. Examines the changing roles and circumstances of women in both public and private spheres, focusing on family responsibilities, paid and unpaid work, education, ideals of womanhood, women's rights, and feminism. Class, ethnic, religious, and racial differences—as well as common experiences—are explored.

248. Family and Community in American History. Spring 1993.

MS. MCMAHON.

An examination of the American family as a functioning social and economic unit within the community from the colonial period to the present. Topics include gender relationships; the purpose of marriage; philosophies of child-rearing; demographic changes in family structure; organization of work and leisure time; relationships between nuclear families and both kinship and neighborhood networks; and the effects of industrialization, urbanization, immigration, and social and geographic mobility on patterns of family life.

[249. America's Working Women.]

Traces the historical evolution of the United States' southern neighbor, Mexico. After a brief look at the pre-Hispanic past, Spanish settlement and colonization, and the chaotic nineteenth century, a significant share of the course examines twentieth-century Mexico and its problems and prospects for the future. Among the topics to be explored: U.S.-Mexican relations, immigration and other "border" problems, the debt crisis, the oil syndrome, the future of the PRI in Mexico, and the impact of revolutionary movements in Central America on Mexico.

An introduction to the problems of modern Latin America, with emphasis on the twentieth century and the attempts by various social classes and their political leaderships to overcome underdevelopment through reformist and revolutionary means. A comparative approach is employed, focusing on five countries and one region: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico, Cuba, and Central America.

Most modern writers refer to a "traditional society" in Latin America that has proved remarkably resistant to innovation and social change. This course provides an in-depth analysis of the formative stages of this traditional society. Tracing the development of the new culture brought about by the fusion of European, Native American, and African elements, the course provides a better understanding of the rich and diverse heritage of Latin America. Topics to be discussed: ancient Indian civilizations; the transition from a conquest to a settler society; European institutions of domination and control (land, labor, and religion); the legacy of race mixture; tensions between Europe and the colonies; and the Wars of Independence.

An examination of the historical formation of one of the world's most politically volatile regions. The aim of the course is to go beyond today's headlines and trace the roots of turmoil in Central America to the area's colonial and neocolonial heritage and the implantation of liberal oligarchies in the late nineteenth century. Three countries that sought to break the mold of exclusionary politics and export-driven economic growth—Guatemala, Nicaragua, and El Salvador—come in for close scrutiny.

§255. Modern Latin America. Spring 1994. MR. WELLS.

Traces the roots of revolutionary discontent in Latin America from a Latin American, as well as a North American, perspective. This topical survey of Latin American history, from its independence wars through the calamitous nineteenth century to the unstable 1980s, explores the following topics: neocolonialism, dictators and the role of the military, U.S.–Latin American relations, imperialism, and the internal/external dynamic of revolutionary movements in the hemisphere.

Examines the comparative evolution of slavery from ancient times through the nineteenth century. After a careful consideration of a number of reference points from the Old World—Ancient Greece, Rome, and Christianity—the bulk of the course investigates slavery in Latin America and the United States. Topics include the nature of slavery; slavery, power, and the legal process; the slave trade; the family; religion; rebellions and everyday forms of resistance; and abolition and its aftermath. (Same as Afro-American Studies 256.)

Examines revolutionary change in Latin America from a historical perspective, concentrating on two successful revolutions, those of Cuba and Nicaragua, and one case of thwarted revolutionary action, in Chile. Popular images and orthodox interpretations are challenged and new propositions about these processes tested. External and internal dimensions of each movement are analyzed, and each revolution is discussed in the full context of the country's historical development.

259. The Modern Middle East: The Arab-Israeli Conflict.

Spring 1993. Ms. TANANBAUM.

A historical overview of the Middle East during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Focuses on the disintegration of the Ottoman Empire, the role of Islam, British rule in the region, Palestine, and Jewish and Arab nationalism, and ends with an analysis of the intifada, the Palestinian uprising.

An introduction to African political and economic development prior to large-scale European penetration of the continent. The principal focus is the relationship between economic growth and social organization in the Sudanic belt, Ethiopia, and Southern Africa before 1800. Topics include the growth of long-distance trade, the origins and structure of divine kingship, the expansion of slavery and serfdom, and the impact of Islam. Readings emphasize original African sources where possible. (Same as Afro-American Studies 261.)

MR. KILLION.

The roots of contemporary African economic dependency often are traced to the impact of the Atlantic slave trade during the period from 1500 to 1850. This course focuses on the slave trade from an African perspective, exploring the relationship between the trade and economic and political change in all parts of Africa. (Same as Afro-American Studies 262.)

§264. Muslim Africa. Fall 1991. MR. KILLION.

A survey of the growth of Muslim communities in Africa from the jihads of the seventh century through the twentieth century. Focuses on the development of Muslim trading diasporas, political systems, anticolonial resistance, and the impact of Islam on social relations and, particularly, the status of women. Much of the reading is selected from modern novels by African Muslim writers.

A history of the interaction between European colonialists and African peoples in the former Portuguese and British territories of Southern Africa from about 1500 to 1990. Focuses on the histories of Angola and South Africa, with particular attention to the recent nationalist revolutions in those two territories. The social history of migrant laborers in the mines and African townships is explored through recent novels and movies.

An exploration of the social impact of poverty and oppression in colonial and postcolonial Africa, with emphasis on the relationship between economic dislocation and new forms of social organization in both rural and urban settings. Topics include workers' organizations and strikes; women's oppression and struggles for emancipation; the social dimensions of the ecological crisis; peasants' dislocation by capitalist agriculture; urban immigration and new social organizations; and revolutionary movements mobilizing the rural poor. Readings are assigned primarily from African novels.

A history of the interaction between European colonialists and African peoples in the region between the Sahara desert and the Zambezi River. Focuses on the process of colonial conquest, the impact on African socioeconomic systems, the construction of colonial states, resistance and liberation movements, and the survival of colonial politico-economic structures into the postcolonial period. (Same as Afro-American Studies 267.)

§270. Chinese Thought in the Classical Period. Spring 1993.

MR. SMITH.

An introduction to the competing schools of Chinese thought in the time of Confucius and his successors. (Same as Asian Studies 270.)

Fall 1992. MR. SMITH.

Addresses material culture in China from ca. 400 to 100 B.C., while the great unification of empire was occurring. Topics include what people ate; how they wrote, fought, and built; how we know such things about them; and how this civilization can be compared with others. (Same as Asian Studies 271.)

An introduction to premodern China, focusing on the first half of the Ch'ing dynasty (1644–1911). Discussion of societal relations and their justifications: state organization, human interaction, ideology. Culminates in a day-long simulation of elite society in the eighteenth century. (Same as Asian Studies 274.)

[§275. Modern China.]

(Same as Asian Studies 275.)

§278. The Foundations of Tokugawa Japan. Spring 1994.

MR. SMITH.

Addresses problems in the creation and early development of the Tokugawa (1600–1868) state and society, including the transformation of the samurai from professional warriors into professional bureaucrats, and the unanticipated growth of a quasi-autonomous urban culture. (Same as Asian Studies 278.)

Problems Courses

Courses 300 through 373 involve the close investigation of certain aspects of the areas and periods represented. Following a reading in and a critical discussion of representative primary and secondary sources, students develop specialized aspects as research projects, culminating in oral presentations and written essays. Adequate background is assumed, the extent of it depending on whether these courses build upon introductory courses found elsewhere in the history curriculum. Enrollment in these courses requires the consent of the instructor and is limited to 16 students. Majors in fields other than history are encouraged to consider these seminars.

Problems in Early European History

- 300. The Social History of the Reformation. Fall 1992. MR. NYHUS.
A research seminar on the social structures of Germany, France, and Switzerland in the early sixteenth century, together with a study of the program of the reformers and the reasons for the popular reception of that program.

Problems in Modern European History

- 310. The Russian Revolution, 1917–21. Fall 1991. MR. KARL.
A research seminar open to any major, with a major research project. Preference given to seniors and juniors, in that order.
- 311. Nazi Germany. Fall 1992. MR. KARL.
A research seminar, with a major research project and paper. Preference given to seniors; thereafter, to juniors with History 215 or equivalent.

Problems in British History

- [321. The Victorian Age.]
- 322. Race, Gender, and Ethnicity in British Society. Spring 1992.
MS. TANANBAUM.
An analysis of multiculturalism in Britain. Explores the impact of immigration on English society, notions of cultural pluralism, and the changing definitions and implications of gender in England from the late eighteenth century to the present. Students undertake research projects utilizing primary sources.

Problems in American History

- 331. A History of Women's Voices in America. Spring 1992. MS. McMAHON.
An examination of women's voices in American history: private letters, journals, and autobiographies; short stories and novels; advice literature; essays and addresses. Research topics focus on the content and form of the writings as they illuminate women's responses to their historical situation.
Prerequisite: History 246 or 248, or consent of the instructor.
- 332. Community in America, 1600–1900. Spring 1993.
MS. McMAHON.
An examination of the ideals of community in American history, and the social, economic, and cultural realities of community experience, searching for both change and continuity from the seventeenth through the nineteenth centuries. Examines the formation of new communities on a frontier that begins along the Atlantic seaboard and then moves westward across the continent; the attempts to create alternative communities either separate from or contained within established communities; and the changing face of community that accompanied expansion, urbanization, and suburbanization.

333. Radicalism in Twentieth-Century America. Fall 1991.

Starts with the "Lyrical Left" before World War I, but concentrates on the Left between the wars, the fate of that Left, and the growth of a "New Left." Topics include the Communist Party, various sorts of socialism, the "New York Intellectuals," the "Non-Stalinist Left," and the shifting views of many radicals from criticism to support of the United States in the 1940s and 1950s. The growth of a new sort of radicalism during the civil rights and the anti-Vietnam War movements and the revival of a new Radical Right are also considered.

334. Research in Twentieth-Century African-American History.

Fall 1992. MR. LEVINE.

Bowdoin has extensive source collections on this subject: papers of the Congress of Racial Equality and of the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee; White House Central Files of Civil Rights during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations; F.B.I. surveillance records; and much more. This seminar involves research centering on this material. (Same as Afro-American Studies 334.)

Prerequisite: Any course in twentieth-century U.S. history. Preference will be given to students with previous background in Afro-American history.

[§335. The Afro-American Critique of America.]

(Same as Afro-American Studies 335.)

Problems in Latin American History

The first part of this seminar examines economic theories that historically have been advanced to explain the process of development (and underdevelopment) in Latin America. In the latter portion of the course, students test these theories by applying them to a specific economic problem currently facing Latin America.

Prerequisite: History 252 and/or History 255.

§351. The Mexican Revolution. Spring 1994. MR. WELLS.

An examination of the Mexican Revolution (1910–20) and its impact on modern Mexican society. Topics include the role of state formation since the revolution; agrarian reform; U.S.-Mexican relations; the debt crisis; and immigration and other “border” issues.

Prerequisite: History 252 and/or History 255.

§352. Land and Labor in Latin America. Spring 1993. MR. WELLS.

Examines some of the most significant conceptual problems related to Latin American agrarian history. Topics include pre-Columbian land and labor patterns; haciendas and plantations; slavery, debt peonage, and other forms of coerced labor; and the role of family elite networks throughout Latin America.

Prerequisite: History 252 and/or History 255.

§353. Topics in Latin American Social History. Fall 1991. MR. PINO.

An analysis of the complex ways in which sex, race, and social class are interwoven in twentieth-century Latin America, focusing on the notion of reproduction of social relations in an underdeveloped region. Examines the condition of women, family organization, race relations, and class conflict. Special consideration is given to the world of the Latin American urban poor in Mexico and Brazil and in the aftermath of revolution in Cuba.

Problems in African History

§361. Greater Ethiopia. Spring 1992. MR. KILLION.

A seminar on Ethiopian history from the Zxumite Empire (fourth century) through the revolution of the 1970s. Topics include medieval expansion, the role of Christian ideology, the development of a semifeudal economy, the autocratic state, resistance and partnership with European colonialism, and the revolutions and famines of the 1970s and 1980s.

Problems in Asian History

§370. Problems in Chinese History. Every fall. MR. SMITH.

Reviews the whole of Chinese history. Students develop their research skills and write a substantial research paper. (Same as Asian Studies 370.)

290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

400. Advanced Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

451, 452. Honors Seminar. Every year. THE DEPARTMENT.

Interdisciplinary Majors

A student may, with the approval of the departments concerned and the Recording Committee, design an interdisciplinary major to meet an individual, cultural, or professional objective.

Bowdoin has seven interdisciplinary major programs that do not require the approval of the Recording Committee because the departments concerned have formalized their requirements. These programs are in art history and archaeology, art history and religion, chemical physics, computer science and mathematics, geology and chemistry, geology and physics, and mathematics and economics. A student wishing to pursue one of these majors needs the approval of the departments concerned.

Art History and Archaeology

Requirements:

1. Art 101, 212, 222, and one of Art 302 through 388; Archaeology 101, 102, and any three additional archaeology courses, at least one of which must be at the 300 level.
2. Any two art history courses numbered 10 through 388.
3. One of the following: Classics 51, 290 (Independent Study in Ancient History); History 201 or 202; Philosophy 111; or Religion 240.
4. Either Art 400 or Classics 400 (Independent Study in Archaeology).

Art History and Religion

Requirements:

1. Art History 101, 110; Religion 101, 102, and 103. It is strongly recommended that Art History 101 and Religion 101 be taken before the end of the sophomore year. Art History 110 and Religion 102 and 103 should also be taken as early as possible. No other introductory course (10–199) in either department will count toward the major.
2. Three additional courses at the intermediate or advanced level must be taken in each department. At least one, but not more than two, must be an independent study with an interdisciplinary emphasis.
3. Also required are four appropriately distributed courses outside the art history and religion departments. Recommended are courses in studio art, philosophy of art, history, literature, or a science.

Within this framework, the student will design his or her own major in consultation with an advisor from each department.

Chemical Physics

Requirements:

1. Chemistry 101, 102, or 109; Chemistry 251; Mathematics 161, 171, and 181 or 223; Physics 103, 227, 300.

2. Either Chemistry 252 or Physics 310.
3. Three courses from Chemistry 252, 332, 335, 340, 350, 401, 402; Physics 223, 229, 310, 320, 350, 451, 452. At least two of these must be below the 400 level.
4. A working knowledge of computer language; this may be satisfied by Computer Science 101, Mathematics 244, or a demonstrated competence.

Computer Science and Mathematics

Requirements:

1. Six courses in computer science as follows: Computer Science 101, 102, 220, and 231, and two electives numbered 250 or above.
2. Mathematics 289, which is cross-listed as Computer Science 289.
3. Six courses in mathematics as follows: Mathematics 181, 222, 225, and 228, and two electives from among Mathematics 244, 249, 262, and 288.

Geology and Chemistry

Requirements:

1. Chemistry 101 and 102, or Chemistry 109.
2. Four courses from the following: Chemistry 210, 225, 226, 240, 251, and approved advanced courses.
3. Geology 101, 102, and 201.
4. Three courses from the following: Geology 211, 221, 222, 241, 256, 262, 265, and 278.
5. Physics 103 and Mathematics 161 and 171.

There are many different accents a student can give to this major, depending on his or her interests. For this reason, the student should consult with the geology and chemistry departments in selecting electives.

Geology and Physics

Requirements:

1. Chemistry 101, 102; Geology 101, 102, 241, 262; Mathematics 161, 171; Physics 103, 223, 227.
2. Either Physics 255 or 300.
3. Two additional courses in geology and/or physics.

Mathematics and Economics

Requirements:

1. Seven courses in mathematics as follows: Mathematics 181, 222, 225, 249, 265; either Computer Science 101 or Mathematics 205 or 244; and one of Mathematics 223, 224, 263, or 269.

2. Six courses in economics as follows: Economics 101, 102, 255, 256, 316, and one other 300-level course.

Latin American Studies

Coordinated by the Committee on Latin American Studies

Latin American studies is an integrated interdisciplinary program that explores the cultural heritage of Mesoamerica, the Caribbean, and the South American continent. This multidisciplinary approach is complemented by a concentration in a specific discipline. Competence in Spanish (or another appropriate language with the approval of the administering committee) is required, and it is recommended that students participate in a study-away program in Latin America. Upon their return, students who study away should consider an independent study course to take advantage of their recent educational experience.

The minor in Latin American studies consists of at least one course at Bowdoin beyond the intermediate level in Spanish, History 255 (Modern Latin American History), and three additional courses, two of which must be outside the student's major department. Independent studies can meet requirements for the minor only with the approval by the Latin American Studies Committee of a written prospectus of the independent study.

The Latin American studies courses below may also be used to formulate a student-designed major:

Mathematics

PROFESSOR JOHNSON, Chair (fall semester);
PROFESSORS BARKER, GROBE, AND WARD;
ASSOCIATE PROFESSORS FISK AND ROBERTS;
ASSISTANT PROFESSORS KNAPP, PEDERSEN, AND SHARPE

Requirements for the Major in Mathematics: A major consists of at least eight courses numbered 200 or above, including at least one of the following—Mathematics 262, 263, 286, or a course numbered in the 300s.

A student must submit a major program to the department at the time that he or she declares a major. That program should include courses in which the emphasis is primarily theoretical and courses in which applications are stressed. A student's major program may be changed later with the approval of the departmental advisor.

All majors should take basic courses in algebra (e.g., Mathematics 222 or 262) and in analysis (e.g., Mathematics 223 or 263). The department also encourages all majors to complete at least one sequence in a specific area of mathematics. Those areas are algebra (Mathematics 222, 262, and 302); analysis (Mathematics 243, 263, and 303); applied mathematics (Mathematics 224, 264, and 304); probability and statistics (Mathematics 225, 265, and 305); and geometry/topology (Mathematics 247, 286, and 287). In exceptional circumstances, a student may substitute a quantitative course from another department for one of the eight mathematics courses required for the major. Such a substitution must be approved in advance by the department.

Majors who have demonstrated that they are capable of intensive advanced work are encouraged to undertake independent study projects. With the prior approval of the department, such a project counts toward the major requirement and may, in exceptional cases, lead to graduation with honors in mathematics.

Requirements for the Minor in Mathematics: A minor in mathematics consists of a minimum of four courses numbered 200 or above, at least one of which must be Mathematics 243, 247, or any mathematics course numbered 262 or above.

Interdisciplinary Majors: The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in mathematics and economics and in computer science and mathematics. See pages 137–38.

Listed below are some of the courses recommended to students contemplating various options in mathematics.

For secondary school teaching: Computer Science 101, Mathematics 222, 225, 242, 247, 262, 263, 288.

For graduate study: Mathematics 222, 223, 243, 262, 263, 286, and at least one course numbered in the 300s.

For engineering and applied mathematics: Mathematics 223, 224, 225, 243, 244, 264, 265, 288, 304.

For mathematical economics and econometrics: Mathematics 222, 223 or 263, 225, 244, 249, 265, 269, 288, 305, and Economics 316.

For computer science: Computer Science 220, 231; Mathematics 222, 225, 228, 244, 249, 262, 265, 288, 289.

For operations research and management science: Mathematics 222, 225, 249, 265, 269, 288, 305, and Economics 316.

50. Topics in Mathematics. Every spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

Designed for students who wish to learn something about the spirit of modern mathematics and who do not plan to take other mathematics courses. Emphasis on the history and origins of mathematical problems; the development of the ideas, language, and symbolism needed to deal with those problems; and the ramifications and applications of the theory to current quantitative problems in a variety of disciplines. Topics are chosen from geometry, number theory, probability, game theory and optimization, graph theory, topology, and computing.

60. Introduction to College Mathematics. Every fall.

MRS. ROBERTS.

Material selected from the following topics: combinatorics, probability, modern algebra, logic, linear programming, and computer programming. This course, followed by Mathematics 161, is intended as a one-year introduction to mathematics and is recommended for those students who intend to take only one year of college mathematics.

75. An Introduction to Statistics and Data Analysis.

Every other spring. Spring 1992. MRS. ROBERTS.

Students learn to draw conclusions from data using exploratory data analysis and statistical techniques. Examples are drawn primarily from the life sciences. The course includes topics from exploratory data analysis, the planning and design of experiments, the analysis of normal measurements, and nonparametric inference. The computer is used extensively.

Open to students whose secondary school background has included at least three years of mathematics. Not open to students who have taken a college-level statistics course (such as Psychology 250 or Economics 257).

161. Differential and Integral Calculus I. Every semester.

THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to limits; the derivatives of rational functions and trigonometric functions; rules for differentiation; applications of differentiation to rates of change; curve sketching; extremal problems and linear motion; introduction to integration and integration by substitution; the Fundamental Theorem of Calculus; and applications of integration to the calculation of areas and volumes.

Mathematics 161 may be taken as either a lecture or a self-paced course in the fall semester, but only as a self-paced course in the spring semester. Open to students whose secondary school background has included at least three years of mathematics.

171. Differential and Integral Calculus II. Every semester.

THE DEPARTMENT.

The natural logarithm and exponential functions; an introduction to first-order differential equations; the inverse trigonometric functions; techniques of integration and numerical integration; improper integrals and l'Hôpital's Rule; infinite sequences and series; convergence tests; power series and Taylor series. Mathematics 171 may be taken as either a lecture or a self-paced course.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 161 or equivalent.

172. Differential and Integral Calculus II, Advanced Section.

Every fall. MR. WARD.

Improper integrals and l'Hôpital's Rule; infinite sequences and series; convergence tests; power series and Taylor series; complex numbers; separable differential equations; first- and second-order constant coefficient linear differential equations; and applications.

Open to students whose background includes the equivalent of Mathematics 161 and the first half of Mathematics 171.

181. Multivariate Calculus with Linear Algebra. Every semester.

THE DEPARTMENT.

Multivariate calculus in two and three dimensions, and an introduction to linear algebra. The calculus topics include vector geometry and the calculus of curves; differentiation; the partial derivatives of real-valued functions; the gradient, directional derivatives, approximations using the tangent plane, and applications to extremal problems; and multiple integration in two and three dimensions. The linear algebra topics include Gaussian elimination, matrix algebra, and an introduction to vector spaces with an emphasis on \mathbb{R}^n . Applications from the physical and the social sciences are discussed as time permits. Mathematics 181 may be taken as either a lecture or a self-paced course.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 171 or equivalent.

Spring 1992. MR. GROBE.

Topics include vectors, matrices, determinants, vector spaces, inner product spaces, linear transformations, eigenvalues and eigenvectors, and quadratic forms. Applications to linear equations, conics, quadric surfaces, least-squares approximation, Fourier series, and cryptography.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181 or consent of the instructor.

223. Vector Calculus. Every year in alternate semesters. Fall 1991.

MR. JOHNSON.

The basic concepts of multivariate and vector calculus. Topics include continuity; the derivative as best affine approximation; the chain rule; Taylor's theorem and applications to optimization; Lagrange multipliers; linear transformations and Jacobians; multiple integration and change of variables; line and surface integration; gradient, divergence, and curl; conservative vector fields; and integral theorems of Green, Gauss, and Stokes. Applications from economics and the physical sciences are discussed as time permits.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181.

224. Applied Mathematics I. Every year in alternate semesters.

Fall 1991. MR. KNAPP.

An introduction to the theory of ordinary differential equations with diverse applications to problems arising in the natural and social sciences. Emphasis on the rigorous development of the different methods of solution. Topics include first-, second-, and higher-order equations with applications in qualitative stability and oscillation theory, Laplace transforms, series solutions, and the existence and uniqueness theorems. A few numerical methods are introduced sporadically during the course. Knowledge of BASIC, FORTRAN, or Pascal is helpful.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181 or concurrent registration in 181.

225. Probability. Every fall. MRS. ROBERTS.

A study of the mathematical models used to formalize nondeterministic or "chance" phenomena. General topics include combinatorial models, probability spaces, conditional probability, discrete and continuous random variables, independence and expected values. Specific probability densities, such as the binomial, Poisson, exponential, and normal, are discussed in depth.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181.

228. Discrete Mathematical Structures. Every spring.

THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to logic, reasoning, and the discrete mathematical structures that are important in computer science. Topics include propositional logic, types of proof, induction and recursion, sets, counting, functions and relations, graphs, and program correctness.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 161 or consent of the instructor.

231. Algorithms. Every spring. MR. TUCKER.

The study of algorithms concerns programming for computational expediency. The course covers practical algorithms as well as theoretical issues in the design and analysis of algorithms. Topics include trees, graphs, sorting, dynamic programming, NP-completeness, and parallel algorithms. (Same as Computer Science 231.)

Prerequisites: Computer Science 102 and Mathematics 228, or consent of the instructor.

242. Number Theory. Every other fall. Fall 1992. MR. JOHNSON.

A standard course in elementary number theory which traces the historical development and includes the major contributions of Euclid, Fermat, Euler, Gauss, and Dirichlet. Prime numbers, factorization, and number-theoretic functions. Perfect numbers and Mersenne primes. Fermat's theorem and its consequences. Congruences and the law of quadratic reciprocity. The problem of unique factorization in various number systems. Integer solutions to algebraic equations. Primes in arithmetic progressions. An effort is made to collect along the way a list of unsolved problems.

243. Functions of a Complex Variable. Every other fall. Fall 1991.

MR. GROBE.

The differential and integral calculus of functions of a complex variable. Cauchy's theorem and Cauchy's integral formula, power series, singularities, Taylor's theorem, Laurent's theorem, the residue calculus, harmonic functions, and conformal mapping.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181 or consent of the instructor.

244. Numerical Analysis. Every year in alternate semesters.

Spring 1992. Ms. SHARPE.

An introduction to the numerical solutions of mathematical problems. Topics include computational aspects of linear algebra, approximation theory, numerical differentiation and integration, and numerical methods for differential equations. Students are required to develop Pascal programs for the topics covered; additional instructional time is scheduled each week for computer laboratory demonstrations and experiments.

Prerequisites: Mathematics 181 or 222, and experience with Pascal programming.

247. Geometry. Every other fall. Fall 1991. Ms. PEDERSEN.

A survey of classical Euclidean and non-Euclidean geometry. Neutral geometry: the common ground of both Euclidean and non-Euclidean geometry. Parallel postulates. Hyperbolic and elliptic geometry.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181 or consent of the instructor.

249. Linear Programming and Optimization. Every other fall.

Fall 1992. MR. JOHNSON.

A survey of some of the mathematical techniques for optimizing various quantities, many of which arise naturally in economics and, more generally, in competitive situations. Production problems, resource allocation problems, transportation problems, and the theory of network flows. Game theory and strategies for matrix games. Emphasis on convex and linear programming methods, but other nonlinear optimization techniques are presented. Includes computer demonstrations of many of the techniques that are discussed.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181.

262. Introduction to Algebraic Structures. Every year in alternate semesters. Fall 1991. MR. WARD.

A study of the basic arithmetic and algebraic structure of the common number systems, polynomials, and matrices. Axioms for groups, rings, and fields, and an investigation into general abstract systems that satisfy certain arithmetic axioms. Properties of mappings that preserve algebraic structure.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 222, or Mathematics 181 and consent of the instructor.

- 263. Introduction to Analysis. Every year in alternate semesters.
Spring 1992. Ms. PEDERSEN.

Emphasizes proof and develops the rudiments of mathematical analysis. Topics include an introduction to the theory of sets and topology of metric spaces, sequences and series, continuity, differentiability, and the theory of Riemann integration. Additional topics may be chosen as time permits.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 171.

- 264. Applied Mathematics II. Every other spring. Spring 1992.
MR. KNAPP.

A continuation of Mathematics 224 and an introduction to dynamical systems. Topics include series solutions and special functions, the applications of linear algebra and vector analysis to the solutions of systems of first-order linear differential equations, stability of linear systems, Green's functions and inhomogeneous equations, and nonlinear equations, with emphasis on stability of equilibria, perturbation theory, chaos theory, and a few numerical methods. Knowledge of a programming language is helpful.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 224.

- 265. Statistics. Every spring. MRS. ROBERTS.

An introduction to the fundamentals of mathematical statistics. General topics include likelihood methods, point and interval estimation, and tests of significance. Applications include inference about binomial, Poisson, and exponential models, frequency data, and analysis of normal measurements.

Prerequisites: Mathematics 181 and 225.

- 269. Seminar in Operations Research and Mathematical Models.
Every other spring. Spring 1993. MR. JOHNSON.

Selected topics in operations research and some of the mathematical models used in economics. Emphasis is on probabilistic models and stochastic processes, with applications to decision analysis, inventory theory, forecasting, and queueing theory.

Prerequisites: Mathematics 225 and 249, or consent of the instructor.

- 286. Topology. Every other spring. Spring 1993. MR. JOHNSON.

An introduction to both point-set and geometric topology centered on the fundamental notion of topological space and continuous function. Topics include fundamentals of point-set topology, with special emphasis on homeomorphisms, compactness, connectedness, and separation. Geometric applications include fixed point theorems, surfaces, covering spaces, the Jordan curve theorem, and an introduction to knots and links.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 263 or consent of the instructor.

- 287. Advanced Topics in Geometry. Every other spring.
Spring 1992. MR. FISK.
One or more selected topics from classical geometry, projective geometry, algebraic geometry, or differential geometry.
Prerequisite: Mathematics 247.
- 288. Combinatorics and Graph Theory. Every other spring.
Spring 1993. MR. FISK.
An introduction to combinatorics and graph theory. Topics to be covered may include enumeration, matching theory, generating functions, and partially ordered sets. Applications cover Latin squares, designs, computer science, and graph algorithms.
Prerequisite: Mathematics 171.
- 289. Theory of Computation. Every fall. MR. FISK.
The theoretical principles that underlie formal languages, automata, computability, and computational complexity. Topics include regular and context-free languages, finite and pushdown automata, Turing machines, Church's thesis, Gödel numbering, and unsolvability. (Same as Computer Science 289.)
Prerequisite: Mathematics 228 or consent of the instructor.
- 302. Advanced Topics in Algebra. Every other spring. Spring 1992.
MR. WARD.
One or more specialized topics from abstract algebra and its applications.
Prerequisite: Mathematics 262.
- 303. Advanced Topics in Analysis. Every other spring. Spring 1993.
One or more selected topics from analysis. Topics may be chosen from Lebesgue integration, general measure and integration theory, Fourier analysis, Hilbert and Banach space theory, and spectral theory.
Prerequisite: Mathematics 263.
- 304. Advanced Topics in Applied Mathematics. Every other fall.
Fall 1992. MR. KNAPP.
One or more selected topics in applied mathematics. Material selected from the following: Fourier series, partial differential equations, integral equations, calculus of variations, bifurcation theory, asymptotic analysis, applied functional analysis, and topics in mathematical physics.
Prerequisite: Mathematics 264.
- 305. Advanced Topics in Probability and Statistics. Every other fall.
Fall 1992. MRS. ROBERTS.
One or more specialized topics in probability and statistics. Possible topics include applied regression analysis, nonparametric statistics, logistic regression, and other linear and nonlinear approaches to modeling data. Emphasis is on the mathematical derivation of the statistical procedures and on the application of the statistical theory to real-life problems.

Prerequisites: Mathematics 222 and 265.

Music

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR GREENLEE, Chair; PROFESSOR SCHWARTZ;
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR MCCALLA (on leave for the academic year);

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR GIRDHAM;

VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR DAVIDIAN

Requirements for the Major in Music: Music 101 or exemption, 102, 201, 202, 203; Music 301, 302; one topics course (either Music 351 or 361); one year of ensemble performance studies; and one elective course in music.

Requirements for the Minor in Music: Music 50, 101, 102, one music elective at the 200 or 300 level, one year of ensemble performance studies, and one other elective in music.

All majors and minors are expected to complete at least one year of individual performance studies.

10. Words in Music. Fall 1991. Ms. DAVIDIAN.

(See page 105 for a full description.)

50. Introduction to Western Music. Fall 1991. THE DEPARTMENT.

For students with little or no previous training in music. Ability to read music or play an instrument is not necessary. The essentials of music—ways of organizing sound and time—are studied as they have been used in different periods and in the context of musical forms. Listening materials are drawn from a variety of sources: early Western music, Western music from the baroque through Romantic eras, and twentieth-century music.

101. Theory I: Fundamentals of Music Theory. Every year.

Fall 1991. Ms. DAVIDIAN.

For students with little or no previous training in music. A study of the organized systems underlying Western music: beats, meter, and rhythm; pitches, intervals, scales, chords, and keys; an introduction to chromaticism, modulation, and simple tonal forms. Training in aural competence, keyboard applications, and development of fluency in reading and writing musical notation are stressed. Three class hours plus one hour weekly in musicianship skills laboratory.

102. Theory II: Diatonic and Chromatic Harmony. Every year.

Spring 1992. Ms. GIRDHAM.

Study of diatonic and chromatic harmony and of large-scale tonal forms, emphasizing analysis and part-writing of music from the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. Three class hours plus one hour weekly in the keyboard laboratory.

Prerequisite: Music 101 or equivalent.

[121. History of Jazz.]

Music 131 through 139 are topics courses in specific aspects of music history and literature, designed for students with little or no background in music. Course titles and contents may change every semester.

134. Electronic Music: A Listener's Guide. Spring 1992.

MR. SCHWARTZ.

A survey of the history and literature of music composed by electroacoustic means, beginning in the early twentieth century, with primary emphasis on the period from 1948 (the first tape studio) to the present. Special attention given to collage and concrète technique; music by Stockhausen, Cage, the Beatles, Varèse, Babbitt, and Berio; voltage-control synthesizers; and more recent developments in computer sound generation and MIDI systems.

No prior experience in music or technology is required. This course is prerequisite to any hands-on studio course in electroacoustic music.

135. Opera. Spring 1992. Women, Politics, and Opera.

MR. MCCALLA.

The class studies a number of operas from the late eighteenth century to the present in which themes, characters, and operatic treatment involve women in political situations: Mozart, The Marriage of Figaro; Wagner, Die Walküre; Verdi, Macbeth; Donizetti, Maria Stuarda, and Thea Musgrave, Mary, Queen of Scots; Thomson, The Mother of Us All; and Adams, Nixon in China. The course considers not just the individual operas, but also changing historical perspectives, the relationship of dramatic focus and structure to more general social concerns, and the nature of musical narrative.

The course focus and specific operas studied may change from year to year.

136. French Music since 1830. Spring 1992. MR. MCCALLA.

A historical survey of French classical music from Hector Berlioz through Pierre Boulez. Emphasis on vocal music, or music with interdisciplinary connections. Special attention is given to the music of Claude Debussy (1862–1918) and other composers of the early twentieth century.

139. Contemporary Music. Fall 1991. MR. SCHWARTZ.

A survey of music beginning with the late nineteenth century (Wagner, Mahler, Debussy) and continuing to the present avant-garde, including impressionism, the twelve-tone school, the neoclassic movement, and recent developments in electronic, multimedia, serial, "chance," and collage techniques. Special attention given to Stravinsky, Ives, Cage, and the influence of non-Western music and technology.

No knowledge of music notation is required.

201. Theory III: Counterpoint. Every year. Fall 1991. MS. GIRDHAM.

Practice in contrapuntal composition in eighteenth-century tonal styles.

Prerequisite: Music 102.

202. Theory IV: Theory and Analysis of Late Chromatic and Twentieth-Century Music. Every year. Spring 1992.

MR. SCHWARTZ.

Study and formal analysis of styles representing the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries, including compositions by Debussy, Ives, Mahler, Schoenberg, Stravinsky, Hindemith, Webern, Cage, Babbitt, and more recent composers.

Prerequisite: Music 201.

203. Aural Theory. Every other spring. Spring 1993.

Aural study of melody, harmony, intonation, rhythm, timbre, and form, focusing on European music of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

Prerequisite: Music 102.

Music 301 and 302 are intended primarily for music majors and minors. Music 102 is prerequisite or corequisite.

301. Music History: Antiquity to 1750. Fall 1992. MR. GREENLEE.302. Music History: 1750 to the Present. Spring 1993.351. Topics in Music History: Romantic Music for Orchestra.

Spring 1992. MS. GIRDHAM.

A study of orchestral music after Beethoven until the end of the nineteenth century. Covers both music in the tradition of the classical symphony (by composers such as Schubert, Schumann, and Brahms) and more "progressive" orchestral genres, especially those incorporating program music. The writings of nineteenth-century critics and theorists provide a contemporary perspective on the striking stylistic and formal developments that took place in some eighty years.

Prerequisite: Music 102.

371. Composition. Fall 1991. MR. SCHWARTZ.

The creation of original music for piano, voice, and chamber ensemble, with special attention given to formal design, instrumentation, and a broad range of stylistic languages.

Performance Studies

Up to six credits of individual performance and ensemble courses together may be taken for graduation credit. Applied Performance Studies bear differing course numbers, depending on the semester of study.

235–242. Individual Performance Studies. Every year.

The following provisions govern applied music for credit:

1. Necessary for admission are two music courses. These should be taken concurrently with the first two semesters of performance studies (Music 235, 236).

2. Individual performance courses are intended for the continued study of an instrument with which the student is already familiar. Students may enroll only with the consent of the department. Students must take at least two consecutive semesters of study on the same instrument to receive any credit.

Admission is by audition only. Only students who are intermediate or beyond in the development of their skills are admitted.

Beginning with the second semester of lessons, students are expected to play in a Repertory Class midway through the semester, and must participate in Juries at the end of each semester.

3. One-half credit is granted for each semester of study.

4. The student pays a fee of $210 for each semester of study; this fee is waived for music majors and minors. In some cases, the student may have to travel off campus to receive instruction. Instruction is offered as available on orchestral and chamber instruments for which a significant body of written literature exists.

Instructors include Julia Adams (viola), Betty Barber (trumpet), Naydene Bowder (piano and harpsichord), Neil Boyer (oboe), Karen Pierce (voice), Ray Cornils (organ and harpsichord), John Johnstone (guitar), Stephen Kecskemethy (violin), Margery Landis (French horn), David Libby (jazz piano), Mark Manduca (trombone and tuba), John Morneau (saxophone and clarinet), Martin Perry (piano), George Rubino (bass), and instructors in flute and cello.

Ensemble Performance Studies. Every year.

221–228. Concert Band. MR. MORNEAU.

251–258. Chorale. MR. FREWEN.

261–268. Orchestra. MR. GREENLEE.

271–278. Chamber Choir. MR. GREENLEE.

281–288. Chamber Ensembles. THE DEPARTMENT.

The following provisions govern ensemble:

1. Students are admitted to an ensemble only with the consent of the instructor and, for those enrolled in chamber ensembles, upon the formation of a specific chamber group.

2. One-half credit is granted for each semester of study, and each student in the ensemble must be signed up for credit in the registrar's office.

3. Grade is Credit/Fail.

4. Ensembles meet regularly for a minimum of three hours weekly. Chamber ensembles are offered only as instruction is available.

5. All ensembles require public performance.

Neuroscience

Administered by the Committee on Neuroscience

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR ROSE, Chair;

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR DICKINSON (on leave for the academic year)

Requirements for the Major in Neuroscience:

I. Core Courses:

A. Biology Courses:

Biology 101: Introductory Cell Biology.

Biology 102: Biology of Organisms and Populations.

Biology 203: Comparative Neurobiology.

B. Psychobiology Courses:

Psychobiology 265: Psychobiology.

Psychobiology 245: Neuropsychology, or

Psychobiology 300: Psychopharmacology.

C. Psychology Courses:

Psychology 101: Introduction to Psychology.

Psychology 270: Cognition, or

Psychobiology 230: Perception.

D. Chemistry Courses:

Chemistry 225: Elementary Organic Chemistry.

E. Statistics/Mathematics Courses:

Mathematics 75. An Introduction to Statistics and Data Analysis, or Psychology 250: Statistical Analysis.

II. Additional Courses Required: Two from the lists below, at least one of which must be in biology.

A. Biology:

113: Genetics.

114: Comparative Physiology.

116: Developmental Biology.

261: Biochemistry I.

304: Topics in Biochemistry and Molecular Biology.

305: Neuroethology.

B. Psychobiology:

200: Comparative Psychology.

230: Perception.

245: Neuropsychology.

300: Psychopharmacology.

330. Advanced Seminar: Current Trends and Controversies in Psychobiology

C. Psychology:

210: Child Development.

260. Abnormal Personality.

270: Cognition.

271: Language: A Developmental Perspective.

310: Clinical Psychology.

361: Cognitive Development.

362: Infancy.

III. Recommended Courses:

Philosophy 225: The Nature of Scientific Thought.

Physics 103: Mechanics and Matter.

Sociology 251: Sociology of Health and Illness.

Philosophy

PROFESSOR CORISH, Chair; PROFESSOR MCGEE;

ASSISTANT PROFESSORS SIMON (on leave fall semester) AND SWEET

Requirements for the Major in Philosophy: The major consists of eight courses, which must include Philosophy 111 and 112; at least two other courses from the group numbered in the 200s; and two from the group numbered in the 300s. The remaining two courses may be from any level.

Requirements for the Minor in Philosophy: The minor consists of four courses, which must include Philosophy 111 and 112 and one course from the group numbered in the 200s. The fourth course may be from any level.

First-Year Seminars

Enrollment is limited to 16 students for each seminar. First-year students are given first preference for the available places; sophomores are given second preference. If there are any remaining places, juniors and seniors may be admitted with consent of the instructor.

Topics change from time to time but are restricted in scope and make no pretense to being an introduction to the whole field of philosophy. They are topics in which contemporary debate is lively and as yet unsettled and to which contributions are often being made by more than one field of learning.

- 11. Free Will. Fall 1992. MR. CORISH.
(See page 105 for a full description.)
- 13. Basic Problems in Philosophy. Fall 1992. MR. SIMON.
(See page 106 for a full description.)
- 14. Literature as Philosophy. Fall 1991. MR. MCGEE.
(See page 106 for a full description.)
- 15. Self and Self-Knowledge. Fall 1991. MR. CORISH.
(See page 106 for a full description.)
- 16. Moral Problems. Spring 1992. MR. SIMON.
(See page 106 for a full description.)

Introductory Courses

- 51. Philosophy and Poetry. Spring 1993. MR. CORISH.

A study of some recognized philosophical doctrines as they appear in poetry, e.g., the philosophical doctrines of Aquinas in the poetry of Dante, those of Duns Scotus in the poetry of Hopkins, the doctrine of metempsychosis in Wordsworth's Intimations of Immortality, Kantian doctrines in Coleridge, etc. Doctrines and poets considered may vary from year to year. We also discuss poetic techniques and expressions in philosophy, as, for example, in Parmenides and Plato, and devote some considerable time to a philosophical discussion of the nature of poetry.

- 58. Environmental Ethics. Fall 1992 and spring 1994. MR. SIMON.

The central issue in environmental ethics concerns what things in nature have moral standing and how conflicts of interest among them are to be resolved. This course examines the ethical theories and assumptions that inform the debates over this issue and in general over how to treat the environment. Specific topics to be covered include utilitarianism versus rights theory, the nature and justification of anthropocentrism, animal liberation and the rights of nonhuman sentient things, preservation of endangered species, the ethics of preserving the wilderness, the moral status of nonsentient living things, holism versus individualism, the land ethic, and attitudes toward land use. (Same as Environmental Studies 258.)

111. Major Philosophers of the West: Beginnings to Christianity.

Fall 1991. MR. SWEET. Fall 1992. MR. MCGEE.

The sources and prototypes of Western thought. Emphasis on Plato and Aristotle, with some attention given to the pre-Socratic philosophers who influenced them and to the Stoics and Epicureans. Medieval philosophy is more briefly considered, to show the interaction of Christianity and Greek thought.

112. Major Philosophers of the West: Renaissance to Idealism.

Spring 1992. MR. MCGEE. Spring 1993. MR. CORISH.

Some attention is given to the philosophic grounds of the scientific revolution and to the intellectual and moral response the new scientific view of the world evoked from the philosophers. Reading in five or six of the following: Descartes, Spinoza, Leibniz, Locke, Berkeley, Hume, and Kant.

Intermediate Courses

With the exception of Philosophy 200, intermediate courses are open to all students without prerequisite.

200. Major Philosophers of the West: The Nineteenth Century.

Fall 1992. MR. SWEET.

A study of tendencies in the nineteenth century that have had an important influence on contemporary thought: the situation of philosophy after Kant; the development of idealism through Fichte, Schelling, and Hegel; the decline and fall of reason from Hegel to Schopenhauer and Kierkegaard; dialectical materialism, utilitarianism, and the origins of positivism.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 112 or consent of the instructor.

221. Ethics. Fall 1991. MR. MCGEE. Spring 1994. MR. SIMON.

Various types of answers to the questions What is right for me to do? What ought to be done? and What is the good for man? are traced to their philosophic bases in historical and contemporary sources. The justification these bases provide is critically discussed, and some possible meanings of statements used to answer questions in morals are made explicit and compared.

222. Political Philosophy. Fall 1993. MR. SIMON.

Examines some of the major issues and concepts in political philosophy, including political obligation and consent, freedom and coercion, justice, equality, and democracy. Readings from classical texts (Hobbes, Locke, Rousseau, Mill) as well as contemporary sources. Time permitting, additional readings focus on contemporary criticisms of liberalism.

223. Logic and Formal Systems. Spring 1992 and spring 1994.

MR. CORISH.

An introduction to the techniques and applications of twentieth-century deductive logic. After a consideration of the traditional approach, including the syllogism, the following topics are taken up: propositions, truth-functions, quantification theory, predicates, relations, natural deduction, and the properties of formal systems (consistency, completeness, etc.). No background in mathematics is presupposed.

225. The Nature of Scientific Thought. Fall 1991 and fall 1993.

MR. CORISH.

A historical and methodological study of scientific thought as exemplified in the natural sciences. Against a historical background ranging from the beginnings of early modern science to the twentieth century, such topics as scientific inquiry, hypothesis, confirmation, scientific laws, theory, and theoretical reduction are studied. The readings include such modern authors as Gale and Kuhn, as well as classical authors such as Galileo, Descartes, Newton, Berkeley, and Leibniz.

226. On Love. Fall 1992. MR. MCGEE.

An examination of philosophic attempts to analyze and clarify the cluster of concepts signaled by terms such as "love," "friendship," "charity," "agape," and "fellow-feeling." Readings are drawn from some of the following authors: Plato, Aristotle, St. Paul, St. Thomas, Spinoza, Schopenhauer, Nietzsche, Freud, Ortega y Gasset, and C. S. Lewis.

231. Existentialism. Spring 1992. MR. SWEET.

An investigation of the major themes, both philosophical and literary, which characterize the existentialist attitude. The themes to be examined include the irrationality and absurdity of human existence; the problems of human freedom and choice, responsibility, and despair; and authentic versus inauthentic existence.

236. Environmental Analysis: Political Philosophy and Policy.

Spring 1992 and fall 1993. MR. SIMON.

Examines aspects of the environmental crisis, with special emphasis on political issues. Topics include our relation to and responsibility for nature in light of the present crisis; the adequacy of the conceptual and political resources of our tradition to address the crisis; the interconnection of scientific, moral, political, and policy factors; and the philosophical critique of methodological approaches such as cost-benefit analysis. (Same as Environmental Studies 236.)

Advanced Courses

Although courses numbered in the 300s are advanced seminars primarily intended for majors in philosophy, adequately prepared students from other fields are also welcome. Besides the stated prerequisite, at least one of the courses from the group numbered in the 200s will also be found a helpful preparation.

331. Plato and Platonism. Spring 1992 and spring 1994.

MR. CORISH.

A study of some of the principal dialogues of Plato, drawn chiefly from his middle and later periods, followed by a study of selected material from the later history of Platonism. The instructor selects the dialogues that will be read, but topics to be studied in later Platonism and Neoplatonism depend on the particular interests of the students.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 111 or consent of the instructor.

332. The Analytic Movement. Fall 1992. MR. SWEET.

An examination of the methods and developments of analytical philosophy from the last decades of the nineteenth century to the present. Topics to be covered include the problems of identity; the ontological status of complexes; the problem of universals; the debate concerning nonexistent objects; and the relationship between language and the world.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 112 or consent of the instructor.

335. The Philosophy of Aristotle. Fall 1992. MR. CORISH.

A textual study of the basics of Aristotle's philosophy. Aristotle's relationship to Plato, his criticism of the Platonic doctrine of Forms, and Aristotle's own doctrines of substance, causation, actuality, potentiality, form, and matter are discussed. Some of the Aristotelian disciplines of logic, physics, metaphysics, psychology, and political and moral philosophy are examined in terms of detailed specific doctrines, such as that of kinds of being, the highest being, the soul, virtue, and the state. Ends with a discussion of Aristotle's views of systematic research and his influence on subsequent thought.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 111 or consent of the instructor.

336. Spinoza's Ethics. Spring 1992. MR. MCGEE.

A detailed study of the text of Spinoza's major work, The Ethics.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 111 and 112.

337. Hume. Fall 1991. MR. SWEET.

A critical examination of the meaning and extent of Hume's skepticism, covering his epistemology and metaphysics, moral and political philosophy, and philosophy of religion.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 112 or consent of the instructor.

338. Kant. Spring 1992. MR. SWEET.

A detailed examination of The Critique of Pure Reason.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 112 or consent of the instructor.

340. Contemporary Ethical Theory. Spring 1993. MR. SIMON.

Important recent debates in ethics have called into question the nature and status of traditional ethical theories, the relation of ethics and science, and the very nature of morality itself. This course examines some of these debates through the writings of major contemporary theorists.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 112 or consent of the instructor.

341. Twentieth-Century Continental Philosophy. Spring 1993.

MR. SWEET.

392. Advanced Topics in Environmental Philosophy. Spring 1993.

MR. SIMON.

TEACHING ASSOCIATE ROBERTS

Requirements for the Major in Physics: The major program in physics depends to some extent on the student's goals, which should be discussed with the department. Those who intend to do graduate work in physics should plan to do an honors project. For those considering a program in engineering, consult page 34. A major student with an interest in an interdisciplinary area such as geophysics, biophysics, or oceanography will choose appropriate courses in related departments. Secondary school teaching requires a broad base in science courses, as well as the necessary courses for teacher certification. For a career in industrial management, some courses in economics and government should be included.

In any case, a major in physics is expected to complete Mathematics 161, 171, Physics 103, 223, 227, 228, and four more approved courses, one of which may be Mathematics 181 or above. In addition a major is expected to have a working knowledge of a computer language. This requirement can be satisfied by Computational Physics 250, Computer Science 101, or Mathematics 244, or by demonstrated competence. For honors work, a student is expected to complete Mathematics 181 or 223, and Physics 103, 223, 227, 228, 300, 310, 450, and four more courses, one of which may be in mathematics above 181. Students interested in interdisciplinary work may, with permission, substitute courses from other departments.

Requirements for the Minor in Physics: At least four Bowdoin courses numbered 103 or higher, at least one of which is from the set of Physics 223, 227, and 228, plus working knowledge of a computer language.

Interdisciplinary Majors: The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in chemical physics, and geology and physics. See pages 136–37.

Core Courses

(See also Adjunct Courses, page 160.)

- 103. Mechanics and Matter. Every semester. Fall 1991. MR. SYPHERS. Spring 1992. MR. EMERY.

Covers the fundamental constituents of matter, conservation laws, and forces and interactions from subatomic to molecular to macroscopic systems. Intended to give a broad overview of physics, introducing both classical and modern concepts. Three hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Previous credit or concurrent registration in Mathematics 161. Students who have taken or who are taking Chemistry 251 will not receive credit for this course. Open only to first- and second-year students in the fall.

- 223. Electric Fields and Circuits. Every spring. Spring 1992. MR. TURNER.

The basic phenomena of the electromagnetic interaction are introduced. The basic relations are then specialized for a more detailed study of linear network theory. Laboratory work stresses the fundamentals of electronic instrumentation and measurement. Three hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisites: A grade of least C in Physics 103 and previous credit or concurrent registration in Mathematics 171, or consent of the instructor.

- 227. Waves and Quanta. Every fall. Fall 1991. MR. LACASCE.

Wave motion occurs in many areas of physics. A discussion of basic wave behavior and the principle of superposition leads to a study of wave propagation and its relationship to coherence, interference, and diffraction. The wave model of the atom provides an introduction to atomic spectra. The laboratory work provides experience with optical methods and instruments.

Prerequisites: A grade of least C in Physics 103 and previous credit or concurrent registration in Mathematics 171, or consent of the instructor.

228. Modern Physics. Every spring. Spring 1992. MR. SYPHERS.

An introduction to the basic concepts and laws of nuclear and particle physics, covering the principles of relativity and quantum theory, particle accelerators, nuclear structure and reactions, and the behavior of elementary particles. The physics of radioactivity and the biological, medical, and ecological applications of radiation are given special emphasis through weekly laboratory exercises with radioactive materials and nuclear instrumentation. Three hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisites: A grade of least C in Physics 103 and previous credit or concurrent registration in Mathematics 171, or consent of the instructor.

229. Statistical Physics. Every other fall. Fall 1991.

MR. SCHMIEDESHOFF.

The course develops a framework capable of predicting the properties of systems with many particles. This framework, combined with simple atomic and molecular models, leads to an understanding of such concepts as entropy, absolute temperature, and the canonical distribution. Some probability theory is developed as a mathematical tool.

Prerequisites: A grade of least C in Physics 103 and previous credit or concurrent registration in Mathematics 171, or consent of the instructor.

300. Methods of Theoretical Physics. Every spring. Spring 1992.

MR. LACASCE.

Mathematics is the language of physics. Similar mathematical techniques occur in different areas of physics. A physical situation may first be expressed in mathematical terms, usually in the form of a differential or integral equation. After the formal mathematical solution is obtained, the physical conditions determine the physically viable result. Examples are drawn from heat flow, gravitational fields, and electrostatic fields.

Prerequisites: Mathematics 181 or 223, and Physics 223, 227, or 228, or consent of the instructor.

- 310. Introductory Quantum Mechanics. Every fall. Fall 1991.
MR. TURNER.
An introduction to quantum theory, solutions of Schrodinger equations, and their applications to atomic systems.
Prerequisites: Physics 227 and 300.
- 320. Electromagnetic Theory. Every other fall. Fall 1991.
MR. SCHMIEDESHOFF.
First, the Maxwell relations are presented as a natural extension of basic experimental laws; then, emphasis is given to the radiation and transmission of electromagnetic waves.
Prerequisites: Physics 223 and 300, or consent of the instructor.
- 350. Solid State Physics. Every other spring. Spring 1992.
MR. SCHMIEDESHOFF.
The physics of solids, including crystal structure, lattice vibrations, and energy band theory.
Prerequisite: Physics 310.
- 370. Advanced Mechanics. Every other fall. Fall 1992.
A thorough review of particle dynamics, followed by the development of Lagrange's and Hamilton's equations and their applications to rigid body motion and the oscillations of coupled systems.
Prerequisite: Physics 300 or consent of the instructor.
- 380. Elementary Particles and Nuclei. Every other spring. Spring 1993. MR. EMERY.
The phenomenology of elementary particles and of nuclei, their structure and interactions, the application of symmetry principles, and the experimental methods used in these fields.
Prerequisite: Physics 310.
- 400. Advanced Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.
Topics to be arranged by the student and the staff.
Prerequisite: Normally, a previous physics course at the 300 level.
- 450. Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.
Programs of study are available in semiconductor physics, microfabrication, superconductivity and superfluidity, the physics of metals, general relativity, biophysics, and nuclear physics. Work done in these topics normally serves as the basis for an honors paper.
Prerequisite: Physics 310.

Adjunct Courses

- 62. Contemporary Astronomy. Spring 1993. MR. HUGHES.
A generally qualitative discussion of the nature of stars and galaxies, stellar evolution, the origin of the solar system and its properties, and the principal cosmological theories. Enrollment limited to 50 students. Students who have taken or who are taking Physics 103 will not receive credit for this course.

63. Physics of the Twentieth Century. Every fall. MR. HUGHES.

Although the physics of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries enjoyed many great successes, there was by the end of the nineteenth century a growing awareness of the limitations of what we now call classical physics. This course traces the discovery of those limitations and the rise of modern physics. Topics discussed include the development of quantum mechanics and relativity, the origin and growth of nuclear and elementary particle physics, the rise of electronics, and those aspects of technology which have had a special relationship with physics.

Prerequisite: Ordinary secondary school mathematics. Enrollment is limited to 50 students. Students who have taken or who are taking Physics 103 will not receive credit for this course.

240. Digital Electronics. Every other fall. Fall 1992.

An introduction to the basic principles of binary circuits and digital electronics. Topics include Boolean algebra and logic circuitry, binary numbers and computation, memory circuits and information storage, digital/analog conversion, and circuits for timing and control. The structure of digital instruments, calculators, and computers is covered as time permits. Laboratory work with digital integrated circuits.

Prerequisite: A grade of at least C in Physics 103.

250. Topics in Physics: Physical Acoustics. Spring 1992.

MR. LACASCE.

An introduction to wave motion and wave propagation; the techniques and problems of physical acoustical measurements and their relation to the ear and hearing. Selected topics include noise and the control of noise, architectural acoustics, and normal modes.

Prerequisites: A grade of at least C in Physics 103, and Mathematics 161.

255. Physical Oceanography. Spring 1993. MR. LACASCE.

The aim is to provide a feel for the scope of physical oceanography. Among the topics covered are tidal theory, surface and internal waves, and the heat budget and its relation to the oceanic circulation. Some attention is given to the problems of instrumentation and the techniques of measurement.

Prerequisites: A grade of at least C in Physics 103, and Mathematics 161.

[260. Biophysics.]

262. Astrophysics. Every fall. MR. HUGHES.

A quantitative discussion that introduces the principal topics of astrophysics, including stellar structure and evolution, planetary physics, and cosmology.

Prerequisite: A grade of at least C in Physics 103.

290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Topics to be arranged by the student and the staff. If the investigations concern the teaching of physics, this course may satisfy certain of the requirements for the Maine State Teacher's Certificate.

Prerequisite: Normally, a previous physics course at the 200 level.

Psychology

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR SMALL, Chair;

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR ROSE, Director of the Psychobiology Program;

PROFESSORS FUCHS (on leave fall semester) AND HELD;

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR SCHAFFNER; ASSISTANT PROFESSOR LOVETT

The Department of Psychology comprises two programs: psychology and psychobiology. Students may elect a major within the psychology program, or they may elect an interdisciplinary major in neuroscience, sponsored jointly by the psychobiology program and the biology department (see Neuroscience, pages 151–52). The program in psychology examines contemporary perspectives on principles of human behavior, in areas ranging from cognition, language, and neurophysiology to interpersonal relations, psychopathology, and problem solving. Its approach emphasizes scientific methods of inquiry and analysis. The program in psychobiology examines the interrelations among biological, psychological, and environmental factors in the study of normal and abnormal behavior.

Requirements for the Major in Psychology: The psychology major includes a total of nine courses numbered 100 or above. These courses are selected by students with their advisors and are subject to departmental review. The nine courses include Psychology 101, Psychology 250 (taken during the sophomore year if possible), and an advanced course numbered 300–399. Two psychology laboratory courses numbered 260–279 must be taken after statistics and, if possible, before the senior year. At least one laboratory course must be numbered 270–279. Majors are encouraged to consider an independent study course on a library, laboratory, or field research project during the senior year. Any one or two of the following psychobiology courses may count toward the nine-course requirement for the psychology major, but not toward the laboratory or advanced course requirement: 200, 230, 245, 265, 300, and 330.

Requirements for the Minor in Psychology: The psychology minor consists of five courses numbered 100 or above, including Psychology 101, Psychology 250, and one psychology laboratory course numbered 260–279. Any one of the following psychobiology courses may be included in the psychology minor: 200, 230, 245, 265, 300, and 330.

Students who are interested in teaching as a career should consult with the Department of Education for courses to be included in their undergraduate program. Ordinarily, students of education will find much of relevance in Psychology 210, 214, 270, and 361; these courses cover the topics usually included in educational psychology. In addition, prospective teachers may find Psychology 211, 212, 271, and 320 compatible with their interests and helpful in their preparation for teaching.

Requirements for the Major in Neuroscience: See Neuroscience, pages 151–52.

Courses in Psychology

First-Year Seminar

- 20. Thinking and Problem Solving. Every fall. MRS. SMALL.
(See page 107 for a full description.)

Introductory Courses

- 101. Introduction to Psychology. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.
A general introduction to the major concerns of contemporary psychology, including psychobiology, perception, learning, cognition, language, development, personality, intelligence, and abnormal and social behavior. Recommended for first- and second-year students. Juniors and seniors should enroll in the spring semester.

Intermediate Courses

- 210. Child Development. Every spring. Ms. LOVETT.
A survey of major changes in psychological functioning from conception through adolescence. Several theoretical perspectives are used to consider how physical, personality, social, and cognitive changes jointly influence the developing child's interactions with the environment.
Prerequisite: Psychology 101.
- 211. Personality. Every fall. Ms. HELD.
A comparative survey of theoretical and empirical attempts to explain personality and its development. The relationships of psychoanalytic, interpersonal, humanistic, and behavioral approaches to current research are considered.
Prerequisite: Psychology 101.

212. Social Psychology. Every spring. MR. SCHAFFNER.

A survey of theory and research on psychological aspects of social behavior. Topics include conformity, language and communication, attitudes, prejudice and racism, social epistemology, interpersonal relationships, and group conflict. Class research projects supplement readings and lectures.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101 or Sociology 101.

214. Human Learning and Memory. Every other year. Spring 1992.

MRS. SMALL.

Empirical research and theoretical positions are introduced to examine basic principles of learning and memory. Emphasis is placed on the acquisition of knowledge and those factors that affect learning in the academic setting.

Prerequisite: Psychology 20 or 101.

222. Law and Psychology. Every other year. Spring 1993. Ms. HELD.

Presents topic areas where there is an interface between psychological and legal issues. The first half of the course emphasizes how psychologists can study and aid the legal process. The second half emphasizes the special concerns of the mental health professional within the legal system.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101. Enrollment limited to 30 students. No first-year students admitted.

225. Organizational Behavior. Every fall. MR. SCHAFFNER.

Examines the experience of work in modern human organizations through readings and discussion on six themes: the psychological aspects of working within organizations; the subjective experience of work; personality, emotive, and cognitive aspects of work; interpersonal influence, communication, and group dynamics; problem recognition and decision making; and how people within organizations perceive, interpret, enact, and resist change.

Prerequisites: Psychology 101 and junior or senior standing.

250. Statistical Analysis. Every fall. Ms. LOVETT.

An introduction to the use of descriptive and inferential statistics and design in behavioral research. Weekly laboratory work in computerized data analysis. Required of majors no later than the junior year, and preferably by the sophomore year.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101 or consent of the instructor.

260. Abnormal Personality. Every spring. Ms. HELD.

A general survey of the nature, etiology, diagnosis, and treatment of common patterns of mental disorders. The course may be taken for one of two purposes:

Section A. Laboratory course credit.

Prerequisites: Psychology 211 and Psychology 250. Enrollment limited to 14 students, who will participate in a supervised practicum at a local psychiatric unit.

Section B. Non-laboratory course credit.

Prerequisite: Psychology 211. Participation in the practicum is optional, contingent upon openings in the program.

270. Cognition. Every fall. MRS. SMALL.

An analysis of research methodology and experimental investigations in cognition, which includes attention, memory, comprehension, thinking, and problem solving. Laboratory work, including experimental design.

Prerequisites: Psychology 101 and 250.

271. Language: A Developmental Perspective. Every spring.

Ms. LOVETT.

Major aspects of how we produce and understand language are considered by examining research and theory concerning how language develops in both normal and atypical populations and how early language is similar to or different from adult language. Students design and execute research projects in weekly laboratory work.

Prerequisites: Psychology 101 and 250, or consent of the instructor.

272. Research in Social Behavior. Every spring. MR. SCHAFFNER.

A laboratory course on research design and methodology in social and personality psychology, focusing on a topic of current theoretical importance. Students plan and carry out original research.

Prerequisites: Psychology 211 or 212, and 250.

Advanced Courses

310. Clinical Psychology. Every fall. Ms. HELD.

The history and development of clinical psychology, including an emphasis on current controversies regarding ethical and legal issues. Major portions of the course are devoted to theory and research concerning psychological assessment and types of psychotherapies.

Prerequisite: Psychology 260.

311. History of Psychology. Spring 1992. MR. FUCHS.

An examination of the historical development of the methods, theories, and data of psychology as it has emerged as a field of inquiry, an academic discipline, and a profession in the past 150 years. Students have opportunities to explore topics of particular interest to them.

Prerequisites: At least three courses in psychology beyond the introductory level, or consent of the instructor.

320. Social Development. Every other year. Fall 1991. Ms. LOVETT.

The development of social behavior and social understanding from infancy to early adulthood. Emphasis on empirical research and related theories of social development. Topics include the development of aggression, altruism, morality, prejudice and racism, sex-role stereotypes and sex-appropriate behavior, and peer relationships, as well as the impact of parent-child relationships on social development.

Prerequisites: Psychology 210 and 250.

323. Political Psychology. Every other year. Fall 1992.

MR. SCHAFFNER.

An analysis of psychological aspects of political behavior, considering both prominent figures and the general public. Topics include the psychological foundations of politics; ideology and the structure of belief systems; activism and alienation; political socialization; power tactics; the rationality of political choice; leadership; social change; and psychobiography.

Prerequisites: At least three courses in psychology beyond the introductory level, including either Psychology 211 or 212.

361. Cognitive Development. Every spring. MRS. SMALL.

The development of mental representation and cognitive processes from infancy to early adulthood. Emphasis on experimental research and related theories of cognitive development, especially on the development of perception, memory, learning, comprehension, thinking, and problem solving.

Prerequisites: Psychology 250, and Psychology 210 or 270.

[362. Infancy.]

290. Intermediate Independent Study.

400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors.

Courses in Psychobiology

50. Mind and Brain: Historical and Contemporary Issues.

Every other year. Fall 1992. MR. ROSE.

What are the influences now and in the past that determine an accepted view of the biological basis of "human nature"? This course examines the interaction of historical, philosophical, sociopolitical, technological, and personal factors that preceded and led to modern views of our normal and abnormal behaviors. Contemporary issues include genetics and behavior; psychopharmacology; biology's role in defining aggression, crime, mental illness, and other problems; its role in determining social policy; and biological arguments in race and sex discrimination, as well as cross-cultural comparisons between Western and Eastern illness treatment systems (Asian medicine, acupuncture, shamanism, etc.).

- 60. Drugs, Behavior, and Human Society. Every other fall. Fall 1991. MR. ROSE.

An introductory survey of psychoactive drugs and plants, toxins, food additives, and other chemicals that alter human behavior as used in various cultures. Following a historical introduction and an overview of drug action mechanisms, each chemical group is discussed from the following perspectives: history of use, specific modes of action, physical and psychological effects, reasons for use (religious, recreational, industrial, etc.), cultural influences, and potential hazards and treatments. Topics include alcohol and other depressants, cocaine and other stimulants, psychedelics and hallucinogens, psychotherapeutics, medicinal plants, drugs and sports, drugs in food and food as drugs, environmental toxins, and contraceptives.

[200. Comparative Psychology.]

- 230. Perception. Every other spring. Spring 1993. MR. ROSE.

A survey of the basic phenomena and problems of perception and sensory psychology. Topics include psychophysics; coding of qualities such as color, form, pitch, touch, pain; the influence of early experience, attention, individual differences, culture, and altered states of consciousness; and an examination of abnormal perceptions (dyslexia, aphasia, etc.), including their diagnosis and treatment.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101.

- 245. Neuropsychology. Every other fall. Fall 1992. MR. ROSE.

An in-depth survey of experimental and clinical approaches in the study of brain-behavior relationships of higher processes, in normal and brain-damaged humans. Topics include assessment of normal sensory-motor, attentional, memory, and language functions by behavioral and neurophysiological techniques; higher-function changes during development and with aging; the sensory-motor and cognitive effects of damage to specific regions of the brain versus nonspecific, general brain damage; clinical studies as a clue to normal functions; and Asian versus Western approaches to structure and function of higher processes.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101 or Biology 101.

- 265. Psychobiology. Every spring. Spring 1992. MR. ROSE.

The biological correlates of behavior, with special emphasis on the neurosciences. Topics include neurophysiology, psychopharmacology, perceptual systems, brain mechanisms in sleep and wakefulness, normal and abnormal emotional behaviors, learning, memory, and higher functions, as well as the neuropsychology of brain-damaged individuals. Ethical and political implications of neuroscience are also discussed. Laboratory experience includes exposure to histological, neurosurgical, and physiological recording techniques in animals, but with the major emphasis on human electrophysiological recordings, to include central (EEG, evoked potentials), peripheral (EMG), and autonomic nervous system (EKG, etc.) measures, including biofeedback.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101 or Biology 101.

300. Psychopharmacology. Every other spring. Spring 1992.

MR. ROSE.

An advanced study of psychoactive drugs, their neural mechanisms of action, and their effect on animal and human behavior. Topics include experimental techniques in psychopharmacology; neuropharmacology; the role of neurotransmitters in appetitive behavior, learning, and memory; an in-depth analysis of depressants, stimulants, narcotic analgesics, antipsychotics, and psychedelics; drug addiction and treatment; ethnopharmacology, emphasizing nontraditional or non-Western medicinal/ritualistic uses of organic and inorganic substances; and implications of drug effects for neurochemical theories of behavior.

Prerequisites: Psychobiology 265, Biology 114, or Biology 203, and consent of the instructor.

330. Advanced Seminar: Current Trends and Controversies in Psychobiology. Fall 1991. MR. ROSE.

Considers current theoretical and research issues in selected areas of behavioral neuroscience. Topics may include recent debates on methodology and data analysis in neuroscience, the limits of reductionism in behavioral neuroscience (i.e., molar versus molecular reductionism as explanatory models), the use of animal models in biomedical research, basic versus clinical research designs for behavioral neuroscience analyses, cross-cultural research methods and designs in psychobiology, and ethnoscience. Emphasis is on critical evaluations of recent literature in psychobiology. Students are responsible for co-facilitating discussion, and organize a detailed critique of a selected topic area for an oral presentation and a related term paper.

Prerequisites: An upper-level (200-level or above) course in psychobiology/neuroscience and consent of the instructor.

290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Religion

PROFESSOR HOLT, Chair; PROFESSOR LONG;
ASSISTANT PROFESSORS GILDAY AND MAKARUSHKA

The Department of Religion offers students opportunities to study the major religions of the world, East and West, ancient and modern, from a variety of academic viewpoints and without sectarian bias.

Each major is assigned a departmental advisor who assists the student in formulating a plan of study in religion and related courses in other departments. The advisor may also provide counsel in vocational planning and graduate study.

Requirements for the Major in Religion: The major consists of at least nine courses in religion approved by the department. Required courses include Religion 101 (Introduction to the Study of Religion), Religion 102 (Asian Religious Thought; same as Asian Studies 101), and Religion 103 (Introduction to Western Religious Thought); two courses at the 200 level in Western, East Asian, or South Asian religions; and one advanced topics seminar numbered 390 or higher.

No more than four courses below the 200 level, including one first-year seminar, may be counted toward the major. Religion 101, 102, or 103 normally should be taken by the end of the sophomore year. Concurrent enrollment among these three courses is permissible. In order to enroll in the 390-level seminar, a major normally will be expected to have taken five of the nine required courses. This seminar is also open to qualified nonmajors with permission of the instructor.

Interdisciplinary Major: The department participates in an interdisciplinary program in art history and religion. See page 136.

Independent Study: A student proposing to undertake an independent study project under the supervision of a faculty member of the department must submit, not later than April 1 or November 1 of the semester before he or she wishes to pursue the project, a plan for it on a form to be obtained from the department. The department faculty will review applications and only on the basis of its approval may the project be undertaken. This regulation also applies to honors proposals.

Honors in Religion: Students contemplating honors candidacy should possess a record of distinction in departmental courses, including those that support the project, a clearly articulated and well-focused research proposal, and a high measure of motivation and scholarly maturity. It is recommended that such students incorporate work in the majors' seminar (Religion 390) as part of their honors project or complete two semesters of independent study in preparing research papers for honors consideration.

Requirements for the Minor in Religion: A minor consists of five courses—Religion 101, two intermediate-level (200) courses from a core area, and two more courses at the 200 level or higher. Among these electives beyond Religion 101, at least one course shall be in Western religions and one in Asian religions.

First-Year Seminars

These courses are introductory in nature, focusing on the study of a specific aspect of religion, and may draw on other fields of learning. They are not intended as prerequisites for more advanced courses in the department unless specifically designated as such. They include readings, discussions, reports, and writing. Topics change from time to time to reflect emerging or debated issues in the study of religion.

Enrollment is limited to 16 students for each seminar. First-year students are given priority for available spaces. Seminars may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

- §17. Japanese Mythology. Fall 1991. MR. GILDAY.
 (Same as Asian Studies 17.)
 (See page 107 for a full description.)

Introductory Courses

101. Introduction to the Study of Religion. Fall 1991. MR. LONG.
 Spring 1992. MS. MAKARUSHKA.

Basic concepts, methods, and issues in the study of religion, with special reference to examples comparing and contrasting Eastern and Western religions. Lectures, discussions, and readings in classic texts and modern interpretations.

- §102. Asian Religious Thought. Spring 1992. MR. GILDAY.

A comparative study of traditional religious, social, and cultural values and practices in South and East Asia as expressed in classical as well as modern literature, ritual, and art. Emphasis is placed on the ideals of (and the relationships between) the individual, the family, the community, and the state. (Same as Asian Studies 101.)

103. Introduction to Western Religious Thought. Fall 1991.
 MS. MAKARUSHKA.

An examination of various expressions of Western religious thought through such genres as treatise, dialogue, autobiography, myth, ritual, art, and poetry arising from the forms of life in individual and communal religious experience.

Intermediate Courses

200. Jewish Origins. Fall 1992. MR. LONG.

A comparative study of the varieties of Judaism in late antiquity. Readings and discussions of various primary sources, including the Bible, Talmud, Midrash, and Dead Sea Scrolls, along with modern interpretations.

Prerequisite: Religion 101 or 103, or consent of the instructor.

201. Christian Origins. Spring 1993. MR. LONG.

A comparative study of the varieties of Christianity in late antiquity. Readings and discussions of various primary sources, including the New Testament and nonbiblical writings, along with modern interpretations.

Prerequisite: Religion 101 or 103, or consent of the instructor.

202. Christianity. Spring 1992. MR. LONG.

The varieties of Christian experience and expression; patterns and structures of Christian life such as conversion, creed, ritual dramas, and church. Attention is paid to historical developments, continuities, and change, as well as to modern realities of particular import for Christianity, such as cultural pluralism, disbelief, and liberationist movements.

Prerequisites: Any 100-level course in religion, or consent of the instructor.

203. Judaism. Fall 1991. MR. LONG.

Varieties of Jewish experience and expression in lifestyles of Torah, philosophy, and mysticism. Historical developments, continuity, and change. Modulation of traditional practice and interpretation under the press of developments such as the Nazi Holocaust, secular and religious Zionisms, and liberationist movements.

Prerequisite: Any 100-level course in religion, or consent of the instructor.

204. The Bible in Literary Focus. Spring 1992. MR. LONG.

A study of selected narratives and poems, with emphasis on the diverse imaginative worlds of the Bible and, accordingly, on various modern approaches to literary study. Attention is also given to the Bible as a wellspring of images and motifs for Western literary artists. (Same as English 103.)

205. Judaism, Christianity, and Antisemitism. Fall 1991.

Ms. TANANBAUM.

An analysis of the persistence of anti-Jewish attitudes throughout history, with special emphasis on the Hitler regime's attempt to destroy European Jews and their culture. Begins with an overview of the Greco-Roman world and medieval Europe. Concludes with an examination of the cultural phenomenon of antisemitism. Readings focus on primary texts and secondary analysis. Students have the opportunity to develop individual research projects. (Same as History 220.)

Analytic study of religious thought and practice in the formative period of Hinduism as these are reflected in the Vedas, the Upanishads, the Yoga Sutras, the Bhagavad Gita, and the theological and philosophical expositions of Sankara and Ramanuja. (Same as Asian Studies 240.)

MR. HOLT.

Critical study of the popular character of traditional devotional Hinduism as it emerges in the mythologies of the Puranas, in iconography and in the poetry and songs of the sant traditions of medieval India. Concomitant consideration of Islam and the emergence of the Sikh tradition, culminating in a study of the nineteenth- and twentieth-century "Hindu renaissance." (Same as Asian Studies 241.)

Prerequisite: Religion 220 recommended.

§223. Buddhism, Culture, and Society. Spring 1992. MR. HOLT.

A study of the ways in which Buddhist religious sentiments are expressed aesthetically and politically within the social and cultural histories of India, Sri Lanka, and Burma. Emphasis on the transformation of Buddhism from a world-renouncing ethic to a foundational ideology of society and culture. (Same as Asian Studies 243.)

A historical introduction to the religious culture of premodern Japan, from the archaic age of myth and magic to the collapse of civil order in the fifteenth century. Classic literary, religious, and historiographic texts are used to focus attention on perennial themes in the history of Japanese religion. (Same as Asian Studies 285.)

An introduction to the major trajectories of Japanese religion and culture from the sixteenth to the twentieth century, with particular attention to problems of continuity, change, and interpretation during the modern era. (Same as Asian Studies 286.)

250. Western Religion and Its Critics. Spring 1992.

MS. MAKARUSHKA.

Modern challenges to belief in God from Hume, Darwin, Feuerbach, Marx, Nietzsche, and Freud.

Prerequisite: Religion 101 or 103, or consent of the instructor.

251. Problems in Contemporary Religious Thought. Fall 1992.

MS. MAKARUSHKA.

Focus on the concept and existence of God, the problem of evil, faith and reason, and human destiny, addressed through comparison of Jewish and Christian thinkers.

Prerequisite: Religion 101 or 103, or consent of the instructor.

252. Religions in America. Spring 1993. Ms. MAKARUSHKA.

This course explores the variety of expressions of religious experience in the United States. Religious experience is understood as a human phenomenon engaged in creating meaning. A critical assessment of religious expressions is central to understanding the development of contemporary American cultures and values. The course begins with a study of the traditions that precede the European invasion and continues through those of the present day. Traditions to be explored include Native American and African-American traditions; representative forms of Judaism, Protestantism, Catholicism, and Islam; Asian religions; civil religion; women's religions; and utopian communities.

253. Religion, Women, and Nature. Fall 1991. Ms. MAKARUSHKA.

Explores the relationship between religion, Western attitudes toward nature, and women's experience. Questions the underlying assumptions that determine the cultural definitions of creation, human nature, and the natural world. Feminist and ecofeminist writings provide the basis for rethinking the traditional view that women are associated with nature and men with culture. Questions concerning the interdependence of nature and culture, the attitudes of domination and participation, and the ethics of power are raised.

255. African-American Religion and Its Music: Redemption

Songs. Spring 1992. Mr. STAKEMAN.

Advanced Courses

The following courses study in depth a topic of limited scope but major importance, such as one or two individuals, a movement, type, concept, problem, historical period, or theme. Topics change from time to time. Courses may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

390. Theories about Religion. Fall 1991. Mr. HOLT.

A seminar investigating the various ways in which religion has been understood theoretically (non-apologetically) in the intellectual traditions of the West from the sixteenth century to the present. Readings include works of Freud, Durkheim (and their European predecessors), Weber, Marx, James, Eliade, and Geertz, among others. Emphasis is placed on developing one's own theoretical approach to religious phenomena. A substantial seminar paper is required.

Prerequisite: Religion 101 or consent of the instructor.

290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

 VISITING INSTRUCTOR TIRADO; LECTURER PELLEGRINI; TEACHING FELLOWS GOURLAQUEN, MAITRE, AND SANTACRUZ PEREZ

The Department of Romance Languages offers courses in French, Spanish, and Italian language and literature. Native speakers are involved in most language courses. Literature courses are conducted in the respective language.

Study Abroad: A period of study in an appropriate country, usually in the junior year, is strongly encouraged for all students of language. Bowdoin College is affiliated with a wide range of programs abroad, and interested students should seek the advice of a member of the department early in their sophomore year.

Independent Study: This is an option primarily intended for students who are working on honors projects. It is also available to students who have taken advantage of the regular course offerings and wish to work more closely on a particular topic. Independent study is not an alternative to regular course work. An application should be made to a member of the department prior to the semester in which the project is to be undertaken and must involve a specific proposal in an area in which the student can already demonstrate basic knowledge.

Honors in Romance Languages: Majors may elect to write an honors project in the department. This involves two semesters of independent study in the senior year and the writing of an honors essay and its defense before a committee of members of the department. Candidates for department honors should also have a strong record in other courses in the department.

Requirements for the Major in Romance Languages: The major consists of eight courses more advanced than French, Spanish, or Italian 204. In French and Spanish these will normally be 205, 209, 311, 312, and four other courses. The major may consist entirely of courses in either French or Spanish, or it may involve a combination of courses in French, Spanish, and Italian. It is expected that majors who are not writing an honors project will enroll in a topics course in their senior year. No more than two courses may be in independent study, and no fewer than four Bowdoin courses should be taken. Prospective majors are expected to have completed French or Spanish 205 and 209 before the end of their sophomore year.

Requirements for the Minor in Romance Languages: The minor consists of three Bowdoin courses in one language above 204.

Placement: Students who plan to take French or Spanish must take the appropriate placement test at the beginning of the fall semester.

400. Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Russian

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR MILLER, Chair;
 PROFESSOR KNOX (on leave for academic year);
 VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR LI;
 TEACHING FELLOW SHULSKY

Requirements for the Major in Russian Language and Literature:

The Russian major consists of ten courses (eleven for honors). These include Russian 101, 102 and 203, 204; five courses in Russian above Russian 204; and one approved course in either Russian literature in translation or Slavic civilization, or an approved related course in government, history, or economics (Economics 214; Government 230, 235, and 271; History 217 and 218).

Study Abroad: Students are encouraged to spend at least one semester in the Soviet Union. At least two advanced Russian students will be chosen each year to study for two semesters in the Soviet Union as part of the Consortium of American Colleges exchange (interested students should consult the Russian department faculty or the dean of the College). Other approved one-semester Russian language programs in Moscow and Leningrad are open to all students who have taken the equivalent of three years of Russian (two years for a summer program).

Advanced Independent Study: This is an option intended primarily for students who are working on honors projects. It is also available to students who have taken advantage of the regular course offerings and wish to work more closely on a particular topic. Independent study is not an alternative to regular course work. An application should be made to a member of the department prior to the semester in which the project is to be undertaken and must involve a specific proposal in an area in which the student can already demonstrate basic knowledge. Two semesters of advanced independent studies are required for honors in Russian.

Requirements for the Minor in Russian: The minor consists of seven courses (including the first two years of Russian).

101, 102. Elementary Russian. Every year. MR. MILLER.

Emphasis on the acquisition of language skills through imitation and repetition of basic language patterns; the development of facility in speaking and understanding simple Russian. Conversation hour with native speaker.

203, 204. Intermediate Russian. Every year. MR. MILLER.

A continuation of Russian 101, 102. Emphasis on maintaining and improving the student's facility in speaking and understanding normal conversational Russian. Writing and reading skills are also stressed. Conversation hour with native speaker.

Prerequisite: Russian 101, 102.

305. Advanced Reading and Composition in Russian. Every fall.

Ms. LI.

Intended to develop the ability to read Russian at a sophisticated level by combining selected language and literature readings, grammar review, and analysis of Russian word-formation. Discussion and reports in Russian. Conversation hour with native speaker.

Prerequisite: Russian 203, 204.

309. Nineteenth-Century Russian Literature. Fall 1991. Ms. LI.

A survey of Russian literature of the nineteenth century. Special attention is paid to the genres of the short story and the povest' (short novel) of writers such as Pushkin, Lermontov, Gogol, Dostoevsky, and Tolstoy.

Prerequisite: Russian 305.

310. Modern Russian Literature. Spring 1992. Ms. LI.

An examination of various works of modern Russian literature (Soviet and émigré), with emphasis on the development of the short story and the skaz (folk tale). The differences and similarities between prerevolutionary and contemporary Soviet literature are discussed. Authors to be studied include Blok, Mayakovsky, Zoshchenko, Platonov, Bulgakov, Pasternak, Brodsky, Shukshin, Akhmatova, and others. Short term papers. Conducted in Russian.

Prerequisite: Russian 305.

315. Translation of Russian Prose. Fall 1992. MR. MILLER.

This course focuses on the translation of Russian prose into English. Texts are selected from nineteenth- and twentieth-century memoirs, political tracts, scholarly texts, and at least one piece of belles lettres. Attention is given to different theories of translation and typical translation strategies; Russian grammatical structures and word groups that are especially difficult to render into English; and the cultural significance of assigned texts. Class discussion is conducted in Russian.

Prerequisite: Russian 305 or consent of the instructor. (May be taken concurrently with Russian 305 with consent of the instructor.)

316. Topics in Literature.

Specific literary genres or authors not covered in the other courses. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

Russian Poetry. Spring 1993. Ms. KNOX.

Comparative study of various nineteenth-century Russian poets, including Baratynsky, Pushkin, Lermontov, and Tyutchev; and selections from eighteenth-century poetry (Lomonosov and Derzhavin), as well as verse from the twentieth century (Mandelstam, Mayakovsky, Brodsky). Includes discussion of Russian poetics and the cultural-historical context of each poem. Reading and discussion are in Russian.

Prerequisite: Russian 305 or equivalent.

290. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Upon demand, this course may be conducted as a small seminar for several students in areas not covered in the above courses, such as Soviet media. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

Prerequisite: Russian 305 or equivalent.

400. Advanced Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Individual research in Russian studies. Major sources should be read in Russian. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed. A two-semester project is necessary for honors in Russian.

Prerequisite: Russian 309 or 310.

In English Translation

§215. Slavic Civilization. Every other year. Spring 1993. MR. MILLER.

An introduction to Slavic Eastern Europe, its ethnic and linguistic background, its ancient history, its subsequent political and cultural movements, its relationship to the West, and continuing problems of nationalism within Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. A wide range of readings assigned from various fields.

220. Nineteenth-Century Russian Literature. Every other fall.

Fall 1991. MR. MILLER.

Traces the development of Russian realism and the Russian novel. Specific topics include the pre-nineteenth-century literary background, the origins of realism as a movement, and the intellectual and political milieu of the time. Writers to be read include Pushkin, Lermontov, Gogol, Goncharov, Dostoevsky, and Tolstoy. Russian majors are required to do some of the reading in Russian.

221. Twentieth-Century Russian Literature. Every other spring.

Spring 1992. Ms. LI.

A two-part discussion of twentieth-century Russian prose before and after the official proclamation of socialist realism. The first part is devoted to the innovative period of modernism and the avant-garde in the 1920s. The second half examines the return to didactic realism and the emergence of an underground dissident movement. Writers to be discussed are Andreyev, Bely, Zoshchenko, Bulgakov, Sinyavsky, Solzhenitsyn, Aksyonov, Brodsky, and others. Russian majors are required to do some of the reading in Russian.

222. Topics Course. THE DEPARTMENT.

Works in specific areas of Russian literature not investigated in other departmental courses. A specific author, genre, literary movement, or social phenomenon may be emphasized. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed. Russian majors are required to do some of the reading in Russian. This course is offered only when staffing permits.

Chekhov. Fall 1991. Ms. LI.

A survey of Chekhov's major stories and plays, with attention to the relationship between the two genres in his works. Materials are discussed both thematically and chronologically in order to trace the author's ideological and artistic development. Emphasis is given to artistic characteristics in Chekhov's writing with the purpose of examining how this master of the short story and of drama develops his thematic ideas. Russian majors are required to do some of the reading in Russian. Student performance is evaluated on the basis of class participation and a final examination. Open to all.

Women in Russian Society and Culture. Every other fall.
Fall 1992. Ms. KNOX.

Examines the roles women have played in Russian literature and Russian society. Special attention is given to women revolutionaries and the "new status" of women guaranteed by the Revolution. Readings include short stories, novels, autobiographies, and nonfiction works. Authors include Pushkin, Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, Chekhov, Kollontai, Tsvetaeva, Akhmatova, M. Ginzburg, and others. Russian majors are required to do some of the reading in Russian.

223. Dostoevsky and the Novel. Every other spring. Spring 1993.
Ms. KNOX.

An examination of Dostoevsky's use of the novel to portray the "fantastic" reality of the city and its effects on the human psyche. Special attention is given to the author's quest for guiding principles of freedom and love in a world of violence, cynicism, and neuroses. Emphasis on Dostoevsky's anti-Western and antimaterialist bias in his portrayal of the tragic struggle between extreme individualism and self-renunciation in a utopian brotherhood. Russian majors are required to do some of the reading in Russian.

Sociology and Anthropology

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR BELL, Chair (fall semester);

PROFESSOR KERTZER, Chair (spring semester);

PROFESSORS McEWEN (on leave for the academic year) AND ROSSIDES;

ASSOCIATE PROFESSORS FLOGE (on leave for the academic year)

AND KAPLAN;

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR DICKEY (on leave for the academic year);

VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR THOMPSON;

INSTRUCTOR PHILLIPS; VISITING INSTRUCTOR CHATTERJEE;

VISITING LECTURER BIGELOW (fall semester)

Requirements for the Major: In consultation with an advisor, each student plans a major program that will nurture an understanding of society and the human condition, demonstrate how social knowledge is acquired through research, and enrich his or her general education. On the practical level, a major program prepares the student for graduate study in sociology and anthropology and contributes to preprofessional programs such as law and medicine. It also provides background preparation for careers in urban planning, the civil service, social work, business or personnel administration, social research, law enforcement and criminal justice, the health professions, journalism, secondary school teaching, and programs in developing countries.

A student may choose either of two major programs or two minor programs:

The major in sociology consists of ten courses, including Sociology 101, 201, 209 or 211, and 310. A minimum of eight courses in sociology may be supplemented by two advanced courses from anthropology or, as approved by the department chair, by two advanced courses from related fields to meet the student's special needs. Sociology 201 should be taken in the sophomore year.

The major in anthropology consists of eight courses, including Anthropology 101, 102, 201, and 301, and one course with an areal focus (numbered in the 130s and 230s). Students are urged to complete Anthropology 101, 102, and 201 as early as possible. Anthropology 301 should be taken in the senior year. One or two of the eight courses may be taken from the advanced offerings in sociology or, as approved by the department chair, from related fields to meet the student's special needs. Study-abroad programs are encouraged as part of a student's study of other cultures.

The minor in sociology consists of five sociology courses, including Sociology 201, 209 or 211, and 310.

The minor in anthropology consists of five anthropology courses, including Anthropology 101 and 301, either 102 or 201, and an area study course (130s and 230s).

For the anthropology major or minor program, one semester of independent study may be counted. For the sociology major or minor program, two semesters of independent study may be counted.

Departmental Honors: Students distinguishing themselves in either major program may apply for departmental honors. Awarding of the degree with honors will ordinarily be based on grades of A/High Honors in major courses and a written project (emanating from independent study), and will recognize the ability to work creatively and independently and to synthesize diverse theoretical, methodological, and substantive materials.

Sociology

13. Is the United States a Society in Decline? Fall 1991.

MR. ROSSIDES.

(See page 107 for a full description.)

101. Introduction to Sociology. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

The major perspectives of sociology. Application of the scientific method to sociological theory and to current social issues. Theories ranging from social determinism to free will are considered, including the work of Marx, Weber, Durkheim, Merton, and others. Attention is given to such concepts as role, status, society, culture, institution, personality, social organization, the dynamics of change, the social roots of behavior and attitudes, social control, deviance, socialization, and the dialectical relationship between individual and society.

201. Introduction to Social Research. Every spring. MS. PHILLIPS.

Provides firsthand experience with the specific procedures through which social science knowledge is developed. Emphasizes the interaction between theory and research, and examines the ethics of social research and the uses and abuses of research in policy making. Reading and methodological analysis of a variety of case studies from the sociological literature. Field and laboratory exercises that include observation, interviewing, use of available data (e.g., historical documents, statistical archives, computerized data banks, cultural artifacts), sampling, coding, use of computer, elementary data analysis and interpretation. Lectures, laboratory sessions, and small-group conferences.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

203. Families in American Society. Spring 1993. MS. BELL.

An examination of the relationship between families and larger public, seemingly impersonal, forces. Considers what a family is, what it does, why it takes particular forms, and why it provokes particular emotions at different times in modern American society.

Gives special attention to the impact of race, gender, and social class on family life.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

[206. Urban Sociology.]

The social and cultural meaning of race and ethnicity, with special emphasis on the politics of events and processes in contemporary America. Analysis of the causes and consequences of prejudice and discrimination. Examination of the relationships between race and class. Comparisons between the status of racial and ethnic minorities in the United States and their status in other selected societies. (Same as Afro-American Studies 208.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

209. Social Theory. Every fall. MR. ROSSIDES.

A critical examination of some representative theories of the nature of human behavior and society. Social theory is related to developments in philosophy and natural science, and symbolic developments as a whole are related to social developments. The thought of some major figures in the ancient world (especially Plato, Aristotle, and the Stoics) and the medieval world (especially St. Thomas and Marsilio of Padua) is analyzed, but the main focus is on the figures who have struggled to explain the nature of capitalism: for example, Hobbes, Locke, the philosophes, Comte, Spencer, Sumner, and Ward, with special attention to Marx, Durkheim, Weber, and selected contemporary figures, including world system theorists.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

[210. Sociology of Work and Organizations.]

211. Classics of Sociology. Fall 1991. Ms. BELL.

An analysis of selected works by the founders of modern sociology. Particular emphasis is given to understanding differing approaches to sociological analysis through detailed textual interpretation. Works by Marx, Weber, Durkheim, and selected others are read.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

213. Social Stratification. Spring 1992. MR. ROSSIDES.

A critical examination of representative theories of inequality. Opens with a review of the basic questions and concepts in social stratification, and then develops case studies of the various types of social inequality: for example, El Salvador, Korea, and the USSR. The heart of the course is an extended analysis of the American class system to determine sources of stability and conflict, and to identify legitimate and illegitimate forms of inequality. Considerable attention is given to theories of imperialism and to determining the United States' role in the international system of stratification.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

214. Science, Technology, and Society. Spring 1993. Ms. BELL.

First, identifies the social structure and dynamics of science as an institution and examines the relationship between the institution of science and the content of scientific knowledge. Explores the role of science and scientific knowledge in technological innovation. Next, examines the progress and problems associated with scientific and technological changes such as nuclear power and the production and distribution of pesticides and other chemicals. Considers the social and intellectual origins of these technological innovations and their impact on society from different theoretical perspectives.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

215. Criminology and Criminal Justice. Spring 1993. MR. McEWEN.

Focuses on crime and corrections in the United States, with some cross-national comparisons. Examines the problematic character of the definition of "crime." Explores empirical research on the character, distribution, and correlates of criminal behavior and interprets this research in the light of social structural, cultural, and social psychological theories of crime causation. Discusses the implications of the nature and causes of crime for law enforcement and the administration of justice. Surveys the varied ways in which prisons and correctional programs are organized and assesses research about their effectiveness.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

218. Sociology of Law. Fall 1992. Ms. THOMPSON.

An analysis of the development and function of law and legal systems in industrial societies. Examines the relationships between law and social change, law and social inequality, and law and social control. Special attention is paid to social influences on the operation of legal systems and the resultant gaps between legal ideals and the "law in action."

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

219. Sociology of Gender Roles. Fall 1991. Ms. PHILLIPS.

Various theoretical perspectives, including role theory, are used to study gender roles and their implications for society and individuals. The extent and possible causes (including biological, cultural, social, and economic) of sexual differences in behavior are examined. Topics include historical changes in gender roles as well as cultural and national differences.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

220. Policies of Need. Fall 1991. Ms. PHILLIPS.

A critical assessment of public policies that bear on the search by poor people for food, shelter, and material security. After clarifying the nature and causes of poverty, the course explores policy responses (and shortfalls) in areas of social need and housing. Although primary focus is on the United States, some cross-national comparisons are included.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

[§230. The Populations of Asia.]235. Comparative Societies. Spring 1992. MR. ROSSIDES.

An analysis of the various types of society in human history and their interrelations. After a brief discussion of hunting-gathering, horticultural, and agrarian societies, and the hybrid societies of ancient Israel, Greece, and Rome, the course focuses on representative types of developed and developing societies in today's world.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor.

250. Collective Behavior. Spring 1994. MR. MCEWEN.

An examination of the nature of collective behavior, with primary emphasis on social movements. Describes and analyzes social phenomena such as crowds, audiences, publics, riots, reform movements, conservative movements, and revolutions. Students may study a selected aspect of collective behavior in depth.

Prerequisites: Two courses in sociology or anthropology, or consent of the instructor.

251. Sociology of Health and Illness. Fall 1991. MS. BELL.

Examines the social contexts of physical and mental health, illness, and medical care. Deals with such topics as the social, environmental, and occupational factors in health and illness; the structure and processes of health care organizations; the development of health professions and the health work force; doctor-patient relationships; the illness experience; technical and ethical issues in medical research; and health care and social change.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or consent of the instructor. Not open to students who have previously taken Sociology 151.

310. Advanced Seminar: Current Controversies in Sociology.

Spring 1992. Ms. PHILLIPS.

Draws together different theoretical and substantive issues in sociology in the United States, primarily since 1950. Discusses current controversies in the discipline, i.e., quantitative versus qualitative methodologies, micro versus macro perspectives, and pure versus applied work.

Prerequisites: Junior standing and two courses in sociology, or consent of the instructor.

290. Intermediate Independent Study in Sociology. Ms. BELL,

Ms. THOMPSON, Ms. PHILLIPS, AND MR. ROSSIDES.

400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors in Sociology.

Ms. BELL, Ms. THOMPSON, Ms. PHILLIPS, AND MR. ROSSIDES.

Anthropology

11. Family Life in the European Past. Fall 1991. MR. KERTZER.

(See page 102 for a full description.)

101. Introduction to Cultural Anthropology. Every spring.

MR. KERTZER.

An introduction to the concepts, methods, theories, findings, and applications of cultural anthropology. Study of the differences and similarities among the cultures of the world and attempts by anthropologists to explain them. Among the topics to be covered are anthropological fieldwork, the nature of culture, the relation of language to culture, the relation of the environment to culture, family and kinship, political and economic systems, religion, sex, gender, and ethnocide.

§102. Introduction to World Prehistory. Every fall. Ms. KAPLAN.

An introduction to the disciplines of anthropology and archaeology and the studies of human biological and cultural evolution. Among the subjects covered are conflicting theories of human biological evolution, the debates over the genetic and cultural bases of human behavior, the expansion of human populations into various ecosystems throughout the world, the domestication of plants and animals, the shift from nomadic to settled village life, and the rise of complex societies, the state, and civilization.

133. Modern Italy. Fall 1992. MR. KERTZER.

An overview of the development of modern Italian society, beginning with the unification of Italy in the mid-nineteenth centure. Particular attention is paid to topics in social and political history, including the changing role of the Catholic church and religion, the creation of a national identity, the rise of the peasant leagues and the early socialist movement, life in the Fascist period, the successes and crises of the Italian Communist Party, changes in family life and in male-female relations, the enduring conflict between northern and southern Italy, and the social implications of migration.

Prerequisite: Sophomore standing.

[§134. Asian Civilizations.]

201. Anthropological Research. Fall 1991. Ms. CHATTERJEE.

Anthropological research methods and perspectives are examined through classic and recent ethnography, statistics and computer literacy, and the student's own fieldwork experience. Topics covered are ethics, analytical and methodological techniques, the interpretation of data, and the use and misuse of anthropology.

Prerequisite: Sophomore standing or higher; Anthropology 101 strongly recommended.

203. Psychological Anthropology. Spring 1993. Ms. DICKEY.

Focuses on four topics in psychological anthropology: culture and personality; the effects of culture on cognition; definitions and treatment of mental illness in different cultures; and the application of psychoanalytical theory in anthropology. Shows how anthropological theories and cross-cultural studies can be combined with psychological analysis to help in understanding the cultural influences on human mental processes.

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology or sociology, or consent of the instructor.

207. Ritual and Myth. Fall 1992. MR. KERTZER.

An examination of the place of ritual and myth in the larger social context. A range of religious phenomena from diverse societies is examined, including magic, witchcraft, shamanism, cults, revitalization movements, and civic religion. Major theoretical approaches to the study of religion are discussed and critiqued, including evolutionism, functionalism, structuralism, psychoanalysis, cultural ecology, and Marxism.

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology or sociology, or consent of the instructor.

208. Critical Perspectives on the Cultures of Colonialism and Nationalism. Spring 1992. Ms. CHATTERJEE.

This course addresses the contours—historical, political, theoretical, literary—of the discourses of colonialism and decolonization. Students read works about and from Africa, the Middle East, and South and Southeast Asia, but the focus is thematic rather than geographical and emphasizes commonalities and differences of historical and cultural developments. Issues to be discussed include ideologies of difference, power and violence, apologists and opponents of colonialism, "the empire writing back," intellectualism, and contemporary theorization of the "Third World."

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology or sociology, or consent of the instructor.

209. Politics, Culture, and Society. Fall 1991. MR. KERTZER.

The cross-cultural study of politics ranging from nomadic bands to nation-states. Issues examined include, How egalitarian are nonstate political systems? How is social order maintained in societies lacking centralized government? How is warfare waged? How are inequalities of political power within a society legitimized? What is the role of symbolism in political legitimation and in revolution? and What social processes are involved in attracting and mobilizing political support?

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology or sociology, or consent of the instructor.

§220. Hunters and Gatherers. Spring 1992. MS. KAPLAN.

Hunters and gatherers have been characterized as small groups of people who are constantly on the move and exhibit the simplest levels of social, political, and economic organization. The course traces the origins of this thinking and challenges the stereotype. Topics include hunter-gatherer adaptations to the world's changing environment; strategies of resource procurement; settlement patterns; technological complexity; levels of social, economic, and political integration; and religious life. This cross-cultural study compares such groups as the Australian Aborigines, Bushmen, Native Americans, and New Guinea Highlanders.

Prerequisites: At least one previous course in anthropology or sociology, and sophomore standing.

222. Culture Through Performance. Spring 1994. MS. DICKEY.

"Cultural performance" covers not only drama, dance, and music, but also such cultural media as ritual, literature, celebration, and spectacle. The anthropological study of these media examines their performers, producers, and audiences in addition to their form and content. Cultural performance is approached in two ways: first, to see what it uniquely reveals about a culture to both natives and outsiders; and second, to consider what social, psychological, and political effects it can have on participants and their societies.

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology or sociology, or consent of instructor.

Ms. KAPLAN.

For thousands of years, Eskimos (Inuit), Indian, and Aleut peoples lived in the arctic regions of North America as hunters, gatherers, and fishermen. Their clothing, shelter, food, and implements were derived from resources recovered from the sea, rivers, and the land. The characteristics of arctic ecosystems are examined. The social, economic, political, and religious lives of various Arctic-dwelling peoples are explored in an effort to understand how people have adapted to harsh northern environments.

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology or sociology.

232. Peoples of Northernmost Europe. Fall 1991. MR. BIGELOW.

An examination of the past and present cultures of northern Scandinavia, the far northern islands of the North Atlantic (the Orkney, Shetland, and Faeroe islands), Iceland, and Greenland. The anthropology of societies ranging from the early Viking explorers of North America to the reindeer herders of modern Finland is discussed. Archaeological, ethnohistoric, and ecological evidence is reviewed in outlining the interplay of environmental and human factors that influenced the growth and, in some cases, the extinction of the northernmost Norse, Sami (Lapp), and Celtic cultures.

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology or sociology.

234. Women, Power, and Identity in South Asia. Spring 1992.

Ms. CHATTERJEE.

Examines the familiar assumption that women are an oppressed group in the Third World. Focuses on South Asia to address debates that are central to women's studies and anthropology. Emphasis is given to questions of representation, subjectivity, and the crafting of multiple selves; and to self-representation by women as a political act of empowerment. Specific topics include concepts of tradition in South Asia, patriarchy, women as the objects of social reform, the imaging of female power (e.g., Kali), and the women's movement in India. Readings cover the colonial and postcolonial periods, middle- and working-class women, and ethnic and caste groups. (Same as Asian Studies 234.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology, sociology, or Asian studies, or consent of the instructor.

Ms. CHATTERJEE.

An introduction to the cultures and societies of South Asia, including India, Nepal, Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka. Issues of religion, family and gender, caste, and class are examined through ethnographies, novels, and films, and through in-class simulations of marriage arrangements, religious ritual, and caste ranking. (Same as Asian Studies 235.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology, sociology, or Asian studies.

Ms. DICKEY.

In South Asia, political identity is often based on "primordial" ties such as caste, religion, ethnicity, language, and region. Political leadership involves various strategies for addressing and transcending these communal interests. This course examines the development of different political identities and the importance of issues such as personality politics and patronage in electoral leadership in several South Asian countries. (Same as Asian Studies 236.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology, sociology, or Asian studies.

[§237. Relations of Power in India and China.]

(Same as Asian Studies 237.)

[§239. North American Indians.]

301. Anthropological Theory. Every spring. MR. KERTZER.

An examination of the development of various theoretical approaches to the study of culture and society. Anthropology in the United States, Britain, and France is covered from the nineteenth century to the present. Contemporary controversies in anthropological theory are discussed. Among those considered are Morgan, Tylor, Durkheim, Boas, Mauss, Malinowski, Radcliffe-Brown, Mead, Geertz, and Lévi-Strauss.

Prerequisites: Two courses in anthropology or consent of the instructor.

290. Intermediate Independent Study in Anthropology.

MR. KERTZER, Ms. CHATTERJEE, AND Ms. KAPLAN.

400. Advanced Independent Study and Honors in Anthropology.

MR. KERTZER, Ms. CHATTERJEE, AND Ms. KAPLAN.

Theater Arts

DIRECTOR OF THEATER RUTAN, Chair;

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR AND DIRECTOR OF DANCE VAIL;

Ms. JONES, MR. RODERICK, AND MR. SARVIS

The Department of Theater Arts comprises two divisions: dance and theater. Although no major is offered, students with special interest may, with faculty advice, self-design a major. Students may minor in dance.

Division of Dance

The Division of Dance provides a coherent course of study in dance history, theory, and criticism; choreography; and performance studies, including dance technique and repertory. The division's humanistic orientation emphasizes dance's relation to theater and the fine arts, as well as its fundamental connection to the broad liberal arts curriculum. The program's goal is dance literacy and the development of skills—keen perception, imaginative problem solving, concentration, and respect for craft—important to original work in all fields.

Requirements for the Minor in Dance: The minor consists of five course credits: Dance 101, 121, and 141, and four semesters of dance technique and/or repertory. An independent study, Dance 291 or 401, may be substituted for a required course if necessary.

101. Introduction to Dance. Fall 1992. Ms. VAIL.

This course is primarily concerned with dance and movement as historical, cultural phenomena. How do movement experiences shape our perception of the world? What is the relationship of dance and movement to gender roles, political and social power, religion, and personal and ethnic identity? What does dance reveal about conceptions of the body? How can anthropological perspectives illuminate one's own experiences with the body, movement, and dance?

Students combine the direct experience of learning dances from different cultures, including Afro-American jitterbug, traditional Bulgarian line dances, South Indian Bharata Natyam, French baroque dance, and contemporary improvisational forms, with readings, discussion, listening to music, and viewing videos and live performances. No prerequisites. Enrollment limited to 20 students.

121. Topics in Dance History. Every other fall.

Required for dance minors and self-designed majors.

The Ballet: European Theater Dance from Louis XIV to the Present. Fall 1991. Ms. VAIL.

An exploration of Western classical dance from the mid-seventeenth to the twentieth century. Through readings, films, and live performances, students analyze style in light of contemporaneous music and art as well as the broader social context. Emphasizes the development of dance literacy and critical writing skills. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed. (Same as First-Year Seminar 12.)

142. Approaches to Choreography: Improvisation and Composition. Every spring. Spring 1992. Ms. VAIL.

This studio course encourages students to explore ways of creating dances and multimedia performance works. Students are introduced to various methods, including extensive improvisation, of creating their own pieces. These methods of crafting dances correspond to compositional practices in writing, drawing, composing, and other art forms, so dance students are always conscious of the broader applications of creative process.

In addition to making four individual or group pieces and a final project, choreography students work with visiting professional performers and attend live performances. Classes also include reading, discussion, video viewing, and writing. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

291. Intermediate Independent Study in Dance. Ms. VAIL.

401. Advanced Independent Study in Dance. Ms. VAIL.

Performance Studies

Performance studies courses (171 and 181) earn one-half credit each semester. Each course may be repeated a maximum of four times for credit. Students may enroll in Dance 171 and 181 in the same semester, or for two consecutive semesters, for one full academic course credit. Attendance at all classes is required. Grading is Credit/Fail.

Instructors for 1991–92: Gwyneth Jones, Daniel McCusker, and Paul Sarvis.

171. Dance Technique. Every semester. Spring 1992. Ms. JONES, MR. MCCUSKER, AND MR. SARVIS.

Classes in modern dance and ballet technique include basic exercises to develop dance skills such as balance and musicality; more challenging movement combinations and longer dance sequences build on these exercises. In the process of focusing on the craft of dancing, students are also encouraged to develop their own style. During the semester, a brief historical overview of twentieth-century American dance on video is presented. Attendance at all classes is required.

181. Repertory and Performance. Every semester. Spring 1992. Ms. JONES AND Ms. VAIL.

Repertory students are strongly urged to take Dance 171 concurrently.

Repertory classes provide the chance to learn faculty-choreographed works or reconstructions of important historical dances. Class meetings are conducted as rehearsals for performances at the end of the semester: the annual Spring Performance in Pickard Theater in April, and Museum Pieces at the Walker Art Building in May. Additional rehearsals are required before the Spring Performance. Attendance at all classes and rehearsals is required. Enrollment limited to 12 students.

Division of Theater

The Division of Theater in the Department of Theater Arts offers courses in acting and directing, set design, and, on occasion, in areas of special interest. The theater technician teaches stagelighting.

63. Playwriting. Fall 1991. MR. RUTAN.

A creative writing course focusing on the one-act play form.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor.

70. Acting and Directing. Spring 1992. MR. RUTAN.

A studio class for students interested in the fundamentals of acting and directing. Enrollment limited to 15 students, with representation of all four classes. Selection by lottery at first meeting.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor.

72. Technical Theater. Every semester. MR. RODERICK.

An introduction to the fundamentals of stagelighting.

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 10 students.

[271, 272. Topics in Theater.]

290. Intermediate Independent Study in Theater. MR. RUTAN.

400. Advanced Independent Study in Theater. MR. RUTAN

Women's Studies

Administered by the Committee on Women's Studies

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR MCMAHON, Director;

MS. HUNSINGER, Assistant Director and Lecturer and Co-coordinator of the Women's Resource Center

Women's studies is an interdisciplinary program that incorporates into the curriculum recent research done on women and gender. The women's studies program explores the relationship between traditional disciplinary approaches to women's roles and emerging perspectives in the arts, humanities, and natural and social sciences. The program addresses women's experience on its own terms, and, using gender as a category of analysis, examines the status of and the relationship between women and men.

Requirements for the Minor in Women's Studies: The minor consists of Women's Studies 101, normally taken in the first or second year, and four additional courses. To ensure the interdisciplinary nature of the minor, three of these courses must be outside the student's major department, and one must be outside the division of the major.

The women's studies courses below may also be used to formulate a student-designed major that emphasizes women's studies. Related independent studies are offered in all humanities and social science departments. Further information on women's studies is available at the Women's Studies Program office located in the Women's Resource Center.

101. Introduction to Women's Studies. Fall 1991. Ms. HUNSINGER.

Provides an interdisciplinary overview of issues and approaches central to the study of women and gender. Through historical and literary analysis, a series of cross-cultural themes is examined, including images and stereotypes of women, identity and role issues, creativity, work, feminism, and other gender-related concerns.

[201. Theory and Methodology in Women's Studies.]

[242. Sexuality and Reproduction.]

301. Race and Gender in American Society: A Dialogue. Fall 1991.
MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of the similarities and differences in the ways race and gender have affected American society. Topics include the nature of inferiority (biological and religious theories of inferiority, visual representations of inferiority), control over the body of another (marriage, slavery, plantation mistresses and slaves), race and gender in the organization of labor (from labor unions to affirmative action), and the gender/race politics of resistance (the suffrage debates, racism in the feminist movement, sexism in the black movement). Emphasis on the debate that has occurred around each of these issues. Classroom debates, frequent short writing assignments, and student participation in discussion. (Same as Afro-American Studies 301.)

Prerequisite: Consent of the instructor. Enrollment limited to 15 students.

[304. Feminist Theory.]

Hawthorne-Longfellow Library

THE STRENGTH of a college library rests in its collections of books and other library materials and in the ability of its staff to make the library useful to students. Bowdoin's Nathaniel Hawthorne-Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Library is exceptionally strong. Totaling more than 775,000 volumes, its collections have been built up over a period of nearly 200 years and include an unusually large proportion of distinguished and valuable volumes. Similarly distinguished has been the roster of librarians of the College, a list that includes John Abbot, Calvin Stowe, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, George T. Little, and Richard Barksdale Harwell. Its present full-time staff includes thirteen professional librarians and nineteen library assistants.

The first books that belonged to the library—a set of the Count Marsigli's Danubius Pannonica-Mysicus, given to the College in 1796 by General Henry Knox (who had been a bookseller in Boston before he achieved fame as George Washington's chief ordnance officer)—are still a part of its collections. In the early decades of the nineteenth century, Bowdoin's library, largely because of extensive gifts of books from the Bowdoin family and the Benjamin Vaughan family of Hallowell, Maine, was one of the largest in the nation. It has been maintained as one of the larger college libraries of the country, but its areas of growth are now defined by the curriculum of the College and restrained by the desirability of containing it as a collection to which students can have easy, and almost complete, access. In addition to its 775,000 volumes (a count that includes bound periodicals and newspapers), the library has a collection of approximately 60,000 maps, over 2,000 photographs, and more than 500,000 manuscript items. The current annual rate of acquisition is about 18,000 volumes, and the annual expenditure per student is more than $1,275.

The majority of the collection is housed in Hawthorne-Longfellow Library. Material related to the sciences and mathematics was moved into the new Hatch Science Library in 1991. In addition, smaller, more specialized collections can be found in the art and music departments, and in the Language Media Center in Sills Hall. The library's collections are protected by an electronic security system. An online catalog, available through terminals in all the library buildings and elsewhere on campus by way of the College's computer network, provides readers with access to books and journals. Materials lent from the library are recorded on the automated circulation system.

The Hawthorne-Longfellow Library building was opened in the fall of 1965. The library occupies 60,000 square feet of its floor space and will eventually incorporate the 26,000 square feet presently used for the College's administrative offices. An expansion project completed in 1984 provided more seating, additional open stack shelf space, and climate control for Special Collections. The library has seating for more than 575 readers, 500 of whom can be accommodated at individual study tables and carrels, and shelving to house all of its collections (with the exception of the rare materials in the Special Collections Suite) on open stacks.

The entrance level of the building contains the portions of the library of most immediate use to its readers: the circulation desk, both the card catalog and the computer catalog, the reference desk, reference books and bibliographies, current newspapers, current periodicals, periodical indexes, and two reading areas. Study stations are conveniently dispersed on this floor, as they are throughout the building.

The lower level of the library houses Bowdoin's extensive collection of bound periodicals, its collections of microfilm and other microforms, government documents, and the reserved reading shelves.

Special features of the second floor are an exhibit area and the President Franklin Pierce Reading Room, informally furnished and giving a broad view through floor-to-ceiling windows. Also on this floor are two suites of ten faculty studies each and small rooms for student typing or group study. The rest of this floor is shelving surrounded by carrels.

More shelving and carrels occupy the principal portion of the third floor. There are nine additional faculty studies on this floor. The eastern end of the third floor is the Special Collections Suite. This includes, in addition to shelf space in a climate-controlled area for Bowdoin's rare books and manuscripts and space for their use, a conference room, and a staff and faculty lounge.

The Hatch Science Library, opened in the spring of 1991, houses the College's science-related materials. Circulation, course reserves, and reference service desks are located on the first floor, along with computer catalog terminals, microforms, indexes, and current periodical issues. Periodical backfiles and maps are on the basement level. The second floor houses the majority of the science classified collection and affiliated government documents. The building can accommodate more than 160 readers at individual carrels, study tables, and informal seating areas. Two seminar rooms, six faculty studies, and staff work areas are also provided. The staff offers the full range of public services.

The collections of the library are strong (though inevitably of varying strength) in all areas covered by the curriculum of the College, and a constant effort is maintained to ensure that representative publications in fields outside the current curriculum are added to the library. There is special strength in documentary publications relating to both British and American history, in the books relating to exploration and the arctic regions, in books by and about Carlyle, in books and pamphlets about Maine, in materials about the Huguenots, in books and pamphlets on World War I and on the history of much of middle Europe in this century, and in the literary history of pre-twentieth-century France.

The reference collection includes most of the English-language encyclopedias and a good representation in original editions of major foreign encyclopedias—from two editions of the monumental eighteenth-century Encyclopédie of Diderot to such modern works as the Grand Larousse Encyclopédique, Der Grosse Brockhaus, the Enciclopedia Universal Illustrada Europeo-Americana, the Bol'shaya Sovetskaya Entsiklopedia, and the Enciclopedia Italiana de Scienze, Lettere ed Arti. In it also are the principal national bibliographies and other major bibliographical tools. Dispersed in their proper places throughout the collections are such distinguished sets as the Studies and Documents of the American Institute of Musicology in Rome, Armando Cortesaço's Portugaliae Monumenta Cartographia, the elephant-folio edition of John James Audubon's Ornithological Biography (his "Birds of America"), E. S. Curtis's The North American Indian, the Rerum Britannicarum Medii Aevi Scriptores, Jacques Paul Migne's Patrologiae (Latina), the Scriptores Rerum Germanicum, Reuben Gold Thwaites's Early American Travels, and The Victoria History of the Counties of England. Scholarly sets include the publications of the Camden Society, the Early English Text Society, The Egypt Exploration Society, the Geological Society of America, the Hakluyt Society, the Henry Bradshaw Society, the Huguenot Society of London, the Prince Society, the Royal Historical Society, the Royal Society, the Scottish History Society, the Scottish Text Society, and the Société des Anciens Textes Français. Of comparable, or perhaps even greater, distinction is Bowdoin's collection of more than 100,000 bound volumes of periodical publications.

Special collections in the Hawthorne-Longfellow Library include extensive collections of books, manuscripts, and other materials by and about both Hawthorne and Longfellow; books and pamphlets collected by Governor James Bowdoin; the private library of James Bowdoin III; an unusually large collection of late-eighteenth- and early-nineteenth-century books (particularly in the sciences) collected by Maine's distinguished Vaughan family; books, periodicals, and pamphlets contemporaneous to the French Revolution; the books, papers, and memorabilia of the Abbott family; an unusually fine representation of the items published in the District of Maine and in the state during the first decade of its statehood; and the books printed by the three most distinguished presses in Maine's history: the Mosher Press, the Southworth Press, and the Anthoensen Press.

Also in the Special Collections Suite are the printed items relating to the history of the College and the chief collections of manuscript archives of the College. These include much material on Bowdoin alumni and extend far beyond a narrow definition of official college records. Here also is the library's general collection of manuscripts. Outstanding among the manuscripts are the collections of the papers of Generals O. O. Howard and Charles Howard, of Senator William Pitt Fessenden, and of Professors Parker Cleaveland, Alpheus S. Packard, Henry Johnson, and Stanley Perkins Chase; collections of varying extent of most of Bowdoin's presidents, especially Jesse Appleton, Joshua L. Chamberlain, William DeWitt Hyde, and Kenneth Charles Morton Sills; manuscripts by Kenneth Roberts, Robert Peter Tristram Coffin, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Charles Stephens, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Elijah Kellogg, and such contemporary authors as Vance Bourjaily, John Pullen, and Francis Russell.

The books and manuscripts in Bowdoin's special collections are not treated simply as museum pieces. They are freely open to use by qualified scholars and are extensively used in introducing undergraduates—in their research projects and other independent work—to the variety of research materials regularly used in the scholarly world that they can expect to use if they continue into university graduate work.

Special collections include also the Bliss collection of books on travel, on French and British architecture, and other fine books (miscellaneous in nature but largely relating to the history of art and architecture) that are housed in the extraordinarily handsome Susan Dwight Bliss Room in Hubbard Hall. These books are additionally distinguished by their fine bindings. The books in this room and the room itself (with its Renaissance ceiling that once graced a Neapolitan palazzo) were the gift of Miss Bliss in 1945.

During term time, the library is open from 8:30 A.M. to midnight, Monday through Saturday, and on Sunday from 10:00 A.M. to midnight. When the College is not in session, the library is open 8:30 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday. Small departmental collections in art and music are housed contiguous to the offices of the departments and are available for use on separate schedules of opening.

The operations of the library and the growth of its collections are supported by the general funds of the College and by gifts from alumni and other friends of the library and the College. The library is annually the recipient of generous gifts of both books and funds for the immediate purchase of books or other library materials. It is always especially desirous of gifts of books, manuscripts, and family records and correspondence relating to the alumni of the College. The income of more than a hundred gifts to the College as endowment is directed to the use of the library.

Bowdoin College issues a separate publication honoring those in whose names scholarships and book funds have been donated.

Bowdoin College Museums

MUSEUM OF ART

AN ART COLLECTION has existed at Bowdoin almost since the founding of the College. It came into existence through the 1811 bequest of James Bowdoin III and was one of the earliest art collections formed in the United States. Bowdoin's gift consisted of two portfolios containing 141 old master drawings, among which was a superb landscape by Pieter Bruegel the Elder, and 70 paintings. A group of Bowdoin family portraits was bequeathed in 1826 by James Bowdoin III's widow, Sarah Bowdoin Dearborn. Through the years, the collection has been expanded through the generosity of alumni, College friends, and members of the Bowdoin family, and now numbers 12,000 art objects.

Although various parts of the College's art collection were on view during the first half of the nineteenth century, it was not until 1855 that a special gallery devoted to the collection came into being in the College Chapel. This gallery was made possible by a gift from Theophilus Wheeler Walker of Boston, a cousin of President Leonard Woods. It was as a memorial to Walker that his two nieces, Harriet Sarah and Mary Sophia Walker, donated funds in 1891 for the present museum building, designed by Charles Follen McKim of McKim, Mead & White. Four murals of Athens, Rome, Florence, and Venice by John La Farge, Elihu Vedder, Abbott Thayer, and Kenyon Cox, respectively, were commissioned to decorate the museum's rotunda.

The museum holds an important collection of American colonial and federal portraits, including works by Smibert, Feke, Blackburn, Copley, Stuart, Trumbull, and Sully. Among the five examples by Robert Feke is the full-length likeness of Brigadier General Samuel Waldo, generally regarded as the finest American portrait of the first half of the eighteenth century. The nine paintings by Gilbert Stuart include pendant portraits of Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. A complete catalogue of this collection, Colonial and Federal Portraits at Bowdoin College, was published in 1966.

The College's collection of ancient art contains sculpture, vases, terra cottas, bronzes, gems, coins, and glass of all phases of the ancient world. The most notable benefactor in this area was Edward Perry Warren, L.H.D. '26, the leading American collector of classical antiquities of the first quarter of the twentieth century. Five magnificent ninth-century B.C. Assyrian reliefs from the Palace of Ashurnazirpal II, an acquisition facilitated for the College by Henri Byron Haskell M1855, are installed in the museum's rotunda. Ancient Art in Bowdoin College, a descriptive catalogue of these holdings, was published in 1964.

The College has been the recipient of a Samuel H. Kress Study Collection of twelve Renaissance paintings; a large collection of medals and plaquettes presented by Amanda Marchesa Molinari; a fine group of European and American pictures and decorative arts given by John H. Halford '07 and Mrs. Halford; a collection of Chinese and Korean ceramics given by Governor William Tudor Gardiner, LL.D. '45, and Mrs. Gardiner; and a collection of nineteen paintings and 168 prints by John Sloan bequeathed by George Otis Hamlin.

The College's Winslow Homer Collection comprises paintings, drawings, prints, and memorabilia pertaining to his career. The first painting by Homer to enter the museum, a watercolor entitled The End of the Hunt, was contributed by the Walker sisters from their personal collection. In the fall of 1964, a gift from the Homer family brought to Bowdoin the major portion of the memorabilia remaining in the artist's studio at Prout's Neck, letters written over a period of many years to members of his family, and photographs of friends, family, and Prout's Neck. A large collection of woodcuts was later purchased to augment these holdings and create a center for the scholarly study of the life and career of this important American artist.

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, the museum acquired through gifts and purchase a survey collection of paintings, drawings, and prints by the American artist and illustrator Rockwell Kent.

The permanent collections also contain fine examples of the work of such nineteenth-century and twentieth-century American artists as Martin Johnson Heade, Eastman Johnson, George Inness, Thomas Eakins, John Singer Sargent, William Glackens, Marsden Hartley, Jack Tworckov, Arshile Gorky, Franz Kline, Andrew Wyeth, D.F.A. '70, Leonard Baskin, and Alex Katz.

In 1982, the museum published a Handbook of the Collections, dedicated to the memory of John H. Halford '07. In 1985, a comprehensive catalogue of the College's permanent collection of old master drawings was published. The Architecture of Bowdoin College, an illustrated guide to the campus by Patricia McGraw Anderson, was published in the spring of 1988.

In addition to exhibitions of the permanent collections, the museum schedules an active program of temporary exhibitions of art lent by institutions and private collectors throughout the United States. Among the important shows organized by the museum in recent years have been Treasures from Near Eastern Looms; Winslow Homer Watercolors; Old Master Drawings at Bowdoin College; Alex Katz: Small Paintings; Yvonne Jacquette: Tokyo Nightviews; Makers '86 (a juried biennial exhibition of Maine crafts); Twilight of Arcadia: American Landscape Painters in Rome 1830-1880; New England Now: Contemporary Art from Six States; Thomas Cornell Paintings: The Birth of Nature; From Dürer to Picasso: Five Centuries of Master Prints from a Private Collection; and Katherine Porter: Paintings/Drawings.

The College lends art objects in the custody of the museum to other institutions throughout the United States and, occasionally, to institutions abroad. The museum also sponsors symposia and special lectures. Since 1973, symposia on American furniture, nineteenth-century decorative arts, American Indian art, conservation of art, oriental rugs, American pewter, and American collegiate architecture have been held.

In 1985, the Associates Program merged with other special campus support groups to become the Association of Bowdoin Friends. This organization shares even more effectively the resources of the museum and campus with the community beyond the College. Its participants have access to a wide variety of activities and programs sponsored by the museum. Another vital support group of sixty-eight volunteers conducts tours and assists the museum staff with clerical activities and educational programs.

The amount of space in the Walker Art Building more than doubled in 1976 following extensive renovation designed by Edward Larrabee Barnes. Two galleries for exhibiting the museum's permanent collection and two temporary exhibition galleries were added on the lower level. One of the new galleries was dedicated to the memory of John H. Halford '07; another, in memory of John A. and Helen P. Becker.

THE PEARY-MACMILLAN ARCTIC MUSEUM AND ARCTIC STUDIES CENTER

The Peary-MacMillan Arctic Museum was founded in honor of two famous arctic explorers and Bowdoin alumni, Admirals Robert E. Peary (Class of 1877) and Donald B. MacMillan (Class of 1898). On April 6, 1909, after a lifetime of arctic exploration, Peary became the first person to reach the North Pole. MacMillan was a crew member on that North Pole expedition. Between 1908 and 1954, MacMillan explored Labrador, Baffin Island, Ellesmere Island, and Greenland. Most of his expeditions were made on board the Bowdoin, a schooner he designed for work in ice-laden northern waters. MacMillan took college students on the expeditions and introduced them to the natural history and anthropology of the North. He was not the first to involve Bowdoin students in arctic exploration, however. In 1860, Paul A. Chadbourne, a professor of chemistry and natural history, had sailed along the Labrador and West Greenland coasts with students from Williams and Bowdoin.

The museum, established in 1967, is located on the first floor of Hubbard Hall, for many years the Bowdoin College Library. The building was named for General Thomas Hubbard of the Class of 1857, a generous benefactor of the College and financial supporter of Peary's arctic ventures. The museum's exhibitions were designed by Ian M. White, former director of the Fine Arts Museum of San Francisco, who sailed with MacMillan in 1950. Generous donations from members of the Class of 1925, together with gifts from George B. Knox of the Class of 1929, a former trustee, and other interested alumni and friends, made the museum a reality. Continued support from friends of the College, the Kane Lodge, and the Russell and Janet Doubleday Foundation have allowed the museum to continue to grow.

The museum's collections include equipment, paintings, and photographs relating to the history of arctic exploration, natural history specimens, and artifacts and drawings made by Inuit and Indians of arctic North America. The museum has large collections of ethnographic photographs and films recording past lifeways of Native Americans taken on the expeditions of MacMillan and Robert Bartlett, an explorer and captain who sailed northern waters for nearly fifty years. Diaries, logs, and correspondence relating to the museum's collections are housed in the Special Collections section of the Hawthorne-Longfellow Library.

The Arctic Studies Center was established in 1985 as a result of a generous matching grant from the Russell and Janet Doubleday Foundation to endow the directorship of the center, in recognition of the Doubledays' close relationship to MacMillan. The center links the resources of the museum and library with teaching and research efforts, and hosts traveling exhibitions, lectures, workshops, and educational outreach projects. Through course offerings, field research programs, employment opportunities, and special events, the center promotes anthropological, archaeological, geological, and environmental investigations of the North.

Research, Educational, and Conference Facilities

BETHEL POINT MARINE RESEARCH STATION

The College's marine research facility is located approximately 10 miles from the campus on a 17-acre parcel of land with considerable shore frontage. Two laboratories are situated on the land. All major coastal environments of Maine are represented in microcosm, offering a unique opportunity for study. In conjunction with the hydrocarbon research performed by Bowdoin's Department of Chemistry, the staff of the Bethel Point facility studies the chemical and biological consequences of oil spills on marine environments. While much of this study has been performed at the station and other points on the Maine coast, Bowdoin research teams have investigated spills in France, Puerto Rico, and various locations along the eastern seaboard of the United States.

BOWDOIN SCIENTIFIC STATION

The College maintains a field station at Kent Island, off Grand Manan, in the Bay of Fundy, New Brunswick, Canada, where qualified students can conduct fieldwork on biological problems. Kent Island, containing about 200 acres and several buildings, was presented to the College in 1935 by John Sterling Rockefeller.

Kent Island is a major seabird breeding ground and the home of various land birds. Its location makes it a concentration point for migrating birds in spring and fall. The famous Fundy tides create excellent opportunities for the study of marine biology. The terrestrial habitats are surprisingly varied for an island of this size.

No formal courses are offered at the station, but students from Bowdoin and other institutions are encouraged to select problems for investigation at Kent Island during the summer and to conduct fieldwork on their own initiative with the advice and assistance of the Department of Biology. Approved work at the station is acceptable for credit as independent study. Field trips of short duration to Kent Island are a feature of Bowdoin's courses in ecology and ornithology.

Faculty members and graduate students from numerous universities and colleges conduct research in biology at the Bowdoin Scientific Station. They help the undergraduate members of the station through informal instruction and as examples of experienced investigators at work.

Financial assistance for students conducting research at Kent Island is available from the Alfred O. Gross Fund (see page 246). Other funds that support the Bowdoin Scientific Station are the Kent Island Fund, the Heizaburo Saito Fund, the Minot Fund, and the Roy Spear Memorial Fund.

BRECKINRIDGE PUBLIC AFFAIRS CENTER

The Breckinridge Public Affairs Center is a 23-acre estate on the tidal York River in southern Maine. The center includes a 25-room main house, a clay tennis court, and a 110-foot, circular, saltwater swimming pool. Owned and operated by Bowdoin College, the center is used for classes, seminars, and meetings of educational, cultural, and civic groups. Business and professional organizations also use the facility for planning sessions and staff development activities. River House, which accommodates 19 overnight guests, was designed by Guy Lowell in 1905 and is on the National Register of Historic Places. The estate was given to Bowdoin in 1974 by Marvin Breckinridge Patterson, whose husband was the Honorable Jefferson Patterson of St. Leonard, Maryland. Named in honor of Mrs. Patterson's family, who built the house, the estate is available for use April 1 through July 25, and September 17 through Thanksgiving, each year.

COLEMAN FARM BANDING STATION

During the course of the academic year, students conduct field study in ornithology at a site three miles south of the campus, using a tract of college-owned land that extends to the sea. Numerous habitats of resident birds are found on the property, and it is a stopover point for many migratory species. Organized by students in 1975, the Coleman Farm Banding Station is equipped by the College and a generous neighbor, E. Christopher Livesay, and operates under the direction of the Department of Biology.

WCBB-TV

WCBB-TV is a public television station formed by Bates, Bowdoin, and Colby colleges in 1961. It is licensed to Colby-Bates-Bowdoin Educational Telecasting Corporation and serves southern Maine and eastern New Hampshire. At the time of its founding, it was the first noncommercial television station in Maine, the third in New England, and one of the earliest in the nation. It is supported primarily by contributions from viewers, an annual auction, and grants from business, industry, and foundations.

Language Media Center

THE LANGUAGE MEDIA CENTER, formerly the Film, Video, and Language Laboratories, was renovated in the summer of 1985 with the help of a gift from the Pew Memorial Trust. Located in the basement of Sills Hall, the center supports the study of foreign languages by providing a fourteen-station Tandberg audio-active language laboratory, fifteen individual viewing stations for VHS, Beta, and 3/4-inch videocassettes (European and American standards), a shortwave receiving station, a videodisc viewing station, and eight Macintosh microcomputer stations.

The center offers a group viewing area that accommodates up to thirty-five persons and a lobby area for informal viewing of live television transmitted from an 11-foot domestic satellite dish reception system located on the roof of Morrell Gymnasium. Students are able to watch live French-, Spanish-, and Italian-language television on the C and KU bands from this system. A 16-foot international reception system, located on the roof of Sills Hall, enables students to watch live programming from the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe, South America, and the Middle East.

In addition, the Language Media Center provides an array of audio and video services, such as the high-speed duplication of audio tapes and the duplication of video tapes, cataloging and storage of audiovisual materials, and display of popular foreign-language newspapers and periodicals.

Academic Computing Services

ACADEMIC COMPUTING SERVICES (ACS), a department of the Computing Center, manages Bowdoin's public computing laboratories, provides hardware and software services for faculty instructional and research activities, administers the College's discount purchase plans for computers and software, manages the two time-sharing systems that are dedicated to academic work, provides network connections between Bowdoin and other institutions, and manages a hotline for questions and problems about computers.

For the 1991-92 academic year, ACS will operate six widely accessible labs for students, faculty, and staff. The main lab is in Hubbard 208 and includes 28 booths with Apple Macintosh, IBM, and Zenith microcomputers (all with hard disks) and several video terminals and printers. The booklet "ACS Facilities and Services," available through ACS, contains detailed descriptions and policies.

Unlike other institutions that limit their users to one kind of computing system, ACS at Bowdoin believes the educational benefits of using different systems are well worth their added cost. Therefore, for students, faculty, and staff, ACS supports both Macintosh and IBM-compatible microcomputing as well as Digital VMS and unix time-sharing. Each public lab offers at least two of these platforms. While individuals are free to work most of the time with the system they prefer, a particular course may require work on one specific system.

Students, faculty, and staff may purchase Apple Macintosh, IBM PS/2, Zenith Data Systems, and WordPerfect Corp. products at a discount through ACS. College policy does not require students to own personal computers, although many do so. Students are encouraged to wait until the beginning or middle of the second year before purchasing a personal system. At that point, personal work-styles and departmental interests are more focused, and waiting ensures having a suitable system for the challenges of third-year and fourth-year work. In turn, ACS maintains adequate public facilities for all students who do not have their own systems.

The ACS time-sharing computers are a Digital VAX 8350 with the VMS operating system and a Digital System 5400 with Ultrix (unix). Accounts are available to all students, faculty, and staff at no charge and offer a full range of electronic mail, editing, and other applications. With an account on any system, a user also can use the On-Line Library Catalog System for the Bowdoin College libraries, and through it can search the libraries of Bates College, Colby College, and the University of Maine library system. (Dedicated terminals in the libraries also provide catalog access.)

Bowdoin has subscribed to the New England Academic and Research Network (NEARnet) to provide all members of the Bowdoin community the full range of international network services. The College's internet node name is BOWDOIN.EDU.

ACS staff monitor the campus computing hotline (available by telephone, ext. 3792; by e-mail, JAMES::HELP$CC or HELP$CC@BOWDOIN.EDU), through which the campus community is encouraged to raise questions. The main offices of Academic Computing Services are located in Hubbard 208.

Performing Arts

DRAMA

THE DIVISION OF THEATER within the Department of Theater Arts consists of the director of theater and the technical director. The main thrust of its activities is in making possible extensive extracurricular participation in the theater. The student drama group, Masque and Gown, was founded in 1903.

Credit courses in acting and directing are taught by the director of theater. Lighting is taught by the technical director. Each year at least three major productions are produced by Masque and Gown on the stage of Pickard Theater. For many years, one production each season has been a musical. In March 1991, two student-written one-act musicals were presented to capacity houses. One very popular production each year is usually a Shakespeare drama or classical play. In the fall of 1990, The Merchant of Venice was presented. There are about eleven different productions during the school year.

Pickard Theater, the generous gift in 1955 of Frederick William Pickard, LL.D., of the Class of 1894, includes a modern, 600-seat theater with proscenium stage equipped with a hemp and counterweight system for flying scenery and an electronic lighting control system. In addition, Memorial Hall contains a scene shop and, on the lower floor, the G.H.Q. Playwrights' Theater, a 100-seat, open-stage theater for experimental work by students.

Membership in Masque and Gown results from major work on one or minor work on two of the plays produced each season. An executive committee of undergraduates elected by the members consults with the director of theater to determine the program for each year, handles publicity of the club, and organizes the production work. Masque and Gown needs box-office workers, publicists, directors, designers, builders, painters, electricians, stage hands, and costumers, as well as actors, actresses, and playwrights.

One of the most important activities of the club has been its encouragement of playwriting. For over fifty years, Masque and Gown has sponsored an annual student-written one-act play contest, with cash prizes. The contest is now underwritten by the generous gift of Hunter S. Frost '47.

DANCE

The Division of Dance within the Department of Theater Arts evolved from the Bowdoin Dance Program, which began in 1971. Each year, the Bowdoin Dance Group, the student performing ensemble, presents a major spring performance of student and faculty works in Pickard Theater. Students also perform annually at Parents Weekend in the fall and in the Museum of Art in May, in addition to presenting an informal studio show in December in Pickard Theater. Performances are strongly linked to participation in technique, repertory, and choreography classes, held in the Dance Studio at Sargent Gymnasium, but independent work is also presented.

The Division of Dance offers a comprehensive academic curriculum, including courses in dance history, theory, criticism, and choreography taught by the director of dance. Performance studies courses, on an academic or co-curricular basis, are taught by the director, teaching fellows, and visiting dance professionals.

The foundation for performance studies classes in dance technique and repertory is modern dance, a term designating a wide spectrum of styles. The program focuses principally on an inventive, unrestricted approach to movement that offers an appropriate format for exploring the general nature of dance and the creative potential of undergraduates at a small liberal arts college. Courses in ballet and jazz technique are also offered when possible.

Since 1973, the Division of Dance, often as part of the Bates-Bowdoin-Colby Dance Alliance, has invited nationally known dance companies, choreographers, and critics to the campus for teaching residencies and performances. A partial list includes Meredith Monk, Douglas Dunn, Pauline Koner, Kei Takei, Pilobolus, Wendy Perron, Dana Reitz, Phoebe Neville, Impulse Dance Company, Sukanya, The Court Dance Company of New York, Susan Foster, the Copasetics, Art Bridgman and Myrna Packer, Doug Varone, Johanna Boyce, Richard Bull, Coleman/Freedman, and Irène Hultman, and critics Laura Shapiro, Marcia B. Siegel, and Jill Johnston. These professionals teach master classes and offer lecture/demonstrations as part of their visits to campus. During the fall of 1990, New York performance artist Dan Hurlin was in residence to teach two courses, with support from Mellon Foundation funds for curriculum enrichment.

MUSIC

Music performance at Bowdoin ranges from informal student repertory sessions to professional performances by visiting artists, and from solo recitals to large-scale performances for chorus and orchestra. Many ensembles, such as the Chamber Choir, College Community Orchestra, College Chorale, and Concert Band, are part of the curricular program. Credit is also given for participation in the Brass Quintet, String Quartet, and Schola Cantorum, a small vocal ensemble drawn from the Chamber Choir. Other groups, such as the Polar Jazz Ensemble, are sponsored by students.

The Chamber Choir is a select group of approximately twenty-five singers that performs a wide variety of choral and soloistic music. Its repertoire includes music from the Middle Ages to the avant garde, from jazz and folk to Bach and Brahms. Recent tours have taken the choir to Europe, Canada, and New Orleans. The Bowdoin College Chorale is a choral ensemble composed of students, faculty, staff, and community members. Recent performances by the Chorale include Brahms's Liebeslieder Waltzes, J. S. Bach's Easter Oratorio, and Fauré's Requiem.

The College Community Orchestra is an auditioned ensemble also drawn from the community at large. Its performances include works from the standard repertoire, such as Mozart and Beethoven symphonies, as well as interesting, less well known works and premiers of new compositions. The Concert Band often performs at campus ceremonies, such as James Bowdoin Day, and it also plays on-campus concerts of the standard repertoire and contemporary jazz.

Both early music and contemporary music receive considerable emphasis at Bowdoin, and the music department recently won a national award for its support of American music. Early music is furthered through a collection of early instruments, such as gambas, shawms, cornetti, and members of the lute family, as well as two harpsichords and a tracker-action organ, gift of Chester William Cooke III '57. Entire concerts are often devoted to a particular early-music repertoire, such as that of the sixteenth-century Spanish court. Recent visiting early-music artists include the Tallis Scholars, Musica Antiqua Köln, and harpsichordist Igor Kipnis.

Contemporary music is supported by a recently updated electronic music studio, including Macintosh computers, digital mixers, and software synthesis. There are also frequent visits by guest composers such as Karel Husa, Pauline Oliveros, George Crumb, and Thea Musgrave, and a biennial festival of contemporary choral music. Student compositions are often heard on campus. The performance of American music has included visits by professional jazz ensembles such as the Billy Taylor Trio and the production of Otto Luening's opera Evangeline.

Other visiting artists in recent years have included the Los Angeles Piano Quartet, Joan Morris and William Bolcom, the Chinese Music Ensemble of New York, the Lydian String Quartet, and Kurt Ollman. In addition to performing, the artists often teach master classes and hold discussions with students.

Bowdoin owns a collection of orchestral and band instruments and over twenty grand pianos available for use by students studying and performing music. Soloists and ensembles perform in a number of halls on campus, including the Gibson Recital Hall, Kresge Auditorium, Pickard Theater, and the Chapel, which houses a forty-five-rank Austin organ. Private instruction in piano, organ, harpsichord, voice, and all the major orchestral instruments is available.

Department of Athletics and Physical Education

BOWDOIN BELIEVES that physical education is an important part of the total educational program. The Department of Athletics provides students with opportunities for satisfying experiences in physical activities for the achievement of health and physical fitness. The physical education program includes classes that emphasize instruction in sports activities with carry-over value, intramural athletics, and intercollegiate competition. Students are encouraged to use the athletic facilities to participate in free recreational play.

Intercollegiate Athletics: During the past year, Bowdoin offered intercollegiate competition in the following varsity sports: Men's teams were fielded in baseball, basketball, cross-country, football, hockey, lacrosse, skiing, soccer, squash, swimming, tennis, and track (winter and spring); women's teams were fielded in basketball, cross-country, field hockey, ice hockey, lacrosse, skiing, soccer, softball, squash, swimming, tennis, track (winter and spring), and volleyball; coed teams were offered in golf and sailing. Junior varsity teams are maintained in a few intercollegiate sports.

Club Sports: The following club sports are active at Bowdoin: crew, rugby, water polo, and tae kwon do.

Physical Education: The instructional program includes a wide variety of activities utilizing campus and off-campus facilities, both natural and man-made. The activities have been selected to provide the Bowdoin community (students, faculty, and staff members) with the opportunity to receive basic instruction in exercises and leisure-time activities. It is hoped that participants will develop these activities into lifelong commitments. The program varies from year to year to meet current interests.

Intramural Athletics: Men's, women's, and coeducational leagues at the novice, intermediate, and advanced levels are offered in basketball, box lacrosse, touch football, ultimate frisbee, hockey, outdoor soccer, softball, indoor and outdoor volleyball, and water basketball. All students and members of the faculty and staff are eligible to participate in the intramural program unless they are playing for a corresponding varsity, junior varsity, or club team.

Outdoor Facilities: The outdoor athletic facilities of the College are excellent. Whittier Field is a tract of 5 acres that is used for football games and also includes a 400-meter, all-weather track. It has a grandstand with team rooms beneath it. Pickard Field is a tract of 75 acres that includes baseball and softball diamonds; spacious playing fields for football, lacrosse, rugby, soccer, softball, and touch football; eight tennis courts; and a cross-country ski track.

Indoor Facilities: The College possesses indoor facilities that are the equal of its outstanding outdoor facilities. Morrell Gymnasium contains a modern basketball court with seats for about 2,000 persons; two visiting team rooms; 11 squash courts; a locker room with 480 lockers; shower facilities; a modern, fully equipped training room; offices for the director of athletics and his staff; and other rooms for physical education purposes. Sargent Gymnasium includes a weight-training room, a Nautilus room, a special exercise room, a regulation basketball court, a training room, and locker rooms with 470 lockers. The William Farley Field House contains a 200-meter, 6-lane track, a weight room, and four tennis courts adjacent to a 114-by-75-foot, 16-lane pool with one 3-meter and two 1-meter diving boards; a trainers' room; locker and equipment rooms; space for aerobics; and meeting rooms. Completing the athletic facilities is the Dayton Arena, which has a 200-by-85-foot refrigerated ice surface and seating accommodations for 2,600 spectators.

Residential Life

BOWDOIN provides for its students a campus life that combines traditional features of the liberal arts college with modern facilities and programs to enrich the undergraduate experience. The curriculum offers formal instruction in those subjects appropriate to the development of educated and enlightened citizens. Within this framework, students are encouraged, and are permitted sufficient flexibility, to develop their talents and capacities for leadership. Along with the library, laboratories, Museum of Art and Peary-MacMillan Arctic Museum, visual arts center, concert and lecture halls, social center, health center, and athletic facilities, continuing attention is given to the less tangible—but more important—intellectual resources of the College. Art shows, lectures, concerts, films, and dramatic productions all enrich the student's work within the formal curriculum.

Honor System: Initiated by students, the Honor System places complete responsibility upon individual students for integrity in all academic work, including the use of the library. During registration, students sign a pledge signifying that they understand and agree to abide by the Bowdoin College Honor System. In so doing, students pledge to neither give nor receive unacknowledged aid in any academic undertaking. In the event that students witness a violation of the Honor System, they are obligated to take action consistent with their own sense of honor. The task of instructing students about their responsibilities under the Honor System resides with the Student Judiciary Board, a five-member body that also conducts hearings and recommends action to the dean in the event of a reported violation. Although currently under review by the Student Executive Board, the provisions and administration of the Honor System and other explanatory information are published in the Bowdoin College Student Handbook.

Social Code: The responsibility for creating a harmonious community among students with different backgrounds and conflicting personal values rests, in large part, with students themselves. Conflicts that cannot be resolved informally are adjudicated through the Bowdoin College Social Code. This unique code of conduct resulted from the cooperative efforts of faculty and students, and it governs undergraduate behavior at the College.

The Social Code requires that all students conduct themselves in accordance with local, state, and federal laws. It protects the rights of all students to privacy and to full participation in the life of the College community. In residences, in particular, the Code stipulates that the quiet necessary for academic pursuits will prevail.

As with the Honor Code, students must subscribe to the Social Code at registration. The code clearly states that “the success of the Social Code requires the active commitment of all members of the community to the principles on which life at Bowdoin is based." When instances of suspected misconduct occur, the code recommends an informal resolution, initially. Persistent and serious violations of this Social Code may be brought to the attention of the dean of students and to the Student Judiciary Board. Specific provisions and administration of the Social Code are found in the Student Handbook.

Living and Dining Accommodations: The College provides living and dining accommodations for its students. First-year students must reside in College-owned facilities. Most students dine at Moulton Union or Wentworth Hall. Those electing to join coeducational fraternities may take their meals at the fraternity house. Students who request and accept room accommodations in the fall are obligated to pay a full academic year's rent for those accommodations. Students who live in campus dormitories or fraternities are required to maintain a regular board contract with the Centralized Dining Service. Students living in College apartments are not required to take a regular board contract. The fraternity chapter houses furnish dining accommodations for their members and living accommodations for some of their sophomore, junior, and senior members.

Moulton Union: The Union serves as the community center for the College.

The main lounge is arranged for informal use as well as College gatherings: lectures, recitals, receptions, and banquets. The Lancaster Lounge, in the wing opposite the main lounge, and a smaller lounge add flexibility to the main floor area. Also on this floor are the information desk, a mail room, and the offices of the director of the Union, the director of events, the student activities coordinator, and the campus scheduling supervisor.

A large, self-service bookstore, which features a broad selection of paperbacks, is located in the southeast corner on the main floor and supplies textbooks and sundries to members of the College.

Extracurricular organizations such as the Student Executive Board, the Student Union Committee, the Camera Club, the Asian Interest Group, the Latin American Student Organization, and WBOR have headquarters in the Union. The Office of Career Services is on the second floor of the building.

On the lower floor, food service is provided in a variety of dining rooms, one of which serves as a banquet room for groups of less than one hundred. The Bear Necessity, opened in 1981, provides an informal gathering place for members of the college community. A light menu and entertainment are available. Also on this floor are a game room, a mail room, an automated bank-teller machine, and a travel agency.

The formulation of policies and the planning of the many-sided program of activities are the responsibility of the Moulton Union director and the Student Union Committee. By sponsoring concerts, art exhibitions, tournaments, and other entertainments, the committee contributes to the social life of the entire college community.

Coeducational Fraternities: Approximately 40 percent of all Bowdoin students join one of the coeducational fraternities at some time in their career at the College. Membership is open to all undergraduates. Some members live in the houses, most of which are located adjacent to the campus and are independently owned and operated by alumni house corporations. Most other members live in College housing but frequently eat meals in their house dining rooms. All Bowdoin social and safety regulations apply to fraternity members and to the houses.

For their members, fraternities are an important part of college life, providing a focus for social activities and enabling the sharing of educational concerns and daily living experiences. Membership affords students an opportunity to assume responsibilities in self-governance within the houses and offers exposure to the history and traditions of the fraternities and the College.

Student Executive Board: Student social life at Bowdoin, the operation of student organizations, and the canvassing of student opinion to advise faculty and administrators on issues of general campus concern are entrusted to student governance. Undergraduate self-government is vested in the Student Executive Board, which makes recommendations about student affairs to the student body and to the faculty. In addition, the Student Executive Board participates in the broader governance of the campus through representatives chosen by the board to be members of the various committees of the faculty and the Governing Boards.

Student Judiciary Board: The Student Judiciary Board is responsible for adjudicating misconduct through the enforcement of the Honor System and the Social Code. The board conducts administrative hearings on suspected misconduct and presents its findings to the dean of students in the form of recommendations. The board comprises three seniors and two juniors, all selected by the Student Judiciary Board with the approval of the Student Executive Board.

Student Representatives to Committees of the Faculty and Governing Boards: Most of the committees of the faculty and Governing Boards have invited student representatives to be voting members and to sit with them in their deliberations. This representation has facilitated the exchange of information and points of view between the various constituencies of the College.

Board of Proctors: The general comfort of residents, informal peer counseling, and the maintenance of order in the residence halls are the responsibility of the proctors, who are appointed by the associate dean of students.

Organizations

ADAPT (Awareness of Difference Among People Today): The members of this group deal with such community issues and concerns as racism, sexism, and homophobia.

African-American Society: The African-American Society, formed in 1968, was created to preserve, establish, and promote the African-American heritage within the Bowdoin community. Educational, cultural, and social activities are generally focused on the special experiences of African Americans. Membership is available to all students who share similar interests. The general public is invited to participate in the African-American Society's varied activities throughout the year. In cooperation with student and faculty groups, the society has regularly sponsored educational programs, cultural expressions, and general entertainment for the benefit of the entire community. The society is instrumental in the recruitment of African-American students and assists new students in making the adjustment to college life.

Alcohol Peer Advisors: The Alcohol Peer Advisors are specially trained students who have been given accurate information about alcohol and its effects on fellow students, friends, and family. APAs are willing to listen to fellow students and can act as a referral link to other resources available on campus and in the community. APAs have also developed an outreach program with the goal of educating the Bowdoin community about alcohol-related issues.

Amnesty International: Amnesty International is a campus chapter of the Nobel Prize-winning human rights organization. In addition to working for the release of prisoners of conscience, the group is concerned with promoting human rights education throughout the campus.

Asian Interest Group: The purpose of the group is to deal with Asian issues that arise in the Bowdoin College community. The group works closely with the various offices of the administration to discuss admissions, student life, and curriculum policies; to help students adjust to college life; and to promote Asian-American awareness.

B-GLAD (Bisexual, Gay, Lesbian Alliance for Diversity): The group provides an avenue for the discussion of relationships, families, love, and sexuality, and establishes a social and political support network for nonheterosexual participants. The alliance presents a number of films and lectures each year.

Bowdoin Active in Community Service (BACS): A wide range of social service activities is undertaken by students. Their voluntary nature is their essential characteristic. Students participating in them receive no compensation or academic credit. Each of the major programs is coordinated by a student leader, and the smaller or individual activities are organized by the voluntary service programs coordinator.

Currently these activities include the Big Brother-Big Sister program, which provides companionship and activities for children of elementary and junior high school age; a program of assistance to area retarded citizens; programs that seek to help the elderly and infirm in the region; the Regional Hospital Program for those considering careers in medicine; a school tutoring program; Bowdoin Undergraduate Teachers, which is of particular interest to those interested in a teaching career since it provides opportunities for direct participation in local school classrooms; the Bath Children's Home Program, in which students offer friendship and academic assistance to youngsters living in a group home; Project BASE (Bowdoin and Sweetser exchange), which offers an opportunity to work with emotionally disturbed children at a residential school; and the Maine Volunteer Lawyers Project, in which trained students offer preliminary legal information to low-income Portland-area residents.

Bowdoin Dance Group: The group sponsors visiting performers, gives informal concerts or lecture/demonstrations, and presents a major spring performance of student work.

Bowdoin Film and Video Society: The BFVS sponsors films throughout the school year. Some of the box office proceeds are used to buy films for the permanent collection.

Bowdoin Literary Society: The group sponsors lectures, poetry readings, and other events centered around literature.

Bowdoin Orient: The Bowdoin Orient, the College's newspaper, has been in continuous publication since 1871. There are opportunities for first-year students as reporters and for newcomers at the news desk, and advancement on the staff is rapid for those with a flair for journalism. Students interested in the business management of the newspaper will also find opportunities for work and advancement. The club also provides leadership training workshops for members of the College community.

Bowdoin Review: The editors of the Bowdoin Review, a student essay magazine published twice in the academic year, will consider essays on any subject for publication.

Bowdoin Rugby Football Club: The club sponsors rugby matches with teams from other colleges and independent teams.

Bowdoin Thymes: The Bowdoin Thymes, the daily newspaper/calendar of the College, is a publication of the Office of Public Relations and Publications and employs two or three undergraduates as coeditors. Each weekday, the Thymes is printed and delivered to dormitories, fraternities, and other buildings on campus.

Bowdoin Women's Association: The BWA sponsors lectures on topics of interest to the entire College community as well as informal gatherings where Bowdoin women can get to know one another and discuss their college experiences. The BWA has an office in the Women's Resource Center at 24 College Street.

Bugle: The Bugle is the College yearbook.

Camera Club: This informal organization provides activities and collaboration for Bowdoin's many student photographers.

Chapel Talks Program: Organized and directed by students, the program offers an opportunity for members of the community to meet weekly in the Chapel to contemplate and question talks delivered on a wide variety of topics.

College Republicans: A conservative political organization open to students of any and all party affiliations, the group sponsors speakers, has social activities, and publishes The Patriot.

Druids: The goal of this environmental organization is to raise awareness and promote action on local and global environmental issues. The group holds weekly meetings and sponsors lectures and films. Members are involved in the campus recycling program and other conservation efforts.

Interfraternity Council: The presidents of the fraternities meet regularly to discuss common issues and to review ways in which fraternities at Bowdoin may contribute more effectively to undergraduate life.

International Club: The club sponsors a broad range of intercultural events, including dances, lectures, and dinners, and helps facilitate exchange between students of varying backgrounds with international interests.

Kamerling Society: Named in honor of the late Samuel E. Kamerling, Charles Weston Pickard Professor of Chemistry, the society is Bowdoin's student chapter affiliated with the American Chemical Society. The society sponsors lectures, films, and seminars for the College community.

Latin American Student Organization: This group provides a support network for Latin American students at Bowdoin and sponsors educational and cultural programs for the entire community.

Masque and Gown: This college dramatic organization has for more than eighty seasons provided undergraduates with opportunities to give practical expression to their interest in the theater. The Executive Committee produces full-length and one-act plays and sponsors the annual student-written one-act play contest; the committee also uses various experimental production techniques. Under the direction of the director of theater and housed in Pickard Theater, Masque and Gown offers many opportunities for those interested in playwriting, scene design and construction, acting, business management, and publicity.

Music: Music activities include the Meddiebempsters, a men's augmented double quartet; the Miscellania, a women's augmented double quartet; the What Four, a barbershop quartet; the Bowdoin Polar Jazz Ensemble; the Wind Ensemble; the Chamber Choir; the Chorale; the Bowdoin Precision Marching Band; and the Community Orchestra.

Outing Club: Organized in 1948, the Outing Club sponsors a program of outdoor activities including rock climbing, hiking, cycling, canoeing, and skiing.

Paracelsus Society: The organization is a biological and natural science society that presents lectures, seminars, and films.

Quill: The Quill is the College literary publication and is normally published once each semester. Each issue contains short stories, essays, poems, and reviews. Contributions are welcomed from all members of the College.

Radio: In WBOR, "Bowdoin-on-Radio," the College has a well-equipped FM radio station as the result of a gift from the Class of 1924. Situated on the second floor of the Moulton Union, the student-operated station broadcasts daily when the College is in session. Positions as announcers, engineers, newscasters, and sportscasters are numerous and open to any student who has an FCC Third Class Permit with broadcast endorsement.

Religious Life: Religious activities at Bowdoin are organized by the students. In recent years, the Bowdoin Christian Fellowship, the Bowdoin Jewish Organization, the Canterbury Club, and the Newman Apostolate have been active. Each has planned activities appropriate to its membership.

Russian Club: The club sponsors concerts of Russian music and showings of Soviet films, holds Russian dinners, and leads discussions of current affairs involving the USSR, in its efforts to promote Russian and East European culture on the Bowdoin campus.

Safe Space: The members of this group have been trained in the issues surrounding sexual harassment and interpersonal relationships. Safe Space's purpose is to encourage healthy relationships, interpersonal communication, and consideration among members of the Bowdoin community. The members organize events that promote campus awareness and are also available to provide information, one-on-one peer counseling, or crisis intervention.

Struggle and Change: The goal of this political organization is to raise issues on campus about the larger society in which we live. Such issues include nuclear power and apartheid. The group sponsors speakers, holds weekly discussions, and publishes To the Root, an alternative political newspaper.

Student Admissions Volunteer Organization: SAVO's main purpose is to assist in creating new admissions functions that will help make the Bowdoin admissions program more personal. Volunteers call individuals upon their acceptance to Bowdoin in the spring and work with BASIC, the alumni admissions group.

Student Union Committee: This group is a committee of elected members that organizes, coordinates, and sponsors a number of campus-wide social activities including lectures, dances, parties, and concerts.

Wherefore Art: This organization sponsors a variety of events focused on art, including films, lectures, museum trips, and discussions.

Young Democrats: The group is a partisan organization that welcomes people from all parts of the political spectrum to participate. The group's goal is to promote political awareness on campus by sponsoring speakers and debates.

Career Services

The Office of Career Services (OCS) complements the academic mission of the College. Career counselors strive to increase students' awareness of the skills they are developing through a liberal arts education and the applicability of these skills to a wide range of career options.

A major goal of OCS is to introduce undergraduates and alumni/ae to the process of career planning, which includes self-assessment, career exploration, goal-setting, and the development of an effective job search strategy. Students are encouraged to visit OCS early during their college years for counseling and information on internships and summer jobs. OCS assists seniors in their transition to work or graduate study and prepares them to deal with later career and life decisions.

A staff of four is available for individual career counseling. Workshops and presentations provide assistance in identifying skills, writing resumes, preparing for interviews, and refining job-hunting techniques. Panel discussions and informational meetings throughout the year are designed to broaden students' awareness of their career options and to enhance their understanding of the job market. Information and advisement is offered regarding graduate study as well. In counseling style and program content, OCS addresses the needs of those with diverse interests, attitudes, and expectations.

Alumni/ae and parents volunteer to share their insights and expertise in informational programs both on and off campus. A computerized network allows the OCS staff to refer those seeking advice on specific career fields or geographic areas to alumni/ae and parents in various professions and locations of interest.

Each year, more than 50 companies, 60 graduate and professional schools, and an increasing number of secondary schools and nonprofit employers participate in on-campus recruiting programs. Bowdoin is also a member of interviewing consortia in Maine, Boston, and New York City.

Career Services continually updates two resource centers, located in the Moulton Union and in the Department of Education, which house general career guidance literature and materials on specific careers, companies, organizations, and graduate schools. More than a dozen periodicals list current job opportunities, and information is available on over 1,000 summer and semester internships. A weekly newsletter publicizes all OCS events and programs in addition to internship and job openings.

Lectureships

THE REGULAR INSTRUCTION of the College is supplemented each year by ten or twelve major lectures, in addition to lectures, panel discussions, and other presentations sponsored by the various departments of study and undergraduate organizations.

John Warren Achorn Lectureship (1928): The income of a fund established by Mrs. John Warren Achorn as a memorial to her husband, a member of the Class of 1879, is used for lectures on birds and bird life.

Charles F. Adams Lectureship (1978): The income of a fund established by the bequest of Charles F. Adams '12 is used to support a lectureship in political science and education.

Albert C. Boothby Memorial Fund (1977): The family and friends of Albert C. Boothby '29 established this fund, whose terms are to be established.

Chemistry Lecture Fund (1939): This fund was established by a vote of the Governing Boards to support Department of Chemistry special lectures in chemistry.

Dan E. Christie Mathematics Lecture Fund (1976): Established by family, friends, colleagues, and former students in memory of Dan E. Christie '37, a member of the faculty for thirty-three years and Wing Professor of Mathematics from 1965 until his death in 1975, this fund is used to sponsor lectures under the auspices of the Department of Mathematics.

Annie Talbot Cole Lectureship (1907): This fund, established by Mrs. Calista S. Mayhew in memory of her niece, Mrs. Samuel Valentine Cole, is used to sponsor a lectureship that contributes "to the ennoblement and enrichment of life by standing for the idea that life is a glad opportunity. It shall, therefore, exhibit and endeavor to make attractive the highest ideals of character and conduct, and also, insofar as possible, foster an appreciation of the beautiful as revealed through nature, poetry, music, and the fine arts."

John C. Donovan Lecture Fund (1990): Established by colleagues, friends, and members of the Donovan family, through the leadership of Shepard Lee '47, this fund is used to support a lecture in the field of political science under the sponsorship of the Department of Government.

Elliott Oceanographic Fund (1973): Established by the Edward Elliott Foundation and members of the Elliott family in memory of Edward L. Elliott, a practicing geologist and mining engineer who expressed a lifelong interest in science and the sea, this fund promotes oceanographic education, in its widest definition, for Bowdoin students. It is expected that at least part of the fund will be used to support the Elliott Lectures in Oceanography, which were inaugurated in 1971.

Alfred E. Golz Lecture Fund (1986): Established by Ronald A. Golz '56 in memory of his father, this fund is used to support a lecture by an eminent historian or humanitarian to be scheduled close to the November 21 birthday of Alfred E. Golz.

Cecil T. and Marion C. Holmes Mathematics Lecture Fund (1977): Established by friends, colleagues, and former students to honor Cecil T. Holmes, a member of the faculty for thirty-nine years and Wing Professor of Mathematics, this fund is used to provide lectures under the sponsorship of the Department of Mathematics.

Mayhew Lecture Fund (1923): Established by Mrs. Calista S. Mayhew, this fund is used to provide lectures on bird life and its effect on forestry.

Charles Weston Pickard Lecture Fund (1961): The income of a fund established by John Coleman '22 in memory of his grandfather, a member of the Class of 1857, is used to provide a lecture in the field of journalism in its broadest sense. "By journalism is meant lines of communication with the public, whether through newspapers, radio, television, or other recognized media." The lecture is given once every four years.

Kenneth V. Santagata Memorial Lecture Fund (1982): Established by family and friends of Kenneth V. Santagata '73, this fund is used to provide at least one lecture each term, rotating in the arts, humanities, and social sciences, with lecturers to be recognized authorities in their respective fields, to present new, novel, or nonconventional approaches to the designated topic in the specified category.

Edith Lansing Koon Sills Lecture Fund (1962): This fund was established by the Society of Bowdoin Women to honor Mrs. Kenneth C. M. Sills, the wife of a former president of Bowdoin College.

The Harry Spindel Memorial Lectureship (1977): Established by the gift of Rosalyne Spindel Bernstein and Sumner Thurman Bernstein in memory of her father, Harry Spindel, as a lasting testimony to his lifelong devotion to Jewish learning, this fund is used to support annual lectures in Judaic studies or contemporary Jewish affairs.

The Jasper Jacob Stahl Lectureship in the Humanities (1970): Established by the bequest of Jasper Jacob Stahl '09, Litt.D. '60, this fund is used "to support a series of lectures to be delivered annually at the College by some distinguished scholarly and gifted interpreter of the Art, Life, Letters, Philosophy, or Culture, in the broadest sense, of the Ancient Hebraic World, or of the Ancient Greek World or of the Roman World, or of the Renaissance in Italy and Europe, or of the Age of Elizabeth I in England, or that of Louis XIV and the Enlightenment in France, or of the era of Goethe in Germany.”

Tallman Lecture Fund (1928): Established by Frank G. Tallman, A.M. H’35, as a memorial to the Bowdoin members of his family, this fund is used to support a series of lectures to be delivered by persons selected by the faculty. In addition to offering a course for undergraduates, the visiting professor on the Tallman Foundation gives public lectures on the subject of special interest.

Prizes and Distinctions

THE BOWDOIN PRIZE: This fund was established as a memorial to William John Curtis 1875, LL.D. '13, by his wife and children. The prize, four-fifths of the total income not to exceed $10,000, is to be awarded "once in each five years to the graduate or former member of the College, or member of its faculty at the time of the award, who shall have made during the period the most distinctive contribution in any field of human endeavor. The prize shall only be awarded to one who shall, in the judgment of the committee of award, be recognized as having won national and not merely local distinction, or who, in the judgment of the committee, is fairly entitled to be so recognized." (1928)

The first award was made in 1933 and the most recent in 1990. The recipient of the award in 1985 was Joan Benoit Samuelson '79. Joint recipients of the award in 1990 were Professors Dana W. Mayo and Samuel S. Butcher.

THE PRESERVATION OF FREEDOM FUND: Gordon S. Hargraves '19 established this fund to stimulate understanding and appreciation of the rights and freedoms of the individual, guaranteed under the Constitution of the United States. The prize is to be awarded to a student, member of the faculty, or group of Bowdoin alumni making an outstanding contribution to the understanding and advancement of human freedoms and the duty of the individual to protect and strengthen these freedoms at all times. (1988)

The first award was made in 1988 to William B. Whiteside, Frank Munsey Professor of History Emeritus. Recipients of the award in 1989 were Senators William S. Cohen '62, LL.D. '75, and George J. Mitchell, Jr. '54, LL.D. '83. The recipient of the award in 1991 was Ernst C. Helmreich, Thomas Brackett Reed Professor of History and Political Science Emeritus.

UNDERGRADUATE PRIZES

Prizes in General Scholarship

Brooks-Nixon Prize Fund: The annual income of a fund established by Percy Willis Brooks 1890 and Mary Marshall Brooks is awarded each year as a prize to the best Bowdoin candidate for selection as a Rhodes scholar. (1975)

Brown Memorial Scholarships: This fund, for the support of four scholarships at Bowdoin College, was given by the Honorable J. B. Brown, of Portland, in memory of his son, James Olcott Brown 1856, A.M. 1859. According to the provisions of this foundation, a prize will be paid annually to the best scholar in each undergraduate class who shall have graduated at the high school in Portland after having been a member thereof not less than one year. The awards are made by the city of Portland upon recommendation of the College. (1865)

Dorothy Haythorn Collins Award: This award, given by Dorothy Haythorn Collins and her family to the Society of Bowdoin Women, is used to honor a student "who has achieved academic and general excellence in his or her chosen major" at the end of the junior year. Each year the society selects a department from the sciences, social studies, or humanities. The selected department chooses a student to honor by purchasing books and placing them with a nameplate in the department library. The student also receives a book and certificate of merit. (1985)

Almon Goodwin Prize Fund: This fund was established by Mrs. Maud Wilder Goodwin in memory of her husband, Almon Goodwin 1862. The annual income is awarded to a member of Phi Beta Kappa chosen by vote of the Board of Trustees of the College at the end of the recipient's junior year. (1906)

George Wood McArthur Prize: This fund was bequeathed by Almira L. McArthur, of Saco, in memory of her husband, George Wood McArthur 1893. The annual income is awarded as a prize to that member of the graduating class who, coming to Bowdoin as the recipient of a prematriculation scholarship, shall have attained the highest academic standing among such recipients within the class. (1950)

Leonard A. Pierce Memorial Prize: This prize, established by friends and associates of Leonard A. Pierce '05, A.M. H'30, LL.D. '55, is awarded annually to that member of the graduating class who is continuing his or her education in an accredited law school and who attained the highest scholastic average during his or her years in college. It is paid to the recipient upon enrollment in law school. (1960)

AFRO-AMERICAN STUDIES

Lennox Foundation Book Prize: This fund was established by the Lennox Foundation and Jeffrey C. Norris '86. An appropriate book is awarded to a student graduating in Afro-American Studies. (1990)

ART

Art History Junior-Year Prize: This prize, funded annually by a donor wishing to remain anonymous, is awarded to a student judged by the Department of Art to have achieved the highest distinction in the major program in art history and criticism at the end of the junior year. (1979)

Art History Senior-Year Prize: This prize, established by a donor wishing to remain anonymous, is awarded to a graduating senior judged by the Department of Art to have achieved the highest distinction in the major in art history and criticism. (1982)

Anne Bartlett Lewis Memorial Fund: This fund was established by Anne Bartlett Lewis's husband, Henry Lewis, and her children, William H. Hannaford, David Hannaford, and Anne D. Hannaford. The annual income of the fund is used for demonstrations of excellence in art history and creative visual arts by two students enrolled as majors in the Department of Art. (1981)

BIOLOGY

Copeland-Gross Biology Prize: This prize, named in honor of Manton Copeland and Alfred Otto Gross, Sc.D. '52, both former Josiah Little Professors of Natural Science, is awarded to that graduating senior who has best exemplified the idea of a liberal education during the major program in biology. (1972)

Donald and Harriet S. Macomber Prize in Biology: This fund was established by Dr. and Mrs. Donald Macomber in appreciation for the many contributions of Bowdoin in the education of members of their family—David H. Macomber '39, Peter B. Macomber '47, Robert A. Zottoli '60, David H. Macomber, Jr. '67, Steven J. Zottoli '69, and Michael C. Macomber '73. The income of the fund is to be awarded annually as a prize to the outstanding student in the Department of Biology. If, in the opinion of the department, in any given year there is no student deemed worthy of this award, the award may be withheld and the income for that year added to the principal of the fund. (1967)

James Malcolm Moulton Prize in Biology: This fund was established by former students and other friends in honor of the George Lincoln Skolfield, Jr., Professor of Biology to provide a book prize to be awarded annually to the outstanding junior majoring in biology, as judged by scholarship and interest in biology. At the discretion of the Department of Biology, this award may be made to more than one student or to none in a given year. (1984)

MATHEMATICS

Edward Sanford Hammond Mathematics Prize: A book is awarded on recommendation of the Department of Mathematics to a graduating senior who is completing a major in mathematics with distinction. Any balance of the income from the fund may be used to purchase books for the department. The prize honors the memory of Edward S. Hammond, for many years Wing Professor of Mathematics, and was established by his former students at the time of his retirement. (1963)

Smyth Mathematical Prize: This prize, established by Henry Jewett Furber 1861 in honor of Professor William Smyth, is given to that student in each sophomore class who obtains the highest grades in mathematics courses during the first two years. The prize is awarded by the faculty of the Department of Mathematics, which will take into consideration both the number of mathematics courses taken and the level of difficulty of those courses in determining the recipient. The successful candidate receives one-third of the prize at the time the award is made. The remaining two-thirds is paid to him or her in installments at the close of each term during junior and senior years. If a vacancy occurs during those years, the income of the prize goes to the member of the winner's class who has been designated as the alternate recipient by the department. (1876)

MUSIC

Sue Winchell Burnett Music Prize: This prize, established by Mrs. Rebecca P. Bradley in memory of Mrs. Sue Winchell Burnett, is awarded upon recommendation of the Department of Music to that member of the senior class who has majored in music and has made the most significant contribution to music while a student at Bowdoin. If two students make an equally significant contribution, the prize will be divided equally between them. (1963)

Tiemer '28, who died in 1988, is to be awarded annually "to a senior or junior woman who is judged to have brought the most credit to Bowdoin and to herself." The recipient is to be selected by a vote of the team and the coach. (1990)

Paul Tiemer Men's Lacrosse Trophy: This award, established in memory of Paul Tiemer '28, is to be presented annually to the player who is judged to have shown the greatest improvement and team spirit over the course of the season. Only one award shall be made in a year, and the recipient is to be selected by a vote of the men's varsity lacrosse team. (1990)

Paul Tiemer, Jr., Men's Lacrosse Trophy: Given by Paul Tiemer '28 in memory of his son, Paul Tiemer, Jr., this trophy is awarded annually to the senior class member of the varsity lacrosse team who is judged to have brought the most credit to Bowdoin and to himself. The recipient is selected by the varsity lacrosse coach, the director of athletics, and the dean of the College. (1976)

Christopher Charles Watras Memorial Women's Ice Hockey Trophy: This trophy is dedicated in the memory of Chris Watras '85, former assistant women's ice hockey coach. The award is presented annually to that member of the Bowdoin women's varsity ice hockey team who best exhibits the qualities of sportsmanship, leadership, commitment, and dedication to her teammates and the sport, on the ice as well as in the community and the classroom. The recipient is selected by the women's varsity ice hockey coach and the director of athletics. Her name is engraved on the permanent trophy and she receives a replica at the team's annual award ceremony. (1989)

Women's Ice Hockey Founders' Award: This award is presented to the player who exemplifies the qualities of enthusiasm, dedication, and perseverance embodied in the spirited young women who were paramount in the establishment of Bowdoin women's hockey. The recipient is selected by vote of her fellow players. (1991)

Prizes in Extracurricular Activities

James Bowdoin Cup: This cup, given by the Alpha Rho Upsilon Fraternity, is awarded annually on James Bowdoin Day to the student who in his previous college year has won a varsity letter in active competition and has made the highest scholastic average among the students receiving varsity letters. In case two or more students should have equal records, the award shall go to the one having the best scholastic record during his or her college course. The name of the recipient is to be engraved on the cup. (1947)

Bowdoin Orient Prize: Six cash prizes are offered by the Bowdoin Publishing Company and are awarded each spring to those members of the Bowdoin Orient staff who have made significant contributions to the Orient in the preceding volume. (1948)

Paul Andrew Walker Prize Fund: This fund was established in honor and memory of Paul Andrew Walker '31 by his wife, Nathalie L. Walker. Forty percent of the income of the fund is used to honor a member or members of the Bowdoin Orient staff whose ability and hard work are deemed worthy by the Award Committee chosen by the dean of the College. A bronze medal or an appropriate book, with a bookplate designed to honor Paul Andrew Walker, is presented to each recipient. (1982)

General R. H. Dunlap Prize: The annual income of a fund established by Katharine Wood Dunlap in memory of her husband, Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap, USMC, is awarded to the student who writes the best essay on the subject of "service," in addition to demonstrating personal evidence of service. (1970)

Andrew Allison Haldane Cup: This cup, given by fellow officers in the Pacific in memory of Capt. Andrew Allison Haldane, USMCR, '41, is awarded to a member of the senior class who has outstanding qualities of leadership and character. (1945)

Orren Chalmer Hormell Cup: This cup, given by the Sigma Nu Fraternity at the College in honor of Orren Chalmer Hormell, D.C.L. '51, DeAlva Stanwood Alexander Professor of Government, is awarded each year to a sophomore who, as a first-year student, competed in first-year athletic competition as a regular member of a team, and who has achieved outstanding scholastic honors. A plaque inscribed with the names of all the cup winners is kept on display. (1949)

Lucien Howe Prize: Fifty percent of the income of a fund given by Dr. Lucien Howe 1870, A.M. 1879, Sc.D. '10, is awarded by the faculty to members of the senior class who as undergraduates, by example and influence, have shown the highest qualities of conduct and character. The remainder is expended by the president to improve the social life of the undergraduates. (1920)

Col. William Henry Owen Premium: This award established by Dr. Frederick Wooster Owen in memory of his brother, a member of the Class of 1851, is made at Commencement to some graduating student recognized by his or her fellow students as a "humble, earnest, and active Christian." (1916)

Franklin Delano Roosevelt Cup: This cup, furnished by the Bowdoin chapter of Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity, is inscribed annually with the name of that member of the three lower classes whose vision, humanity, and courage most contribute to making Bowdoin a better college. (1945)

Abraxas Award

An engraved pewter plate is awarded to the school sending two or more graduates to the College, whose representatives maintain the highest standing during their first year. This award was established by the Abraxas Society. (1915)

PHI BETA KAPPA

The Phi Beta Kappa Society, national honorary fraternity for the recognition and promotion of scholarship, was founded at the College of William and Mary in 1776. The Bowdoin chapter (Alpha of Maine), the sixth in order of establishment, was founded in 1825. Election is based primarily on scholarly achievement, and consideration is given to the student's entire college record. Students who have studied away are expected to have a total academic record, as well as a Bowdoin record, that meets the standards for election. Nominations are made three times a year, usually in September, February, and May. The total number of students selected in any year does not normally exceed ten percent of the number graduating in May. Students elected to Phi Beta Kappa are expected to be persons of integrity and good moral character. Candidates must have completed at least twenty-four semester courses of college work, including at least sixteen courses at Bowdoin.

JAMES BOWDOIN DAY

Named in honor of the earliest patron of the College, James Bowdoin Day was instituted in 1941 to accord recognition to those undergraduates who distinguish themselves in scholarship. Inaugurated by Stanley Perkins Chase '05, Henry Leland Chapman Professor of English Literature (1925-51), the exercises consist of the announcement of awards, the presentation of books, a response by an undergraduate, and an address. The James Ware Bradbury Debating Prize is awarded to the competitors for the student speaker at James Bowdoin Day exercises. The first prize is for the speaker; the second prize is divided among the other competitors.

The James Bowdoin Scholarships, carrying no stipend, are awarded to undergraduates who have completed at least the equivalent of two four-credit semesters at Bowdoin. The scholarships are determined on the basis of a student's entire record at Bowdoin. In the year preceding the award, a student must have been actively engaged in full-time academic work, and at least one of the semesters must have been at Bowdoin. For a student to be named a James Bowdoin Scholar, three-quarters of his or her grades (computed on the basis of full-course equivalents) must be A/HH or B/H, with at least one-quarter of them A/HH. In addition, there must be two grades of A/HH for each grade of C/P. Students who have received grades of D or F are ineligible.

A book, bearing a replica of the early College bookplate serving to distinguish the James Bowdoin Collection in the library, is presented to every undergraduate who has carried a full course program and has received a grade of A/HH in each of his courses during the last academic year.

THE APPLIED ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE FUND

This fund, established in 1981 by gifts from Robert C. Porter '34, LL.D. '86, the Ivy Fund, Suburban Propane Gas Corporation, March & McLennan Companies, Inc., and Eberstadt Asset Management, Inc., is to be used to support the research and instructional program of the Marine Research Laboratory and the Hydrocarbon Research Center.

FACULTY DEVELOPMENT FUND

The income of this fund, established by Charles Austin Cary '10, A.M. H'50, LL.D. '63, is expended each year "for such purpose or purposes, to be recommended by the President and approved by the Governing Boards, as shall be deemed to be most effective in maintaining the caliber of the faculty." These purposes may include, but not be limited to, support of individual research grants, productive use of sabbatical leaves, added compensation for individual merit or distinguished accomplishment, other incentives to encourage individual development of teaching capacity, and improvement of faculty salaries.

FACULTY RESEARCH FUND

This fund, founded by the Class of 1928 on the occasion of its twenty-fifth anniversary, is open to additions from other classes and individuals. The interest from the fund is used to help finance research projects carried on by members of the faculty.

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH ASSISTANCE

Surdna Foundation Undergraduate Research Fellowship Program

An undergraduate research fellowship program established in 1959 was renamed in 1968 the Surdna Foundation Undergraduate Research Fellowship Program in recognition of two gifts of the Surdna Foundation. The income from a fund, which these gifts established, underwrites the program's costs. Fellowships may be awarded annually to highly qualified seniors. Each Surdna Fellow participates under the direction of a faculty member in a research project in which the faculty member is independently interested.

The purpose is to engage the student directly in a serious attempt to extend knowledge. Each project to which a Surdna Fellow is assigned must therefore justify itself independently of the program, and the fellow is expected to be a participant in the research, not a mere observer or helper. The nature of the project differs from discipline to discipline, but all should give the fellow firsthand acquaintance with productive scholarly work. Should the results of the research be published, the faculty member in charge of the project is expected to acknowledge the contribution of the Surdna Fellow and of the program.

Surdna Fellows are chosen each spring for the following academic year. Awards are made on the basis of the candidate's academic record and departmental recommendation, his or her particular interests and competence, and the availability at the College of a research project commensurate with his talents and training. Acceptance of a Surdna Fellowship does not preclude working for honors, and the financial need of a candidate does not enter into the awarding of fellowships. Surdna Fellows are, however, obligated to refrain from employment during the academic year. The stipend is $1,600 for part-time research during the academic year or full-time research in eight weeks of the summer. There are eight awards annually.

Alfred O. Gross Fund

This fund, established by Alfred Otto Gross, Sc.D. '52, Josiah Little Professor of Natural Science, and members of his family, is designed to assist worthy students in doing special work in biology, preferably ornithology. Income from the fund may be used for such projects as research on Kent Island, travel to a given region or library for particular work, purchase of special apparatus, attendance at an ornithological congress or other scholarly gatherings, and publication of the results of research. Although the fund is administered by Bowdoin College, assistance from the fund is not limited to Bowdoin students.

Fritz C. A. Koelln Research Fund

This fund was established in 1972 by John A. Gibbons, Jr. '64, to honor Fritz C. A. Koelln, professor of German and George Taylor Files Professor of Modern Languages, who was an active member of the Bowdoin faculty from 1929 until 1971. The income from the fund may be awarded annually to a faculty-student research team to support exploration of a topic which surmounts traditional disciplinary boundaries. The purpose of the fund is to encourage broad, essentially humanistic inquiry, and should be awarded with preference given to worthy projects founded at least in part in the humanities.

Edward E. Langbein, Sr., Summer Research Grant

An annual gift of the Bowdoin Parents' Fund is awarded under the direction of the president of the College to undergraduates or graduates to enable the recipients to participate in summer research or advanced study directed toward their major field or lifework. Formerly the Bowdoin Fathers Association Fund, the grant was renamed in 1970 in memory of a former president and secretary of the association.

Summer Programs

BOWDOIN COLLEGE summer programs provide an opportunity for a wide variety of people to enjoy the College's facilities and to benefit from the expertise of Bowdoin faculty and staff during the nonacademic portion of the year. Summer programs consist of educational seminars, professional conferences, sports clinics, specialized workshops, and occasional social events that are appropriate to the College's overall mission as an educational institution and as a member of the Maine community.

In addition to the four long-term College-sponsored programs described below, other programs brought to campus by Bowdoin faculty, staff, and outside associations each year attract several thousand people to the College between early June and mid-August. Groups such as Elderhostel and many of the science conferences draw their participants on the strength of Bowdoin's reputation for an outstanding teaching faculty who share their talents with summer program guests. Persons interested in holding a conference at Bowdoin should contact the Office of Summer and Special Programs, which schedules all summer activities and coordinates dining, overnight accommodations, meeting space, audiovisual services, and other amenities necessary to a productive conference.

The longest-running summer program involving members of the Bowdoin faculty is the Infrared Spectroscopy course. Infrared and Raman spectroscopy are two of the most important tools of the modern chemist. The scientist of today must have an up-to-date, working knowledge of the principles and applications of vibrational spectroscopy if his or her work touches on any aspect of organic chemistry. Initiated at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1950, the program moved to Bowdoin in 1971. Over two thousand scientists have come to campus to work with the original staff who began the MIT program.

Upward Bound, in its twenty-fifth year at Bowdoin, is one of over 450 similar programs hosted by colleges across the country. Funded by the U.S. Department of Education, these programs have as their primary purpose the preparation of high school students from low-income families for entry into institutions of higher education. The six-week residential summer session on the Bowdoin campus is closely linked to an academic year follow-up by Upward Bound staff who continue to meet with the participants in their schools and homes.

Founded in 1964, the Bowdoin Summer Music Festival incorporates a music school, an artists' concert series, and the Gamper Festival of Contemporary Music during its six-week residency at Bowdoin College. Approximately 140 gifted performers of high school, college, and graduate school levels further their artistic development through a concentrated program of instrumental, chamber music, and composition studies with the Festival's faculty, which is composed of well-known teacher-performers from both the Bowdoin faculty and leading American conservatories.

In 1971 the College athletic department began offering the popular Summer Hockey Clinic, a hockey school with two-week sessions. Participants come from throughout the United States to train with Bowdoin coaches as well as coaches from other colleges and academies with outstanding hockey programs. Players, ranging from nine to eighteen years old, are grouped by age, and all on- and off-ice program activities are competitive according to size, age, and natural talent.

Each year additional camps are offered by members of the athletic staff in tennis, basketball, soccer, lacrosse, and other sports. A day camp for children from six to fourteen years old is based in Farley Field House. It provides an opportunity for area children to participate in summer recreational activities under the guidance of athletic department staff and Bowdoin students. In addition to arranging conferences, the Summer and Special Programs staff can provide information about the day camp, the various sports camps, and other events, concerts, and lectures occurring on the Bowdoin campus during a particular summer.

Alumni Organizations

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

THE BOWDOIN COLLEGE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION has as its purpose "to further the well-being of the College and its alumni by stimulating the interest of its members in the College and in each other." Membership is open to former students who during a minimum of one semester's residence earned at least one academic credit toward a degree, to those holding Bowdoin degrees, and to anyone elected to membership by the Executive Committee of the Alumni Council.

ALUMNI COUNCIL

Officers: Helen E. Pelletier '81, president; Bruce Locke '68, vice president; Donald B. Snyder '50, secretary and treasurer.

Members-at-Large: Terms expire in 1992: Helen E. Pelletier '81, Arthur L. Perry '57, Glenn K. Richards '60, George F. T. Yancey, Jr. '68. Terms expire in 1993: Sally Clayton Caras '78, Bruce Locke '68, John M. Mackenzie '69, J. Ward Stackpole '50. Terms expire in 1994: David M. Cohen '64, Molly Hoagland King '80, Gregory V. McQuater '72, Theodore C. Sandquist '59. Terms expire in 1995: Maurice A. Butler '74, Iris W. Davis '78, Harper Sibley III '76, Paul H. Wiley '71.

Other members of the council are the editor of Bowdoin magazine, a representative of the faculty, the secretary of the College, the director of Annual Giving, the directors of the Alumni Fund, representatives of recognized alumni clubs, two members of the African-American Alumni Council, and three undergraduates.

ALUMNI COUNCIL AWARDS

Alumni Service Award: First established in 1932 as the Alumni Achievement Award and renamed the Alumni Service Award in 1953, this award is made annually to the person who, in the opinion of alumni, as expressed by the Alumni Council, best represents the alumnus or alumna whose services to Bowdoin most deserve recognition.

The recipient in 1991 was William H. Hazen '52.

Alumni Award for Faculty and Staff: Established by the Alumni Council in 1963, it is presented each year "for service and devotion to Bowdoin, recognizing that the College in a larger sense includes both students and alumni." The award is made at the annual Homecoming Luncheon in the fall and consists of a Bowdoin clock and a framed citation.

The recipient in 1991 was Ann S. Pierson '85.

Distinguished Bowdoin Educator Award: Established in 1964 to recognize outstanding achievement in education by a Bowdoin alumnus, except alumni who are members of the Bowdoin faculty and staff, the award consists of a framed citation and $500. In 1985, the council voted to honor achievement both at the college/university level and at the primary/secondary level.

The recipients in 1991 were Norman A. LeBel '52 at the college/university level and, at the primary/secondary level, Maurice A. Butler '74.

BOWDOIN MAGAZINE

Established in 1927, the quarterly Bowdoin magazine publishes articles of general interest about the College and its alumni. It is sent without charge to all alumni, seniors, parents of current students and recent graduates, faculty and staff members, and various friends of the College. The magazine is edited by Charles C. Calhoun.

Other alumni publications include The Whispering Pines and various newsletters.

BOWDOIN ALUMNI SCHOOL AND INTERVIEWING COMMITTEES (BASIC)

BASIC is a volunteer association of approximately 500 alumni in the United States and several foreign countries which assists the Admissions Office in the identification and evaluation of candidates. BASIC responsibilities include providing alumni interviews for applicants when distance or time precludes a visit to Brunswick, representing the College at local "college fair" programs, and, in general, serving as liaison between the College and prospective students.

Those interested in learning more about the BASIC organization should contact the Admissions Office.

ALUMNI FUND

The Alumni Fund, inaugurated in 1869 and reorganized in 1919 and again in 1983, has as its principal task the raising of unrestricted or currently expendable (budget-relieving) funds for current purposes. The past two years have seen the Fund setting dollar goals of $3,000,000, with more than 60 percent of the alumni participating in the annual fund-raising effort.

Officers: I. Joel Abromson '60, chair; James W. MacAllen '66, vice chair.

Directors: I. Joel Abromson '60 (term expires in 1992), James W. MacAllen '66 (term expires in 1993), Harry L. Silverman '64 (term expires in 1994), David Z. Webster '57 (term expires in 1995), Elizabeth K. Glaser '81 (term expires in 1996).

ALUMNI FUND AWARDS

Alumni Fund Cup: Awarded annually since 1932, the Alumni Fund Cup recognizes the Reunion Class making the largest contribution to the Alumni Fund, unless that Reunion Class wins the Babcock Plate; in that event, the non-Reunion Class with the most money in the Fund is awarded the cup.

The recipient in 1990 was the Class of 1956, Norman P. Cohen, agent.

Leon W. Babcock Plate: Presented to the College in 1980 by William L. Babcock, Jr. '69, and his wife, Suzanne, in honor of his grandfather, Leon W. Babcock '17, it is awarded annually to the class making the largest dollar contribution to the Alumni Fund.

The recipient in 1990 was the Class of 1950, Donald B. Snyder, Jr., agent.

Class of 1916 Bowl: Presented to the College by the Class of 1916, it is awarded annually to the class whose record in the Alumni Fund shows the greatest improvement over its performance of the preceding year.

The recipient in 1990 was the Class of 1961, Charles E. Prinn III, agent.

Class of 1929 Trophy: Presented by the Class of 1929 in 1963, it is awarded annually to that one of the ten youngest classes attaining the highest percentage of participation.

The recipient in 1990 was the Class of 1980, Scott A. Samuelson and Janice C. Warren, agents.

Robert Seaver Edwards Trophy: Awarded annually to that one of the ten youngest classes raising the most money for the Fund, this trophy honors the memory of Robert Seaver Edwards, Class of 1900.

The recipient in 1990 was the Class of 1980, Scott A. Samuelson and Janice C. Warren, agents.

Fund Directors' Trophy: Established in 1972 by the directors of the Alumni Fund, the trophy is awarded annually to the class which, in the opinion of the directors, achieved an outstanding performance not acknowledged by any other trophy.

The recipient in 1990 was the Class of 1940, Harry H. Baldwin III, agent.

THE PRESIDENT'S CUP FOR ALUMNI GIVING

Established by the Development Committee of the Governing Boards in 1985, two cups are awarded annually—one for classes out of college forty-nine years or less, and one for classes out of college fifty years or more. The awards are presented on the basis of the total giving effort of a class, with all gifts actually received by or for the benefit of the College during the academic year eligible.

The recipients in 1990 were the Class of 1950 and the Class of 1920.

SOCIETY OF BOWDOIN WOMEN

The Society of Bowdoin Women was formed in 1922 to provide "an organization in which those with a common bond of Bowdoin loyalty may, by becoming better acquainted with the College and with each other, work together to serve the College."

In addition to having made specific gifts to the College, including silver and china for the president's house and equipment for Hawthorne-Longfellow Library and the Office of Career Services, the society directly benefits students with scholarships and awards. In 1961 it established the Edith Lansing Koon Sills Lecture Fund, the proceeds of which have been used to sponsor cultural, career, and literary speakers. In 1971 the Society created a scholarship fund, the proceeds from which are awarded to four qualified women students each year. In 1978 the Society of Bowdoin Women Athletic Award was established to recognize effort, cooperation, and sportsmanship by a senior member of a women's varsity team. In 1985 the Dorothy Haythorn Collins Award was created to honor a junior student exemplifying outstanding performance in his or her chosen field of study.

The Society's programs and activities are made possible by dues, contributions, and bequests. Membership is open to any interested person by payment of annual dues of $3.00.

Officers: Kimberly Labbe Mills '82, president; Blythe Bickel Edwards, honorary president; Ann Gribbin, vice president; Heidi Davidson, secretary; Nancy C. Goodwin, treasurer; Joan R. Shepherd, assistant treasurer; Jeanne d'Arc Mayo, activities coordinator; Mary Scott Brownell, membership; Judith D. Warren, nominating; Anne-Marie Train, past president.

Campus and Buildings

BOWDOIN is located in Brunswick, Maine, a town of approximately 21,500 population, first settled in 1628, on the banks of the Androscoggin River, a few miles from the shores of Casco Bay. The campus, originally a sandy plain covered with blueberries and pines, is a tract of 110 acres containing more than fifty buildings and several playing fields.

Massachusetts Hall is the oldest building on the campus, having been completed in 1802. For several years it housed the students, and all classes were held there. Now used for faculty offices, the building was designated a Registered Historical Landmark in 1971. The entire campus became part of the Federal Street Historic District in 1976.

The work of the College has its heart and center in Nathaniel Hawthorne-Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Library, which contains the accumulations of over a century and a half. The nucleus of its 775,000 volumes is the collection of books and pamphlets bequeathed by James Bowdoin. These "Bowdoin Books," rich in French literature, American history, and mineralogy, were supplemented by the same generous benefactor's gift of an art collection containing paintings and Old Master drawings. Among the paintings are the portraits of Thomas Jefferson and James Madison by Gilbert Stuart, and a notable collection of portraits by the distinguished colonial artist Robert Feke.

Classes are held in Adams, Banister, Cleaveland, Gibson, Hubbard, and Sills halls, the Russwurm Afro-American Center, Coles Tower, Searles Science Building, Smith Auditorium, the Hatch Science Library, and the Visual Arts Center. When students are not engaged in academic work, they have at their disposal many well-equipped recreational facilities. These include the Dayton Arena, Farley Field House, Morrell Gymnasium, Moulton Union, Pickard Field House, Sargent Gymnasium, and 35 acres of playing fields.

COLLEGE BUILDINGS

Seth Adams Hall, designed by Francis H. Fassett, was erected in 1860–61 and named in honor of Seth Adams, a sugar refiner from Boston, who contributed liberally toward its construction. From 1862 until 1921 it housed the classrooms of the Medical School of Maine. It now houses classrooms, lecture rooms, and the offices of the Department of Mathematics and the Department of Computer Science. It stands west of the President's Gateway.

Appleton Hall (1843), designed and built by Samuel Melcher and Sons and named in memory of the second president of the College; Coleman Hall (1958), designed by McKim, Mead & White and named in honor of the family of the donor, Jane Coleman Pickard (Mrs. Frederick W. Pickard); Hyde Hall (1917), designed by Allen and Collens and named in memory of the seventh president of the College; Maine Hall (1808), designed and built by Anthony C. Raymond, known originally as "the College" and named later to commemorate the admission of Maine to the Union; Moore Hall (1941), designed by McKim, Mead & White and named in honor of his father by the donor, Hoyt Augustus Moore, LL.D., of the Class of 1895; and Winthrop Hall (1822), designed and built by Samuel Melcher III and named in memory of Governor John Winthrop of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, are the six campus residence halls.

Ashby House, located on Maine Street across from Hawthorne-Longfellow Library, was the home of the Reverend Thompson E. Ashby H'30, for many years minister of the First Parish Church, and Mrs. Ashby. It has been used over the years as a faculty residence, eating hall, and student dormitory. It currently houses the Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

Baxter House, at 10 College Street, was purchased in 1971 and is used as a student residence. For nearly twenty years it was the chapter house of Delta Psi of Sigma Nu, which established a scholarship fund at the College with the proceeds from the sale. Named for the Baxter family in recognition of its many contributions to Bowdoin and the state of Maine, it was designed by Chapman and Frazer and built by Hartley C. Baxter, of the Class of 1878, one of five Baxters to serve on the Governing Boards and stepbrother of Percival P. Baxter, of the Class of 1898, governor of Maine from 1921 to 1925.

Brunswick Apartments, on Maine Street, acquired in 1973, provide housing for 100 juniors and seniors and townspeople in one- and two-bedroom apartments.

Burnett House, 232 Maine Street, was built in 1858 for Mr. Henry Martin, a grocer and later president of the Pejepsot Bank. In 1919 it was purchased by Charles T. and Sue Winchell Burnett. Professor Burnett was chairman of the Department of Psychology and a member of the faculty for forty-two years until his retirement in 1944; Mrs. Burnett, a cellist, took part in many musical productions on campus. From 1965 to 1970 Burnett House was home to the Phi Delta Psi fraternity. The College acquired it in 1972, and it is now a residence for students. There is a printmaking studio for the Department of Art in the ell.

Chamberlain Hall, designed by Hugh Stubbins and constructed in 1964, was named in memory of General Joshua Lawrence Chamberlain, LL.D., of the Class of 1852, Civil War hero, governor of Maine, and president of Bowdoin from 1871 to 1883. It houses the Admissions Office.

The Chapel, a Romanesque church of undressed granite designed by Richard Upjohn, was built during the decade from 1845 to 1855 from funds solicited from private donors and received from the Bowdoin estate. The façade is distinguished by twin towers and spires that rise to a height of 120 feet. The interior resembles the plan of English college chapels, with a broad central aisle from either side of which rise the ranges of seats. The lofty walls are decorated with twelve large paintings. The Chapel stands as a monument to President Leonard Woods, fourth president of the College, under whose personal direction it was erected. The flags are of the original thirteen colonies plus Maine, which was a part of Massachusetts at the time of the founding of the College in 1794. A set of eleven chimes, the gift of William Martin Payson, of the Class of 1874, was installed in the southwest tower in 1923. In the Chapel is an organ given in 1927 by Cyrus H. K. Curtis, LL.D.

That portion of the building that formerly housed the reading rooms and stack space of the College library was named Banister Hall in 1850 in recognition of the gifts of Mrs. Sarah Hale, the daughter of the Honorable William Banister. It contains the offices, classrooms, and laboratories of the Department of Psychology. The human psychobiology laboratory is named in honor of psychologist Harry Helson, Ph.D., of the Class of 1921.

Chase Barn Chamber, named in memory of Stanley Perkins Chase, Ph.D., of the Class of 1905, Henry Leland Chapman Professor of English Literature from 1925 to 1951, and his wife, Helen Johnson Chase, is a large room located in the ell of the Johnson House. Designed by Felix Arnold Burton, of the Class of 1907, in the Elizabethan style, the chamber is heavily timbered, contains a small stage and a fireplace, and houses many of the books from the Chase library. It is used for small classes, seminars, and conferences.

Parker Cleaveland Hall, designed by McKim, Mead & White, was dedicated in 1952. The building was made possible by donors to the Sesquicentennial Fund. It houses the Department of Chemistry and bears the name of Parker Cleaveland, who taught chemistry and mineralogy at Bowdoin from 1805 to 1858 and was a pioneer in geological studies. Special gifts provided the Kresge Laboratory of Physical Chemistry, the Wentworth Laboratory of Analytical Chemistry, the 1927 Room (a private laboratory), the Adams Lecture Room, the Burnett Room (a seminar room), and the Dana Laboratory of Organic Chemistry.

10 Cleaveland Street is a residence for students.

12 Cleaveland Street houses the offices of the Bowdoin Orient.

Dudley Coe Health Center is a three-story brick building erected in 1916–17. It was designed by Allen and Collens and given by Thomas Upham Coe, M.D., of the Class of 1857, in memory of his son, and stands in the pines to the south of the Hyde Athletic Building. It was enlarged in 1957 through a gift by Agnes M. Shumway H'62 (Mrs. Sherman N. Shumway), and again in 1974. Health care offices are on the first floor. The third floor houses the Counseling Service. The Service Bureau is located in the basement.

Coles Tower, designed by Hugh Stubbins, was completed in 1964 and served for several years as the residential unit of the Senior Center. After the Senior-Year Program was ended in 1979, the sixteen-story tower was named in honor of James Stacy Coles, Ph.D., D.Sc., LL.D., Sc.D., ninth president of the College and the program's chief proponent. The building includes living and study quarters, seminar and conference rooms, lounges, and accommodations for official guests of the College. The first floor is dedicated to the memory and honor of the late Henry Quinby Hawes, A.M., of the Class of 1910, and Mrs. Hawes.

30 College Street, acquired by the College in 1977, is the headquarters of E.A.R.T.H. and a residence for approximately eight students and teaching fellows.

38 College Street houses faculty offices for the Asian Studies Program and the Department of Religion.

Copeland House, at 88 Federal Street, was acquired in 1972. A residence for students, it was formerly the home of Manton Copeland, Ph.D., who taught biology at the College from 1908 until 1947 and was Josiah Little Professor of Natural Science Emeritus at the time of his death in 1971.

Marshall Perley Cram Alumni House, at 83 Federal Street, was bequeathed to the College in 1933 on the death of Professor Marshall Perley Cram, Ph.D., of the Class of 1904. Renovated in 1962 and maintained by the College, it is the center of alumni activities at Bowdoin and contains lounges, rest rooms, and other facilities for the use of visiting alumni and their families and guests. It also houses the alumni relations office and the offices of Bowdoin magazine. The Kate Douglas Wiggin Room, located on the first floor, was presented by the Society of Bowdoin Women in 1986. Displayed on the first floor is a collection of polar bears in crystal, porcelain, and other media that was the gift of the widow of Daniel L. Dayton, Jr., '49 in 1974.

Curtis Pool Building, a separate wing attached to the Sargent Gymnasium, was given to the College in 1927 by Cyrus H. K. Curtis, LL.D., and was designed by McKim, Mead & White. The pool was closed in October 1987 on the opening of the new pool in the Pickard Field complex.

Dayton Arena, designed by Barr, Gleason, and Barr and named in memory of Daniel L. Dayton, Jr., of the Class of 1949, was built in 1956 with contributions from alumni, students, and friends. It contains seats for 2,400 spectators, a regulation ice-hockey rink with a refrigerated surface 200 feet long by 85 feet wide, locker rooms, and a snack bar. The arena is operated year-round. It is the site of intercollegiate and intramural hockey contests as well as recreational skating and summer hockey programs.

William Farley Field House and new sixteen-lane pool, designed by Sasaki Associates, are attached to the rear of the Pickard Field House. The Farley Field House was opened in the fall of 1987. Construction was a gift of William Farley '64. It contains a 200-meter, six-lane track, with four tennis courts on a flexible infield area, a free weight room, and space for equipment storage.

85 Federal Street, the former home of Bowdoin's presidents, was built in 1860 by Captain Francis C. Jordan and originally stood on the lot at 77 Federal Street. It was purchased by the College in 1867 and was occupied by President Harris until 1871. The house was then purchased by Peleg W. A. Chandler, who had it moved in 1874 to its present location at the corner of Federal and Bath streets. Shortly after President Hyde assumed office in 1885, it became his official residence. In 1890 the College reacquired the house. The ballroom, designed by Felix Arnold Burton, was added in 1926. The building was converted to house the development and alumni fund offices in 1982 after President Greason was inaugurated.

Getchell House, located at 5 Bath Street, is diagonally opposite Adams Hall. It was given in 1955 by Miss Gertrude Bowdoin Getchell, who had provided lodgings for students in the house. It houses the news and publications offices of the Office of College Relations.

The Harvey Dow Gibson Hall of Music, named for Harvey Dow Gibson, LL.D., of the Class of 1902, was dedicated in 1954. Its construction was made possible by funds donated by Mrs. Harvey Dow Gibson; by Mrs. Gibson's daughter, Mrs. Whitney Bourne Choate; by the Manufacturers Trust Company of New York; and by several friends of Mr. Gibson. Designed by McKim, Mead & White, the building contains class, rehearsal, and practice rooms, a recording room, several rooms for listening to records, offices, and a music library. A recital hall was completed in 1978. The common room is paneled in carved walnut from the music salon designed in 1724 by Jean Lassurance (1695–1755) for the Hôtel de Sens in Paris, the gift of Miss Susan Dwight Bliss.

Ham House, at 3 Bath Street, was built in 1846 and was a residence for generations of Bowdoin professors, most recently for Professor and Mrs. Roscoe J. Ham, who lived in it from 1909 until their deaths in 1953. The house was bequeathed to the College by Professor Ham, George Taylor Files Professor of Modern Languages, who taught at Bowdoin from 1901 to 1945. It now houses Bowdoin Upward Bound.

Harpwell Street Apartments, adjacent to Pickard Field, and Pine Street Apartments, across from Whittier Field, were designed by Design Five Maine, Inc., and opened in the fall of 1973. There are two buildings of contemporary design at each location, and each of the buildings contains six apartments. The apartments, which accommodate up to ninety-six students, were built to meet the need for additional housing and to provide an alternative to living in a conventional dormitory.

Nathaniel Hawthorne–Henry Wadsworth Longfellow Library, designed by Steinman, Cain and White of New York, was built in 1964–65 from funds contributed during the Capital Campaign. It was named after two of Bowdoin's literary giants, both members of the Class of 1825. It houses the principal portions of the library of the College and—in its western end, named Hawthorne-Longfellow Hall—most of the general administrative offices of the College. In 1984, the Hubbard Hall-library connector, designed by Shepley Bullfinch Richardson and Abbott, was completed. The area containing the government documents is named in memory of John C. Donovan, the DeAlva Stanwood Alexander Professor of Government and member of the faculty from 1965 to 1984. Renovations to Hubbard's book stack area, additional open-shelf space, and increased study areas were also finished. Also included in the project was climate control for a remodeled and enlarged Special Collections Suite.

The new Hatch Science Library opened for the 1991 spring term. The building, with 14,000 square feet of space on three levels, houses over 50,000 volumes, 160 study stations, six faculty studies, two seminar rooms, and office and work areas for staff. It holds all of the College's science-related materials and a large part of Bowdoin's map collections and microforms. The building was designed by Shepley Bullfinch Richardson & Abbott, Inc. Funds for construction were provided by the Margaret Milliken Hatch Charitable Trust and by other generous donors.

Hubbard Grandstand was given in 1904 by General Thomas H. Hubbard, LL.D., of the Class of 1857, and designed by Henry Vaughan. It is situated on Whittier Field, a tract of five acres, named in 1896 honor of Frank Nathaniel Whittier, M.D., of the Class of 1885. An electrically operated scoreboard, the gift of the widows of Harvey Dow Gibson, LL.D., of the Class of 1902, and Adriel Ulmer Bird, A.M., of the Class of 1916, was erected in 1960. Surrounding the field is the John Joseph Magee Track, an Olympic-regulation, all-weather track given by alumni and friends in memory of Mr. Magee, coach, trainer, and director of track and field athletics from 1913 to 1955.

Hubbard Hall, designed by Henry Vaughan and erected in 1902-3, was the gift of General Hubbard and his wife, Sibyl Fahnestock Hubbard. For over sixty years, until the fall of 1965, it was the College library. It is now used for faculty offices, examination rooms, and the Departments of Geology, History, Economics, and Government and Legal Studies. The building houses the Computing Center offices and equipment, including a large computer laboratory for student use. The Peary-MacMillan Arctic Museum and Arctic Studies Center are located in the building, with museum facilities on the first floor, and the Susan Dwight Bliss Room for rare books and bindings remains on the second floor.

Johnson House, designed by Gervase Wheeler and named in memory of Henry Johnson, Ph.D., Litt.D., of the Class of 1874, a distinguished member of the Bowdoin faculty from 1877 to 1918, and Mrs. Johnson, is located at the corner of Maine and Boody streets across from the southwestern entrance to the campus. Bequeathed to the College in 1957, the house was designated a Registered Historical Landmark in 1975.

Little-Mitchell House, at 6–8 College Street, was designed and built by Samuel Melcher III and houses the John Brown Russwurm Afro-American Center. The Mitchell House is named in honor of Wilmot Brookings Mitchell, L.H.D., of the Class of 1890, Edward Little Professor of Rhetoric and Oratory from 1893 to 1939. It was given by Professor Mitchell in 1961. The Little House, the 8 College Street side of the connected buildings, was acquired in 1962.

Little-Mitchell House was opened as the Afro-American Center in 1970 and rededicated as the John Brown Russwurm Afro-American Center in 1979 in honor of John Brown Russwurm, of the Class of 1826, Bowdoin's first black graduate, publisher, and governor of the colony of Maryland in Liberia at the time of his death in 1851. The center houses the offices of the Afro-American Studies Program; the Herman S. Dreer Reading Room, named in honor of a black graduate of the Class of 1910; and a 1,600-volume library of African and Afro-American source materials.

238 Maine Street was built about 1900 for George Taylor and Edith Davis Files. Professor Files, of the Class of 1889, was professor of German at Bowdoin for thirty years before his death in 1919. The house belonged to the Sigma Nu fraternity from 1921 to 1951, when it was sold to Alpha Rho Upsilon (All Races United), an interracial fraternity formed by students who were barred from the existing fraternities. In 1988, the College acquired the house, though it continued to be the headquarters of Alpha Rho Upsilon. In 1990, the building became a college residence hall and is designated as the Wellness House.

Massachusetts Hall, planned in 1798 and completed in 1802 by Aaron and Samuel Melcher III, who designed the building as well, was the first College building erected. In 1936 it was remodeled, and five years later, through a gift of Frank Herbert Swan, LL.D., of the Class of 1898, the third floor was restored and accommodated faculty meetings until 1989. Until 1965 the building housed some of the College's administrative offices. It now houses the Departments of English and Philosophy.

Mayflower Apartments, at 14 Belmont Street, acquired in 1973, provides housing for thirty-five juniors and seniors in one- and two-bedroom apartments. The building is situated in a residential neighborhood two blocks from the campus.

Memorial Hall, designed by Samuel D. Backus and William G. Preston and finished in 1882, is a structure of local granite in the Gothic style. It is a memorial to the alumni and students of the College who served in the Civil War and whose names and ranks are inscribed on bronze plaques in the lobby. The lower floor contains classrooms and an experimental theater, which is named in memory of George H. Quinby, of the Class of 1923, who was director of dramatics and taught English from 1934 to 1969. The entire interior was redesigned by McKim, Mead & White and rebuilt in 1954–55 to house the Pickard Theater, one of the gifts of Frederick William Pickard, LL.D., of the Class of 1894. On the lower level is a plaque memorializing William H. Moody, of the Class of 1956, theater technician from 1958 until his death in 1976.

Malcolm E. Morrell Gymnasium, connected to Sargent Gymnasium, is a 50,000-square-foot building designed by Hugh Stubbins and Associates. Built in 1964–65 from funds contributed during the Capital Campaign, it was named in 1969 in memory of Malcolm Elmer Morrell, of the Class of 1924, Bowdoin's director of athletics from 1928 to 1967. The gymnasium contains a basketball court with seats for about 2,500 persons, four visiting team rooms, eleven squash courts, offices for the director of athletics and his staff, and other rooms for physical education purposes.

The Moulton Union, designed by McKim, Mead & White, was built in 1927–28. It was given and partially endowed by Augustus Freedom Moulton, LL.D., of the Class of 1873, as a social, recreational, and service center for the College. In 1964–65, a two-story extension was added on the south and east sides of the building. The spacious main lounge and several smaller lounges and student activity areas are provided for general social purposes. The Union also contains the College reception and information center, the campus telephone switchboard, a bookstore, dining facilities, and a game room. The Union stands just outside the quadrangle opposite Appleton, Hyde, and Moore halls.

The Observatory was designed by Samuel B. Dunning and was originally erected near the Curtis Pool in 1890–91 with funds given by John Taylor, Esq., of Fairbury, Illinois. It was moved to the southeast corner of Pickard Field in the summer of 1930 and is adjacent to the Harpswell Road. The present telescope was installed in 1965. The facility is supervised by the Department of Physics and Astronomy. It is not generally open to the public.

Pickard Field House stands at the entrance of Pickard Field. It was given in 1937 by Frederick William Pickard, LL.D., of the Class of 1894, and Mrs. Pickard and was designed by John Calvin Stevens. Pickard Field, a tract of 66 acres, was presented to the College by Mr. Pickard in 1926. In 1952, 9 acres were added to the field by purchase, making a total area of 75 acres, 36 of which are fully developed playing fields. The field contains the varsity and first-year-student baseball diamonds, several spacious playing fields for football and soccer, and eight clay tennis courts.

Pickard Theater in Memorial Hall, also a gift of Mr. Pickard, was designed by McKim, Mead & White and dedicated in 1955. It has a seating capacity of slightly more than 600 and a stage 55 feet wide and 30 feet deep. The space from the stage floor to the gridiron is 48 feet. Adorning the walls of the auditorium are rubbings of six large reliefs of the Chinese emperor T'ai Tsung's war-horses. The reliefs were executed in about A.D. 637 for the emperor's tomb and were possibly from designs of Yen Li-pen. The rubbings were the gift of Walter H. Mallery in 1955.

Rhodes Hall, formerly the Bath Street Primary School, was purchased from the town of Brunswick in 1946 to provide additional facilities for instruction and administration. The building was named to commemorate the fact that three pupils of the school later achieved distinction as Rhodes scholars at Oxford University. Rhodes Hall houses the offices of the Departments of Physical Plant and Safety and Security.

Sargent Gymnasium and General Thomas Worcester Hyde Athletic Building, designed by Allen and Collens, were erected in 1912. The gymnasium was built from contributions from many of the students and alumni, and named in honor of Dudley A. Sargent, M.D., Sc.D., of the Class of 1875; the athletic building was given by John Hyde, Esq., of Bath, in memory of his father, Thomas Worcester Hyde, A.M., of the Class of 1861. In 1965-66 Sargent Gymnasium was altered and renovated to make it part of the comprehensive plan for the indoor athletic facilities of the College.

Mary Frances Searles Science Building, designed by Henry Vaughan, was built in 1894 and renovated in 1952. It was the gift of Edward F. Searles in memory of his wife. With the Walker Art Building, Gibson Hall, and the Visual Arts Center, it forms the western side of the quadrangle. The building contains lecture rooms and laboratories of the Departments of Biology and Physics. An electronics and modern physics laboratory was installed in the Department of Physics in 1974, with funds provided by the bequest of Constance H. Hall. She was the daughter of Edwin H. Hall of the Class of 1875, best known for his discovery of the Hall effect, which has become a key principle in the design of solid-state electronic components.

Sills Hall and Smith Auditorium, designed by McKim, Mead & White, were completed in the autumn of 1950. The main structure was made possible by the first appropriations from the Sesquicentennial Fund and was named after the eighth president of the College, Kenneth Charles Morton Sills (1879-1954), of the Class of 1901; the wing, containing an auditorium seating 210 persons, was built by appropriation of the Francis, George, David, and Benjamin Smith Fund, bequeathed by Dudley E. Wolfe, of Rockland. The Language Media Center, donated by the Pew Memorial Trust, and the electronic film production laboratory and speech center are located in the wing. In 1968 a donor who wished to remain anonymous established the Constance and Albert Thayer Speech Center Fund to maintain the speech center. The fund was named in honor of the late Albert R. Thayer, A.M., of the Class of 1922, Harrison King McCann Professor of Oral Communication, and Mrs. Thayer.

Winfield Smith House, at 59 Harpswell Street, was acquired in 1972. A residence for students, it is named in memory of L. Winfield Smith, of the Class of 1907, who was born and raised in the house, "in recognition of the Smith family's long and devoted interest in Bowdoin."

The Visual Arts Center, designed by Edward Larrabee Barnes and completed in 1975, was constructed with funds given through the 175th Anniversary Campaign. Connected to the Walker Art Building by underground storage and exhibition rooms, the center contains some 23,000 square feet of instructional space. A 300-seat auditorium was dedicated in recognition of a generous grant from the Kresge Foundation. One of the classrooms has been dedicated in honor of Philip C. Beam, Ph.D., Henry Johnson Professor of Art and Archaeology Emeritus and a member of the faculty for more than forty years. The photography area is dedicated to the memory of Alan H. Wiley.
