General Information

BOWDOIN is an independent, nonsectarian, coeducational, residential, undergraduate, liberal arts college located in Brunswick, Maine, a town of approximately 22,000 situated close to the Maine coast, 25 miles from Portland and about 120 miles from Boston.

Terms and Vacations: The College holds two sessions each year. The dates of the semesters and the vacation periods are indicated in the College Calendar on pages vii–xi.

Accreditation: Bowdoin College is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

Enrollment: The student body numbers about 1,657 students (49 percent male, 51 percent female; last two classes 51/49 percent and 49/51 percent); about 240 students study away one or both semesters annually; 89 percent complete the degree within five years.

Faculty: Student/faculty ratio 10:1; the equivalent of 164 full-time faculty in residence, 94 percent with Ph.D. or equivalent; 19 head athletic coaches.

Geographic Distribution of Students: New England, 50.6 percent; Middle Atlantic states, 19.9 percent; Midwest, 8.4 percent; West, 9.9 percent; Southwest, 1.9 percent; South, 4.9 percent; international, 4.4 percent. Forty-nine states and twenty-seven countries are represented. Minority and international enrollment is 20 percent.

Statistics: As of June 2002, 33,062 students have matriculated at Bowdoin College, and 25,303 degrees in academic programs have been awarded. In addition, earned master's degrees have been awarded to 274 postgraduate students. Living alumni include 16,128 graduates, 2,081 nongraduates, 125 honorary degree holders (43 alumni, 82 non-alumni), 45 recipients of the Certificate of Honor, and 254 graduates in the specific postgraduate program.

Offices and Office Hours: The Admissions Office is located in Burton-Little House. Offices of the president and dean for academic affairs are located in Hawthorne-Longfellow Hall, the west end of Hawthorne-Longfellow Library. The Treasurer's Office is located in Ham House on Bath Road. Business offices and the Human Resources Office are in the McLellan Building at 85 Union Street. The Development and Alumni Relations offices are located at 83 and 85 Federal Street and in Copeland House. The Office of Student Records, the offices of the deans of Student Affairs, and the Career Planning Center are in the Moulton Union. The Counseling Service is at 32 College Street. The Department of Facilities Management and the Office of Safety and Security are in Rhodes Hall.

For additional information on College offices and buildings, see Campus and Buildings, page 351, and the Campus Map and list of offices on pages 356–59.

In general, the administrative offices of the College are open from 8:30 A.M. to 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday.

Telephone Switchboard: Bowdoin College uses an automated call processing system on its main number, (207) 725-3000. Further information about telephone numbers can be found on the Bowdoin College Web site at www.bowdoin.edu.

The Mission of the College

IT IS THE MISSION of the College to engage students of uncommon promise in an intense full-time education of their minds, exploration of their creative faculties, and development of their social and leadership abilities, in a four-year course of study and residence that concludes with a baccalaureate degree in the liberal arts.

Two guiding ideas suffuse Bowdoin's mission. The first, from the College of the 18th and 19th centuries, defines education in terms of a social vision. "Literary institutions are founded and endowed for the common good, and not for the private advantage of those who resort to them. . . but that their mental powers may be cultivated and improved for the benefit of society" (President Joseph McKeen's inaugural address, 1802); "To lose yourself in generous enthusiasms and cooperate with others for common ends...; this is the offer of the College" (President William DeWitt Hyde, 1903). The second idea stresses the formation of a complete individual for a world in flux: there is an intrinsic value in a liberal arts education of breadth and depth, beyond the acquisition of specific knowledge, that will enable a thinking person, "to be at home in all lands and all ages" (President Hyde).

At the root of this mission is selection. First, and regardless of their wealth, Bowdoin selects men and women of varied gifts; diverse social, geographic, and racial backgrounds; and exceptional qualities of mind and character. Developed in association with one another, these gifts will enable them to become leaders in many fields of endeavor. Second, it recruits faculty members of high intellectual ability and scholarly accomplishment who have a passion for education both of undergraduates and of themselves, as life-long creators and pursuers of knowledge.

The College pursues its mission in five domains:

1. Intellectual and Academic.

The great mission of the College is to instill in students the love, the ways, and the habit of learning.

General education in liberal arts. The academic disciplines are specialized modes of inquiry through which human beings perceive and intellectually engage the world. Both their power and their limits have led the College to make a long-standing commitment to general education. Specialist faculty cause non-specialist students to become critically acquainted with the perspectives and methods of disciplines in three general divisions of learning: the natural sciences, the humanities and the arts, and the social sciences. The College also sustains programs of interdisciplinary study, to reveal complicated realities not disclosed by any single discipline. It requires study outside the perspectives of Europe and the West; and it encourages study abroad to foster students' international awareness and linguistic mastery.

The major field of study and independent work. Bowdoin places particular emphasis on the academic major, a concentrated engagement with the method and content of an academic discipline, in which advanced students take increasing intellectual responsibility for their own education. The College provides opportunities for honors projects and independent study, enabling students to engage in research and writing under the guidance of faculty mentors. The arrangement of teaching responsibilities of Bowdoin faculty presupposes professional duties not only of original scholarship and creative work but also of supervision of advanced student projects.

Essential skills. The unevenness of American secondary education, the diversity of student backgrounds and the demands of college-level work and effective citizenship all require that the College enable students to master essential quantitative and writing skills and skills of oral communication, with the guidance of faculty, other professionals and qualified student peers.

The College believes that technology is not education, but that it is changing both education and society; and that it must be embraced by pedagogy and research and made easily and dependably available to students, faculty, and staff.

2. Social and Residential.

Bowdoin students are selected from a large pool of applicants for their intellectual ability, seriousness of purpose and personal qualities. By design, they differ widely in their backgrounds and talents, be they artistic, athletic, scientific or otherwise. To enable such students to learn from each other, and to make lasting friendships, the College is dedicated to creating a rewarding and congenial residence life, open to all students, which, with communal dining, is at the core of the mission of a residential college. Bowdoin's system is based on residence halls linked to restored, medium-sized, self-governing former fraternity houses.

The College devotes the talent of staff and faculty, and of students themselves, to the creation of opportunities for student growth and leadership in these residential contexts, reinforced by many volunteer programs and activities, student-run campus organizations and opportunities to plan careers.

3. Athletic.

Intercollegiate athletic competition against colleges with shared academic values, and other non-varsity sports, can foster self-control, poise, leadership, good health and good humor. Bowdoin encourages student participation in professionally coached varsity and club programs, as well as intramural sports, and in an outing club program that enables students to explore and test themselves in Maine's rivers and forests and on its seacoast and islands.

4. Esthetic and Environmental.

The College is dedicated to constructing and preserving buildings and campus spaces of the highest quality, believing that their beauty and serenity shape campus intellectual and esthetic life and inform the sensibilities of students who as graduates will influence the quality of spaces and buildings in their towns, businesses and homes. A quadrangle of oaks and pines, ringed with historic architecture, and containing two museums with major collections of art and Arctic craft, deepens a Bowdoin student's sense of place, history and civilization.

As a liberal arts college in Maine, Bowdoin assumes a particular responsibility to use nature as a resource for teaching and engaging students — notably to help them obtain a broad sense of the natural environment, local and global, and the effects and the role of human beings regarding it.

5. Ethical.

Implicit in and explicit to its mission is the College's commitment to creating a moral environment, free of fear and intimidation, and where differences can flourish. Faculty and students require honesty in academic work. Coaches instruct that fatigue and frustration are no excuse for personal fouls. Deans and proctors set standards of probity and decency and enforce them, with student participation, in College procedures. Yet, recognizing that life will present graduates with ambiguities that call for certainty less than for balance and judgment, Bowdoin makes few decisions for students, academically or socially — perhaps fewer than do many other residential colleges. It does so believing that students grow morally and sharpen personal identity by exercising free individual choice among varied alternatives, curricular and social. But the College also causes these decisions to occur in a context of density and variety — of ideas, artistic expression, and exposure to other cultures and other races — so that personal identity will not become an illusion of centrality.

Bowdoin College seeks to be a fair, encouraging employer of all those who serve the institution, providing opportunities for professional development, promotion and personal growth, and recognizing the value of each individual's contribution to its educational mission.

From its history of more than 200 years and its inheritance of buildings and endowment that are the gifts of Bowdoin alumni there derives a corollary. If the College is to pursue its educational purposes in perpetuity, its mission is also a provident and prudential one. Succeeding generations of members of the College must carry the costs of their own enjoyment of its benefits; as alumni they remain a part of Bowdoin, assuming responsibility for renewing the endowments and buildings that will keep Bowdoin a vital, growing educational force for future generations of students and faculty.

Finally, Bowdoin's intellectual mission is informed by the humbling and cautionary lesson of the twentieth century: that intellect and cultivation, unless informed by a basic sense of decency, of tolerance and mercy, are ultimately destructive of both the person and society. The purpose of a Bowdoin education — the mission of the College — is therefore to assist a student to deepen and broaden intellectual capacities that are also attributes of maturity and wisdom: self-knowledge, intellectual honesty, clarity of thought, depth of knowledge, an independent capacity to learn, mental courage, self discipline, tolerance of and interest in differences of culture and belief, and a willingness to serve the common good and subordinate self to higher goals.

Historical Sketch

THE IDEA OF BOWDOIN COLLEGE originated in the years following the American Revolution among a group of men who wished to see established in the District of Maine the sort of civil institution which would guarantee republican virtue and social stability. In the biblical language of the day, they wished “to make the desert bloom.”

After six years of arguments over the site, a college was chartered on June 24, 1794, by the General Court in Boston, for Maine was until 1820 a part of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The college was to be built in the small town of Brunswick, as the result of a geographic compromise between strong Portland interests and legislators from the Kennebec Valley and points farther east. It was named for Governor James Bowdoin II, an amateur scientist and hero of the Revolution, well remembered for his role in putting down Shays’ Rebellion. Established by Huguenot merchants, the Bowdoin family fortune was based not only on banking and shipping but on extensive landholdings in Maine. The new college was endowed by the late governor’s son, James Bowdoin III, who was a diplomat, agriculturalist, and art collector, and by the Commonwealth, which supported higher education with grants of land and money, a practice established in the seventeenth century for Harvard and repeated in 1793 for Williams College. Bowdoin’s bicameral Governing Boards, changed in 1996 to a single Board of Trustees, were based on the Harvard model.

Original funding for the College was to come from the sale of tracts of undeveloped lands donated for the purpose by townships and the Commonwealth. Sale of the wilderness lands took longer than expected, however, and Bowdoin College did not open until September 2, 1802. Its first building, Massachusetts Hall, stood on a slight hill overlooking the town. To the south were the road to the landing at Maquoit Bay and blueberry fields stretching toward the Harpswells. To the north was the “Twelve-Rod Road” (Maine Street) leading to the lumber mills and shipyards near the falls of the Androscoggin. To the east the campus was sheltered by a grove of “whispering” white pines, which were to become a symbol of the College. The inauguration of the first president, the Reverend Joseph McKeen, took place in a clearing in that grove. McKeen, a liberal Congregationalist and staunch Federalist, reminded the “friends of piety and learning” in the District that “literary institutions are founded and endowed for the common good, and not the private advantage of those who resort to them for education.” The next day, classes began with eight students in attendance.

For the first half of the nineteenth century, the Bowdoin curriculum was essentially an eighteenth-century one: a great deal of Latin, Greek, mathematics, rhetoric, Scottish Common Sense moral philosophy, and Baconian science, modestly liberalized by the addition of modern languages, English literature, international law, and a little history. Its teaching methods were similarly traditional: the daily recitation and the scientific demonstration. The antebellum College also had several unusual strengths. Thanks to bequests by James Bowdoin III, the College had one of the best libraries in New England and probably the first public collection of old master paintings and drawings in the nation. A lively undergraduate culture centered on two literary-debating societies, the Peucinian (whose name comes from the Greek word for “pine”) and the Athenaeum, both of which had excellent circulating libraries. And there were memorable teachers, notably the internationally known mineralogist Parker Cleaveland, the psychologist (or “mental philosopher,” in the language of his day) Thomas Upham, and the young linguist and translator Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1825).

Finances were a problem, however, especially following the crash of 1837. The College also became involved in various political and religious controversies buffeting the state.

Identified with the anti-separationist party, the College faced a hostile Democratic legislature after statehood in 1820 and for financial reasons had to agree to more public control of its governance. For the most part Congregationalists, the College authorities found themselves attacked by liberal Unitarians on the one side and by evangelical “dissenters” on the other (notably by the Baptists, the largest denomination in the new state). The question of whether Bowdoin was public or private was finally settled in 1833 by Justice Joseph Story in Allen v. McKeen, which applied the Dartmouth College case to declare Bowdoin a private corporation beyond the reach of the Legislature. The more difficult matter of religion was settled by the “Declaration” of 1846, which stopped short of officially adopting a denominational tie but promised that Bowdoin would remain Congregational for all practical purposes. One immediate result was a flood of donations, which allowed completion of Richard Upjohn’s Romanesque Revival chapel, a landmark in American ecclesiastical architecture. An ambitious new medical school had been established at Bowdoin by the state in 1820 — and was to supply Maine with country doctors until it closed in 1921 — but plans in the 1850s to add a law school never found sufficient backing, and Bowdoin did not evolve into the small university that many of its supporters had envisioned.

For a college that never had an antebellum class of more than sixty graduates, Bowdoin produced a notable roster of pre-Civil War alumni. The most enduring fame seems that of Nathaniel Hawthorne (1825), who set his first novel, Fanshawe, at a college very like Bowdoin. Even better known in his day was his classmate Longfellow, who after Tennyson was the most beloved poet in the English-speaking world and whose “Morituri Salutamus,” written for his fiftieth reunion in 1875, is perhaps the finest tribute any poet ever paid to his alma mater. Other writers of note included the satirist Seba Smith (1818), whose “Jack Downing” sketches more or less invented a genre, and Jacob Abbott (1820), author of the many “Rollo” books. But it was in public affairs that Bowdoin graduates took the most laurels: among them, Franklin Pierce (1824), fourteenth president of the United States; William Pitt Fessenden (1823), abolitionist, U.S. senator, cabinet member, and courageous opponent of Andrew Johnson’s impeachment; John A. Andrew (1837), Civil War governor of Massachusetts; Oliver Otis Howard (1850), Civil War general, educator, and head of the Freedmen’s Bureau; Melville Fuller (1853), chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court; and Thomas Brackett Reed (1860), the most powerful Speaker in the history of the U.S. House of Representatives. John Brown Russwurm (1826), editor and African colonizationist, was Bowdoin’s first African-American graduate and the third African-American to graduate from any U.S. college.

The old quip that “the Civil War began and ended in Brunswick, Maine,” has some truth to it. While living here in 1850-51, when Calvin Stowe (1824) was teaching theology, Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote Uncle Tom’s Cabin, some of it in her husband’s study in Appleton Hall. Joshua L. Chamberlain (1852), having left his Bowdoin teaching post in 1862 to lead the 20th Maine, was chosen to receive the Confederate surrender at Appomattox three years later.

The postwar period was a troubled one for Bowdoin. The Maine economy had begun a century-long slump, making it difficult to raise funds or attract students. The new, practical curriculum and lower cost of the University of Maine threatened to undermine Bowdoin admissions. As president, Chamberlain tried to innovate — a short-lived engineering school, a student militia to provide physical training, less classical language and more science, even a hint of coeducation — but the forces of inertia on the Boards were too great, and a student “rebellion” against the military drill in 1874 suggested that it would take more than even a Civil War hero to change the College.

But change did arrive in 1885, in the form of William DeWitt Hyde, a brisk young man who preached an idealistic philosophy, a sort of muscular Christianity, and who had a Teddy Roosevelt-like enthusiasm for life. By the College's centennial in 1894, Hyde had rejuvenated the faculty, turned the "yard" into a quad (notably by the addition of McKim, Mead & White's Walker Art Building), and discovered how to persuade alumni to give money. Where Bowdoin had once prepared young men for the public forum, Hyde's college taught them what they needed to succeed in the new world of the business corporation. Much of this socialization took place in well-appointed fraternity houses; Bowdoin had had "secret societies" as far back as the 1840s, but it was not until the 1890s that they took over much of the responsibility for the residential life of the College. In the world of large research universities, Hyde—a prolific writer in national journals—proved that there was still a place for the small, pastoral New England college.

Kenneth C. M. Sils, casting himself as the caretaker of Hyde's vision, shepherded the College through two World Wars and the Great Depression. Among his major accomplishments were bringing the athletic program into the fold of the College and out of the direct control of alumni, gradually making Bowdoin more of a national institution, and cementing the fierce loyalty of a generation of graduates. His successor, James S. Coles, played the role of modernizer: new life was given the sciences, professional standards for faculty were redefined, and the innovative "Senior Center" program was put in operation in the new high-rise dorm later named Coles Tower. Coles was succeeded in 1967 by Acting President and Professor of Government Athern P. Daggett, a member of the Class of 1925.

In 1969, Roger Howell, Jr. '58 was inaugurated at the age of 33. The youngest college president in the country, and a highly respected scholar in the field of 17th-century British history, Howell ushered in an era of rapid change. The turmoil of the Vietnam era was reflected in the student strike of 1970 and in early debate about the fraternity system. The decision in 1970 to make standardized tests optional for purposes of admission, the arrival of coeducation in 1971, an eventual increase in the size of the College to 1,400 students, and a concerted effort to recruit students in the arts and students of color, all significantly altered the composition of the student body and began an impetus for curricular change that continued through the 1980s under the leadership of President A. LeRoy Greason.

During the Greason presidency, the College undertook to reform the curriculum, expand the arts program, encourage environmental study, diversify the faculty, and make the College more fully coeducational. By 1990, Bowdoin was nationally regarded as a small, highly selective liberal arts college with an enviable location in coastal Maine and a strong teaching faculty willing to give close personal attention to undergraduates. The College continued to prove that it could innovate—for example, through pace-setting programs to use computers to teach classics and calculus, through access to live foreign television to teach languages, through student-constructed independent study projects and "years abroad," and through the microscale organic chemistry curriculum.

President Robert H. Edwards came to Bowdoin in 1990. He reorganized the College administration, strengthened budgetary planning and controls, and developed processes for the discussion and resolution of key issues. In 1993-94, he presided over the College's celebration of the 200th anniversary of its founding. A capital campaign, concluded in 1998, brought in $135 million in additional endowment for faculty positions and scholarships, and funds for an ambitious building program that has included the transformation of the former Hyde Cage into the David Saul Smith Union; construction or renovation of facilities for the sciences, including a new interdisciplinary science center, Druckenmiller Hall, renovation of Cleaveland Hall and Searles Hall, and construction of terrestrial and marine laboratories at the College's new Coastal Studies Center on Orrs Island; expanded facilities for the arts in and adjacent to Memorial Hall; and restoration and improvements to the Chapel. Two new residence halls, Stowe and Howard Halls, were completed in 1996, and another, Chamberlain Hall, opened in the fall of 1999. In addition, expanded dining facilities in Wentworth Hall were completed in 2000 and the hall was renamed Thorne Hall.

In 1996-97, the Board of Trustees established a Commission on Residential Life to review all aspects of residential life. The commission recommended, and the trustees unanimously approved, a new conception of residential life for Bowdoin based on a model of broad House membership that includes all students. The new system also replaces the system of residential fraternities, which were phased out in May 2000. During the Edwards presidency, the enrollment of the College was expanded from 1,385 to approximately 1,600 students, and the College's endowment grew from $175 million to approximately $500 million. In addition, the student-faculty ratio was reduced from 11:1 to 10:1.

Bowdoin's 200th academic year began with the inauguration of Barry Mills '72 as the fourteenth president of the College. During his first two years as president, Mills has underscored the primacy of the academic program, as well as the need to build the endowment and greater resources for student financial aid. He recommitted the College to the goal of expanding ethnic, religious, and socio-economic diversity among students and employees, and has also worked to strengthen and increase support for the arts at Bowdoin. Mills has also begun to explore opportunities for the College to collaborate with other institutions, and has initiated a review of Bowdoin's mission and goals as it works to educate students for the twenty-first century in the liberal arts tradition.

Admission to the College

IN MAY 1989, THE GOVERNING BOARDS of Bowdoin College approved the following statement on admissions:

Bowdoin College is, first and foremost, an academic institution. Hence academic accomplishments and talents are given the greatest weight in the admissions process. While accomplishments beyond academic achievements are considered in admissions decisions, these are not emphasized to the exclusion of those applicants who will make a contribution to Bowdoin primarily in the academic life of the College. In particular, applicants with superior academic records or achievements are admitted regardless of their other accomplishments. All Bowdoin students must be genuinely committed to the pursuit of a liberal arts education, and therefore all successful applicants must demonstrate that they can and will engage the curriculum seriously and successfully.

At the same time that it is an academic institution, Bowdoin is also a residential community. To enhance the educational scope and stimulation of that community, special consideration in the admissions process is given to applicants who represent a culture, region, or background that will contribute to the diversity of the College. To ensure that the College community thrives, special consideration in the admissions process is also given to applicants who have demonstrated talents in leadership, in communication, in social service, and in other fields of endeavor that will contribute to campus life and to the common good thereafter. And to support the extracurricular activities that constitute an important component of the overall program at Bowdoin, and that enrich the life of the campus community, special consideration in the admissions process is also given to applicants with talents in the arts, in athletics, and in other areas in which the College has programs. The goal is a student body that shares the common characteristic of intellectual commitment but within which there is a considerable range of backgrounds, interests, and talents.

Although Bowdoin does not require that a student seeking admission take a prescribed number of courses, the typical entering first-year student will have had four years each of English, foreign language, mathematics, and social science, and three to four years of laboratory sciences. Further, most will offer studies in arts, music, and computer science. We strongly recommend that students have keyboard training.

Candidates applying to Bowdoin College are evaluated by members of the admissions staff in terms of the following factors: academic record, the level of challenge represented in the candidate's course work, counselor/teacher recommendations and Bowdoin interview, application and essay, overall academic potential, and personal qualities.

APPLICATION AND ADMISSION PROCEDURES

Students may apply to Bowdoin through the regular admissions program or through either of two early decision programs. The application deadline for Early Decision Option I is November 15. The deadline for Early Decision Option II and regular admission is January 1. Application materials for all programs are the same, except that early decision applicants must also complete the Early Decision Agreement that is included with the application materials.

Application materials include the Common Application and the Bowdoin Supplement. Both are included in the Bowdoin College Viewbook. The Common Application is also available through high school guidance offices. Copies of the full application or Bowdoin supplementary materials may be obtained by contacting the Office of Admissions, or through the Bowdoin College World Wide Web site.

The Common Application includes the Personal Application, with the School Report and two Teacher Evaluation Forms. The Bowdoin Supplement includes a supplementary essay; a Mid-Year School Report; optional Arts and Athletics supplements; the Early Decision form if applicable; and, for those who wish to be considered for financial aid, the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application. Applicants for admission must also submit the $60 application fee or an application fee waiver.

Regular Admission

The following items constitute a completed admissions folder:

1. The Common Application, essays, and required supplementary materials submitted with the application fee ($60) as early as possible in the senior year. The deadline for receiving regular applications is January 1. In addition to the primary essay required as part of the Common Application, Bowdoin requests that candidates submit a supplementary essay describing the positive influence that one outstanding secondary school teacher has had on the candidate's development.

2. School Report: The college advisor's estimate of the candidate's character and accomplishments and a copy of the secondary school record should be returned to Bowdoin no later than January 1. A transcript of grades through the midyear marking period (Mid-Year School Report) should be returned to Bowdoin by February 15.

3. Recommendations: Each candidate is required to submit two teacher recommendations, which should be completed by two academic subject teachers and returned as soon as possible and no later than January 1.

4. College Entrance Examination Board or American College Testing Scores: Bowdoin allows each applicant to decide if his or her standardized test results should be considered as part of the application. This past year, approximately 26 percent of Bowdoin's accepted applicants decided not to submit standardized test results. In those cases where test results are submitted, the Admissions Committee considers this information as a supplement to other academic information such as the transcript and recommendations. The candidate is responsible for making arrangements to take the College Board examinations and for ensuring that Bowdoin receives the scores if he or she wants them to be considered as part of the application. Should Bowdoin receive the scores on the secondary school transcript, these scores will be inked out before the folder is read by the Admissions Committee. Students choosing to submit their SAT or ACT and SAT II test scores should complete all examinations no later than January of the senior year.

Note: Because standardized test results are used for academic counseling and placement, all entering first-year students are required to submit scores over the summer prior to enrolling. (See also Home-Schooled Applicants, page 11.)

5. Visit and Interview: A personal interview at Bowdoin with a member of the admissions staff, a senior interviewer, or an alumnus or alumna is strongly encouraged but not required. If a campus visit is not possible, members of the Bowdoin Alumni Schools and Interviewing Committee (BASIC) are available in most parts of the country to provide an interview that is closer to home. (For further information on BASIC, see page 277.) Candidates' chances for admission are not diminished because of the lack of an interview, but the interviewers' impressions of a candidate's potential can often be helpful to the Admissions Committee. A number of carefully selected and trained Bowdoin senior interviewers conduct interviews to supplement regular staff appointments during the summer months and from September through December. On-campus interviews are available from the third week in May through late December.

6. Notification: All candidates will receive a final decision on their application for admission by early April. A commitment to enroll is not required of any first-year candidate (except those applying for Early Decision) until the Candidates' Common Reply date of May 1. Upon accepting an offer of admission from Bowdoin, a student is expected to include a $300 admissions deposit, which is credited to the first semester's bill.

7. Candidates requiring an application fee waiver may petition for one through their guidance counselor using the standard College Board form.

Early Decision

Each year Bowdoin offers admission to approximately 30 to 40 percent of its entering class through two Early Decision programs. Those candidates who are certain that Bowdoin is their first choice and have a high school record that accurately reflects their potential may wish to consider this option. The guidelines for Early Decision are as follows:

1. When candidates file an application for admission, they must state in writing that they wish to be considered for Early Decision and that they will enroll if admitted. Early Decision candidates are encouraged to file regular applications at other colleges, but only with the understanding that these will be withdrawn and no new applications will be initiated if they are accepted on an Early Decision basis.

2. The Common Application and essays, accompanied by a request for Early Decision, a School Report Form, a secondary school transcript of grades, two teacher recommendations, and the application fee of $60 (or fee-waiver form) must be submitted to Bowdoin by November 15 for Early Decision I (notification by mid-December), or by January 1 for Early Decision II (notification by mid-February).

3. Candidates admitted via Early Decision who have financial need as established by the guidelines of the College Scholarship Service's "Profile" will be notified of the amount of their award soon after they receive their Early Decision acceptance, provided their financial aid forms are on file at Bowdoin by the application deadlines.

4. The submission of College Entrance Examination Board or American College Testing scores at Bowdoin is optional as an admissions requirement. Applicants need not be deterred from applying for Early Decision because they have not completed the CEEB or ACT tests.

5. An Early Decision acceptance is contingent upon completion of the senior year in good standing.

6. Applicants who are not accepted under the Early Decision program may be transferred to the regular applicant pool for an additional review. Each year a number of applicants who are deferred under Early Decision are accepted early in April, when decisions on all regular admissions are announced. However, some students may be denied admission at Early Decision time if the Admissions Committee concludes that their credentials are not strong enough to meet the overall competition for admission.

7. Responsibility for understanding and complying with the ground rules of Early Decision rests with the candidate. Should an Early Decision candidate violate the provisions of the program, the College will rescind any offer of admission and financial aid.

Deferred Admission

Admitted students who wish to delay their matriculation to the College for one year should request a deferment from the dean of admissions prior to May 1, explaining the reasons for delaying matriculation. It is Bowdoin's practice to honor most of these requests and to hold a place in the next entering class for any student who is granted a deferment. The student, in return, must agree to withdraw all applications at other colleges or universities. A $300 nonrefundable admissions deposit must accompany the deferral request.

Admission with Advanced Standing

Bowdoin recognizes College Entrance Examination Board Advanced Placement and International Baccalaureate results and may grant advanced placement and credit toward graduation for superior performance in those programs. Applicants to Bowdoin are encouraged to have AP and IB test results sent to the Admissions Office.

Decisions on both placement and credit are made by the appropriate academic department in each subject area. Some departments offer placement examinations during the orientation period to assist them in making appropriate determinations. Every effort is made to place students in the most advanced courses for which they are qualified, regardless of whether they have taken AP or IB examinations before matriculation. Determinations of advanced placement and credit are made during the student's first year at Bowdoin.

Some students have the opportunity to enroll in college-level course work prior to graduation. Bowdoin College will consider granting credit for pre-college course work, providing the following criteria have been met: the course work must have been completed on a college campus, must have been completed in a class with matriculated college students, may not have been used to satisfy any high school graduation requirements, and must represent a standard of achievement comparable to what is expected at Bowdoin in a field of study characteristic of the liberal arts.

First-year students may apply a maximum of eight course credits toward the degree from the Advanced Placement program, the International Baccalaureate Program, or pre-college course work.

Home-Schooled Applicants

Home-schooled applicants and candidates applying from secondary schools that provide written evaluations rather than grades are required to submit SAT I and SAT II or ACT test results. SAT II tests should include Math IC or Math IIC and a science. A personal interview is also strongly recommended.

International Students

The Admissions Committee welcomes the perspective that international students bring to the Bowdoin community. In 2002–2003, more than 500 international students, including U.S. citizens who attended schools abroad, applied for admission to Bowdoin.

Admissions policies and procedures for international students are the same as for regular first-year applicants, with the following exceptions:

1. All international students must submit the Common Application, the required essays, and the International Student Supplement, which is available from the Admissions Office or from the Bowdoin College Web site.
2. Students whose first language is not English should submit official results of the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) by the appropriate deadlines.
3. All international students who submit the College Scholarship Service Foreign Student Financial Aid Form and the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application when they file the application for admission will be considered for Bowdoin funds to defray part of their college costs.

Bowdoin has designated three to four fully funded scholarships for international students for each entering class. These scholarships often cover the full cost of tuition, fees, and room and board. The competition for these exceptional financial aid packages is intense. Both first-year and transfer applicants who wish to be considered for financial aid must submit required materials by January 1. Candidates who do not apply for financial aid during the admissions process should not expect funding at any time in their course of study at Bowdoin College.

Transfer Students

Each year, a limited number of students from other colleges and universities will be admitted to sophomore or junior standing at Bowdoin. The following information pertains to transfer candidates:

1. Citizens of the United States should file the Common Application and essay (a brief statement indicating the reasons for transferring to Bowdoin), and the Transfer Student Supplement (available from the Admissions Office or Bowdoin's Web site) with the $60 application fee by March 1 for fall admission or by November 15 for mid-year admission. International students should file the application by March 1 for fall admission or by November 15 for mid-year admission and include the Transfer Student Supplement, the International Supplement, and the application fee. Applicants must arrange to have submitted by the same deadlines transcripts of their college and secondary school records, a statement from a dean or advisor at their university or college, and at least two recommendations from current or recent professors. Interviews are strongly recommended but not required. As soon as it becomes available, an updated transcript including spring semester grades should also be sent. Candidates whose applications are complete will normally be notified of Bowdoin's decision in late April or May. Candidates for January admission are notified in mid-December.

2. Transfer candidates usually present academic records of Honors quality ("B" work or better) in a course of study that approximates the work that would have been done at Bowdoin, had they entered as first-year students. Bowdoin accepts transfer credit for liberal arts courses in which a grade of C or higher has been received. Further, transfer students should understand that although they may expect an estimate regarding class standing upon transferring, official placement is possible only after updated transcripts have arrived at the Office of Student Records and have been appraised by the appropriate dean and academic departments.

3. Although two years of residence are required for a Bowdoin degree, students who have completed more than four semesters of college work are welcome to apply for admission, with this understanding. Students who have already received their bachelor's degree are ineligible for first-year or transfer admission.

4. The financial aid funds available for transfer students may be limited by commitments the College has already made to enrolled students and incoming first-year students. All transfer students are eligible for aid, based on financial need. U. S. applicants for aid must submit a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and the College Scholarship Service's "Profile" by March 1. International applicants for aid must file the College Scholarship Service Foreign Student Financial Aid Form by February 15. Financial aid usually is not available for transfer students applying for January admission.

Special Students

Each semester, as space within the College and openings within courses permit, Bowdoin admits a few special or visiting students who are not seeking a degree from Bowdoin. In general, this program is intended to serve the special educational needs of residents in the Brunswick area who have not yet completed a bachelor's degree, as well as students who are pursuing a degree elsewhere and who, for truly exceptional reasons, wish to take a course at Bowdoin. Teachers wishing to upgrade their skills or Bowdoin graduates who need particular courses to qualify for graduate programs are also considered for this program. One or two courses are charged at a special rate of $2,310 per course. No more than two credits may be taken each semester. No financial aid is available for special students. Interested applicants should submit the completed special student form and enclose the $60 application fee at least one month prior to the beginning of the semester. A personal interview is required. Inquiries should be addressed to the Special Student Coordinator in the Admissions Office.

APPLICATION FOR FINANCIAL AID

Need-Blind Admissions Policy

It is the policy of Bowdoin College to meet the full calculated financial need of all enrolled students and to meet the full calculated financial need of as many entering first-year students as the College's financial resources permit.

The College customarily budgets enough aid resources to meet the full calculated need of all enrolling students without using financial need as a criterion in the selection process. Because spending history is Bowdoin's only guide, there is no guarantee that the budgeted funds will ultimately be sufficient to make all admission decisions without regard to financial need.

For the past decade, financial need has not been a criterion in the selection of candidates for admission with the exception of students offered admission from the waiting list, transfer candidates, and non-U.S. citizens.

Procedure for Application for Financial Aid

Students who wish to be considered for financial aid must apply each year. The primary financial aid document is the College Scholarship Service's "Profile." In addition, the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is required to determine eligibility for all federal grant and loan programs. A brief supplement, the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application (BFAA), is included with the application materials for admission to the College to ensure that our Student Aid Office is aware of a candidate's intent to file for aid. Application deadlines for entering students are listed below. Returning students will be issued forms as part of their renewal package in December.

Cost should not discourage students from applying to Bowdoin College. Through its extensive scholarship grant and loan programs, Bowdoin's financial aid policy is designed to supplement family efforts so that as many students as possible can be admitted each year with the full amount of needed financial assistance. In the Class of 2007, approximately 44 percent of the entering class of 470 students were awarded need-based grants. The average award of grant, loan, and job was $27,000. The amount of assistance intended to meet the individual's need is calculated from the information in the College Scholarship Service's "Profile." Additional material about the program of financial aid at Bowdoin can be found on pages 16–20. Awards of financial aid are announced soon after letters of admission have been sent.

Summary of Application Deadlines

Application materials for admission and student aid include the completed Common Application with supplementary essay, the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application or Foreign Student Financial Aid Application, the College Scholarship Service "Profile," and the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). New applicants should submit these materials in accord with the following deadlines:

Early Decision I

November 15: Common Application and supplementary essay, Bowdoin Financial Aid Application, Profile, and most recent federal tax returns

February 15: FAFSA

Early Decision II

January 1: Common Application and supplementary essay, Bowdoin Financial Aid Application, Profile, and most recent federal tax returns

February 15: FAFSA

Regular Admission

January 1: Common Application and supplementary essay

February 15: Bowdoin Financial Aid Application, Profile, FAFSA, and most recent federal tax returns

Note: Canadian students should file a Profile and Canadian tax returns instead of the Foreign Student Financial Aid Form.

International Applicants

First-Year Students:

January 1: Common Application and supplementary essay, International Student Supplement, Transfer Supplement if applicable, TOEFL Report, Foreign Student Financial Aid Form.

Transfer Applicants

Fall: March 1: Common Application and supplementary essay, Transfer Supplement, Bowdoin Financial Aid Application, Profile, FAFSA, and most recent federal tax returns; International Student Supplement and Foreign Student Financial Aid Form for international applicants

Spring: November 15: Common Application and supplementary essay, Transfer Supplement, Bowdoin Financial Aid Application; International Student Supplement if applicable

Note: Financial aid is often not available for spring transfer students.

All correspondence concerning first-year and transfer admission to the College should be addressed to the Office of Admissions, Bowdoin College, 5000 College Station, Brunswick, ME 04011; Tel. (207) 725-3100, FAX: (207) 725-3101. Inquiries about financial aid should be addressed to the Director of Student Aid, Bowdoin College, 5300 College Station, Brunswick, ME 04011-8444; Tel. (207) 725-3273; FAX: (207) 725-3864.

Financial Aid

BOWDOIN COLLEGE's financial aid policy is designed to supplement family resources so that as many students as possible can attend the College with the full amount of needed assistance. Scholarship grants, loans, and student employment are the principal sources of aid for Bowdoin students who need help in meeting the expenses of their education. Bowdoin believes that students who receive financial aid as grants should also be responsible for a portion of their expenses. Consequently, loans and student employment will generally be part of the financial aid award. Applications for financial aid should be submitted to the director of student aid on or before the published deadlines. On-time submission of the required application forms guarantees that the student will be considered for all the financial aid available to Bowdoin students, including grants, loans, and jobs from any source under Bowdoin's control.

Approximately 64 percent of Bowdoin's grant budget comes from endowed funds given by alumni and friends of the College. Students receiving endowed funds may be asked to communicate with donors. Information on the availability of scholarship and loan funds may be obtained through the College's Student Aid Office. Questions regarding endowed funds and the establishment of such funds should be directed to the Office of Development.

In 2002–2003, Bowdoin distributed a total of about $15,500,000 in need-based financial aid. Grants totaled about $12,920,000 in 2002–2003 and were made to approximately 41 percent of the student body. Long-term loans continue to be an integral part of financial aid, supplementing scholarship grants. The College provides about $1,186,000 to aid recipients each year from loan funds under its control; another $1,403,000 in loan aid comes from private lenders under the terms of the Federal Stafford program.

Application for Financial Aid

Students who wish to be considered for financial aid must submit an application each year. All candidates for aid who are United States or Canadian citizens must submit the College Scholarship Service "Profile" form and the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application by the date specified. U. S. citizens must also file the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). In lieu of the Profile and FAFSA, international candidates must file the College Scholarship Service's (CSS) Foreign Student Financial Aid Application concurrently with their application for admission.

The FAFSA is used to determine eligibility for the following aid programs at the College: Federal Pell Grants; Federal Supplementary Education Opportunity Grants (SEOG); Federal Perkins Loans; Federal Stafford Loans; and Federal Work Study jobs. The Bowdoin Financial Aid Application and the "Profile" are used to determine the family's need for Bowdoin College scholarship grants and Bowdoin College Consolidated Loans.

Domestic transfer students applying for aid must file the FAFSA with the federal processor and the "Profile" with the College Scholarship Service by March 1 and send the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application to the Student Aid Office.

Whether a student receives financial aid from Bowdoin or not, long-term, low-interest loans under the Federal Stafford Loan program are available. Such loans are generally provided by private lenders and require both a FAFSA and a separate loan application.

When parents and students sign the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application, the FAFSA, and the "Profile," they agree to provide a certified or notarized copy of their latest federal or state income tax return, plus any other documentation that may be required. To verify or clarify information on the aid application, it is a common practice for the College to ask for a copy of the federal tax return (Form 1040, 1040EZ or 1041A) and W-2 Forms each year. The College's Financial Aid Committee will not take action on any aid application until sufficient documentation has been submitted.

Eligibility for Aid

To be eligible for aid at Bowdoin College, a student must:

1. Be a degree candidate who is enrolled or is accepted for enrollment on at least a half-time basis;
2. Demonstrate a financial need, which is determined, in general, on the basis of College Scholarship Service practices; and
3. Satisfy academic and personal requirements as listed in the Financial Aid Guide that accompanies an award of aid.

In addition, to qualify for any of the programs subsidized by the federal government, a student must be a citizen, national, or permanent resident of the United States or the Trust territory of the Pacific Islands.

A student is eligible for Bowdoin aid for a maximum of eight semesters. The College's Financial Aid Committee may, at its own discretion, award a ninth semester of aid.

The amount and types of aid a student may receive are limited by calculated need as determined by the College's Financial Aid Committee. If funds are not sufficient to meet the full need of eligible students in any year, the Committee will adopt procedures to assure that the greatest number of eligible candidates will receive the greatest proportion of the aid they need.

All awards of financial aid made in anticipation of an academic year, including the first year, will remain in effect for the full year unless the student's work is unsatisfactory. Students may also be assured of continuing financial aid that meets their need in subsequent years if their grades each semester are such as to assure progress required for continued enrollment (see Academic Standards and Regulations, Deficiency in Scholarship," pages 34–35).

Awards to students whose work is unsatisfactory may be reduced or withdrawn for one semester. Awards may also be reduced or withdrawn for gross breach of conduct or discipline.

Determination of Need

College policy is to meet a student's full, calculated financial need for each year in which he or she qualifies for aid, as long as funds are available. Financial need is the difference between Bowdoin's costs and family resources. Resources consist of parental income and assets, student assets, student earnings, and other resources, such as gifts, non-College scholarships, and veteran's benefits.

Parental assistance from income and assets is determined from the information submitted on the FAFSA, "Profile," and Bowdoin Financial Aid Application. It is presumed that both of the parents or legal guardians are responsible for the student's educational expenses, including the continuing obligation to house and feed the student, to whatever extent is possible. Divorce or separation of the natural parents does not absolve either parent from this obligation.

Student assets at the time the first application is filed are expected to be available for college expenses in the years leading to graduation. From 80 to 100 percent of those student savings are prorated over the undergraduate career in the College's initial need calculation. Students are not required to use their savings, and may choose to make up this amount in other ways. If a student decides to use those savings over fewer years or for other purposes, Bowdoin will continue to include the prorated amount in its calculation of student assets.

The College expects students to earn a reasonable amount during summer vacation and/or from academic-year campus employment. The amount will vary depending upon the student's year in college and the prevailing economic conditions, but it generally is the same for all aid recipients in each class.

The sum of these resources when subtracted from Bowdoin's cost determines the student's need and Bowdoin's financial aid award.

Aid Awards

Awards are a combination of scholarship grants and self-help, i.e., a loan offer and a campus earnings expectation. The College determines both the type and amount of aid that will be offered to each student. The aid combination, or package, varies each year depending upon a student's need. Even if the total amount of aid remains unchanged, the family should expect the scholarship grant to decrease by approximately $150 to $250 per year and the annual self-help portion to increase by the same amount.

Scholarship grants are gift aid provided without student obligation of any kind. No repayment of the scholarship grant is expected. These awards come from a variety of sources such as endowed funds, current gifts, and the federal government, including any Pell or SEOG grant a student may receive. Students are automatically considered for all grants and therefore do not apply for specific awards.

Bowdoin College Loans, Federal Stafford Loans, and Federal Perkins Loans are available to students to cover payment of educational expenses. Parents are typically not legally responsible for repayment of these loans. The loan portion of an aid package is an offer; students often are eligible to borrow in excess of the amount offered. The scholarship grant will not be affected by a student's decision to accept or decline all or any part of the loan. An additional parental contribution or extra summer or campus earnings may be used to replace the loan at the discretion of the student and the family. Long-term loans may also be made to students not receiving scholarship grants.

These loans, including the subsidized Federal Stafford Loans, Federal Perkins Loans, and Bowdoin College Consolidated Loans, usually bear no interest during undergraduate residence. As of July 1994, interest is charged at 5 percent for the latter two loans; interest on Stafford Loans is variable, with a maximum rate of 8.25 percent. Payment over a ten-year period begins six months after graduation or separation, or after graduate school; two or three years of deferment are possible for various categories of service or internships. Perkins Loans also provide for the cancellation of some payments for persons who become teachers and/or who serve in the Peace Corps or Vista, and for several other types of service.

Small, short-term loans are available upon application at the Controller's Office.

Bowdoin National Merit Scholarships

Bowdoin College is a sponsor of National Merit Scholarships. Winners of these awards who do not demonstrate financial need will receive a $1,000 award from the National Merit Corporation, renewable up to four years. Bowdoin National Merit scholars demonstrating need will receive $2,000 renewable awards from the National Merit Corporation and all remaining need will be met with Bowdoin grant aid and on-campus employment.

National Achievement Scholarships

While Bowdoin College does not sponsor National Achievement Scholarships, scholars who enroll will receive the same grants and loan-free packages offered to National Merit Scholars.

Student Employment

A student who receives aid is expected to meet part of the educational expense from summer employment and from campus earnings, included in the financial aid award. The student may choose to work or not; this decision has no further effect upon the scholarship grant or loan offer.

Bowdoin's student employment program offers a wide variety of opportunities to undergraduates. These include direct employment by the College and employment by outside agencies represented on the campus or located in the community. College policy is to give priority in hiring to students with recognized financial need. However, employment opportunities are open to all students who are interested and able to work. Commitments for employment are made to first-year students at the opening of College in the fall. The annual student payroll currently stands at about $1,500,000.

Federal Financial Aid Programs Available at Bowdoin

The College participates in the Federal Work-Study Program established under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, the Federal Supplementary Educational Opportunity Grants Program established under the Higher Education Act of 1965, and the Federal Pell Grant Program established under the Higher Education Amendments of 1972, along with the Federal Perkins and Federal Stafford Loan programs previously mentioned. The College also works closely with several states that can provide handicapped students and those receiving other forms of state aid with financial assistance to help with their educational expenses.

Veterans Benefits

The degree programs of Bowdoin College are approved by the Maine State Approving Agency for Veterans Education Programs for persons eligible for benefits (GI Bill) from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. Students who request veterans' educational assistance are required to have all previous post-secondary experience evaluated for possible transfer credit in order to be eligible for benefits. For more information, contact the Office of Financial Aid.

First-Year Student Awards

About 205 entering students each year receive prematriculation awards to help them meet the expenses of their first year. Recently the awards have ranged from $1,000 to $38,000. As noted above, some awards are direct grants, but most also include loan offers. The size and nature of these awards depend upon the need demonstrated by the candidates. The application process and deadlines are described on pages 9–14. Candidates will be notified of a prematriculation award soon after they are informed of the decision on their applications for admission, usually about April 5.

Upperclass Awards

Awards similar to prematriculation scholarships are granted to undergraduates already enrolled in college on the basis of their financial need and academic progress. All continuing students who wish to be considered for aid must register as aid candidates with the Office of Student Aid by April 15 each year. The director of student aid will make the appropriate forms available each year and will provide notification of application requirements and filing deadlines.

It is the responsibility of the student to submit all required forms on time according to the dates published by the Student Aid Office. Upperclass students and their families must complete the Bowdoin Financial Aid Application, the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), and the “Profile” of the College Scholarship Service for each year that aid is requested. Upperclass students file for aid in April; award notifications are mailed in late June. Applications received after the deadline will be considered on a “funds available” basis. Late applicants, if funded, may receive larger loan offers and proportionally less grant.

Normally, awards are made at the end of one academic year in anticipation of the next, but applications or requests for a financial aid review may be made prior to December 20 for aid to be assigned during the spring semester on a funds-available basis.

Awards made for a full year are subject to the same provisions covering prematriculation awards, but those made for a single semester are not considered as setting award levels for the following year.

Foreign Student Awards

Bowdoin has a limited number of fully funded financial aid awards for foreign students. To be considered for these awards, the student must file the College Scholarship Service’s Foreign Student Financial Aid Application, which is available from the Admissions Office. Foreign students who do not apply at the time of admission should not expect financial aid during any of their years at Bowdoin. Canadian citizens should submit a Profile instead of the Foreign Student Financial Aid Form.

Graduate Scholarships

Bowdoin is able to offer a number of scholarships for postgraduate study at other institutions. Grants of various amounts are available to Bowdoin graduates who continue their studies in the liberal arts and sciences and in certain professional schools. In 2002–2003, Bowdoin provided $315,000 in graduate scholarship assistance to 85 students. Further information about these scholarships is available through the Student Aid Office.

Special Funds

Income from these funds is used to assist students with special or unexpected needs. Further information is available through the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs.

Further information about application procedures, eligibility, need calculation and awards, plus descriptions of individual federal, state, and College programs is contained in the Financial Aid Guide that accompanies an award of aid and is available upon request. Questions about Bowdoin’s aid programs may be addressed to the director of student aid.

Expenses

COLLEGE CHARGES

Fees for the 2003-2004 academic year are listed below. Travel, books, and personal expenses are not included; the student must budget for such items on his/her own. For planning purposes, students and parents should anticipate that tuition and other charges will increase each year to reflect program changes and other cost increases experienced by the College.

	By Semester	Full Year
Tuition*	$14,735	$29,470
Housing	1,725	3,450
Board (19-meal plan)	2,110	4,220
Student Health Fee*	170	340
Student Activities Fee*	155	310
Class Dues*:
Seniors	30	60
Other classes	15	30
Telecommunications
Service	50	100

* Required fees for all students.

 Applicable only to students in College housing.

Off-Campus Study Fees

The College assesses a fee for participation in off-campus study programs for which Bowdoin degree credit is desired. The fee for 2003–2004 is $1,000 per program. The fee is waived for students attending any Colby-Bates-Bowdoin (CBB) program, ISLE in Sri Lanka, SITA in India, or the St. Petersburg/Nevsky Institute in Russia.

The Bowdoin student health policy remains in effect while a student studies elsewhere, unless the student is obliged to purchase a similar insurance from that program.

Registration and Enrollment

All continuing students are required to register during registration week of the prior semester in accordance with the schedules posted at the College. Any student who initially registers for classes after the first week of classes must pay a $20 late fee. All students are further required to submit an Enrollment Form by the end of the first week of classes. While registration places students in courses, the Enrollment Form serves to notify the College that the student is on campus and attending classes. A fee of $20 is assessed for late submission of the Enrollment Form.

A $400 Re-enrollment Deposit is due about April 1 from all students planning to continue at Bowdoin the following fall semester. Students may not register for classes or apply for housing unless this deposit has been paid. The deposit is an advance payment against the fall semester tuition and will be shown on the bill for that term. The deposit is forfeited if a student registers and then transfers or resigns from the College before the fall semester.

Refunds

Students leaving the College during the course of a semester are refunded tuition and fees based on the following schedule:

During the first two weeks.....	80%
During the third week.....	60%
During the fourth week.....	40%
During the fifth week.....	20%
Over five weeks.....	No refund

After adjustments for fixed commitments and applicable overhead expense, refunds for room and board are prorated on a daily basis in accordance with the student's attendance based on the College's calendar. Students who are dismissed from the College within the first five weeks for other than academic or medical reasons are not entitled to refunds. Financial aid awards will be credited in proportion to educational expenses, as stipulated in a student's award letter, but in no case will they exceed total charges to be collected. Title IV funds will be refunded in accordance with federal regulations. Refunds will be made within thirty days of the student's departure.

Financial Aid

There are opportunities at Bowdoin to receive financial aid in meeting the charge for tuition. Detailed information about scholarships, loans, and other financial aid may be found on pages 16–20.

Room and Board

First-year students and sophomores are guaranteed housing and are required to live on campus. Entering first-year students may indicate their residence needs on a preference card issued by the Residential Life Office during the summer preceding their arrival at Bowdoin. The Director of Residential Life coordinates housing accommodations for the remaining classes through a lottery system.

Residence hall suites consist of a study and bedroom, provided with essential furniture. Students should furnish blankets and pillows; linen and laundry services are available at moderate cost. College property is not to be removed from the building or from the room in which it belongs; occupants are held responsible for any damage to their rooms or furnishings.

Board charges are the same regardless of whether a student eats at the Moulton Union or Thorne Hall. Students who live in Bowdoin facilities, except apartments and a few other student residences, are required to take a 19-meal or 14-meal board plan. Students living in College apartments or off campus may purchase a 10-meal or declining balance board plan or one of the standard plans, if they choose.

Other College Charges

All damage to the buildings or other property of the College by persons unknown may be assessed equally on all residents of the building in which the damage occurred. The Student Activities Fee is set by the student government, and its expenditure is allocated by the Student Activities Fee Committee.

Health Care

The facilities of the Dudley Coe Health Center and the Counseling Service are available to all students. The student health fee covers health and accident insurance, in which all students are enrolled. The health insurance provides year-round coverage whether a student is enrolled at Bowdoin or in an off-campus study program.

A pamphlet specifying the coverage provided by the student health policy is available from the Health Center and will be mailed in the summer preceding the policy year. Any costs not covered by the insurance will be charged to the student's account.

Motor Vehicles

All motor vehicles, including motorcycles and motor scooters, used on campus or owned and/or operated by residents of any College-owned residence must be registered with Campus Security. The registration decals cost $40 for students. Vehicles must be registered each academic year. Failure to register a motor vehicle will result in a $25 parking ticket each time the vehicle is found on campus. Students wishing to register a vehicle for a period of time less than one semester must make special arrangements with Campus Security. All students maintaining motor vehicles at the College are required to carry adequate liability insurance and provide proof of insurance at the time of registration. The College assumes no responsibility for the security of or damage to vehicles parked on campus. Parking on campus is limited and students will be assigned parking areas according to their living locations.

PAYMENT OF COLLEGE BILLS

By registering for courses, a student incurs a legal obligation to pay tuition and fees. This debt may be canceled only if a student officially withdraws from the College before the start of classes. Students' accounts must be current for semester enrollment and course registration to occur. After the first week of classes, students who have not enrolled for any reason are dropped from courses. A student's access to his/her residence hall, meal plan, and the library is deactivated at that time. The student is placed on an involuntary leave of absence for the semester (see Academic Standards and Regulations, page 36). Degrees, diplomas, and transcripts are not available to students with overdue accounts. Additionally, students with outstanding balances who have not made satisfactory payment arrangements with the Bursar's Office are not permitted to participate in Commencement exercises.

Bills for tuition, board, room rent, and fees for the fall and spring semesters are sent in July and December, respectively. Payment for each semester is due 30 days from the billing date. Credits (funds received) appear on the bill. Bowdoin scholarship grants, payments from the family, and any other cash payments are examples of credits. Bowdoin loan offers, estimated Pell Grants, and payment plan contracts are tentative credits (funds expected). The balance due is the difference between all charges and all credits (both actual and tentative). Bills are sent to the student unless the Bursar is requested in writing to direct them to someone other than the student.

Payment may be made by the semester due date, by installment payment plan over the course of the semester, or by combining the two options. Bowdoin does not have its own in-house payment plan. Students may choose from three outside installment payment plan agencies offered. Applications are included with the first bill for each semester. The plans offered are through Academic Management Services (AMS), Key Education Resources, and Tuition Management Systems (TMS). Credit cards are not accepted by Bowdoin College in payment of college charges.

The Curriculum

BOWDOIN RECOGNIZES through its course offerings and requirements the importance of relating a liberal education to a world whose problems and needs are continually changing. The College does not prescribe specific courses for all students. Rather, each student determines an appropriate program of liberal arts courses within the framework of the College's academic standards and in consultation with an academic advisor.

Bowdoin offers a course of study leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. The requirements for the degree include completion of a minimum number of courses, residence at the College for a minimum time, fulfillment of the distribution requirements, and completion of a major. A student must achieve minimum grades in order to remain enrolled at Bowdoin.

A vital part of the educational experience takes place in the interaction between students and their academic advisors. Each student is assigned a pre-major academic advisor at the start of the first year. The pre-major academic advising system is intended to help students take full advantage of the first two years of Bowdoin and begin to plan the remaining years. It provides a framework within which a student can work with a faculty member to make informed academic decisions. Such a partnership is particularly important during the period of transition and adjustment of the first year. Faculty members may make recommendations about courses, combinations of courses, or direct students towards other resources of the College. They may also play a role at moments of academic difficulty. The effectiveness of the system depends on the commitment of the student and the advisor. Students declare their majors during the second semester of the sophomore year, and afterwards are advised by members of their major departments.

ACADEMIC REQUIREMENTS FOR THE DEGREE

To qualify for the bachelor of arts degree, a student must have:

1. Successfully passed thirty-two full-credit courses or the equivalent;
2. Spent four semesters (successfully passed sixteen credits) in residence, at least two semesters of which have been during the junior and senior years;
3. Completed at least two courses in each of the following divisions of the curriculum—natural science and mathematics, social and behavioral sciences, and humanities and fine arts—and two courses in non-Eurocentric studies; and
4. Completed a major, be it a departmental major, two departmental majors, a coordinate major, an interdisciplinary major, or a student-designed major (a departmental minor may be completed with any of the preceding).

No student will ordinarily be permitted to remain at Bowdoin for more than nine semesters of full-time work.

DISTRIBUTION REQUIREMENTS

Students must take two courses from each of the three divisions of the curriculum—natural science and mathematics, social and behavioral sciences, and humanities and fine arts. Students must also take two courses in non-Eurocentric studies; a course that satisfies the non-Eurocentric studies requirement may also count for its division. These requirements may not be met by Advanced Placement or International Baccalaureate credits, but may be met by credits earned while studying away from Bowdoin. Distribution requirements should normally be completed by the end of the sophomore year. Areas of distribution are defined as follows:

Natural Science and Mathematics: Biochemistry, biology, chemistry, computer science, geology, mathematics, neuroscience, physics, and certain environmental studies and psychology courses. (Designated by the letter a following a course number in the course descriptions.)

Social and Behavioral Sciences: Africana studies, economics, government, psychology, sociology and anthropology, and certain Asian studies, environmental studies, history, and women's studies courses. (Designated by the letter b following a course number in the course descriptions.)

Humanities and Fine Arts: Art, Chinese, classics, dance, education, English, film, German, Japanese, music, philosophy, religion, Romance languages, Russian, theater, most history courses, and certain Asian studies and women's studies courses. (Designated by the letter c following a course number in the course descriptions.)

Non-Eurocentric Studies: Students must take two courses that focus on a non-Eurocentric culture or society, exclusive of Europe and European Russia and their literary, artistic, musical, religious, and political traditions. The requirement is intended to introduce students to the variety of cultures and to open their minds to the different ways in which people perceive and cope with the challenges of life. Though courses primarily emphasizing North American and European topics will not count toward this requirement, courses focusing on African American, Native American, or Latin American cultures will meet the requirement. Language courses do not meet this requirement. (Designated by the letter d following a course number in the course descriptions.)

THE MAJOR

Students may choose one of six basic patterns to satisfy the major requirement at Bowdoin: a departmental major, two departmental majors (a double major), a coordinate major, an interdisciplinary major, a student-designed major, or any of the preceding with a departmental minor. The requirements for completing specific majors and minors are presented in detail in the section describing the courses offered by each department, beginning on page 46. Interdisciplinary majors are described beginning on page 177.

Students should have ample time to be exposed to a broad range of courses and experiences before focusing their educational interests and so do not declare their majors until spring of the sophomore year. Students are required to declare their majors before registering for courses for the junior year or applying to participate in off-campus study programs. Students declare their majors only after consultation with a major academic advisor(s). Since some departments have courses that must be passed or criteria that must be met before a student will be accepted as a major, students are encouraged to think well in advance about possible majors and to speak with faculty about their educational interests. Students may change their majors after consultation with the relevant departments, but they may not declare a new major after the first semester of the senior year. Special procedures exist for interdisciplinary and student-designed majors. These are described below.

Departmental and Program Majors

Departmental and program majors are offered in the following areas:

Africana Studies	Government and Legal Studies
Anthropology	History
Art History	Latin American Studies
Asian Studies	Mathematics
Biochemistry	Music
Biology	Neuroscience
Chemistry	Philosophy
Classics	Physics and Astronomy
Classics/Archaeology	Psychology
Computer Science	Religion
Economics	Romance Languages
English	Russian
French	Sociology
Geology	Spanish
German	Visual Arts
	Women's Studies

A student may choose to satisfy the requirements of one department or program (single major) or to satisfy all of the requirements set by two departments (double major). A student who chooses a double major may drop one major at any time.

Coordinate Major

The coordinate major encourages specialization in an area of learning within the framework of a recognized academic discipline. The coordinate major is offered only in relation to the Environmental Studies Program. For a specific description of this major, see page 124.

Interdisciplinary Major

Interdisciplinary majors are designed to tie together the offerings and major requirements of two separate departments by focusing on a theme that integrates the two areas. Such majors usually fulfill most or all of the requirements of two separate departments and usually entail a special project to achieve a synthesis of the disciplines involved.

Anticipating that many students will be interested in certain patterns of interdisciplinary studies, several departments have specified standard requirements for interdisciplinary majors. These are:

- Art History and Archaeology
- Art History and Visual Arts
- Chemical Physics
- Computer Science and Mathematics
- English and Theater
- Eurasian and East European Studies
- Geology and Chemistry
- Geology and Physics
- Mathematics and Economics

For complete descriptions of these interdisciplinary majors, see pages 177–80.

A student may take the initiative to develop an interdisciplinary major not specified in the Catalogue by consulting with the chairs of the two major departments. Students who do so must have their program approved by the Recording Committee. Students must submit their proposals to the Recording Committee by December 1 of their sophomore year. A student may not select an interdisciplinary major after the junior year.

Student-Designed Major

Some students may wish to pursue a major program that does not fit the pattern of a departmental major, a coordinate major, or an interdisciplinary major. In such cases, a student may work with two faculty members to develop a major program that demonstrates significant strength in at least two departments. Such strength is to be shown in both the number and pattern of courses involved. A synthesizing project is required. Guidelines for the development of student-designed majors are available from the Office of Student Records. Student-designed majors require the approval of the Recording Committee. Students must submit their proposals to the Recording Committee by December 1 of their sophomore year.

The Minor

Most departments and programs offer one or more minor programs consisting of no fewer than four courses and no more than seven courses, including all prerequisites. A minor program must be planned with and approved by both the student's major and minor departments no later than the end of the first semester of the senior year. A minor may be dropped at any time.

The following departments and programs offer a minor:

Africana Studies	Government and Legal Studies
Asian Studies	History
Anthropology	Latin American Studies
Art (Art History or Visual Arts)	Mathematics
Biology	Music
Chemistry	Neuroscience
Classics (Greek, Latin, Classics, Archaeology, or Classical Studies)	Philosophy
Computer Science	Physics and Astronomy
Dance*	Psychology
Economics	Religion
Education*	Romance Languages (French or Spanish)
English	Russian
Environmental Studies	Sociology
Film Studies*	Theater*
Gay and Lesbian Studies*	Women's Studies
Geology
German

* These programs offer only a minor.

Academic Standards and Regulations

INFORMATION ABOUT COURSES

Course Credit

Bowdoin courses typically meet for three hours a week, with the anticipation that additional time may be spent in lab, discussion group, film viewings, or preparatory work. Most courses earn one credit each. Music and dance performance courses generally earn one-half credit each. The one exception is Advanced Individual Performance Studies in music, which earn one credit each.

Course Load

All students at Bowdoin are full-time students and, in order to make normal progress toward the degree, are expected to enroll in no fewer than four credits each semester. Students wishing to take five or more credits must receive approval from their dean. Students may not take more than four and a half credits while on academic probation without approval from their dean. Seniors may be required to take one course per semester in their major department, at the department's discretion.

No extra tuition charge is levied upon students who register for more than four credits, and, by the same token, no reduction in tuition is granted to students who choose to register for fewer than four credits during any of their eight semesters at Bowdoin. A student may be granted a tuition reduction for taking fewer than three credits only if a ninth semester is required to complete the degree and he or she has previously been a full-time Bowdoin student for eight semesters.

Attendance and Examinations

Students are expected to attend the first meeting of any course in which they are enrolled. Students who do not attend the first meeting may be dropped from the course at the discretion of the instructor, but only if the demand for the course exceeds the enrollment limit. Otherwise, Bowdoin has no class attendance requirements, but individual instructors may establish specific attendance expectations. At the beginning of each semester, instructors will make clear to students the attendance regulations of each course. If expectations are unclear, students should seek clarification from their instructors.

Attendance at examinations is mandatory. An absence from any examination, be it an hour examination or a final examination, may result in a grade of F. In the event of illness or other unavoidable cause of absence from examination, instructors may require documentation of excuses from the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs after consultation with the Dudley Coe Health Center or the Counseling Office. Students bear ultimate responsibility for arranging make-up or substitute coursework. In unusual cases (family and personal emergencies, illness, etc.), examinations may be rescheduled by agreement of the course instructor and a dean.

Final examinations of the College are held at the close of each semester and must be given according to the schedule published each semester by the Office of Student Records. No examinations may be given nor extra classes scheduled during Reading Period. All testing activity is prohibited during Reading Period including, but not limited to, take-home exams, final exams, and hour exams. All academic work, except for final examinations, final papers, final lab reports, and final projects, is due on or before the last day of classes.

Athletics and other extracurricular activities do not exempt students from the normal policies governing attendance at classes and examinations. When conflicts arise, students should immediately discuss possible alternatives with course instructors. At times, however, students may find themselves having to make serious choices about educational priorities.

A student with three hour examinations in one day or three final examinations in two days may reschedule one for a day mutually agreeable to the student and the instructor. Other changes may be made for emergencies or for educational desirability, but only with the approval of the Dean's Office.

Also, no student is required to take an examination or fulfill other scheduled course requirements on recognized major religious holidays and Martin Luther King, Jr. Day. The College encourages instructors to avoid scheduling examinations on the following holidays:

2003:
Rosh Hashanah	September 26–27
Yom Kippur	October 6
2004:
Martin Luther King, Jr. Day	January 19
First Day of Passover	April 6
Good Friday	April 9
Easter	April 11

Course Registration and Course Changes

Registration for each semester is completed by submitting the Course Registration Card. Since most courses have maximum size limits, as well as course prerequisites or enrollment priorities, students cannot be certain they will be enrolled in their top-choice courses. Consequently, the registration card should list four full-credit courses and up to two alternate courses for each. The card must be signed by the pre-major academic advisor (first-year students and sophomores) or the major department advisor(s) (juniors and seniors), and must be presented to the Office of Student Records by 5:00 P.M. on the day specified in the Schedule of Course Offerings. Students receive initial notification of their courses within a few days, and Phase II Registration then gives those students who were not registered for four courses the opportunity to adjust their schedules. Students who are studying away are strongly encouraged to register at the same time that students are registering on campus; the Office of Student Records Web site provides the necessary schedules and forms so that registration may be done electronically at <http://www.bowdoin.edu/studentrecords>.

Registration for continuing students occurs at the end of the prior semester, generally about four weeks before final examinations. Registration for new students occurs during orientation. Enrollment in courses is complete only when students submit the Enrollment Form, which must be submitted by the end of the first week of classes. This form verifies that a student is on campus and attending classes. A student who does not submit the Enrollment Form may be barred from using many of the services of the College, including, but not limited to, dining services, library services, and fitness services. Enrollment Forms returned late are subject to a $20 fine. In addition, any student who registers initially for courses after the first week of classes must pay a $20 late fee.

Once classes begin, students may adjust their course schedules by submitting an add/drop card to the Office of Student Records. Students have two weeks to make the necessary adjustments to their schedules. An instructor will allow a student to add a course if the following three conditions have been met: 1) the student has the necessary qualifications, including but not limited to the course prerequisites; 2) the approved maximum class size limit has not been reached; and 3) the student and instructor have agreed on how missed class material and assignments will be managed. No course may be added or dropped after the second week of classes. Students in their first semester at Bowdoin, however, have an extended drop period of six weeks; this longer period for new students recognizes the fact that new students sometimes undergo a period of adjustment to college-level work. Anyone who wants to add or drop a course after the two-week deadline must petition the Recording Committee, except for first-semester students who may drop through the sixth week with the permission of their dean and advisor. Generally petitions are only approved if the student can show extreme personal or medical reasons for the lateness of the change. Any course dropped after the deadline will appear on the transcript with a grade of W (for withdrew). Late adds will require that the student has been attending the course from the very beginning of the semester. Documentation may be required. Course changes made after the deadline will require payment of a $20 late fee per change, unless the change is made for reasons outside the control of the student.

A student will not receive a grade for a course unless he or she has completed and submitted the forms to register for or add the course. Also, a student will receive a failing grade for a course he or she stops attending unless a drop form has been completed and submitted before the deadline. Students receive periodic notices of the courses for which they are registered. The student bears ultimate responsibility for completing and submitting forms that provide the College with an accurate record of the student's course schedule.

Independent Study

With approval of a project director, a student may elect a course of independent study for which regular course credit will be given. A department will ordinarily approve one or two semesters of independent study. Where more than one semester's credit is sought for a project, the project will be subject to review by the department at the end of the first semester. In special cases, the Recording Committee, upon recommendation of the department, may extend credit for additional semester courses beyond two.

There are normally two kinds of independent study and each should be registered for under the appropriate course number. A directed reading course designed to allow a student to explore a subject not currently offered within the curriculum shall be numbered 291, 292, 293, or 294. An independent study that will culminate in substantial and original research; or in a fine arts, music, or creative writing project; or that is part of a departmental honors program shall be numbered 401 or higher. Independent study may not be taken on a Credit/Fail basis.

In independent study and honors courses that will continue beyond one semester, instructors have the option of submitting at the end of each semester, except the last, a grade of S (for Satisfactory) in place of a regular grade. Regular grades shall be submitted at the end of the final semester and shall become the grades for the individual semesters of the course.

Course Grades

Course grades are defined as follows: A, the student has mastered the material of the course and has demonstrated exceptional critical skills and originality; B, the student has demonstrated a thorough and above average understanding of the material of the course; C, the student has demonstrated a thorough and satisfactory understanding of the material of the course; D, the student has demonstrated a marginally satisfactory understanding of the basic material of the course (only a limited number of D grades may be counted toward the requirements for graduation); F, the student has not demonstrated a satisfactory understanding of the basic material of the course. Plus (+) or minus (-) modifiers may be added to B and C grades; only the minus (-) modifier may be added to the A grade.

Faculty report grades to the Office of Student Records at the close of the semester. Grade reports are sent to students shortly after the grade submission deadline.

Once reported, no grade is changed (with the exception of clerical errors) without the approval of the Recording Committee. Grades cannot be changed on the basis of additional student work without prior approval of the Recording Committee. If students are dissatisfied with a grade received in a course, they should discuss the problem with the instructor. If the problem cannot be resolved in this manner, the student should consult with the chair of the department and, if necessary, with a dean, who will consult with the department as needed. The student may request a final review of the grade by the Recording Committee.

Most departments will not accept as prerequisites or as satisfying the requirements of the major, courses for which a grade of D has been given. Questions should be referred directly to the department chair. Students who receive a grade of D or F in a course may retake the course. Both courses and both grades will appear on the transcript, but only one course credit will be given for successful completion of a given course.

Credit/Fail Option

A student may choose to take a limited number of courses on a Credit/Fail basis as opposed to a graded basis. Courses to be taken on a credit/fail basis should be so indicated on the Registration Card or Add/Drop Card. If a student chooses this option, credit is given if the student produces work at a level of D or above, and a grade of F is given otherwise.

A student may elect no more than one course of the normal four-course load each semester on a Credit/Fail basis, although a student may elect a fifth course any semester on a Credit/Fail basis. No more than four of the thirty-two courses required for graduation may be taken on a Credit/Fail basis; courses in excess of the thirty-two required may be taken for Credit/Fail without limit as to number. Courses that can only be taken Credit/Fail (most music ensemble and dance performance courses) are not counted within these restrictions.

Most departments require that all courses taken to satisfy requirements of the major be graded. Courses taken to satisfy distribution requirements may be taken on a Credit/Fail basis. No course may be changed from graded to Credit/Fail or vice versa after the second week of classes. Students in their first semester at Bowdoin may, with the permission of their dean and advisor, make such changes through the sixth week of the semester.

Incompletes

The College expects students to complete all course requirements as established by instructors. In unavoidable circumstances (personal illness, family emergency, etc.) and with approval of the dean of student affairs and the instructor, a grade of Incomplete may be recorded.

An Incomplete represents a formal agreement among the instructor, a dean, and the student for the submission of unfinished coursework under prescribed conditions. Students must initiate their request for an Incomplete on or before the final day of classes by contacting a dean. If approved, the Incomplete Agreement Form is signed by all necessary individuals, and a date is set by which time all unfinished work must be submitted. In all cases, students are expected to finish outstanding coursework in a period of time roughly equivalent to the period of distraction from their academic commitments. In no case will this period of time extend beyond the end of the second week of classes of the following semester. The instructor should submit a final grade within two weeks of this date. If the agreed-upon work is not completed within the specified time limit, the Office of Student Records will change the Incomplete to Fail or ask the instructor to give a grade based on work already completed. Extensions must be approved by the dean of student affairs. Any exceptions to this rule or a change of the specified time limit may require approval of the Recording Committee.

Comment, Failure, and Distinction Cards

Faculty may communicate the progress of students in their classes periodically through Comment Cards. The written observations alert students, academic advisors, and the deans to potential problems confronting students. They can also be used by faculty to highlight improvement or successes. Students should view comment cards as academic progress reports providing warnings or highlighting achievements. When comment cards are used for warning purposes, the student should immediately discuss corrective assistance with his or her instructor. Academic advisors and deans can also be very helpful in developing strategies for improvement and identifying existing support services.

At the end of each semester, instructors issue Failure Cards to students who fail courses. These notations provide precise reasons for a student's failing grades. Students and academic advisors generally find these comments instructive as they plan future coursework. In some cases, when a student has performed exceptionally well or has accomplished something that is particularly noteworthy, an instructor may issue a Distinction Card at the end of the semester.

Transcripts

The Office of Student Records will furnish official transcript copies upon written request. There is no charge for transcripts unless materials are requested to be sent by an overnight delivery service.

THE AWARD OF HONORS

General Honors

General honors (or Latin honors) are awarded with the degree on the basis of an average of all grades earned at Bowdoin, with a minimum of sixteen credits required for the computation. To compute the average, an A is assigned four points; a B, three points; a C, two points; a D, one point; and an F, zero points. Plus (+) or minus (–) modifiers add or subtract three-tenths of a point (0.3). Half-credit courses are weighted as one-half course. Credit grades are omitted from the computation, but an F grade received in a course taken on a Credit/Fail basis does count. In the case of a course taken at Bowdoin one or more times, only the first grade will be included. The resulting grade point average (GPA) is not rounded. A degree summa cum laude is awarded to students whose GPAs are in the top two percent (2%) of the graduating class; a degree magna cum laude is awarded to students whose GPAs are in the rest of the top eight percent (8%) of the graduating class; and a degree cum laude is awarded to students whose GPAs are in the rest of the top twenty percent (20%) of the graduating class.

Courses taken off campus at one of the Colby, Bates, and Bowdoin Consortium sites are considered Bowdoin courses. Grades earned in these courses are included in GPA calculations.

Departmental Honors: The Honors Project

The degree with a level of honors in a major subject is awarded to students who have distinguished themselves in coursework in the subject and in an honors project. The award is made by the faculty upon recommendation of the department or program.

The honors project offers seniors the opportunity to engage in original work under the supervision of a faculty member in their major department or program. It allows qualified seniors to build a bridge from their coursework to advanced scholarship in their field of study through original, substantial, and sustained independent research. The honors project can be the culmination of a student's academic experience at Bowdoin and offers an unparalleled chance for intellectual and personal development.

Students who have attained a specified level of academic achievement in their field of study by their senior year are encouraged to petition their department or program to pursue an honors project carried out under the supervision of a faculty advisor. The honors project usually takes place over the course of two semesters; some departments allow single-semester honors projects. The honors project results in a written thesis and/or oral defense, artistic performance, or showing, depending on the student's field of study. Students receive a grade for each semester's work on the honors project and may be awarded a level of honors in their department or program, as distinct from general honors.

The honors project process differs across departments and programs in terms of qualification criteria, requirements for completion, the level of honors awarded, and the use of honors project credits to fulfill major course requirements. In general, each semester's work on an honors project will be considered an independent study numbered 401 or higher until the honors project is completed. Students must complete an honors project to be eligible for departmental or program honors. If students do not fulfill the requirements for completion of the honors project but carry out satisfactory work for an independent study, they will receive independent study credit for one or two semesters.

All written work in independent study accepted as fulfilling the requirements for departmental honors is to be deposited in the College Library in a form specified by the Library Committee.

Sarah and James Bowdoin Scholars (Dean's List)

The Sarah and James Bowdoin scholarships, carrying no stipend, are awarded in the fall on the basis of work completed the previous academic year. The award is given to the twenty percent of all eligible students with the highest grade point average (GPA). Eligible students are those who completed the equivalent of eight full-credit Bowdoin courses during the academic year, six credits of which were graded and seven credits of which were graded or non-elective credit/fail. In other words, among the eight required full-credit courses or the equivalent, a maximum of two credits may be taken credit/fail, but only one credit may be for a course(s) the student chose to take credit/fail. Grades for courses taken in excess of eight credits are included in the GPA. For further information on the College's method for computing GPA, consult the section on General Honors on page 32, above.

A book, bearing a replica of the early College bookplate serving to distinguish the James Bowdoin Collection in the library, is presented to every Sarah and James Bowdoin scholar who has earned a GPA of 4.00.

Students who receive College honors have their names sent to their hometown newspaper by the Office of Communications. Students not wishing to have their names published should notify the office directly.

DEFICIENCY IN SCHOLARSHIP

Students are expected to make normal progress toward the degree, defined as passing the equivalent of four full-credit courses each semester. Students not making normal progress may be asked to make up deficient credits in approved courses at another accredited institution of higher education. In addition, students are expected to meet the College's standards of academic performance. The Recording Committee meets twice each year to review the academic records of students who are not meeting these standards. Students are placed on probation or suspension according to the criteria below; students on probation or suspension are not considered to be in good academic standing. In cases of repeated poor performance, a student may be dismissed from the College.

Academic Probation

Students are placed on academic probation for one semester if they:

1. Receive one F or two Ds in any semester;
2. Receive one D while on academic probation;
3. Receive during their tenure at Bowdoin a cumulative total of four Ds or some equivalent combination of Fs and Ds where one F is equivalent to two Ds.

Also, students are placed on academic probation for one semester upon returning from academic suspension. Students on academic probation will be assigned to work closely with their academic advisor and a person from the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs. Students on academic probation normally are not eligible to study away.

Academic Suspension

Students are placed on academic suspension if they:

1. Receive two Fs, one F and two Ds, or four Ds in any semester;
2. Receive one F or two Ds while on academic probation;
3. Receive during their tenure at Bowdoin a cumulative total of six Ds or some equivalent combination of Fs and Ds where one F is equivalent to two Ds.

A student on suspension for academic deficiency normally is suspended for one academic year and may be asked to complete coursework at another accredited four-year institution before being readmitted. Students are expected to earn grades of C or better in these courses. Other conditions for readmission are set by the Recording Committee and stated in writing at the time of suspension. A suspended student must submit a letter requesting readmission to the dean of student affairs. A student who is readmitted is eligible for financial aid, according to demonstrated need, as long as the student adheres to the relevant financial aid deadlines. Once the student is readmitted, the Office of Student Records will send course information to the student's permanent address unless an alternative address has been provided. The student will be unable to participate in course registration until the first day of classes of the semester in which he or she returns. Students are ineligible for housing until after they have been readmitted and there is no guarantee that College housing will be available at that time. While suspended, students are not permitted to visit campus without the written permission of the dean of student affairs. Generally, permission to visit campus is only granted for educational or health treatment purposes. Students are unable to participate in Bowdoin College athletic programs until they have been readmitted. Students are permitted to submit an application for Off-Campus Study (normal deadlines apply); however, they are not eligible to apply for RA, proctor, or house resident positions until readmitted.

Dismissal

Students will be subject to dismissal if they:

1. Incur a second academic suspension; or
2. Receive during their tenure at Bowdoin a cumulative total of nine Ds or some equivalent combination of Fs and Ds where one F is equivalent to two Ds.

OTHER ACADEMIC REGULATIONSLeave of Absence

Students may, with the approval of a dean and in consultation with their academic advisor, interrupt their Bowdoin education and take a leave of absence to pursue nonacademic interests for one or two semesters. The conditions governing a leave of absence are as follows:

1. Students must be in good academic and social standing at the end of the semester immediately prior to the start of the leave.
2. Leaves typically begin at the start of a regular semester and may not extend beyond two terms. Exceptions may be granted by the dean of student affairs.
3. Leave extensions, terminations, or cancellations must have the approval of a dean.
4. Students on leave are not considered enrolled at Bowdoin and are expected to leave the College community. Exceptions may be granted by the dean of student affairs.
5. Students on leave may not transfer academic credit to Bowdoin for coursework taken while on leave.

Students on leave of absence will be able to participate in course registration for the semester in which they are expected to return. Materials will be sent to their permanent address unless an alternative address has been provided. Students will be able to participate in the selection of housing via a proxy process and are free to visit campus without the dean's permission. While on leave, students are unable to compete in Bowdoin College athletic programs until after the last day of exams prior to the semester that they are scheduled to return. Students are permitted to submit applications for Off-Campus Study and for RA, proctor, or house resident positions, and normal deadlines apply. Students are expected to return at the conclusion of their leave. Readmission is unnecessary, and individuals retain financial aid eligibility if they adhere to College deadlines.

To initiate a request for a leave of absence, students must complete a Leave of Absence Request Form. These are available in the Dean of Student Affairs Office. Approvals for a leave and the conditions associated with the leave will be provided in writing to the student by the dean.

Medical Leave of Absence

Medical and emotional circumstances sometimes force students to temporarily interrupt their Bowdoin education and take a medical leave of absence. To initiate a request for a medical leave, the student or his/her advocate (advisor, parent, member of the Health Center or Counseling Center staffs, etc.) should contact a dean who will coordinate the leave and subsequent readmission. Approvals for a medical leave of absence and the conditions associated with the leave will be provided in writing to the student by the dean. Readmission typically is dependent on the following:

1. Receipt of a letter from the student requesting formal readmission and summarizing the student's treatment and personal progress during his/her time away from Bowdoin.
2. Recommendation to the dean of student affairs from the Bowdoin College Health Center and/or Counseling Service in consultation with the student's attending physician and/or counselor. In preparation, the student should authorize the physician and/or counselor to release any information important to the Health Center and/or Counseling Service's evaluation.

While on medical leave, students may take courses with the permission of the dean of student affairs and as long as this does not interfere with their recovery and ability to return to Bowdoin. Once a student is readmitted, the Office of Student Records will send course information to his or her permanent address unless an alternative address has been provided. Students on medical leave will be ineligible for housing until after they have been readmitted; however there is no guarantee that College housing will be available at that time.

Students on medical leave are not considered enrolled at Bowdoin and are expected to leave the College community. Further, they are not permitted to visit campus without the written permission of the dean of student affairs. Generally, permission to visit campus is only granted for educational or health treatment purposes. Students are permitted to submit applications for Off-Campus Study (normal deadlines apply); however, they are not eligible to apply for RA, proctor, or house resident positions until readmitted. Students on medical leave retain financial aid eligibility if they adhere to College deadlines.

Involuntary Leave of Absence

In unusual circumstances, the dean of student affairs or his or her designee may place students on an involuntary leave of absence. A student who has any illness, behavior, or condition that might endanger or damage the health or welfare of the student or any other member of the college community; or whose illness, behavior, or condition is such that it cannot be effectively treated or managed while the student is a member of the college community, may be subject to an involuntary leave of absence for medical reasons.

Students unable to pay their college bills may be subject to an involuntary leave of absence for financial reasons.

Transfer of Credit from Other Institutions

The Bowdoin degree certifies that a student has completed a course of study that meets standards established by the faculty. It is normally expected that all of a student's coursework after matriculation will be completed either at Bowdoin or in an approved semester- or year-long off-campus study program. (More information about such programs can be found in the section on Off-Campus Study beginning on page 43.)

Apart from taking courses at Bowdoin or in approved off-campus study programs, the College recognizes that there may be rare occasions when it would serve a student's educational interests to take courses elsewhere for credit toward the Bowdoin degree. In such cases, the work done elsewhere should represent a standard of achievement comparable to what is expected at Bowdoin in a field of study characteristic of the liberal arts. The College does not grant credit for professional or vocational study at other institutions.

A student may transfer a cumulative total of no more than four credits from study in summer school programs. The College does not regularly grant credit for work completed through two-year institutions, correspondence, or Internet programs, or abbreviated winter terms ("Jan Plans"). Credit is not granted for courses taken elsewhere during the academic year except in special circumstances and with the prior approval of the Recording Committee.

Students must apply to the Office of Student Records for permission to transfer credit in advance of enrollment at another institution. The Application for Transfer of Credit requires the approval of the advisor and the appropriate Bowdoin department chair as well as the catalog description and syllabus of each course for which credit is desired. In certain cases, students may be given conditional approval and be required to submit supporting documents, including the course syllabus and all papers and exams, after the course has been completed. The advisor, department chair, or Recording Committee may decline to grant credit if the course or the student's work in the course does not satisfy Bowdoin academic standards. Credit is not awarded for courses in which the student has earned a grade below C- or for courses taken on a Credit/Fail basis.

No credit will be awarded until an official transcript showing the number of credits or credit-hours and the grade(s) earned has been received from the other institution. It is the student's responsibility to ensure that the transcript is sent directly to the Office of Student Records, and the transcript must arrive in a sealed envelope. The transcript must be received and permission to transfer credit secured within one year following the term in which the course was taken. Credit may not be transferred if a longer time period has elapsed.

Transcripts of credit earned at other institutions that have been presented to Bowdoin College for admission or transfer of credit become part of the student's permanent record, but are not issued, reissued, or copied for distribution. With the exception of courses taken through the Colby, Bates, and Bowdoin Consortium, course titles and grades for courses that were transferred from other institutions are not recorded on the Bowdoin transcript; credit only is listed.

Students should be aware that credits earned elsewhere may not transfer on a one-to-one basis; some courses may be accorded less (or more) than a full Bowdoin credit. Students are advised to consult with the Office of Student Records in advance to learn the basis on which transfer credit will be determined. For comparison purposes, students should know that one Bowdoin course is generally understood to be equal to four semester-hours or six quarter-hours.

Graduation.

Students must complete and submit to the Office of Student Records the Notice of Intent to Graduate by November 1 of the academic year in which they will graduate. Submission of this form begins the final degree audit process and ensures that students receive all notices related to Commencement. Students will generally receive written notice by May 1 that they have been given preliminary clearance to graduate. Final clearance is determined after final grades for the spring semester have been received and all academic work has been completed.

Students may take part in only one Commencement, and they are normally expected to complete all degree requirements before they participate in graduation exercises. Students with two or fewer credits remaining and who can expect to complete all requirements by the end of the following August may be allowed to participate in Commencement but will not receive a diploma. In such cases, the degree will actually be conferred at the May Commencement following the completion of all requirements, and the diploma will be mailed to the student at that time. Speakers at Commencement and other students playing visible leadership roles in the ceremony must have completed all requirements for graduation.

Resignation

Students may resign from Bowdoin at any time. Resignation permanently terminates the student's official relationship with the College. If a student were to decide at some future date to wish to return to Bowdoin, the student would need to reapply to the College through the regular admissions process as a transfer student. Applicants for readmission are reviewed on a case-by-case basis and should contact the transfer coordinator in the Admissions Office for further information. Given the permanency of resignation, students are encouraged to discuss their plans thoroughly with advisors, parents, and a dean.

A decision to resign should be submitted in writing using the Notification of Resignation Form, available in the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs.

Students should consult the Expenses section of this Catalogue for information about tuition and room and board refunds.

Statement of Student Responsibility

The College Catalogue is made available each year to every Bowdoin student. In all cases, the student bears ultimate responsibility for reading and following the academic policies and regulations of the College.

The Recording Committee and Student Petitions

The Recording Committee is a standing committee of the College whose purpose is to address matters pertaining to the academic standing of individual students and to consider exceptions to the policies and procedures governing academic life. The committee meets regularly to consider individual student petitions and meets at the end of each semester to review the records of students who are subject to suspension or dismissal. Decisions of the committee are final.

Students who are seeking exceptions to the academic regulations or curricular requirements must petition the Recording Committee. Petitions can be obtained from the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs. All petitions require the signature of a dean, and, depending of the nature of the request, some may require supporting documentation from a faculty member, doctor, or counselor. (A dean's signature on a petition signifies that the dean and student have discussed the petition and petition process; it does not necessarily mean that the dean approves of or supports the petition.) Students are notified of the outcome by a letter from the Recording Committee.

Academic Skills Programs

The Baldwin Center for Learning and Teaching

The Baldwin Center for Learning and Teaching opened in 1999–2000 with the mission of creating a space in which students, faculty, and staff members can address issues related to learning at Bowdoin College. Established through a gift to the College by Linda G. Baldwin '73, the center offers resources to help students attain their academic goals and faculty to enhance student learning.

Based on an individualized and holistic approach to learning, the center offers activities and services such as peer tutoring, study groups, and study skills workshops, as well as individual consultation with peer academic mentors. Mentors help fellow students assess their academic strengths and weaknesses and develop individually-tailored time management, organizational, and study strategies. Mentors may be particularly useful to students encountering difficulty balancing the academic and social demands of college life; struggling to find more effective approaches to understanding, learning, and remembering new material; experiencing problems with procrastination; or simply achieving the self-structuring demanded by an independent course or honors project.

In addition, the Baldwin Center provides a resource for faculty on teaching methods, pedagogical innovations, and student learning styles and needs. The director works with the Committee on Teaching and others to develop programs that support faculty members in their efforts to understand and improve learning in their classrooms.

Quantitative Skills Program

The ability to understand and use quantitative information is increasingly important in political and economic life. To be effective, citizens should be able to interpret graphs and tables, understand quantitative relationships, and draw conclusions from data. Many courses in science and social science use such skills, but some entering college students are not prepared to get the most from these courses. Begun in 1996–97, the Quantitative Skills Program encourages all Bowdoin students to develop competence and confidence in using quantitative information. Entering students are tested to assess their proficiency. Those who would benefit from additional work are counseled to take courses across the curriculum that build quantitative skills. Most of these courses are supplemented with small study groups led by trained peer tutors and coordinated by the Quantitative Skills Center. Workshops on special topics are also provided by request of instructors. One-on-one tutoring is available on a limited basis.

The Writing Project

The Writing Project is a peer tutoring program based on the premise that students are uniquely qualified to serve as educated but nonjudgmental readers of one another's writing. As collaborators rather than authorities, peer tutors facilitate the writing process for fellow students by providing helpful feedback while encouraging student writers to retain an active and authoritative role in writing and revising their work. Each semester, the Writing Project assigns specially selected and trained writing assistants to a variety of courses by request of the instructor. The assistants read and comment on early drafts of papers and meet with the writers individually to help them expand and refine their ideas, clarify connections, and improve sentence structure. After revisions have been completed, each student submits a final paper to the instructor along with the early draft and the assistant's comments. Student writers in any class may go through a similar process with writing assistants on a drop-in basis during evening hours in the Writing Project Workshops.

Students interested in becoming writing assistants apply before spring break. Those accepted enroll in a fall semester course on the theory and practice of teaching writing, offered through the Department of Education. Successful completion of the course qualifies students to serve as tutors in later semesters, when they receive a stipend for their work. A list of courses participating in the Project will be available during the first week of each semester. For further information, contact Kathleen O'Connor, director of the Writing Project, or visit the Writing Project Web site at http://academic.bowdoin.edu/writing_project.

Special Academic Programs

Arctic Studies

A concentration in Arctic studies, offered through the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, the Department of Geology, and the Peary-MacMillan Arctic Museum and Arctic Studies Center, provides students with opportunities to explore cultural, social, and environmental issues involving Arctic lands and peoples. Students interested in the Arctic are encouraged to consult with the director of the Arctic Studies Center in order to plan an appropriate interdisciplinary program, involving course work and field work at Bowdoin and in the North.

Engineering Programs (3-2 Option)

Through an arrangement with the School of Engineering and Applied Science of Columbia University and with the California Institute of Technology, qualified students may transfer into the third year of an engineering option after completing three years at Bowdoin. After the completion of two full years at the engineering school, a bachelor of arts degree is awarded by Bowdoin and a bachelor of science degree by the engineering school. Columbia also has a 4–2 plan, allowing students to complete their senior year at Bowdoin before pursuing a master's degree. Students also may apply as transfer students during their junior year to any approved school of engineering in the country. Dartmouth offers a number of options, including taking the junior year at the Dartmouth engineering program, senior year at Bowdoin, and fifth year at Dartmouth Thayer School of Engineering. Students should be aware that admission to these schools is not automatic and does not assure financial aid.

Students interested in engineering programs should start planning early and should consult regularly with Dale Syphers of the Department of Physics. All students must take Physics 103, 104, 223, 229, 300 or Mathematics 224; Chemistry 109; Mathematics 161, 171, and 181; and Computer Science 103 or 107. They are also expected to have at least ten semester courses outside of mathematics and science, one of which should be in economics.

First-Year Seminars

The purpose of the first-year seminar program is to introduce students to college-level disciplines and to lead students to understand the ways in which a specific discipline may relate to other areas in the humanities, social sciences, and sciences. Each seminar places an emphasis upon the improvement of students' skills—their ability to read texts effectively and to write prose that is carefully organized, concise, and firmly based upon evidence.

A complete listing of first-year seminars being offered in the 2003–2004 academic year can be found on pages 135–45.

Health Professions Advising

The Office of Health Professions Advising provides students and recent graduates information and guidance regarding a wide range of opportunities in health care. First-year students interested in the health professions are encouraged to attend an introductory meeting during orientation. The office sponsors panel discussions with health care providers, presentations by admissions officers, and a variety of workshops throughout the year to inform all students of their options and of the requirements for entry into each field. The director is available to meet with students in scheduled appointments. Assistance is offered with such issues as the selection of courses, the pursuit of relevant experience outside the classroom, and the application process.

Advisory networks of health care professionals in the Brunswick area and of alumni/ae in the health professions nationwide afford opportunity for career exploration, and the Health Professions Advising Web site contains links to many professional associations. A variety of books and directories are available in both the Office of Health Professions Advising and in the Career Planning Center. For further information, see the office's Web site at www.bowdoin.edu/healthprofessions.

Legal Studies

Students considering the study of law should consult with the Legal Studies Advisory Group and the Career Planning Center. Members of the Legal Studies Advisory Group include Richard E. Morgan and Allen L. Springer, Department of Government and Legal Studies; George S. Isaacson '70, Esq.; and Tricia Williamson, assistant director of the Career Planning Center. These individuals assist students in designing a coherent liberal arts program that relates to the study of law and allied fields, and provide guidance on all aspects of the application process.

Bowdoin participates with Columbia University in an accelerated interdisciplinary program in legal education. Under the terms of this program, Bowdoin students may apply to begin the study of law after three years at Bowdoin. Students who successfully complete the requirements for the J.D. at Columbia also receive an A.B. from Bowdoin.

Teaching

Students interested in teaching in schools or enrolling in graduate programs in education should discuss their plans with personnel in the Department of Education. Because courses in education and psychology, along with a major in a teaching field, are necessary for certification, it is wise to begin planning early so that schedules can be accommodated. (For information on a ninth semester option for student teaching, see page 112.) An extensive resource library in the Career Planning Center contains information about graduate programs, summer and academic year internships, volunteer opportunities with youth, and public and private school openings. Career advising and credential file services are also available.

Off-Campus Study

STUDENTS are encouraged to broaden and enrich their education through participation in semester- and year-long programs of off-campus study, both those administered by Colby, Bates, and Bowdoin Colleges (CBB), and those sponsored by other institutions and organizations. Whether off-campus study occurs abroad or in the United States, the College regards it as an extension of the on-campus educational experience and expects the courses in which students earn credit toward the degree to be in a field of study characteristic of the liberal arts and to be comparable in intellectual challenge to work done at Bowdoin.

A student who wishes to count academic credit earned in an off-campus study program toward the Bowdoin degree is required to obtain approval, in advance, from the Office of Off-Campus Study. If the student wishes to count credits earned in the program toward the major, the approval of the major department is required as well. Students contemplating off-campus study should consult Guidelines for Off-Campus Study distributed by the Office of Off-Campus Study; they are urged to begin planning early in the academic year before that in which they hope to study away, and must complete a request for permission to study away no later than March 1. (Application deadlines for individual programs vary considerably; it is the responsibility of the student to determine these deadlines and ensure that they are met.) To be approved for Bowdoin degree credit, the proposed program of study away should satisfy the College's academic standards and form an integral part of a student's overall academic plan. Approval of individual requests may also be affected by the College's concern to maintain a balance between the number of students away during the fall and spring terms.

Students are expected to carry a full course-load in any off-campus study program. Credit earned is not formally transferred until the Office of Student Records has received and reviewed appropriate documentation from the program. In some cases, it may be required that the appropriate Bowdoin department review the student's completed work.

Bowdoin charges an off-campus study fee (see page 21). Financial aid normally continues to be available for students who qualify.

Depending on their academic needs, students normally are expected to select from the approved list of approximately 100 programs and universities kept by the Office of Off-Campus Study. See below for information on approved programs in which Bowdoin students participate by special arrangement with the sponsoring institutions. Students are particularly encouraged to participate in Colby-Bates-Bowdoin programs with offerings in their major or other areas of interest.

Colby-Bates-Bowdoin (CBB) Off-Campus Study Programs

Bowdoin offers, in conjunction with Colby and Bates Colleges, programs that particularly emphasize the integration of study abroad into the curriculum. There are CBB centers in Ecuador, South Africa, and the United Kingdom. Courses in these programs are taught by CBB faculty members and host-country instructors, and are designed to make full use of the educational and cultural resources of the region. For a description of courses offered on CBB programs in Cape Town, London, and Quito, see pages 92–100.

American University Washington Semester Program

The Washington Semester Program, based on American University's Tenley campus in Washington, D.C., offers semesters on several topics, including American Politics (National Government and Public Law), Economic Policy, Foreign Policy, International Environment and Development, Justice, and Peace and Conflict Resolution. Courses are taught by American University faculty. Students who wish to apply must be nominated by Bowdoin's program representative, Janet Martin, in the Department of Government and Legal Studies.

Hamilton College Junior Year in France

The Hamilton College Junior Year in France offers a combination of courses in the various institutes and divisions of the University of Paris and in-house courses taken with students of the program. Hamilton College French professors direct the full-year program on a rotating basis.

Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome

The Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies (ICCS) in Rome provides undergraduates with an opportunity to study Roman art, archaeology, and history, as well as Greek and Roman literature, Italian language, and Renaissance and baroque Italian art. Under a consortial arrangement managed by Duke University, ICCS operates two semesters each academic year; students generally enroll for one semester during their junior year.

Institute for the International Education of Students (IES)

IES operates semester and full-year programs in several foreign countries, with courses in the humanities, languages, social sciences, natural sciences, mathematics, and fine arts. In most cases, IES offers a combination of classes taught expressly for Institute students and regular course offerings at a local partner university. IES programs approved for participating Bowdoin students include those in Buenos Aires (Argentina), Vienna (Austria), Nantes (France), Berlin and Freiburg (Germany), Milan (Italy), Nagoya (Japan), and Madrid and Salamanca (Spain).

Intercollegiate Sri Lanka Education (ISLE) Program

The ISLE Program, in Kandy, Sri Lanka, is a consortial program affiliated with the University of Peradeniya, and for which Bowdoin is the agency college. ISLE provides up to twenty-four students with the opportunity to pursue academic interests in South Asia. Course offerings include required language study, archaeology, ancient and modern history, Buddhist philosophy and practice, social and gender issues, literature and folklore, politics and government, economics, environmental studies, dance, and independent study. Students live with Sri Lankan host families and tour important archaeological and religious sites.

Marine Biological Laboratory: Semester in Environmental Science

The Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole, Massachusetts, offers the Semester in Environmental Science Program each fall at its ecological research arm, the Ecosystems Center. Two core lecture and laboratory courses, Aquatic Ecosystems and Terrestrial Ecosystems, present basic ecological systems and processes. Students also participate in one of several electives. Students use the skills learned throughout the semester to develop and conduct independent team research projects.

South India Term Abroad (SITA) Program

The SITA Program operates in Tamil Nadu, India. Designed primarily for non-South Asia specialists, SITA offers fall and spring programs, with courses in language, history, religion, literature, social and cultural issues, and independent study. Participants live with host families and tour several regions in South India.

The St. Petersburg/Nevisky Institute Program

The St. Petersburg Program, based at the Nevisky Institute, St. Petersburg, Russia, offers courses in Russian language and culture in the spring semester of 2004. Two courses are taught by staff of the Nevisky Institute, and two by an accompanying Bowdoin professor. Courses are supplemented by homestay accommodation and by excursions to cultural and historical sites in St. Petersburg and elsewhere in Russia.

The Swedish Program

The Swedish Program is sponsored by the University of Stockholm and a consortium of American colleges and universities, including Bowdoin. It offers students the opportunity to spend either a semester or a year studying comparative institutional organization and public policy in complex industrial societies. Most courses are interdisciplinary in nature. The only required course is a semester of Swedish language, but nearly all students take The Swedish Model and Comparative Public Policy. Other courses offered typically include Women and Swedish Society, Swedish and European Film, Politics and Nationalism in Eastern Europe, and Environmental Policy: A Sustainable Baltic Region.

Twelve College Exchange

The Twelve College Exchange provides Bowdoin students with the opportunity to study for a year at Amherst, Connecticut, Dartmouth, Mount Holyoke, Smith, Trinity, Vassar, Wellesley, Wheaton, or Williams Colleges or Wesleyan University. Also available through the Twelve College Exchange are the Williams College–Mystic Seaport Program in American Maritime Studies and the National Theater Institute.

Courses of Instruction

THE DEPARTMENTS OF INSTRUCTION in the following descriptions of courses are listed in alphabetical order. A schedule containing the time and place of meeting of all courses will be issued before each period of registration.

EXPLANATION OF SYMBOLS USED

[Bracketed Courses]: Courses that are not currently scheduled for a definite semester, but which have been offered within the past two consecutive years, are enclosed in brackets.

* On leave for the fall semester.

 On leave for the spring semester.

† On leave for the entire academic year.

a: Satisfies one semester of the distribution requirement for natural science and mathematics.

b: Satisfies one semester of the distribution requirement for social and behavioral sciences.

c: Satisfies one semester of the distribution requirement for humanities and fine arts.

d: Satisfies one semester of the distribution requirement for non-Eurocentric studies.

Note: A few courses have no letter designation. These courses may count toward graduation requirements, but do not meet distribution requirements.

Prerequisites: Indicates conditions that must be met in order to enroll in the course.

Course Numbering. Courses are numbered according to the following system:

10–29	First-year seminars
30–99	Courses intended for the nonmajor

Africana studies is an interdisciplinary program designed to bring the scholarly approaches and perspectives of several traditional disciplines to bear on an understanding of black life. Emphasis is placed on the examination of the rich and varied cultures, literature, and history of black people in Africa and in the African diaspora, including the United States, the Caribbean, and Latin America. Such a systematic interdisciplinary approach captures the historic, multifaceted quality of African-American scholarship and allows the student to integrate effectively the perspectives of several academic departments at the College.

Requirements for the Major in Africana Studies

The major in Africana studies consists of five required core courses, a concentration of four additional courses, and a one-semester research project, for a total of ten courses. The core courses—Africana Studies 101, 102, or 103; Sociology 208; English 275, 276, or 278; History 236, 237, or 243; and History 262 or 267—have been chosen to give the student a thorough background for the study of the black experience and to provide an introduction to the varied disciplines of Africana studies. The four-course concentration is intended to bring the methodologies and insights of several disciplines to a single problem or theme. Suggested concentrations are Race and Class in American Society, Cultures of the African Diaspora, Political Economy of Blacks in the Third World, and the Arts of Black America. Appropriate courses to be taken should be worked out by the student and the director of the Africana Studies Program. No more than one sub-100 level course may count toward the major. Neither courses taken Credit/Fail, nor courses in which the student receives a grade of D are accepted for the major.

In addition, the research project, normally completed in the senior year, allows students to conduct research into a particular aspect of the black experience. Students may complete their research project as part of a 300-level course, or as an independent study under the direction of one of the program's faculty. Students should consult with the director concerning courses offered in previous years that may satisfy the program requirements.

Requirements for the Minor in Africana Studies

The minor in Africana Studies will consist of five courses in the Africana Studies program, one of which will be an introductory course (either Africana Studies 101, 102 or 103) and one of which will be a research course (either a 300-level seminar or an independent study) as a capstone course. In order to ensure that the minor will be multidisciplinary, no more than three of the courses can be from the same department.

First-Year Seminars

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

10b,d. Racism. Fall 2003. MR. PARTRIDGE.

(Same as Sociology 10.)

12c,d. Representation and Resistance: African American Film and Literature. Fall 2003. MS. MUTHER.

(Same as English 12.)

13b. Race and Representation. Fall 2003. MR. MAPPS.

(Same as Government 113.)

16c,d. Black Heroes in American Literature. Fall 2003. MS. CHAKKALAKAL.

(Same as English 16.)

17c,d. “Black Is Black Ain’t”: Visuality and Ethnicity. Spring 2004. MS. MCGEE.

(Same as Art History 17.)

21c,d. The Harlem Renaissance. Spring 2004. MR. COVIELLO.

(Same as English 21.)

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

51c,d. Myth and Heroic Epic of Africa. Spring 2004. MR. HODGE.

A study of the pantheons and tales of gods and heroes from a range of geographical areas and language groups of sub-Saharan Africa. The tales are analyzed for form and content, with some comparisons to relevant classical and European material.

[101c,d. Approaches to Africana Studies.]

102c,d. The Black Atlantic World. Spring 2005. MR. STAKEMAN.

During the four centuries of the Atlantic slave trade, some fifteen to twenty million Africans were landed in the New World. From these Africans grew large black populations and African American cultures that continue to this day. Topics include New World cultural adaptation in religion (Voudon, Santeria, Afro Christianity) and music (spirituals, blues, jazz, reggae, and hip hop); political ideas and movements (back to Africa, pan-Africanism, anti-colonialism, and black power); and literature (Harlem Renaissance/New Negro, negritude, 1960s Black Renaissance, post-colonial black world literature). (Same as History 162.)

103b. Introduction to the Politics of African Americans in the United States. Fall 2003. MR. MAPPS.

Examines theories of race, historical perspectives on race in America, black political thought and public opinion, black political participation, and contemporary issues in black politics. Concludes with a set of readings that encourages students to think about the future of racial politics in the United States. (Same as Government 212.)

121c. History of Jazz I. Every other year. Fall 2004. MR. MCCALLA.

A survey of jazz’s development from its African American roots in the late nineteenth century through the Swing Era of the 1930s and 1940s, and following the great Swing artists—e.g., Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, and Benny Goodman—through their later careers. Emphasis on musical elements, but much attention to cultural and historical context through readings and videos. (Same as Music 121.)

122c. History of Jazz II. Every other year. Fall 2003. MR. McCALLA.

A survey of jazz's development from the creation of bebop in the 1940s through the present day, e.g., from Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie through such artists as Joshua Redman, Myra Melford, and the Art Ensemble of Chicago. Emphasis on musical elements, but much attention to cultural and historical context through readings and videos. (Same as Music 122.)

138c,d. Music of the Caribbean. Fall 2003. Ms. BOSSE.

Surveys various musical traditions of the Caribbean, paying attention to the relation between sociohistorical context and artistic practice. Organized by geographic region, but addresses such larger issues as colonialism, nationalism, race, gender, and class. (Same as Music 138.)

139c. The Civil War Era. Fall 2004. MR. RAEL.

Examines the coming of the Civil War and the war itself in all its aspects. Considers the impact of changes in American society on the coming of the war, the sectional crisis and breakdown of the party system, the practice of Civil War warfare, and social ramifications of the conflict. Includes readings of novels and viewing of films. Students are expected to enter with a basic knowledge of American history, and a commitment to participating in large class discussions. (Same as History 139.)

206b. Media Representations of Reality. Fall 2004. MR. JOHNSON.

Examines social forces that contribute to mass-media representations of race, social class, gender, and sexual preference in historical and contemporary America. Focuses on the roles of government, corporations, and media professionals in the creation of news, entertainment programming, and advertising. Considers the nature of objectivity and fairness, internalization of imagery, the corrective potential of media-workplace diversity, distinctions between reality and stereotype, and tension between free-market economics and social responsibility. (Same as Sociology 206.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or permission of the instructor.

208b,d. Race and Ethnicity. Fall 2003. Ms. LOHMAN.

The social and cultural meaning of race and ethnicity, with emphasis on the politics of events and processes in contemporary America. Analysis of the causes and consequences of prejudice and discrimination. Examination of the relationships between race and class. Comparisons among racial and ethnic minorities in the United States and between their situations and those of minorities in other selected societies. (Same as Sociology 208.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or permission of the instructor.

213b. Race, Inequality, and Social Policy. Spring 2004. MR. MAPPS.

Explores the causes, consequences, and possible solutions to economic inequality in the United States. The persistence of poverty in the United States, one of the richest nations in the history of the world, is both puzzling and troubling. Political and social equality are central tenets of the American creed, yet American society is starkly divided along economic lines. In recent decades, the economic gap between rich and poor has grown, by some measures reaching its widest extent since World War II. The profile of poverty is also changing. Increasingly, women, young people, and racial minorities are over-represented among the poor. A wide variety of readings provides historical perspectives to explain these trends, while other material presents social scientific explanations of the causes and consequences of poverty. Encourages students to formulate their own ideas about the causes of and solutions to economic inequality in the United States. (Same as Government 213.)

217b,d. Overcoming Racism. Spring 2004. MR. PARTRIDGE.

Explores and critiques a variety of proposed solutions for healing racism in the United States. A working definition of racism is developed through a careful examination of the social structures that support the continuance of racism and discrimination based on race in the United States. The dominant/subordinate relationships of European Americans with African Americans, Latino/a Americans, Native Americans, and Asian Americans are reviewed. (Same as Sociology 217.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 10 or 101, or Anthropology 101.

230c. Jazz on Film. Spring 2004. MR. MCCALLA.

Studies the depictions of jazz musicians on film, including concert performances, documentaries, film biographies, narrative shorts, and full-length fictional narratives. Coursework includes both viewings and readings about the various films' topics and the issues they raise. (Same as Music 230.)

Prerequisite: Music 121 or 122.

233b,d. Peoples and Cultures of Africa. Spring 2005. MR. MACEACHERN.

Introduction to the traditional patterns of livelihood and social institutions of African peoples. Following a brief overview of African geography, habitat, and cultural history, lectures and readings cover a representative range of types of economy, polity, and social organization, from the smallest hunting and gathering societies to the most complex states and empires. Emphasis upon understanding the nature of traditional social forms; changes in African societies in the colonial and post-colonial periods are examined, but are not the principal focus of the course. (Same as Anthropology 233.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology.

[234c,d. Comparative Slavery.]236c,d. The History of African Americans, 1619–1865. Spring 2005. MR. RAEL.

Examines the history of African Americans from the origins of slavery in America through the death of slavery during the Civil War. Explores a wide range of topics, including the Old World contexts to slavery in North America, the Atlantic slave trade, the emergence of plantation society, control and resistance on the plantation, the culture and family structure of enslaved African Americans, free black communities, and finally, the coming of the Civil War and the death of slavery. Sources include important slave narratives and several films. (Same as History 236.)

237c,d. The History of African Americans from 1865 to the Present. Fall 2003. MR. RAEL.

Explores the history of African Americans from the end of the Civil War to the present. Issues include the promises and failures of Reconstruction, the Jim Crow era, black leadership and protest institutions, African American cultural styles, industrialization and urbanization, the world wars, the Civil Rights Movement, and conservative retrenchment. Throughout, emphasis is placed on recovering the voices of African Americans through primary sources. (Same as History 237.)

[238c,d. Reconstruction.][241c. The Civil Rights Movement.]*245c. Bearing the Untold Story: Gender, Race, and Ethnicity in the United States. Fall 2003. MS. SCANLON.

Women of color are often ignored or pushed to the margins. There is a cost to that absence, obviously, for women of color. As Zora Neale Hurston put it, "There is no agony like bearing an untold story inside you." There is also a cost to those who are not women of color, as women of color are encountered as objects, rather than subjects. Addresses the gaps and explores the histories and contemporary issues affecting women of color and their ethnic/racial communities in the United States. (Same as History 245 and Women's Studies 245.)

256b,d. African Archaeology: The Roots of Humanity. Spring 2004. MR. MACEachern.

Examines the prehistory of Africa since the appearance of modern humans on that continent about 100,000 years ago. Particular attention is paid to changes in African economies and social systems through time. Topics include the cultural development of modern humans in Africa; the beginnings of agriculture in different parts of the continent; state formation processes in sub-Saharan Africa; and the coordination of ethnographic, linguistic, and archaeological data in research. (Same as Anthropology 256.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102, or permission of the instructor.

262c,d. Slavery and the Slave Trade in Pre-Colonial Africa. Fall 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of slavery within Africa, the slave trade on the African continent, and African connections to the intercontinental slave trade to the New World. Investigates the role of slavery in the African societies, the influence of Islam on slavery, the conduct and economic role of the slave trade, and the social, political, and economic effects of slavery and the slave trade on African states and societies. (Same as History 262.)

264c,d. Islamic Societies in Africa. Spring 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of Islam as a theological system and as an ideology that orders social relations in some African societies. The course places particular emphasis on the role of women in African Islamic societies. (Same as History 264 and Women's Studies 264.)

[265c,d. The Political Economy of South Africa.]266c,d. African History to 1850. Spring 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of broad themes in sub-Saharan Africa from several centuries B.C.E. to about 1850. Topics include pastoral and agricultural societies; the expansion of "Bantu" speakers; the emergence of medieval states and regional and intercontinental trading systems; European coastal trade, the rise of the slave trade, and the impact of the slave trade on African societies; as well as the underdevelopment of Africa. (Same as History 266.)

267c,d. Africa Since 1850. Fall 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of the most important events of the past 150 years that have shaped today's Africa. Topics include the East African slave trade and the end of slavery in Africa, Islamic jihads and states, European conquest and forms of resistance and collaboration, the nature of colonial rule, the emergence of cash cropping and (forced) migrant labor, African nationalism and "flag" independence, the rise and fall of Apartheid, and the political troubles of post-independence Africa. (Same as History 267.)

271c,d. Returning the Gaze: Issues in Black Photography. Spring 2004. MS. MCGEE.

An examination of issues, ideas, and creativity with respect to African American photography from the nineteenth century to the present day. An introduction to the history of blacks as subjects, producers, and theorists of photography. Topics range from portraiture and documentary photography to considerations of race and representation, black consciousness, strategies of resistance and identity formation, class, sex, and gender. Comparative studies with artists of African descent are also included. (Same as Art History 271.)

275c,d. African American Fiction: Counterhistories. Every year. Fall 2003. MS. MUTHER.

Novels, short stories, and personal histories since 1850. Focuses on strategies of cultural survival as mapped in narrative form—with a special interest in framing structures and trickster storytellers, alternative temporalities, and double-voicing. Authors include Douglass, Brown, Jacobs, Chesnut, Dunbar, Hurston, West, Wright, Morrison, Bambara, Meriwether, Gaines, Wideman, Walker, Delany, and Butler. (Same as English 275.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English, Africana Studies, or Women's Studies.

[276c,d. African American Poetry.]

277c. Topics in Nineteenth-Century American Literature: Empire of Feeling. Spring 2004. MR. COVIELLO.

A study of the relations between sentiment and belonging across the American nineteenth century. Considers both how a language of impassioned feeling promised to consolidate a nation often bitterly divided, and some of the problems with that promise. At the center of the course will be a reading of Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin. Other authors may include Jefferson, Wheatley, Melville, Hawthorne, Wilson, Harper, and Du Bois. (Same as English 277.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department and in Africana Studies.

278c,d. Black Literary Texts in the Eighteenth Century. Spring 2004. MS. CHAKKALAKAL.

Examines eighteenth-century African American and African British writings that uniquely underscore the meditative function of race between literature's historical role as a tool for moral instruction and certain social conditions (namely slavery) that profoundly complicate that role. Examines the relationship between Black literary texts of the eighteenth century and the rhetoric of Enlightenment humanism in which many of them were immersed. The Black literary text in this context refers to published works written or "related" by Africans formerly enslaved in England, America, or the British West Indies in the late eighteenth century. Explores the rhetorical practices employed in the argument against slavery and racial prejudice that has since become foundational in our conception of other literary and nonliterary discourses. Readings include the published works of James Albert Ukawsaw Gronniosaw, A Narrative of the Most Remarkable Particulars in the Life of James Albert Ukawsaw Gronniosaw, An African Prince. Related by Himself (1770), Quobna Ottobah Cugoana, Thoughts and Sentiments on the Evil of Slavery (1787), Ignatius Sancho's epistolary collection, Letters of the Late Ignatius Sancho (1782), Olaudah Equiano's The Interesting Narrative of the Life of Olaudah Equiano, or Gustavus Vassa, the African. Written by Himself (1789), Mary Prince's The History of Mary Prince (1831), and the poetry of Phillis Wheatley (1774). (Same as English 278.)

Prerequisites: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department or Africana Studies.

280b. Race, Biology, and Anthropology. Fall 2005. MR. MACÉACHERN.

Critically examines the biological justifications used to partition humanity into racial groups. Investigates the nature of biological and genetic variability within and between human populations, as well as the characteristics of human biological races as they have traditionally been defined. Considers whether race models do a good job of describing how human populations vary across the earth. Critically appraises works by a variety of authors, including Phillippe Rushton, Charles Murray, and Michael Levin, who claim that racial identity and evolution work together to structure the history and the potentials of human groups in different parts of the world. (Same as Anthropology 280.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102, or Sociology 101, or permission of the instructor.

336c,d. Research in Nineteenth-Century United States History. Spring 2004. MR. RAEL.

A research course for majors and interested non-majors that culminates in a single 25-30 page research paper. Students may choose any topic in Civil War or African-American history, broadly defined. This is a special opportunity to delve into Bowdoin's rich collections of primary source documents. (Same as History 336.)

Prerequisite: One previous course in United States history.

342c,d. African American Literary Criticism and Theory. Spring 2004. Ms. CHAKKALAKAL.

Beginning with Alain Locke's "The New Negro," students are introduced to some of the overarching issues and themes of African American literary criticism in the twentieth century. Moving through four historical periods—the Harlem Renaissance, the Protest Era, the Black Arts Movement, and Postmodernism—investigates the critical methods and strategies through which an African American literature and collectivity have been formed. Moves through these periods with readings of the critical work of W. E. B. Du Bois, Jessie Fauset, Zora Neale Hurston, Sterling Brown, Richard Wright, James Baldwin, Ralph Ellison, Stephen Henderson, Barbara Smith, Barbara Johnson, Toni Morrison, Henry Louis Gates, Jr., Sherley Anne Williams, Stuart Hall, and Paul Gilroy. Asks a set of practical questions: What is the relationship between sociopolitical criticism and literary history? Should Afrocentric ideology govern the theoretical and critical examination of African American literature? What role does literature play in shaping contemporary debates about the social construction of political realities of race and gender? What is the nature of the relationship between American and African American literary history? More broadly, what is the relationship between African Americans and members of the larger African diaspora? (Same as English 342.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English or Africana Studies.

291–294. Intermediate Independent Study.401–404. Advanced Independent Study and Honors.

The Department of Art comprises two programs: art history and criticism, and visual arts. Majors in the department are expected to elect one of these programs. The major in art history and criticism is devoted primarily to the historical and critical study of the visual arts as an embodiment of some of humanity's cultural values and a record of the historical interplay of sensibility, thought, and society. The major in visual arts is intended to encourage a sensitive development of perceptual, creative, and critical abilities in visual expression.

Requirements for the Major in Art History and Criticism

The art history major consists of ten courses, excluding first-year seminars. Required are Art History 101; one non-Eurocentric course numbered 110 or higher; one from Art History 209, 210, 212, 213, 214, 215, 226; one from Art History 222, 224, or 232; one from Art History 240, 241, 242, 252, 254, 262, or 264; one additional 200-level course; two 300-level seminars; and two additional art history courses numbered above 101, one of which may be an independent study. Art history majors are also encouraged to take courses in foreign languages and literature, history, philosophy, religion, and the other arts.

Interdisciplinary Majors

The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in art history and archaeology and in art history and visual arts. See page 177.

Requirements for the Minor in Art History and Criticism

The minor consists of five courses, excluding first-year seminars. Required courses are Art History 101; two 200-level courses; one 300-level course; and one additional art history course numbered above 101.

The major and the minor in visual arts are described on page 58.

COURSES IN THE HISTORY AND CRITICISM OF ARTFirst-Year Seminars

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

10c. The Art of Winslow Homer. Spring 2004. Ms. DOCHERTY.

14c,d. Life and Afterlife: Art and Archaeology of Ancient China. Fall 2003.
Ms. LEE.

(Same as Asian Studies 14.)

15c. Art Works, Artists, and Audiences. Spring 2004. Mr. PERKINSON.

(Same as Africana Studies 17.)

18c. Picturing an Exhibition: Art and the Life of a Renaissance Adolescent. Fall 2003.
Ms. WEGNER.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

50c. Art, Science, and the Mind. Spring 2004. Mr. OLDS.

Examines the interrelationship of art and science in the context of intellectual history, with an emphasis on modes of perception and representation. Topics include astrology and cosmology, optics and perspective, photography and print media, medicine and anatomy, the voyages of discovery, Darwinian evolution and theoretical physics. These and other developments in the sciences are related to the art of the ancient Greeks and Romans, the medieval cathedral builders, Leonardo da Vinci, Jan Vermeer, the French Impressionists, and Picasso. Assumes no advanced knowledge of art history or the sciences.

101c. Introduction to Western Art. Fall 2003. Ms. FLETCHER.

A chronological survey of the art of the Western world (Egypt, the Near East, Europe, and the European-based culture of North America), from the Paleolithic period of prehistoric Europe to the present. Considers the historical context of art and its production, the role of the artist in society, style and the problems of stylistic tradition and innovation, and the major themes and symbols of Western art. Required of majors and minors in art history and visual arts. This course is a prerequisite for most upper-level courses in the history of art.

130c,d. Introduction to Art from Ancient Mexico and Peru. Spring 2004. Ms. WEGNER.

A chronological survey of the arts created by major cultures of ancient Mexico and Peru. Mesoamerican cultures studied include the Olmec, Teotihuacan, the Maya, and the Aztec up through the arrival of the Europeans. South American cultures such as Chavín, Nasca, and Inca are examined. Painting, sculpture, and architecture are considered in the context of religion and society. Readings in translation include Mayan myth and chronicles of the conquest.

140c,d. Monuments of Asian Art and Architecture. Spring 2004. Ms. LEE.

Addresses the question of what constitutes a monument in Asia by examining a limited number of major works of art and architecture, including tombs, temples, sculpture, ritual vessels, and landscape painting. Explores monuments in the context of historical developments and major religions of Asia. (Same as Asian Studies 140.)

209c. Introduction to Greek Archaeology. Fall 2003. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

Introduces the techniques and methods of classical archaeology as revealed through an examination of Greek material culture. Emphasis upon the major monuments and artifacts of the Greek world from prehistory to the Hellenistic age. Architecture, sculpture, fresco painting, and other “minor arts” are examined at such sites as Knossos, Mycenae, Athens, Delphi, and Olympia. Considers the nature of this archaeological evidence and the relationship of classical archaeology to other disciplines such as art history, history, and classics. Assigned reading supplements illustrated presentations of the major archaeological finds of the Greek world. (Same as Archaeology 101.)

210c. Introduction to Roman Archaeology. Fall 2004. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

Surveys the material culture of Roman society, from Italy’s prehistory and the origins of the Roman state through its development into a cosmopolitan empire, and concludes with the fundamental reorganization during the late third and early fourth centuries of our era. Lectures explore ancient sites such as Rome, Pompeii, Athens, Ephesus, and others around the Mediterranean. Emphasis upon the major monuments and artifacts of the Roman era: architecture, sculpture, fresco painting, and other “minor arts.” Considers the nature of this archaeological evidence and the relationship of classical archaeology to other disciplines such as art history, history, and classics. Assigned reading supplements illustrated presentations of the major archaeological finds of the Roman world. (Same as Archaeology 102.)

213c. Early Medieval and Byzantine Art. Every other year. Fall 2004. MR. PERKINSON.

Investigates the most significant works of art created in western Europe and the Byzantine east from the early fourth century through the year 1000. Focuses in each class meeting on a single monument or small group of monuments in light of the key issues involved in its production. Topics to be addressed include: art and Christianity under the late Roman Empire; the luxury arts of the “barbarian” tribes; illuminated manuscripts and the spread of Christianity; the development of new forms of church architecture in Byzantium and western Europe; Charlemagne and the re-invention of imperial art; the iconoclastic controversy in the east; western European distinctions between devotion and idolatry; and the renewal of interest in large-scale sculptural projects.

214c. Romanesque and Gothic Art. Fall 2003. MR. PERKINSON.

Introduces students to art produced in Europe from the eleventh through the fourteenth centuries. Following a general chronological sequence, investigates the key artistic monuments of this period in a variety of media, including architecture, painting, manuscript illumination, stained glass, sculpture, and the decorative arts. Explores a particular theme in each class meeting through the close analysis of a single monument or closely related set of monuments. Provides students with a conceptual framework that will allow them to interpret both the monuments addressed in class as well as those that they may encounter in their future studies.

215c. Illuminated Manuscripts and Early Printed Books. Spring 2004. MR. PERKINSON.

Surveys the history of the decorated book from late antiquity through the Renaissance, beginning with an exploration of the earliest surviving illuminated manuscripts in light of the late antique culture that produced them. Examines uses of books in the early Middle Ages to convert viewers to Christianity or to establish political power. Traces the rise of book professionals (scribes, illuminators, binders, etc.) as manuscript production moved from monastic to urban centers, and concludes with an investigation of the impact of the invention of printing on art and society in the fifteenth century, and on the “afterlife” of manuscript culture into the sixteenth century. Themes to be discussed include the effect of the gender of a book’s anticipated audience on its decoration; the respective roles of author, scribes, and illuminators in designing a manuscript’s decorative program; and the ways that images can shape a reader’s understanding of a text. Makes use of the Bowdoin Library’s collection of manuscripts and early printed books.

220c,d. Other Modernisms: Art in Twentieth-Century China. Fall 2003. MS. LEE.

Examines the multitude of visual expressions Chinese artists adopted, re-fashioned, and rejected during the political struggles of the twentieth century, from the May Fourth Movement of 1919 through the Cultural Revolution (1966–76) and (almost) to the present day. Major themes include the tension between identity and modernity, the relationship between art and politics, and the impact of globalization and an international art market. (Same as Asian Studies 220.)

Prerequisite: Art History 101 or 110 or permission of the instructor.

222c. Art of the Italian Renaissance. Fall 2003. MS. WEGNER.

A survey of the painting, sculpture, and architecture of Italy in the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth centuries, with emphasis on major masters: Giotto, Masaccio, Donatello, Brunelleschi, Alberti, Botticelli, Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Titian, and Michelangelo.

Prerequisite: Art History 101 or permission of the instructor.

[224c. Mannerism.][226c. Northern European Art of the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Centuries.]*232c. Art in the Age of Velázquez, Rembrandt, and Caravaggio. Spring 2004. MS. WEGNER.

The art of seventeenth-century Europe. Topics include the revolution in painting carried out by Caravaggio, Annibale Carracci, and their followers in Rome; the development of these trends in the works of Rubens, Bernini, Georges de la Tour, Poussin, and others; and the rise of an independent school of painting in Holland. Connections between art, religious ideas, and political conditions are stressed.

Prerequisite: Art History 101 or permission of the instructor.

242c. Nineteenth-Century European Art. Spring 2004. MS. DOCHERTY.

Painting and sculpture in Western Europe from 1750 to 1900 with emphasis on France, England, and Germany. Individual artists are studied in the context of movements that dominated the century: neoclassicism, romanticism, realism, impressionism, post-impressionism, and symbolism. The influence of art criticism, the relationship between art and society, and the emergence of the avant-garde in this period are also discussed.

Prerequisite: Art 101 or permission of the instructor.

251c. Victorian Art. Spring 2004. MS. FLETCHER.

The art of Victorian Britain. Topics include the relationship of art and literature in the work of the Pre-Raphaelites, the moralizing function of Victorian narrative painting, classicism in the work of Leighton and Alma-Tadema, and Aestheticism. Special attention is paid to the exhibition of culture and art criticism of the period.

[252c. Modern Art.]

254c. Contemporary Art. Spring 2004. Ms. FLETCHER.

Art of Europe and the Americas since World War II, with emphasis on the New York school. Introductory overview of modernism. Detailed examination of abstract expressionism and minimalist developments; pop, op, kinetic, conceptual, and environmental art; and European abstraction. Concludes with an examination of the international consequences of modernist and contemporary developments, the impact of new electronic and technological media, and the critical debate surrounding the subject of postmodernism.

Prerequisite: Art History 101, 252, or permission of the instructor.

[256c. Women and Art in Western Europe and the United States: From Renaissance to Present.]

[262c. American Art from the Colonial Period to the Civil War.]

264c. American Art II: Civil War to 1945. Fall 2003. Ms. DOCHERTY.

American architecture, sculpture, and painting between the Civil War and World War II. Issues considered include the expatriation of American painters after the Civil War, the introduction of European modernism to the United States, the pioneering achievements of American architects and photographers, and the continuing tension between native and cosmopolitan forms of cultural expression. Field trips to the Bowdoin College Museum of Art.

[268c. Photography and Identity.]

271c,d. Returning the Gaze: Issues in Black Photography. Spring 2004. Ms. MCGEE.

An examination of issues, ideas, and creativity with respect to African American photography from the nineteenth century to the present day. An introduction to the history of blacks as subjects, producers, and theorists of photography. Topics range from portraiture and documentary photography to considerations of race and representation, black consciousness, strategies of resistance and identity formation, class, sex, and gender. Comparative studies with artists of African descent are also included. (Same as Africana Studies 271.)

Seminars in Art History

The seminars are intended to utilize the scholarly interests of members of the department and provide an opportunity for advanced work for selected students who have successfully completed enough of the regular courses to possess a sufficient background. Admittance to all seminars requires permission of the instructor. The department does not expect to give all, or in some cases any, seminars in each semester. As the seminars are varied, a given topic may be offered only once, or its form changed considerably from time to time.

310c,d. The Art of Zen. Spring 2004. MR. OLDS.

Examines the influence of Chan or Zen Buddhism on the art of China and Japan, including painting, architecture, garden design, and the tea ceremony. (Same as Asian Studies 310.)

316c. Reality: The Construction and Pre-History of an Illusion. Fall 2003. MR. DENERY AND MR. PERKINSON.

What makes one picture more accurate than another? Why do we think a photograph is an almost perfect representation of the world? This co-taught course employs methods from two distinct disciplines of research (history and art history) to explore the origins of modern conceptions of "reality" (naturalism and perspective in art, the rise of science) in late medieval and early modern society. Through an examination of a variety of art works and written sources (popular, religious, political and scientific), investigates why people decided that certain sorts of images and ways of thinking about the world were "true." (Same as History 200.)

321c,d. Propaganda and Protest: Art of China's Empires and Their Opponents. Spring 2004. Ms. LEE.

Explores how art and architecture have been used by China's imperial and modern leaders to articulate their political agenda, on the one hand, and by the many dissidents of those regimes to express their criticism and opposition, on the other hand. Focuses on the following historical moments: the Song dynasty (960-1279), the Ming-Qing transition (seventeenth to eighteenth century), and the People's Republic of China (1949 to the present). Emphasizes how specific images and buildings display the values of good government and how dissident artists encode potentially treasonous messages in order to escape detection and censorship. (Same as Asian Studies 321.)

Prerequisite: Art History 101, 110, 140 or permission of the instructor.

354c. Matisse and Picasso. Fall 2003. Ms. FLETCHER.

Examines the art of Henri Matisse and Pablo Picasso, in the context of modern painting, philosophy and history. Particular attention will be paid to the creative exchanges and rivalries between the two painters.

[356c. The Body in Contemporary Art.]

363c. Art, Religion, and American Culture. Fall 2003. Ms. DOCHERTY.

Studies the relationship between artistic creation and religious experience in America from the Puritans to the present day. Topics include sacred spaces, icons of belief, memory and mourning, cultural politics in religious expression, and elite spirituality versus vulgarized faith.

Prerequisite: Art History 101 or permission of the instructor.

291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study in Art History. ART HISTORY FACULTY.

401c–404c. Advanced Independent Study and Honors in Art History. ART HISTORY FACULTY.

VISUAL ARTS

Requirements for the Major in Visual Arts

Eleven courses are required in the department, to include Visual Arts 150, 160, 250, and 260; four other courses in the visual arts, at least one of which must be numbered 270 or higher; Art History 101; and two other courses in art history.

Requirements for the Minor in Visual Arts

The minor consists of six courses: Visual Arts 150, 160, either 250 or 260, plus two additional studio courses, at least one of which must be numbered 270 or higher; and Art History 101.

Visual arts courses without prerequisites are frequently oversubscribed; preference in enrollment is then given to first- and second-year students as well as to juniors and seniors fulfilling requirements of the visual arts major or minor.

105c,d. Puppetry. Fall 2004. Ms. MARCUS.

A thorough introduction to the art of puppetry. Involves puppet construction and an examination of how puppetry has been used in various cultures. Students create theater pieces in which puppetry is the primary form of expression. (Same as Theater 105.)

150c. Drawing I. Fall 2003. Ms. KIELY AND MR. MULLEN. Spring 2004. Ms. KIELY AND MR. MULLEN.

An introduction to drawing, with an emphasis on the development of perceptual, organizational, and critical abilities. Studio projects entail objective observation and analysis of still-life, landscape, and figurative subjects; exploration of the abstract formal organization of graphic expression; and the development of a critical vocabulary of visual principles. Lectures and group critiques augment studio projects in various drawing media.

160c. Painting I. Fall 2003. Ms. KIELY. Spring 2004. MR. MULLEN.

An introduction to painting, with an emphasis on the development of perceptual, organizational, and critical abilities. Studio projects entail objective observation and analysis of still-life, landscape, and figurative subjects; exploration of the painting medium and chromatic structure in representation; and the development of a critical vocabulary of painting concepts. Lectures and group critiques augment studio projects in painting media.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 150.

165c. Principles of Design. Every year. Spring 2004. Ms. GAILEN.

Studio course that stimulates students to consider the world of a play, dance, or performance piece from a designer's perspective. Through projects, readings, discussion, and critiques, students explore the fundamental principles of visual design, text analysis for the designer, and the process of collaboration. Strong emphasis on perceptual, analytical, and communication skills. (Same as Dance 130 and Theater 130.)

170c. Printmaking I. Fall 2003. Ms. HEPLER.

An introduction to intaglio printmaking, including etching, drypoint, engraving, monotype, and related methods. Studio projects develop creative approaches to perceptual experience and visual expression that are uniquely inspired by the intaglio medium. Attention is also given to historical and contemporary examples and uses of the medium.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 150 or permission of the instructor.

175c. Performance Art. Every other year. Spring 2004. Ms. BERG.

Performance art is live art performed by artists. It includes, but is not limited by, elements of both theater and dance. Students study the history and theory of performance art through readings and the creation of original work. Students consider the social context of different movements in performance art, and the creation of performance art in contemporary culture. The class creates and performs pieces in both traditional and "found" spaces. (Same as Dance 140 and Theater 140.)

180c. Photography I. Fall 2003. MR. SWARTS. Spring 2004. MR. KOLSTER.

Photographic visualization and composition as consequences of fundamental techniques of black-and-white still photography. Class discussions and demonstrations, examination of masterworks, and field and laboratory work in 35mm format. Students must provide their own 35mm nonautomatic camera.

190c. Architectural Design I. Spring 2004. MR. GLASS.

An introduction to architectural design. Studio projects develop skills in program and context analysis, conceptual design principles and processes, and presentation techniques.

192c,d. Japanese Architecture. Fall 2003. MR. NISHIUCHI.

Examines various Japanese architectural styles in the design process of drawing and model-making. Three hypotheses are tested: 1) architectural design reveals non-discursive thought; 2) cross-cultural design application is fruitful; and 3) drawing and model have subjunctive existence of their own. (Same as Asian Studies 192.)

195c. Sculpture. Fall 2003. MR. BISBEE.

An introduction to sculpture, with emphasis on the development of perceptual, organizational, and critical abilities. Studio projects entail a variety of sculptural approaches, including exploration of the structural principles, formal elements, and critical vocabulary of the sculpture medium. Lectures and group critiques augment studio projects in paper, clay, and other media.

250c. Drawing II. Spring 2004. MR. CORNELL.

A continuation of the principles introduced in Visual Arts 150, with particular emphasis on figurative drawing. Studio projects develop perceptual, creative, and critical abilities through problems involving objective observation, gestural expression and structural principles of the human form, studies from historical and contemporary examples, and exploration of the abstract formal elements of drawing. Lectures and group critiques augment studio projects in various drawing media.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 150.

255. The Art of Scientific Illustration: Using 3-D Animations in Education. Fall 2003. MR. PHILLIPS.

Explores the uses of art and three-dimensional animations in communicating complex dynamic and spatial relationships, primarily as they pertain to explaining scientific concepts. Students use primary literature to explore a science problem in a seminar-type format. Study of film-making and use of high-end three dimensional animation software. Concludes with a team effort in creating a three-dimensional animated film of the the science problem. (Same as Biology 202.)

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

260c. Painting II. Spring 2004. MS. KIELY.

A continuation of the principles introduced in Visual Arts 160, with studio problems based on direct experience.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 160.

270c. Printmaking II. Spring 2004. MS. HEPLER.

A continuation of the principles introduced in Visual Arts 170, with particular emphasis on independent projects.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 170 or permission of the instructor.

275c. Architectural Design II. Spring 2004. MR. GLASS.

A continuation of principles introduced in Visual Arts 190, with an emphasis on the idea of the creation and analysis of sacred space. Includes readings and analysis of varieties of sacred space, both natural and constructed, and requires architectural design projects and presentations.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 190.

280c. Photography II. Fall 2003. MR. KOLSTER.

Review and expansion of concepts and techniques fundamental to black-and-white photography, with exploration of the image-making potentials of different formats such as 35mm and view camera. Seminar discussions and field and laboratory work. Students must provide their own nonautomatic 35mm camera.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 180 or permission of the instructor.

285c. Sculpture II. Fall 2003. MR. BISBEE.

A continuation of principles introduced in Visual Arts 195, with particular emphasis on independent projects.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 195 or permission of the instructor.

295c–299c. Intermediate Independent Study in Visual Arts. VISUAL ARTS FACULTY.

350c–359c. Advanced Studies in Visual Arts. Fall 2003. MR. MULLEN. Spring 2004. MR. CORNELL.

A continuation of principles introduced in lower division drawing and painting courses, with increasing emphasis on independent projects.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 250 or 260 or permission of the instructor.

370c. Printmaking III. Spring 2004. MS. HEPLER.

Advanced projects in printmaking.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 270 or permission of the instructor.

An extension of principles and techniques developed in Visual Arts 180 and Visual Arts 280, with increased emphasis on independent projects. Seminar discussion and critiques, field and laboratory work. Participants must provide their own nonautomatic 35mm camera.

Prerequisite: Visual Arts 280 or permission of the instructor.

401c. Advanced Independent Study and Honors in Visual Arts. VISUAL ARTS FACULTY.

Open only to exceptionally qualified senior majors and required for honors credit. Advanced projects undertaken on an independent basis, with assigned readings, critical discussions, and a final position paper.

Students in Asian Studies focus on the cultural traditions of China, Japan, or South Asia (India, Sri Lanka, Pakistan, and Bangladesh). In completing the major, each student is required to gain a general understanding of one of these cultural areas, to acquire a working proficiency in one of the languages of South or East Asia, to develop a theoretical or methodological sophistication, and to demonstrate a degree of applied specialization. These principles are reflected in the requirements for an Asian Studies major. Student-designed majors focusing on cross-cultural topics in the humanities and/or social sciences are also encouraged. Normally, such student-designed majors will contain a strong disciplinary grounding (e.g., four courses in religion), as well as a significant number of relevant courses focused on Asia.

Off-Campus Study

Foreign study for students interested in Asian Studies is highly recommended. Established programs in the People's Republic of China, Hong Kong, and Taiwan are available for students interested in China. The Associated Kyoto Program is recommended for students interested in Japan. The ISLE and SITA programs (see pages 44–45) are recommended for students interested in South Asia. Consult the Asian Studies office or Web site for information about these and other programs. No more than three off-campus courses (excluding language study) may count toward the major or the minor.

Requirements for the Major in Asian Studies

One majors in Asian Studies by focusing on a particular geographic and cultural area (e.g., South Asia). Eight courses are required in addition to the study of an Asian language. These eight include a senior seminar (300-level) and other courses as described below. A student who wishes to graduate with honors in the program must also write an honors thesis, which is normally a one-semester project. Credit/Fail courses cannot be counted for the major or minor.

The major requires courses from two categories:

1. Language. Two years of an East Asian language or one year of a South Asian language, or the equivalent through intensive language study. The College does not directly offer courses in any South Asian language. Arrangements may be made with the director of the program and the Office of Student Records to transfer credits from another institution, or students may meet this requirement by studying Sinhala on the ISLE Program or Tamil on the SITA Program.

2. Area-specific courses. Eight courses, seven of which focus on the student's area of specialization and one of which is in an Asian cultural area outside that specialization. One of these eight courses is normally a senior seminar. The possible areas of specialization are China, Japan, East Asia, and South Asia. Students of China must take Asian Studies 370. For Japan, Asian Studies 283 is required. Students focusing on South Asia must take Asian Studies 235 and either 240 or 242.

Requirements for the Minor in Asian Studies

Students focus on the cultural traditions of either East Asia or South Asia by completing a concentration of at least five courses in one geographic area. Of these five courses, two may be language courses, provided that these language courses are at the level of third-year instruction (i.e., Japanese 205 or Chinese 205) or above. Two courses completed in off-campus programs may be counted toward the minor. For students focusing on South Asia, Asian Studies 235 and 240 or 242 are required.

Program Honors

Students contemplating honors candidacy in the program must have established records of A and B in program course offerings and present clearly articulated, well-focused proposals for scholarly research. Students must prepare an honors thesis and are examined orally by the program faculty.

First-Year Seminars

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

12c,d. Religion and Literature in Modern South Asia. Fall 2003. MR. HOLT.
(Same as Religion 12.)

14c,d. Life and Afterlife: Art and Archaeology of Ancient China. Fall 2003. MS. LEE.
(Same as Art History 14.)

19b,d. East Asian Politics: Introductory Seminar. Fall 2003. MR. LAURENCE.
(Same as Government 119.)

28c,d. Seekers' Lives. Spring 2006. MR. SMITH.
(Same as History 28.)

29c,d. Non-Violence, Nukes, and Nationalism. Fall 2003. MS. MITCHELL.
(Same as History 29.)

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

81c,d. Investigating Subjective Experience. Fall 2003. MR. SMITH.

How can we know the nature of subjective experience, our own or that of someone else? What is the nature of mind? Tests the efficacy of several modes of investigation, especially self-report, introspection, and meditation as methods of cultivating awareness of one's experience. Grades are awarded on a Credit/Fail basis only.

140c,d. Monuments of Asian Art and Architecture. Spring 2004. MS. LEE.

Addresses the question of what constitutes a monument in Asia by examining a limited number of major works of art and architecture, including tombs, temples, sculpture, ritual vessels, and landscape painting. Explores monuments in the context of historical developments and major religions of Asia. (Same as Art History 140.)

146c,d. Music of East and Southeast Asia. Spring 2004. MR. SHENDE.

A survey of the musical traditions of East and Southeast Asia, with a concentration on selected solo, ensemble, and theatrical genres of China, Japan, and Indonesia. Explores socio-historic influences, as well as the musical construction processes found in these traditions. (Same as Music 146.)

Prerequisite: Ability to read music.

180c,d. Living in the Sixteenth Century. Fall 2003. MR. CONLAN.

Examines the nature of state and society in an age of turmoil. Studies patterns of allegiances, ways of waging war, codes of conduct, and the social matrix of sixteenth-century Japan, based on primary and secondary sources. Kurosawa's masterpiece Kage Musha provides the thematic foundation for this course. (Same as History 180.)

192c,d. Japanese Architecture. Fall 2003. MR. NISHIUCHI.

Examines various Japanese architectural styles in the design process of drawing and model-making. Three hypotheses are tested: 1) architectural design reveals non-discursive thought; 2) cross-cultural design application is fruitful; and 3) drawing and model have subjunctive existence of their own. (Same as Visual Arts 192.)

208. Literature of Ancient Indian Society. Fall 2003. Ms. PADMA.

Examines the articulation of fundamental social, cultural, and political values within seminal texts of literature that were written from the 4th century B.C.E. to the 5th century C.E. in the Indian sub-continent. Texts may include the Edicts of Asoka (emphasizing the moral development of social interaction), the Arthashastra (concerned with strategic policy and royal statecraft), Manudharmasastra (the codification of social duties according to age, gender, and vocation), Vatsayana's Kamasutra (the aesthetics of cultured etiquette), and Cilappatikaram and Manimekhalai (the twin epics of the south). Students will write 3-5 page analytical essays to engage each of these texts following classroom lectures and discussions. One-half credit course.

220c,d. Other Modernisms: Art in Twentieth-Century China. Fall 2003. Ms. LEE.

Examines the multitude of visual expressions Chinese artists adopted, re-fashioned, and rejected during the political struggles of the twentieth century, from the May Fourth Movement of 1919 through the Cultural Revolution (1966–76) and (almost) to the present day. Major themes include the tension between identity and modernity, the relationship between art and politics, and the impact of globalization and an international art market. (Same as Art History 220.)

Prerequisite: Art History 101 or 110 or permission of the instructor.

222c,d. A History of Modern Korea. Spring 2004. MR. LEE.

Examines the history of Korea through the twentieth century, with an emphasis on recent developments in North-South relations. Topics include independence, the colonial experience, the war, divergent economic and political developments, and the prospect for reunification. (Same as History 222.)

223c,d. Mahayana Buddhism. Spring 2004. MR. HOLT.

Studies the emergence of Mahayana Buddhist world views as reflected in primary sources of Indian, Chinese, and Japanese origins. Buddhist texts include the Buddhacarita ("Life of the Buddha"), the Sukhavati Vyuhā ("Discourse on the 'Pure Land'"), the Vajraccedika Sutra (the "Diamond-Cutter"), the Prajnaparamitra-hrdaya Sutra ("Heart Sutra of the Perfection of Wisdom"), the Saddharmapundarika Sutra (the "Lotus Sutra"), and the Platform Sutra of the Sixth Patriarch, among others. Also briefly studies the teachings of Confucius, Lao Tzu, and Chuang Tzu to better understand the encounter, assimilation, and transformation of Buddhism within Chinese and Japanese religious cultures. (Same as Religion 223.)

227b,d. Chinese Politics. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. GUO.

Examines Chinese politics in the context of a prolonged revolution. After a survey of the political system established in the 1950s and politics emerging from it, the analytic focus turns to political change in the reform era (since 1979) and the forces driving it. Topics include the political impact of decentralization and marketization, the reintegration into the capitalist world economy, and the development of the legal system. The adaptation by the Communist Party to these changes and the prospects of democratization are also discussed. (Same as Government 227.)

228b,d. Chinese Foreign Policy. Fall 2003. MR. GUO.

An analytic survey of the history and evolution of China's foreign relations from the inception of the People's Republic of China in 1949. Emphasis is on China's evolving strategic thinking in the context of changing international and regional (the Asia-Pacific) power configuration since the Cold War. Topics include actors, institutions, and processes of foreign policy decision-making; national security and the military; foreign economic relations; Sino-U. S. relations; the Taiwan issue; the South China Sea dispute; the resurgence of nationalism; "greater China"; and the linkages between domestic politics and foreign policy. (Same as Government 228.)

229b,d. Politics of Southeast Asia. Every two years. Spring 2005. MR. GUO.

Starts with a survey of the political landscape of tropical Southeast Asia and proceeds to investigate the fundamental forces driving political changes in this region of rich diversity in culture, religion, ethnicity, mystic beliefs and political traditions. Topics include nation building and the role of colonial history, regime legitimacy, political protests (often spear-headed by college students) and ethnic conflicts, the different responses to the challenges of modernization, causes and consequences of rapid economic growth, dynamics of the political processes, and the attempts by political elites at “culturally bounded and historically specific” human rights and democracy as a defensive strategy against Western ideological hegemony. (Same as Government 229.)

[231b,d. Human Rights and Democracy in East Asia.][234b,d. Women, Power, and Identity in India.]*235b,d. South Asian Cultures and Societies. Spring 2004. MS. DICKEY.

An introduction to the cultures and societies of South Asia, including India, Nepal, Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka. Issues of religion, family and gender, caste, and class are examined through ethnographies, novels, and films, and through in-class simulations of marriage arrangements and caste ranking. (Same as Anthropology 235.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101, or permission of the instructor.

240c,d. Hindu Religious Literature. Fall 2004. MR. HOLT.

A reading of various genres of translated Hindu religious literature, including Rig Veda hymns, philosophical Upanisads, Yoga Sutras, the epics Ramayana and Mahabharata, including the Bhagavad Gita, selected myths from the Puranas, and poetry and songs of medieval devotional saints. Focuses on development of various types of religious world views and religious experiences within Hindu traditions, as reflected in classical Sanskrit and vernacular literature of India. (Same as Religion 220.)

241c,d. Hindu Religious Culture. Spring 2005. MR. HOLT.

A consideration of various types of individual and communal religious practice and religious expression in Hindu tradition, including ancient ritual sacrifice, mysticism and yoga (meditation), dharma and karma (ethical and political significance), pilgrimage (as inward spiritual journey and outward ritual behavior), puja (worship of deities through seeing, hearing, chanting), rites of passage (birth, adolescence, marriage, and death), etc. Focuses on the nature of symbolic expression and behavior as these can be understood from indigenous theories of religious practice. Asian Studies 240 is recommended as a previous course. (Same as Religion 221.)

242c,d. Theravada Buddhism. Fall 2003. MR. HOLT.

An examination of the major trajectories of Buddhist religious thought and practice as understood from a reading of primary and secondary texts drawn from the Theravada traditions of India, Sri Lanka, Thailand, and Burma. (Same as Religion 222.)

245c,d. The Ritual Body: Zen and Postmodernity. Spring 2004. MR. NISHIUCHI.

Investigates the ritual existentiality of sentient beings in the theoretical encounter between medieval Japanese Zen thought and postmodern American philosophy. Focuses on the aesthetics of rite in connection with being, action, and community. (Same as Religion 245.)

248b,d. Activist Voices in India. Spring 2005. Ms. DICKEY.

Examines contemporary social and political activism in India. Focuses on film, essays, and fiction to investigate the ways that political messages are constructed through different media and for specific audiences. Case studies include activism concerning religious conflict, gender inequalities, gay and lesbian identities, and environmental issues. (Same as Anthropology 248 and Women's Studies 246.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101, and one previous course on contemporary South Asian societies (Anthropology 234, 235; History 256, 258, 259, 288; or Religion 12, 221, 323), or permission of the instructor.

249c,d. Perspectives on Modern China. Spring 2005. Ms. CUI.

Approaches the subject of modern China from multiple perspectives: historical, literary, and cinematic. Examines how fiction and film are related to the historical upheavals and social transformations that have created the modern nation-state. The close reading and interpretation of selected texts enables understanding of China through its fictional and visual representations.

252c,d. Popular Culture in Post-Socialist China. Spring 2004. Ms. CUI.

Explores the role of popular culture in China as it undergoes the transition from a socialist economy to a thriving consumer culture. Topics include political pop, urban cinema, literary writings, and pop music. Considers how the state apparatus and the mass population participate in cultural production and consumption by examining trends in popular culture.

253c,d. Modern South Asia. Fall 2003. Ms. MITCHELL.

Chronological and thematic introduction to colonial and post-colonial South Asian history from the eighteenth century to the present. Topics include the rise and fall of British imperial power, the making of a colonial economy, the emergence of nationalist struggles in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, independence and partition, democracy and politics, secularism and religious fundamentalisms, social movements, and urbanization. (Same as History 261.)

254c,d. Transnational Chinese Cinema. Fall 2004. Ms. CUI.

Introduces films produced in the People's Republic of China, Taiwan, and Hong Kong. Places national cinema in a transnational framework and explores how cinema, as a sign system, constructs sociocultural and aesthetic meanings. Students benefit by bringing an open mind towards non-Western cultural texts and a critical eye for visual art.

[259c,d. History of South Asia, 1700–2002.]260c,d. Media, Technology, Nation. Spring 2004. Ms. MITCHELL.

Traces the role of modern technologies of knowledge in the formation of modern nation-states and community identities in Asia. Considers the impact of print media and the novel; surveying and map-making; the census; museums and exhibitions; nineteenth-century theories of language, race, and ethnicity; radio, film, and television; and virtual communities born of migration and the Internet. Focuses on South Asia, with comparisons drawn from Southeast Asia. (Same as History 260.)

261b,d. Contemporary Chinese Society, Part I. Fall 2003. Ms. RILEY.

Examines several key elements of contemporary society, exploring how Chinese society has changed in recent years and how social institutions such as family, education, and community have been a part of the recent economic and social restructuring. Pays particular attention to issues of work, family, gender, and migration. Part of a two-course sequence including Asian Studies 262. (Same as Sociology 261.)

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor. Because this course is part of a two-course sequence that includes a five-week trip to Asia, students are selected on the basis of a short application to be submitted in the spring. Preference is given to sophomores.

262b,d. Contemporary Chinese Society, Part II. Fall 2003. Ms. RILEY.

A continuation of Asian Studies 261. Consists of a five-week trip to Asia over winter break to see firsthand some of the issues studied during the regular semester at Bowdoin. Includes lectures and seminars on current issues in China, and students continue work on projects developed during the semester. Grading is Credit/Fail. (Same as Sociology 262.)

Prerequisite: Asian Studies 261 must be taken concurrently, and permission of the instructor.

263c,d. The Origins of Daoism in China. Spring 2004. Mr. KLINE.

Tracing the origins of Daoism in China, this course begins with the proto-Daoist figures in the margins of early Confucian texts, proceeds on to a thorough examination of the Daodejing (or Laozi) and Zhuangzi, and finishes with Han Dynasty Daoist writings and the establishment of Daoist religious institutions.

265c,d. Early Chan (Zen) Buddhism. Fall 2004. Mr. KLINE.

Chan Buddhism was not simply imported to China from Central and South Asian forms of Buddhism, but emerged out of the use of Daoist metaphors and vocabulary to translate and interpret Buddhist texts. This course examines the early Chan tradition, through reading of early Chan texts, and explores its connections with Daoism.

266c,d. Women and Writing in Modern China. Fall 2003. Ms. CUI.

Approaches the subject of women and writing in 20th-century China from perspectives of gender studies and literary analysis. Considers women writers and their works in the context of Chinese history and as a challenge to the master narratives of Chinese literary tradition. In addition, constructs a dialogue between Chinese women's texts and Western feminist theory. (Same as Women's Studies 266.)

[267b,d. International Relations in East Asia.]270c,d. Introduction to Chinese Philosophy. Fall 2004. Mr. KLINE.

Examines the development of early Chinese philosophy as an extended conversation among various thinkers trying to provide solutions to a common set of problems—how to characterize human nature, moral psychology, and moral development. Beginning with Confucius, follows the chronological development of these theories as each new philosopher criticizes and adopts elements of his predecessors' theories. Philosophers to be discussed include: Kongzi (Confucius), Mozi, Yang Zhu, Mengzi (Mencius), Zhuangzi, Xunzi, and Han Feizi. (Same as Philosophy 270.)

271c,d. The Material Culture of Ancient China. Spring 2004. Mr. SMITH.

Addresses material culture in China from ca. 400 to 100 B.C., while the great unification of empire was occurring. Topics include what people ate; how they wrote, fought, and built; how we know such things about them; and how this civilization can be compared with others. (Same as History 271.)

272c,d. Cosmic Sexualities in East and South Asian Cultures. Fall 2004. Mr. SMITH.

Examines conceptions of the cosmos based on sexual metaphors in the cultures of China, Tibet and India, especially the Daoist, Buddhist and Hindu traditions. Emphasis on how human social realities shape and are shaped by systems of belief. Topics include the varying complementarities of yin-yang, yab-yum, and Siva-Sakti. (Same as History 272.)

273c,d. A Social History of Shamanism in East Asia. Fall 2005. Mr. SMITH.

What kinds of societies foster shamanic practice? How do variant social structures give rise to analytically similar religious activity? Studies the cultures of Siberia, ancient China, medieval Japan, and premodern Tibet against the larger patterns of shamanic practices in other parts of the world. (Same as History 273.)

Prerequisite: Any one of the following: Asian Studies/History 28, Asian Studies 81, Asian Studies/History 276, Religion 101, or permission of the instructor.

275c,d. Modern China. Fall 2006. MR. SMITH.

Introduction to the history of China from 1840 to the present. Studies the confrontation with Western imperialism, the fall of empire, the Republican period, and the People's Republic. (Same as History 275.)

276c,d. A History of Tibet. Spring 2005. MR. SMITH.

Examines three questions: What was old Tibet? Is Tibet part of China? What are conditions there now? Analyzes the complex interactions of politics and society with Buddhist doctrine and practice. (Same as History 276.)

277c,d. Debating Colonialism and Its Aftermath in South Asia. Spring 2004. MS. MITCHELL.

Introduction to historiography. Critically examines key debates in the history of British colonialism and its impact on the South Asian subcontinent. Topics include the 1857 uprising ("Sepoy Mutiny" or "First War of Indian Independence"), gender and colonial law, de-industrialization, the colonial role in creating modern caste identities and religious conflicts, and the necessity of the partition of the subcontinent. (Same as History 277.)

278c,d. The Foundations of Tokugawa Japan. Spring 2006. MR. SMITH.

Addresses problems in the creation and early development of the Tokugawa (1600–1868) state and society, including the transformation of samurai from professional warriors into professional bureaucrats and the unanticipated growth of a quasi-autonomous urban culture. (Same as History 278.)

280c,d. Self on Stage: The Nô Theater. Spring 2004. MR. NISHIUCHI.

Examines Zeami, a medieval aesthetician of the Nô theater. In particular, considers the self, emerging in the theatrical way in which "actor" and "spectator" encounter each other to disappear into "empty." Gadamer's "playing field" and Nietzsche's "tragedy" are considered as possible means of interpretation. (Same as Theater 280.)

281c. The Courtly Society of Heian Japan. Fall 2004. MR. CONLAN.

Seminar. Japan's courtly culture spawned some of the greatest cultural achievements the world has ever known. Based on the Tale of Genji, a tenth-century novel of romance and intrigue, students attempt to reconstruct the complex world of courtly culture in Japan, where marriages were open and easy, even though social mobility was not; and where the greatest elegance, and most base violence, existed in tandem. (Same as History 281.)

282b,d. Japanese Politics and Society. Fall 2003. MR. LAURENCE.

Surveys the institutions and groups that shape Japanese politics and policy-making. Focuses on the nature of policy-making, the constraints that decision-makers face, and the authority that they possess. Explores what makes Japanese politics "unique," and what caused the political upheavals of the 1990s. Looks at social issues, including the role of women, the status of ethnic minorities, education, and the media. (Same as Government 232.)

283c,d. The Origins of Japanese Culture and Civilization. Spring 2004 and Spring 2005. MR. CONLAN.

How do a culture, a state, and a society develop? Designed to introduce the culture and history of Japan by exploring how "Japan" came into existence, and to chart how patterns of Japanese civilization shifted through time. We try to reconstruct the tenor of life through translations of primary sources, and gain a greater appreciation of the unique and lasting cultural and political monuments of Japanese civilization. (Same as History 283.)

284c,d. The Emergence of Modern Japan. Fall 2003 and Fall 2004. MR. CONLAN.

What constitutes a modern state? How durable are cultures and civilizations? Examines the patterns of culture in a state that managed to expel European missionaries in the seventeenth century, and came to embrace all things Western as being “civilized” in the mid-nineteenth century. Compares the unique and vibrant culture of Tokugawa Japan with the rapid program of industrialization in the late nineteenth century, which resulted in imperialism, international wars, and ultimately, the postwar recovery. (Same as History 284.)

285c,d. Warring States. Spring 2005. MR. CONLAN.

Seminar. Examines the experience of “premodern” war in Europe, China, and Japan through chronicles, documents, and visual sources. In addition to exploring narratives of battle, “heroic” qualities of European, Chinese, and Japanese leaders are also investigated. (Same as History 285.)

[286c,d. Japan and the World.]310c,d. The Art of Zen. Spring 2004. MR. OLDS.

Examines the influence of Ch’an or Zen Buddhism on the art of China and Japan, including painting, architecture, garden design, and the tea ceremony. (Same as Art History 310.)

321c,d. Propaganda and Protest: Art of China’s Empires and Their Opponents. Spring 2004. MS. LEE.

Explores how art and architecture have been used by China’s imperial and modern leaders to articulate their political agenda, on the one hand, and by the many dissidents of those regimes to express their criticism and opposition, on the other hand. Focuses on the following historical moments: the Song dynasty (960-1279), the Ming-Qing transition (seventeenth to eighteenth century), and the People’s Republic of China (1949 to the present). Emphasizes how specific images and buildings display the values of good government and how dissident artists encode potentially treasonous messages in order to escape detection and censorship. (Same as Art History 321.)

Prerequisite: Art History 101, 110, 140 or permission of the instructor.

332b,d. Advanced Seminar in Japanese Politics. Spring 2005. MR. LAURENCE.

Analyzes the political, social, and cultural underpinnings of policy-making in postwar Japan. Explores the differences between Japanese and western forms of democracy, and asks if there is a unique “Japanese” form of democratic capitalism. Questions include: What features of the Japanese system enabled the country to achieve stunning economic growth while maintaining very high levels of income equality and social welfare, and low unemployment? And how sustainable will the system be in the future? (Same as Government 332.)

Prerequisite: Asian Studies 282 or Government 232.

333b,d. Advanced Seminar in Chinese Politics. Fall 2003. MR. GUO.

Understanding the process of political change in China by exploring the various underlying driving forces: marketization, globalization, social dislocation, and rampant corruption, etc.; how these are reshaping the socioeconomic foundation of the party-state, compelling changes in governance structure and in the ways power is contested and redistributed; how the CCP’s responses affect the outcome, and how it is transforming itself in the process of epic change. (Same as Government 333.)

[335c,d. Advanced Seminar on East Asian Development.][337b,d. Advanced Seminar in Human Rights and Democracy in East Asia.][340c,d. Asian Religions and the West.][343c,d. Buddhism, Culture, and Society in South and Southeast Asia.]

370c,d. Problems in Chinese History. Every fall. MR. SMITH.

Reviews the whole of Chinese history. Students develop their research skills and write a substantial research paper. Primarily for seniors. (Same as History 370.)

380c,d. The Warrior Culture of Japan. Spring 2004. MR. CONLAN.

Explores the “rise” of the warrior culture of Japan. In addition to providing a better understanding of the judicial and military underpinnings of Japan's military “rule” and the nature of medieval Japanese warfare, shows how warriors have been perceived as a dominant force in Japanese history. Culminates in an extended research paper. (Same as History 380.)

Prerequisite: History 283, History 284 or another course in Japanese history (with permission of the instructor).

291c–299c. Intermediate Independent Study.401c–404c. Advanced Independent Study and Honors.

LANGUAGE COURSES

Chinese 101c. Elementary Chinese I. Every fall. MR. CUI.

A foundation course for communicative skills in modern Chinese (Mandarin). Introduction to the sound system, essential grammatical structures, basic vocabulary, and approximately 360 characters. Followed by Chinese 102.

Chinese 102c. Elementary Chinese II. Every spring. MR. CUI.

A continuation of Chinese 101. Rigorous training in listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Introduction to the next 400 characters, the use of the Chinese-English dictionary, character simplification, and Chinese word processing. Followed by Chinese 203.

Prerequisite: Chinese 101.

Chinese 203c. Intermediate Chinese I. Every fall. MR. CUI.

An intermediate course in modern Chinese (Mandarin). Develops all-around communicative skills, with an emphasis on accuracy and fluency. Students learn another 500 characters and read longer, more complex texts. Followed by Chinese 204.

Prerequisite: Chinese 102 or permission of the instructor.

Chinese 204c. Intermediate Chinese II. Every spring. MR. CUI.

A continuation of Chinese 203. Consolidates and expands knowledge of grammar and vocabulary, with an additional 600 characters. Further develops communicative competence, and prepares students to study abroad. Followed by Chinese 205.

Prerequisite: Chinese 203 or the equivalent.

Chinese 205c. Advanced Chinese I. Every fall. Ms. CUI.

An advanced course in modern Chinese (Mandarin). Upgrades all skills in listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Emphasizes the development of skills in self-managing study, particularly in dealing with edited and/or authentic materials. Followed by Chinese 206.

Prerequisite: Chinese 204 or the equivalent.

Chinese 206c. Advanced Chinese II. Every spring. Ms. CUI.

A continuation of Chinese 205. Focuses on the development of functional skills in reading and writing, and prepares students to make a successful linguistic transition from “textbook Chinese” to the “real world.” Followed by Chinese 307/308.

Prerequisite: Chinese 205 or the equivalent.

Chinese 307c. Advanced Readings in Modern Chinese I. Every fall. MR. CUI.

A content-based course in advanced modern Chinese (Mandarin). Further develops functional skills in comprehending authentic materials, and in the ability to produce multiple paragraph discourse with clarity and coherence.

Prerequisite: Chinese 206 or the equivalent.

Chinese 308c. Advanced Readings in Modern Chinese II. Every spring. MR. CUI.

A content-based course in advanced modern Chinese (Mandarin). Students acquire linguistic and cultural sophistication through independent reading, formal critique, and group discussion.

Prerequisite: Chinese 206 or the equivalent.

Japanese 101c. Elementary Japanese I. Every fall. Ms. SATO.

An introductory course in modern Japanese language. In addition to mastering the basics of grammar, emphasis is placed on active functional communication in the language, reading, and listening comprehension. Context-oriented conversation drills are complemented by audio materials. The two kana syllabaries and 60 commonly used kanji are introduced. No prerequisite. Followed by Japanese 102.

Japanese 102c. Elementary Japanese II. Every spring. Ms. SATO.

A continuation of the fundamentals of Japanese grammar structures and further acquisition of spoken communication skills, listening comprehension, and proficiency in reading and writing. An additional 90 kanji are introduced.

Prerequisite: Japanese 101 or permission of the instructor.

Japanese 203c. Intermediate Japanese I. Every fall. Ms. SATO.

An intermediate course in modern Japanese language, with introduction of advanced grammatical structures, vocabulary, and characters. Continuing emphasis on acquisition of well-balanced language skills based on an understanding of the actual use of the language in the Japanese socio-cultural context. An additional 100 kanji are introduced.

Prerequisite: Japanese 102 or permission of the instructor.

Japanese 204c. Intermediate Japanese II. Every spring. Ms. SATO.

A continuation of Japanese 203 with the introduction of more advanced grammatical structures, vocabulary, and characters.

Prerequisite: Japanese 203 or permission of the instructor.

Japanese 205c. Advanced Japanese I. Every fall. Ms. SATO.

Increases students' proficiency in both spoken and written modern Japanese. A variety of written and audiovisual materials are used to consolidate and expand mastery of more advanced grammatical structures and vocabulary. Includes oral presentation, discussion, and composition in Japanese.

Prerequisite: Japanese 204 or permission of the instructor.

Japanese 206c. Advanced Japanese II. Every spring. Ms. SATO.

A continuation and progression of materials used in Japanese 205.

Prerequisite: Japanese 205 or permission of the instructor.

Japanese 307c,d. Japanese Literature and Rhetoric. Fall 2003. MR. NISHIUCHI.

Investigates the rhetorical understanding of Japanese thought by analyzing Japanese literature, as well as the cultural situationality of the thought. This course is repeatable for credit as content changes.

Prerequisite: Japanese 206 or permission of the instructor.

Japanese 308c,d. Topics in Japanese Aesthetics and Rhetoric. Spring 2004. MR. NISHIUCHI.

Explores the (im)possibilities of dialogue between Japanese and English philosophical languages. This dialogical practice is critically carried in relation to twentieth-century theories of translation (Benjamin, Derrida, etc.) This course is repeatable for credit as content changes.

Prerequisite: Japanese 307 or permission of the instructor.

Requirements for the Major in Biochemistry

All majors must complete the following courses: Biology 104, Biology (Chemistry) 231, 232, 263; Chemistry 109, 225, 226, 251; Mathematics 161, 171; Physics 103, 104. Students should complete the required biochemistry core courses by the end of their junior year so that they may take upper-level courses and participate in research in the senior year. Majors must also complete three courses from the following: Biology 210, 212, 214, 217, 218, 224, 253, 255, 257, 266, 303, 304, 306, 317, 333, 401–404; Chemistry 210, 240, 252, 254, 270, 330, 360, 401–404; Physics 223, 401–404. Students may include as electives up to two 400-level courses. Students taking independent study courses for honors in the biochemistry major should register for Biochemistry 401–404.

Bowdoin College does not offer a minor in biochemistry.

Requirements for the Major in Biology

Beginning with the Class of 2005:

The major consists of eight courses in the department exclusive of independent study and courses below the 100 level. Majors are required to complete Biology 104, 105, and three of the twelve core courses. Core courses are divided into three groups. One course must be taken from each group. Majors are also required to complete three other courses within the department, two of which must be at the 250 level or above, and one at the 100 level or above.

For Class of 2004:

The major consists of seven courses in the department exclusive of independent study and courses below the 100 level. Majors are required to complete Biology 104, and four of the twelve core courses. Core courses are divided into three groups. One course must be taken from each group; the fourth core course may be from any group. Majors are also required to complete two other courses within the department, one of which must be at the 250 level or above, and one at the 100 level or above.

Group 1

Genetics and Molecular Biology
 Microbiology
 Developmental Biology
 Cell Biology
 Introduction to Neuroscience

Group 2

Comparative Physiology
 Plant Physiology
 Developmental Biology
 Introduction to Neuroscience

Group 3

Behavioral Ecology and Population Biology
 Biology of Marine Organisms
 Evolution
 Community and Ecosystem
 Ecology

Majors must also complete one mathematics course, Mathematics 165 or 171 (or above). Another college statistics course and Mathematics 161 may satisfy this requirement with permission of the department. Additional requirements are Physics 103 (or any physics course that has a prerequisite of Physics 103), and Chemistry 225. Students are advised to complete Biology 104 (Class of '04), 105 (Classes of '05-'07), and the mathematics, physics, and chemistry courses by the end of the sophomore year. Students planning postgraduate education in science or the health professions should note that graduate and professional schools are likely to have additional admissions requirements in mathematics, physics, and chemistry. Advanced placement credits may not be used to fulfill any of the course requirements for the major. If students place out of Biology 104, eight biology courses must still be completed.

Interdisciplinary Majors

The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in biochemistry, environmental studies, and neuroscience. See pages 72, 124, and 195.

Requirements for the Minor in Biology

The minor consists of four courses within the department at the 100 level or above, appropriate to the major.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

[56a. Ecology and Society.]

[65a. The Impact of Biotechnology on Human Genetics.]

67a. Emerging Diseases. Fall 2003. Ms. MCBRIDE.

Explores the biology of microorganisms implicated in new and recurrent infectious diseases in the context of their global impact. Emphasizes class discussion of topics including microbial growth and reproductive strategies, pathogen-host interactions, and social and economic issues relating to infectious diseases.

104a. Introductory Biology. Every semester. Fall 2003. MR. LOGAN AND MR. SETTLEMIRE. Spring 2004. Ms. MCBRIDE AND MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

Examines fundamental biological principles extending from the subcellular to the ecosystem level of living organisms. Topics include bioenergetics, structure-function relationships, cellular information systems, physiology, ecology, and evolutionary biology. Lecture and weekly laboratory/discussion groups.

105a. Investigations in Biology. Every semester. Fall 2003. Ms. DICKINSON AND MR. STEINHART. Spring 2004. Ms. JOHNSON AND MR. PHILLIPS.

A laboratory-centered course that involves students in all aspects of biological investigations, from asking questions and developing hypotheses to analyzing and presenting data. Students develop a deeper understanding of the techniques and methods of science by designing and conducting their own experiments. Because science is conducted in the context of previous research, the course includes an introduction to reading and discussing journal articles/primary literature in biology.

Prerequisite: Biology 104.

121a. Plants: Ecology, Diversity, Form, and Function. Fall 2003. MR. LOGAN.

A survey course on plant biology. Topics include diversity and phylogenetic relationships among major plant taxa (particularly with respect to the local flora), physiological mechanisms underlying water and nutrient acquisition and use, photosynthesis, vascular plant anatomy, and ecological principles related to plant survival and reproduction. Relevant botanical topics such as the green revolution, ethnobotany, and forest ecology are also discussed. Laboratory sessions every week. (Same as Environmental Studies 121.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104.

158a. Introduction to Environmental Science. Spring 2004. MR. WHITLOW.

The science of ecology deals with the distribution and abundance of organisms. As such, ecologists have been in a position to call the public's attention to environmental changes associated with human population growth and activity that have deleterious effects on natural populations and ecosystems, and that may negatively affect the quality of life for humans. Examines the fundamentals of ecology to provide a solid background in the science, and discusses current ecological issues and dilemmas facing society. Laboratory sessions consist of local field trips, group research, case study exercises, and discussion of current and classic scientific literature. (Same as Environmental Studies 201.)

Prerequisite: One 100-level or higher course in biology, chemistry, physics, or geology.

202. The Art of Scientific Illustration: Using 3-D Animations in Education. Fall 2003. MR. PHILLIPS.

Explores the uses of art and three-dimensional animations in communicating complex dynamic and spatial relationships, primarily as they pertain to explaining scientific concepts. Students use primary literature to explore a science problem in a seminar-type format. Study of film-making and use of high-end three dimensional animation software. Concludes with a team effort in creating a three-dimensional animated film of the science problem. (Same as Visual Arts 255.)

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

210a. Plant Physiology. Every spring. MR. LOGAN.

An introduction to the physiological processes that enable plants to grow under the varied conditions found in nature. General topics discussed include the acquisition, transport, and use of water and mineral nutrients, photosynthetic carbon assimilation, and the influence of environmental and hormonal signals on development and morphology. Adaptation and acclimation to extreme environments and other ecophysiological subjects are also discussed. Weekly laboratories reinforce principles discussed in lecture and expose students to modern research techniques. (Same as Environmental Studies 210.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

212a. Genetics and Molecular Biology. Every fall. MR. STEINHART.

Integrated coverage of organismic and molecular levels of genetic systems. Topics include modes of inheritance, the structure and function of chromosomes, the mechanisms and control of gene expression, recombination, mutagenesis, the determination of gene order and sequence, and genetic engineering applications. Laboratory and problem-solving sessions are scheduled.

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

213a. Introduction to Neuroscience. Every fall. Ms. HORCH.

Examines fundamental concepts in neurobiology from the molecular to the systems level. Topics include neuronal communication, gene regulation, morphology, neuronal development, axon guidance, mechanisms of neuronal plasticity, sensory systems, and the molecular basis of behavior and disease. Weekly lab sessions introduce a wide range of methods used to examine neurons and neuronal systems.-

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07); or 104 and Psychology 251 (Classes of '05 – '07).

214a. Comparative Physiology. Spring 2005. Ms. DICKINSON.

An examination of animal function, from the cellular to the organismal level. The underlying concepts are emphasized, as are the experimental data that support our current understanding of animal function. Topics include the nervous system, hormones, respiration, circulation, osmoregulation, digestion, and thermoregulation. Labs are short, student-designed projects involving a variety of instrumentation. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

215a. Behavioral Ecology and Population Biology. Every fall. MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

Study of the behavior of animals and plants, and the interactions between organisms and their environment. Topics include population growth and structure, and the influence of competition, predation, and other factors on the behavior, abundance, and distribution of plants and animals. Laboratory sessions, field trips, and research projects emphasize concepts in ecology, evolution and behavior, research techniques, and the natural history of local plants and animals. Optional field trip to the Bowdoin Scientific Station on Kent Island. (Same as Environmental Studies 215.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

216a. Evolution. Every spring. MR. PALOPOLI.

An examination of the theory of evolution by natural selection, the central theory in the study of biology. The course provides a broad overview of evolutionary ideas, including the development of Darwin's theory; the modification and elaboration of that theory through the modern synthesis and present-day controversies over how evolution works; the evidence for evolution; evolutionary insights into processes at the molecular, organismal, behavioral, and ecological levels; patterns of speciation and macro-evolutionary change; the evolution of sex; and sexual selection. Laboratory sessions introduce students to artificial selection experiments, phylogenetic analysis, and other topics in evolutionary biology.

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

217a. Developmental Biology. Every fall. Ms. THEODOSIOU.

An examination of current concepts of embryonic development, with emphasis on their experimental basis. Topics include morphogenesis and functional differentiation, tissue interaction, nucleocytoplasmic interaction, differential gene expression, and interaction of cells with hormones and extracellular matrix. Project-oriented laboratory work emphasizes experimental methods. Lectures and three hours of laboratory per week.

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

218a. Microbiology. Every spring. Ms. MCBRIDE.

An examination of the structure and function of microorganisms, from viruses to bacteria to fungi, with an emphasis on molecular descriptions. Subjects covered include microbial structure, metabolism, and genetics. Control of microorganisms and environmental interactions are also discussed. Laboratory sessions every week.

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07). Chemistry 225 is recommended but not required.

219a. Biology of Marine Organisms. Every fall. Ms. JOHNSON.

The study of the biology and ecology of marine mammals, seabirds, fish, intertidal and subtidal invertebrates, algae, and plankton. Also considers the biogeographic consequences of global and local ocean currents on the evolution and ecology of marine organisms. Laboratories, field trips, and research projects emphasize natural history, functional morphology, and ecology. Lectures and three hours of laboratory or field trip per week. One weekend field trip included. (Same as Environmental Studies 219.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

224a. Cell Biology. Every spring. MR. KOHORN.

Focuses on the structure and function of cells as we have come to know them through the interpretation of direct observations and experimental results. Emphasis is on the scientific (thought) processes that have allowed us to understand what we know today, emphasizing the use of genetic, biochemical, and optical analysis to understand fundamental biological processes. Covers details of the organization and expression of genetic information, and the biosynthesis, sorting, and function of cellular components within the cell. Concludes with examples of how cells perceive signals from other cells within cell populations, tissues, organisms, and the environment. Three hours of lab each week.

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07). Chemistry 225 is recommended.

225a. Community and Ecosystem Ecology. Every fall. MR. WHITLOW.

Community ecology is the study of the dynamic patterns in the distribution and abundance of organisms. Ecosystem ecology is the study of the flow of energy and cycling of matter through ecological communities across multiple spatial scales. Explores the multitude of interactions among populations of plants, animals, and microbes, and between those populations and the physical and chemical environment. Topics include the creation and function of biodiversity, the complexity of species interactions in food webs, the role of disturbance in ecosystem processes, the relative magnitude of top-down versus bottom-up controls in ecosystems, and much more. Laboratory sessions consist of local field trips, team research exercises, and independent field research projects. Time is also set aside for discussions of current and classic scientific literature. (Same as Environmental Studies 225.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

231a. Biochemistry I. Every fall. MR. KOHORN.

Proteins and enzymes. An introduction to the chemistry and biology of small biological molecules, macromolecules, and membranes. Emphasis on biological processes including transcription, translation, and bioenergetics. Lectures and informally scheduled laboratories, based upon computer models of the chemical basis of biological mechanisms. Previously known as Biology 261. (Same as Chemistry 231, previously known as Chemistry 261.)

Prerequisite: Chemistry 226.

232a. Biochemistry II. Every spring. MR. PAGE.

An introduction to metabolism. Topics include pathways in living cells by which carbohydrates, lipids, amino acids, and other important biomolecules are broken down to produce energy and biosynthesized. Previously known as Biology 262. (Same as Chemistry 232, previously known as Chemistry 262.)

Prerequisite: Biology/Chemistry 231 (previously known as Biology/Chemistry 261).

[243a. Methods in Environmental Science.]252a. Evolution of Marine Invertebrates. Fall 2003. Ms. JOHNSON.

Principles of evolution are studied through a phylogenetic, functional, and morphological examination of marine invertebrates. Living representatives of all major marine invertebrate phyla are observed. Information from the fossil record is used to elucidate causes and patterns of evolution. Lectures, three hours of laboratory or field work per week, and an individual research project are required.

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

253a. Comparative Neurobiology. Fall 2003. Ms. DICKINSON.

A comparative study of the function of the nervous system in invertebrate and vertebrate animals. Topics include the physiology of individual nerve cells and their organization into larger functional units, the behavioral responses of animals to cues from the environment, and the neural mechanisms underlying such behaviors. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Biology 104, and one from Biology 213, 214, or Psychology 218 (formerly Psychology 247).

254a. Biomechanics. Spring 2005. Ms. JOHNSON.

Examines the quantitative and qualitative characterization of organismal morphology, and explores the relationship of morphology to measurable components of an organism's mechanical, hydrodynamic, and ecological environment. Lectures, labs, field trips, and individual research projects emphasize (1) analysis of morphology, including analyses of the shape of individual organisms as well as of the mechanical and molecular organization of their tissues; (2) characterization of water flow associated with organisms; and (3) analyses of the ecological and mechanical consequences to organisms of their interaction with their environment. Introductory physics and calculus are strongly recommended.

255a. Human Genetics. Spring 2004. MR. STEINHART.

The genetics of humans is examined at all levels, from molecular to population. Topics include the inheritance of mutations, multifactorial traits, phenotypic variation, and sex determination. Discussions focus on case studies, genetic counseling, the impact of biotechnology, technical and ethical aspects of genetic engineering, and theories of human evolution. Includes student-led seminars.

Prerequisite: Biology 212 or permission of the instructor.

257a. Immunology. Fall 2005. Ms. MCBRIDE.

Covers the development of the immune response, the cell biology of the immune system, the nature of antigens, antibodies, B and T cells, and the complement system. The nature of natural immunity, transplantation immunology, and tumor immunology are also considered.

Prerequisite: Biology 212.

258a. Ornithology. Spring 2005. MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

Advanced study of the biology of birds, including anatomy, physiology, distribution, and systematics, with an emphasis on avian ecology and evolution. Through integrated laboratory sessions, field trips, discussion of the primary literature, and independent research, students learn identification of birds, functional morphology, and research techniques such as experimental design, behavioral observation, and field methods. Optional field trip to the Bowdoin Scientific Station on Kent Island.

Prerequisite: Biology 215 or 225.

263a. Laboratory in Molecular Biology and Biochemistry. Every semester. MR. STEINHART.

Comprehensive laboratory course in molecular biology and biochemistry that reflects how research is conducted and communicated. Includes sequential weekly experiments, resulting in a cohesive, semester-long research project. Begins with genetic engineering to produce a recombinant protein, continues with its purification, and finishes with functional and structural characterization. Emphasis is on cloning strategy, controlling protein expression, and protein characterization using techniques such as polymerase chain reaction, affinity chromatography, isoelectric focusing and high-performance liquid chromatography. Students also learn to manipulate data using structural and image analysis software. (Same as Chemistry 263.)

Prerequisite: Biology/Chemistry 231, previously known as Biology/Chemistry 261 (may be taken concurrently).

266a. Molecular Neurobiology. Spring 2004. Ms. HORCH.

Examination of the molecular control of neuronal structure and function. Topics include the molecular basis of neuronal excitability, the factors involved in chemical and contact-mediated neuronal communication, and the complex molecular control of developing and regenerating nervous systems. Weekly laboratories complement lectures by covering a range of molecular and cellular techniques used in neurobiology and culminate in brief independent projects. A weekend at the Nerve Net Science Meeting is required.

Prerequisite: Biology 104, and one from Biology 212, 213, 224, 231 (previously known as Biology 261), 253, or Psychology 218 (formerly Psychology 247).

280a. Plant Responses to the Environment. Fall 2004. MR. LOGAN.

Plants can be found growing under remarkably stressful conditions. Even your own backyard poses challenges to plant growth and reproduction. Survival is possible only because of a diverse suite of elegant physiological and morphological adaptations. The physiological ecology of plants from extreme habitats (e.g., tundra, desert, hypersaline) is discussed, along with the responses of plants to environmental factors such as light and temperature. Readings from the primary literature facilitate class discussion. Excursions into the field and laboratory exercises complement class material. (Same as Environmental Studies 280.)

Prerequisite: Biology 210.

291a–294a. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.303a. Virology. Spring 2005. MR. STEINHART.

A study of plant and animal viruses, beginning with lectures on fundamental virology and followed by student-led seminars based on the primary literature. Covers taxonomy, structure, replication, pathogenesis, epidemiology, and public health aspects of viruses.

Prerequisite: Biology 212, 218, or permission of instructor.

304a. Topics in Molecular Biology. Fall 2005. Ms. McBRIDE.

Seminar exploring the numerous roles of ribonucleic acid, from the discovery of RNA as a cellular messenger to the development of RNAs to treat disease. Topics covered also include: RNA enzymes, interactions of RNA viruses with host cells, RNA tools in biotechnology, and RNA as a potential origin of life. Focuses on discussions of papers from the primary literature.

Prerequisite: One from Biology 212, 218, 224, 231 (previously known as Biology 261), 232 (previously known as Biology 262), or permission of the instructor.

[306a. Free Radicals and Antioxidants.]

317a. Molecular Evolution. Fall 2003. MR. PALOPOLI.

The dynamics of evolutionary change at the molecular level are examined. Topics include: neutral theory of molecular evolution, rates and patterns of change in nucleotide sequences and proteins, molecular phylogenetics, and genome evolution. Explores the evolution of development and the application of molecular methods to traditional questions in evolutionary biology.

Prerequisite: Biology 212, 216, or 217, or permission of the instructor.

325a. Topics in Neuroscience. Fall 2005. MS. DICKINSON.

An advanced seminar focusing on one or more aspects of neuroscience, such as neuronal regeneration and development, modulation of neuronal activity, or the neural basis of behavior. Students read and discuss original papers from the literature.

Prerequisite: One from Biology 213, 253, 266, Psychology 275, or 276.

326a. Developmental Neurobiology. Spring 2004. MS. HORCH.

Advanced seminar exploring the principles involved in the development of individual neurons, circuits, and systems, with special focus on the relative influence of activity (experience) and molecular (genetic) factors. Based mainly on student presentations of primary literature, content is influenced by student interests. Potential topics include axon pathfinding and the dynamics of growth cones, synapse formation, neurotrophic factors, critical periods, pattern formation, and visual system development. In addition, students design and conduct individual projects investigating aspects of the development of neurons or neuronal systems.

Prerequisite: One from Biology 213, 253, 266, Psychology 275, 276, or permission of the instructor.

333a. Advanced Cell Biology: Signal Transduction from Microbes to Mammals. Fall 2003. MR. KOHORN.

An exploration of the multiple ways cells have evolved to transmit signals from their external environment to cause alterations in cell architecture, physiology, and gene expression. Examples are drawn from both single-cell and multi-cellular organisms, including bacteria, fungi, algae, land plants, insects, worms, and mammals. Emphasis is on the primary literature, with directed discussion and some background introductory remarks for each class.

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Class of '05 – '07), and one from the following: Biology 217, 224, 231 (previously known as Biology 261), 246, or 263.

401a–404a. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Requirements for the Major in Chemistry

The required courses are Chemistry 109, 119, or 159; 210, 225, 226, 240, 251, 252, 254; and any two upper-level electives: Chemistry 232 (previously known as 262) and courses at the 300 level or above. Students who have completed a rigorous secondary school chemistry course should begin with Chemistry 109 or 159. Chemistry 101/109 is an introductory course sequence for students wishing to have a full year of general chemistry at the college level. Chemistry 159 is an advanced introduction to college-level chemistry for students with AP credit or strong performance on the placement exam. First-year students must take the chemistry placement exam to ensure proper placement in 101, 109, or above. In addition to these chemistry courses, chemistry majors also are required to take Physics 103 and 104, and Mathematics 161 and 171.

The chemistry major can serve as preparation for many career paths after college, including the profession of chemistry, graduate studies in the sciences, medicine, secondary school teaching, and many fields in the business world. The department offers programs based on the interests and goals of the student, so a prospective major should discuss his or her plans with the department as soon as possible. Regardless of career goals, students are encouraged to develop their critical thinking and problem-solving skills by participating in a collaborative student-faculty research project (Chemistry 290, 400, or summer research).

The department also offers an American Chemical Society certified major in chemistry. The requirements for certification are met by taking advanced electives in chemistry (Chemistry 231 [previously known as 261], 310 and 340) and additional courses in mathematics. Students interested in this certification program should consult with the department.

The department encourages its students to round out the chemistry major with relevant courses in other departments, depending on individual needs. These might include electives in other departments that provide extensive opportunities for writing and speaking, or courses concerned with technology and society. Students interested in providing a particular interdisciplinary emphasis to their chemistry major should consider additional courses in biology and biochemistry, computer science, economics, education, geology, mathematics, or physics.

Independent Study

Students may engage in independent study at the intermediate (291–294) or advanced (401–404) level.

Interdisciplinary Majors

The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in biochemistry, chemical physics, environmental studies, and geology and chemistry. See pages 72, 124, 177, and 180.

Requirements for the Minor in Chemistry

The minor consists of five chemistry courses at or above the 100-level. Biochemistry majors may not minor in chemistry.

101a. Introductory Chemistry. Every fall. MR. PAGE.

A first course in a two-semester introductory college chemistry program. An introduction to the states of matter and their properties, the mole concept and stoichiometry, and selected properties of the elements. Lectures, conferences, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

First-year students must take the chemistry placement examination during orientation.

109a. General Chemistry. Every fall and spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

Introduction to models for chemical bonding and intermolecular forces; characterization of systems at equilibrium and spontaneous processes, including oxidation and reduction; and the rates of chemical reactions. Lectures, conferences, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: One year of high school chemistry with laboratory or Chemistry 101.

First-year students must take the chemistry placement examination during orientation.

159a. Advanced General Chemistry: Structure and Reactivity. Fall 2003. MS. STEMMLER.

For students with strong secondary school background in chemistry. An advanced version of Chemistry 109. Molecular structure and bonding, chemical equilibrium, thermodynamics, and kinetics are covered, with an emphasis on applications of chemistry to biology and environmental science. Lectures, conferences, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Advanced placement – 4/5, performance on the placement exam, or permission of the instructor.

210a. Chemical Analysis. Fall 2003. MS. STEMMLER.

Methods of separating and quantifying inorganic and organic compounds using volumetric, spectrophotometric, electrometric, and chromatographic techniques are covered. Chemical equilibria and the statistical analysis of data are addressed. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 109, 119, or 159.

225a. Organic Chemistry I. Fall 2003. MR. BROENE AND THE DEPARTMENT.

Introduction to the chemistry of the compounds of carbon. Provides the foundation for further work in organic chemistry and biochemistry. Lectures, conference, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 109, 119, or 159.

226a. Organic Chemistry II. Spring 2004. MR. BROENE AND THE DEPARTMENT.

Continuation of the study of the compounds of carbon. Chemistry 225 and 226 cover the material of the usual course in organic chemistry and form a foundation for further work in organic chemistry and biochemistry. Lectures, conference, and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 225.

231a. Biochemistry I. Every fall. MR. KOHORN.

Proteins and enzymes. An introduction to the chemistry and biology of small biological molecules, macromolecules, and membranes. Emphasis on biological processes including transcription, translation, and bioenergetics. Lectures and informally scheduled laboratories, based upon computer models of the chemical basis of biological mechanisms. Previously known as Chemistry 261. (Same as Biology 231, previously known as Biology 261.)

Prerequisite: Chemistry 226.

232a. Biochemistry II. Every spring. MR. PAGE.

An introduction to metabolism. Topics include pathways in living cells by which carbohydrates, lipids, amino acids, and other important biomolecules are broken down to produce energy and biosynthesized. Previously known as Chemistry 262. (Same as Biology 232, previously known as Biology 262.)

Prerequisite: Biology/Chemistry 231 (previously known as Biology/Chemistry 261).

240a. Inorganic Chemistry. Spring 2003. MR. NAGLE.

An introduction to the chemistry of the elements with a focus on chemical bonding, periodic properties, and coordination compounds. Topics in solid state, bioinorganic, and environmental inorganic chemistry also are included. Provides a foundation for further work in chemistry and biochemistry. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 109, 119, or 159.

251a. Physical Chemistry I. Every fall. MR. PETERSON.

Thermodynamics and its application to chemical changes and equilibria that occur in the gaseous, solid, and liquid states. The behavior of systems at equilibrium and chemical reaction kinetics are related to molecular properties by means of the kinetic theory of gases, the laws of thermodynamics and transition state theory.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 109, 119, or 159; Physics 104; and Mathematics 171, or permission of the instructor. Mathematics 181 is recommended.

252a. Physical Chemistry II. Every spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

Development and principles of quantum mechanics with applications to atomic structure, chemical bonding, chemical reactivity, and molecular spectroscopy.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 109, 119, or 159; Physics 104; and Mathematics 171, or permission of the instructor. Mathematics 181 is recommended.

Note: Chemistry 251 is not a prerequisite for Chemistry 252.

254a. Physical Chemistry Laboratory. Every spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

Experiments in thermodynamics, kinetics, spectroscopy, and quantum chemistry. Modern methods, such as vibrational and electronic spectroscopy, calorimetry, and time-resolved kinetics measurements, are used to verify and explore fundamental concepts in physical chemistry. In addition, instrumental topics are discussed. These include digital electronics, computer-based data acquisition, and the use of pulsed and continuous wave lasers. Emphasis is placed on understanding concepts, on a modular approach to experimental design, and on the development of scientific writing skills. Lectures and four hours of laboratory work per week.

263a. Laboratory in Molecular Biology and Biochemistry. Every semester. MR. STEINHART.

Comprehensive laboratory course in molecular biology and biochemistry that reflects how research is conducted and communicated. Includes sequential weekly experiments, resulting in a cohesive, semester-long research project. Begins with genetic engineering to produce a recombinant protein, continues with its purification, and finishes with functional and structural characterization. Emphasis is on cloning strategy, controlling protein expression, and protein characterization using techniques such as polymerase chain reaction, affinity chromatography, isoelectric focusing and high-performance liquid chromatography. Students also learn to manipulate data using structural and image analysis software. (Same as Biology 263.)

Prerequisite: Biology/Chemistry 231, previously known as Biology/Chemistry 261 (may be taken concurrently).

310a. Instrumental Analysis. Spring 2004. Ms. STEMMLER.

Theoretical and practical aspects of instrumental techniques, including nuclear magnetic resonance spectroscopy, infrared spectroscopy, Raman spectroscopy, and mass spectrometry are covered, in conjunction with advanced chromatographic methods. Applications of instrumental techniques to the analysis of biological and environmental samples are covered. Lectures and two hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 210 or permission of the instructor.

320a. Advanced Organic Chemistry: Organometallic Chemistry. Fall 2003. MR. BROENE.

In-depth study of compounds containing metal-carbon bonds and their reactions, with emphasis on synthesis and spectroscopy. A mechanistic approach is used to discover how these species act as catalysts or intermediates in synthetic organic reactions. Special techniques for handling these often sensitive molecules are introduced. Lectures and four hours of laboratory every two weeks.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 226 and 240.

330a. Biochemical Toxicology. Spring 2004. MR. PAGE.

Provides an explanation of dose-response relationships, disposition and metabolism of toxic substances, and toxic responses of organisms to foreign compounds. Examples illustrating mechanisms of toxicity will be discussed. Concepts and mechanisms from organic chemistry and biochemistry are applied to understanding the biochemical effects of toxic substances. Case studies will include a discussion of the mechanisms of the acute toxicity of pesticides and the possible relationships between environmental exposures to pesticides and human health.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 226 and 251. Chemistry 232 (previously known as Chemistry 262) is strongly recommended.

340a. Advanced Inorganic Chemistry. Fall 2003. MR. NAGLE.

An in-depth coverage of inorganic chemistry. Spectroscopic and mechanistic studies of coordination and organometallic compounds, including applications to bioinorganic chemistry, are emphasized. Symmetry and applications of group theory are included.

Prerequisites: Chemistry 240 or permission of the instructor. Chemistry 252 is recommended.

354a. Proteins: Dynamics, Function, Photochemistry. Fall 2003. MR. KHOLODENKO.

Studies dynamical aspects of protein structure and the connection between protein dynamics and function, including dynamics of processes triggered by light. Presents topics in photobiology (photosynthesis, vision, phototropism, circadian rhythms) in a broader context of photophysics and photochemistry. Experimental and theoretical methods of modern photophysics and photochemistry are discussed in detail as background information. In addition to lectures, focus is on readings and discussion of the primary literature in the field.

Prerequisite: Chemistry 231 (previously known as Chemistry 261) and Physics 104, or permission of the instructor. Chemistry 252 is recommended.

[360a. Molecular Medicine.]291a–294a. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Laboratory or literature-based investigation of a topic in chemistry. Topics are determined by the student and a supervising faculty member.

401a–404a. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Advanced version of Chemistry 291–294 for students in their senior year. Students are expected to demonstrate a higher level of ownership of their research problem. This course may be used to meet the requirements for departmental honors for qualified students.

The Department of Classics offers two major programs: one with a focus on language and literature (Classics), and one with a focus on classical archaeology (Classics/Archaeology). Students pursuing either major are encouraged to study not only the languages and literatures but also the physical monuments of Greece and Rome. This approach is reflected in the requirements for the two major programs: for each, requirements in Greek and/or Latin and in classical archaeology must be fulfilled.

Classics

The classics program is arranged to accommodate both those students who have studied no classical languages and those who have had extensive training in Latin and Greek. The objective of classics courses is to study the ancient languages and literatures in the original. By their very nature, these courses involve students in the politics, history, and philosophies of antiquity. Advanced language courses focus on the analysis of textual material and on literary criticism.

Requirements for the Major in Classics

The major in classics consists of ten courses. At least six of the ten courses are to be chosen from offerings in Greek and Latin and should include at least two courses in Greek or Latin at the 300 level; one of the remaining courses should be Archaeology 101 or 102. Students concentrating in one of the languages are encouraged to take at least two courses in the other. As a capstone to this major, the senior seminar (Classics 399) is required.

Classics/Archaeology

Within the broader context of classical studies, the classics/archaeology program pays special attention to the physical remains of classical antiquity. Students studying classical archaeology should develop an understanding of how archaeological evidence can contribute to our knowledge of the past, and of how archaeological study interacts with such related disciplines as philology, history, and art history. In particular, they should acquire an appreciation for the unique balance of written and physical sources that makes classical archaeology a central part of classical studies.

Requirements for the Major in Classics/Archaeology

The major in classics/archaeology consists of ten courses. At least five of the ten courses are to be chosen from offerings in archaeology, and should include Archaeology 101, 102, and at least one archaeology course at the 300 level. At least four of the remaining courses are to be chosen from offerings in Greek or Latin, and should include at least one at the 300 level. As a capstone to this major, the senior seminar (Classics 399) is required.

Interdisciplinary Major

The department participates in an interdisciplinary program in archaeology and art history. See page 177.

Requirements for the Minor

Students may choose a minor in one of five areas:

1. Greek: Five courses in the department, including at least four in the Greek language;
2. Latin: Five courses in the department, including at least four in the Latin language;
3. Classics: Five courses in the department, including at least four in the classical languages; of these four, one should be either Greek 204 or Latin 205 or 206;
4. Archaeology: Six courses in the department, including either Archaeology 101 or 102, one archaeology course at the 300 level, and two other archaeology courses;
5. Classical Studies (Greek or Roman): Six courses, including:
 - a. —for the Greek studies concentration:
 - two courses in the Greek language;
 - Archaeology 101;
 - one of the following: Classics 17 (or any other appropriate first-year seminar), Classics 101, 102, or 211; or Philosophy 111; or Government 240;
 - and two of the following: Archaeology 203 or any 300-level archaeology course focusing primarily on Greek material; Philosophy 331 or 335; Classics 291–294 (Independent Study) or any 200- or 300-level Greek or classics course focusing primarily on Greek material.

b. —for the Roman studies concentration:

two courses in the Latin language;

Archaeology 102;

one of the following: Classics 16 (or any other appropriate first-year seminar), Classics 101, 102, or 212; or Philosophy 111; or Government 240;

and two of the following: Archaeology 204 or any 300-level archaeology course focusing primarily on Roman material; or Classics 291–294 (Independent Study) or any 200- or 300-level Latin or classics course focusing primarily on Roman material.

Other courses in the Bowdoin curriculum may be applied to this minor if approved by the Classics Department.

Classics and Archaeology at Bowdoin and Abroad

Archaeology classes regularly use the outstanding collection of ancient art in the Bowdoin College Museum of Art. Of special note are the exceptionally fine holdings in Greek painted pottery and the very full and continuous survey of Greek and Roman coins. In addition, there are numerous opportunities for study or work abroad. Bowdoin is a participating member of the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome, where students in both major programs can study in the junior year (see page 44). It is also possible to receive course credit for field experience on excavations. Interested students should consult members of the department for further information.

Students contemplating graduate study in classics or classical archaeology are advised to begin the study of at least one modern language in college, as most graduate programs require competence in French and German as well as in Latin and Greek.

ARCHAEOLOGY

Archaeology 101 and 102 are offered in alternate years.

101c. Introduction to Greek Archaeology. Fall 2003. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

Introduces the techniques and methods of classical archaeology as revealed through an examination of Greek material culture. Emphasis upon the major monuments and artifacts of the Greek world from prehistory to the Hellenistic age. Architecture, sculpture, fresco painting, and other “minor arts” are examined at such sites as Knossos, Mycenae, Athens, Delphi, and Olympia. Considers the nature of this archaeological evidence and the relationship of classical archaeology to other disciplines such as art history, history, and classics. Assigned reading supplements illustrated presentations of the major archaeological finds of the Greek world. (Same as Art History 209.)

102c. Introduction to Roman Archaeology. Fall 2004. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

Surveys the material culture of Roman society, from Italy’s prehistory and the origins of the Roman state through its development into a cosmopolitan empire, and concludes with the fundamental reorganization during the late third and early fourth centuries of our era. Lectures explore ancient sites such as Rome, Pompeii, Athens, Ephesus, and others around the Mediterranean. Emphasis upon the major monuments and artifacts of the Roman era: architecture, sculpture, fresco painting, and other “minor arts.” Considers the nature of this archaeological evidence and the relationship of classical archaeology to other disciplines such as art history, history, and classics. Assigned reading supplements illustrated presentations of the major archaeological finds of the Roman world. (Same as Art History 210.)

201c. Archaeology of the Hellenistic World. Spring 2004. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

Examines the reign and legacy of Alexander the Great, as evidenced in the archaeological record. From his accession to the throne of Macedonia in 336 B.C., until his untimely death in 323 B.C., Alexander extended the boundaries of the Greek world from the Balkans to Egypt, Mesopotamia, and Asia as far as the Indus River. Covers the dramatic developments in sculpture, painting, architecture, and the minor arts in the cosmopolitan Greek world from the time of Alexander the Great until the advent of Rome in the first century B.C. Assigned readings supplement illustrated presentations of the major monuments and artifact sessions in the Bowdoin College Museum of Art.

[205c. Historia Naturalis: Society and the Environment in the Ancient Mediterranean.]

233c. Egypt and the Roman World. Fall 2003. MS. SWETNAM-BURLAND.

Studies the role of ancient Egypt, after its conquest by Rome, as breadbasket of the Roman world, exporter of ideas and religions, and "melting pot" of the ancient world, a crucible for new ideas and traditions. Explores the impact of Roman rule in Egypt, and the corresponding influence of Egyptian culture and religion on the rest of the Roman world. Examines a range of materials, from monumental Alexandrian tombs to mummy portraits to the great temples of Isis in Rome. Topics will include the Roman army in Egypt, the reign of Cleopatra, daily life in Egyptian towns, and the influence of the goddess Isis and other Egyptian deities throughout the Empire. (Same as Classics 233.)

At least one 300-level archaeology course is offered each year. Topics and/or periods recently taught on this level include: the Greek bronze age; Etruscan art and archaeology; Greek and Roman numismatics; Pompeii and the cities of Vesuvius. The 300-level course scheduled for 2003–2004 is:

302c. Ancient Numismatics. Spring 2004. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

Surveys Greek and Roman coinage by examining a series of problems ranging chronologically from the origins of coinage in the seventh century B.C. to the late Roman empire. How do uses of coinage in Greek and Roman society differ from those of the modern era? How does numismatic evidence inform us about ancient political and social, as well as economic, history? One class each week is held in the Bowdoin College Museum of Art, and course assignments are based on coins in the collection.

CLASSICS

First-Year Seminar

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

16c. Cultural Connections in the Ancient Mediterranean. Fall 2003. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

Classics 101 and 102 are offered in alternate years.

101c. Classical Mythology. Spring 2004. Ms. BOYD.

Focuses on the mythology of the Greeks and the use of myth in Classical literature. Other topics considered are: recurrent patterns and motifs in Greek myths; a cross-cultural study of ancient creation myths; the relation of mythology to religion; women's roles in myth; and the application of modern anthropological, sociological, and psychological theories to classical myth. Concludes with an examination of Ovid's use of classical mythology in the Metamorphoses.

102c. Introduction to Ancient Greek Culture. Spring 2005. THE DEPARTMENT.

Introduces students to the study of the literature and culture of ancient Greece. Examines different Greek responses to issues such as religion and the role of gods in human existence, heroism, the natural world, the individual and society, and competition; considers forms of Greek rationalism, the flourishing of various literary and artistic media, Greek experimentation with different political systems, and concepts of Hellenism and barbarism. Investigates not only what we do and do not know about ancient Greece, but also the types of evidence and methodologies with which we construct this knowledge. Evidence is drawn primarily from the works of authors such as Homer, Sappho, Herodotus, Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Thucydides, Aristophanes, Plato, and Hippocrates, but attention is also given to documentary and artistic sources. All readings are done in translation.

[202c. Augustan Rome.]

[204c. Pagans and Christians: Art and Society in Late Antiquity.]

211c. History of Ancient Greece: Bronze Age to the Death of Alexander. Spring 2004. MR. HERRMAN.

Surveys the history of Greek-speaking peoples from the Bronze Age (c. 3000–1100 B.C.) to the death of Alexander the Great in 323 B.C. Traces the political, economic, social, religious, and cultural developments of the Greeks in the broader context of the Mediterranean world. Topics include the institution of the polis (city-state); hoplite warfare; Greek colonization; the origins of Greek "science," philosophy, and rhetoric; and fifth-century Athenian democracy and imperialism. Necessarily focuses on Athens and Sparta, but attention is also given to the variety of social and political structures found in different Greek communities. Special attention is given to examining and attempting to understand the distinctively Greek outlook in regard to gender, the relationship between human and divine, freedom, and the divisions between Greeks and barbarians (non-Greeks). A variety of sources—literary, epigraphical, archaeological—are presented, and students learn how to use them as historical documents.

212c. Ancient Rome. Spring 2005. Ms. POLINSKAYA.

Surveys the history of Rome from its beginnings to the fourth century A.D. Considers the political, economic, religious, social, and cultural developments of the Romans in the context of Rome's growth from a small settlement in central Italy to the dominant power in the Mediterranean world. Special attention is given to such topics as urbanism, imperialism, the influence of Greek culture and law, and multiculturalism. The course introduces different types of sources—literary, epigraphical, archaeological, etc.—and students learn how to use them as historical documents. (Same as History 202.)

[224c. Ancient Greek Medicine.]

233c. Egypt and the Roman World. Fall 2003. Ms. SWETNAM-BURLAND.

Studies the role of ancient Egypt, after its conquest by Rome, as breadbasket of the Roman world, exporter of ideas and religions, and “melting pot” of the ancient world, a crucible for new ideas and traditions. Explores the impact of Roman rule in Egypt, and the corresponding influence of Egyptian culture and religion on the rest of the Roman world. Examines a range of materials, from monumental Alexandrian tombs to mummy portraits to the great temples of Isis in Rome. Topics will include the Roman army in Egypt, the reign of Cleopatra, daily life in Egyptian towns, and the influence of the goddess Isis and other Egyptian deities throughout the Empire. (Same as Archaeology 233.)

399c. Senior Seminar for Classics and Classics/Archaeology Majors. Every fall. Ms. BOYD AND THE DEPARTMENT.

The senior seminar brings together students majoring in Classics and Classics/Archaeology. Its goals are to unite majors with different concentrations and expertise in an in-depth study of an aspect of classical culture or period in ancient history; ensure students’ grasp of the interdisciplinary nature of classical studies; provide an intelligent introduction to major research tools used by scholars focusing on different aspects of the discipline; encourage collaborative work among majors and between students and faculty; and prepare those students who wish to proceed to an honors project in the spring semester. This seminar is required of all majors.

GREEK

101c. Elementary Greek. Every fall. MR. HERRMAN.

Introduces students to basic elements of ancient Greek grammar and syntax; emphasizes the development of reading proficiency and includes readings, both adapted and in the original, of various Greek authors. Focuses on Attic dialect.

102c. Elementary Greek. Every spring. MR. HERRMAN.

A continuation of Greek 101; introduces students to more complex grammar and syntax, while emphasizing the development of reading proficiency. Includes readings, both adapted and in the original, of Greek authors such as Plato and Euripides. Focuses on Attic dialect.

203c. Intermediate Greek for Reading. Every fall. Ms. SWETNAM-BURLAND.

A review of the essentials of Greek grammar and syntax and an introduction to the reading of Greek prose and sometimes poetry. Materials to be read change from year to year, but always include a major prose work. Equivalent of Greek 102 or two to three years of high school Greek is required.

204c. Homer. Every spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

At least one advanced Greek course is offered each year. The aim of each of these courses is to give students the opportunity for sustained reading and discussion of at least one major author or genre representative of classical Greek literature. Primary focus is on the texts, with serious attention given as well both to the historical context from which these works emerged and to contemporary discussions and debates concerning these works.

Department faculty generally attempt to schedule offerings in response to the needs and interests of concentrators. Topics and/or authors frequently taught on this level include: Greek lyric and elegiac poetry; Homer’s Odyssey; Greek drama (including the tragedies of Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides, and the comedies of Aristophanes and Menander); Greek history (including Herodotus and Thucydides); Greek philosophy (including Plato and Aristotle); Greek rhetoric and oratory; and the literature of the Alexandrian era. The 300-level courses scheduled for 2003–2004 include:

[302c. Lyric Poetry.]

[303c. The Historians.]

306c. Plato and Aristotle. Spring 2004. MR. HERRMAN.

LATIN

101c. Elementary Latin. Every fall. Ms. BOYD.

A thorough presentation of the elements of Latin grammar. Emphasis is placed on achieving a reading proficiency.

102c. Elementary Latin. Every spring. Ms. SWETNAM-BURLAND.

A continuation of Latin 101. During this term, readings are based on unaltered passages of classical Latin.

203c. Intermediate Latin for Reading. Every fall. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

A review of the essentials of Latin grammar and syntax and an introduction to the reading of Latin prose and poetry. Materials to be read change from year to year, but always include a major prose work. Equivalent of Latin 102 or two to three years of high school Latin is required.

204c. Studies in Latin Literature. Every spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to different genres and themes in Latin literature. The subject matter and authors covered may change from year to year (e.g., selections from Virgil's Aeneid and Livy's History, or from Lucretius, Ovid, and Cicero), but attention is always given to the historical and literary context of the authors read. While the primary focus is on reading Latin texts, some readings from Latin literature in translation are also assigned. Equivalent of Latin 203 or three to four years of high school Latin is required.

Latin 205 and 206 are offered in alternate years.

205c. Latin Poetry. Every other year. Fall 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to the appreciation and analysis of works by the major Latin poets. Readings include selections from poets such as Catullus, Lucretius, Horace, Virgil, and/or Ovid. Equivalent of Latin 204 or four years (or more) of high school Latin is required.

206c. Roman Comedy. Every other year. Fall 2003. Ms. BOYD.

An introduction to the earliest complete texts that survive from Latin antiquity, the plays of Plautus and Terence. One or two plays are read in Latin, and several others in English translation. Students are introduced to modern scholarship on the history and interpretation of Roman theater.

One advanced Latin course is offered each semester. The aim of each of these courses is to give students the opportunity for sustained reading and discussion of at least one major author or genre representative of classical Latin literature. Primary focus is on the texts, with serious attention given as well both to the historical context from which these works emerged and to contemporary discussions and debates concerning these works.

Department faculty generally attempt to schedule offerings in response to the needs and interests of concentrators. Topics and/or authors frequently taught on this level include: Roman history (including Sallust, Livy, and Tacitus); Ovid's Metamorphoses; Elegiac poetry; Cicero's oratory; Virgil's Aeneid or Eclogues and Georgics; Roman novel (including Petronius and Apuleius); satire; and comedy (including Plautus and Terence). The 300-level courses scheduled for 2003–2004 include:

[301c. The Historians.]

304c. Cicero and Roman Oratory. Fall 2003. MR. HERRMAN.

305c. Virgil's Aeneid. Spring 2004. MS. BOYD.

[306c. The Roman Novel.]

[392c. Catullus.]

Independent Study in Greek, Latin, Archaeology, and Classics

291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

401c–404c. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Colby-Bates-Bowdoin Off-Campus Study Programs

Colby, Bates, and Bowdoin Colleges (CBB) collaborate in running study abroad centers in Cape Town, South Africa; London, England; and Quito, Ecuador. Each center runs up to three programs per semester, encompassing a wide variety of courses; a different set of programs is offered each year. CBB faculty members direct and teach in the programs. Courses are designed to make full use of the instructional and cultural resources of the region, through such methods as instruction by local scholars, homestays, community service, and internships. Students take two or three courses in a specific program, and one or two electives in areas of more general interest. The programs are centrally administered at Bowdoin by the CBB off-campus study program administrator.

CBB CAPE TOWN

A program is offered in both the fall and spring semester. Students take two courses with the program and two at the University of Cape Town.

The Oral History Workshop. Fall 2003. MR. STAKEMAN.

South Africa is a place where everyone has a story to tell. How can we translate these stories into a “people’s history” of South Africa? The first part of the course is an explanation and discussion of how to do an oral history project. Topics include research and design, how to identify subjects, the ethnographic interview, how to use interviews historically, how to coordinate oral and written sources. Students practice using equipment to conduct mock interviews, then use this knowledge to design and execute approved historical research projects in South Africa.

A History of Apartheid 1948-1994. Fall 2003. MR. STAKEMAN.

Whatever else it was, apartheid was a major feat of social engineering. How was it able to become the dominant ideology of South Africa? How was it able to convince people to follow its tenets? How was it able to translate its ideas into practice? This course looks at the background and events that led to the Nationalist Party victory which instituted apartheid in 1948, the development of apartheid's ideology, its organization and implementation, and its effects on the people of South Africa. The course examines the anti-apartheid movement, its organization, changing ideologies, iconography, and effects, then shows how the two interacted to end apartheid and form the new South Africa. Students will design and execute a final project that may be a paper, a Web page, or a video using primary documents, photos, and interviews.

World Myth and Film. Spring 2004. MR. O'NEILL.

Begins with the theoretical background, methodology, and vocabulary needed to discuss ancient and modern myths, whether they are transcribed on paper or recorded on film. Studies theories of myth (psychoanalytic, structuralist, etc.) and film theory and criticism; proceeds to the study of myths and films from all over the globe on topics of particular relevance to the modern world, with particular attention to myths drawn from the oral traditions of South Africa (particularly Xhosa and Zulu myth). Through discussion and a series of short papers, students will address such questions as: Is there a method common to humanity for palliating recurring sexual, social and political dilemmas? Do ancient and modern cultures confront them in similar or different ways? What lessons can we learn from each culture's mediation of the oppositions of male and female, rich and poor, familiar and unfamiliar, etc.? Topics will include: the hero, coming of age, sexuality, gender roles, plague and punishment, rape and society, etc. Readings from Beowulf, Gilgamesh, The Odyssey, The Táin, Oedipus Rex, The African Storyteller, and Metamorphoses, inter alia. Films may include Star Wars, The Matrix, Crouching Tiger Hidden Dragon, Chinatown, Lone Star, Blade Runner and The Usual Suspects.

Crisis and Catharsis: Myth and the Visual Media in South Africa. Spring 2004. MR. O'NEILL.

South Africa is currently experiencing the excitement, challenges and growing pains of a major social and political transformation. As part of that transformation, South Africa is confronting issues of gender, sexuality, rape, disease, social hierarchy and political change, etc. Film and popular television dramas have become vehicles to explore these themes, which have previously been treated in the myths and folktales of various cultures within and outside South Africa.

Follows a seminar format, with a mixture of guest lectures, discussions, student presentations and group outings. Guest lecturers present some of the greatest challenges facing South Africa, e.g. AIDS, race relations, women's rights, and rape. Documentaries, films, and class discussions draw parallels between social problems and the myths and films studied in World Myth and Film. Includes weekly student response papers recording analyses of television dramas in light of both the guest lectures and students' growing knowledge of mythic treatment of these social issues. Includes regular viewing of the latest popular African films, with response papers and discussion. At the end of the semester, students submit a major research paper providing a detailed analysis of one of the television dramas (or possibly one of the films), making full use of all they have learned about film, myth, and the challenges facing South Africa. Each student also makes a formal presentation to the class based on his or her paper, and then participates in a class discussion.

CBB LONDON

Programs are offered in both the fall and spring semesters. Students take the program courses plus one or two other courses to bring their course load to four. In addition to program courses, there are also a variety of other courses taught by local London faculty members.

BIOMEDICAL SCIENCES

The Biomedical Science program is offered in conjunction with the University of East London (UEL). Students take a course offered by Mr. Andrew Roberts, one or two courses at the university, and one or two electives. The Biomedical Science program has a prerequisite of one year of college-level biology and chemistry.

Human Genetics. Biomedical Sciences. Fall 2003. MR. ROBERTS.

Explores cytogenetics and genomics, developmental genetics, population genetics, and transgenics. Includes a small laboratory component, visiting lecturers, and field trips to such places as the Human Genome Project, Cambridge, or a meeting at the Royal Society of London.

Introductory Pharmacology. Fall 2003. UEL COURSE.

Provides an understanding of the mechanisms by which drugs modify cellular processes, and how physiological factors can influence drug action. Covers the concepts of drug receptors; pharmacodynamics; types of receptors, criteria, evidence, and diversity of neurotransmitters found in the central and peripheral nervous systems; introduction to autacoids; and pharmacokinetics.

Physiological Function and Dysfunction. Fall 2003. UEL COURSE.

Builds on the knowledge of physiological systems introduced in Level 1 Human Physiology, with new information on normal anatomical and histological structure, and the recognition and aetiology of selected disorders. Covers blood; the cardiovascular, respiratory, digestive, urinary, and endocrine systems; reproduction; and laboratory/IT skills. Students learn to communicate the processes of normal structure and physiological function, with examples of dysfunction; use laboratory procedures to identify normal and dysfunctional results, and record and analyse data; and use sources to research normal functioning and the aetiology of selected diseases.

Medical Biotechnology I. Fall 2003. UEL COURSE.

Provides in-depth treatment of selected topics in medical molecular biology and biotechnology, concentrating on the basic techniques and concepts associated with the rapidly advancing field of genetic and protein engineering. Covers recombinant DNA technology; the molecular analysis of disease; nuclear and organelle genomes; cell communication and adhesion; and glycoproteins, fibrous proteins, and cytoskeletal proteins.

Infectious Disease Process. Fall 2003. UEL COURSE.

Extends students' knowledge and understanding of the interactions between pathogens and their hosts. Covers bacterial pathogenesis—pathogenesis mechanisms, evasion of host response, gene expression, and mycobacterial pathogenesis; virology—virus pathogenesis, and epidemiology, diagnosis, and pathogenesis of a range of human viruses including HIV and AIDS; and protozoology—life cycles, pathogenesis, diagnosis, problems of control, with an emphasis on malaria.

Toxicology. Fall 2003. UEL COURSE.

Covers biological and biological factors that influence toxicity, toxicity testing, reproductive and behavioral toxicology, and social and economic aspects of toxicology. Students learn to understand the biological and chemical factors that influence toxicity in animals and humans, appreciate and discuss the legislative framework for risk assessment in toxicology, analyze qualitative and quantitative toxicological data, and record and interpret experimental data.

Medical Physiology. 2003. UEL COURSE.

Designed to increase knowledge of the complexity of the pathogenesis, and current and future treatments of some of the more common cardiorespiratory and neuropsychiatric disorders. On successful completion of the course, students should be able to critically discuss the multifactorial aetiology of, and treatments for, the more common cardiovascular, respiratory, neurodegenerative and psychiatric disorders; demonstrate an understanding of the effect of exercise and non-exercise stressors on the human body; and collect data from both in vitro and in vivo laboratory studies, and analyze and interpret the findings.

*PHILOSOPHYThe Concepts of Race and Gender. Fall 2003. MR. OKRENT.

British and American societies, among many others, classify persons in terms of their gender and their race. How these classifications are made and who belongs to which class have enormous consequences for the people classified. But the basis for these classifications is anything but clear. Are someone's race and gender social facts about a person, or are they biological facts? How are determinations rooted in the biology of a group different from determinations based on social relations within that group? Raises these issues in the cross-cultural context of the similarities and differences between American and British ways of applying these kinds of concepts and attempts to illuminate the nature of race and gender concepts with the help of the techniques of conceptual analysis which were developed in Britain in the first sixty years of the twentieth century.

The Rise of Philosophical Analysis. Fall 2003. MR. OKRENT.

Explores the history of twentieth-century British philosophy by examining the methods and characteristic doctrines of two successive British philosophical movements. Focuses first on the early twentieth-century attempt, pioneered by Russell and the early Wittgenstein, to apply the newly developed techniques of formal logic to the analysis of the cognitive significance of our ordinary ways of talking. Considers the way in which a later generation of "ordinary language" philosophers, including Ryle, Austin, and the later Wittgenstein, reacted against this attempt. Provides a valuable and familiar part of the curriculum for all junior philosophy majors, while at the same time being accessible to non-philosophy students. Readings are taken from the works of Russell, G.E. Moore, Wittgenstein, Ayer, Ryle, and Austin.

*LITERATURELondon Amusements: 1770-1820. Fall 2003. MR. COLLINGS.

Examines the emergence of a wide array of new urban pleasures in the era when London took its distinctive shape as a great modern city. Drawing on a number of disciplines, the course is anchored in the period's literature, especially in readings that depicted or participated in London life (such as Goldsmith, Sheridan, Burney, Wordsworth, Hazlitt, Keats), but also includes discussions of works of art exhibited in its galleries (Gainsborough, Reynolds, Turner, Constable); visits to public gardens, gathering places, and museums which emerged as places of public enjoyment, display, curiosity, and instruction (Kew Gardens, Regent's Park, Covent Garden, the British Museum); visits to buildings that exemplify Adam and Regency style in architecture; and discussions of new styles of clothing, manners, and social behavior, particularly in relation to gender, sexuality, and social class.

Rural England. Fall 2003. MR. COLLINGS.

Discusses writing emerging from rural England during and after the growing dominance of urban centers, primarily in the past two centuries, with emphasis on the way authors conceive of rural life as resistance to urban life, as the cultivation of the local or traditional, as the site for more elemental forms of living or working, or as a world that haunts a largely urbanized present. Authors may include Wordsworth, Austen, Clare, Hardy, Lawrence, Forster, Thorpe, and Sebald.

*GOVERNMENTLondon and the Politics of International Finance. Spring 2004. MR. LAURENCE.

London is the epicenter of the world's financial markets, and has been for the past two hundred years. Takes advantage of London's unique position as the cradle of economic globalization to examine how international finance affects national politics and vice-versa. Begins with a historical perspective on globalization: in the late nineteenth century, the "western" world (Europe and North America) was more economically integrated than it is now, and London was the center of both trade and finance. British banks bankrolled America's economic expansion in much the same way that U.S. banks now finance Asia's miracle. As the world's sole economic superpower, the U.K. set and enforced the rules of the international financial system (the Gold Standard), and undertook to provide stability and political leadership in the world economy. How does British financial hegemony in the 19th century compare to U.S. hegemony today, and what lessons, if any, can we learn from the past?

The second half of the course looks at the interplay of financial globalization and domestic politics today and on the effects of "hot money" on national sovereignty, democracy, and equality and social justice. Are governments helpless in the face of the international capital markets, or can they control them? And if so, how and with what consequences? Britain receives particular attention but we also look at other countries.

British Media and Politics in Global Perspective. Spring 2004. MR. LAURENCE.

What effects do the mass media—newspapers, TV, pop culture and Internet—have on politics and society? Do commercial pressures on media corporations lead to a "dumbing down" of news and a weakening of democratic discourse? Is the alternative—public provision of news and information—any better? Will the Information Technology revolution empower more citizens or exacerbate divisions between information "haves" and "have-nots"? Should the media be regulated, and if so, how, why and by whom?

From the authority of the British Broadcasting Corporation to the sleaze of the "Sun," Britain offers a unique opportunity to study at first hand how these questions are answered, and the course will take full advantage of close proximity of Fleet Street—ancestral home to Britain's most influential newspapers—and Shepard's Bush, headquarters of the BBC.

Specifically, the course examines how differences in the ownership and regulation of media affect how news is selected and presented, and examines various forms of government censorship and commercial self-censorship. Looks at the role of the media and "pop culture" in creating national identities, perpetuating ethnic stereotypes, and providing regime legitimation. Extensive comparisons will be made to other countries including the U.S. and Japan.

THEATER

Students take an acting course, Voice and Movement, Contemporary British Theater, and one elective course. Students will, depending upon experience, be placed into one of the two acting courses offered.

Physical Theater and Performance. Spring 2004. Ms. ENGLAND.

Explore contemporary modes of physical theater and performance in British and European theater. By working together in an ensemble, students learn a basic physical theater vocabulary. The emphasis of the course is to develop new skills, explore the group imagination and apply the techniques to a wide range of large scale playtexts, including Greek tragedy, Shakespeare, Restoration comedy, and modern European playwrights. Theater games engage the students physically and mentally, encouraging the development of physical and vocal confidence, and by learning new performance skills the students create a unique ensemble. This course is for students with limited acting experience.

Professional Skills Acting Workshop. Spring 2004. Ms. SULLIVAN.

For actors and directors developing the professional skills used in theater, film, and television. Sight-reading, monologue work, scene study, interview technique, and creating a resume are all explored in the first half of the semester, using a wide range of texts and styles from Shakespeare to Harold Pinter. During the second half of the term, the class chooses a project for performance. Past work has included one act plays, devised workshop performances, and Jacobean play texts. A final performance is given for the CBB faculty and students during exam week. This course is designed for students with some acting experience.

Voice and Movement. Spring 2004. Ms. RABINOWITZ.

Meets four times a week and is taught by Ms. Anna Rabinowitz, a professional director and choreographer of acting, movement, and dance from the Royal Academy of Music.

Contemporary British Theater. Spring 2004. Mr. GORDON.

A study of the relationship of dramatic text to theatrical performance in the contemporary London theater. A variety of types of theater is explored. Students attend twelve productions. Assignments include exams, quizzes, and analytical papers.

CENTER COURSES

Center courses are taught by London faculty and are not associated with an academic program.

Text and Performance. Fall 2003 and Spring 2004. Ms. SULLIVAN AND Ms. ENGLAND.

London is the capital of world theater and this course focuses on the wide range of plays and production styles in both the West End and fringe venues. Explores an exciting diversity in performance styles, keeping abreast of the latest trends and innovations in performance, design, writing, and music. Students see approximately twelve plays (including one musical), ranging from Shakespeare and Greek tragedy to works by the latest modern British playwrights. Seminars concentrate on an analysis of the productions and supporting play-text work. Background classes on theater history, the organization, economics, and social political aspects of modern British theater, criticism, and review writing and any other topics specifically relevant to the choice of plays. Field trips, including a backstage tour of the National Theatre, and a visit to Shakespeare's reconstructed Globe Theatre Museum.

Introduction to Acting and Communication Skills. Fall 2003. Ms. SULLIVAN AND Ms. ENGLAND.

Explores the theory and practice of public speaking. Students study styles of public speaking and related texts, ranging from Queen Elizabeth I to Bill Clinton. Includes visits to the Houses of Parliament and Speaker's Corner. Addresses the problem of anxiety in speaking publicly and builds self confidence through techniques based on the work of leading modern British practitioners. Students are filmed making short presentations and given critical feedback by using video playback, an integral part of the course. Students are able to practice a wide range of presentation styles. Consists of two sessions a week, divided between theory and practice.

History: Roman Britain, Continuity and Change. Fall 2003. MR. CASEY.

Examines the impact of the Roman Conquest on Britain in the 1st-5th centuries in the light of modern studies of cultural and technological interaction. Emphasis is placed upon the archaeological evidence for cultural change, adaptation and resistance through detailed studies of key monuments and excavations. Material cultural evidence such as coins, pottery, glass and other artifacts are examined. Contemporary historical narratives are examined and contrasted with less formal written evidence such as inscriptions and graffiti. A program of site and museum visits is an essential element of the course. Past field trips have included Hadrian's Wall, Fishbourne Villa, the Roman Baths at Bath, and the British and London Museums. No knowledge of Latin is needed; sources are studied in translation.

History: Stonehenge to the Anglo-Saxons. Spring 2004. MR. CASEY.

An introduction to the archaeology of Britain from the introduction of agriculture to the end of the Saxon kingdom (c. 4500 B.C.–1066 A.D.). Considers the archaeological evidence for the establishment of complex societies in Britain in the Neolithic, Bronze, and Iron Ages. Type sites are examined and visited; recent scientific methods of examining the past are a core component. The impact of Rome on Britain and the effects of its decay and replacement by Saxon settlers forms the second half of the course. The continuity of communities over millennia is examined as a framework for modern Britain. Fieldtrips to such sites as Stonehenge, Avebury, Bath, Canterbury, York, St. Albans, and appropriate museums supplement the lectures.

The Economic Integration of the European Union. Fall 2003 and Spring 2004. MR. STAAB.

Provides a comprehensive examination of the processes of European economic integration, and offers a critical analysis of EU policies in their broader political-economic context. Also focuses on the external dimension of Europe in the global economy and is therefore divided into four parts. A historical overview of the main economic events and currents is followed by a brief introduction to the key institutions and processes. The course then shifts its attention to the analysis of the main economic policies which continue to shape the integration processes of the EU, including the Single Market, Economic and Monetary Union, or the Common Agricultural Policy. Closes with a look at the EU and its impact on global economics, ranging from the WTO to EU enlargement and the Third World.

Contemporary British Politics. Fall 2003 and Spring 2004. MR. LODGE.

This comparative politics course examines the British system of government and the most important issues and developments in British politics since 1945. Topics include parliamentary government, the evolving party system, electoral behavior, the rise and fall of the welfare state, Thatcher's economic revolution, race relations, the break-up of the Empire, NATO, the European Union, Welsh and Scottish devolution, and Northern Ireland.

Literary London, Mapping the City. Fall 2003 and Spring 2004. MR. LLOYD.

Examines different literary "mappings" of London by British writers from the nineteenth century to the present. Reading and discussion of texts written in a variety of genres (including novels, short stories, and poetry) and concerned with diverse themes to appeal to students with different interests. Centered on field trips to relevant sites (these may include Greenwich, the British Library manuscript gallery, a reading by contemporary authors) to give richer and more precise contexts for the set of texts. Endeavors to keep the volume of reading manageable, making the course accessible to those without a background in literary studies. Evaluation is based on a term paper, a written response to one of the field trips, and full participation in all class activities.

British Art and Architecture. Fall 2003 and Spring 2004. MR. PLANT.

Focuses on art, architecture and the British art world between 1700 and 1900. Works by painters such as Hogarth, Wilson, Wright of Derby, Constable, and Turner, the portraitists, and the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood are visited at London museums. Walks around London to view particular architectural monuments supplement the lectures on British architecture. Most of the lectures take place outside the classroom.

Physical Theater and Performance. Spring 2004. MS. ENGLAND.

Explores contemporary modes of physical theater and performance in British and European theater. Working together in an ensemble, the students learn a basic physical theater vocabulary. The emphasis of the course is to develop new skills, explore the group imagination and apply the techniques to a wide range of large scale playtexts, including Greek tragedy, Shakespeare, Restoration comedy, and modern European playwrights. Theater games engage the students physically and mentally, encouraging the development of physical and vocal confidence, and by leaning new performance skills the students will create a unique ensemble. Ms. England is a professional British actor and director.

CBB QUITO

Programs are only offered in the fall semester. Students take two courses with the CBB faculty director, one course on the society and culture of Ecuador, taught by a local adjunct professor, and a Spanish language class.

Prerequisite: Students must have one year of college-level Spanish language, or its equivalent.

Introduction to Volcanoes and Volcanology. Fall 2003. MR. NELSON.

An introduction to the scientific study of volcanoes and volcanic phenomena; includes an introduction to global plate tectonics, origins and chemistry of magmas and volcanic gases, reasons for differing eruptive styles and the resulting landforms, impacts of volcanic eruptions, distribution of volcanoes, and areas of high volcanic risk. Takes advantage of the accessibility and proximity of active volcanoes in the Ecuadorean Andes and the Galapagos Islands for field trips Early in-class labs will present introductions to basic map-reading, rocks and minerals, with emphasis on volcanic materials.

This course will be taught during the first half of the semester. Course cannot be counted towards a geology major, but does count for science distribution credit at Colby.

Principles of Geomorphology. Fall 2003. MR. NELSON.

Studies the origin, history, and classification of landforms and the processes that shape the Earth's surface. Emphasis on the study of physical processes. Includes both lectures and laboratory work. The laboratory focus will be on aerial photograph and topographic map interpretation and on ability to recognize the geologic significance of particular landforms. Field trips to areas around Quito illustrating fault-and fold-related structures and resulting landforms, active volcanoes, fluvial phenomena, and alpine glacial features will complement the classes.

This course will be taught in the second half of the semester. Course can be counted toward the geology major, or for a second science distribution credit at Colby.

History, Myth and Culture of Ecuador. Fall 2003. ADJUNCT INSTRUCTOR.

Serves as an introduction to the archaeology, mythology, and culture of pre-Inca people; the Inca Empire; the Spanish conquest; and the indigenous peoples and general population of Ecuador. Takes advantage of museums and archaeological sites in and around Quito for field trips, and some classes may be held outside the classrooms visiting particular sites. Taught in English.

Requirements for the Major in Computer Science

The major consists of nine computer science courses and two additional courses (Mathematics 161 or the equivalent and one of Mathematics 165 or higher, Economics 257, Psychology 252, Philosophy 223, or Physics 229), for a total of eleven courses. The computer science major consists of two introductory courses (Computer Science 189 and one of Computer Science 103, 105, or 107), four intermediate “core” courses (Computer Science 210, 231, 250, and 289), and three elective courses (i.e., any computer science courses numbered 300 or above). Depending on individual interests, Computer Science 291–294 or 401–404 (Independent Study) may be used to fulfill one of these elective requirements.

Requirements for the Minor in Computer Science

The minor consists of five courses: a 100-level computer science course, Computer Science 210, and any three additional computer science courses.

Interdisciplinary Major

The department participates in an interdisciplinary major program in computer science and mathematics. See page 178.

Introductory Courses

[103a. Introduction to Scientific Computing.]

105a. Introduction to Computing and the Web. Fall 2003. MR. TUCKER.

Addresses two questions: “What is computer science?” and “How does a computer scientist solve a problem?” Introduces the discipline of computer science broadly, including elements of the theory of computing, computer languages, translation, computer architecture, and the design of Web-based interactive programs. Topics include principles of algorithmic problem-solving, programming, hardware, software, models of computation, network applications, and a weekly laboratory experience.

107a. Introduction to Computer Science. Every semester. MS. TOMA.

Provides a broad overview of computer science. Students learn about the basic areas of the discipline—algorithms (the foundation of computer science), what goes on inside a computer, how to design an algorithm and write a program to solve a problem on the computer, how your program is translated to a form the computer can “understand,” some theory (can a computer solve anything?), and some applications in networks and robotics. Weekly labs provide experiments with concepts presented in class. Programming is done in C++.

189a. Foundations of Computing. Spring 2004. MR. TUCKER.

Introduces the foundations of logic and proof and their applications in computer science. Emphasis is placed on the functional programming paradigm. Topics include propositional and predicate logic, sets, relations, lists, trees, structural induction, and recursion in algorithms and data structures. Applications include digital logic design, program correctness, data compression, and databases.

Intermediate and Advanced Courses210a. Data Structures. Every semester. MR. CHOWN.

Solving complex algorithmic problems requires the use of appropriate data structures such as stacks, priority queues, search trees, dictionaries, hash tables, and graphs. It also requires the ability to measure the efficiency of operations such as sorting and searching in order to make effective choices among alternative solutions. This course is a study of data structures, their efficiency, and their use in solving computational problems. Laboratory exercises provide an opportunity to design and implement these structures.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 103, 105, 107, or permission of the instructor.

220a. Computer Organization. Fall 2003. MR. TUCKER.

Computer systems are organized as multiple layers. Each layer provides a more sophisticated abstraction than the layer upon which it rests. This course examines system design at the digital logic, machine language, assembly language, and operating system layers of computer organization. The goal of the course is to understand how it is possible for hardware to carry out software instructions. Laboratory work familiarizes students with a particular machine and operating system through assembly-language programming and the use of logic design techniques to study the behavior of basic machine components.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 103, 105, or 107.

231a. Algorithms. Every fall. MS. TOMA.

The study of algorithms concerns programming for computational efficiency, as well as problem-solving techniques. The course covers practical algorithms and theoretical issues in the design and analysis of algorithms. Topics include divide and conquer algorithms, greedy algorithms, dynamic programming, approximation algorithms, and a study of intractable problems. (Same as Mathematics 231.)

Prerequisites: Computer Science 210 and either Computer Science 189 or Mathematics 200, or permission of the instructor.

250a. Principles of Programming Languages. Every spring. MR. TUCKER.

Focuses on different paradigms for solving problems, and their representation in programming languages. These paradigms correspond to distinct ways of thinking about problems. For example, “functional” languages (such as Haskell) focus attention on the behavioral aspects of the real-world phenomena being modeled; “logic programming” languages (such as Prolog) focus attention on the declarative aspects of problem-solving. Covers principles of language design and implementation including syntax, semantics, type systems, control structures, and compilers.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 210 and either Computer Science 189 or Mathematics 200.

289a. Theory of Computation. Every spring. MR. CHOWN.

What is computation? This course studies this question, and examines the principles that determine what computational capabilities are required to solve particular classes of problems. Topics include an introduction to the connections between language theory and models of computation, and a study of unsolvable problems. (Same as Mathematics 289.)

Prerequisite: Computer Science 189 or Mathematics 200, or permission of the instructor.

291a–294a. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

325a. Cryptography and Network Security. Spring 2005. MR. MAJERCIK.

The smooth functioning of society increasingly depends on the flow of information through computer networks. Problems of privacy, authenticity, and security of information are critical, and cryptography is essential in addressing these issues. Covers cryptographic techniques and their application in network security, including mathematics of cryptography, algorithms, computational issues in cryptography, security systems, and social and political issues surrounding cryptography and security.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 210 and Mathematics 200.

350a. GIS Algorithms and Data Structures. Spring 2004. MS. TOMA.

A study of geographic information systems (GIS), large datasets that handle geographical data such as boundaries of countries, course of rivers, and height of mountains; and location of cities, roads, railways, and power lines. GIS can help determine the closest public hospital, find areas susceptible to flooding or erosion, track the position of a car on a map, or find the shortest route from one location to another. Because GIS deal with large datasets, making it important to process data efficiently, they provide a rich source of new research problems in computer science. Topics covered include data representation, triangulation, range searching, point location, map overlay, meshes and quadtrees, terrain simplification, and visualization.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 210 and either Computer Science 189 or Mathematics 200.

355a. Cognitive Architecture. Fall 2004. MR. CHOWN.

Advances in computer science, psychology, and neuroscience have shown that humans process information in ways that are very different from those used by computers. Explores the architecture and mechanisms that the human brain uses to process information. In many cases, these mechanisms are contrasted with their counterparts in traditional computer design. A central focus is to discern when the human cognitive architecture works well, when it performs poorly, and why. This is a conceptually-oriented course that draws ideas from computer science, psychology, and neuroscience. No programming experience necessary.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 220, 231, or 250, or Psychology 270, or Biology 214 or 253.

370a. Artificial Intelligence. Fall 2003. MR. CHOWN.

Explores the principles and techniques involved in programming computers to do tasks that would require intelligence if people did them. State-space and heuristic search techniques, logic and other knowledge representations, reinforcement neural network learning, and other approaches are applied to a variety of problems with an emphasis on agent-based approaches.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 210 and either Computer Science 189 or Mathematics 200, or permission of the instructor.

375a. Optimization and Uncertainty. Spring 2005. MR. MAJERCIK.

Optimization problems and coping with uncertainty arise frequently in the real world. A numeric framework, rather than the symbolic one of traditional artificial intelligence, is useful for expressing such problems. Examples of this approach are belief networks and Markov decision processes. In addition to providing a way of dealing with uncertainty, this approach sometimes permits performance guarantees for algorithms. Explores artificial intelligence from the numeric perspective: constraint satisfaction, combinatorial optimization, function approximation, probabilistic inference, and control. Also looks at applications such as robotics.

Prerequisite: Computer Science 210 and either Computer Science 189 or Mathematics 200.

The major in economics is designed for students who wish to obtain a systematic introduction to the basic theoretical and empirical techniques of economics. It provides an opportunity to learn economics as a social science with a core of theory, to study the process of drawing inferences from bodies of data and testing hypotheses against observation, and to apply economic theory to particular social problems. Such problems include Third World economic development, the functioning of economic institutions (e.g., financial markets, corporations, government agencies, labor unions), and current policy issues (e.g., the federal budget, poverty, the environment, globalization, deregulation). The major is a useful preparation for graduate study in economics, law, business, or public administration.

Requirements for the Major in Economics

The major consists of three core courses (Economics 255, 256, and 257), two advanced topics courses numbered in the 300s, and two additional courses in economics numbered 200 or above. Because Economics 101 is a prerequisite for Economics 102, and both are prerequisites for most other economics courses, most students will begin their work in economics with these introductory courses. Prospective majors are encouraged to take at least one core course by the end of the sophomore year, and all three core courses should normally be completed by the end of the junior year. Advanced topics courses normally have some combination of Economics 255, 256, and 257 as prerequisites. Qualified students may undertake self-designed, interdisciplinary major programs or joint majors between economics and related fields of social analysis.

To fulfill the major (or minor) requirements in economics, or to serve as a prerequisite for non-introductory courses, a grade of C- or better must be earned in a course.

All prospective majors and minors are strongly encouraged to complete Mathematics 161, or its equivalent, prior to enrolling in the core courses. Students who aspire to advanced work in economics (e.g., an honors thesis and/or graduate study in a discipline related to economics) are strongly encouraged to master multivariate calculus (Mathematics 181) and linear algebra (Mathematics 222) early in their careers. Such students are also encouraged to take Mathematics 265 instead of Economics 257 as a prerequisite for Economics 316. The Economics 257 requirement is waived for students who complete Mathematics 265 and Economics 316. Students should consult the Economics Department about other mathematics courses that are essential for advanced study in economics.

Interdisciplinary Major

The department participates in an interdisciplinary major in mathematics and economics. See page 180.

Requirements for the Minor in Economics

The minor consists of Economics 255 or 256, and any two additional courses numbered 200 or above. To fulfill the minor requirements or to serve as a prerequisite for other courses, a grade of C- or better must be earned in a course.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

100b. Introduction to the Economy. Fall 2003 and Spring 2004. MR. DECOSTER.

A non-technical introduction to the operation of modern economies, with a focus on the United States. Emphasis is on using a small number of fundamental concepts to clarify how economies function, to provide a foundation for informed evaluation of contemporary economic debates, and to illustrate how economic reasoning can provide an illuminating perspective on current societal issues. Topics include incentives, decision-making, and markets as a means of allocating resources; characteristics of market allocation; history of United States economic performance; fundamental macroeconomic relationships; the role of government in the economy, including discussion of policies relating to economic growth, inflation, unemployment, the environment, energy, international trade, globalization, poverty, and inequality. Appropriate for all students, but intended for non-majors. Does not satisfy the prerequisites for any other course in the Economics department.

101b. Principles of Microeconomics. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to economic analysis and institutions, with special emphasis on the allocation of resources through markets. The theory of demand, supply, cost, and market structure is developed and then applied to problems in antitrust policy, environmental quality, energy, education, health, the role of the corporation in society, income distribution, and poverty. Students desiring a comprehensive introduction to economic reasoning should take both Economics 101 and 102.

102b. Principles of Macroeconomics. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to economic analysis and institutions, with special emphasis on determinants of the level of national income, prices, and employment. Current problems of inflation and unemployment are explored with the aid of such analysis, and alternative views of the effectiveness of fiscal, monetary, and other governmental policies are analyzed. Attention is given to the sources and consequences of economic growth and to the nature and significance of international linkages through goods and capital markets.

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

207b. The International Economy. Spring 2004. MR. JONES.

Explores how international trade, and the policies a nation uses to influence its trade, affect welfare at home and abroad. Central topics are classical and modern theories of the gains from trade; the determinants of the trade patterns we observe; the types and impacts of protectionist policies; the role of increased globalization on a nation's competitiveness and its distribution of income; the political economy of protectionism at the national, regional (NAFTA), and international (WTO) levels; and the experience with the use of trade policies to influence development and growth.

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

208b. American Economic History. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. MS. KHAN.

Examines the development of institutions from the colonial period to the rise of the modern corporation in order to understand the sources of U.S. economic growth. Topics include early industrialization, technological change, transportation, capital markets, entrepreneurship and labor markets, and legal institutions. Not open to students who have taken Economics 238.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102.

210b. Economics of the Public Sector. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. MR. FITZGERALD.

Theoretical and applied evaluation of government activities and the role of government in the economy. Topics include public goods, public choice, income redistribution, benefit-cost analysis, health care, social security, and incidence and behavioral effects of taxation. Not open to students who have taken Economics 310.

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

211b. Poverty and Redistribution. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. MR. FITZGERALD.

Examines the causes and consequences of poverty and inequality in the United States and analyzes policy responses. Topics include: social welfare theory, poverty measurement, discrimination, rising wage inequality, the working poor, and consequences of poverty for families and subsequent generations. A substantial part of the course focuses on benefit-cost analysis and experimental and non-experimental evaluations of current policy, including welfare reform, education and training, and employment programs. Makes limited use of comparisons to other countries.

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

212b. Labor and Human Resource Economics. Fall 2003. MS. CONNELLY.

A study of labor market structure and its performance, with special emphasis on human resource policies, human capital formation, and models of discrimination in the labor market.

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

216b. Industrial Organization. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. MS. HERREINER.

A study of the organization of firms, their strategic interaction and the role of information in competitive markets, and related policy issues such as antitrust. Introduces basic game-theoretic tools commonly used in models of industrial organization. Features industry sector analyses and classroom applications.

Prerequisite: Economics 101 or permission of the instructor.

218b. Environmental Economics and Policy. Fall 2004. MR. VAIL.

An exploration of environmental degradation and public policy responses in industrial economies. Market failures, property rights, and behavioral norms are investigated as causes of air, water, and solid waste pollution. Guidelines for equitable and cost-effective environmental policy are explored, with an emphasis on the roles and limitations of cost-benefit analysis and methods for estimating non-monetary values. Three core themes are the transition from "command and control" to incentive-based instruments (e.g., pollution taxes); the evolution from piecemeal regulation to comprehensive "green plans" (e.g., in the Netherlands); and connections among air pollution, energy systems, and global climate change. (Same as Environmental Studies 218.)

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

219b,d. Underdevelopment and Strategies for Sustainable Development in Poor Countries. Spring 2004. MR. VAIL.

The major economic features of underdevelopment are investigated, with stress on uneven development and the interrelated problems of poverty, population growth, inequality, urban bias, and environmental degradation. The assessment of development strategies emphasizes key policy choices, such as export promotion versus import substitution, agriculture versus industry, plan versus market, and capital versus labor-intensive technologies. Topics include global economic integration and environmental sustainability. (Same as Environmental Studies 220.)

Prerequisite: Economics 101 and 102, or permission of the instructor.

221b. Marxian Political Economy. Fall 2003. MR. GOLDSTEIN.

An alternative (heterodox) analysis of a capitalist market economy rooted in Marx's methodological framework, which focuses on the interconnected role played by market relations, class/power relations, exploitation and internal tendencies towards growth, crisis, and qualitative change. Students are introduced to the Marxian method and economic theory through a reading of Volume I of Capital. Subsequently, the Marxian framework is applied to analyze the modern capitalist economy with an emphasis on the secular and cyclical instability of the economy, changing institutional structures and their ability to promote growth, labor market issues, globalization, and the decline of the Soviet Union.

Prerequisite: Economics 100 or 101, or permission of the instructor.

226b,d. Latin American Economic Development. Fall 2003. MR. MEARDON.

A study of the persistent barriers and occasional successes in modern Latin American economic development. Analytical tools learned in economic principles courses, as well as historical narratives and case studies, are applied to understand the roots of balance of payments, exchange rate and debt crises, hyperinflation, dollarization, and regional and income inequalities. Evaluates development policies ranging from the import-substituting industrialization policies of the 1950s–1970s, to the market-oriented reforms of the 1980s, to the present. Also assesses aid and advice offered, and the constraints imposed, by multilateral institutions including the IMF, World Bank, and Inter-American Development Bank. Discusses topical questions about the withholding of multilateral assistance to Argentina, and initiatives towards regional integration, including the MERCOSUR and the FTAA, in light of economic theory and recent history.

Prerequisite: Economics 101 and 102, or permission of the instructor.

[228b. Natural Resource Economics and Policy.]231b. Economics of the Lifecycle. Spring 2004. Ms. CONNELLY.

Considers economic issues that occur at each age as one moves through life, such as economic factors affecting infant mortality around the world, economics of education, career choice, marriage (and divorce), fertility, division of labor in the household, child care, glass ceilings, poverty and wealth, health care, elder care, retirement, and bequests. For each lifecycle stage, samples from economic models relevant to that age, the empirical work that informs our understanding, and the policy questions are considered. Differences in experience based on race, gender, sexuality, income level, and national origin will be an important component. Not open to students who have taken Economics 301. (Same as Women's Studies 231.)

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

238b. Economic History of American Enterprise. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. Ms. KHAN.

Presents an economic analysis of innovation in firms and markets during the course of American economic development. Central themes include changes in the role of institutions, such as the factory system and large corporations, relative to market transactions. The first part of the course considers specific issues in the organization of the firm, finance, and technology during the nineteenth century. The second part examines more contemporary questions bearing on the productivity and competitiveness of American enterprise. Not open to students who have taken Economics 208.

Prerequisite: Economics 101 and 102.

248b. Money: From Gold to Paper to Bytes. Spring 2004. Ms. HERREINER.

Examines the roles money plays in the economy and in society from a microeconomic perspective. Compares the different media of exchange used in the past and today (including currently used online payment systems) and analyzes competition between monies. Discusses free banking (competitive note issue) versus central banking (government monopoly over note issue) and applies this discussion to the emergence of electronic money. Considers the role of regulation and supervision of banks and its relevance for financial crises. Analyzes the role of asymmetric information for the acceptance of and confidence in payment systems. Features classroom experiments and simulations. Readings include historical and sociological texts, and economics articles of both technical and non-technical nature. Not open to students who have taken or are taking Economics 209.

Prerequisite: Economics 101 and Economics 102, or permission of the instructor.

255b. Microeconomics. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

An intermediate-level study of contemporary microeconomic theory. Analysis of the theory of resource allocation and distribution, with major emphasis on systems of markets and prices as a social mechanism for making resource allocation decisions. Topics include the theory of individual choice and demand, the theory of the firm, market equilibrium under competition and monopoly, general equilibrium theory, and welfare economics.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102. Elementary calculus is used.

256b. Macroeconomics. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

An intermediate-level study of contemporary national income, employment, and inflation theory. Consumption, investment, government receipts, government expenditures, money, and interest rates are examined for their determinants, interrelationships, and role in determining the level of aggregate economic activity. Policy implications are drawn from the analysis.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102. Elementary calculus is used.

257b. Economic Statistics. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to the data and statistical methods used in economics. A review of the systems that generate economic data and the accuracy of such data is followed by an examination of the statistical methods used in testing the hypotheses of economic theory, both micro- and macro-. Probability, random variables and their distributions, methods of estimating parameters, hypothesis testing, regression, and correlation are covered. The application of multiple regression to economic problems is stressed.

Prerequisites: Economics 101 and 102. Elementary calculus is used.

291b–294b. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Courses numbered above 300 are advanced courses in economic analysis intended primarily for majors. Enrollment in these courses is limited to 18 students in each unless stated otherwise. Elementary calculus will be used in all 300-level courses.

301b. The Economics of the Family. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. Ms. CONNELLY.

Microeconomic analysis of the family, its roles, and its related institutions. Topics include marriage, fertility, labor supply, divorce, and the family as an economic organization.

Prerequisite: Economics 255 and 257, or permission of the instructor.

302b. Business Cycles. Spring 2004. MR. GOLDSTEIN.

A survey of competing theories of the business cycle, empirical tests of cycle theories, and appropriate macro stabilization policies. Topics include descriptive and historical analysis of cyclical fluctuations in the United States, Keynesian-Kaleckian multiplier-accelerator models, NBER analysis of cycles, growth cycle models, theories of financial instability, Marxian crisis theory, new classical and new Keynesian theories, and international aspects of business cycles.

Prerequisite: Economics 256 or permission of the instructor.

308b. Advanced International Trade. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. MR. JONES.

The study of international trade in goods and capital. Theoretical models are developed to explain the pattern of trade and the gains from trade in competitive and imperfectly competitive world markets. This theory is then applied to issues in commercial policy, such as free trade versus protection, regional integration, the WTO and trade liberalization, foreign direct investment, LDC debt, and the changing comparative advantage of the United States.

Prerequisite: Economics 255 or permission of the instructor.

[309b. Financial Economics.]310b. Advanced Public Economics. Spring 2004. MR. FITZGERALD.

A survey of theoretical and empirical evaluations of government activities in the economy, considering both efficiency and equity aspects. Topics include public choice, income redistribution, benefit-cost analysis, analysis of selected government expenditure programs (including social security), incidence and behavioral effects of taxation, and tax reform. Current public policy issues are emphasized. Not open to students who have taken Economics 210.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 257, or permission of the instructor.

316b. Econometrics. Fall 2003. MR. GOLDSTEIN.

A study of the mathematical formulation of economic models and the statistical methods of testing them. A detailed examination of the general linear regression model, its assumptions, and its extensions. Applications to both micro- and macroeconomics are considered. Though most of the course deals with single-equation models, an introduction to the estimation of systems of equations is included. An empirical research paper is required.

Prerequisites: Economics 257 or Mathematics 265, and Mathematics 161, or permission of the instructor.

[318b. Environmental and Resource Economics.]320b. Economics, Technology, and Progress. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. MS. KHAN.

Technological change represents one of the most essential conditions for economic and social progress. This course examines the microeconomics of R&D, invention, innovation, and diffusion from both a theoretical and empirical perspective. Topics include the history of technology, the intellectual property system, the sources of invention and innovation, R&D joint ventures, the "information economy," and globalization. Applications range from the industrial revolution of the nineteenth century through contemporary issues such as digital technology, biotechnology and the human genome project, Silicon Valley, and the Internet.

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 257, or permission of the instructor.

321b. Ecological Economics and Sustainable Development. Fall 2003. MR. VAIL.

Ecological economics starts from the premise that economies are open subsystems of ecosystems, subject to natural "laws" and constraints, such as entropy, carrying capacity limits, and conservation of matter-energy. Focuses first on theories and evidence regarding the co-evolution of economies and ecosystems. Emphasizes disequilibrium processes, feedbacks, and irreversible change by drawing insights from social and biophysical sciences. Traces the debate about "strong" and "weak" conditions for sustainable economic development, exploring guidelines for sustainable use of natural capital, the "precautionary principle," and international regimes for environmental governance. (Same as Environmental Studies 321.)

Prerequisites: Economics 255 and 257 (or equivalent statistical background), or permission of the instructor.

329b. Open Economy Macroeconomics. Fall 2003. MR. JONES.

Investigates how government policies in an open economy can be used to influence employment, inflation, the balance of payments, and economic growth. Central topics are the determinants of the balance of payments, the exchange rate, and international financial flows; the channels of monetary and fiscal policies in an open economy; currencies in crisis; the history of international and regional monetary institutions and exchange rate regimes; international policy coordination; and IMF financial programs in the developing and transition economies.

Prerequisites: Economics 256 and 257.

340b. Law and Economics. Fall 2004 or Spring 2005. Ms. KHAN.

Law and economics is one of the most rapidly growing areas in the social sciences. The field applies the concepts and empirical methods of economics to further our understanding of the legal system. This course explores the economic analysis of law and legal institutions, including the economics of torts, contracts, property, crime, courts, and dispute resolution. Also focuses on topics in law and economics such as antitrust and regulation, corporations, the family, labor markets, product liability, and intellectual property. Students are introduced to on-line sources of information in law, and are required to apply economic reasoning to analyze landmark lawsuits in each of these areas.

Prerequisite: Economics 255 or permission of the instructor.

341b. American Legal History. Spring 2004. Ms. KHAN.

Analyzes the evolution of American law and the legal system from an economic perspective. Considers the economic analysis of historical developments in the common law of property, torts, contract, and crime. Students will be expected to use online legal resources, assess the economic implications of landmark lawsuits, and use standard econometric techniques to engage in empirical research based on primary data sources. Not open to students who have taken Economics 340.

Prerequisite: Economics 255 and Economics 257.

355b. Game Theory and Strategic Behavior. Spring 2004. Ms. HERREINER.

An introduction to game theory, a theory analyzing and characterizing optimal strategic behavior. Strategic behavior takes into account other individuals' options and decisions. Such behavior is relevant in economics and business, politics, and other areas of the social sciences, where game theory is an important tool. The main game theoretic equilibrium concepts are introduced in class and applied to a variety of economics and business problems. Playing games and analyzing them constitutes a regular feature of the class. Elementary calculus and probability theory are used.

Prerequisite: Economics 255 or permission of the instructor.

Bowdoin College does not offer a major in education.

Requirements for the Minor in Education

The minor in education consists of four courses. Required are one 100-level course and two from Education 203, 301, and 303. Note that Psychology 101 is a prerequisite for Education 301, but does not count toward the minor.

Requirements for Certification to Teach in Public Secondary Schools

Because teaching in the public schools requires some form of licensure, the education department provides a sequence of courses which may lead to certification for secondary school teaching. This sequence includes the following:

1. A major in the discipline the student intends to teach, such as Spanish, biology, mathematics, or English. History and government majors are classified as social studies for certification purposes; meeting social studies requirements requires early and careful planning. Public schools rarely offer more than one course in subjects such as sociology, philosophy, anthropology, art history, religion, or economics, so students with interests in those and similar fields should meet with department members as soon as possible to develop a program that will include those interests within a teaching field. While students' programs of study at Bowdoin need not be seriously restricted by plans to teach, majors and minors should be chosen with teaching possibilities in mind.

2. Six courses offered by the Department of Education: Education 101; Education 203; and Education 301, 302, 303, and 304.

3. Psychology 101.

Because education is not a major at Bowdoin, students interested in teaching as a career must carefully plan the completion of course work for certification.

Note: To student teach, students must be recommended by members of the Education Department. Students must be of good character and have a solid academic record. A 3.0 cumulative grade point average is necessary. In addition to required course work, candidates for certification must earn a passing score on a national teachers' examination. Since the inception of this requirement, Bowdoin students' pass rate has been 100%.

Ninth Semester Status

Students who have completed all course requirements necessary for secondary teacher certification except for student teaching (Education 302) and the student teaching seminar (Education 304), and who have graduated from Bowdoin may apply to the Department for special student status to student teach. To apply for this status, students must have graduated within the last two years; have fulfilled all subject area requirements for certification; have taken Education 101, 203, 301, and 303; and be seen by the Department as prepared to teach. Students will be charged a reduced tuition fee and will be eligible for campus housing if available after regular students have been placed. Students may student teach in either the fall or spring semester. The Department reserves the right to limit participation in this program because of staffing considerations.

Requirements for Teaching in Private Schools

State certification is not usually a requirement for teaching in independent schools. Thus, there is no common specification of what an undergraduate program for future private school teachers should be. In addition to a strong major in a secondary-school teaching field, however, it is recommended that prospective teachers follow a sequence of courses similar to the one leading to public school certification.

There is a further discussion of careers in teaching on page 42.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

79a. Science Pedagogy. Every year. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An examination of the theories of effective science teaching and their implementation in the classroom. Surveys instructional reforms in science and examines their impact from discipline specific perspectives. Requires classroom observation in local schools in addition to regular class meetings with laboratory activities.

Prerequisite: One course, 100-level or above in biology, chemistry, environmental studies, geology, or physics.

101c. Contemporary American Education. Fall 2003 and Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Examines current educational issues in the United States and the role schools play in society. Topics include the purpose of schooling, school funding and governance, issues of race, class, and gender, school choice, and the reform movements of the 1990s. The role of schools and colleges in society's pursuit of equality and excellence forms the backdrop of this study.

202c. Education and Biography. Spring 2005. Ms. MARTIN.

An examination of issues in American education through biography, autobiography, and autobiographical fiction. The effects of class, race, and gender on teaching, learning, and educational institutions are seen from the viewpoint of the individual, one infrequently represented in the professional literature. Authors include Coles, McCarthy, Welty, and Wolff.

Prerequisite: Education 101.

203c. Educating All Children. Fall 2003. Ms. JENNINGS. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An examination of the economic, social, political, and pedagogical implications of universal education in American classrooms. The course focuses on the right of every child, including physically handicapped, learning disabled, and gifted, to equal educational opportunity. Requires two hours a week in schools.

Prerequisite: Education 101.

204c. Educational Policy. Fall 2003. MR. DORN.

An examination of educational policy-making and implementation at the federal, state, and local levels. Particular attention is paid to the relationship between policy and practice and the role practitioners play in policy-making. Policies explored in this course include those related to instructional reform, high school graduation requirements, and athletics.

Prerequisite: Education 101.

205c. High School. Every other year. Spring 2004. MS. MARTIN.

A study of the American high school as institution and archetype. Examines the evolution of the high school from elite academy through “people’s college” to universal adolescent rite of passage. Educational research, fictional and non-fictional accounts, and films about high school inform the development of ideas about the changing purposes, forms, curriculum, students, teachers, challenges, and outcomes of secondary schooling.

Prerequisite: Education 101.

250c. Law and Education. Every other year. Fall 2003. MR. ISAACSON.

A study of the impact of the American legal system on the functioning of schools in the United States through an examination of Supreme Court decisions and federal legislation. This course analyzes the public policy considerations that underlie court decisions in the field of education and considers how those judicial interests may differ from the concerns of school boards, administrators, and teachers. Issues to be discussed include constitutional and statutory developments affecting schools in such areas as free speech, sex discrimination, religious objections to compulsory education, race relations, teachers’ rights, school financing, and education of the handicapped. (Same as Government 219.)

251c. Teaching Writing: Theory and Practice. Fall 2003. MS. O’CONNOR.

Explores theories and methods of teaching writing, emphasizing collaborative learning and peer tutoring. Examines relationships between the writing process and the written product, writing and learning, and language and communities. Investigates disciplinary writing conventions, influences of gender and culture on language and learning, and concerns of ESL and learning disabled writers. Students practice and reflect on revising, responding to others’ writing, and conducting conferences. Prepares students to serve as writing assistants for the Writing Project.

Selection in previous spring semester by application to the Writing Project (see pages 39–40).

301c. Teaching. Fall 2003. MS. MARTIN.

A study of what takes place in classrooms: the methods and purposes of teachers, the response of students, and the organizational context. Readings and discussions help inform students’ direct observations and written accounts of local classrooms. Peer teaching is an integral part of the course experience. Requires three hours a week in schools.

Prerequisites: Senior standing, one Bowdoin education course, Psychology 101, and permission of the instructor.

302c. Student Teaching Practicum. Spring 2004. MS. GALLAUDET.

Because this final course in the student teaching sequence demands a considerable commitment of time and serious responsibilities in a local secondary school classroom, enrollment in the course requires the recommendation of the instructor of Education 301. Recommendation is based on performance in Education 301, the student’s cumulative and overall academic performance at Bowdoin, and the student’s good standing in the Bowdoin community. Required of all students who seek secondary public school certification, the course is also open to those with other serious interests in teaching. Grades are awarded on a Credit/Fail basis only. Education 303 and 304 must be taken concurrently with this course.

Prerequisites: Senior standing, three Bowdoin education courses, including Education 203 and 301; Psychology 101; and permission of the instructor.

303c. Curriculum and Instruction. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

A study of the knowledge taught in schools; its selection and the rationale by which one course of study rather than another is included; its adaptation for different disciplines and for different categories of students; its cognitive and social purposes; the organization and integration of its various components.

Prerequisite: Education 301 or permission of the instructor.

304c. Senior Seminar: Analysis of Teaching and Learning. Spring 2004. Ms. GALLAUDET.

This course is designed to accompany Education 302, Student Teaching Practicum, and considers theoretical and practical issues related to effective classroom instruction.

Prerequisites: Senior standing; three Bowdoin education courses, including Education 203 and 301; Psychology 101; and permission of the instructor.

Requirements for the Major in English and American Literature

The major requires a minimum of ten courses. Each student must take one first-year seminar (English 10–29) or introductory course (English 104–106), either of which will serve as a prerequisite to further study in the major. At least three of the ten courses must be chosen from offerings in British and Irish literature before 1800; these courses include and are limited to the following: English 201, 202, 210, 211, 212, 220, 221, 222, 223, 230, 231, 250, and 300-level seminars explicitly identified as counting toward this requirement. Only one of these three courses may be a Shakespeare drama course. At least one of the ten courses must be chosen from offerings in literature of the Americas. These courses include and are limited to the following: English 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, and 300-level seminars explicitly identified as counting toward this requirement. Also, each student must take at least one advanced seminar (any English 300-level course). Students may, when appropriate, count an advanced seminar toward this requirement, as well as to one of the requirements listed above. The remaining courses may be selected from the foregoing and/or English 10–29 (first-year seminars); 61–66 (Creative Writing); 104–106; 240–289; 300–399; 291–292 (independent study); and 401–402 (advanced independent study/honors). No more than three courses may come from the department's roster of first-year seminars and 100-level courses; no more than one creative writing course will count toward the major. As one of two courses outside the department, one upper-level course in film studies may be counted toward the major; courses in expository writing, journalism, and communication are not eligible for major credit. Credit toward the major for advanced literature courses in another language, provided that the works are read in that language, must be arranged with the chair.

Majors who are candidates for honors must write an honors essay and take an oral examination in the spring of their senior year.

Interdisciplinary Major

The department participates in an interdisciplinary major in English and Theater. See page 178.

Requirements for the Minor in English and American Literature

The minor requires five courses in the department, including one first-year seminar (English 10–29) or introductory course (English 104–106), and at least three courses numbered 200 or above. No more than one creative writing course may count toward the minor, and no courses in expository writing, film, communication, or journalism will count.

First-Year Seminars in English Composition and Literature

These courses are open to first-year students. The first-year English seminars are numbered 10–19 in the fall; 20–29 in the spring. Usually there are not enough openings in the fall for all first-year students who want an English seminar. First-year students who cannot get into a seminar in the fall are given priority in the spring. The main purpose of the first-year seminars (no matter what the topic or reading list) is to give first-year students extensive practice in reading and writing analytically. Each seminar is normally limited to sixteen students and includes discussion, outside reading, frequent papers, and individual conferences on writing problems. For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

10c. Dreaming of the Middle Ages. Fall 2003. Ms. EDSALL.

11c. Literature and Utopia. Fall 2003. Mr. KITCH.

12c,d. Representation and Resistance: African American Film and Literature. Fall 2003. Ms. MUTHER.

(Same as Africana Studies 12.)

14c. Hawthorne. Fall 2003. Mr. WATTERSON.

15c. Americans Abroad. Fall 2003. Mr. PHILLIPSON.

16c,d. Black Heroes in American Literature. Fall 2003. Ms. CHAKKALAKAL.

(Same as Africana Studies 16.)

17c. Home. Fall 2003. Mr. BARR.

20c. Film and the Radical Imagination. Spring 2004. Mr. BARR.

21c,d. The Harlem Renaissance. Spring 2004. Mr. COVIELLO.

(Same as Africana Studies 21.)

22c. Tricksters/Trickstars. Spring 2004. Ms. EDSALL.

24c. Sam Shepard. Spring 2004. Mr. WALTON.

25c. Elizabethan Heroes. Spring 2004. Mr. WATTERSON.

Introductory Courses in Literature

104c.–106c. Studies in Genre.

Primarily intended for first- and second-year students, and for juniors and seniors with no prior experience in college literature courses. Genres include prose narrative (English 104), poetry (English 105), and drama (English 106). Specific content and focus of each course will vary with the instructor.

104c. Introduction to Narrative. Fall 2003. MR. PHILLIPSON.

"I'll tell thee everything I can..."(Lewis Carroll, Through the Looking Glass). An exploration of various acts of narration, with emphasis on the pose and practice of veracity in fiction. Examines strategies of narrative sincerity and authority; considers the elements of a "reliable" narrator; charts ways in which narrative framing can complicate and even contravene plot. Texts may include Swift, Sterne, Austen, Emily Brontë, Twain, Carroll, Woolf, Faulkner, Wideman, and Mukherjee.

105c. Introduction to Poetry. Fall 2003. MR. WALTON.

Explores varied topics in the Anglo-Irish-American poetic tradition, including aesthetic, political, and social questions. Strong emphasis on prosody, close reading, and the use of multi-media to "place" a poem or poet; "excavations" of multiple meanings and sources in poems; and examinations of poetic approaches toward negotiating the implicit tension between technique and subject matter.

105c. Introduction to Poetry. Spring 2004. MR. COLLINGS.

Proposes that the human world is created by a vast network of figures of speech and examines the way poetry intervenes in that world by complicating the clichés of ordinary thought or the genres of everyday life. Discusses the invention or debasement of elevated cultural statement, the imitation of vernacular speech, the adaptation of popular song genres, and the allusive reflection on older poetic traditions. Includes instruction in the basic skills of reading poetry and examines poems in English from a wide variety of periods, traditions, and genres.

106c. Introduction to Drama. Spring 2004. MR. KITCH.

Traces the development of theater in the West from the Festival of Dionysus to contemporary productions in America and Europe. Topics include plot structures, staging techniques, characterization, the construction of "interiority," the politics of affect, as well as key cultural and political contexts of the stage. Readings may include Sophocles, Shakespeare, Anton Chekhov, Samuel Beckett, August Wilson, Caryl Churchill, David Mamet, Amiri Baraka, and Tony Kushner. (Same as Theater 106).

Courses in Composition and Creative Writing60c. English Composition. Spring 2004. MS. KIBBIE.

Practice in analytic and critical writing, with special attention to drafting and revision of student essays. Assignment sequences allow students to engage a variety of modes and topics that build toward the developed expository essay. Practice in grammar as well. Does not count toward the major or minor in English.

61c. Creative Writing: Poetry I. Fall 2003. MR. WALTON.

Intensive study of the writing of poetry through the workshop method. Students are expected to write in free verse, in form, and to read deeply from an assigned list of poets.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

[62c. Creative Writing: Poetry II.]63c. Creative Writing: Literary Narrative. Spring 2004. MR. WALTON.

An intensive study of the writing of short fiction and nonfiction narratives through the workshop method. Students will be expected to compose several substantial works (in genres of their choice, including short story, essay, memoir, or reportage), to engage in the study and discussion of craft techniques and issues that these genres have in common, and to read deeply from an assigned list of writers.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor. Students are chosen on the basis of a short writing sample to be submitted to the English department office.

65c. Creative Writing: Nonfiction. Fall 2003. MR. NICHOLS.

The challenge of nonfiction is to find and shape a story that will stand up with the best stories, real or imagined. To achieve this the writer must find the right language, voice, and narrative structure, just as in writing fiction, if a nonfiction story is to succeed as a work of art. Examines the creative relationship between truth—"facts"—and memory ("Forgetting is the compost of the imagination," wrote Graham Greene), as well as the emotional connection necessary for writing both memoirs and nonpersonal stores. Travel literature, dramatic true stories, memoirs, and the wonderful books about small things—epics of minutiae that give us elemental pictures of ourselves—are studied and discussed. Students write and read aloud nonfiction stories.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

66c. Creative Writing: Fiction Workshop. Fall 2003. MR. NICHOLS.

Short stories have their simple and severe requirements of economy; novels demand an immense, seemingly impossible effort to sustain the waking dream of a complex world over a long, tight narrative. The best examples of both are achieved only by a process that is as mystical as channeling. But it is also a knack that can, with discipline, be picked up and practiced regularly, like running. The equipment and elements of good fiction writing—power and truth of expression, realization of character and place—are identical in both long and short forms. Examples of each are studied and discussed. Emphasis is placed on both the pragmatic—narrative structure—and the mystical: how the dream comes alive, and how we inhabit characters and live in the dream while we are writing and not writing. Students write and read aloud short and/or long fiction stories.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

Advanced Courses in English and American Literature201c. Chaucer. Spring 2004. Ms. EDSALL.

The Canterbury Tales. Learn Middle English and enjoy and analyze a wide selection of the stories told on Chaucer's great literary road-trip. Includes a focus on medieval history, material culture, literary backgrounds, social codes, and social conflicts in order to help readers imagine their way into Chaucer's world. Attention given to trends in Chaucer studies.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

202c. Topics in Middle English Literature. Fall 2003. Ms. EDSALL.

An introduction to the literature written in medieval England, with a focus on the multilingualism of English culture in the Middle Ages. The world of medieval Europe was, at the least, bilingual, for Latin was the language of the Church and of the educated; moreover, in post-Norman England, French became the language of social and political power. Examines how different languages, discourses, and codes functioned in medieval English culture and considers works that depict exchanges between different cultures. Readings may include: Bede, Aelfric, The Wanderer, The Dream of the Rood, The Song of Roland, The Play of Adam, Chrétien de Troyes, Marie de France, Medieval Lyrics and Fabliaux, Chaucer, Margery Kempe, Mankind.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

210c. Shakespeare's Comedies and Romances. Every other year. Fall 2003. MR. WATTERSON.

Examines A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, As You Like It, The Winter's Tale, and The Tempest in light of Renaissance genre theory. (Same as Theater 210.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

211c. Shakespeare's Tragedies and Roman Plays. Every other year. Spring 2004. MR. WATTERSON.

Examines Hamlet, Othello, Macbeth, King Lear, Julius Caesar, Antony and Cleopatra, and Coriolanus in light of recent critical thought. Special attention is given to psychoanalysis, new historicism, and genre theory. (Same as Theater 211.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

[212c. Shakespeare's History Plays.]

220c. English Literature of the Early Renaissance. Every other year. Fall 2004. MR. KITCH.

An introduction to the major poetry, prose, and drama of Tudor England (1485-1603), exploring the literary effects of continental humanism and the English reformation, as well as key innovations in prosodic form and performance technique in the period. Readings include John Skelton, Thomas More, Thomas Wyatt, Queen Elizabeth I, John Lyly, Edmund Spenser, Philip Sidney, Christopher Marlowe, and William Shakespeare.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

221c. English Literature of the Late Renaissance. Every other year. Spring 2005. MR. KITCH.

An introduction to the major poetry, prose, and drama of Stuart England (1603-1688), with attention to the generic expansion, the rise of scientific experimentation, the effects of political division, and the emergence of new debates about gender in the period. Readings include John Donne, Ben Jonson, George Herbert, Francis Bacon, Aemilia Lanyer, Robert Burton, Andrew Marvell, John Milton, and Aphra Behn.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

222c. Milton. Every other year. Fall 2003. MS. KIBBIE.

A critical study of his chief writings in poetry and prose.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

223c. Renaissance Drama. Fall 2003. MR. KITCH.

Examines a wide range of non-Shakespearean drama from all genres, with specific attention to the history of dramatic form, the development of staging techniques, the expansion of classical genres, and the representation of class, gender, racial ideologies. Readings include Thomas Kyd, Christopher Marlowe, Ben Jonson, Thomas Dekker, John Ford, Francis Beaumont, Elizabeth Cary, and John Webster. Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department. (Same as Theater 223.)

230c. Restoration and Eighteenth-Century Drama. Every other year. Fall 2004. MS. KIBBIE.

Study of English drama from 1660 to the end of the eighteenth century focusing on a variety of dramatic modes, including Restoration comedy, heroic tragedy, "she-tragedy," and sentimental comedy. Authors may include Wycherley, Etherege, Behn, Congreve, Shadwell, Dryden, Rowe, Otway, Centlivre, Inchbald, Addison, Steele, Sheridan, and Goldsmith. (Same as Theater 230.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

231c. Poetry and Prose of the Restoration and Eighteenth Century. Every other year. Spring 2005. MS. KIBBIE.

An overview of Restoration and eighteenth-century poetry, non-fiction prose, and prose satire. Major poets include Rochester, Dryden, Pope, Swift, Gay, and Gray; units focus on the pastoral and mock-pastoral, the mock-epic, and the Graveyard Poets. Major prose writers include Addison, Steele, Swift, and Johnson. Note: Because English 250 is devoted to the novels of this period, no novels are read in this course.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

[240c. English Romanticism I: Radical Sensibility.]

241c. English Romanticism II: Romantic Sexualities. Fall 2004. MR. COLLINGS.

Investigates constructions of sexuality in English romantic writing. Examines tales of seduction by supernatural or demonic figures; the sexualized world of the Gothic; the Byronic hero; the yearning for an eroticized muse or goddess; and same-sex desire in travel writing, orientalist fantasy, diary, and realist fiction. Discusses the place of such writing in the history of sexuality, repression, the unconscious, and the sublime. Authors may include Austen, Beckford, Emily Brontë, Burke, Byron, Coleridge, Keats, Lister, Mary Shelley, and Percy Shelley, alongside secondary, theoretical, and historical works. (Same as Women's Studies 241.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English or Women's Studies

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

[243c. Victorian Genders.]

244c. Topics in Victorian Literature and Culture. Spring 2005. MS. BRIEFEL.

Traces a particular set of issues crucial to Victorian society through a range of genres and styles, including prose fiction, essays, poetry, and drama. Authors may be chosen from Conan Doyle, Darwin, Dickens, Eliot, Gaskell, Pater, Stevenson, and Wilde.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

246c. Romanticism, Lyricism, and Nature. Spring 2005. MR. COLLINGS.

Examines English romantic poetry about nature, with particular emphasis on the way such poetry finds a lyric impulse already present in nature. Considers such subjects as the interplay of nature and transcendence, the supernatural dimension of nature, the boundary between the human and the natural, the contrast of urban and rural life, and the value of traditional landed society. Authors may include Clare, Coleridge, Keats, Shelley, and Wordsworth. (Same as Environmental Studies 246.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English or Environmental Studies.

247c. Later Nineteenth-Century Poetry: The Artificial Paradise. Spring 2004. MR. PHILLIPSON.

A survey of British and some French poetry (in translation) from the second half of the nineteenth century, with particular attention to the construction of "art" as a defiant counterpoint to realism. Traces practices such as Pre-Raphaelitism, dramatic irony, exotism, symbolism, aestheticism, and decadence. Poets include Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Robert Browning, Tennyson, Arnold, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, Christina Rossetti, Morris, Baudelaire, Swinburne, Hopkins, Mallarmé, Verlaine, Rimbaud, Kipling, Wilde, and Yeats.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

250c. Topics in the Eighteenth-Century Novel: Women and the Novel. Spring 2004. MS. KIBBIE.

How are women represented in eighteenth-century fiction? What is the impact of women readers and women writers on this developing genre? Authors will include Daniel Defoe, Samuel Richardson, Frances Burney, and Jane Austen. (Same as Women's Studies 250.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar in the English Department, or one 100-level course in the English Department.

252c. The Victorian Novel. Fall 2004. Ms. BRIEFEL.

Explores different genres of the Victorian novel, including realism, the novel of manners, the novel of social reform, detective fiction, fantasy, and the Gothic. In addition to close readings of the texts, they are positioned within the larger cultural and literary frameworks of the period. Authors may be chosen from the Brontës, Collins, Dickens, Eliot, Gaskell, Hardy, Kipling, and Wells.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English Department or Women's Studies.

[262c. Drama and Performance in the Twentieth Century.]263c. Modern British Literatures. Every other year. Fall 2003. Ms. REIZBAUM.

Examines a century of significant writing in the "British Isles" or "United Kingdom" and investigates the national, political, and literary critical shifts in the creation and representation of these literatures. Includes all genres and cuts across national, cultural, and period boundaries. Likely topics include the Great War and "Englishness" (Wilfred Owen, Ezra Pound, Pat Barker), canonic and non-canonic modernisms (T. S. Eliot, Virginia Woolf, James Joyce, Djuna Barnes, Jean Rhys), and the colonial and post-colonial (E.M. Forster, Hanif Kureishi; films by Danny Boyle, Neil Jordan). (Same as Women's Studies 263.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English or Women's Studies.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

264c. Modern Irish Literature. Spring 2005. Ms. REIZBAUM.

Considers Irish writing from the late nineteenth century through the present: its contribution to modern literary movements and conflictual relation to the idea of a national Irish literature. Likely topics include linguistic and national dispossession, the supernatural or surreal, pastoral and urban traditions, the Celtic Twilight versus Modernism, and the interaction of feminism and nationalism.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

265c. Narrative and Dance. Fall 2003. Ms. REIZBAUM, MR. SARVIS.

Interrogates the nature of the dichotomy between story and form, narrative and abstraction in both the study and practice of literature and dance. Considers the correspondence between these media. Includes a dance studio component. (Same as Dance 265.)

Prerequisite: A 100-level English or dance course or English first-year seminar.

270c. Early American Literature. Every other year. Fall 2004. MR. COVIELLO.

A study of the writing produced in colonial, revolutionary, and post-revolutionary America. Prominent concerns are the Puritan covenant, nationalism, democracy and consensus, revolutionary rupture, and the evolving social meanings of gender and of race. Readings may include Bradstreet, Edwards, Franklin, Wheatley, Brockden Brown, Irving, and Cooper.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

271c. The American Renaissance. Every other year. Spring 2005. MR. COVIELLO.

Considers the extraordinary quickening of American writing in the years before the Civil War. Of central concern are the different visions of "America" these texts propose. Authors may include Emerson, Poe, Douglass, Hawthorne, Jacobs, Melville, Stowe, Dickinson, and Whitman.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

272c. Topics in Twentieth-Century American Literature: Literature and Culture after World War II. Spring 2004. MR. BARR.

Examines novels and short stories in conjunction with essays, poetry, and film, focusing on how this material subverts and reflects the dominant ideologies of the period. Authors may include Baldwin, Ellison, Pynchon, DeLillo, Kingsolver, Morrison, Carver, and Roth.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

274c. Twentieth-Century American Poetry. Fall 2003. MR. BARR.

Examines a broad range of poetic forms and sensibilities in the modern and contemporary periods. Includes poems in traditional and experimental modes, ranging from short lyrics to long poems. Authors include Williams, Stein, Frost, Moore, Stevens, Ammons, Ashbery, Plath, Lorde, Rich, Hejinian, and others.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

275c,d. African American Fiction: Counterhistories. Every year. Fall 2003. MS. MUTHER.

Novels, short stories, and personal histories since 1850. Focuses on strategies of cultural survival as mapped in narrative form—with a special interest in framing structures and trickster storytellers, alternative temporalities, and double-voicing. Authors include Douglass, Brown, Jacobs, Chesnutt, Dunbar, Hurston, West, Wright, Morrison, Bambara, Meriwether, Gaines, Wideman, Walker, and Butler. (Same as Africana Studies 275.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English, Africana Studies, or Women's Studies.

[276c,d. African American Poetry.]277c. Topics in Nineteenth-Century American Literature: Empire of Feeling. Spring 2004. MR. COVIELLO.

A study of the relations between sentiment and belonging across the American nineteenth century. Considers both how a language of impassioned feeling promised to consolidate a nation often bitterly divided, and some of the problems with that promise. At the center of the course will be a reading of Harriet Beecher Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin. Other authors may include Jefferson, Wheatley, Melville, Hawthorne, Wilson, Harper, and Du Bois. (Same as Africana Studies 277.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department and in Africana Studies.

278c,d. Black Literary Texts in the Eighteenth Century. Spring 2004. MS. CHAKKALAKAL.

Examines eighteenth-century African American and African British writings that uniquely underscore the meditative function of race between literature's historical role as a tool for moral instruction and certain social conditions (namely slavery) that profoundly complicate that role. Examines the relationship between Black literary texts of the eighteenth century and the rhetoric of Enlightenment humanism in which many of them were immersed. The Black literary text in this context refers to published works written or "related" by Africans formerly enslaved in England, America, or the British West Indies in the late eighteenth century. Explores the rhetorical practices employed in the argument against slavery and racial prejudice that has since become foundational in our conception of other literary and nonliterary discourses. Readings include the published works of James Albert Ukawsaw Gronniosaw, A Narrative of the Most Remarkable Particulars in the Life of James Albert Ukawsaw Gronniosaw, An African Prince. Related by Himself (1770), Quobna Ottobah Cugoana, Thoughts and Sentiments on the Evil of Slavery (1787), Ignatius Sancho's epistolary collection, Letters of the Late Ignatius Sancho (1782), Olaudah Equiano's The Interesting Narrative of the Life of Olaudah Equiano, or Gustavus Vassa, the African. Written by Himself (1789), Mary Prince's The History of Mary Prince (1831), and the poetry of Phillis Wheatley (1774). (Same as Africana Studies 278.)

Prerequisites: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department or Africana Studies.

[282c. Introduction to Literary and Cultural Theory.][283c. Topics in Literary and Cultural Theory.]

288c,d. Fiction Without Borders. Fall 2003. Ms. CHAKKALAKAL.

Explores the effects of globalization—the economic integration of national markets—on the production of literature in the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries. As trading blocs in Latin America, North America, Europe, Asia, and the Caribbean are being formed and consolidated, a growing number of literary texts are being produced that focus on the social and cultural consequences of economic globalization. This literature confronts both the possibilities and pitfalls of this new global era by addressing issues of immigration, multiculturalism, ethnic identity, and Americanization through provocative experiments with narrative form. The reading list covers a broad geographical terrain—from Zadie Smith’s and V. S. Naipaul’s reflections on diasporic communities to the perils and pleasures of border-crossings described in the fictions of Gayl Jones, Nurrudin Farah, Michael Ondaatje, and Tayeb Salih.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

310c–350c. Advanced Literary Study. Every year.

English 300-level courses are advanced seminars; students who take them are normally English majors. Their content and perspective varies—the emphasis may be thematic, historical, generic, biographical, etc. All require extensive reading in primary and collateral materials.

337c. Truth and Lies. Fall 2003. Ms. KIBBIE.

An investigation of works that call into question our assumptions about the distinction between “fact” and “fiction,” from Daniel Defoe’s Journal of the Plague Year, which presents itself as an eyewitness account of the London plague of 1665, and Robinson Crusoe, based on a true story of a castaway; to modern examples of the “non-fiction novel” (Truman Capote’s In Cold Blood and Norman Mailer’s The Executioner’s Song). Considers the issues raised by literary forgeries and hoaxes (including the case of the Hitler Diaries).

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

Note: This course does not fulfill the pre-1800 requirement.

338c. Freud and James. Fall 2003. Mr. COVIELLO.

An examination of two of the great turn-of-the-century chroniclers of consciousness, intimacy, loss, and of all the unresolving ambiguities of desire. In our readings of these authors, and of their critics, we will be concerned as well with the sometimes complementary, sometimes highly vexed relations between feminist inquiry and gay and lesbian studies. Works may include Freud’s Three Essays, Dora, “The Uncanny,” “A Child is Being Beaten,” as well as James’s The Bostonians, The Wings of the Dove, What Maisie Knew, and “The Beast in the Jungle.”

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

340c. Wandering in the Ruins. Spring 2004. Mr. COLLINGS.

Examines literature, primarily written after 1945, which depicts life in a world that is enduring, or has endured, a military, cultural, moral, or natural disaster. Discusses depictions of possible strategies to take in such a world, such as survival, witnessing, doomed resistance, renunciation, fatalism, relief, celebration, haunted commemoration, or impossible hope. Authors may include Remarque, Barker, Beckett, Bowles, Abe, Ballard, Herr, Baudrillard, Nabokov, Sacco, Sebald, Burroughs, and Acker.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

341c. Aesthetic Ideologies. Spring 2004. MR. KITCH.

How is the category of the aesthetic marked by the political? Where does the literary end and the “real” begin? Topics include the aestheticized body, “pure art,” aesthetic labor, commodification, and phantasmatic structures of the real. Case studies may include Shakespeare, Virginia Woolf, T.S. Eliot, and Salman Rushdie. Readings may include Kant, Marx, Louis Althusser, Georg Lukács, Theodor Adorno, Walter Benjamin, Fredric Jameson, Terry Eagleton, Paul de Man, and Slavoj Žižek.

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

342c,d. African American Literary Criticism and Theory. Spring 2004. MS. CHAKKALAKAL.

Introduces some of the overarching issues and themes of African American literary criticism in the twentieth century, beginning with Alain Locke’s “The New Negro.” Investigates the critical methods and strategies through which an African American literature and collectivity have been formed through four historical periods—the Harlem Renaissance, the Protest Era, the Black Arts Movement, and Postmodernism. Moves through these periods with readings of the critical work of W. E. B. Du Bois, Jessie Fauset, Zora Neale Hurston, Sterling Brown, Richard Wright, James Baldwin, Ralph Ellison, Stephen Henderson, Barbara Smith, Barbara Johnson, Toni Morrison, Henry Louis Gates, Jr., Sherley Anne Williams, Stuart Hall, and Paul Gilroy. Asks a set of practical questions: What is the relationship between sociopolitical criticism and literary history? Should Afrocentric ideology govern the theoretical and critical examination of African American literature? What role does literature play in shaping contemporary debates about the social construction of political realities of race and gender? What is the nature of the relationship between American and African American literary history? More broadly, what is the relationship between African Americans and members of the larger African diaspora? (Same as Africana Studies 342.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English or Africana Studies.

343c. Gay Situations. Spring 2004. MR. PHILLIPSON.

Tracks framing of homosexual desire across the twentieth century. Examines how “the love that dare not speak its name” does in fact name itself in sharply differing contexts such as high modernism, beat culture, pulp fiction, medical drama, and tribal validation. Examines how homosexuality is housed within various genres, and considers how a given discourse defines, bolsters, excuses, and even eclipses gay identity. Primary texts include writing by Marcel Proust, Thomas Mann, Gertrude Stein, Willa Cather, C. P. Cavafy, Ann Bannon, William S. Burroughs, James Baldwin, Audre Lorde, Paul Monette, and Tony Kushner. Discussion of such texts is supplemented by consideration of related media, such as physique magazines, erotic drawing, advertising, and film (weekly screenings include The Blue Angel, Rope, Advise and Consent, Flaming Creatures, The Boys in the Band, Cruising, Longtime Companion, Tongues Untied, The Celluloid Closet, Bound).

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

360c. Playwriting. Alternate years. Fall 2004. MS. BERG.

A workshop in writing for contemporary theater. Includes introductory exercises in writing monologues, dialogue, and scenes, then moves to the writing and revising of a short play, a solo performance piece, or a staged adaptation of existing material. Students read plays and performance texts, considering how writers use speech, silence, and action; how they structure plays and performance pieces; and how they approach character and plot. (Same as Theater 360.)

Prerequisite: A 100-level course in theater or dance or permission of the instructor.

291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.401c–404c. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Requirements for the Coordinate Major in Environmental Studies (ES)

The major involves the completion of a departmental major and the following courses in environmental studies. (To fulfill the major requirement a grade of C- or better must be earned in a course. Courses offered to satisfy the College's distribution requirements and the requirements of the departmental major may also be double-counted toward the ES major requirements, except as noted below.)

1. ES 101 Introduction to Environmental Studies, preferably taken as a first-year student.
2. An introductory science course (Environmental Studies/Geology 100, Environmental Studies/Geology 103, Biology 104, Biology 105, Chemistry 109, and Physics 103 meet this requirement.
3. ES 201 Introduction to Environmental Science (same as Biology 158).
4. ES 202 Environmental Policy and Politics (same as Government 214).
5. ES 203 Environment, Culture, and the Human Experience.
6. Senior seminar: A culminating course of one semester is required of majors. Such courses are multidisciplinary, studying a topic from at least two areas of the curriculum. This course is normally taken during the senior year. Courses currently satisfying this requirement include ES 318, 321, 363, and courses numbered 390 and above. It is preferable to take this course during the senior year. Please check with the department for an updated list of courses satisfying this requirement.
7. Beyond the core courses, students must choose a concentration (listed below):

ES Disciplinary Concentrations:

For this option, ES coordinate majors must take three 100-level or above courses within one of the following concentrations:

—for History, Landscape, Values, Ethics and the Environment, students choose from ES courses designated with a “c”

—for Environmental Economics and Policy, students choose ES courses designated with a “b”

—for the Interdisciplinary Environmental Science Concentration, students take three courses from the list below; one must not be counted towards the requirements of the student's departmental major (check with the program for an updated list of courses satisfying this concentration):

- ES/Biology 121 Plants: Ecology, Diversity, Form, and Function
 - ES/Biology 210 Plant Physiology
 - ES/Biology 215 Behavioral Ecology and Population Biology
 - ES/Biology 219 Biology of Marine Organisms
 - ES/Biology 225 Community and Ecosystem Ecology
 - ES/Biology 280 Plant Responses to the Environment
 - ES/Physics 255 Physical Oceanography
 - ES 259/Physics 256 Atmospheric Physics
 - ES/Geology 230 Geometrics
 - ES/Geology 260 Oceanography and Ocean History
 - ES/Geology 265 Geophysics
 - ES/Geology 270 Surface Processes and Landforms
 - ES/Geology 275 Hydrogeology
 - Chemistry 210 Chemical Analysis
 - Chemistry 240 Inorganic Chemistry
- (Additional ES Chemistry courses will be offered beginning in Spring 2004)

Student-designed Environmental Studies Concentration:

Students majoring in ES have the option of designing their own concentration consisting of three courses in addition to the core courses and senior seminars. Student-designed concentrations are particularly appropriate for students interested in exploring environmental issues from a cross-divisional perspective. Students must submit a self-designed concentration form (available from the program), explaining their plan of study to the program director by the first week of the first semester of the junior year, listing the three ES courses proposed, and explaining how the courses are related to the issue of interest to the student. Proposals must be approved by the program director.

Requirements for the Minor in Environmental Studies

The minor consists of five courses: Environmental Studies 101 and two core courses in the disciplinary area outside a student's departmental major:

—for natural science majors: ES 202 (Environmental Policy and Politics) and ES 203 (Environment, Culture, and Human Experience);

—for social science majors: ES 201 (Introduction to Environmental Science) and ES 203 (Environment, Culture, and Human Experience);

—for humanities majors: ES 201 (Introduction to Environmental Science) and ES 202 (Environmental Policy and Politics); and two other ES courses (numbered 200 or above, one of which should be outside a student's departmental major).

First-Year Seminar

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

15c. Frontier Crossings: The Western Experience in American History. Spring 2004.

MR. KLINGLE.

(Same as History 15.)

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses[56a. Ecology and Society.]*81a. Physics of the Environment. Spring 2005. MR. BATTLE.

An introduction to the physics of environmental issues, including past climates, anthropogenic climate change, ozone destruction, and energy production and efficiency. (Same as Physics 81.)

100a. Environmental Geology and Hydrology. Every spring. MR. LEA.

An introduction to aspects of geology and hydrology that affect the environment and land use. Topics include watersheds and surface-water quality, groundwater contamination, coastal erosion, and development of landscapes. Weekly labs and field trips examine local environmental problems affecting Maine rivers, lakes, and coast. (Same as Geology 100.)

101. Introduction to Environmental Studies. Every fall. MR. JOHN, MR. SIMON, AND MR. WHITLOW.

An interdisciplinary introduction to the variety of environmental problems caused by humanity and confronting us today. Provides an overview of the state of scientific knowledge about major environmental problems and potential responses of governments and people, an exploration of environmental issues, both global and regional, and an exploration of why societies often have such difficulty in reaching consensus on effective and equitable policies within existing political and economic institutions. Preference given to first- and second-year students. Required for ES majors.

103a. Marine Environmental Geology. Every fall. Fall 2003. MS. ROESLER. Fall 2004. MR. LAINE.

An introduction to the aspects of marine geology and oceanography that affect the environment and marine resources. Topics include estuarine oceanography and sediments, eutrophication of coastal waters, primary productivity, waves and tides, sea level history, glacial geology of coastal Maine, and an introduction to plate tectonics. Weekly field trips and labs examine local environmental problems affecting Casco Bay and the Maine coast. Two one-day weekend field excursions are required. (Same as Geology 103.)

121a. Plants: Ecology, Diversity, Form, and Function. Fall 2003. MR. LOGAN.

A survey course on plant biology. Topics include diversity and phylogenetic relationships among major plant taxa (particularly with respect to the local flora), physiological mechanisms underlying water and nutrient acquisition and use, photosynthesis, vascular plant anatomy, and ecological principles related to plant survival and reproduction. Relevant botanical topics such as the green revolution, ethnobotany, and forest ecology are also discussed. Laboratory sessions every week. (Same as Biology 121.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104.

201a. Introduction to Environmental Science. Spring 2004. MR. WHITLOW.

The science of ecology deals with the distribution and abundance of organisms. As such, ecologists have been in a position to call the public's attention to environmental changes associated with human population growth and activity that have deleterious effects on natural populations and ecosystems, and that may negatively affect the quality of life for humans. Examines the fundamentals of ecology to provide a solid background in the sciences, and discusses current ecological issues and dilemmas facing society. Laboratory sessions consist of local field trips, group research, case study exercises, and discussion of current and classic scientific literature. (Same as Biology 158.)

Prerequisite: One 100-level or higher course in biology, chemistry, physics, or geology.

202b. Environmental Policy and Politics. Every year. Fall 2003. MR. JOHN.

Examines alternative ways to protect our physical environment. Analyzes environmental policies and the regulatory regime that has developed in the United States, as well as new approaches such as free-market environmentalism, civic environmentalism, environmental justice, sustainable development, and environmental policies and politics in other countries. Includes intensive study of specific issues such as air pollution, land conservation, or the reduction and management of wastes. (Same as Government 214.)

Prerequisite: Environmental Studies 101 or permission of the instructor.

203c. Environment, Culture, and the Human Experience. Every year. Spring 2004. MR. KLINGLE.

An interdisciplinary introduction to humanistic interpretations of nature and the environment. Students consider ideas about nature from several perspectives—including art, film, history, literature, philosophy, and religion—as they explore how human perceptions have created both sustainable and unsustainable relations with the natural world over time. Specific themes include the historical relationship between nature and culture; the influence of spiritual, intellectual, and aesthetic traditions; and the role of society and personal identity in shaping environmental thought.

Prerequisite: Environmental Studies 101 or permission of the instructor.

[205c. Historia Naturalis: Society and the Environment in the Ancient Mediterranean.]210a. Plant Physiology. Every spring. MR. LOGAN.

An introduction to the physiological processes that enable plants to grow under the varied conditions found in nature. General topics discussed include the acquisition, transport, and use of water and mineral nutrients, photosynthetic carbon assimilation, and the influence of environmental and hormonal signals on development and morphology. Adaptation and acclimation to extreme environments and other ecophysiological subjects are also discussed. Weekly laboratories reinforce principles discussed in lecture and expose students to modern research techniques. (Same as Biology 210.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

213b,d. Anthropology of Islands. Spring 2004. MS. HENSHAW.

Focuses on the diversity of island peoples and cultures and the unique place they hold within the field of anthropology. Explores the range of environmental contexts in which island peoples adapt, as well as the unique socioeconomic systems and historical experiences that characterize them. Examines the powerful sense of cultural identity that islanders share, and the many challenges and opportunities they face in an age of globalization and limited resources. Selected case studies draw from islands in the Pacific and North Atlantic, including Maine, to bring a comparative and interdisciplinary understanding of island societies past and present. (Same as Anthropology 218.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102.

215a. Behavioral Ecology and Population Biology. Every fall. MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

Study of the behavior of animals and plants, and the interactions between organisms and their environment. Topics include population growth and structure, and the influence of competition, predation, and other factors on the behavior, abundance, and distribution of plants and animals. Laboratory sessions, field trips, and research projects emphasize concepts in ecology, evolution and behavior, research techniques, and the natural history of local plants and animals. Optional field trip to the Bowdoin Scientific Station on Kent Island. (Same as Biology 215.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

218b. Environmental Economics and Policy. Fall 2004. MR. VAIL.

An exploration of environmental degradation and public policy responses in industrial economies. Market failures, property rights, and behavioral norms are investigated as causes of air, water, and solid waste pollution. Guidelines for equitable and cost-effective environmental policy are explored, with an emphasis on the roles and limitations of cost-benefit analysis and methods for estimating non-monetary values. Three core themes are the transition from “command and control” to incentive-based instruments (e.g., pollution taxes); the evolution from piecemeal regulation to comprehensive “green plans” (e.g., in the Netherlands); and connections among air pollution, energy systems, and global climate change. (Same as Economics 218.)

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

219a. Biology of Marine Organisms. Every fall. Ms. JOHNSON.

The study of the biology and ecology of marine mammals, seabirds, fish, intertidal and subtidal invertebrates, algae, and plankton. Also considers the biogeographic consequences of global and local ocean currents on the evolution and ecology of marine organisms. Laboratories, field trips, and research projects emphasize natural history, functional morphology, and ecology. Lectures and three hours of laboratory or field trip per week. One weekend field trip included. (Same as Biology 219.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

220b,d. Underdevelopment and Strategies for Sustainable Development in Poor Countries. Spring 2004. MR. VAIL.

The major economic features of underdevelopment are investigated, with stress on uneven development and the interrelated problems of poverty, population growth, inequality, urban bias, and environmental degradation. The assessment of development strategies emphasizes key policy choices, such as export promotion versus import substitution, agriculture versus industry, plan versus market, and capital versus labor-intensive technologies. Topics include global economic integration and environmental sustainability. (Same as Economics 219.)

Prerequisite: Economics 101 and 102, or permission of the instructor.

221b. Environmental Sociology. Spring 2005. MR. BANDY.

An examination of the complex social processes that define, create, and threaten the natural environment. Investigates the relationships among various environmental and social problems, as well as the many political ideologies, philosophies, and movements that define and redefine how we think of nature and sustainability. Explores issues of science and technology, popular culture, urbanization, racial and gender relations, as well as environmental movements. (Same as Sociology 221.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

222b. Introduction to Human Population. Fall 2004. Ms. RILEY.

An introduction to the major issues in the study of population. Focuses on the social aspects of the demographic processes of fertility, mortality, and migration. Also examines population change in Western Europe historically, recent demographic changes in Third World countries, population policy, and the social and environmental causes and implications of changes in births, deaths, and migration. (Same as Sociology 222 and Women's Studies 224.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

225a. Community and Ecosystem Ecology. Every fall. MR. WHITLOW.

Community ecology is the study of the dynamic patterns in the distribution and abundance of organisms. Ecosystem ecology is the study of the flow of energy and cycling of matter through ecological communities across multiple spatial scales. Explores the multitude of interactions among populations of plants, animals, and microbes, and between those populations and the physical and chemical environment. Topics include the creation and function of biodiversity, the complexity of species interactions in food webs, the role of disturbance in ecosystem processes, the relative magnitude of top-down versus bottom-up controls in ecosystems, and much more. Laboratory sessions consist of local field trips, team research exercises, and independent field research projects. Time is also set aside for discussions of current and classic scientific literature. (Same as Biology 225.)

Prerequisite: Biology 104 (Class of '04) or 105 (Classes of '05 – '07).

[227c. City and Landscape in Modern Europe: London, Paris, Vienna, Berlin.][228b. Natural Resource Economics and Policy.]*[230a. Geometrics.]*231b,d. Native Peoples and Cultures of Arctic America. Fall 2004. MS. KAPLAN.

For thousands of years, Eskimos (Inuit), Indian, and Aleut peoples lived in the Arctic regions of North America as hunters, gatherers, and fishermen. Their clothing, shelter, food, and implements were derived from resources recovered from the sea, rivers, and the land. The characteristics of Arctic ecosystems are examined. The social, economic, political, and religious lives of various Arctic-dwelling peoples are explored in an effort to understand how people have adapted to harsh northern environments. (Same as Anthropology 231.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102.

[232c. History of the American West.]235c. Green Injustice: Environment and Equity in North American History. Fall 2003.

MR. KLINGLE.

Seminar. Examines the historical foundations of environmental racism and environmental justice in North America. Students investigate how tensions between inclusion and exclusion through time have blurred the boundaries between nature and culture. Explores such topics as the expulsion of Native Americans from public lands; agriculture and antebellum slavery; immigration, disease, and the rise of public health and urban planning; the impact of weeds and invasive species upon community relations in the West; the role of science and technology in defining environmental and social problems; class conflict and conservation policy; and the transnational dimensions of pollution. (Same as History 235.)

240b. Environmental Law. Fall 2003. MR. SCHNEIDER.

Examines critically some of the most important American environmental laws and applies them to environmental problems that affect the United States and the world. Students learn what the law currently requires and how it is administered by federal and state agencies. They are encouraged to examine the effectiveness of current law and consider alternative approaches.

241b. Principles of Land-Use Planning. Spring 2005. THE PROGRAM.

Land—how it is used, who controls it, the tension between private and public rights to it—is central to today's environmental debate. Land-use planning is inevitably part of that debate. It is a bridge between the physical environment (the land) and the social, economic, and political forces affecting that environment. The course exposes students to the physical principles of land-use planning and the legal and socioeconomic principles that underlie it.

242c. Environmental History of North America. Fall 2003. MR. KLINGLE.

Explores relationships between ideas of nature, human transformations of the environment, and the impact of nature on human events. Topics include the “Columbian exchange,” race and class relations, gender and labor, the role of science and technology, the influence of the westward expansion and colonialism, politics, urbanization, and the changing understandings of “nature” in North American cultures. (Same as History 242.)

[243a. Methods in Environmental Science.]244c. City, Anti-City, and Utopia: The Urban Tradition in America. Spring 2005. Ms. PEARLMAN.

Explores the evolution of the American city from the beginning of industrialization to the present age of mass communications. Focuses on the underlying explanations for the American city’s physical form by examining cultural values, technological advancement, aesthetic theories, and social structure. Major figures, places, and schemes in the areas of urban design and architecture, social criticism, and reform are considered. (Same as History 244.)

245c. Modern Architecture and its Critics. Every other year. Fall 2003. Ms. PEARLMAN.

Examines major buildings, architects, and architectural theories from the start to the end of the twentieth century and slightly beyond. Explores a range of issues including architecture as social engagement, and the often conflicting demands of modernity, tradition, form and function.

246c. Romanticism, Lyricism, and Nature. Spring 2005. MR. COLLINGS.

Examines English romantic poetry about nature, with particular emphasis on the way such poetry finds a lyric impulse already present in nature. Considers such subjects as the interplay of nature and transcendence, the supernatural dimension of nature, the boundary between the human and the natural, the contrast of urban and rural life, and the value of traditional landed society. Authors may include Clare, Coleridge, Keats, Shelley, and Wordsworth. (Same as English 246.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English or Environmental Studies.

247c. Maine: A Community and Environmental History. Spring 2005. Ms. McMAHON.

Seminar. Examines the evolution of various Maine ecological communities—inland, hill country, and coastal. Begins with pre-colonial habitats and the transfer of English and European agricultural traditions in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and explores the development of those communities through the early twentieth century. Research projects focus on the agricultural and ecological history of two local rural properties and their surrounding neighborhoods. (Same as History 247.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in history or permission of the instructor.

[255a. Physical Oceanography.]256c,d. Environment and Society in Latin America. Spring 2004. MR. WELLS AND MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

Examines the evolving relationship between the environment, politics, and culture in Central America and the Caribbean. Topics include the environmental impact of economic development; colonialism; the predominance of plantation monoculture, slavery, and other forms of coerced labor; and political instability. (Same as History 256.)

[257b. Environmental Archaeology.]258c. Environmental Ethics. Spring 2004. MR. SIMON.

The central issue in environmental ethics concerns what things in nature have moral standing and how conflicts of interest among them are to be resolved. After an introduction to ethical theory, topics to be covered include anthropocentrism, the moral status of nonhuman sentient beings and of nonsentient living beings, preservation of endangered species and the wilderness, holism versus individualism, the land ethic, and deep ecology. (Same as Philosophy 258.)

[259a. Atmospheric Physics.]260a. Oceanography and Ocean History. Fall 2003. MS. ROESLER.

Introduction to the water masses, circulation, chemistry, and productivity of the modern oceans. Examination of the paleontological, stratigraphic, and geochemical methods used to reconstruct these characteristics through geologic history. Brief introduction to geologic time series. (Same as Geology 260.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in geology or permission of the instructor.

263b. International Environmental Policy. Spring 2004. MR. SPRINGER.

Examines the political, legal, and institutional dimension of international efforts to protect the environment. Problems discussed include transboundary and marine pollution, maintaining biodiversity, and global climate change. (Same as Government 263.)

[265a. Geophysics.]267a. Coastal Oceanography. Spring 2004. MS. ROESLER. Spring 2005. MR. LAINE.

Principles and problems in coastal oceanography, with an emphasis on interdisciplinary inquiry. Topics include circulation and sediment transport within estuaries and on the continental shelf, impact of human systems on the marine environment, and issues and controversies of eutrophication and hypoxia in the coastal environment. (Same as Geology 267.)

Prerequisite: Geology 100, 101, or 103.

275a. Hydrogeology. Spring 2005. MR. LEA.

The interaction of water and geological materials within the hydrologic cycle, with emphasis on groundwater resources and quality. Qualitative and quantitative examination of the movement of groundwater in aquifers. (Same as Geology 275.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in geology or permission of the instructor.

280a. Plant Responses to the Environment. Fall 2004. MR. LOGAN.

Plants can be found growing under remarkably stressful conditions. Even your own backyard poses challenges to plant growth and reproduction. Survival is possible only because of a diverse suite of elegant physiological and morphological adaptations. The physiological ecology of plants from extreme habitats (e.g., tundra, desert, hypersaline) is discussed, along with the responses of plants to environmental factors such as light and temperature. Readings from the primary literature and a text facilitate class discussion. Excursions into the field and laboratory exercises complement class material. (Same as Biology 280.)

Prerequisite: Biology 210.

[318b. Environmental and Resource Economics.]

321b. Ecological Economics and Sustainable Development. Fall 2003. MR. VAIL.

Ecological economics starts from the premise that economies are open subsystems of ecosystems, subject to natural “laws” and constraints, such as entropy, carrying capacity limits, and conservation of matter-energy. Focuses first on theories and evidence regarding the co-evolution of economies and ecosystems. Emphasizes disequilibrium processes, feedbacks, and irreversible change by drawing insights from social and biophysical sciences. Traces the debate about “strong” and “weak” conditions for sustainable economic development, exploring guidelines for sustainable use of natural capital, the “precautionary principle,” and international regimes for environmental governance. (Same as Economics 321.)

Prerequisite: Economics 255 and 257 (or equivalent statistical background), or permission of the instructor.

[328c. Nature’s Stories: Research Methods in Environmental History.]363b. Advanced Seminar in International Relations: Law, Politics, and the Search for Justice. Spring 2004. MR. SPRINGER.

Examines the complex relationship between law and policy in international relations by focusing on two important and rapidly developing areas of international concern: environmental protection and humanitarian rights. Fulfills the ES senior seminar requirement. (Same as Government 363.)

Prerequisite: Government 260, 261, or 263, or permission of the instructor.

[364b. Environmental Politics and Policy in Maine.]391. Troubled Waters: Fishing in the Gulf of Maine. Spring 2004. MS. HAYDEN AND MR. JOHN.

Around the world and in the Gulf of Maine, overfishing and threats to habitat are putting marine ecosystems and coastal communities under great stress. An interdisciplinary senior seminar exploring the causes and scope of pressures on the marine environment; the potential for restoring ecosystems and fisheries; political conflicts over fisheries and related issues; federal, state, and community-based approaches to managing marine ecosystems; and strategies for coping with scientific and management uncertainties.

[392c. Advanced Topics in Environmental Philosophy.]399c. BIG PLANS: Culture, Politics, and the Design of the Modern City. Spring 2004. MS. PEARLMAN.

Seminar examines great moments, issues, and texts in the history of modern urbanism. Includes Haussman’s Paris, the Vienna Ringstrasse, Robert Moses’s New York, the modernist cities of Brasilia and Chandigarh, and suggested schemes for the post-modern city. In considering the roles of planning, politics, history, memory, nature, and modernity as key factors in shaping civic form, turns to a range of different authors, including: Carl Schorske, Robert Caro, Le Corbusier, Lewis Mumford, Jane Jacobs, William Whyte, Kevin Lynch and Rem Koolhaas. Students carry out a semester-long research project culminating in a research paper and class presentation. (Same as History 226.)

Prerequisite: One history course or Environmental Studies 245 or permission of the instructor.

291–294. Intermediate Independent Study. THE PROGRAM.401–404. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE PROGRAM.

The Art Department invites Art/Environmental Studies independent studies. Contact Mr. Cornell.

Students may also choose from the following list of courses to satisfy requirements for the major in environmental studies. These courses will receive environmental studies credit with the approval of the director after consultation with the student and the instructor. It is expected that a substantial portion of the student's research efforts will focus on the environment. In addition to the courses listed below, students may discuss other possibilities with the Environmental Studies Program. For full course descriptions and prerequisites, see the appropriate department listings.

Film Studies

Associate Professor

Tricia Welsch†, Chair

Visiting Assistant Professor

James Potter

Department Coordinator

Daniel Hope

Film has emerged as one of the most important art forms of the twentieth century. Film Studies at Bowdoin introduces students to the grammar, history, and literature of film in order to cultivate an understanding of both the vision and craft of film artists and the views of society and culture expressed in cinema. Bowdoin College does not offer a major in film studies.

Requirements for the Minor in Film Studies

The minor consists of five courses, four of which must be courses offered by the Film Studies department. One course must come from another department's offerings, and at least one course must be at the 300 level or be an independent study. No more than two courses below the 200 level (including Film Studies 101) will count toward the minor. Courses in which D grades are received will not count toward the minor.

Required Courses:

Film Studies 101

Film Studies 201 or Film Studies 202

(both 201 and 202 may be counted toward the minor)

Pre-approved Courses outside the Film Studies Department:

Students may choose from the following list of courses to satisfy the requirement for a course outside the Film Studies department. A student may also petition the department to gain approval for a course not on this list. Such courses must concentrate on film for the major part of their curriculum. Students wishing to have a particular course considered toward the minor should submit supporting materials from the course (such as syllabus, reading list, and assignments) to the chair of the Film Studies department.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses101c. Film Narrative. Fall 2003. MR. POTTER. Fall 2004. MS. WELSCH.

An introduction to a variety of methods used to study motion pictures, with consideration given to a variety of types of films from different countries and time periods. Techniques and strategies used to construct films, including mise-en-scène, editing, sound, and the orchestration of film techniques in larger formal systems. Surveys some of the contextual factors shaping individual films and our experiences of them (including mode of production, genre, authorship, and ideology). No previous experience with film studies is required. Attendance at weekly evening screenings is required.

201c. History of Film, 1895–1940. Fall 2003. MR. POTTER.

Examines the development of film from its origins to the American studio era. Includes early work by the Lumières, Méliès, and Porter, and continues with Griffith, Murnau, Eisenstein, Chaplin, Keaton, Stroheim, Pudovkin, Lang, Renoir, and von Sternberg. Special attention is paid to the practical and theoretical concerns over the coming of sound. Attendance at weekly evening screenings is required.

202c. History of Film, 1940 to the Present. Spring 2004. MR. POTTER.

A consideration of the diverse production contexts and political circumstances influencing cinema history in the sound era. National film movements to be studied include Neorealism, the French New Wave, and the New German Cinema, as well as the coming of age of Asian and Australian film. This course also explores the shift away from studio production in the United States, the major regulatory systems, and the changes in popular film genres. Attendance at weekly evening screenings is required.

[224c. The Films of Alfred Hitchcock.]

[321c. German Expressionism and Its Legacy.]

[322c. Film and Biography.]

[333c. The Films of John Ford.]

325c. The Films of Martin Scorsese. Spring 2004. MR. POTTER.

Examines the work of Martin Scorsese, from his days as a film student in the 1960s through the present. Looks at Scorsese's career from a variety of perspectives, emphasizing the visual style, narrative structures, thematic concerns, and political implications of his films. Also analyzes Scorsese's work, and his prominent public image, to explore the changing status of the American filmmaker over the past three decades. Attendance at weekly screenings is required.

291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.401c–404c. Advanced Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

First-Year Seminars

The purpose of the first-year seminar program is to introduce college-level disciplines and to contribute to students' understanding of the ways in which a specific discipline may relate to other areas in the humanities, social sciences, and sciences. A major emphasis of each seminar will be placed upon the improvement of students' skills—their ability to read texts effectively and to write prose that is carefully organized, concise, and firmly based upon evidence.

Each year a number of departments offer first-year seminars. Enrollment in each is limited to 16 students. Sufficient seminars are offered to ensure that every first-year student will have the opportunity to participate during at least one semester of the first year. Registration for the seminars will take place before registration for other courses, to facilitate scheduling. A complete listing of first-year seminars being offered in the 2003–2004 academic year follows.

Africana Studies 10b,d. Racism. Fall 2003. MR. PARTRIDGE.

Examines issues of racism in the United States, with attention to the social psychology of racism, its history, its relationship to social structure, and its ethical and moral implications. (Same as Sociology 10.)

Africana Studies 12c,d. Representation and Resistance: African American Film and Literature. Fall 2003. MS. MUTHER.

Topics include the documentary impulse in African American film and writing; gender, sexuality, and cultural images; the politics of interpretation—writers, film makers, critics, and audiences; black nationalism versus “blaxploitation”; and the urban context and the economics of alienation. (Same as English 12.)

Africana Studies 13b. Race and Representation. Fall 2003. MR. MAPPS.

Explores a question that has been central to American politics since the founding of the Republic: Does the American political system provide for the fair representation of political minorities? The primary goal is to develop thoughtful answers to that question. Early readings review ideas philosophers have developed about political representation, which provide the intellectual framework for examining current problems in political representation. Explores a wide range of debates, including disputes over the representation of racial minorities in American politics, the accuracy of the U.S. census, and the impact alternative voting systems might have on political representation. Although readings primarily focus on the experience of racial minorities in the United States, the issues explored are relevant to a wide range of political minorities, and to those interested in how to build just democracies in diverse and complex societies. (Same as Government 113.)

Africana Studies 16c,d. Black Heroes in American Literature. Fall 2003. Ms. CHAKKALAKAL.

Explores the conjunction between the terms “black” and “heroes” that has gained a considerable degree of currency in contemporary forms of American popular culture. At present, Black culture is operating within the terms of a “politics of distinction,” which accounts in part for the contemporary emphasis on black exceptionalism. Role models and black “firsts” abound. Considers how the rhetoric for this politics was derived both with and against the depiction of “black heroes” through examination of literary texts by Harriet Beecher Stowe, William Faulkner, and Alice Walker, and feature films directed by Quentin Tarantino, Stephen Spielberg, and Spike Lee. (Same as English 16.)

Africana Studies 17c,d. “Black Is Black Ain’t”: Visuality and Ethnicity. Spring 2004. Ms. MCGEE.

Introduction to the representational power of imagery and the modes visual artists employ to subvert, explode, or reverse stereotypes. Examines the history of visual representations of Africans and African Americans and their corresponding intents and effects such as fear, control, dehumanization, marginalization, or even commercialization of human beings. Other ethnic stereotypes found within American visual culture are also discussed. (Same as Art History 17.)

Africana Studies 21c,d. The Harlem Renaissance. Spring 2004. Mr. COVIELLO.

Examines the great flowering of literature, music, art, and social criticism that occurred in and around Harlem in the 1920s. Considers, in particular, the difficulties involved in shaping an essentially artistic movement into a kind of political force, a counter-culture practice. Of interest throughout are questions of literary form and influence, of white “appreciation” and appropriation, and of the vexed place of gender and sexual difference in a movement defined more centrally by the imperatives of race. Authors include W. E. B. Du Bois, James Weldon Johnson, Nella Larsen, Langston Hughes, Jean Toomer, and Zora Neale Hurston. (Same as English 21.)

Anthropology 20b. Fantastic Archaeology. Fall 2003. Mr. MACEachern.

Chariots of the gods... Refugees from Atlantis... Lost arks... Archaeology occupies a curious place in the popular imagination, as an academic pursuit but also a highly romanticized—and often fictionalized—quest. Its involuntary association with strange theories and fraudulent hangers-on may thus not be too surprising. Students will examine a variety of the weird and wonderful ideas that inhabit the fringes of the discipline, and thus come to an understanding of what archaeology is through analysis of what it is not.

Anthropology 22b. Inventing the Seaside. Spring 2004. Ms. BALLINGER.

Examines the changing understandings of the sea and coastlines in Western cultures. What culture meanings have been attached to the sea? What role has the sea played in the imagination and as a site for social relationships? Particular attention is given to the fashioning of the beach as a space of health, leisure, and tourism, as well as the tensions between tourism and other economic activities centered around the sea. Materials examined include paintings, literature, and folklore. Class includes local on-site visits.

Art History 10c. The Art of Winslow Homer. Spring 2004. Ms. DOCHERTY.

A study of Winslow Homer’s paintings, prints, and watercolors as individual and cultural expressions. Emphasis is placed on learning to read works of art, to research them, to interpret them in historical context, and to write clearly and intelligently about them. Students work closely with the Homer collection in the Bowdoin College Museum of Art and visit sites that the artist painted at Prout’s Neck, Maine.

Art History 14c,d. Life and Afterlife: Art and Archaeology of Ancient China. Fall 2003. Ms. LEE.

Examines artifacts relating to death, the afterlife, and communication with the dead, i.e. ancestors, in ancient China, approximately from the Shang to the Han dynasty (ca. 1600 B.C.E.–220 C.E.). Artifacts range from oracle bones and bronze vessels to Qin Shihuangdi's vast terracotta army and more modest jade suits worn by nobles. Analyzes grave goods supplemented with textual sources to explore visions of the afterlife and issues of class, power, and gender. (Same as Asian Studies 14.)

Art History 15c. Artworks, Artists, and Audiences. Spring 2004. MR. PERKINSON.

Introduces students to issues involved in interpretation of art and architecture. Students acquire the descriptive vocabulary that helps analyze works of art and the built environment. Examines how artists attach meaning to the objects they create, including the meaning of architecture. Explores the ways in which works of art are given meaning by their audiences—critics, museums, scholars, and the public—as well as the ways in which artists and architects attempt to influence those audiences. Covers the art of a variety of eras and cultures, including European, American, Asian, Oceanic, African, and Middle Eastern traditions. Visits to Bowdoin's architectural monuments and to its two museums allow students to hone their descriptive and analytical skills through observation of original works of art and architecture.

Art History 17c,d. "Black Is Black Ain't": Visuality and Ethnicity. Spring 2004. Ms. MCGEE.

Introduction to the representational power of imagery and the modes visual artists employ to subvert, explode, or reverse stereotypes. Examines the history of visual representations of Africans and African Americans and their corresponding intents and effects such as fear, control, dehumanization, marginalization, or even commercialization of human beings. Other ethnic stereotypes found within American visual culture are also discussed. (Same as Africana Studies 17.)

Art History 18c. Picturing an Exhibition: Art and the Life of a Renaissance Adolescent. Fall 2003. Ms. WEGNER.

Using original Renaissance paintings, medals, and prints in the Bowdoin College Museum of Art, the class will research and write for a proposed exhibition highlighting the way art was used in the life of a young man or woman around 1500. Examines how art accompanied many of the life ceremonies of a young person in the upper classes of society during the Renaissance in Europe. Includes marriage furniture, portraits, devotional images, designs for costumes, education, ideal body image.

Asian Studies 12c,d. Religion and Literature in Modern South Asia. Fall 2003. MR. HOLT.

Introduction to the religious cultures of Hindus and Buddhists in South Asia and how these cultures have been represented, imagined, and interpreted by modern Indian writers of fiction. Frequent essays. (Same as Religion 12.)

Asian Studies 14c,d. Life and Afterlife: Art and Archaeology of Ancient China. Fall 2003. Ms. LEE.

Examines artifacts relating to death, the afterlife, and communication with the dead, i.e. ancestors, in ancient China, approximately from the Shang to the Han dynasty (ca. 1600 B.C.E.–220 C.E.). Artifacts range from oracle bones and bronze vessels to Qin Shihuangdi's vast terracotta army and more modest jade suits worn by nobles. Analyzes grave goods supplemented with textual sources to explore visions of the afterlife and issues of class, power, and gender. (Same as Art History 14.)

Asian Studies 19b,d. East Asian Politics: Introductory Seminar. Fall 2003. MR. LAURENCE.

Surveys the diverse political, social, and economic arrangements across East Asia. Main focus on China, Japan, and North and South Korea. Examines the relationships between democracy, economic change, and human rights. Other questions: What are “Asian values”? What is the role of Confucianism in political and economic life? How are economic and political developments affecting traditional social institutions such as families, and how is the status of women changing? (Same as Government 119.)

Asian Studies 28c,d. Seekers’ Lives. Spring 2006. MR. SMITH.

Employs the disciplines of history, religion, and textual studies to examine the autobiographies of contemplatives, past and present. Emphasis on Hinduism and Buddhism in India, Tibet, and Japan, with contrasts drawn from European Catholicism. (Same as History 28.)

Asian Studies 29c,d. Non-Violence, Nukes, and Nationalism. Fall 2003. MS. MITCHELL.

Examines competing ideas of the Indian nation and the methods advocated to achieve and maintain it. Primary and secondary sources are used to explore early anti-colonial visions of the nation, the non-cooperation movement led by Gandhi, the wide-ranging views of his supporters and critics, post-colonial contestations of the foundations and futures of national communities, and the role of South Asian nuclear capabilities within recent assertions of national identity. (Same as History 29.)

Classics 16c. Cultural Connections in the Ancient Mediterranean. Fall 2003. MR. HIGGINBOTHAM.

Studies the degree and nature of cross-cultural interactions, explores the influence of one society on another, and examines the characteristics that not only determine, but also unite, the civilizations of the Ancient Near East, Africa, Greece, and Rome. Thematic topics include the ancient trading economies of Corinth and Athens, the spread of ancient technologies and manufacture, the development and evolution of monetary systems, public and private religion, and the debt that the “Classical” world owes to African and Near Eastern societies. Incorporates study of the rich collections of ancient art and artifacts housed in the Bowdoin College Museum of Art. Here, the same evidence used by archaeologists and historians to study the contacts between ancient cultures is examined (vases from Corinth and Athens, coins, votive terracotta figurines and other cultic instruments, portraiture, and implements of daily life).

English 10c. Dreaming of the Middle Ages. Fall 2003. MS. EDSALL.

In Umberto Eco’s terms, what do we do when we “dream of the Middle Ages”? Explores a range of modern texts set in the Middle Ages while also paying attention to architecture, the visual arts, and film. Studies the ways in which representations of the “medieval” are used variously to construct, defend, or critique gender relations, class structures, and political systems. Some attention will be paid to the dynamics of fantasy and romance reading. Readings and films may include: Umberto Eco; Horace Walpole’s Castle of Otranto; Jane Austen’s Northanger Abbey; John Keats’ Eve of Saint Agnes and La Belle Dame sans Merci; Sir Walter Scott’s Ivanhoe; and Mark Twain’s A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur’s Court; Monty Python and the Holy Grail; or First Knight.

English 11c. Literature and Utopia. Fall 2003. MR. KITCH.

Explores literary dreamworlds from Plato to contemporary America. How do idealized societies relate to existing social orders? What forms of aesthetic, political, and cultural desires find a place in political fantasies? Considers dystopias as well as utopias. Readings may include Plato, Thomas More, Jonathan Swift, Aldous Huxley, George Orwell, William Morris, B.F. Skinner, and Margaret Atwood; films may include Blade Runner and Brazil.

English 12c,d. Representation and Resistance: African American Film and Literature.

Fall 2003. Ms. MUTHER.

Topics include the documentary impulse in African American film and writing; gender, sexuality, and cultural images; the politics of interpretation—writers, film makers, critics, and audiences; black nationalism versus “blaxploitation”; and the urban context and the economics of alienation. (Same as Africana Studies 12.)

English 14c. Hawthorne. Fall 2003. Mr. WATTERSON.

Readings include selected short stories, Fanshawe, The Scarlet Letter, The Blithedale Romance, The House of the Seven Gables, The Marble Faun, Septimus Felton, and James Mellow’s Nathaniel Hawthorne in His Times.

English 15c. Americans Abroad. Fall 2003. Mr. PHILLIPSON.

An examination of fiction written by and about Americans overseas, ranging from the eighteenth to the late twentieth century. Tracks how foreign ground affects American values, manners, and identities. Special attention will be paid to the social freedoms licensed by travel. Authors may include Washington Irving, Mark Twain, Henry James, Edith Wharton, Ernest Hemingway, James Baldwin, Katherine Porter, Paul Bowles, and Tim O’Brien.

English 16c,d. Black Heroes in American Literature. Fall 2003. Ms. CHAKKALAKAL.

Explores the conjunction between the terms “black” and “heroes” that has gained a considerable degree of currency in contemporary forms of American popular culture. At present, Black culture is operating within the terms of a “politics of distinction,” which accounts in part for the contemporary emphasis on black exceptionalism. Role models and black “firsts” abound. Considers how the rhetoric for this politics was derived both with and against the depiction of “black heroes” through examination of literary texts by Harriet Beecher Stowe, William Faulkner, and Alice Walker, and feature films directed by Quentin Tarantino, Stephen Spielberg, and Spike Lee. (Same as Africana Studies 16.)

English 17c. Home. Fall 2003. Mr. BARR.

Looks at some of the ways that writers and filmmakers have depicted shelter, domestic life, home, homelessness, and sanctuary. Sanctuaries and shelters may be material or immaterial, found, or made; and in the words of the poet A.R. Ammons—sanctuary may even be “just a sound.” Although focusing on novels and films, a selection of poems and essays that explore the topic are also read. Also looks at critical and theoretical work to help explore the distinctions between public and private worlds. Includes novels and stories by Toni Morrison, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Virginia Woolf, and J. M. Coetzee, and film by a variety of directors, including Alfred Hitchcock, John Cassavetes, Ousmene Sembene, and Maya Deren.

English 20c. Film and the Radical Imagination. Spring 2004. Mr. BARR.

Examines the work of filmmakers who require us to question the distinctions between art and politics. How do the artistic or formal components of a film—such as framing or editing or sound design—help the filmmaker to express political ideas or to describe social problems? The course is international in scope—including films from Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Americas—and covers films from the 1920s to the present. Considers works of fiction and non-fiction, short works, and features. Films may include Battleship Potemkin, Bonnie and Clyde, Nashville, The Bicycle Thief, Apocalypse Now, Xala, and others. Weekly required screenings.

English 21c,d. The Harlem Renaissance. Spring 2004. MR. COVIELLO.

Examines the great flowering of literature, music, art, and social criticism that occurred in and around Harlem in the 1920s. Considers, in particular, the difficulties involved in shaping an essentially artistic movement into a kind of political force, a counter-culture practice. Of interest throughout are questions of literary form and influence, of white "appreciation" and appropriation, and of the vexed place of gender and sexual difference in a movement defined more centrally by the imperatives of race. Authors include W. E. B. Du Bois, James Weldon Johnson, Nella Larsen, Langston Hughes, Jean Toomer, and Zora Neale Hurston. (Same as Africana Studies 21.)

English 22c. Tricksters/Trickstars. Spring 2004. Ms. EDSALL.

Surveys trickster tales from different cultures, including a focus on the female trickster, as background for an analysis of Western works that contain trickster figures. Themes will include marginality, subversion/inversion, shape-shifting, deception, and word play. Readings may include: Selected Native American, West African, Asian, European, and American trickster tales; Chrétien de Troyes, Cliges; Christopher Marlowe, Doctor Faustus; Lazarillo de Tormes; Daniel Defoe, Moll Flanders; and Charles W. Chesnutt, The Conjure Woman.

English 24c. Sam Shepard. Spring 2004. MR. WALTON.

An exploration of the poetry, short fiction, and drama of American author Sam Shepard, including a close examination of the family plays. Also examines certain works by Aeschylus, Beckett, O'Neill, and others which have influenced or informed Shepard's development.

English 25c. Elizabethan Heroes. Spring 2004. MR. WATTERSON.

English drama, poetry, and prose fiction of the later sixteenth century abound in heroes and heroic paradigms. Moral, intellectual, civic, rhetorical, chivalric, picaresque, and "ordinary" heroes will be examined. Works to be considered include Marlowe's Doctor Faustus and Tamburlaine, excerpts from Sidney's Arcadia, Books I and II of Spenser's Faerie Queene, Shakespeare's Henry V, Hamlet, and Antony and Cleopatra, Nashe's The Unfortunate Traveller, and Deloney's Jack of Newbury.

Environmental Studies 15c. Frontier Crossings: The Western Experience in American History. Spring 2004. MR. KLINGLE.

What accounts for the persistence of the "frontier myth" in American history, and why do Americans continue to find the idea so attractive? Explores the creation of and disputes over what became of the western United States from 1763 to the present. Topics include Euro-American relations with Native Americans, the creation of borders and national identities; the effect of nature and ideology; the role of labor and gender in the backcountry; and the enduring influence of frontier imagery in popular culture. (Same as History 15.)

Government 103b. The Pursuit of Peace. Fall 2003. MR. SPRINGER.

Examines different strategies for preventing and controlling armed conflict in international society, and emphasizes the role of diplomacy, international law, and international organizations in the peace-making process.

Government 105b. American Politics: Representation, Participation, and Power. Fall 2003. Ms. MARTIN.

An introductory seminar in American national politics. Readings, papers, and discussion explore the changing nature of power and participation in the American polity, with a focus on the interaction between individuals (non-voters, voters, party leaders, members of Congress, the President) and political institutions (parties, Congress, the executive branch, the judiciary). Not open to students enrolled in Government 150.

Government 106b. Fundamental Questions: Exercises in Political Theory. Spring 2004.

Ms. YARBROUGH.

Explores the fundamental questions in political life: What is justice? What is happiness? Are human beings equal or unequal by nature? Do they even have a nature, or are they “socially constructed”? Are there ethical standards for political action that exist prior to law and, if so, where do they come from? Nature? God? History? Readings may include Plato, the Bible, Machiavelli, Shakespeare, Marx, Mill, and Nietzsche.

Government 108b. Human Being and Citizen. Fall 2003. MR. FRANCO.

An introduction to the fundamental issues of political philosophy: human nature; the relationship between individual and political community; the nature of justice; the place of virtue; the idea of freedom; and the role of history. Readings will span both ancient and modern philosophical literature. Authors include: Plato, Aristotle, Hobbes, Rousseau, Hegel, Mill, and Nietzsche.

[Government 109b. Athens and Jerusalem: Classical and Biblical Sources of the Western Political Tradition.]Government 111b. The Korean War. Fall 2003. MR. POTHOLM.

The Korean War is often called “the forgotten war” because it is overshadowed by World War II and the Vietnam war, yet many important aspects and results of it are mirrored in the contemporary world. Korea is still divided and its situation as a buffer state in between China, Russia, and Japan continues to have important policy ramifications for the United States. The course focuses not just on the course of the war, but on the foreign policy assumptions of the two Korean governments, the United States, the People’s Republic of China, and Russia.

Government 113b. Race and Representation. Fall 2003. MR. MAPPS.

Explores a question that has been central to American politics since the founding of the Republic: Does the American political system provide for the fair representation of political minorities? The primary goal is to develop thoughtful answers to that question. Early readings review ideas philosophers have developed about political representation, which provide the intellectual framework for examining current problems in political representation. Explores a wide range of debates, including disputes over the representation of racial minorities in American politics, the accuracy of the U.S. census, and the impact alternative voting systems might have on political representation. Although readings primarily focus on the experience of racial minorities in the United States, the issues explored are relevant to a wide range of political minorities, and to those interested in how to build just democracies in diverse and complex societies. (Same as Africana Studies 13.)

Government 115b. Mass Media in American Politics. Spring 2004. Ms. GLOBETTI.

As the electorate’s window on public affairs, the mass media play a very important role in American politics. We meet our politicians and “get to know them” through the media. Since we rarely experience politics directly, the mass media provide us with the bulk of our political information. As a result, many of the characteristics of the contemporary political era are best understood by examining the interplay between the media, the public, and office-holders. Examines the importance of media ownership, the role the media play in opinion formation and elections, and the implications of the media’s power.

Government 119b,d. East Asian Politics: Introductory Seminar. Fall 2003. MR. LAURENCE.

Surveys the diverse political, social, and economic arrangements across East Asia. Main focus on China, Japan, and North and South Korea. Examines the relationships between democracy, economic change, and human rights. Other questions: What are “Asian values”? What is the role of Confucianism in political and economic life? How are economic and political developments affecting traditional social institutions such as families, and how is the status of women changing? (Same as Asian Studies 19.)

History 10c. Monsters, Marvels, and Messiahs: Europe during the Age of Discovery. Spring 2004. MR. DENERY.

Examines how Europeans have sought to understand themselves and the world around them through travel and travel literature. Particular attention is paid to the fascinating ways in which Europeans have used travel narratives to define and distinguish themselves from their “others.”

History 12c. Utopia: Intentional Communities in America, 1630–1997. Fall 2004. Ms. McMAHON.

An examination of the evolution of utopian visions that begins with John Winthrop’s “City upon a Hill.” Explores the proliferation of both religious and secular communal ventures between 1780 and 1920, and concludes with an examination of twentieth-century intentional communities, counterculture communes, and dystopian separatists. Readings include accounts by members (letters, diaries, essays, etc.), “community” histories and apostate exposés, utopian fiction, and scholarly historical analyses. Discussion and essays focus on teaching students how to subject primary and secondary source materials to critical analysis.

History 13c. Liberal, Radical, and Conservative in the Twentieth-Century United States. Fall 2003. MR. LEVINE.

A seminar on the history of twentieth-century liberalism, essentially beginning in the progressive years (c.1893-1920), modern radicalism, concentrating on the period after the Bolshevik revolution in Russia, and modern conservatism, concentrating in the period after the 1930s and more particularly on the period since the 1960s. Readings, class presentations, papers.

History 15c. Frontier Crossings: The Western Experience in American History. Spring 2004. MR. KLINGLE.

What accounts for the persistence of the “frontier myth” in American history, and why do Americans continue to find the idea so attractive? Explores the creation of and disputes over what became of the western United States from 1763 to the present. Topics include Euro-American relations with Native Americans, the creation of borders and national identities; the effect of nature and ideology; the role of labor and gender in the backcountry; and the enduring influence of frontier imagery in popular culture. (Same as Environmental Studies 15.)

History 17c,d. The Cuban Revolution. Fall 2004. MR. WELLS.

The Cuban Revolution recently celebrated its fortieth anniversary. This seminar offers a retrospective of a revolution entering “middle age” and its prospects for the future. Topics include United States–Cuban relations, economic and social justice versus political liberty, gender and race relations, and literature and film in a socialist society.

History 20c. In Sickness and in Health: Public Health in Europe and the United States. Fall 2003. Ms. TANANBAUM.

Introduces a variety of historical perspectives on illness and health. Considers the development of scientific knowledge, and the social, political, and economic forces that have influenced public health policy. Topics include epidemics, maternal and child welfare, AIDS, and national health care. (Same as Women’s Studies 20.)

History 21c. Players and Spectators: History, Culture, and Sports. Fall 2004. Ms. TANANBAUM.

Focuses on topics in the history of sports in Europe and America, exploring the changing cultural role of sports and the implications of race, gender, and class for players and spectators.

History 24c,d. Contemporary Argentina. Fall 2003. MR. WELLS.

Texts, novels, and films help unravel Argentine history and its culture. Topics examined include the image of the gaucho and national identity; the impact of immigration; Peronism; the tango; the Dirty War; and the elusive struggle for democracy, development, and social justice.

History 28c,d. Seekers' Lives. Spring 2006. MR. SMITH.

Employs the disciplines of history, religion, and textual studies to examine the autobiographies of contemplatives, past and present. Emphasis on Hinduism and Buddhism in India, Tibet, and Japan, with contrasts drawn from European Catholicism. (Same as Asian Studies 28.)

History 29c,d. Non-Violence, Nukes, and Nationalism. Fall 2003. MS. MITCHELL.

Examines competing ideas of the Indian nation and the methods advocated to achieve and maintain it. Primary and secondary sources are used to explore early anti-colonial visions of the nation, the non-cooperation movement led by Gandhi, the wide-ranging views of his supporters and critics, post-colonial contestations of the foundations and futures of national communities, and the role of South Asian nuclear capabilities within recent assertions of national identity. (Same as Asian Studies 29.)

History 30c. Memoirs and Memory in American History. Fall 2003. MS. CHIANG.

Examines the ways in which Americans have remembered the past and documented their experiences in individual memoirs. Considers the tensions between memory and history, the value of memoirs as historical documents, and the extent to which memories deepen, complicate, and even convolute our understanding of the American past. Through reading and discussion many central themes in twentieth-century American history are introduced, such as labor, immigration, gender, race relations, and war. Writing-intensive, including several short papers and a family history research paper.

Philosophy 11c. Free Will. Fall 2003. MR. CORISH.

Are our actions free, or at least partly free; or are they wholly caused, or determined, in some sense that makes the notion of freedom inappropriate in descriptions of actions? Are we really responsible agents, as our tradition tells us we are? Readings in contemporary and older materials are used as the basis for the seminar discussions.

[Philosophy 14c. Philosophy and Poetry.]Philosophy 25c. Science and Society. Fall 2003. MR. MAGNUS.

Explores important questions about the relationship between science and society: What sort of social organization makes for the most productive science? What sort of science yields the most benefit for society at large? Should science set its own agenda, or should it be guided by our social aspirations? Readings include recent and classic papers in philosophy and science studies.

Physics 13a. Uncertainty, Quanta, and Relativity. Fall 2003. MS. NORMANDEAU.

The nature of quanta, Heisenberg's uncertainty principle, and Einstein's special theory of relativity have brought about major changes in our conception of physical reality. Explores some of the most profound, and often counter-intuitive, aspects of these advances from the past hundred years of physics. Selected readings are chosen from these topics to explore the implications of these concepts. Readings explore the material using a variety of vehicles, from the play Copenhagen, to writings by scientists about the subjects, to original source material.

Religion 12c,d. Religion and Literature in Modern South Asia. Fall 2003. MR. HOLT.

Introduction to the religious cultures of Hindus and Buddhists in South Asia and how these cultures have been represented, imagined, and interpreted by modern Indian writers of fiction. Frequent essays. (Same as Asian Studies 12.)

Religion 18c. Portraits of the Marys: The Virgin Mary and Mary Magdalene in Academic Perspectives. Spring 2004. MS. DENZEY.

The history of Christianity, by and large, has been equated with the history of Jesus. Within the artistic traditions of Christianity, however, we often see Jesus accompanied by his mother Mary, or Miriam, as she was known in the Jewish and Early Christian tradition. What do we know of Mary's life? And what of Mary Magdalene, Jesus' disciple, the first person according to the gospels to witness the risen Christ—the same woman who has been derided in Christian tradition as a prostitute? Focuses on the “Blessed Virgin” Mary and on Mary Magdalene in Christian religious traditions in the early period, up to the end of antiquity. Draws on contemporary feminist scholarship (such as the work of Elizabeth Schüssler Fiorenza and Jane Schaberg) to investigate these women's lives as reflected in the New Testament, in music, and in Western art. (Same as Women's Studies 17.)

[Russian 20c. The Great Soviet Experiment through Film.]Russian 21c. The Culture of Nationalism. Fall 2004. MR. MILLER.

Focuses on the origin of Romantic nationalism in Eastern Europe. Readings include the poetry of the Slavic “National Renaissance” (ca. 1810–1848), various earlier and later writings, and some theoretical works. The roots of recent conflicts in Russia and the former Yugoslavia are studied, as are the importance of language in the creation of modern nationalism and its (mis)use of history.

Sociology 10b,d. Racism. Fall 2003. MR. PARTRIDGE.

Examines issues of racism in the United States, with attention to the social psychology of racism, its history, its relationship to social structure, and its ethical and moral implications. (Same as Africana Studies 10.)

13b. Epidemics and Society. Fall 2003. MS. RILEY.

SARS, ebola, influenza, malaria, cholera, AIDS.... Despite the revolutionary advances of medicine in the past century, these and many other infectious diseases remain widespread and epidemics continue to occur. Looks at the social dimensions of infectious diseases and epidemics, examining the social, economic, political, and epidemiological influences and consequences of disease. Considers how epidemics reflect and affect the demographics, social structure, economy, and culture of societies, and how societies mobilize to combat disease. Focuses in particular on the role of socioeconomic inequality, both within and between countries, in how epidemics emerge, spread, and are managed.

Women's Studies 17c. Portraits of the Marys: The Virgin Mary and Mary Magdalene in Academic Perspectives. Spring 2004. MS. DENZEY.

The history of Christianity, by and large, has been equated with the history of Jesus. Within the artistic traditions of Christianity, however, we often see Jesus accompanied by his mother Mary, or Miriam, as she was known in the Jewish and Early Christian tradition. What do we know of Mary's life? (Same as Religion 18.)

Women's Studies 20c. In Sickness and in Health: Public Health in Europe and the United States. Fall 2003. Ms. TANANBAUM.

Introduces a variety of historical perspectives on illness and health. Considers the development of scientific knowledge, and the social, political, and economic forces that have influenced public health policy. Topics include epidemics, maternal and child welfare, AIDS, and national health care. (Same as History 20.)

[Women's Studies 21c. The Great Soviet Experiment through Film.]

Gay and Lesbian Studies

Administered by the Gay and Lesbian Studies Committee;

Professor Susan Bell, Co-Chair, Fall Semester

Assistant Professor Peter Coviello, Co-Chair, Fall Semester; Chair, Spring Semester

Gay and Lesbian Studies is an interdisciplinary program coordinating courses that incorporate research on sexuality, particularly on gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender people. Drawing on a variety of approaches in several disciplines, such as queer theory and the history of sexuality, the program examines constructions of sexuality in institutions of knowledge, in aesthetic representation, and in modes of social practice, examining the question of sexual identity and performance across cultures and historical periods.

Requirements for the Minor in Gay and Lesbian Studies

The minor consists of five courses: Gay and Lesbian Studies 201 and four other courses from the offerings listed below, some of which will change with every academic year. Among the latter four courses, at least one must come from the social sciences and at least one from the arts and humanities division, and no more than two courses may come from any single department. Only one independent study may be counted toward the minor. Courses in which D grades are received will not count toward the minor.

201. Gay and Lesbian Studies. Every other year. Fall 2003. MR. COVIELLO.

An introduction to the materials, major themes, and defining methodologies of gay and lesbian studies. Considers in detail both the most visible contemporary dilemmas involving homosexuality (queer presence in pop culture, civil rights legislation, gay-bashing, AIDS, identity politics) as well as the great variety of interpretive approaches these dilemmas have, in recent years, summoned into being. Such approaches borrow from the scholarly practices of literary and artistic exegesis, history, political science, feminist theory, and psychoanalysis—to name only a few. An abiding concern over the semester is to discover how a discipline so variously influenced conceives of and maintains its own intellectual borders. Course materials include scholarly essays, journalism, films, novels, and a number of lectures by visiting faculty.

291–294. Intermediate Independent Study. Every year. THE PROGRAM.

Africana Studies

206b. Media Representations of Reality. Fall 2004. MR. JOHNSON.

(Same as Sociology 206.)

Anthropology

[Anthropology 222b. Culture through Performance.]

Anthropology 237b,d. Family, Gender, and Sexuality in Latin America. Spring 2004. Ms. VAN VLEET.

Requirements for the Major in Geology

The major consists of nine courses, including Geology 101 and 202. The remaining seven courses may include: a) one of Geology 100, 103, and/or b) up to two non-introductory science/math/anthropology courses listed as approved by the Geology Department; and/or c) other 200- or 300-level geology courses (Geology 200, 210, 219, 220, 230, 241, 250, 260, 262, 265, 267, 270, 271, 272, 275, and 343).

Note that independent study does not normally count toward the geology major. Geology majors also are advised that most graduate schools in the earth sciences require Chemistry 109, Physics 103, and Mathematics 171.

Interdisciplinary Majors

The department participates in formal interdisciplinary programs in geology and physics and in geology and chemistry. See page 180.

Requirements for the Minor in Geology

The minor consists of four courses in geology, at least two chosen from Geology 202, 220, 230, 241, 250, 260, 262, 265, 267, 270, 271, 272, 275, and 343.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses100a. Environmental Geology and Hydrology. Every spring. MR. LEA.

An introduction to aspects of geology and hydrology that affect the environment and land use. Topics include watersheds and surface-water quality, groundwater contamination, coastal erosion, and development of landscapes. Weekly labs and field trips examine local environmental problems affecting Maine rivers, lakes, and coast. (Same as Environmental Studies 100.)

101a. Introduction to Physical Geology. Every fall. Fall 2003. MR. LEA. Fall 2004. MS. BEANE.

The earth is a dynamic planet with earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, floods, and landslides. This course investigates the processes that shape the earth's surface, and examines the minerals, rocks, and structures that compose the earth. Through field trips, laboratory exercises, and course work, we make observations, analyze data, interpret maps, and explore the connections between geology and our lives.

103a. Marine Environmental Geology. Every fall. Fall 2003. MS. ROESLER. Fall 2004. MR. LAINE.

An introduction to the aspects of marine geology and oceanography that affect the environment and marine resources. Topics include estuarine oceanography and sediments, eutrophication of coastal waters, primary productivity, waves and tides, sea level history, glacial geology of coastal Maine, and an introduction to plate tectonics. Weekly field trips and labs examine local environmental problems affecting Casco Bay and the Maine coast. Two one-day weekend field excursions are required. (Same as Environmental Studies 103.)

202a. Mineralogy. Every spring. Spring 2004. MS. BEANE.

Mineral chemistry and crystallography are explored through hand specimen identification, optical microscopy, scanning electron microscopy, energy dispersive spectrometry, and phase diagrams. Emphasis is placed on mineral associations, and on the genesis of minerals in igneous and metamorphic rocks.

Prerequisite: Geology 101 or permission of the instructor.

210a. Water Quality in the Community. Every semester. Fall 2003. MR. LEA.

Project-based course involving individual or small groups of students working with local governments, environmental organizations, and schools on topics of water quality and its relationship to natural and human processes. Examples of possible projects include water quality monitoring of impacted and non-impacted watersheds, analysis of water quality changes during storm run-off, and water quality of local lakes, ponds, wetlands, and springs. Prior to registration, interested students must consult the instructor on the nature and suitability of projects. May be repeated for credit with permission of the instructor.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

220a. Sedimentary Geology. Fall 2003. MR. LEA.

Survey of earth's depositional systems, both continental and marine, with emphasis on dynamics of sediment transport and interpretation of depositional environment from sedimentary structures and facies relationships; stratigraphic techniques for interpreting earth history; and tectonic and sea-level controls on large-scale depositional patterns. Weekly lab includes local field trips.

Prerequisite: Previous course in geology or permission of the instructor.

[230a. Geometrics.]241a. Structural Geology. Fall 2004. Fall 2006. Ms. BEANE.

Geologic structures yield evidence for the dynamic deformation of the earth's crust. This course examines deformation at scales that range from the plate-tectonic scale of the Appalachian mountains to the microscopic scale of individual minerals. A strong field component provides ample opportunity for describing and mapping faults, folds, and other structures exposed along the Maine coast. In-class exercises focus on problem-solving through the use of geologic maps, cross-sections, stereographic projections, strain analysis, and computer applications.

Prerequisite: Geology 101 or 200, or permission of the instructor.

250a. Marine Geology and Tectonics. Fall 2004. MR. LAINE.

The geological and geophysical bases of the plate-tectonics model. The influence of plate tectonics on major events in oceanographic and climatic evolution. Deep-sea sedimentary processes in the modern and ancient ocean as revealed through sampling and remote sensing. Focus in the laboratory on the interpretation of seismic reflection profiles from both the deep ocean and local coastal waters.

Prerequisite: Previous course in geology or permission of the instructor.

260a. Oceanography and Ocean History. Fall 2003. Ms. ROESLER.

Introduction to the water masses, circulation, chemistry, and productivity of the modern oceans. Examination of the paleontological, stratigraphic, and geochemical methods used to reconstruct these characteristics through geologic history. Brief introduction to geologic time series. (Same as Environmental Studies 260.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in geology or permission of the instructor.

262a. Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology. Fall 2003. Ms. BEANE.

Rocks contain many clues about the processes of their formation. This course uses these clues to explore the processes by which igneous rocks solidify from magma, and metamorphic rocks form in response to pressure, temperature, and chemical changes. Laboratory work emphasizes field observations, microscopic examination of thin sections, and computer-based geochemical modeling. A class project introduces students to aspects of geologic research.

Prerequisite: Geology 202.

[265a. Geophysics.]267a. Coastal Oceanography. Spring 2004. Ms. ROESLER. Spring 2005. MR. LAINE.

Principles and problems in coastal oceanography, with an emphasis on interdisciplinary inquiry. Topics include circulation and sediment transport within estuaries and on the continental shelf, impact of human systems on the marine environment, and issues and controversies of eutrophication and hypoxia in the coastal environment. (Same as Environmental Studies 267.)

Prerequisite: Geology 100, 101, or 103.

271a. Coastal Processes and Landforms. Fall 2006. MR. LEA.

Coasts are among the most dynamic zones on earth, where wave and tidal energy are expended upon the land to create characteristic landforms such as beaches, barrier islands, and sea cliffs. Examines coastal processes and landforms—including beach dynamics, coastal erosion, and the interaction of coasts and humans along developed shorelines—through classes, labs, field trips, and reading of the primary literature. Includes weekend field trips to Acadia National Park and Cape Cod.

Prerequisite: Previous course in geology or permission of the instructor.

272a. Glacial Processes and Landforms. Fall 2004. MR. LEA.

During recent ice ages, glaciers covered a third of the world's land area and had profound impacts on earth's landscapes and climates. Through classes, labs, field trips, and reading of the primary literature, examines the controls of current and former glacier distribution and movement, landforms, and landscapes of glacial and meltwater systems, and the interaction of glaciers and the earth's climate system.

Prerequisite: Previous course in geology or permission of the instructor.

275a. Hydrogeology. Spring 2005. MR. LEA.

The interaction of water and geological materials within the hydrologic cycle, with emphasis on groundwater resources and quality. Qualitative and quantitative examination of the movement of groundwater in aquifers. (Same as Environmental Studies 275.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in geology or permission of the instructor.

343a. Mountain Belts. Spring 2004. MS. BEANE.

Several of the earth's great mountain belts formed during the Late Paleozoic continental collisions that led to the assembly of the supercontinent Pangea. Focuses on the geology and tectonics of these mountain belts. Taught in a tutorial format that emphasizes discussion of current research through reading primary literature and writing scientific essays.

Prerequisite: Previous 200-level geology course.

Requirements for the Major in German

The major consists of seven courses, of which one may be chosen from 51, 52 and the others from 205–402. Prospective majors, including those who begin with first- or second-year German at Bowdoin, may arrange an accelerated program, usually including study abroad. Majors are encouraged to consider one of a number of study-abroad programs with different calendars and formats.

Requirements for the Minor in German

The minor consists of German 102 or equivalent, plus any four courses, of which two must be in the language (203–398).

Courses Taught in English

51c. German Literature and Culture in English Translation. Every year. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

Fall 2003. MR. CERF. The Literary Imagination and the Holocaust.

An examination of the literary treatment of the Holocaust, a period between 1933 and 1945, during which eleven million innocent people were systematically murdered by the Nazis. Four different literary genres are examined: the diary and memoir, drama, poetry, and the novel. Three basic sets of questions are raised by the course: How could such slaughter take place in the twentieth century? To what extent is literature capable of evoking this period and what different aspects of the Holocaust are stressed by the different genres? What can our study of the Holocaust teach us with regard to contemporary issues surrounding totalitarianism and racism?

Spring 2004. MS. CAFFERTY. Laugh and Cry! Post-World War II German Film.

A survey of cinema in Germany in the second half of the twentieth century. Critical reading of representative films from three major periods: the early postwar years, the era of New German Cinema, and the recent wave of acclaimed German comedies. An exploration of how contrasting strategies of representation (e.g., mainstream comedy or realism, documentary, and experimental filmmaking) construct German history and the Nazi past; social criticism in East and West Germany; and national identity, gender, race, and sexuality. Filmmakers such as Wicki, Staudte, Käutner, Fassbinder, Herzog, Sanders-Brahms, Schlöndorff, von Trotta, Sander, Wenders, Dörrie, Misselwitz, Boetcher. Mandatory weekly evening screenings.

52c. Myth and Heroic Epic of Europe. Spring 2004. MR. HODGE.

Myths, legends, sagas, and other folk literature of the Germanic, Celtic, Slavic, and Finno-Ugric traditions; e.g., the prose and poetic Eddas, Song of the Volsungs, Beowulf, Lay of the Nibelungs, the Mabinogion, the Cycle of Finn, the Cycle of Ulster, Marko the Prince, and the Kalevala. Where possible and desirable, comparisons may be drawn with other mythologies; mythological and legendary material may be supplemented by relevant folkloric, Arthurian, and semihistorical literature.

Language and Culture Courses

101c. Elementary German I. Every fall. Fall 2003. MS. TAUTZ.

German 101 is the first language course in German and is open to all students without prerequisite. Three hours per week. Emphasis on four skills: speaking and understanding, reading, and writing. Introduces aspects of culture. One hour of conversation and practice with teaching assistant. Integrated language laboratory work.

102c. Elementary German II. Every spring. Spring 2004. MS. CAFFERTY.

Continuation of German 101. Equivalent of German 101 is required.

203c. Intermediate German I. Every fall. Fall 2003. MS. CAFFERTY.

Three hours per week of reading, speaking, composition, and review of grammar. Continued emphasis on German culture. One hour of conversation and practice with teaching assistant. Language laboratory also available. Equivalent of German 102 is required.

204c. Intermediate German II. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. CERF.

Continuation of German 203. Equivalent of German 203 is required.

205c. Advanced German. Every year. Fall 2003. MR. CERF.

Designed to further explore aspects of German culture while increasing oral fluency, writing skills, and comprehension. Equivalent of German 204 is required. Weekly individual sessions with the Teaching Fellow from the Johannes-Gutenberg-Universität-Mainz.

Literature and Culture Courses

All courses require the equivalent of German 204.

308c. Introduction to German Literature. Every year. Spring 2004. Ms. TAUTZ.

Introduction to the critical reading of texts by genre: e.g., prose fiction, expository prose, lyric poetry, drama, opera, film, etc. Develops students' sensitivity to generic structures and techniques and introduces terminology for describing and analyzing texts. Weekly individual sessions with the Teaching Fellow from the Johannes-Gutenberg-Universität-Mainz.

313c. German Classicism. Fall 2003. Ms. TAUTZ.

Focus on the mid- to late eighteenth century as an age of contradictory impulses (e.g., the youthful revolt of Storm and Stress against the Age of Reason). The maturing of Goethe, Schiller, and their contemporaries into major exponents of German literary Idealism and its visions of community and nationhood. Investigation of texts in their historical context with appropriate cultural theory.

314c. German Romanticism. Spring 2004. Ms. TAUTZ.

The origins of the romantic movement and its impact. Its literary philosophy, preferred genres, and their legacy. Representative authors and texts in a broad cultural context with particular emphasis on the arts.

315c. German Realism. Fall 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Texts from Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. Representative authors such as Büchner, Heine, and Hauptmann. Nineteenth-century cultural background and the arts.

316c. German Modernism. Spring 2005. THE DEPARTMENT.

Texts from Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. Representative authors such as Kafka, Mann, and Brecht. Twentieth-century cultural background and the arts.

317c. German Literature since 1945. Fall 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Texts from Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. Minority authors writing in German. Post-WWII themes such as national identity and "coming to terms with the past." Cultural background and the arts. Representative authors such as Grass, Böll, and Wolf.

[319c. The Short Prose Form.]321c. Before and After the Wall: East German Traditions in Literature, Culture, and Film. Fall 2003. Ms. CAFFERTY.

Examines the texts and traditions unique to East German culture and identity. Areas of exploration include the historical, political, and social context; the evolution of socialist art and its legacy; socialist interpretations of myth and history; failed revolution; coming of age themes; the socialist fairy tale. Also explores pre- and post-unification discourses on gender, ethnicity, sexuality, and East German identity. Authors/directors may include: Brecht, Müller, Wolf, Kohlhaase, Emersleben, Biermann, Braun, Misselwitz, Beyer, Dresen.

398c. Seminar in Aspects of German Literature and Culture. Every spring.

THE DEPARTMENT.

Work in a specific area of German literature not covered in other departmental courses, e.g., individual authors, literary movements, genres, cultural influences, and historical periods. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

Spring 2004. Vienna, 1890–1914. MR. CERF.

A survey of the shorter literary works (i.e., Novellen, dramas, poetry, essays, etc.) of such diverse, psychologically-oriented authors as Schnitzler, Freud, Hofmannsthal, Trakl, Kraus, and Musil. Three basic areas are explored: 1) How and why turn-of-the-century Vienna became the home of modern psychiatry. 2) The myriad ways in which imaginative writers creatively interacted with leading composers, visual artists, and philosophers of the era. 3) The extent to which such cinematic directors as Ophüls, Reed, and Schlöndorff were able to capture Viennese intellectual and creative vibrancy for the screen.

Requirements for the Major in Government and Legal Studies

Courses within the department are divided into four fields:

American government: Government 105, 111, 113, 115, 116, 150, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 209, 210–211, 212, 213, 216, 255, 302, 303, 304, and 306.

Comparative politics: Government 107, 119, 120, 222, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 236, 237, 264, 284, 320, 324, 329, 330, 332, 333, 335, 337, and 365.

Political theory: Government 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 114, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 248, 249, 250, 341, 343, 345, 346, and 347.

International relations: Government 103, 111, 118, 160, 225, 226, 228, 233, 236, 243, 260, 261, 263, 265, 267, 269, 270, 274, 284, 287, 302, 324, 335, 336, 337, 361, 363, 365 and 366.

Every major is expected to complete an area of concentration in one of these fields.

The major consists of nine courses, no more than two taken at Level A, and no more than one first-year seminar, and distributed as follows:

1. A field of concentration, selected from the above list, in which at least four courses including one Level C course and no more than one Level A course are taken.

2. At least one course in each of the three fields outside the field of concentration. These courses may be at Levels A, B, or C, though only two Level A courses may count toward the major and no more than one of these may be a first-year seminar.

3. Government 214, 219, 262, Environmental Studies 240, while not fulfilling the requirement for any of the four fields of concentration, can be counted toward the major in the "other" category, on a case by case basis.

4. Students seeking to graduate with honors in government and legal studies must petition the department. Interested students should contact the honors director for specific details. Students must prepare an honors paper, which is normally the product of two semesters of independent study work, and have that paper approved by the department. One semester of independent study work may be counted toward the nine-course departmental requirement and the four-course field concentration. Students who hope to graduate with honors in government and legal studies thus normally must complete at least ten courses in the department.

5. To fulfill the major/minor requirements, a grade of C- or better must be earned in a course.

Requirements for the Minor in Government and Legal Studies

A minor in government and legal studies consists of five courses from at least three of the departmental fields. No more than two Level A courses and no more than one first-year seminar may count toward the minor.

LEVEL A COURSES

Introductory Seminars

All introductory seminars are designed to provide an introduction to a particular aspect of government and legal studies. Students are encouraged to analyze and discuss important political concepts and issues, while developing research and writing skills.

Enrollment is limited to sixteen students in each seminar. First-year students are given first priority; sophomores are given second priority. For a description of the following introductory seminars, see First-Year Seminars, pages 135–45.

103b. The Pursuit of Peace. Fall 2003. MR. SPRINGER.

105b. American Politics: Representation, Participation, and Power. Fall 2003. MS. MARTIN.

106b. Fundamental Questions: Exercises in Political Theory. Spring 2004. MS. YARBROUGH.

108b. Human Being and Citizen. Fall 2003. MR. FRANCO.

[109b. Athens and Jerusalem: Classical and Biblical Sources of the Western Political Tradition.]

111b. The Korean War. Fall 2003. MR. POTHOLM.

113b. Race and Representation. Fall 2003. MR. MAPPS.
(Same as Africana Studies 13.)

115b. Mass Media in American Politics. Spring 2004. Ms. GLOBETTI.

119b,d. East Asian Politics: Introductory Seminar. Fall 2003. MR. LAURENCE.
(Same as Asian Studies 19.)

Introductory Lectures

These courses are intended for first-year students and sophomores. Others may take them only with the permission of the instructor.

120b. Introduction to Comparative Government. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Governments in many different countries face common problems—how to achieve economic prosperity and political security while tackling a host of other policy issues such as education, health care, defense, crime, environmental protection, welfare, the protection of minority rights and the promotion of social equality, and so on. Examines how, and most importantly, why different countries come up with different solutions to these and other problems. Special emphasis is placed on Britain, Japan, and the United States, as representative of European, Asian, and American approaches to governance.

150b. Introduction to American Government. Fall 2003. MR. HETHERINGTON.

Provides a comprehensive overview of the American political process. Specifically, traces the foundations of American government (the Constitution, federalism, civil rights, and civil liberties), its political institutions (Congress, Presidency, courts, and bureaucracy), and its electoral processes (elections, voting, and political parties). Also examines other influences, such as public opinion and the mass media, which fall outside the traditional institutional boundaries, but have an increasingly large effect on political outcomes. Not open to students enrolled in Government 150.

160b. Introduction to International Relations. Spring 2004. MR. WAXMAN.

Provides a broad introduction to the study of international relations. Designed to strike a balance between empirical and historical knowledge on the one hand, and theoretical understanding on the other. Empirically, covers some of the most important events, developments, and issues in international politics. Theoretically, introduces students to the most important concepts and scholarly traditions in the discipline of international relations. Some of the classic questions of international relations are addressed, such as why do states go to war? How can war be avoided? What are the prospects for international cooperation? More recent questions are also tackled, including whether globalization has fundamentally changed the nature of international relations, and what impact the terrorist attacks of September 11th have had upon world politics. Designed as an introductory course to familiarize students with no prior background in the subject, and recommended for first and second year students intending to take upper-level international relations courses.

LEVEL B COURSES

Level B courses are designed to introduce students to or extend their knowledge of a particular aspect of government and legal studies. The courses range from the more introductory to the more advanced. Students should consult the individual course descriptions to determine whether previous background or sophomore, junior, or senior standing is necessary.

201b. Law and Society. Spring 2004. MR. MORGAN.

An examination of the American criminal justice system. Although primary focus is on the constitutional requirements bearing on criminal justice, attention is paid to conflicting strategies on crime control, to police and prison reform, and to the philosophical underpinnings of the criminal law.

202b. The American Presidency. Spring 2004. MS. MARTIN.

An examination of the presidency in the American political system, including the election process (with a special focus on the 2004 nomination process), advisory systems, the institutional presidency, relations with Congress and the courts, and decision-making in the White House.

203b. American Political Parties. Spring 2004. MR. HETHERINGTON.

Throughout American political history, parties have been among the most adept institutions at organizing political conflict and, more generally, American political life. In this vein, the role of political parties in the evolution of American politics is discussed. Special attention is given to the present political context, which many characterize as an era with weak to nonexistent parties. Explores and challenges this conventional wisdom.

204b. Congress and the Policy Process. Fall 2003. MS. MARTIN.

An examination of the United States Congress, with a focus on members, leaders, constituent relations, the congressional role in the policy-making process, congressional procedures and their impact on policy outcomes, and executive-congressional relations.

205b. Campaigns and Elections. Spring 2004. MR. MAPPS.

Introduces current theories and controversies concerning political campaigns and elections in the United States. Takes advantage of the fact that the class meets during the heart of the 2004 presidential and congressional campaigns. The primary goal is to use concepts from the political science literature on elections to develop insight into President Bush's reelection campaign and the battle over control of Congress. Readings are organized around two themes. First, students are expected to follow journalistic accounts of the 2004 campaigns closely. A second set of readings introduces political science literature on campaigns and elections. These readings touch upon a wide range of themes, including the early New England presidential primaries, campaign finance, voting behavior, polling, media strategy, incumbency and coat-tail effects, the Electoral College, and trends in partisan realignment.

209b. Introduction to Political Behavior. Fall 2003. MS. GLOBETTI.

Examines the political behavior of ordinary citizens. Begins with a broad focus on citizen participation, knowledge, social capital, and political decision-making. Then moves to more in-depth exploration of the politics of groups: women, African Americans, religious groups, and gay and lesbians.

210b. Constitutional Law I. Every fall. Fall 2003. MR. MORGAN.

Examines the development of American constitutionalism, the power of judicial review, federalism, and separation of powers.

Prerequisite: Government 150 or 250, or permission of the instructor.

211b. Constitutional Law II: Civil Rights and Liberties. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. MORGAN.

Examines questions arising under the First and Fourteenth Amendments.

Prerequisite: Government 210.

212b. Introduction to the Politics of African Americans in the United States. Fall 2003. MR. MAPPS.

Examines theories of race, historical perspectives on race in America, black political thought and public opinion, black political participation, and contemporary issues in black politics. Concludes with a set of readings that encourages students to think about the future of racial politics in the United States. (Same as Africana Studies 103.)

213b. Race, Inequality, and Social Policy. Spring 2004. MR. MAPPS.

Explores the causes, consequences, and possible solutions to economic inequality in the United States. The persistence of poverty in the United States, one of the richest nations in the history of the world, is both puzzling and troubling. Political and social equality are central tenets of the American creed, yet American society is starkly divided along economic lines. In recent decades, the economic gap between rich and poor has grown, by some measures reaching its widest extent since World War II. The profile of poverty is also changing. Increasingly, women, young people, and racial minorities are over-represented among the poor. A wide variety of readings provides historical perspectives to explain these trends, while other material presents social scientific explanations of the causes and consequences of poverty. Encourages students to formulate their own ideas about the causes of and solutions to economic inequality in the United States. (Same as Africana Studies 213.)

214b. Environmental Policy and Politics. Every year. Fall 2003. MR. JOHN.

Examines alternative ways to protect our physical environment. Analyzes environmental policies and the regulatory regime that has developed in the United States, as well as new approaches such as free-market environmentalism, civic environmentalism, environmental justice, sustainable development, and environmental policies and politics in other countries. Includes intensive study of specific issues such as air pollution, land conservation, or the reduction and management of wastes. (Same as Environmental Studies 202.)

Prerequisite: Environmental Studies 101 or permission of the instructor.

216b. Maine Politics. Every fall. Fall 2003. MR. POTHOLM.

An analysis of politics in the state of Maine since World War II. Subjects covered include the dynamics of Republican and Democratic rivalries and the efficacy of the Independent voter, the rise of the Green and Reform parties, the growing importance of ballot measure initiatives, and the interaction of ethnicity and politics in the Pine Tree state. An analysis of key precincts and Maine voting paradigms is included, as well as a look at the efficacy of such phenomena as the north/south geographic split, the environmental movement, and the impact of such interest groups as SAM and the Roman Catholic Church. Students are expected to follow contemporary political events on a regular basis.

219c. Law and Education. Every other year. Fall 2003. MR. ISAACSON.

A study of the impact of the American legal system on the functioning of schools in the United States through an examination of Supreme Court decisions and federal legislation. This course analyzes the public policy considerations that underlie court decisions in the field of education and considers how those judicial interests may differ from the concerns of school boards, administrators, and teachers. Issues to be discussed include constitutional and statutory developments affecting schools in such areas as free speech, sex discrimination, religious objections to compulsory education, race relations, teachers' rights, school financing, and education of the handicapped. (Same as Education 250.)

[224b. West European Politics.]

[225b. The Politics of the European Union.]226b,d. Middle East Politics. Fall 2003. MR. WAXMAN.

Provides an introduction to the politics of the Middle East region (taken to comprise the Arab states, Iran, Turkey, and Israel). Begins with a brief overview of the history of the region, focusing on the period since the end of World War I and the collapse of the Ottoman Empire. Proceeds to examine a number of topics of importance in the contemporary politics of the region, illustrated with reference to select countries (notably, Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Iran, Turkey, and Israel). Some of the major topics addressed are colonialism and its legacy; nationalism; religion and politics; political economy; authoritarianism, democratization, and civil society; women and gender politics; ethnicity and sectarianism; regional security and the role of outside powers, most notably the United States. Presupposes no previous knowledge of the region.

227b,d. Chinese Politics. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. GUO.

Examines Chinese politics in the context of a prolonged revolution. After a survey of the political system established in the 1950s and politics emerging from it, the analytic focus turns to political change in the reform era (since 1979) and the forces driving it. Topics include the political impact of decentralization and marketization, the reintegration into the capitalist world economy, and the development of the legal system. The adaptation by the Communist Party to these changes and the prospects of democratization are also dealt with. (Same as Asian Studies 227.)

228b,d. Chinese Foreign Policy. Fall 2003. MR. GUO.

An analytic survey of the history and evolution of China's foreign relations from the inception of the People's Republic of China in 1949. Emphasis is on China's evolving strategic thinking in the context of changing international and regional (the Asia-Pacific) power configuration since the Cold War. Topics include actors, institutions, and processes of foreign policy decision-making; national security and the military; foreign economic relations; Sino-U. S. relations; the Taiwan issue; the South China Sea dispute; the resurgence of nationalism; "greater China"; and the linkages between domestic politics and foreign policy. (Same as Asian Studies 228.)

229b,d. Politics of Southeast Asia. Every two years. Spring 2005. MR. GUO.

Starts with a survey of the political landscape of tropical Southeast Asia and proceeds to investigate the fundamental forces driving political changes in this region of rich diversity in culture, religion, ethnicity, mystic beliefs and political traditions. Topics include nation building and the role of colonial history, regime legitimacy, political protests (often spear-headed by college students) and ethnic conflicts, the different responses to the challenges of modernization, causes and consequences of rapid economic growth, dynamics of the political processes, and the attempts by political elites at "culturally bounded and historically specific" human rights and democracy as a defensive strategy against Western ideological hegemony. (Same as Asian Studies 229.)

[230b. Post-Communist Russian Politics and Society.][231b,d. Human Rights and Democracy in East Asia.]*232b,d. Japanese Politics and Society. Fall 2003. MR. LAURENCE.

Surveys the institutions and groups that shape Japanese politics and policy-making. Focuses on the nature of policy-making, the constraints that decision-makers face, and the authority that they possess. Explores what makes Japanese politics "unique," and what caused the political upheavals of the 1990s. Looks at social issues, including the role of women, the status of ethnic minorities, education, and the media. (Same as Asian Studies 282.)

233b. Advanced Comparative Politics: Government, War, and Society. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. POTHOLM.

An examination of the forces and processes by which governments and societies approach and wage or avoid wars. The theories and practices of warfare of various political systems will be analyzed and particular attention will be paid to the interface where politics, society, and the military come together under governmental auspices in various comparative contexts. Specific examples from Africa, Asia, Europe, and North America are examined.

237b. Israeli Politics and Society. Fall 2003. MR. WAXMAN.

Introduces students to some of the current issues facing Israeli society and the major debates in Israeli politics. Focuses on the different divisions in Israeli society, along national, ethnic, religious, political, and gender lines; and explores recent debates over war and peace, the legacy of Zionism, the relationship between religion and the state, and the definition of Israeli identity. Also examines Israel's political institutions, electoral system, political parties, ideologies, social movements, political economy, and foreign policy. Although the course is not about the Arab-Israeli or Palestinian-Israeli conflicts, the influence of these conflicts upon Israeli society and political culture are addressed. It is also not a course on Israeli history, but some historical background is provided, with particular attention paid to key moments in Israel's political history.

240b. Classical Political Philosophy. Fall 2003. MS. YARBROUGH.

Examines the answers of Plato and Aristotle to the most pressing human questions: What is the best way to live? What is the relationship of the individual to the political community? What is justice, and how important is virtue in perfecting the individual? What does justice require for women? What is friendship? Readings include Apology and the Republic, as well as Aristotle's Politics, Ethics, and Rhetoric.

241b. Modern Political Philosophy. Spring 2004. MR. FRANCO.

A survey of modern political philosophy from Machiavelli to Hegel. Examines the overthrow of the classical horizon, the movement of human will and freedom to the center of political thought, the idea of the social contract, the origin and meaning of rights, the relationship between freedom and equality, the role of democracy, and the replacement of nature by history as the source of human meaning. Authors include Machiavelli, Hobbes, Locke, Hume, Rousseau, Kant, and Hegel.

[244b. Liberalism and Its Critics.]

[245b. Contemporary Political Philosophy.]

246b. Religion and Politics. Fall 2003. MR. FRANCO.

Examines the relationship between religion and politics—the so-called theological-political question—primarily in modern Europe and America. Focuses first on the tension between and eventual separation of church and state in the early modern period. Then considers the implications and complications of this historic separation, looking at recent Supreme Court cases, as well as contemporary discussion of the relationship between religion and politics. Comparisons with the treatment of this issue in the Islamic world are made throughout the course. Authors include Machiavelli, Luther, Calvin, Spinoza, Locke, Jefferson, Madison, and Tocqueville, as well as a variety of contemporary and Islamic writers. (Same as Religion 246.)

249b. Eros and Politics. Spring 2004. Ms. YARBROUGH.

What and whom do we love? Do we seek "another self" or someone to complement our natures? Is there something other than human beings that we love? The Good, God, or some other principle? How do the answers to these questions affect our views of politics and justice? Readings include Plato, The Symposium; The Bible; Shakespeare, Anthony and Cleopatra; Rousseau, Emile; J. I. Mill, The Subjection of Women; and others.

250b. American Political Thought. Fall 2003. Ms. YARBROUGH.

Examines the political thought of American statesmen and writers from the founding to the twentieth century. Readings include the Federalist Papers, the writings of Thomas Jefferson, the Anti-federalists, Tocqueville, Thoreau, Calhoun, Lincoln, Frederick Douglass, W.E.B. Du Bois, Booker T. Washington, William Graham Sumner, the Progressives, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and others.

255b. Quantitative Analysis in Political Science. Spring 2004. MR. HETHERINGTON.

Examines the use of quantitative methods to study political phenomena. Discusses the nature of empirical thinking and how principles used for years by natural scientists, such as causation and control, have been adopted by social scientists. Introduces what these methods are and how they might be useful in political research, and applies these methods, with particular emphasis on the use of survey data. Using quantitative methods, employs statistical computing software as a research tool. This course might be useful to those who are considering a Senior Honors Project.

260b. International Law. Fall 2003. MR. SPRINGER.

The modern state system, the role of law in its operation, the principles and practices that have developed, and the problems involved in their application.

[262b. Environmental Politics and Policy in Maine.]263b. International Environmental Policy. Spring 2004. MR. SPRINGER.

Examines the political, legal, and institutional dimension of international efforts to protect the environment. Problems discussed include transboundary and marine pollution, maintaining biodiversity, and global climate change. (Same as Environmental Studies 263.)

265b. International Political Economy. Spring 2004. MR. GUO.

Examines the politics underlying international economic relationships. Asks why and how it is that countries are sometimes able and sometimes unable to realize the benefits of trade. Looks at the political consequences of international trade and global finance at both the national and international level. Examines conflicts and cooperation in international economic relations and the effects of globalization on social structures, on inequality, and on national sovereignty. No previous experience in economics needed.

[267b,d. International Relations in East Asia.][270b. American Foreign Policy: Its Formulation and the Forces Determining Its Direction.][274b. Theories of International Relations.][284b,d. Arab-Israeli Conflict.]*291b–294b. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

LEVEL C COURSES

Level C courses provide seniors and juniors with appropriate background the opportunity to do advanced work within a specific subfield. Enrollment is limited to fifteen students in each seminar. Priority is given to senior majors, then junior majors, particularly those with a concentration in the subfield. Sophomores may enroll with permission of the instructor. These courses are not open to first-year students.

303b. The Law and Politics of Freedom of Speech. Fall 2003. MR. MORGAN.

While focusing primarily on American material, students have the option of choosing speech controversies in other polities as the subject of their seminar papers.

304b. Advanced Seminar in American Politics: Presidential-Congressional Relations. Spring 2004. MS. MARTIN.

Examines presidential-congressional relations through a number of perspectives, including use of historical, quantitative, and institutional analyses. Readings consider the relationship between the executive branch and Congress in both the domestic arena (including regulatory and budgetary policy) and in the area of foreign and defense policy.

306b. Controversies in Political Behavior. Fall 2003. MR. HETHERINGTON.

Takes an in-depth look at some of the scholarship and controversies regarding ordinary Americans and their relationship with politics. Begins by examining and analyzing the theoretical foundation that underlies the study of mass political behavior, focusing mainly on the United States. Topics include voting, participation, attitudes about the political system, and how much people know about politics.

323b,d. Advanced Seminar in Japanese Politics. Spring 2005. MR. LAURENCE.

Analyzes the political, social, and cultural underpinnings of policymaking in post-war Japan. Explores the differences between Japanese and western forms of democracy, and asks if there is a unique "Japanese" form of democratic capitalism. Questions include: What features of the Japanese system enabled the country to achieve stunning economic growth while maintaining very high levels of income equality and social welfare, and low unemployment? And how sustainable will the system be in the future? (Same as Asian Studies 332.)

Prerequisite: Asian Studies 282 or Government 232.

333b,d. Advanced Seminar in Chinese Politics. Fall 2003. MR. GUO.

Understanding the process of political change in China by exploring the various underlying driving forces: marketization, globalization, social dislocation, and rampant corruption, etc.; how these are reshaping the socioeconomic foundation of the party-state, compelling changes in governance structure and in the ways power is contested and redistributed; how the CCP's responses affect the outcome, and how it is transforming itself in the process of epic change. (Same as Asian Studies 333.)

[335b,d. Advanced Seminar on East Asian Development.]

[341b. Advanced Seminar in Political Theory: Tocqueville.]

345b. The Political Philosophy of German Idealism: Kant to Hegel. Spring 2004. MR. FRANCO.

Examines the transformation of modern political philosophy and of liberalism in the political philosophies of Kant and Hegel. Focuses on the new understanding of freedom found in these writers, as well as the new conception of the state and of the relationship of the individual to society that it implies. Topics include the Enlightenment, Romanticism, the impact of the French Revolution, the appeal to antiquity, the idea of civil society, and the philosophy of history. Background readings may include Rousseau, Schiller, and Fichte.

[346b. Nietzsche.]

361b. Advanced Seminar in International Relations: Conflict Simulation and Conflict Resolution. Spring 2004. MR. POTHOLM.

An upper-level interdisciplinary seminar on the nature of both international and national conflict. A variety of contexts and influence vectors are examined and students are encouraged to look at the ways conflicts can be solved short of actual warfare, as well as by it.

363b. Advanced Seminar in International Relations: Law, Politics, and the Search for Justice. Spring 2004. MR. SPRINGER.

Examines the complex relationship between law and policy in international relations by focusing on two important and rapidly developing areas of international concern: environmental protection and humanitarian rights. Fulfills the ES senior seminar requirement. (Same as Environmental Studies 363.)

Prerequisite: Government 260, 261, or 263, or permission of the instructor.

[365b. Negotiation and Mediation in International Conflict.]

366b. Theories of International Relations. Spring 2004. MR. WAXMAN.

Examines different theoretical approaches to explaining and understanding world politics. Reviews the historical development of international relations theory and introduces recent developments and debates in the field. Explores the major theories of international relations and a number of recent alternative approaches to its study, including constructivism, post-modernism, and feminism. Particular attention is paid to the assumptions underlying the theories, to their understanding of the principal actors in world politics, and to the issues with which they are most concerned. Throughout, the relevance of specific theories and theory in general for how we make sense of world politics is critically assessed. The focus, however, is theoretical rather than empirical. For this reason, students should already be familiar with the most important events, developments, and issues in international relations. It is recommended, but not required, that students first take Government 160.

Requirements for the Major in History

The departmental offerings are divided into the following fields: Africa, East Asia, Europe, Latin America, South Asia, and the United States. Students may, with departmental approval, define fields that differ from those specified above.

The major consists of ten courses, distributed as follows:

1. A primary field of concentration, selected from the above list, in which at least four and no more than five courses are taken. No more than five courses in any region will count toward the major. At least one of the courses in the field of concentration must be a 300-level seminar or a 400-level advanced independent study taken at Bowdoin.
2. One intermediate seminar in any field of history, to be taken at Bowdoin, preferably by the end of the sophomore year. It is recommended that students complete at least one 200-level course prior to taking an intermediate seminar.
3. At least three courses taken from two of the following fields: Africa, East Asia, Latin America, or South Asia.
4. One pre-modern course.
5. No more than two courses numbered below 200 can be counted toward the major; these must be taken prior to the junior year. No more than one such course can count toward the field of concentration.
6. Students must obtain a minimum course grade of C- to receive credit toward the major.
7. Students may not count Credit/Fail courses toward the major.
8. Students participating in off-campus study may count no more than two history courses per semester toward the history major. A total of three history courses taken away from Bowdoin may count toward the history major. No more than two courses taken away from Bowdoin can count toward the field of concentration (except CBB).

The program chosen to meet the requirements for the major in history must be approved by a departmental advisor. Before electing to major in history, a student should have completed or have in progress at least two college-level courses in history. In consultation with the departmental advisor, a student should plan a program that begins at either the introductory or the intermediate level and progresses to the advanced level.

With departmental approval, a student may receive credit toward the history major for college-level work in history at other institutions. This work may represent fields other than those that are available at Bowdoin. In the sophomore year, a student who anticipates study away from Bowdoin should discuss with the departmental advisor a plan for the history major that includes work at Bowdoin and elsewhere.

All history majors seeking departmental honors will enroll in at least one semester of the Honors Program (History 451, 452). Its primary requirement is the research and writing of the honors thesis. To be eligible to register for Honors, a student must have the equivalent of a B+ average in courses taken in the department and the approval of a thesis advisor.

History majors are encouraged to develop competence in one or more foreign languages and to use this competence in their historical reading and research. Knowledge of a foreign language is particularly important for students planning graduate work.

Requirements for the Minor in History

The minor consists of five courses. Three courses are to be taken in one field of concentration and two in a subsidiary field; both fields should be chosen from the list specified by the department for a major. Students may not count Credit/Fail courses toward the minor.

Curriculum

Although first-year seminars and 100-level courses are designed as introductory courses for students who have not taken college-level courses in history, first-year students and all non-majors may also enroll in any lecture course numbered 200–289.

Intermediate seminars, listed beginning on page 172, are not open to first-year students. Most of these seminars have a prerequisite of one history course.

Advanced seminars or Problems Courses, listed beginning on page 175, are open to history majors and minors and to other juniors and seniors with sufficient background in the discipline.

First-Year Seminars

The following seminars, designed for first-year students, are introductory in nature. They do not assume that students have a background in the period or the area of the particular seminar topic. The seminars introduce students to the study of historical methods, the examination of particular questions of historical inquiry, and the development of analytical skills in reading and writing. The seminars are based on extensive reading, class discussion, and multiple short, critical essays. Enrollment is limited to sixteen students in each seminar.

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

10c. Monsters, Marvels, and Messiahs: Europe during the Age of Discovery. Spring 2004. MR. DENERY.

28c,d. Seekers' Lives. Spring 2006. MR. SMITH.

(Same as Asian Studies 28.)

29c,d. Non-Violence, Nukes, and Nationalism. Fall 2003. Ms. MITCHELL.

(Same as Asian Studies 29.)

30c. Memoirs and Memory in American History. Fall 2003. Ms. CHIANG.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

For intermediate seminars 200, 209, 212, 217, 226, 228, 235, 239, 247, 249, 251, 264, 285, and 289, and advanced problems courses, see pages 172–76.

60c. Introduction to Historical Writing. Fall 2004. MR. RAEL.

Seminar course focusing on skills necessary for analytic and critical writing, with special attention to drafting and revision of student essays. Provides practice in basic research and analytical skills required for working in history (and to a lesser degree other social sciences and humanities), and addresses basic grammar problems frequently encountered in college-level essays. Does not count toward the major or minor in history.

125c. Entering Modernity: European Jewry. Spring 2005. Ms. TANANBAUM.

Explores Jewish life through the lenses of history, religion, and ethnicity, and examines the processes by which governments and sections of the Jewish community attempted to incorporate Jews and Judaism into European society. Through primary and secondary sources, lectures, films, and class discussion, the course surveys social and economic transformations of Jews, cultural challenges of modernity, varieties of modern Jewish religious expression, political ideologies, the Holocaust, establishment of Israel, and American Jewry. (Same as Religion 125.)

126c. The Making of Modern Europe, 1848-1918. Fall 2003. Ms. HERRLINGER.

Technological innovations of the nineteenth-century Industrial Revolution brought about dramatic transformations in virtually every sphere of European life, resulting in the birth of the modern mass society in which we still live today. This survey course explores the European fascination with industrial “progress,” along with the possibilities it promised and the many new questions and problems that it raised. Concludes with an extensive examination of the First World War, which demonstrated not only the awesome power brought to man through modern technology, but also the equally awesome responsibilities that came along with it.

139c. The Civil War Era. Fall 2004. MR. RAEL.

Examines the coming of the Civil War and the war itself in all its aspects. Considers the impact of changes in American society on the coming of the war, the sectional crisis and breakdown of the party system, the practice of Civil War warfare, and social ramifications of the conflict. Includes readings of novels and viewing of films. Students are expected to enter with a basic knowledge of American history, and a commitment to participating in large class discussions. (Same as Africana Studies 139.)

140c,d. War and Society. Spring 2004. MR. RAEL.

Explores the nature of warfare from the fifteenth century to the present, with the central premise that war reflects the societies and cultures that wage it. Examines the development of war-making in Europe and the Americas from the Middle Ages, through the great period of state formation and a system of world powers, to the present era. Students are expected to enter with a basic knowledge of American or European history, and a commitment to participate in large class discussions.

142c. The United States since 1945. Fall 2003. MR. LEVINE.

Consideration of social, intellectual, political, and international history. Topics include the Cold War; the survival of the New Deal; the changing role of organized labor; Keynesian, post-Keynesian, or anti-Keynesian economic policies; and the urban crisis. Readings common to the whole class and the opportunity for each student to read more deeply in a topic of his or her own choice. Limited to first- and second-year students. Others may enroll at the start of the semester, if room is available.

162c,d. The Black Atlantic World. Spring 2005. MR. STAKEMAN.

During the four centuries of the Atlantic slave trade, some fifteen to twenty million Africans were landed in the New World. From these Africans grew large black populations and African American cultures that continue to this day. Topics include New World cultural adaptation in religion (Voudon, Santeria, Afro Christianity) and music (spirituals, blues, jazz, reggae, and hip hop); political ideas and movements (back to Africa, pan Africanism, anti-colonialism, and black power); and literature (Harlem Renaissance/New Negro, negritude, 1960s Black Renaissance, post-colonial black world literature). (Same as Africana Studies 102.)

180c,d. Living in the Sixteenth Century. Fall 2003. MR. CONLAN.

Examines the nature of state and society in an age of turmoil. Studies patterns of allegiances, ways of waging war, codes of conduct, and the social matrix of sixteenth-century Japan, based on primary and secondary sources. Kurosawa's masterpiece Kage Musha provides the thematic foundation for this course. (Same as Asian Studies 180.)

202c. Ancient Rome. Spring 2005. MS. POLINSKAYA.

Surveys the history of Rome from its beginnings to the fourth century A.D. Considers the political, economic, religious, social, and cultural developments of the Romans in the context of Rome's growth from a small settlement in central Italy to the dominant power in the Mediterranean world. Special attention is given to such topics as urbanism, imperialism, the influence of Greek culture and law, and multiculturalism. The course introduces different types of sources—literary, epigraphical, archaeological, etc.—and students learn how to use them as historical documents. (Same as Classics 212.)

203c. Medieval Spain. Fall 2003. MR. NYHUS.

A survey of medieval Spain serving as an introduction to medieval studies. Reviews the many cultures—Visigothic, Islamic, Jewish, and Christian—that flourished in medieval Spain and the relations among these cultures.

204c. Science, Magic, and Religion. Spring 2005. MR. DENERY.

Traces the origins of the scientific revolution through the interplay between late-antique and medieval religion, magic, and natural philosophy. Particular attention is paid to the conflict between paganism and Christianity, the meaning and function of religious miracles, the rise and persecution of witchcraft and Renaissance hermeticism.

205c. A History of the Body. Spring 2004. MR. DENERY.

Examines changing conceptions of the body and gender from early Christianity through the Baroque. Special attention is paid to the cult of relics, bodily practices in Catholic and Reformed Christianity, the body of God, and the body as object of scientific investigation.

206c. Early Modern Europe. Fall 2004. MR. DENERY.

A survey of European culture and society from the later Middle Ages to the origins of the Enlightenment.

207c. Medieval Europe. Fall 2003. MR. DENERY.

Examines the social, cultural, religious, and economic development of medieval Europe from the origins of Christianity to the beginnings of the Protestant Reformation. Particular attention is paid to the varying relations between church and state, the birth of urban culture and economy, institutional and popular religious movements, and the early formation of nation states.

[213c. Modern France: 1789 to the Present.]216c. The French Revolution. Spring 2004. MR. FRIEDLAND.

In the turbulent and violent years from 1789 to 1815, France experienced virtually every form of government known to the modern world. After a brief overview of the old regime, the focus turns to exploration of the politics of the Revolution, as well as Revolutionary culture in general (the arts, theater, songs, fashion, the cult of the guillotine, attitudes towards race and gender). Uses texts and images produced by the Revolutionaries themselves whenever possible.

[218c. The Making of Modern Russia, 1800–1917.]219c. Russia's Twentieth Century: Revolution and Beyond. Fall 2004. MS. HERRLINGER.

Examines major transformations in Russian society, culture, and politics from the final decades of Imperial Russia through the fall of the Soviet Union in 1991. Among the topics explored through novels, film, diaries, memoirs, and other primary sources are: the rise of the revolutionary movement and the Revolutions of 1905 and 1917; the building of socialism under the Bolsheviks; the rise and demise of the "Soviet system" from Stalin to Brezhnev; and the period of "glasnost" and "perestroika" under Gorbachev.

220c. Judaism, Christianity, and Antisemitism. Spring 2005. MS. TANANBAUM.

An analysis of the persistence of anti-Jewish attitudes through history, with a special emphasis on the Hitler regime's attempt to destroy European Jews and their culture. Beginning with a brief overview of the Greco-Roman world and medieval Europe, emphasizes the rise of racial and political antisemitism and the experiences of victims, bystanders, and perpetrators of the Holocaust. Readings focus on primary texts and secondary analysis. Students have the opportunity to develop individual research projects.

221c. History of England, 1485–1688. Fall 2003. MS. TANANBAUM.

A survey of the political, cultural, religious, social, and economic history of early modern England, from the reign of Henry VII, the first Tudor ruler, to the outbreak of the Glorious Revolution. Topics for consideration include the Tudor and Stuart monarchs, the Elizabethan Settlement, the English Civil War, Oliver Cromwell, and the Restoration.

222c,d. A History of Modern Korea. Spring 2004. MR. LEE.

Examines the history of Korea through the twentieth century, with an emphasis on recent developments in North-South relations. Topics include independence, the colonial experience, the war, divergent economic and political developments, and the prospect for reunification. (Same as Asian Studies 222.)

223c. Modern Britain, 1837 to the 1990s. Fall 2004. MS. TANANBAUM.

A social history of modern Britain from the rise of urban industrial society in the early nineteenth century to the present. Topics include the impact of the industrial revolution, acculturation of the working classes, the impact of liberalism, the reform movement, and Victorian society. Concludes with an analysis of the domestic impact of the world wars and of contemporary society.

[224c. The Modern Middle East: The Arab-Israeli Conflict.][227c. City and Landscape in Modern Europe: London, Paris, Vienna, Berlin.]

[229c. The Growth of the Welfare State in Britain and America: 1834 to the Present.]

230c. Interpretations of American History. Spring 2004. MR. LEVINE.

Considers four or five topics from the American Revolution to the present, as related to social change, including the American Revolution, slavery, Jacksonian democracy, the cold war, and the philosophy of history. Students read different works on the same subject and discuss how and why historians come to different conclusions about the same subject. Many history majors have found this course crucial because of its emphasis on critical reading and because it deals explicitly with the philosophy of history and historiography. Non-majors may find the course useful as a review survey of American history and for practice in reading analytically and writing critical essays. Students should not buy books before the first class, since not all students will read each book.

231c. Social History of Colonial America, 1607–1763. Spring 2004. MS. McMAHON.

A study of the founding and growth of the British colonies in North America. Explores the problems of creating a new society in a strange environment; the effects of various goals and expectations on the development of the thirteen colonies; the gradual transformation of European, Native American, and African cultures; and the later problems of colonial maturity and stability as the emerging American society outgrew the British imperial system.

[232c. History of the American West.]

233c. American Society in the New Nation. Fall 2004. MS. McMAHON.

A social history of the United States from the Revolutionary era through the age of Jackson. Topics include the social, economic, and ideological roots of the movement for American independence; the struggle to determine the scope of the Constitution and the shape of the new republic; the emergence of an American identity; and the diverging histories of the North, South, and West in the early nineteenth century.

236c,d. The History of African Americans, 1619–1865. Spring 2005. MR. RAEL.

Examines the history of African Americans from the origins of slavery in America through the death of slavery during the Civil War. Explores a wide range of topics, including: the Old World contexts to slavery in North America, the Atlantic slave trade, the emergence of plantation society, control and resistance on the plantation, the culture and family structure of enslaved African Americans, free black communities, and finally, the coming of the Civil War and the death of slavery. Sources include important slave narratives and several films. (Same as Africana Studies 236.)

237c,d. The History of African Americans from 1865 to the Present. Fall 2003. MR. RAEL.

Explores the history of African Americans from the end of the Civil War to the present. Issues include the promises and failures of Reconstruction, the Jim Crow era, black leadership and protest institutions, African American cultural styles, industrialization and urbanization, the world wars, the Civil Rights Movement, and conservative retrenchment. Throughout, emphasis is placed on recovering the voices of African Americans through primary sources. (Same as Africana Studies 237.)

242c. Environmental History of North America. Fall 2003. MR. KLINGLE.

Explores relationships between ideas of nature, human transformations of the environment, and the impact of nature on human events. Topics include the “Columbian exchange,” race and class relations, gender and labor, the role of science and technology, the influence of the westward expansion and colonialism, politics, urbanization, and the changing understandings of “nature” in North American cultures. (Same as Environmental Studies 242.)

[243c. The Civil Rights Movement.]

244c. City, Anti-City, and Utopia: The Urban Tradition in America. Spring 2005. Ms. PEARLMAN.

Explores the evolution of the American city from the beginning of industrialization to the present age of mass communications. Focuses on the underlying explanations for the American city's physical form by examining cultural values, technological advancement, aesthetic theories, and social structure. Major figures, places, and schemes in the areas of urban design and architecture, social criticism, and reform are considered. (Same as Environmental Studies 244.)

245c. Bearing the Untold Story: Gender, Race, and Ethnicity in the United States. Fall 2003. Ms. SCANLON.

Women of color are often ignored or pushed to the margins. There is a cost to that absence, obviously, for women of color. As Zora Neale Hurston put it, "There is no agony like bearing an untold story inside you." There is also a cost to those who are not women of color, as women of color are encountered as objects, rather than subjects. Addresses the gaps and explores the histories and contemporary issues affecting women of color and their ethnic/racial communities in the United States. (Same as Africana Studies 245 and Women's Studies 245.)

246c. Women in American History, 1600–1900. Spring 2005. Ms. McMAHON.

A social history of American women from the colonial period through the nineteenth century. Examines the changing roles and circumstances of women in both public and private spheres, focusing on family responsibilities, paid and unpaid work, education, ideals of womanhood, women's rights, and feminism. Class, ethnic, religious, and racial differences—as well as common experiences—are explored.

248c. Family and Community in American History. Fall 2003. Ms. McMAHON.

Examines the American family as a functioning social and economic unit within the community from the colonial period to the present. Topics include gender relationships; the purpose of marriage; philosophies of child-rearing; demographic changes in family structure; organization of work and leisure time; relationships between nuclear families and both kinship and neighborhood networks; and the effects of industrialization, urbanization, immigration, and social and geographic mobility on patterns of family life.

252c,d. Colonial Latin America. Fall 2004. Mr. WELLS.

Introduces students to the history of Latin America from pre-Columbian times to about 1825. Traces developments fundamental to the establishment of colonial rule, drawing out regional comparisons of indigenous resistance and accommodation. Topics include the nature of indigenous societies encountered by Europeans; exploitation of African and Indian labor; evangelization and the role of the church; the evolution of race, gender, and class hierarchies in colonial society; and the origins of independence in Spanish America and Brazil.

255c,d. Modern Latin America. Fall 2003. Mr. WELLS.

Traces the principal economic, social, and political transformations in Latin America from the wars of independence to the present. Focuses on the national trajectories of Mexico, Cuba, Peru, Brazil, Argentina, and Chile, with some attention to the countries of Central America. Topics include colonial legacies and the aftermath of independence; the consolidation of nation-states and their insertion in the world economy; the evolution of land and labor systems; the politics of state-building, reform, and revolution; industrialization and class formation; military regimes and foreign intervention; and the emergence of social movements.

256c,d. Environment and Society in Latin America. Spring 2004. MR. WELLS AND MR. WHEELWRIGHT.

Examines the evolving relationship between the environment, politics, and culture in Central America and the Caribbean. Topics include the environmental impact of economic development; colonialism; the predominance of plantation monoculture, slavery, and other forms of coerced labor; and political instability. (Same as Environmental Studies 256.)

258c,d. Latin American Revolutions. Spring 2005. MR. WELLS.

Examines revolutionary change in Latin America from a historical perspective, concentrating on four cases of attempted revolutionary change—Cuba, Chile, Nicaragua, and Guatemala. Popular images and orthodox interpretations are challenged and new propositions about these processes are tested. External and internal dimensions of each of these social movements are analyzed and each revolution is discussed in the full context of the country's historical development.

260c,d. Media, Technology, Nation. Spring 2004. MS. MITCHELL.

Traces the role of modern technologies of knowledge in the formation of modern nation-states and community identities in Asia. Considers the impact of print media and the novel; surveying and map-making; the census; museums and exhibitions; nineteenth-century theories of language, race, and ethnicity; radio, film, and television; and virtual communities born of migration and the Internet. Focuses on South Asia, with comparisons drawn from Southeast Asia. (Same as Asian Studies 260.)

261c,d. Modern South Asia. Fall 2003. MS. MITCHELL.

Chronological and thematic introduction to colonial and post-colonial South Asian history from the eighteenth century to the present. Topics include the rise and fall of British imperial power, the making of a colonial economy, the emergence of nationalist struggles in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, independence and partition, democracy and politics, secularism and religious fundamentalisms, social movements, and urbanization. (Same as Asian Studies 253.)

262c,d. Slavery and the Slave Trade in Pre-Colonial Africa. Fall 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of slavery within Africa, the slave trade on the African continent, and African connections to the intercontinental slave trade to the New World. Investigates the role of slavery in the African societies, the influence of Islam on slavery, the conduct and economic role of the slave trade, and the social, political, and economic effects of slavery and the slave trade on African states and societies. (Same as Africana Studies 262.)

264c,d. Islamic Societies in Africa. Spring 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of Islam as a theological system and as an ideology that orders social relations in some African societies. The course places particular emphasis on the role of women in African Islamic societies. (Same as Africana Studies 264 and Women's Studies 264.)

266c,d. African History to 1850. Spring 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of broad themes in sub-Saharan Africa from several centuries B.C.E. to about 1850. Topics include pastoral and agricultural societies; the expansion of "Bantu" speakers; the emergence of medieval states and regional and intercontinental trading systems; European coastal trade, the rise of the slave trade, and the impact of the slave trade on African societies, as well as the underdevelopment of Africa. (Same as Africana Studies 266.)

267c,d. Africa Since 1850. Fall 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of the most important events of the past 150 years that have shaped today's Africa. Topics include the East African slave trade and the end of slavery in Africa, Islamic jihads and states, European conquest and forms of resistance and collaboration, the nature of colonial rule, the emergence of cash cropping and (forced) migrant labor, African nationalism and "flag" independence, the rise and fall of Apartheid, and the political troubles of post-independence Africa. (Same as Africana Studies 267.)

271c,d. The Material Culture of Ancient China. Spring 2004. MR. SMITH.

Addresses material culture in China from ca. 400 to 100 B.C., while the great unification of empire was occurring. Topics include what people ate; how they wrote, fought, and built; how we know such things about them; and how this civilization can be compared with others. (Same as Asian Studies 271.)

272c,d. Cosmic Sexualities in East and South Asian Cultures. Fall 2004. MR. SMITH.

Examines conceptions of the cosmos based on sexual metaphors in the cultures of China, Tibet and India, especially the Daoist, Buddhist and Hindu traditions. Emphasis on how human social realities shape and are shaped by systems of belief. Topics include the varying complementarities of yin-yang, yab-yum, and Siva-Sakti. (Same as Asian Studies 272.)

273c,d. A Social History of Shamanism in East Asia. Fall 2005. MR. SMITH.

What kinds of societies foster shamanic practice? How do variant social structures give rise to analytically similar religious activity? Studies the cultures of Siberia, ancient China, medieval Japan, and premodern Tibet against the larger patterns of shamanic practices in other parts of the world. (Same as Asian Studies 273.)

Prerequisite: Any one of the following: Asian Studies/History 28, Asian Studies 81, Asian Studies/History 276, Religion 101, or permission of the instructor.

275c,d. Modern China. Fall 2006. MR. SMITH.

Introduction to the history of China from 1840 to the present. Studies the confrontation with Western imperialism, the fall of empire, the Republican period, and the People's Republic. (Same as Asian Studies 275.)

276c,d. A History of Tibet. Spring 2005. MR. SMITH.

Examines three questions: What was old Tibet? Is Tibet part of China? What are conditions there now? Analyzes the complex interactions of politics and society with Buddhist doctrine and practice. (Same as Asian Studies 276.)

277c,d. Debating Colonialism and Its Aftermath in South Asia. Spring 2004. Ms. MITCHELL.

Introduction to historiography. Critically examines key debates in the history of British colonialism and its impact on the South Asian subcontinent. Topics include the 1857 uprising ("Sepoy Mutiny" or "First War of Indian Independence"), gender and colonial law, de-industrialization, the colonial role in creating modern caste identities and religious conflicts, and the necessity of the partition of the subcontinent. (Same as Asian Studies 277.)

278c,d. The Foundations of Tokugawa Japan. Spring 2006. MR. SMITH.

Addresses problems in the creation and early development of the Tokugawa (1600–1868) state and society, including the transformation of samurai from professional warriors into professional bureaucrats and the unanticipated growth of a quasi-autonomous urban culture. (Same as Asian Studies 278.)

283c,d. The Origins of Japanese Culture and Civilization. Spring 2004 and Spring 2005. MR. CONLAN.

How do a culture, a state, and a society develop? Designed to introduce the culture and history of Japan by exploring how "Japan" came into existence, and to chart how patterns of Japanese civilization shifted through time. We try to reconstruct the tenor of life through translations of primary sources, and gain a greater appreciation of the unique and lasting cultural and political monuments of Japanese civilization. (Same as Asian Studies 283.)

284c,d. The Emergence of Modern Japan. Fall 2003 and Fall 2004. MR. CONLAN.

What constitutes a modern state? How durable are cultures and civilizations? Examines the patterns of culture in a state that managed to expel European missionaries in the seventeenth century, and came to embrace all things Western as being "civilized" in the mid-nineteenth century. Compares the unique and vibrant culture of Tokugawa Japan with the rapid program of industrialization in the late nineteenth century, which resulted in imperialism, international wars, and ultimately, the post-war recovery. (Same as Asian Studies 284.)

Intermediate Seminars

The following seminars offer the opportunity for more intensive work in critical reading and discussion, analytical writing, library or archival research, and thematic study than is available in the intermediate (200-level) lecture courses. They are intended for majors and non-majors alike, but, because they are advanced intermediate courses, they assume some background in the discipline and may require previous course work in history or the permission of the instructor (see individual course descriptions for prerequisites). Enrollment is limited to sixteen students. The intermediate seminars are not open to first-year students. They do not fulfill the history major requirement for a 300-level seminar.

200c. Reality: The Construction and Pre-History of an Illusion. Fall 2003. MR. DENERY AND MR. PERKINSON.

Seminar. What makes one picture more accurate than another? Why do we think a photograph is an almost perfect representation of the world? This co-taught course employs methods from two distinct disciplines of research (history and art history) to explore the origins of modern conceptions of "reality" (naturalism and perspective in art, the rise of science) in late medieval and early modern society. Through an examination of a variety of art works and written sources (popular, religious, political and scientific), investigates why people decided that certain sorts of images and ways of thinking about the world were "true." (Same as Art History 316.)

208c. The History of History. Fall 2004. Mr. Denery.

Seminar. What is history and how do we come to know it? Does history follow a plan and, if so, what sort of plan? Examines the practice of historical inquiry from the ancient world to Marx with particular emphasis on the way in which religious thought has shaped conceptions of history. Topics include apocalyptic history, conspiracy theory, and the idea of progress.

Prerequisite: one previous course in history.

209c. Art, Literature, and Power in Sixteenth-Century Europe. Fall 2003. MR. NYHUS.

Seminar. Analysis of political power and social hierarchy in sixteenth-century Europe. Special attention is given to literature, e.g., Machiavelli, Marguerite of Navarre, and Rabelais, and to art, e.g., Gentile Bellini, Dürer, Bruegel, and German woodcuts.

[210c. Modernity and Its Critics.]

[211c. Holocaust: History and Historiography.]

212c. The Eighteenth Century and the Birth of Modern Thought. Fall 2004. MR. FRIEDLAND.

Seminar. At the beginning of the eighteenth century in Europe, criminals were tortured in public, witches were still being prosecuted, and Jews and other pariahs were marked with special badges. By mid-century, these practices were under attack by a cultural and intellectual revolution known as “The Enlightenment.” Through reading circles, coffee houses, and salons where philosophers gathered to discuss the latest ideas, a new system of rationality spread throughout Europe (and, eventually, much of the world). Explores this radical shift in thought and culture that destroyed the old way of thinking and ushered in an “age of reason” that has dominated Western thought to the present day.

217c. The German Experience, 1918–1945. Spring 2004. Ms. HERRLINGER.

Seminar. An in-depth inquiry into the troubled course of German history during the Weimar and Nazi periods. Among the topics explored are the impact of the Great War on culture and society in the 1920s; the rise of National Socialism; the role of race, class, and gender in the transformation of everyday life under Hitler; forms of persecution, collaboration, and resistance during the Third Reich; Nazi war aims and the experience of war on the front and at “home,” including the Holocaust.

226c. BIG PLANS: Culture, Politics, and the Design of the Modern City. Spring 2004. Ms. PEARLMAN.

Seminar examines great moments, issues, and texts in the history of modern urbanism. Includes Haussman’s Paris, the Vienna Ringstrasse, Robert Moses’s New York, the modernist cities of Brasilia and Chandigarh, and suggested schemes for the post-modern city. In considering the roles of planning, politics, history, memory, nature, and modernity as key factors in shaping civic form, turns to a range of different authors, including: Carl Schorske, Robert Caro, Le Corbusier, Lewis Mumford, Jane Jacobs, William Whyte, Kevin Lynch and Rem Koolhaas. Students carry out a semester-long research project culminating in a research paper and class presentation. (Same as Environmental Studies 399.)

Prerequisite: One history course or Environmental Studies 245 or permission of the instructor.

228c. Medicine, Public Health, and History. Spring 2005. Ms. TANANBAUM.

Seminar. Explores major medical development in Europe and America. Analyzes social, cultural, and historical factors that influence our perceptions of sickness, health, patients, practitioners, and medical treatment.

Prerequisite: One previous course in European or American history.

235c. Green Injustice: Environment and Equity in North American History. Fall 2003. MR. KLINGLE.

Seminar. Examines the historical foundations of environmental racism and environmental justice in North America. Students investigate how tensions between inclusion and exclusion through time have blurred the boundaries between nature and culture. Explores such topics as the expulsion of Native Americans from public lands; agriculture and antebellum slavery; immigration, disease, and the rise of public health and urban planning; the impact of weeds and invasive species upon community relations in the West; the role of science and technology in defining environmental and social problems; class conflict and conservation policy; and the transnational dimensions of pollution. (Same as Environmental Studies 235.)

[238c,d. Reconstruction.]

247c. Maine: A Community and Environmental History. Spring 2005. Ms. McMAHON.

Seminar. Examines the evolution of various Maine ecological communities—inland, hill country, and coastal. Begins with pre-colonial habitats and the transfer of English and European agricultural traditions in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and explores the development of those communities through the early twentieth century. Research projects focus on the agricultural and ecological history of two local rural properties and their surrounding neighborhoods. (Same as Environmental Studies 247.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in history or permission of the instructor.

249c. History of Women's Voices in America. Spring 2004. Ms. McMAHON.

Seminar. Examination of women's voices in America from 1650 to the present, as these emerged in private letters, journals, and memoirs; poetry, short stories, and novels; prescriptive literature, essays, and addresses. Readings from the secondary literature provide a historical framework for examining women's writings. Research projects focus on the form and content of women's literature and the ways that it illuminates women's understandings, reactions, and responses to their historical situation. (Same as Women's Studies 249.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in history.

251c. The United States in the Nineteenth Century. Fall 2003. Mr. RAEL.

Seminar. Close reading of historical arguments regarding a variety of topics in the history of the United States in the nineteenth century, including party systems, the market revolution, class and racial formation, gender, Native Americans, slavery and the Old South, corporatism, the labor movement, and Populism. Explores the nature of historical arguments with an eye toward student writing.

Prerequisite: One previous course in history.

[253c,d. Land and Labor in Latin America.]281c. The Courtly Society of Heian Japan. Fall 2004. Mr. CONLAN.

Seminar. Japan's courtly culture spawned some of the greatest cultural achievements the world has ever known. Based on the Tale of Genji, a tenth-century novel of romance and intrigue, the students attempt to reconstruct the complex world of courtly culture in Japan, where marriages were open and easy, even though social mobility was not; and where the greatest elegance, and most base violence, existed in tandem. (Same as Asian Studies 281.)

285c,d. Warring States. Spring 2005. Mr. CONLAN.

Seminar. Examines the experience of "premodern" war in Europe, China, and Japan through chronicles, documents, and visual sources. In addition to exploring narratives of battle, "heroic" qualities of European, Chinese, and Japanese leaders are also investigated. (Same as Asian Studies 285.)

289c. New York City. Spring 2004. Mr. LEVINE.

Seminar. Starts with the Civil War and draft riots, but concentrates on late nineteenth and twentieth centuries, with perhaps six themes: ethnicities (including ethnic neighborhoods and ethnic conflict), class (including conflict, labor unions, wealth, and poor neighborhoods), how New York works (subways, water system, parks, bridges), politics (Theodore Roosevelt, Tammany, LaGuardia, etc.), New York as a culture center (including formal institutions like museums and orchestras and informal activities like groups of artists, sports), and the decline of manufactures and growth of FIREman (Finance, Insurance, Real Estate).

Advanced Seminars

The 300-level problems courses in history engage students in the close investigation of certain historical “problems.” Following a critical reading and discussion of representative primary and secondary sources, with attention to issues of methodology and interpretation, students develop an independent, primary research topic related to the central problem of the course, which culminates in an analytical essay of substantial length. Sufficient background in the discipline and field is assumed, the extent of it depending on whether these courses build upon courses found elsewhere in the history curriculum. Enrollment is limited to sixteen students. Majors in fields other than history are encouraged to consider these seminars.

Problems in Early European History

305c. Cultures of Deception: The Court in European History. Spring 2005. MR. DENERY.

Often looked upon as the source of European (indeed, Western) notions of civility and etiquette, the court was also a place of intrigue, gratuitous backstabbing, and grand deception. Examines the trajectory of the noble court from the early Middle Ages through the end of the Ancien Régime, with particular attention to its role in the construction of early modern notions of the subject.

Problems in Modern European History

314c. The History of Crime and Punishment in Modern Europe. Spring 2005. MR. FRIEDLAND.

Explores changing definitions of crime and the attempts to eradicate it, from the spectacles of torture and execution in old regime Europe to modern “correctional facilities.” Particular attention is paid to revolutionary regimes (Revolutionary France, Revolutionary Russia, Nazi Germany, etc.) Students prepare an original research paper on the related topic of their choosing.

Problems in British History

322c. Race, Gender, and Ethnicity in British and European Society. Spring 2004. Ms. TANANBAUM.

An analysis of cultural traditions in Britain and Europe. Explores the impact of immigration on Britain and the Continent, notions of cultural pluralism, and the changing definitions and implications of gender in Britain and Europe from the late eighteenth century to the present. Students undertake a major research project utilizing primary sources. (Same as Women’s Studies 322.)

Problems in American History

[328c. Nature’s Stories: Research Methods in Environmental History.]

332c. Community in America, 1600–1900. Fall 2003. Ms. McMAHON.

Explores the ideals of community in American history, focusing on change, continuity, and diversity in the social, economic, and cultural realities of community experience. Examines the formation of new communities on a “frontier” that moved westward from the Atlantic to the Pacific; the changing face of community that accompanied modernization, urbanization, and suburbanization; and the attempts to create alternative communities either separate from or contained within established communities.

336c,d. Research in Nineteenth-Century United States History. Spring 2004. MR. RAEL.

A research course for majors and interested non-majors that culminates in a single 25-30 page research paper. Students may choose any topic in Civil War or African-American history, broadly defined. This is a special opportunity to delve into Bowdoin's rich collections of primary source documents. (Same as Africana Studies 336.)

Prerequisite: One previous course in United States history.

*Problems in Latin American History351c,d. The Mexican Revolution. Spring 2004. MR. WELLS.

An examination of the Mexican Revolution (1910-1920) and its impact on modern Mexican society. Topics include the role of state formation since the revolution, agrarian reform, U.S.-Mexican relations, immigration and other border issues.

354c,d. Problems of Underdevelopment in Latin America. Spring 2005. MR. WELLS.

First examines economic theories that historically have been advanced to explain the process of development (and underdevelopment) in Latin America. Students proceed to test these theories by applying them to a specific economic problem currently facing Latin America.

*Problems in Asian History370c,d. Problems in Chinese History. Every fall. MR. SMITH.

Reviews the whole of Chinese history. Students develop their research skills and write a substantial research paper. Primarily for seniors. (Same as Asian Studies 370.)

380c,d. The Warrior Culture of Japan. Spring 2004. MR. CONLAN.

Explores the "rise" of the warrior culture of Japan. In addition to providing a better understanding of the judicial and military underpinnings of Japan's military "rule" and the nature of medieval Japanese warfare, shows how warriors have been perceived as a dominant force in Japanese history. Culminates in an extended research paper. (Same as Asian Studies 380.)

Prerequisite: History 283, History 284 or another course in Japanese history (with permission of the instructor).

291c-294c. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.401c-404c. Advanced Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.451c, 452c. Honors Seminar. Every year. THE DEPARTMENT.

Interdisciplinary Majors

A student may, with the approval of the departments concerned and the Recording Committee, design an interdisciplinary major to meet an individual, cultural, or professional objective.

Bowdoin has nine interdisciplinary major programs that do not require the approval of the Recording Committee because the departments concerned have formalized their requirements. These programs are in art history and archaeology, art history and visual arts, chemical physics, computer science and mathematics, English and theater, Eurasian and East European studies, geology and chemistry, geology and physics, and mathematics and economics. A student wishing to pursue one of these majors needs the approval of the departments concerned.

Art History and Archaeology

Requirements

1. Art History 101, 212, 222, and one of Art History 302 through 388; Archaeology 101, 102, and any three additional archaeology courses, at least one of which must be at the 300 level.
2. Any two art history courses numbered 10 through 388.
3. One of the following: Classics 101, 211, 212, or 291 (Independent Study in Ancient History); Philosophy 111; or an appropriate course in religion at the 200 level.
4. Either Art History 401 or Archaeology 401.

Art History and Visual Arts

Requirements

1. Art History: 101. One non-Eurocentric course numbered 110 or higher; four additional courses numbered 200 or higher; and one 300-level seminar.
2. Visual Arts: 150, 160, and either 250 or 260; and three additional courses in visual arts, at least one of which must be numbered 270 or higher.

Chemical Physics

Requirements

1. Chemistry 109, 119, or 159, and 251; Mathematics 161, 171, and 181 or 223; Physics 103, 104, and 229.
2. Chemistry 252 or Physics 310.
3. Two courses from Chemistry 254, 310, 340, 350, or approved topics in 401, 402, 451 or 452; Physics 223, 251, 256, 320, or approved topics in 401, 402, 451 or 452. At least one of these must at the 300 level or above. Other possible electives may be available; interested students should check with the departments.

Computer Science and Mathematics

Requirements

1. Computer Science 103, 105 or 107, and 210.
2. Mathematics 181 and 200.
3. Computer Science 231 and 289. (Same as Mathematics 231 and 289.)
4. Two additional Computer Science courses from: 250, any 300-level, and 401.
5. Three additional Mathematics courses from: 224, 225, 244, 249, 262, 264, 288, and 401.

Independent study (291) may be applied to the major upon approval of the appropriate department.

English and Theater

The interdisciplinary major in English and theater focuses on the dramatic arts, broadly construed, with a significant emphasis on the critical study of drama and literature. Students of English and theater may blend introductory and advanced course work in both fields, while maintaining flexibility in the focus of their work. Honors theses in English and theater are listed as honors in English and theater, rather than in either field individually. Students completing an honors project should be guided by faculty in both fields. Students who decide to take this major are encouraged to work with advisors in both fields. Students wishing to study abroad are allowed to count two courses in approved study away programs such as CBB, the National Theater Institute, or elsewhere toward the requirements for the major.

Requirements

1. An English first-year seminar or 100-level course, preferably English 106.
2. One 100-level theater course, preferably Theater 101.
3. Three theater courses from the following: 103, 105, 120, 130, 140, 220, 240, 250, or 270.
4. One course from English 210, 211, or 212; one course from English 223 or 230.
5. One course in modern drama, either English 262, or its equivalent in another department, such as French 315.
6. One 300-level course in theater, and one 300-level English seminar.
7. One elective in English and one elective in theater or dance at the 200 level or higher.

Eurasian and East European Studies

Description

The interdisciplinary major in Eurasian and East European Studies combines the study of the Russian language with related courses in anthropology, economics, German, government, history, music, Russian, and women's studies. The major emphasizes the common aspects of the geo-political area of Eurasia and East Europe, including the European and Asian countries of the former USSR, East Central Europe, and the Balkans. The Eurasian and East European Studies (EEES) major allows students to focus their study on one cultural, social, political or historical topic, illuminating the interrelated linkages of these countries.

In the past, students studying Russian have had double majors in the above disciplines. This major combines these fields into a study of one common theme, in order to provide a multi-disciplinary introduction to the larger region, while allowing for an in-depth study of the student's specific geographical area of choice. EEES independent study allows an interested student to work with a faculty member(s) in order to merge introductory and advanced course work into a focused and disciplined research project. Course work in the Russian language or other regional languages is expected to start as early as possible in the student's academic career.

Careful advising and consultation with EEES faculty members is essential to plan a student's four-year program, taking into consideration course prerequisites, the rotation of courses, and/or sabbatical or research leaves. Independent study allows a student to conduct interdisciplinary research under the careful guidance of two or more advisers or readers.

Requirements

1. Two years of Russian (Russian 101, 102, 203, 204, or the equivalent in another language, i.e., Bulgarian, Polish, Serbian/Croatian, etc.).
2. Four courses from the concentration core courses after consultation with EEES faculty. At least one course should be at the 200 level and one at the 300 level or above. Upon petition to EEES faculty, a student completing the EEES concentration can satisfy the requirement by substituting a course from the complementary list of Russian courses (listed below) or through independent studies in those cases in which: 1) faculty members are on sabbatical leave, 2) the course is not rotated often enough, 3) a course is withdrawn (when a faculty member leaves), and/or 4) a new, related course is offered on a one-time-only basis.
3. Any two courses outside the EEES concentration to be selected from the complementary list below, one at the 200 and one at the 300 level, or above. With approval of an EEES faculty member, requirements (2) and (3) may be fulfilled in part by an independent study in the concentration or in the area of complementary courses.
4. Only one introductory course or first-year seminar may count toward the major.
5. An honors project in either concentration requires two semesters of independent study for a total of 11 courses in the major. EEES offers three levels of honors.
6. Off-campus study at an approved program, particularly the Nevsky Institute in St. Petersburg, is strongly recommended. Up to three courses in an approved program may be counted toward the major.
7. If students choose a double major in EEES and Russian, only the first two years of language (Russian 101, 102, 203, and 204) may be double counted. No other courses may be double counted.

EEES Concentration Core and Complementary Courses beyond Russian 204

A. Concentration in Russian/East European Politics, Economics, History, Sociology, and Anthropology.

Core courses:

- Anthropology 246 Peoples and Societies of the Balkans
- Economics 221 Marxian Political Economy
[Government 230 Post-Communist Russian Politics]
- [Government 320 Politics and Anti-Politics in East Central Europe]
- History 218 History of Russia, 1825-1953
- History 219 Russia's Twentieth Century: Revolution and Beyond
- History 311 Experiments in Totalitarianism: Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia
- Women's Studies 218 Sex and Socialism: Gender and Political Ideologies of the 20th Century
- Women's Studies 227 Women and World Development: Gender, Economic Development and Transition

B. Complementary courses in Eurasian and East European Literature and Culture:

- German 317 Post-1945 Literature and Culture
- German 321 Before and After the Wall: East German Traditions in Literature, Culture, and Film
- German 398 East German Literature and Culture
- Music 273 Chorus (when content applies)
- Music 274 Chorus (when content applies)

Nev 001 Petersburg: Mecca of the Arts
 Nev 002 St. Petersburg: Leningrad—A City of Dreams and Dreamers
 Russian 20 The Great Soviet Experiment through Film
 Russian 21 The Culture of Nationalism
 Russian 215 Russia, the Slavs, and Europe
 Russian 220 Nineteenth-Century Russian Literature
 Russian 221 Soviet Worker Bees, Revolution, and Red Love in Russian Film
 Russian 222 Women in Russian Society and Culture
 Russian 223 Dostoevsky and the Novel
 Russian 224 Dostoevsky or Tolstoy
 Russian 251 Central Asia through Film and Literature

Courses in Russian:

Russian 307 Russian Folklore
 Russian 309 Nineteenth-Century Russian Literature
 Russian 310 Modern Russian Literature
 Russian 316 Russian Poetry

Geology and Chemistry

Requirements

1. Chemistry 109, 119, or 159, and four courses from the following: Chemistry 210, 225, 226, 240, 251, and approved advanced courses.
2. Geology 101, 202, and 262.
3. Two courses from the following: Geology 220, 260, and 275.
4. Physics 103 and Mathematics 161 and 171.

There are many different emphases a student can give to this major, depending on his or her interests. For this reason, the student should consult with the geology and chemistry departments in selecting electives.

Geology and Physics

Requirements

1. Chemistry 109, 119, or 159; Geology 101, 202, 241, 265; Mathematics 161, 171; Physics 103, 104, and 223.
2. Either Physics 255 or 300.
3. Three additional courses, 200-level or above, in geology and/or physics.

Mathematics and Economics

Requirements

1. Six courses in mathematics as follows: Mathematics 181, 222, 225, 265; and two of Mathematics 224, 249, 264, 269, 304.
2. Either Computer Science 210 or Mathematics 244 or 255 or 305.
3. Four courses in economics with a grade of C- or better, as follows: Economics 255, 256, 316, and one other 300-level course.

Latin American Studies

Administered by the Latin American Studies Committee;

Allen Wells and Enrique Yepes, Co-chairs

Gerlinde W. Rickel, Program Coordinator

(See committee list, page 325)

Latin American Studies is an integrated interdisciplinary program that explores the cultural heritage of Mesoamerica, the Caribbean, and South America. Its multidisciplinary approach is designed to bring the scholarly methods and perspectives of several disciplines together in fostering increased understanding of Latin America's history, political and economic realities, cultural diversity, and range of aesthetic expression. Competence in Spanish (or another appropriate language such as French or Portuguese, with the approval of the administering committee) is required, and it is recommended that students participate in a study-away program in Latin America.

Requirements for the Major in Latin American Studies

The major in Latin American Studies consists of nine courses, including the following:

- 1) Spanish 207. Latin American Cultures.
- 2) Two of the following courses:
 - a. History 252, Colonial Latin America, or History 255, Modern Latin America.
 - b. A 200-level course in anthropology or sociology focused on Latin America.
- 3) A concentration of four additional courses centered on a particular geographic region (Andean region, Caribbean, Mesoamerica, Southern Cone, etc.) or theme (colonization, cultural hybridity, indigenous cultures, globalization, development issues, gender relations, etc.) The four-course concentration will be selected by each major in consultation with the faculty in Latin American Studies. The courses for the concentration should be primarily at the 200- or 300-level.
- 4) An elective course in Latin American Studies, outside of the student's area of concentration.
- 5) In the senior year, each major will have the option of completing:
 - a) a one- or two-semester independent study project or honors thesis, or
 - b) a 300-level seminar approved for Latin American Studies credit.

With the exception of courses taken at the CBB Quito Center, a maximum of two courses from Bowdoin-approved off-campus study programs may count toward the major. A maximum of two credits of independent study may be counted toward the major. Courses in which D grades are received will not count toward the major.

Requirements for the Minor in Latin American Studies

The minor consists of at least one course at Bowdoin beyond the intermediate level in Spanish, History 255 (Modern Latin American History), and three additional courses, two of which must be outside the student's major department. Independent studies can meet requirements for the minor only with the approval by the Latin American Studies Committee of a written prospectus of the work contemplated. Courses in which D grades are received will not count toward the minor.

Students may choose from the following list of courses to satisfy requirements for the major or minor in Latin American Studies. For full course descriptions and prerequisites, see the appropriate department listings.

Requirements for the Major in Mathematics

A major consists of at least eight courses numbered 200 or above, including at least one of the following—Mathematics 262, 263, or a course numbered in the 300s.

A student must submit a planned program of courses to the department when he or she declares a major. That program should include both theoretical and applied mathematics courses, and it may be changed later with the approval of the departmental advisor.

All majors should take basic courses in algebra (e.g., Mathematics 222 or 262) and in analysis (e.g., Mathematics 223 or 263), and they are strongly encouraged to complete at least one sequence in a specific area of mathematics. Those areas are algebra (Mathematics 222, 262, and 302); analysis (Mathematics 243, 263, and 303); applied mathematics (Mathematics 224, 264, and 304); probability and statistics (Mathematics 225, 265, and 305); and geometry (Mathematics 247 and 307). In exceptional circumstances, a student may substitute a quantitative course from another department for one of the eight mathematics courses required for the major, but such a substitution must be approved in advance by the department. Without specific departmental approval, no course which counts toward another department's major or minor may be counted toward a mathematics major or minor.

Majors who have demonstrated that they are capable of intensive advanced work are encouraged to undertake independent study projects. With the prior approval of the department, such a project counts toward the major requirement and may lead to graduation with honors in mathematics.

Requirements for the Minor in Mathematics

A minor in mathematics consists of a minimum of four courses numbered 200 or above, at least one of which must be Mathematics 243, 247, or any mathematics course numbered 262 or above. For students who major in computer science and who therefore take Mathematics 200, 231, and 289, the minor consists of a minimum of three additional courses numbered 200 or above, at least one of which must be Mathematics 243, 247, or any mathematics course numbered 262 or above.

Interdisciplinary Majors

The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in computer science and mathematics and mathematics and economics. See pages 178 and 180.

Recommended Courses

Listed below are some of the courses recommended to students with the indicated interests.

For secondary school teaching: Computer Science 103, 105, or 107, Mathematics 222, 225, 242, 247, 262, 263, 265, 288.

For graduate study: Mathematics 222, 223, 243, 262, 263, and at least one course numbered in the 300s.

For engineering and applied mathematics: Mathematics 223, 224, 225, 243, 244, 264, 265, 288, 304.

For mathematical economics and econometrics: Mathematics 222, 223 or 263, 225, 244, 249, 265, 269, 288, 304, 305, and Economics 316.

For statistics and other interdisciplinary areas: Mathematics 222, 224, 225, 243, 244, 255, 265, 305.

For computer science: Computer Science 220, 231; Mathematics 200, 222, 225, 244, 249, 262, 265, 288, 289.

For operations research and management science: Mathematics 200, 222, 225, 249, 265, 269, 288, 305, and Economics 316.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

60a. Introduction to College Mathematics. Every spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

Material selected from the following topics: combinatorics, probability, modern algebra, logic, linear programming, and computer programming. This course, in conjunction with Mathematics 161 or 165, is intended as a one-year introduction to mathematics and is recommended for those students who intend to take only one year of college mathematics.

65a. Statistical Reasoning. Every spring. MRS. ROBERTS.

An introduction to the ideas of statistics. Students learn how to reason statistically and how to interpret and draw conclusions from data. The course is designed for students who want to understand the nature of statistical information. Open to first-year students and sophomores who want to improve their quantitative skills. It is recommended that students with a background in calculus enroll in Mathematics 165.

Prerequisite: Recommendation of the director of the Quantitative Skills Program and permission of the instructor.

161a. Differential Calculus. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

Functions, including the trigonometric, exponential, and logarithmic functions; the derivative and the rules for differentiation; the anti-derivative; applications of the derivative and the anti-derivative. Four to five hours of class meetings and computer laboratory sessions per week, on average. Open to students who have taken at least three years of mathematics in secondary school.

165a. Introduction to Statistics and Data Analysis. Every fall. MRS. ROBERTS.

Students learn to draw conclusions from data using exploratory data analysis and statistical techniques. Examples are drawn primarily from the life sciences. The course includes topics from exploratory data analysis, the planning and design of experiments, probability and statistical inference. The computer is used extensively. Not open to students who have taken a college-level statistics course (such as Mathematics 65, Psychology 252 or Economics 257).

171a. Integral Calculus. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

The definite integral; the Fundamental theorems; improper integrals; applications of the definite integral; differential equations; and approximations including Taylor polynomials and Fourier series. Four to five hours of class meetings and computer laboratory sessions per week, on average.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 161 or equivalent.

172a. Integral Calculus, Advanced Section. Every fall. THE DEPARTMENT.

A review of the exponential and logarithmic functions, techniques of integration, and numerical integration. Improper integrals. Approximations using Taylor polynomials and infinite series. Emphasis on differential equation models and their solutions. Four to five hours of class meetings and computer laboratory sessions per week, on average. Open to students whose backgrounds include the equivalent of Mathematics 161 and the first half of Mathematics 171. Designed for first-year students who have completed an AB Advanced Placement calculus course in their secondary schools.

181a. Multivariate Calculus. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

Multivariate calculus in two and three dimensions. Vectors and curves in two and three dimensions; partial and directional derivatives; the gradient; the chain rule in higher dimensions; double and triple integration; polar, cylindrical, and spherical coordinates; line integration; conservative vector fields; and Green's theorem. Four to five hours of class meetings and computer laboratory sessions per week, on average.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 171 or equivalent.

200a. Introduction to Mathematical Reasoning. Every semester. MR. PIETRAHO.

An introduction to logical deductive reasoning, mathematical proof, and the fundamental concepts of higher mathematics. Specific topics include set theory, induction, infinite sets, permutations, and combinations. An active, guided discovery classroom format.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 161.

207a. Elementary Topics in Topology. Every two years. Spring 2005. MR. FISK.

Topology studies properties of geometric objects that do not change when the object is deformed. The course covers knot theory, surfaces, and other elementary areas of topology.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181.

222a. Linear Algebra. Every spring. MR. WARD.

Topics include vectors, matrices, vector spaces, inner product spaces, linear transformations, eigenvalues and eigenvectors, and quadratic forms. Applications to linear equations, discrete dynamical systems, Markov chains, least-squares approximation, and Fourier series.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181 or permission of the instructor.

[223a. Vector Calculus.]224a. Applied Mathematics: Ordinary Differential Equations. Every fall. MR. KILLOUGH.

A study of some of the ordinary differential equations that model a variety of systems in the natural and social sciences. Classical methods for solving differential equations with an emphasis on modern, qualitative techniques for studying the behavior of solutions to differential equations. Applications to the analysis of a broad set of topics, including population dynamics, competitive economic markets, and design flaws. (Computer software is used as an important tool, but no prior programming background is assumed.)

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181 or permission of the instructor.

225a. Probability. Every fall. MRS. ROBERTS.

A study of the mathematical models used to formalize nondeterministic or “chance” phenomena. General topics include combinatorial models, probability spaces, conditional probability, discrete and continuous random variables, independence and expected values. Specific probability densities, such as the binomial, Poisson, exponential, and normal, are discussed in depth.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181.

231a. Algorithms. Every fall. MS. TOMA.

The study of algorithms concerns programming for computational efficiency, as well as problem-solving techniques. The course covers practical algorithms and theoretical issues in the design and analysis of algorithms. Topics include divide and conquer algorithms, greedy algorithms, dynamic programming, approximation algorithms, and a study of intractable problems. (Same as Computer Science 231.)

Prerequisite: Computer Science 210 and either Computer Science 189 or Mathematics 200, or permission of the instructor.

242a. Number Theory. Every other fall. Fall 2004. MR. JOHNSON.

A standard course in elementary number theory which traces the historical development and includes the major contributions of Euclid, Fermat, Euler, Gauss, and Dirichlet. Prime numbers, factorization, and number-theoretic functions. Perfect numbers and Mersenne primes. Fermat’s theorem and its consequences. Congruences and the law of quadratic reciprocity. The problem of unique factorization in various number systems. Integer solutions to algebraic equations. Primes in arithmetic progressions. An effort is made to collect along the way a list of unsolved problems.

243a. Functions of a Complex Variable. Every other fall. Fall 2003. MR. JOHNSON.

The differential and integral calculus of functions of a complex variable. Cauchy’s theorem and Cauchy’s integral formula, power series, singularities, Taylor’s theorem, Laurent’s theorem, the residue calculus, harmonic functions, and conformal mapping.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 171.

244a. Numerical Methods. Every other fall. Fall 2003. MR. FISK.

An introduction to the theory and application of numerical analysis. Topics include approximation theory, numerical integration and differentiation, iterative methods for solving equations, and numerical analysis of differential equations.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 222 or permission of the instructor.

247a. Geometry. Every other fall. Fall 2003. MR. BARKER.

A survey of modern approaches to Euclidean geometry in two and three dimensions. Axiomatic foundations of metric geometry. Transformational geometry: isometries and similarities. Klein’s Erlangen Program. Symmetric figures. Scaling, measurement, and dimension.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 171 or permission of the instructor.

249a. Optimization. Every other fall. Fall 2004. MR. LEVY.

A study of optimization problems arising in a variety of situations in the social and natural sciences. Analytic and numerical methods are used to study problems in mathematical programming, including linear models, but with an emphasis on modern nonlinear models. Issues of duality and sensitivity to data perturbations are covered, and there are extensive applications to real-world problems.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181.

255a. Exploratory Data Techniques. Every other spring. Spring 2004. MR. FISK.

An introduction to the techniques of exploratory data analysis. Topics include graphical techniques, scientific visualization, discriminant analysis, principal components, canonical correlation, multi-dimensional scaling, classification, data mining, and spatial processes. Student learn how to run and interpret the output from the statistical package Splus.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181.

262a. Introduction to Algebraic Structures. Every year. Fall 2003. MR. WARD.

A study of the basic arithmetic and algebraic structure of the common number systems, polynomials, and matrices. Axioms for groups, rings, and fields, and an investigation into general abstract systems that satisfy certain arithmetic axioms. Properties of mappings that preserve algebraic structure.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 222.

263a. Introduction to Analysis. Every year. Spring 2004. MR. PIETRAHO.

Emphasizes proof and develops the rudiments of mathematical analysis. Topics include an introduction to the theory of sets and topology of metric spaces, sequences and series, continuity, differentiability, and the theory of Riemann integration. Additional topics may be chosen as time permits.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181.

264a. Applied Mathematics: Partial Differential Equations. Every other spring. Spring 2004. MR. LEVY.

A study of some of the partial differential equations that model a variety of systems in the natural and social sciences. Classical methods for solving partial differential equations, with an emphasis where appropriate on modern, qualitative techniques for studying the behavior of solutions. Applications to the analysis of a broad set of topics, including air quality, traffic flow, and imaging. Computer software is used as an important tool, but no prior programming background is assumed.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 224 or permission of the instructor.

265a. Statistics. Every spring. MRS. ROBERTS.

An introduction to the fundamentals of mathematical statistics. General topics include likelihood methods, point and interval estimation, and tests of significance. Applications include inference about binomial, Poisson, and exponential models, frequency data, and analysis of normal measurements.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 225.

288a. Combinatorics and Graph Theory. Every other spring. Spring 2005. MR. FISK.

An introduction to combinatorics and graph theory. Topics to be covered may include enumeration, matching theory, generating functions, partially ordered sets, Latin squares, designs, and graph algorithms.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 200, 262 or 263, or permission of the instructor.

289a. Theory of Computation. Every spring. MR. CHOWN.

What is computation? This course studies this question, and examines the principles that determine what computational capabilities are required to solve particular classes of problems. Topics include an introduction to the connections between language theory and models of computation, and a study of unsolvable problems. (Same as Computer Science 289.)

Prerequisite: Computer Science 189 or Mathematics 200 or permission of the instructor.

302a. Advanced Topics in Algebra. Every other spring. Spring 2004. MR. JOHNSON.

One or more specialized topics from abstract algebra and its applications. Topics may include group representation theory, coding theory, symmetries, ring theory, finite fields and field theory, algebraic numbers, and Diophantine equations.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 262.

303a. Advanced Topics in Analysis. Every other spring. Spring 2005. MR. BARKER.

One or more selected topics from analysis. Possible topics include geometric measure theory, Lebesgue general measure and integration theory, Fourier analysis, Hilbert and Banach space theory, and spectral theory.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 263.

304a. Advanced Topics in Applied Mathematics. Every other spring. Spring 2005. MR. LEVY.

One or more selected topics in applied mathematics. Material selected from the following: Fourier series, partial differential equations, integral equations, optimal control, bifurcation theory, asymptotic analysis, applied functional analysis, and topics in mathematical physics.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 224 or 264.

305a. Advanced Topics in Probability and Statistics. Every other fall. Fall 2004. MRS. ROBERTS.

One or more specialized topics in probability and statistics. Possible topics include regression analysis, nonparametric statistics, logistic regression, and other linear and nonlinear approaches to modeling data. Emphasis is on the mathematical derivation of the statistical procedures and on the application of the statistical theory to real-life problems.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 265 or permission of the instructor.

307a. Advanced Topics in Geometry. Every other spring. Spring 2004. MR. BARKER.

A survey of analytic geometry, affine geometric, projective geometry, and the non-Euclidean geometries. Culminates in a rigorous development of the geometry of four-dimensional space-time in special relativity. The unifying theme is the transformational viewpoint of Klein's Erlangen Program.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 247.

291a–294a. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.401a–404a. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Requirements for the Major in Music

The music major at Bowdoin is designed to give students a thorough grounding in the materials and practices of the Western classical repertory, as well as introduce them to a variety of vernacular and global traditions. The following requirements represent the normal course of a major. However, with the permission of the department, students can design their own majors, emphasizing particular topics or skills, such as American music, early music, performance, composition, or another subject of interest.

The major consists of twelve credits (ten academic courses and two performance credits): 101 (or exemption), 203, 204, 303, 304, two from among 351, 352, 361, 385, 401, plus any three other courses except first-year seminars. One consecutive year of private lessons on a single instrument and one year of participation in a single ensemble are also required. Independent studies can be substituted for some of the normal requirements with the permission of the department. The second semester of a two-semester honors will normally add a course to the total load.

Students interested in majoring in music should take the initial courses (101, 203, 204) as early in their college careers as possible, and also consult the Music Department about their direction at their earliest convenience. Students should also know that more details about majoring in music are described in the brochure "Majoring in Music at Bowdoin," available in the department office.

Requirements for the Minor in Music

The minor in music consists of six credits (five academic courses and one consecutive year of private lessons or one year of participation in a single ensemble). The five academic courses include two from among 101, 203, 204; one more course at the 200- or 300-level; and any two other courses.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

101c. Theory I: Fundamentals of Music Theory. Every year. Fall 2003. MR. GREENLEE.

A course in the basic elements of Western music and their notation, through the essentials of diatonic harmony. The class concentrates equally on written theory and musicianship skills to develop musical literacy. Frequent written assignments, drills, and quizzes, and additional laboratory work in ear training and basic keyboard skills. Students with musical backgrounds who wish to pass out of Theory I must take the placement test at the beginning of the fall semester.

[111c,d. Rhythm!]

Music 120 through 149 cover specific aspects of music history and literature, designed for students with little or no background in music. Course titles and contents may change every semester.

121c. History of Jazz I. Every other year. Fall 2004. MR. McCALLA.

A survey of jazz's development from its African-American roots in the late nineteenth century through the Swing Era of the 1930s and 1940s, and following the great Swing artists—e.g., Louis Armstrong, Duke Ellington, and Benny Goodman—through their later careers. Emphasis on musical elements, but much attention to cultural and historical context through readings and videos. (Same as Africana Studies 121.)

122c. History of Jazz II. Every other year. Fall 2003. MR. McCALLA.

A survey of jazz's development from the creation of bebop in the 1940s through the present day, e.g., from Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie through such artists as Joshua Redman, Myra Melford, and the Art Ensemble of Chicago. Emphasis on musical elements, but much attention to cultural and historical context through readings and videos. (Same as Africana Studies 122.)

124c,d. Music of South and Central America. Fall 2004. Ms. BOSSE.

A survey of various musical traditions of South and Central America, with attention paid to the relationship between sociohistorical context and artistic practice. Organized by geographic region, and addresses such larger issues as colonialism, nationalism, race, gender, and class.

130c. History of Rock Music. Spring 2005. MR. SHENDE.

A study of rock music, from its blues and country beginnings to modern day heavy metal, pop, techno, and rap. Aesthetic, social, cultural, and political issues relating to rock music are explored through readings, audio recordings, and videos.

132c. The Beethoven Symphonies. Spring 2004. MR. McCALLA.

A chronological study of the nine symphonies as examples of Beethoven's compositional styles, of the classical style in general, and as a musical expression of the Enlightenment world view. Emphasis is placed on the formal structure of the works, the progressive development of Beethoven's musical thinking, and the changing musical world around him.

134c. The Piano and its Music. Fall 2003. MR. SCHWARTZ.

A survey of music for keyboard instruments, from the eighteenth-century harpsichord of J. S. Bach to the twentieth-century "extended" instruments of Cage, Nancarrow and Moog. Main focus is on the piano: its physical changes over the centuries, its legendary performers, and works which have contributed most significantly to its literature, by such composers as Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Liszt, Chopin, Ives, Cowell and Bartok. Includes attendance at concerts, both live and on video.

[136c. Opera.]

138c,d. Music of the Caribbean. Fall 2003. Ms. BOSSE.

Surveys various musical traditions of the Caribbean, paying attention to the relation between sociohistorical context and artistic practice. Organized by geographic region, but addresses such larger issues as colonialism, nationalism, race, gender, and class. (Same as Africana Studies 138.)

[143c. The Symphony: Beethoven and Beyond.]

146c,d. Music of East and Southeast Asia. Spring 2004. MR. SHENDE.

A survey of the musical traditions of East and Southeast Asia, with a concentration on selected solo, ensemble, and theatrical genres of China, Japan, and Indonesia. Explores socio-historic influences, as well as the musical construction processes found in these traditions. (Same as Asian Studies 146.)

Prerequisite: Ability to read music.

203c. Tonal Analysis. Every year. Fall 2003. MR. MCCALLA.

Through a survey of music from Bach to Beethoven, the student learns to recognize the basic processes and forms of tonal music, to read a score fluently, and to identify chords and modulations. Knowledge of scales and key signatures, as well as ability to read bass clef, are required.

204c. Theory II. Every year. Spring 2004. MR. SHENDE.

A hands-on introduction to the processes of tonal music. Figured-bass exercises, fake-book harmonizations, and transcriptions of short pieces make up the bulk of the work. A forty-five-minute laboratory session is scheduled in addition to the regular class meetings.

Prerequisite: Music 101 or 203.

218c. Introduction to Electronic Music. Fall 2004. MR. SHENDE.

Examination of the history and techniques of electronic and computer music. Topics include compositional aesthetics, recording technology, digital and analog synthesis, sampling, MIDI (Musical Instrument Digital Interface), and computer-assisted composition. Ends with a concert of student compositions.

Prerequisite: Music 203 or 204.

[225c,d. Music and Identity.]230c. Jazz on Film. Spring 2004. MR. MCCALLA.

Studies the depictions of jazz musicians on film, including concert performances, documentaries, film biographies, narrative shorts and full-length fictional narratives. Coursework includes both viewings and readings about the various films' topics and the issues they raise. (Same as Africana Studies 230.)

Prerequisite: Music 121 or 122.

243c. Introduction to Composition. Fall 2003. MR. SHENDE.

An introduction to the art of combining the elements of melody, harmony, rhythm, form, and orchestration to create cohesive and engaging music. Students learn techniques for generating and developing musical ideas through exercises and four main compositional assignments: a work for solo instrument, a theme and variations for solo instrument and piano, a song for voice and piano, and a multi-movement work for three to five instruments. Students also learn ways to discuss and critique their own and one another's work. Ends with a concert of student compositions.

Prerequisite: Music 101, or permission of the instructor.

303c. Musical Practices of the Romantic Period. Every year. Fall 2003. MR. SHENDE.

Intensive analytical study of selected nineteenth-century works—via scores, recordings, and live performances—to provide social and historical context for Romanticism, and to serve as source material for detailed examination of chromatic harmony, the erosion of functional tonality, the development of cyclic—"organic" formal processes, expansion of the sonata cycle, and the influence of nationalism upon materials, forms, and expressive content. Source materials include songs, piano pieces, chamber music, symphonies, concertos, opera, and choral works, by such composers as Beethoven, Weber, Berlioz, Schubert, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Liszt, Franck, Bizet, Brahms, Dvorak, Tchaikovsky, Wagner, Verdi, Puccini, and Mahler.

Prerequisite: Music 204 or permission of the instructor.

304c. Musical Practices of the Twentieth Century. Every year. Spring 2004. MR. GREENLEE.

Intensive analytical study of selected twentieth-century works—via scores, recordings, and live performances—to provide social and historical context for contemporary developments, and to serve as source material for a detailed examination of serialism, polytonality, and other structural alternatives to functional tonality, new rhythmic and pitch resources, heightened focus upon “texture,” the use of collage and quotation, and influences originating outside the Western art music tradition. Source materials feature such composers as Debussy, Bartók, Stravinsky, Schoenberg, Berg, Webern, Ives, Cowell, Hindemith, Shostakovich, Britten, Barber, Cage, Babbitt, Boulez, Stockhausen, Foss, Gubaidulina, Bolcom, Crumb, Ferneyhough, and Oliveros.

Prerequisite: Music 204 or permission of the instructor.

[351c. Topics in Music History.]352c,d. Topics in Ethnomusicology: Music, Culture, and Competition. Spring 2004. Ms. BOSSE.

Competition plays a fundamental role in musical practices within certain cultures. In North America, for example, auditions, marching band festivals, state, institution, and corporate-sponsored competitions, top-ten countdowns, and recently popularized televised talent contests such as American Idol testify to the “natural” relationship between competition and music making. But what is the nature of this relationship? How do musical competitions reflect, generate, challenge, and affirm established social relationships, aesthetic values, and artistic practices? Draws on case studies from North America, South America, and Africa, as well as original ethnographic research, to answer these and related questions.

Prerequisite: Music 204 and two additional music courses, or permission of the instructor.

[361c. Topics in Music Theory.]291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.401c–404c. Advanced Independent Study and Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

PERFORMANCE STUDIES

Up to six credits of individual performance and ensemble courses together may be taken for graduation credit. Lessons, ensembles, and chamber ensembles may also be taken as non-credit courses.

285c–289c. Individual Performance Studies. Every year.

The following provisions govern applied music lessons for credit:

1. Individual performance courses are intended for the continued study of instruments with which the student is already familiar. Students must take at least two consecutive semesters of study on the same instrument to receive one-half credit per semester and to receive the reduced rate. The first semester of study on the first instrument will be designated Music 285. The second and all subsequent semesters of private lessons on the same instrument will be designated Music 286. The first semester of study on a different instrument will be designated Music 287. The second and all subsequent semesters of study on that second instrument will be designated Music 288. The number Music 289 is reserved for all semesters of study on a third instrument.

2. One-half credit, graded CR/F, is granted for each semester of study. To receive credit, students must register for lessons at the beginning of each semester of study in the Office of Student Records and the Music Department.

3. Admission is by audition only. Only students who are intermediate or beyond in the development of their skills are admitted.

4. Beginning with the second semester of lessons, students must perform in public at least one of the pieces they are studying. Repertory classes, certain lunchbreak concerts, and certain Music in the Library concerts all count as public performances. Such performances must be registered with the department coordinator to count for credit.

5. To receive credit for Individual Performance Studies, the student must complete two other music credits within the first two and one-half years of study, or by graduation, whichever comes first. One of these credits must be started by the second semester of study. One of these credits must be an academic course in the Music Department; the other credit may be gained by two semesters' participation in an ensemble (Chorus, Chamber Choir, Band, or Chamber Ensembles). The two semesters may be in different ensembles.

6. Students taking lessons for credit pay a fee of $430 for twelve one-hour lessons per semester. Junior and senior music majors and minors may take two half-credits free of charge.

7. Student Recitals. Subject to permission of the instructor, availability of suitable times, and contingent upon a successful audition in the Music Department, any student may give a recital. However, due to limited funds for paid accompanists, anyone needing an accompanist for a recital during the year must sign up in the Music Office before Thanksgiving break. The student will be notified of the amount the department can allocate for an accompanist by the end of the fall semester. Any extra work with an accompanist will have to be paid by the student.

385c–387c. Advanced Individual Performance Studies. Every year.

Prerequisite: Music 286.

1. This option for private study is open only to students already advanced on their instruments. Students may take one or more semesters of this option. Music 386 may be repeated for credit. The first semester of study will be designated Music 385. The second and all subsequent semesters of private lessons on the same instrument will be designated Music 386. The number 387 is reserved for all semesters of study on a second instrument.

2. A full credit is granted for each semester of study. To receive credit, students must register at the beginning of each semester of lessons in the Office of Student Records and the Music Department.

3. Admission is by departmental audition only. Students must audition with a member of the Music Department before signing up for this option. Subsequent semesters of advanced lessons on the same instrument do not require further auditions.

4. To receive credit for lessons, the student must perform a thirty- to forty-five-minute recital at the end of the semester. The student is expected to write program notes for this recital and other written work acceptable to the faculty advisor.

5. To receive credit, the student must have an advisor from the music department faculty, and be able to demonstrate to that faculty member that he or she understands the structure and/ or context of the music. The letter grade will be determined jointly by the applied teacher and the faculty member after the recital.

6. To receive credit for advanced Individual Performance Studies, the student must complete two other music credits within the first two and one-half years of study, or by graduation, whichever comes first. One of these credits must be started by the second semester of study. One of these credits must be an academic course in the Music Department; the other credit may be gained by two semesters' participation in an ensemble (Chorus, Chamber Choir, Band, or Chamber Ensembles). The two semesters may be in different ensembles.

7. Fees as with half-credit lessons.

Students may count only six performance credits towards graduation, whether they take half-credit lessons, full-credit lessons, or ensemble courses.

Instructors for 2003–2004 include Julia Adams (viola), Christina Astrachan (voice), Charles Bechler (jazz piano), John Boden (French horn), Naydene Bowder (piano and harpsichord), Ray Cornils (organ), Betsey de Groff (voice), Gerhard Graml (bass), Anita Jerosch (low brass), Timothy Johnson (voice), John Johnstone (classical and jazz guitar), Alan Kaschub (trumpet), Charles Kaufmann (bassoon), Stephen Kecskemethy (violin), Shirley Mathews (piano and harpsichord), Frank Mauceri (jazz saxophone), Joyce Moulton (piano), Gilbert Peltola (saxophone and clarinet), Paul Ross (cello), and Krysia Tripp (flute).

Ensemble Performance Studies. Every year.

The following provisions govern ensemble:

1. Students are admitted to an ensemble only with the consent of the instructor.
2. One-half credit is granted for each semester of study. To receive credit, the student must sign up in the office of Student Records.
3. Grade is Credit/Fail.
4. Ensembles meet regularly for a minimum of three hours weekly, inclusive of time without the ensemble director; ensemble directors establish appropriate attendance policies.
5. All ensembles require public performance.

271c–272c. Chamber Choir. MR. GREENLEE.

273c–274c. Chorus. MR. ANTOLINI.

275c–276c. Concert Band. MR. MORNEAU.

279c–280c. Chamber Ensembles and Jazz Combos. THE DEPARTMENT.

281c–282c. World Music Ensemble. MS. BOSSE.

Requirements for the Major in Neuroscience

The major consists of twelve courses, including ten core courses and two electives from the lists below. Advanced placement credits may not be used to fulfill any of the course requirements for the major. Independent study in neuroscience may be used to fulfill one of the two elective credits. If students place out of Biology 104 or Psychology 101, twelve courses related to Neuroscience must still be completed.

I. Core Courses

Introductory Level and General Courses

Biology 104a, Introductory Biology.

Psychology 101b, Introduction to Psychology.

Biology 105a, Investigations in Biology, or Psychology 251b, Research Design.

Psychology 252b, Data Analysis.

Chemistry 225a, Organic Chemistry.

Introductory Neuroscience Course

Biology 213a, Introduction to Neuroscience, or Psychology 218a, Physiological Psychology.

Mid-level Neuroscience Courses

Three of the following:

Biology 253a, Comparative Neurobiology.

Biology 266a, Molecular Neurobiology.

Psychology 275a, Techniques in Behavioral Neuroscience.

Psychology 276a, Laboratory in Neurobiology of Learning and Memory.

Advanced Neuroscience Course

One of the following:

Psychology 315a, Hormones and Behavior.

Psychology 316a, Comparative Neuroanatomy.

Psychology 318a, Comparative Animal Cognition.

Psychology 319a, Memory and Brain.

Biology 325a, Topics in Neuroscience.

Biology 326a, Developmental Neurobiology.

II. Electives: any two of the courses listed above (but not already taken) or the following courses:

Biology 212a, Genetics and Molecular Biology.
Biology 214a, Comparative Physiology.
Biology 224a, Cell Biology.
Biology 231a, Biochemistry I. (Previously known as Biology 261.)
Biology 232a, Biochemistry II. (Previously known as Biology 262.)
Biology 333a, Advanced Cell Biology.
Computer Science 103a, Introduction to Scientific Computing.
Computer Science 355a, Cognitive Architecture.
Psychology 210b, Infant and Child Development.
Psychology 216b, Cognition.
Psychology 217a, Neuropsychology.
Psychology 259/260b, Abnormal Personality.
Psychology 270b, Lab in Cognition.

III. Recommended Courses:

Physics 104a, Introductory Physics II.

Independent Study in Neuroscience

Neuroscience 291a–294a, Intermediate Independent Study.
Neuroscience 401a–404a, Advanced Independent Study.

Requirements for the Major in Philosophy

The major consists of eight courses, which must include Philosophy 111, 112, and 223; at least one other course from the group numbered in the 200s; and two from the group numbered in the 300s. The remaining two courses may be from any level. Courses in which D grades are received are not counted toward the major.

Requirements for the Minor in Philosophy

The minor consists of four courses, which must include Philosophy 111 and 112 and one course from the group numbered in the 200s. The fourth course may be from any level. Courses in which D grades are received are not counted toward the minor.

First-Year Seminars

Topics in first-year seminars change from time to time but are restricted in scope and make no pretense to being an introduction to the whole field of philosophy. They are topics in which contemporary debate is lively and as yet unsettled and to which contributions are often being made by more than one field of learning. For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

11c. Free Will. Fall 2003. MR. CORISH.

[14c. Philosophy and Poetry.]

25c. Science and Society. Fall 2003. MR. MAGNUS.

Introductory Courses

Introductory courses are open to all students regardless of year and count towards the major. They do not presuppose any background in philosophy and are good first courses.

111c. Ancient Philosophy. Fall 2003. Fall 2004. MR. CORISH.

The sources and prototypes of Western thought. Emphasis on the pre-Socratic philosophers, Plato and Aristotle.

112c. Modern Philosophy. Spring 2004. MR. MAGNUS. Spring 2005. MR. SEHON.

A survey of seventeenth- and eighteenth-century European philosophy, focusing on discussions of the ultimate nature of reality and our knowledge of it. Topics include the nature of the mind and its relation to the body, the existence of God, and the free will problem. Readings from Descartes, Locke, Hume, Kant, and others.

[120c. Moral Problems.]

142c. Philosophy of Religion. Fall 2004. MR. SEHON.

Does God exist? Can the existence of God be proven? Can it be disproven? Is it rational to believe in God? What does it mean to say that God exists (or does not exist)? What distinguishes religious beliefs from non-religious beliefs? What is the relation between religion and science? We approach these and related questions through a variety of historical and contemporary sources, including Aquinas, Hume, Swinburne, and James. (Same as Religion 142.)

[152c. Death.]

Intermediate Courses

200c. History, Freedom, and Reason. Spring 2004. MR. SIMON.

A study of philosophical developments in nineteenth-century German philosophy that have had an important influence on contemporary thought: Kant; the development of idealism through Fichte and Hegel; and reactions by Marx and Nietzsche to Hegel. Focus on issues in political philosophy and philosophy of history.

210c. Philosophy of Mind. Spring 2005. MR. SEHON.

We see ourselves as rational agents: we have beliefs, desires, intentions, wishes, hopes, etc.; we also have the ability to perform actions, and we are responsible for the actions we freely choose. Is our conception of ourselves as rational agents consistent with our scientific conception of human beings as biological organisms? Can there be a science of the mind, and, if so, what is its status relative to other sciences? What is the relationship between mind and body? Can we have free will, or moral responsibility, if determinism is true? Readings primarily from contemporary sources.

211c. Existentialism. Fall 2003. MR. MAGNUS.

A central existentialist idea is that individuals as human beings are caught between the particular stages of their lives and themselves as existing across time—in tension between being what they are and becoming what they will be. Explores this theme through the works of Jean-Paul Sartre, Martin Heidegger, Simone de Beauvoir, and others.

221c. History of Ethics. Fall 2003. MR. SIMON.

How should one live? What is the good? What is my duty? What is the proper method for doing ethics? The fundamental questions of ethics are examined in classic texts including works of Aristotle, Hume, Mill, Kant, and Nietzsche.

223a. Logic. Fall 2003 and Fall 2004. MR. SEHON.

The central problem of logic is to determine which arguments are good and which are bad. To this end, we introduce a symbolic language and rigorous, formal methods for seeing whether one statement logically implies another. We apply these tools to a variety of arguments, philosophical and otherwise. We also demonstrate certain theorems about the formal system we construct.

224c. Philosophy of Space and Time. Spring 2004. MR. CORISH.

Focuses on the problems of time, but also addresses some questions covering space, and some concerning the general structure of which time and space might be considered interpretations. Considers some ancient views (Plato and Aristotle), some early modern views (Newton and Leibniz), and some contemporary disputed questions (e.g., is time to be thought of in such terms as “earlier”/“later” or rather “past”/“present”/“future”?).

[225c. The Nature of Scientific Thought.][226c. Epistemology.]*227c. Metaphysics. Spring 2005. MR. STUART.

Metaphysics deals with questions about the ultimate nature of reality. Students select two or three topics from the following: properties and substances, personal identity, time and time-travel, four-dimensionalism, the free will problem, possible worlds, and causation.

230c. Pragmatism. Spring 2004. MR. MAGNUS.

Modern philosophy addressed questions of epistemology—questions of what and how we can know. “Knowledge” meant theoretical knowledge rather than practical knowledge, so epistemology had no obvious connection to practice. The great movements of nineteenth-century philosophy in the United States—transcendentalism and pragmatism—can be seen as challenges to this neat division between the theoretical and the practical. Belief involves a commitment to act in a certain way and so too, philosophers argued, does knowledge. Follows these movements through the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

237c. Language and Reality. Spring 2004. MR. SEHON.

Philosophy of language is a point of intersection for a great many traditional philosophical concerns, including the nature and status of morality, the nature of mind, the existence of God, and the objectivity of science. Answers to these problems ultimately depend in part upon the nature of language, theories, evidence, and meaning. Analyzes and evaluates what the best philosophers of the twentieth century have said about these questions.

258c. Environmental Ethics. Spring 2004. MR. SIMON.

The central issue in environmental ethics concerns what things in nature have moral standing and how conflicts of interest among them are to be resolved. After an introduction to ethical theory, topics to be covered include anthropocentrism, the moral status of nonhuman sentient beings and of nonsentient living beings, preservation of endangered species and the wilderness, holism versus individualism, the land ethic, and deep ecology. (Same as Environmental Studies 258.)

270c,d. Introduction to Chinese Philosophy. Fall 2004. MR. KLINE.

Examines the development of early Chinese philosophy as an extended conversation among various thinkers trying to provide solutions to a common set of problems—how to characterize human nature, moral psychology, and moral development. Beginning with Confucius, follows the chronological development of these theories as each new philosopher criticizes and adopts elements of his predecessors' theories. Philosophers to be discussed include: Kongzi (Confucius), Mozi, Yang Zhu, Mengzi (Mencius), Zhuangzi, Xunzi, and Han Feizi. (Same as Asian Studies 270.)

Advanced Courses

Although courses numbered in the 300s are advanced seminars primarily intended for majors in philosophy, adequately prepared students from other fields are also welcome. Besides stated prerequisites, at least one of the courses from the group numbered in the 200s will also be found a helpful preparation.

331c. Plato. Spring 2004. MR. CORISH.

A study of some of the principal dialogues of Plato, drawn chiefly from his middle and later periods. The instructor selects the dialogues that are read, but topics to be studied depend on the particular interests of the students.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 111 or permission of the instructor.

[335c. The Philosophy of Aristotle.][338c. Kant.]*340c. Contemporary Ethical Theory. Fall 2004. MR. SIMON.

Examines debates in recent ethical theory and normative ethics. Possible topics include realism and moral skepticism, explanation and justification in ethics, consequentialism and its critics, relativism, whether morality is overly demanding, the sources of normativity, and the relation of ethics to science.

Prerequisite: Philosophy 120, 221, or 258, or permission of the instructor.

345c. Science and God. Fall 2003. MR. SEHON.

Does contemporary scientific cosmology show that God exists? Is there scientific evidence that the universe had an intelligent designer? Many contemporary philosophers of religion answer “yes” to both of these questions. Examines their arguments in detail and, in preparation for this task, also examines the relevant scientific theories and explores some basic philosophical issues about the nature of science.

Prerequisite: One previous course in philosophy or permission of the instructor.

[392c. Advanced Topics in Environmental Philosophy.]291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.399c. Advanced Seminar: Topics in Contemporary Philosophy. Spring 2004. MR. SEHON.

An in-depth examination of a topic of current philosophical interest. Students read recent books or journal articles, and invite the authors of those works to discuss them with the group. Typically, this involves visits by three guest philosophers per semester. Limited to philosophy majors; others with permission of the instructor.

The major program depends to some extent on the student's goals, which should be discussed with the department. Those who intend to do graduate work in physics or an allied field should plan to do an honors project. For those considering a program in engineering, consult page XX. A major student with an interest in an interdisciplinary area such as geophysics, biophysics, or oceanography will choose appropriate courses in related departments. Secondary school teaching requires a broad base in science courses, as well as the necessary courses for teacher certification. For a career in industrial management, some courses in economics and government should be included.

Requirements for the Major in Physics

A student majoring in physics is expected to complete Mathematics 161, 171, Physics 103, 104, 223, 229, and four more approved courses above 104, one of which may be Mathematics 181 or above. At least five physics courses taken at Bowdoin are required.

For honors work, a student is expected to complete Mathematics 181 and Physics 103, 104, 223, 229, 300, 310, 451, and four more courses, one of which may be in mathematics, above Mathematics 181. Students interested in interdisciplinary work may, with permission, substitute courses from other departments. Geology 265 is an approved physics course.

Requirements for the Minor in Physics

The minor consists of at least four Bowdoin courses numbered 103 or higher, at least one of which is Physics 104, 223, or 229.

Interdisciplinary Majors

The department participates in interdisciplinary programs in chemical physics, and geology and physics. See pages 178 and 180.

First-Year Seminars

For a complete description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

13a. Uncertainty, Quanta, and Relativity. Fall 2003. Ms. NORMANDEAU.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

62a. Contemporary Astronomy. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

A mix of qualitative and quantitative discussion of the nature of stars and galaxies, stellar evolution, the origin of the solar system and its properties, and the principal cosmological theories. Students who have taken or are concurrently taking any physics course numbered over 100 will not receive credit for this course.

63a. Physics of the Twentieth Century. Every fall. Fall 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Explores the growth of twentieth-century physics, including theoretical developments like relativity, quantum mechanics, and symmetry-based thinking, and the rise of new subdisciplines such as atomic physics, condensed-matter physics, nuclear physics, and particle physics. Some attention is given to the societal context of physics, the institutions of the discipline, and the relations between “pure” and “applied” physics. Students who have taken or are concurrently taking any physics course numbered over 100 will not receive credit for this course. Familiarity with algebra and trigonometry is required.

80a. Light and Color. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to the physics of light and color. Explores the dual nature of light as wave and particle, the different physical and chemical causes of color in nature, and how light and color are perceived by the eye and brain. Topics include rainbows, mirages, the color of the sky, and other natural phenomena, as well as technological applications such as cameras, telescopes, color television monitors. These and other examples are used to illustrate the optical phenomena of reflection, refraction, interference, diffraction, polarization, scattering, and fluorescence. Students who have taken or are concurrently taking any physics course numbered over 100 will not receive credit for this course.

81a. Physics of the Environment. Spring 2005. MR. BATTLE.

An introduction to the physics of environmental issues, including past climates, anthropogenic climate change, ozone destruction, and energy production and efficiency. (Same as Environmental Studies 81.)

103a. Introductory Physics I. Every semester. Fall 2003. MR. SYPHERS AND MR. BAUMGARTE. Spring 2004. MR. BAUMGARTE.

An introduction to the conservation laws, forces, and interactions that govern the dynamics of particles and systems. The course shows how a small set of fundamental principles and interactions allow us to model a wide variety of physical situations, using both classical and modern concepts. A prime goal of the course is to have the participants learn to actively connect the concepts with the modeling process. Three hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Previous credit or concurrent registration in Mathematics 161 or higher. The fall semester is intended for first- and second-year students. Juniors and seniors are strongly encouraged to take this course in the spring.

104a. Introductory Physics II. Every semester. Fall 2003. MR. NACULICH. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to the interactions of matter and radiation. Topics include: the classical and quantum physics of electromagnetic radiation and its interaction with matter, quantum properties of atoms, and atomic and nuclear spectra. Three hours of laboratory work per week will include an introduction to the use of electronic instrumentation.

Prerequisite: A grade of at least C in Physics 103 and previous credit or concurrent registration in Mathematics 171 or higher, or permission of the instructor.

162a. Stars and Galaxies. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. BAUMGARTE.

A quantitative introduction to astronomy, with emphasis on stars, stellar dynamics and the structures they form, from binary stars to galaxies. Topics include stellar evolution, white dwarfs, neutron stars, black holes, quasars, and the expansion of the universe. Intended for both science majors and non-majors who are secure in their mathematical skills. A working familiarity with algebra, trigonometry, geometry and calculus is expected. This course does not satisfy pre-med or other science departments' requirements for a second course in physics.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 161 or higher.

223a. Electric Fields and Circuits. Fall 2003. MR. SYPHERS.

The basic phenomena of the electromagnetic interaction are introduced. The basic relations are then specialized for a more detailed study of linear circuit theory. Laboratory work stresses the fundamentals of electronic instrumentation and measurement with basic circuit components such as resistors, capacitors, inductors, diodes, and transistors. Three hours of laboratory work per week.

Prerequisite: Physics 104 and Mathematics 171 or higher, or permission of the instructor.

229a. Statistical Physics. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

The course develops a framework capable of predicting the properties of systems with many particles. This framework, combined with simple atomic and molecular models, leads to an understanding of such concepts as entropy, temperature, and chemical potential. Some probability theory is developed as a mathematical tool.

Prerequisite: Physics 104 and Mathematics 171 or higher, or permission of the instructor.

240a. Modern Electronics. Spring 2005. MR. SYPHERS.

A brief introduction to the physics of semiconductors and semiconductor devices, culminating in an understanding of the structure of integrated circuits. Topics will include a description of currently available integrated circuits for analog and digital applications and their use in modern electronic instrumentation. Weekly laboratory exercises with integrated circuits.

Prerequisite: A grade of at least C in Physics 103, or permission of the instructor.

250a. Acoustics. Fall 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to the motion and propagation of sound waves. Covers selected topics related to normal modes of sound waves in enclosed spaces, noise, acoustical measurements, the ear and hearing, phase relationships between sound waves, and many others, to give the student a technical understanding of our aural experiences.

Prerequisite: A grade of at least C in Physics 103, or permission of the instructor.

251a. Physics of Solids. Usually every other spring. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to the study of the thermal, mechanical, electrical, and magnetic properties of solids. Merges a qualitative and quantitative understanding of the behavior of solids and their applications in modern technology. Applications include solid state lasers, semiconductor circuitry, and superconducting magnets.

Prerequisite: Physics 104.

[255a. Physical Oceanography.][256a. Atmospheric Physics.]*262a. Astrophysics. Fall 2003. MR. BAUMGARTE.

A quantitative discussion that introduces the principal topics of astrophysics, including stellar structure and evolution, planetary physics, and cosmology.

Prerequisite: Physics 104, or permission of the instructor.

275a. Relativity. Every other year. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to special and general relativity, including the Galilean and Einsteinian principles of relativity, Lorentz transformations and the "paradoxes" of special relativity, space-time diagrams and four-vectors, energy-momentum and relativistic dynamics, and the Schwarzschild solution of general relativity and its many applications.

Prerequisite: Physics 104.

280a. Nuclear and Particle Physics. Every other spring. Spring 2005. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to the physics of subatomic systems, with a particular emphasis on the standard model of elementary particles and their interactions. Basic concepts in quantum mechanics and special relativity are introduced as needed.

Prerequisite: Physics 104.

291a–294a. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Topics to be arranged by the student and the staff. If the investigations concern the teaching of physics, this course may satisfy certain of the requirements for the Maine State Teacher's Certificate. Students doing independent study normally have completed a 200-level physics course.

300a. Methods of Theoretical Physics. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. NACULICH.

Mathematics is the language of physics. Similar mathematical techniques occur in different areas of physics. A physical situation may first be expressed in mathematical terms, usually in the form of a differential or integral equation. After the formal mathematical solution is obtained, the physical conditions determine the physically viable result. Examples are drawn from heat flow, gravitational fields, and electrostatic fields.

Prerequisite: Mathematics 181 or 223, and Physics 104, or permission of the instructor.

301a. Methods of Experimental Physics. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. SYPHERS.

Intended to provide advanced students with experience in the design, execution, and analysis of laboratory experiments. Projects in optical holography, nuclear physics, cryogenics, and materials physics are developed by the students.

Prerequisite: Physics 223 or permission of the instructor.

302a. Methods of Computational Physics. Every other fall. Fall 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

An introduction to the use of computers to solve problems in physics. Problems are drawn from several different branches of physics, including mechanics, hydrodynamics, electromagnetism, and astrophysics. Numerical methods discussed include the solving of linear algebra and eigenvalue problems, ordinary and partial differential equations, and Monte Carlo techniques.

Prerequisite: Physics 104 and Computer Science 103 or 107, or permission of the instructor.

310a. Introductory Quantum Mechanics. Every fall. Fall 2003. MR. MOCHEL.

An introduction to quantum theory, solutions of Schroedinger equations, and their applications to atomic systems.

Prerequisite: Physics 300.

320a. Electromagnetic Theory. Every other fall. Fall 2003. MS. MSALL.

First the Maxwell relations are presented as a natural extension of basic experimental laws; then emphasis is given to the radiation and transmission of electromagnetic waves.

Prerequisite: Physics 223 and 300, or permission of the instructor.

370a. Advanced Mechanics. Every other fall. Fall 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

A thorough review of particle dynamics, followed by the development of Lagrange's and Hamilton's equations and their applications to rigid body motion and the oscillations of coupled systems.

Prerequisite: Physics 300 or permission of the instructor.

401a–404a. Advanced Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Topics to be arranged by the student and the staff. Students doing advanced independent study normally have completed a 300-level physics course.

451a–452a. Honors. THE DEPARTMENT.

Programs of study are available in semiconductor physics, microfabrication, superconductivity and superfluidity, the physics of metals, general relativity, nuclear physics, and particle physics. Work done in these topics normally serves as the basis for an honors paper.

Prerequisite: Physics 310.

Students in the Department of Psychology may elect a major within the psychology program, or they may elect an interdisciplinary major in neuroscience, sponsored jointly by the Departments of Psychology and Biology (see Neuroscience, pages 195–96). The program in psychology examines contemporary perspectives on principles of human behavior, in areas ranging from cognition, language, development, and behavioral neuroscience to interpersonal relations and psychopathology. Its approach emphasizes scientific methods of inquiry and analysis.

Requirements for the Major in Psychology

The psychology major comprises ten courses numbered 100 or above. These courses are selected by students with their advisors and are subject to departmental review. The ten courses include Psychology 101, 251, 252; two laboratory courses numbered 260–279 (completed, if possible, before the senior year); two advanced (300-level) courses; and three electives numbered 200 or above. Note that the requirements of two laboratory courses may not be met by only taking Psychology 275 and 276. Similarly, the requirements of two advanced courses may not be met by only taking Psychology 309 and 310, or only Psychology 320 and 321, or only two of the following four courses: Psychology 315, 316, 318, and 319. Independent study courses at any level count as electives, but do not count toward the required laboratory courses or the two advanced courses. A grade of C- or better must be earned in all courses counted toward the major and for the courses to serve as prerequisites for other psychology courses. Majors are encouraged to consider an independent study course on a library, laboratory, or field research project during the senior year.

Students who are considering a major in psychology are encouraged to enroll in Psychology 101 during their first year at Bowdoin and to enroll in Psychology 251 and Psychology 252 their second year. Psychology majors must take Psychology 251 before 252, and both before they take their laboratory courses. Those who plan to study away from campus for one or both semesters of their junior year should complete at least one laboratory course before leaving for their off-campus experience and should plan to enroll in two 300-level courses after returning to campus. Students should consult with members of the department in planning their off-campus study program and speak to the chair of the department regarding transfer of credit toward the major; laboratory or 300-level courses taken elsewhere are not ordinarily counted toward the major.

Requirements for the Minor in Psychology

The psychology minor comprises six courses numbered 100 or above, including Psychology 101, 251, 252, and one laboratory course. A grade of C- or better must be earned in all courses counted toward the minor and for the courses to serve as prerequisites for other psychology courses.

Students who are interested in teaching as a career should consult with the Department of Education for courses to be included in their undergraduate program. Ordinarily, students of education will find much of relevance in Psychology 210, 216, and 321; these courses cover the topics usually included in educational psychology. In addition, prospective teachers may find Psychology 211, 212, 270, 317, and 320 compatible with their interests and helpful in their preparation for teaching.

Requirements for the Major in Neuroscience

See Neuroscience, pages 195–96.

COURSES IN PSYCHOLOGY

Introductory Courses

101b. Introduction to Psychology. Every fall and every spring. THE DEPARTMENT.

A general introduction to the major concerns of contemporary psychology, including physiological psychology, perception, learning, cognition, language, development, personality, intelligence, and abnormal and social behavior. Recommended for first- and second-year students. Juniors and seniors should enroll in the spring semester.

Intermediate Courses

210b. Infant and Child Development. Every fall. MR. PUTNAM. Every spring. MS. LOVETT.

A survey of major changes in psychological functioning from conception through childhood. Several theoretical perspectives are used to consider how physical, personality, social, and cognitive changes jointly influence the developing child's interactions with the environment.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101.

211b. Personality. Every fall. MS. HELD.

A comparative survey of theoretical and empirical attempts to explain personality and its development. The relationships of psychoanalytic, interpersonal, humanistic, and behavioral approaches to current research are considered.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101.

212b. Social Psychology. Every spring. MR. SCHAFFNER.

A survey of theory and research on individual social behavior. Topics include self-concept, social cognition, affect, attitudes, social influence, interpersonal relationships, and cultural variations in social behavior.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101 or Sociology 101.

216b. Cognitive Psychology. Every spring. MS. SLOWIACZEK.

A survey of theory and research examining how humans perceive, process, store, and use information. Topics include visual perception, attention, memory, language processing, decision making, and cognitive development.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101.

217a. Neuropsychology. Every fall. MR. RAMUS.

An introduction to the brain basis of behavior, concentrating on the contributions from studies of brain damaged and brain dysfunctional patients. Focuses on the contributions of neurology and experimental and clinical neuropsychology to the understanding of normal cognitive processes. Topics include neuroanatomy, amnesia, aphasia, agnosia, and attentional disorders, in particular those implicated in various spatial neglect syndromes.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101.

218a. Physiological Psychology. Every spring. MR. THOMPSON.

An introductory survey of biological influences on behavior. The primary emphasis is on the physiological regulation of behavior in humans and other vertebrate animals, focusing on genetic, developmental, hormonal, and neuronal mechanisms. Additionally, the evolution of these regulatory systems is considered. Topics discussed include perception, cognition, sleep, eating, sexual and aggressive behaviors, and mental disorders.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101 or Biology 104.

251b. Research Design in Psychology. Every fall. MR. SCHAFFNER. Every spring. Ms. SLOWIACZEK.

A systematic study of the scientific method as it underlies psychological research. Topics include prominent methods used in studying human and animal behavior, the logic of causal analysis, experimental and non-experimental designs, issues in internal and external validity, pragmatics of careful research, and technical writing of research reports.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101.

252b. Data Analysis. Every fall. Ms. LOVETT. Every spring. MR. RAMUS.

An introduction to the use of descriptive and inferential statistics and design in behavioral research. Weekly laboratory work in computerized data analysis. Required of majors no later than the junior year, and preferably by the sophomore year.

Prerequisite: Psychology 101, and Psychology 251 or Biology 105.

Courses that Satisfy the Laboratory Requirement (except 259)259b, 260b. Abnormal Personality. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. STAPLES.

A general survey of the nature, etiology, diagnosis, and treatment of common patterns of mental disorders. The course may be taken for one of two purposes:

259b. Non-laboratory course credit. Participation in the practicum is optional, contingent upon openings in the program.

Prerequisite: Psychology 211.

260b. Laboratory course credit. Students participate in a supervised practicum at a local psychiatric unit.

Prerequisite: Psychology 211 and 252 (formerly Psychology 250).

270b. Laboratory in Cognition. Every fall. Ms. SLOWIACZEK.

An analysis of research methodology and experimental investigations in cognition, including such topics as auditory and sensory memory, visual perception, attention and automaticity, retrieval from working memory, implicit and explicit memory, metamemory, concept formation and reasoning. Weekly laboratory sessions allow students to collect and analyze data in a number of different areas of cognitive psychology.

Prerequisite: Psychology 216 and 252 (formerly Psychology 250).

274b. Laboratory in Group Dynamics. Every fall. MR. SCHAFFNER.

Principles and methods of psychological research, as developed in Psychology 251 and 252, are applied to the study of small group interaction. Students design, conduct, and report on social behavior research involving an array of methods to shape and assess interpersonal behavior.

Prerequisite: Psychology 211 or 212, and 252 (formerly Psychology 250).

275a. Techniques in Behavioral Neuroscience. Every spring. MR. THOMPSON.

A laboratory course that exposes students to modern techniques in neuroscience that can be applied to the study of behavior. Underlying concepts associated with various molecular, neuroanatomical, pharmacological, and electrophysiological methods are discussed in a lecture format. Students then use these techniques in laboratory preparations that demonstrate how behavior is organized within the central nervous system of vertebrate animals, including humans.

Prerequisite: Psychology 218 (formerly Psychology 247) or Biology 213, and Psychology 252 (formerly Psychology 250).

276a. Laboratory in Neurobiology of Learning and Memory. Every fall. MR. RAMUS.

Explores current research and theories in the neurobiology of learning and memory by examining the modular organization of the brain with an emphasis on a brain systems-level approach to learning and memory, using both lectures and laboratory work. Memory is not a unitary phenomenon, rather, different parts of the brain are specialized for storing and expressing different kinds of memory. In addition to discussing contemporary research, students use modern neuroscientific methods in the laboratory to demonstrate how different memory systems can be dissociated. Techniques include behavioral, neurosurgical, and histological analysis in vertebrate species.

Prerequisite: Psychology 218 (formerly Psychology 247) or Biology 213, and Psychology 252 (formerly Psychology 250).

277b. Research in Developmental Psychology. Every spring. MR. PUTNAM.

The multiple methods used in developmental research are examined both by reading research reports and by designing and conducting original research studies. The methods include observation, interviews, questionnaires, lab experiments, among others. Students learn to evaluate the relative strengths and weaknesses of both qualitative and quantitative approaches.

Prerequisite: Psychology 210 and 252 (formerly Psychology 250).

Advanced Courses309b. Philosophy, Psychology, and Psychotherapy. Every fall. MS. HELD.

As conventional assumptions about the discipline of psychology are increasingly challenged, many psychologists are returning to psychology's roots in philosophy for guidance. Examines the intersection of philosophy and psychology in general, and clinical psychology in particular. Topics include such ontological issues as the nature of personhood, the self, mental health/psychopathology, agency, free will vs. determinism, and change/transformation. Also examines such epistemological issues as the nature of psychological knowledge/truth, self-knowledge, rationality, justification for knowledge claims, and methods for obtaining justified knowledge claims. Emphasizes current debates about what a proper science or study of (clinical) psychology and psychotherapy should be.

Prerequisite: Psychology 259 or 260; or Philosophy 210, 226, 227, 237, or 399; or permission of the instructor.

[310b. Clinical Psychology.]

315a. Hormones and Behavior. Every other fall. Fall 2004. MR. THOMPSON.

An advanced discussion of concepts in behavioral neuroendocrinology. Topics include descriptions of the major classes of hormones, their roles in the regulation of development and adult behavioral expression, and the cellular and molecular mechanisms responsible for their behavioral effects. Hormonal influences on reproductive, aggressive, and parental behaviors, as well as on cognitive processes are considered.

Prerequisite: Psychology 218 (formerly Psychology 247) or Biology 213, and one psychology course numbered 260–279 or one biology laboratory course above Biology 199.

316a. Comparative Neuroanatomy. Every other fall. Fall 2005. MR. THOMPSON.

An advanced discussion of concepts in vertebrate brain organization. The primary emphasis is upon structure/function relationships within the brain, particularly as they relate to behavior. Topics include basic neuroanatomy, brain development and evolution, and the neural circuitry associated with complex behavioral organization. Studies from a variety of animal models and from human neuropsychological assessments are used to demonstrate general principles of brain evolution and function.

317b. The Psychology of Language. Every other fall. Fall 2003. MS. SŁOWIACZEK.

An examination of psychological factors that affect the processing of language, including a discussion of different modalities (auditory and visual language) and levels of information (sounds, letters, words, sentences, and text/discourse). Emphasis is on the issues addressed by researchers and the theories developed to account for our language abilities.

Prerequisite: Psychology 216 and one psychology course numbered 260–279.

318a. Comparative Animal Cognition. Every other spring. Spring 2005. MR. RAMUS.

A discussion of the behavior of animals (and humans) within a psychological framework, emphasizing the cognitive universals between species. Uses a historical approach to understand the rift in the field of animal behavior between ethologists and psychologists in the 1950s and 1960s, as well as how these areas have come together in recent years. Topics include larger questions like when and why we are willing to attribute animals with purpose, intentionality, intelligence, reasoning, language, and self-awareness within a framework of evolutionary theory.

319a. Memory and Brain. Every other spring. Spring 2004. MR. RAMUS.

Advanced seminar exploring the biological basis of learning and memory from a cellular to a systems-level of analysis, providing insights into the mechanisms and organization of neural plasticity. Includes topics in molecular neuroscience, neurophysiology, neuropharmacology, and systems neuroscience. Discussions include evaluation of current research and theories, as well as a historical perspective.

Prerequisite: Psychology 218 (formerly Psychology 247) or Biology 213, and one psychology course numbered 260–279 or one biology laboratory course above Biology 199.

320b. Social Development. Every fall. MR. PUTNAM.

Research and theory regarding the interacting influences of biology and the environment as they are related to social and emotional development during infancy, childhood, and adolescence. Normative and idiographic development in a number of domains, including morality, aggression, personality, sex roles, peer interaction, and familial relationships are considered.

Prerequisite: Psychology 210 and one psychology course numbered 260–279.

321b. Cognitive Development. Every spring. Ms. LOVETT.

Examines the development of cognitive understanding and cognitive processes from infancy through adolescence. Emphasis on empirical research and related theories of cognitive development. Topics include infant perception and cognition, concept formation, language development, theory of mind, memory, problem solving, and scientific thinking.

Prerequisite: Psychology 210 and one psychology course numbered 260–279.

325b. Organizational Behavior. Every spring. MR. SCHAFFNER.

Examines how people experience work in modern human organizations. Weekly seminar meetings address motivation, performance, commitment, and satisfaction; affect and cognition at work; coordination of activity; anticipation, planning, and decision making; organization-environment dynamics; and the enactment of change.

Prerequisite: One psychology course numbered 260–279.

291b–294b. Intermediate Independent Study.

401b–404b. Advanced Independent Study and Honors.

Religion

Joint Appointment with Asian Studies

Professor John C. Holt, Chair

Assistant Professors

Jorunn J. Buckley

Elizabeth A. Pritchard†

Visiting Assistant Professor

Nicola Denzey

Department Coordinator

Lynn A. Brettler

The Department of Religion offers students opportunities to study the major religions of the world, East and West, ancient and modern, from a variety of academic viewpoints and without sectarian bias.

Each major is assigned a departmental advisor who assists the student in formulating a plan of study in religion and related courses in other departments. The advisor also provides counsel in career planning and graduate study.

Requirements for the Major in Religion

The major consists of at least eight courses in religion. Required courses include Religion 101 (Introduction to the Study of Religion); three courses at the 200 level distributed so as to include Religion 203 (The Bible); Religion 249 (Monotheism in the Making in Western Religious Thought), Religion 250 (Western Religious Thought in the Modern and Postmodern Contexts), or Religion 251 (Christianity, Culture, and Conflict); Religion 220 (Hindu Religious Literature), Religion 222 (Theravada Buddhism), or Religion 223 (Mahayana Buddhism); and Religion 390 (Theories about Religion). In addition, candidates for honors must register for a ninth course, advanced independent study, as part of their honors projects. (See below, "Honors in Religion.")

No more than one first-year seminar may be counted toward the major. Religion 101 should be taken by the end of the sophomore year. In order to enroll in Religion 390, a major normally will be expected to have taken four of the eight required courses. This seminar is also open to qualified nonmajors with permission of the instructor. Normally, no more than three courses taken at other colleges or universities will count toward the major.

Honors in Religion

Students contemplating honors candidacy should possess a record of distinction in departmental courses, including those that support the project, a clearly articulated and well-focused research proposal, and a high measure of motivation and scholarly maturity. Normally, proposals for honors projects shall be submitted for departmental approval along with registration for advanced independent study, and in any case no later than the end of the second week of the semester in which the project is undertaken. It is recommended, however, that honors candidates incorporate work from Religion 390 as part of their honors projects, or complete two semesters of independent study in preparing research papers for honors consideration. In this latter case, proposals are due no later than the second week of the fall semester of the senior year.

Requirements for the Minor in Religion

A minor consists of five courses—Religion 101, three courses at the 200 level or higher (among these three electives, at least one course shall be in Western religions and cultures and one in Asian religions and cultures) and Religion 390.

First-Year Seminars

These introductory courses focus on the study of a specific aspect of religion, and may draw on other fields of learning. They are not intended as prerequisites for more advanced courses in the department unless specifically designated as such. They include readings, discussion, reports, and writing. Topics change from time to time to reflect emerging or debated issues in the study of religion. For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

12c,d. Religion and Literature in Modern South Asia. Fall 2003. MR. HOLT.

(Same as Asian Studies 12.)

18c. Portraits of the Marys: The Virgin Mary and Mary Magdalene in Academic Perspectives. Spring 2004. MS. DENZEY.

(Same as Women's Studies 17.)

Introductory Courses

101c. Introduction to the Study of Religion. Fall 2003. MS. DENZEY. Spring 2004. MR. HOLT.

Basic concepts, methods, and issues in the study of religion, with special reference to examples comparing and contrasting Eastern and Western religions. Lectures, films, discussions, and readings in a variety of texts such as scriptures, novels, and autobiographies, along with modern interpretations of religion in ancient and contemporary, Asian and Western contexts.

106c. Introduction to Judaism and Christianity. Spring 2004. MS. DENZEY.

Introduction to two of the predominant religious traditions in the West. Through a close reading of primary sources, traces the historical development of Judaism and Christianity, paying close attention to themes such as the construction of distinctive worldviews, ethics and identity, ritual and community, sacred space, continuity and conflict. Modern articulations of Judaism and Christianity are included through music, film, and literature.

125c. Entering Modernity: European Jewry. Spring 2005. MS. TANANBAUM.

Explores Jewish life through the lenses of history, religion, and ethnicity, and examines the processes by which governments and sections of the Jewish community attempted to incorporate Jews and Judaism into European society. Through primary and secondary sources, lectures, films, and class discussion, the course surveys social and economic transformations of Jews, cultural challenges of modernity, varieties of modern Jewish religious expression, political ideologies, the Holocaust, establishment of Israel, and American Jewry. (Same as History 125.)

142c. Philosophy of Religion. Fall 2004. MR. SEHON.

Does God exist? Can the existence of God be proven? Can it be disproven? Is it rational to believe in God? What does it mean to say that God exists (or does not exist)? What distinguishes religious beliefs from non-religious beliefs? What is the relation between religion and science? We approach these and related questions through a variety of historical and contemporary sources, including Aquinas, Hume, Swinburne, and James. (Same as Philosophy 142.)

Intermediate Courses

[202c. Hellenistic Religions.]

203c. The Bible. Spring 2004. Ms. BUCKLEY.

Taught from a non-denominational perspective, with a focus on close readings of texts in the Bible. A minimum of historical background is supplied. Current scholarship on the Bible and enduring interpretation problems form natural parts of the course.

[206c,d. Ancient Near Eastern Religions.][207c. Jewish Scriptures.]*208c,d. Islam. Fall 2003. Ms. BUCKLEY.

Furnishes a non-apologetic outline of Islam while tackling anti-Islamic prejudices common in general American culture. Selected themes include the religion's own terminological apparatus and categories of understanding, ritual and ethics, religious and secular leadership, mystical traditions, and modernity issues in Islam. In the interest of balance, there is an emphasis on including works by Muslims, especially regarding central topics in modern Islam.

209c,d. Gender in Islam. Spring 2004. Ms. BUCKLEY.

Explores categories for interpreting, first, female symbolism in Islamic thought and practice and, second, women's religious, legal, and political status in Islam. Attention is given to statements about women in the Qur'an, as well as other traditional and current Islamic texts. Emphasis on analysis of gender in public vs. private spheres, individual vs. society, Islamization vs. modernization/Westernization, and the placement/displacement of women in the traditionally male-dominated Islamic power structures. Religion 208 is helpful, though not a prerequisite for this course. (Same as Women's Studies 209.)

[210c. Early Christian Literature.]220c,d. Hindu Religious Literature. Fall 2004. MR. HOLT.

A reading of various genres of translated Hindu religious literature, including Rig Veda hymns, philosophical Upanisads, Yoga Sutras, the epics Ramayana and Mahabharata, including the Bhagavad Gita, selected myths from the Puranas, and poetry and songs of medieval devotional saints. Focuses on development of various types of religious world views and religious experiences within Hindu traditions, as reflected in classical Sanskrit and vernacular literature of India. (Same as Asian Studies 240.)

221c,d. Hindu Religious Culture. Spring 2005. MR. HOLT.

A consideration of various types of individual and communal religious practice and religious expression in Hindu tradition, including ancient ritual sacrifice, mysticism and yoga (meditation), dharma and karma (ethical and political significance), pilgrimage (as inward spiritual journey and outward ritual behavior), puja (worship of deities through seeing, hearing, chanting), rites of passage (birth, adolescence, marriage, and death), etc. Focuses on the nature of symbolic expression and behavior as these can be understood from indigenous theories of religious practice. Religion 220 is recommended as a previous course. (Same as Asian Studies 241.)

222c,d. Theravada Buddhism. Fall 2003. MR. HOLT.

An examination of the major trajectories of Buddhist religious thought and practice as understood from a reading of primary and secondary texts drawn from the Theravada traditions of India, Sri Lanka, Thailand, and Burma. (Same as Asian Studies 242.)

223c,d. Mahayana Buddhism. Spring 2004. MR. HOLT.

Studies the emergence of Mahayana Buddhist world views as reflected in primary sources of Indian, Chinese, and Japanese origins. Buddhist texts include the Buddhacarita ("Life of the Buddha"), the Sukhavati Vyuha ("Discourse on the 'Pure Land'"), the Vajraccedika Sutra (the "Diamond-Cutter"), the Prajnaparamitra-hrdaya Sutra ("Heart Sutra of the Perfection of Wisdom"), the Saddharmapundarika Sutra (the "Lotus Sutra"), and the Platform Sutra of the Sixth Patriarch, among others. Also briefly studies the teachings of Confucius, Lao Tzu, and Chuang Tzu to better understand the encounter, assimilation, and transformation of Buddhism within Chinese and Japanese religious cultures. (Same as Asian Studies 223.)

245c,d. The Ritual Body: Zen and Postmodernity. Spring 2004. MR. NISHIUCHI.

Investigates the ritual existentiality of sentient beings in the theoretical encounter between medieval Japanese Zen thought and postmodern American philosophy. Focuses on the aesthetics of rite in connection with being, action, and community. (Same as Asian Studies 245.)

246b. Religion and Politics. Fall 2003. MR. FRANCO.

Examines the relationship between religion and politics—the so-called theological-political question—primarily in modern Europe and America. Focuses first on the tension between and eventual separation of church and state in the early modern period. Then considers the implications and complications of this historic separation, looking at recent Supreme Court cases, as well as contemporary discussion of the relationship between religion and politics. Comparisons with the treatment of this issue in the Islamic world are made throughout the course. Authors include Machiavelli, Luther, Calvin, Spinoza, Locke, Jefferson, Madison, and Toqueville, as well as a variety of contemporary and Islamic writers. (Same as Government 246.)

249c. Monotheism in the Making in Western Religious Thought. Fall 2004. MS. PRITCHARD.

Examines selected texts and authors primarily from Christianity and Judaism, but also from Islam. The focus is on the emergence of and continuing elaborations of transcendent monotheism in the Abrahamic traditions. Of particular interest are the issues of whether it is possible or permissible to obtain knowledge of the divine (and perhaps be able to see or depict the divine); the depiction of the divine in relation to societal arrangements of gender, class, and race; the relationship between transcendent monotheism, cultural identity, and violence, and the ways in which monotheism informs various renderings of morality. Authors include Plato, Augustine, Aquinas, and Maimonides.

250c. Western Religious Thought in the Modern and Postmodern Contexts. Spring 2005. MS. PRITCHARD.

Perhaps nothing characterizes the philosophical and political thought of the modern West so much as the array of critiques and reconstructions of religion. Unpacks the complexities and varieties of critical views of, as well as rehabilitations of, Western religious ideas and practices. Of particular interest are the critiques of religious knowledge claims, subjectivity, and patriarchy. Authors include Hume, Kant, Schleiermacher, Kierkegaard, Feuerbach, Daly, and Taylor.

[251c. Christianity, Culture, and Conflict.]

253c. Women in Religion. Fall 2003. Ms. DENZEY.

Analysis of the ways in which religion authorizes women's oppression and provides opportunities and resources for women's emancipation. Topics include the enforced gender relationships of monotheism; the goddess movement as alternative society; and the conflicts generated among women by racial, class, religious, ethnic, and sexual differences. Materials drawn from Christianity, Neopaganism, Voudon, Judaism, Islam, and Hinduism. (Same as Women's Studies 256.)

Advanced Courses

The following courses study in depth a topic of limited scope but major importance, such as one or two individuals, a movement, type, concept, problem, historical period, or theme. Topics change from time to time. Courses may be repeated for credit with the contents changed. Religion 390 is required for majors, and normally presupposes that four of eight required courses have been taken.

[315c. Choosing My Religion: Consent and Coercion in Religious Thought and Practice.]

[323c,d. Buddhism, Culture, and Society in South and Southeast Asia.]

[340c,d. Asian Religions and the West.]

390c. Theories about Religion. Fall 2003. Ms. BUCKLEY. Fall 2004. Mr. HOLT.

Theory—what religion is—and method—how to study religion—are treated in equal measure, along with religious texts to illustrate how off or on the mark scholars are. Some selected scholars are V. Turner, C. Geertz, Ch. Briggs, and J. Z. Smith (among the “ancestors”). Issues considered include the relation between ritual and myth, utilitarian models of religion vs. transcendental ones, religion as an invented category, and tensions between the collective and the individualistic dimensions in religion.

Prerequisite: Religion 101.

291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

The Department of Romance Languages offers courses in French and Spanish language, literature, and culture. Italian language courses through the intermediate level, as well as courses on Italian literature and culture (in English), are also offered. In addition to focusing on developing students' fluency in the languages, the department provides students with a broad understanding of the cultures and literatures of the French-speaking and Spanish-speaking worlds through a curriculum designed to prepare students either for international work or for graduate study. Native speakers are involved in most language courses. Unless otherwise indicated, all courses are conducted in the respective language.

Study Abroad

A period of study in an appropriate country, usually in the junior year, is strongly encouraged for all students of language. Bowdoin College is affiliated with a wide range of excellent programs abroad, and interested students should seek the advice of a member of the department early in their sophomore year to select a program and to choose courses that complement the offerings at the College.

Independent Study

This is an option primarily intended for students who are working on honors projects. It is also available to students who have taken advantage of the regular course offerings and wish to work more closely on a particular topic. Independent study is not an alternative to regular course work. An application should be made to a member of the department prior to the semester in which the project is to be undertaken and must involve a specific proposal in an area in which the student can already demonstrate knowledge.

Honors in Romance Languages

Majors may elect to write an honors project in the department. This involves two semesters of independent study in the senior year and the writing of an honors essay and its defense before a committee of members of the department. Candidates for departmental honors must have an outstanding record in other courses in the department.

Requirements for Majors in Romance Languages

Students may declare a major in French or in Spanish or in Romance languages (with courses in French, Spanish, and Italian). All majors are expected to achieve breadth in their knowledge of the French- and Spanish-speaking worlds by taking courses on the literatures and cultures of these areas from their origins to the present. Students should also take complementary courses in study-away programs or in other departments and programs such as Art History, Latin American Studies, History, English, and Africana Studies. The major consists of nine courses more advanced than French 204 or Spanish 204. Spanish majors will complete Spanish 205. *

Majors in French and Spanish will complete at least two of the following four courses before taking 300-level topics courses: 207, 208, 209, and 210 (or their equivalent in a study-abroad program). Of these two courses, one must be in the culture sequence (207, 208) and the other in literature (209, 210). Students who do not take French 209 or Spanish 209 are strongly advised to take a 300-level course that deals with pre-1800 French or Hispanic literature and culture.

During their senior year, all majors will take a seminar, either French 351 or Spanish 351.

For students majoring in Romance languages, the nine courses above 204 required for the major will include either 209 or 210 (or their equivalent in a study-abroad program) in two languages, one culture course (207 or 208) in two languages, plus one senior seminar. All majors in Spanish, French, and Romance languages will complete at least three 300-level courses. No more than two courses may be in independent study, and no fewer than five Bowdoin courses should be taken. Prospective majors are expected to have completed French, Spanish, or Italian 205 and either 207, 208, 209, or 210 before the end of their sophomore year.

Spanish Major Requirements

Nine courses above Spanish 204, including:

1. Spanish 205
2. two of the following four courses (one from 207, 208; one from 209, 210; or the equivalent in study abroad):
Spanish 207
Spanish 208
Spanish 209
Spanish 210
3. three courses at the 300-level, including Spanish 351 (senior seminar)

French Major Requirements

Nine courses above French 204, including:

1. two of the following four courses (one from 207, 208; one from 209, 210, or the equivalent in study abroad):
French 207
French 208
French 209
French 210
2. three courses at the 300-level, including French 351 (senior seminar).

Romance Languages Major Requirements

Nine courses above 204, including:

1. Spanish 207 or 208 (or the equivalent in study abroad)
2. French 207 or 208 (or the equivalent in study abroad)
3. Italian 208 (or the equivalent in study abroad), if combining Spanish or French with Italian
4. Spanish 209 or 210 (or the equivalent in study abroad)
5. French 209 or 210 (or the equivalent in study abroad)
6. three courses at the 300-level, including one senior seminar

* or eight courses above 204 for students beginning in 101, 102, or 203.

Requirements for Minors in Romance Languages

Students may declare a minor in French or Spanish. The minor consists of at least three courses at Bowdoin in one language above 204, including one 300-level course.

Placement

Students who plan to take French or Spanish must take the appropriate placement test at the beginning of the fall semester.

FRENCH

101c. Elementary French I. Every fall. Fall 2003. Ms. VÉTÉ-CONGOLO.

A study of the basic forms, structures, and vocabulary. Emphasis on listening comprehension and spoken French. Three class hours per week and one weekly conversation session with assistant, plus regular language laboratory assignments. Primarily open to first- and second-year students who have had two years or less of high school French. A limited number of spaces are available for juniors and seniors.

102c. Elementary French II. Every spring. Spring 2004. Ms. DAUGE-ROTH.

A continuation of French 101. A study of the basic forms, structures, and vocabulary. Emphasis on listening comprehension and spoken French. During the second semester, more stress is placed on reading and writing. Three class hours per week and one weekly conversation session with assistant, plus regular language laboratory assignments.

Prerequisite: French 101 or equivalent.

203c. Intermediate French I. Every fall. Fall 2003. Mr. DAUGE-ROTH.

A review of basic grammar, which is integrated into more complex patterns of written and spoken French. Short compositions and class discussions require active use of students' acquired knowledge of French. Three class hours per week and one weekly conversation session with assistant.

Prerequisite: French 102 or placement.

204c. Intermediate French II. Every spring. Spring 2004. Mr. VANDERWOLK AND Ms. VÉTÉ-CONGOLO.

Continued development of oral and written skills; course focus shifts from grammar to reading. Short readings from French literature, magazines, and newspapers form the basis for the expansion of vocabulary and analytical skills. Active use of French in class discussions and conversation sessions with French assistants. Three class hours per week and one weekly conversation session with assistant.

Prerequisite: French 203 or placement.

205c. Advanced French I. Every fall. Fall 2003. Mr. VANDERWOLK AND Mr. DAUGE-ROTH.

Conversation and composition based on a variety of contemporary films and texts about France and Francophone countries. Grammar review and frequent short papers. Emphasis on student participation including short presentations and debates. Three hours per week plus one weekly viewing session for films and weekly conversation session with assistant.

Prerequisite: French 204 or placement.

207c,d. Francophone Cultures. Every fall. Fall 2003. Ms. VÉTÉ-CONGOLO.

An introduction to the cultures of various French-speaking regions outside of France. Examines the history, politics, customs, cinema, literature, and the arts of the Francophone world, principally Africa and the Caribbean. Readings include newspaper and magazine articles, short stories, and a novel. Students see and discuss television news, documentaries, and feature films.

Prerequisite: French 205 or permission of the instructor.

208c. Contemporary French through the Media. Every spring. Spring 2004. Ms. DAUGE-ROTH AND MR. DAUGE-ROTH.

An introduction to contemporary France through newspapers, magazines, television, music, and film. Emphasis is on enhancing communicative proficiency in French and increasing cultural understanding prior to study abroad in France or another Francophone country.

Prerequisite: French 205 or permission of the instructor.

209c. Introduction to the Study and Criticism of Medieval and Early Modern French Literature. Every fall. Fall 2003. Ms. DAUGE-ROTH.

An introduction to the literary tradition of France from the Middle Ages to the French Revolution. Students are introduced to major authors and literary movements in their cultural and historical contexts.

Prerequisite: French 205 or permission of the instructor.

210c. Introduction to the Study and Criticism of Modern French Literature. Every spring. Spring 2004. Mr. VANDERWOLK.

Introduces students to the literary tradition of the French-speaking world from 1789 to the present. Focus on major authors and literary movements in historical and cultural context.

Prerequisite: French 205 or permission of the instructor.

318c. Novel Ways to Love and Die in France. Fall 2003. Mr. VANDERWOLK.

An examination of how some of the greatest French novelists of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries have portrayed scenes of love and death, with a consequent analysis of the development of the French modern novel, from romanticism to (post)modernism. Authors studied may include Sand, Stendhal, Flaubert, Proust, Gide, Camus and Duras. Conducted in French.

Prerequisite: French 209 or 210 or the equivalent in study away.

320-329c. Topics in French and Francophone Literature. Every year. THE DEPARTMENT.

Designed to provide students who have a basic knowledge of literature in French the opportunity to study more closely an author, a genre, or a period. French 320-329 may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

[321c. Resistance, Revolt, and Revolution.]

[322c,d. Voices of Women, Voices of the People.]

325c. Witches, Monsters, and Demons: Representing the Occult. Fall 2003. Ms. DAUGE-ROTH.

The occult is, by definition, that which is hidden or unknown, yet popular and scholarly fascination with the shadowy and uncertain worlds of witches, monsters, demons, the devil, and the mysteries of nature and the cosmos has fueled attempts by various authorities, writers, and artists to represent and thus to know, control, or exploit the spectacular potential of the occult. Explores early modern and modern representations of occult figures, events, practitioners, and practices in France through historical, literary, journalistic readings, art, film, television, and the Web. Emphasis is placed on the early modern period, but analysis of modern inheritances and interest in the occult parallels investigation of earlier periods throughout the course. Conducted in French.

Prerequisite: Two of the following: French 208, 209, or 210, or permission of the instructor.

[326c. Body Language: Writing Corporeality in Early Modern France.]

[327c. Love, Letters, and Lies.]

351c. Senior Seminar for French Majors.

The seminar offers students the opportunity to synthesize work done in courses at Bowdoin and abroad. The topic will change each year.

This course is required for the major in French or Romance languages.

Francophone Voices in Maine. Spring 2004. MR. DAUGE-ROTH.

One century ago, the Franco-American community represented thirty percent of Maine's population and it was common to hear French spoken on the streets in many cities in Maine. What cultural suppression of northern New England's largest minority took place during the last century? Is revival of the Franco-American heritage possible or desirable today? What role will Francophone immigrants from the Caribbean, Africa, and Europe play in such a revival of French in Maine? These issues require an interdisciplinary dialogue, as well as discipline-specific inquiries. Among these are: French language and Francophone studies, literature (testimony, autobiography, and travel narratives), history, sociology (identity politics and cultural reproduction), American studies (race and cultural identity), and linguistics (language acquisition, loss, and identity). Analyzes an itinerant TV installation that voices testimonies of Franco-American people and Francophone immigrants who live in Maine today. By creating this space of encounter for French speakers, the installation aims to revive and redefine the French and Francophone presence in Maine's public sphere.

401c–404c. Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

ITALIAN

101c. Elementary Italian I. Every fall. Fall 2003. Ms. REIN.

Three class hours per week, plus weekly drill sessions and language laboratory assignments. Study of the basic forms, structures, and vocabulary. Emphasis is on listening comprehension and spoken Italian.

102c. Elementary Italian II. Every spring. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Continuation of Italian 101. Three class hours per week, plus weekly drill sessions and language laboratory assignments. Study of the basic forms, structures, and vocabulary. More attention is paid to reading and writing.

Prerequisite: Italian 101 or equivalent.

203c. Intermediate Italian I. Every fall. Fall 2003. Ms. VIAZMENSKI.

Three class hours per week and one weekly conversation session with assistant. Aims to increase fluency in both spoken and written Italian. Grammar fundamentals are reviewed. Class conversation and written assignments are based on contemporary texts of literary and social interest.

Prerequisite: Italian 102 or placement.

204c. Intermediate Italian II. Every spring. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Three class hours per week and one weekly conversation session with assistant. Aims to increase fluency in both spoken and written Italian. Grammar fundamentals are reviewed. Class conversation and written assignments are based on contemporary texts of literary and social interest.

Prerequisite: Italian 203 or placement.

205c. Advanced Italian I. Every fall. Fall 2003. Ms. GAVIOLI.

Designed to increase the student's fluency in spoken and written Italian through the use of a large variety of cultural materials and media. The "texts" include literature, newspapers, magazines, the Internet, film, and television. Weekly written assignments introduce students to different writing styles, such as formal letters, restaurant reviews, love poetry, news briefs, and literary analyses. Weekly presentations, vocabulary-building exercises, and situational activities. Three class hours per week and one weekly conversation session with an assistant. Conducted in Italian.

Prerequisite: Italian 204 or placement.

208c. Italian Culture: Visions of Italy. Every spring. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Building on the cultural material presented in Italian 205, delves further into the dolce vita and the not-so-dolce-vita that is Italy through investigating how Italians conceive of their country. We study literature on Italy written by Italians; read and watch Italian news; view Italian-made films that foreground the Italian landscape, countryside, and lifestyle; explore Italian TV and Web sites; converse with college students in Italy; look at numerous visual images of Italy in art and photography; and take a trip to an Italian-American neighborhood, Boston's North End. Continues to refine writing, speaking, and comprehension skills and prepares students for advanced courses in Italian literature and culture. Conducted in Italian.

Prerequisite: Italian 205 or permission of the instructor.

[209c. Introduction to the Study and Criticism of Medieval and Early Modern Italian Literature.]

[222c. Dante's Divine Comedy.]

[310c. Women of Invention.]

311c. Italian Narratives: Novel into Film. Fall 2003. Ms. GAVIOLI.

Compares and contrasts two kinds of narratives: prose fiction and film-making. Focuses on an analysis of the transposition of selected Italian literary texts into visual texts in the light of the close relations between literary and film culture in Italy. Emphasizes the interplay of film and fiction within the context of Italian literary movements, as well as explores the cultural significance of the passage from novel to film. Narrative texts to be studied alongside their film adaptations include Moravia's Gli indifferenti, Tomasi di Lampedusa's Il gattopardo, Bassani's Il giardino dei Finzi-Contini, and Tabucchi's Sostiene Pereira. Conducted in Italian.

Prerequisite: Italian 205 or permission of the instructor.

401–404c. Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

SPANISH

Requirements for the Major in Russian Language and Literature

The Russian major consists of ten courses (eleven for honors). These include Russian 101, 102 and 203, 204; four courses in Russian above Russian 204; and two approved courses in either Russian literature in translation or Slavic civilization, or approved related courses in government, history, or economics (e.g., Government 230, Post-Communist Russian Politics and History 218, History of Russia: 1825 to 1953).

Interdisciplinary Major

The department participates in an interdisciplinary major in Eurasian and East European studies. See pages 178–80.

Study Abroad

Students are encouraged to spend at least one semester in Russia. There are several approved summer and one-semester Russian language programs in Moscow, St. Petersburg, Yaroslavl, Voronezh, and Irkutsk that are open to all students who have taken the equivalent of two or three years of Russian. For the spring 2004 semester, the department has its own cultural and language program in St. Petersburg in cooperation with the Nevsky Institute (see page 227). Other programs should be discussed with the Russian Department. Students returning from study abroad will be expected to take two courses in the department unless exceptions are granted by the chair. Two of the four semester credits from a one-semester study abroad program may be counted toward both the Eurasian and East European major and the Russian major; four credits may be counted toward a Russian major from a year-long program.

Advanced Independent Study

This is an option intended for students who wish to work on honors projects or who have taken advantage of all the regular course offerings and wish to work more closely on a particular topic already studied. Independent study is not an alternative to regular course work. Application should be made to a member of the department prior to the semester in which the project is to be undertaken and must involve a specific proposal in an area in which the student can already demonstrate basic knowledge. Two semesters of advanced independent studies are required for honors in Russian. Petition for an honors project must be made in the spring of the junior year.

Requirements for the Minor in Russian

The minor consists of seven courses (including the first two years of Russian).

Courses Taught in English Translation.

The department offers courses in English that focus on Russian history, literature, and culture. These courses may be taken by non-majors and include two first-year seminars and a series of 200-level courses: Russian 20, 21, 215, and 220–251.

Courses in Russian for Majors and Minors

101c. Elementary Russian I. Every fall. Fall 2003. Ms. KNOX-VOINA.

Emphasis on the acquisition of language skills through imitation and repetition of basic language patterns; the development of facility in speaking and understanding simple Russian. Conversation hour with a native speaker from the Nevsky Institute.

102c. Elementary Russian II. Spring 2004. Ms. KNOX-VOINA.

Continuation of Russian 101. Emphasis on the acquisition of language skills through imitation and repetition of basic language patterns; the development of facility in speaking and understanding simple Russian. Conversation hour with native speaker.

Prerequisite: Russian 101 or permission of the instructor.

203c. Intermediate Russian I. Every fall. Fall 2003. Ms. KNOX-VOINA.

A continuation of Russian 101, 102. Emphasis on maintaining and improving the student's facility in speaking and understanding normal conversational Russian. Writing and reading skills are also stressed. Conversation hour with native speaker.

Prerequisite: Russian 102 or permission of the instructor.

204c. Intermediate Russian II. Spring 2004. Mr. MILLER.

A continuation of Russian 203. Emphasis on maintaining and improving the student's facility in speaking and understanding normal conversational Russian. Writing and reading skills are also stressed. Conversation hour with native speaker.

Prerequisite: Russian 203 or permission of the instructor.

305c. Advanced Reading and Composition in Russian. Every fall. Fall 2003. Mr. MILLER.

Intended to develop the ability to read Russian at a sophisticated level by combining selected language and literature readings, grammar review, and study of Russian word formation. Discussion and reports in Russian. Conversation hour with native speaker.

Prerequisite: Russian 204 or permission of the instructor.

307c. Russian Folk Culture. Spring 2005. Mr. MILLER.

A study of Russian folk culture: folk tales, fairy tales, legends, and traditional oral verse, as well as the development of folk motives in the work of modern writers. Special emphasis on Indo-European and Common Slavic background. Reading and discussion in Russian. Short term papers.

Prerequisite: Russian 305 or permission of the instructor.

309c. Nineteenth-Century Russian Literature. Every other fall. Fall 2003. Mr. MILLER.

A survey of Russian prose of the nineteenth century. Special attention paid to the development of Russian realism. Writers include Pushkin, Lermontov, Gogol', Turgenev, Dostoevsky, and Tolstoy.

Prerequisite: Russian 305 or permission of the instructor.

310c. Modern Russian Literature. Every other spring. Spring 2004. Ms. KNOX-VOINA.

An examination of various works of modern Russian literature (Soviet and émigré), with emphasis on the development of the short story. Authors include Blok, Mayakovsky, Zoshchenko, Platonov, Bulgakov, Pasternak, Brodsky, Shukshin, Aksenov, and others. Short term papers.

Prerequisite: Russian 305 or permission of the instructor.

316c. Russian Poetry. Every other spring. Spring 2004. MR. MILLER.

Examines various nineteenth- and twentieth-century Russian poets, including Pushkin, Lermontov, Blok, and Mayakovsky. Earlier history of Russian verse is also discussed. Includes study of Russian poetics and the cultural-historical context of each poet's work. Reading and discussion are in Russian. Short term papers.

Prerequisite: Russian 305 or permission of the instructor.

291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Upon demand, this course may be conducted as a small seminar for several students in areas not covered in the above courses (e.g., the Russian media or intensive language study). This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed.

Prerequisite: Russian 305 or permission of the instructor.

401c–404c. Advanced Independent Study. THE DEPARTMENT.

Individual research in Russian studies. Major sources should be read in Russian. This course may be repeated for credit with the contents changed. A two-semester project is necessary for honors in Russian.

Prerequisite: Russian 309 or 310.

First-Year Seminars

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

[20c. The Great Soviet Experiment through Film.]

21c. The Culture of Nationalism. Every other fall. Fall 2004. MR. MILLER.

210c. Fantasy and Realism in Russian Literature. Fall 2004. MR. PESEASON.

Traditions of fantasy and realism in Russian literature have probed human dilemmas and invited self-examination. These works of art and entertainment reveal a disturbing world of the uncanny, populated by murderous doubles, human snakes, talking dogs, ghosts, and other diabolical creatures challenging the imagination. Examination of the ultimate question: can the real and the fantastic be defined as two different streams or one? Authors include Gogol, Dostoevsky, Chekhov, Bulgakov, and others. Lectures and readings in English translation. Majors required to do some reading in Russian.

215c. Russia, the Slavs, and Europe. Every other spring. Spring 2005. MR. MILLER.

Studies the cultural history of Eastern Europe. Specific topics include the development of Russian religious and political thought; and the problematic relationships that have existed between Russia, the other Slavic nations, and the West. No prior study of European civilization is assumed, and no knowledge of Russian is required.

[220c. Nineteenth-Century Russian Literature.]

[222c. Women in Russian Society and Culture.]

223c. Dostoevsky and the Novel. Spring 2005. Ms. KNOX-VOINA.

Examines Dostoevsky's use of the novel to portray the "fantastic" reality of the city and its effects on the human psyche. Special attention is given to the author's quest for guiding principles of freedom and love in a world of violence and cynicism. Emphasis on Dostoevsky's anti-Western and anti-materialist bias in his portrayal of the struggle between extreme individualism and self-renunciation in a Utopian brotherhood. Russian, American, and Japanese film versions of Dostoevsky's novels are viewed and discussed. Russian majors are required to do some of the reading in Russian.

224c. Dostoevsky or Tolstoy. Fall 2003. Ms. KNOX-VOINA AND MR. MILLER.

This team-taught two-part course explores and compares two giants of Russian literature, Lev Tolstoy and Fyodor Dostoevsky. Their works are read for their significance, both to Russian cultural history and to European thought; special attention is paid to the portrayal of women and women's issues in both authors.

Part I studies Dostoevsky's quest for guiding principles of freedom and love in a world of growing violence, cynicism and chaos of late tsarist Russia. "The Woman Question" emerges as a constant subject: Dostoevsky particularly concerned himself with the suffering of poor and humiliated women. A close reading of several short works and the novel Brothers Karamazov set in their historical, intellectual framework. Emphasis on the novelist's struggle between Western materialistic individualism and Eastern voluntary self-renunciation. Examines Dostoevsky's "fantastic realism" as a polyphony of voices, archetypes, and religious symbols.

Part II studies Tolstoy's development both as a novelist and a moral philosopher. Examines several works, the most important being the novel Anna Karenina, with special emphasis on the tension between Tolstoy-the-artist and Tolstoy-the-moralist. Discussion of the writer's role as "the conscience of Russia" in the last thirty years of his life, as well as his influence on such figures as Gandhi and Martin Luther King.

Screening of Russian, American, Italian and Japanese film versions. (Same as Women's Studies 217.)

[250c,d. Myth and Fact: Multi-Ethnic Siberia.]251c,d. Central Asia through Film and Literature. Spring 2004. Ms. KNOX-VOINA.

Examination of little known Central Asian peoples of the former Soviet Union and their role in solving cultural, economic, and geopolitical issues facing the twenty-first century. Focus on changes in the socio-economic status of women in the former Soviet Central Asia: Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Tadjikistan, Kyrgyzstan, Turkmenistan, and Mongolia. Discussion of the history and culture of this transit zone linking West to East, Christianity and Islam, Europe to Asia, for a better understanding of important geopolitical processes occurring in the border regions of the modern world. Examples of Central Asian literature and cinema. Questions include 1) how do politicization and industrialization affect belief systems of indigenous ethnic groups and their attitude toward the environment, and rural or subsistence economies, and 2) what is the significance of this vast area, rich in oil and gas, for the twenty-first century? Films shed light on the culture, history, spirituality (shamanism), environment, and sociopolitical and gender issues of these ethnic groups. (Same as Women's Studies 243.)

THE ST. PETERSBURG / NEVSKY INSTITUTE PROGRAM

Nev 001c. St. Petersburg-Leningrad-St. Petersburg: A City of Dreams and Dreamers. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. PESENSEN.

Explores the unique vision that formed St. Petersburg and examines the special role that the city has continued to play in Russian history and culture ever since its founding by Peter the Great in 1703.

Through the literary works of Gogol, Pushkin, Dostoyevsky, Bely, Brodsky, and others, students examine the profound importance and meaning of the city in the Russian national psyche. Through readings and discussion of historical and literary works, diaries, and memoirs they explore the turbulent and sometimes violent history of St. Petersburg and Leningrad. Supplemented by films by classic Soviet and contemporary Russian film makers and visits to historic sites, WWII memorials, and ancient monasteries in the region. Course requirements include weekly response papers to readings and tours of the historical sites, class presentations, and a final paper. All readings, discussion, and tours are in English. Russian majors are encouraged to do some readings in Russian.

Nev 002c. St. Petersburg: Mecca of the Arts. Every spring. Spring 2004. MR. PESENSEN.

Examines the city as a place where politics and art have often merged and sometimes clashed. Explores how St. Petersburg became a funnel for Western artistic ideas and tastes, and developed into a center for artistic experimentation, from the time of Peter the Great, to the "Silver Age," to Perestroika and beyond. Students study the history of St. Petersburg's cultural institutions and the current roles of those institutions in the lives of its citizens. Through weekly readings and attendance of lecture-seminars they explore the music, theater, film, art, and architecture produced in the city. Regular attendance at concerts, ballets, operas, and drama performances at the Mariinsky Theater, the Philharmonic Hall, and other famous venues; lecture-tours of the city's historic streets, the Hermitage Museum, the Russian Museum, and other galleries; and exploration of the latest in the St. Petersburg arts scene. Course requirements include weekly response papers/reviews of performances attended, class presentations, and final papers/projects. All readings, discussion, and tours conducted in English. Russian majors are encouraged to do some readings in Russian.

Requirements for the Major

In consultation with an advisor, each student plans a major program that will nurture an understanding of society and the human condition, demonstrate how social and cultural knowledge are acquired through research, and enrich his or her general education. On the practical level, a major program prepares the student for graduate study in sociology or anthropology and contributes to preprofessional programs such as law and medicine. It also provides background preparation for careers in urban planning, public policy, the civil service, social work, business or personnel administration, social research, law enforcement and criminal justice, the health professions, journalism, secondary school teaching, and development programs.

A student may choose either of two major programs or two minor programs:

The major in sociology consists of ten courses, including Sociology 101, 201, 211, and 310. One or two of the ten courses may be advanced courses from anthropology (or, if approved by the department chair, from related fields to meet the student's special interests) or off-campus study courses (with departmental approval). In all cases, at least seven of the courses counted toward the major must be Bowdoin sociology courses. Sociology 201 should be taken in the sophomore year.

The major in anthropology consists of nine courses, including Anthropology 101, 102, 201, 203, and 310, and one course with an area focus. Students are urged to complete Anthropology 101, 102, 201, and 203 as early as possible. One or two of the nine courses may be taken from the advanced offerings in sociology and/or, with departmental approval, from off-campus study programs. In all cases, at least seven of the courses counted toward the major must be Bowdoin anthropology courses.

All courses for the major or minor must be taken for a grade.

Requirements for the Minor

The minor in sociology consists of five sociology courses, including Sociology 101, 201, and 211, and two other sociology courses. One of the elective courses may be from off-campus study.

The minor in anthropology consists of five anthropology courses, including Anthropology 101 and 203, either 102 or 201, and an area study course. One of the elective courses may be from off-campus study.

For the anthropology major or minor program, one semester of independent study may be counted. For the sociology major program, two semesters of independent study may be counted, while for the minor program one semester may be counted.

Departmental Honors

Students distinguishing themselves in either major program may apply for departmental honors. Awarding of the degree with honors will ordinarily be based on grades attained in major courses and a written project (emanating from independent study), and will recognize the ability to work creatively and independently and to synthesize diverse theoretical, methodological, and substantive materials.

The major perspectives of sociology. Application of the scientific method to sociological theory and to current social issues. Theories ranging from social determinism to free will are considered, including the work of Marx, Weber, Durkheim, Merton, and others. Attention is given to such concepts as role, status, society, culture, institution, personality, social organization, the dynamics of change, the social roots of behavior and attitudes, social control, deviance, socialization, and the dialectical relationship between individual and society.

201b. Introduction to Social Research. Spring 2004. MS. RILEY AND MS. CADGE.

Provides firsthand experience with the specific procedures through which social science knowledge is developed. Emphasizes the interaction between theory and research, and examines the ethics of social research and the uses and abuses of research in policy making. Reading and methodological analysis of a variety of case studies from the sociological literature. Field and laboratory exercises that include observation, interviewing, use of available data (e.g., historical documents, statistical archives, computerized data banks, cultural artifacts), sampling, coding, use of computer, elementary data analysis and interpretation. Lectures, laboratory sessions, and small-group conferences.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or permission of the instructor.

204b. Families: A Comparative Perspective. Spring 2005. MS. RILEY.

Examines families in different societies. Issues addressed include definition and concept of the “family”; different types of family systems; the interaction of family change and other social, economic, and political change; the relationships between families and other social institutions; the role of gender and age in family relationships; and sources and outcomes of stability, conflict, and dissolution within families. (Same as Women’s Studies 204.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

205b. The Sociology of Urban Life. Fall 2003. MR. JOHNSON.

Examines popular depictions of the American urban experience through a sociological lens. Focuses on understanding competing interpretations of contemporary inner-city phenomena (crime, gangs, unemployment, teen pregnancy, single parenthood, etc.) and judging how successfully these interpretations withstand sustained scrutiny. Emphasizes critical thinking and evidence-weighting. Readings by Anderson, Buckley, Comer, deSouza, Katx, Liebow, Murray, Neckerman, Wilson, and others.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101.

206b. Media Representations of Reality. Fall 2004. MR. JOHNSON.

Examines social forces that contribute to mass-media representations of race, social class, gender, and sexual preference in historical and contemporary America. Focuses on the roles of government, corporations, and media professionals in the creation of news, entertainment programming, and advertising. Considers the nature of objectivity and fairness, internalization of imagery, the corrective potential of media-workplace diversity, distinctions between reality and stereotype, and tension between free-market economics and social responsibility. (Same as Africana Studies 206.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or permission of the instructor.

208b,d. Race and Ethnicity. Fall 2003. MS. LOHMANN.

The social and cultural meaning of race and ethnicity, with emphasis on the politics of events and processes in contemporary America. Analysis of the causes and consequences of prejudice and discrimination. Examination of the relationships between race and class. Comparisons among racial and ethnic minorities in the United States and between their situations and those of minorities in other selected societies. (Same as Africana Studies 208.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or permission of the instructor.

210b. The Sociology of News. Spring 2004. MR. JOHNSON.

Focuses on the social forces that influence news gathering and reporting. Introduces critical theory, audience theory, and medium theory. Considers the contemporary relevance of early media sociologists such as Breed, White, and Geiber. Examines the corporate culture of media organizations, especially how race and gender in the newsroom affect news content, and explores the intended and unintended effects of news on media audiences.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or permission of the instructor.

211b. Classics of Sociological Theory. Fall 2003. MS. BELL. Spring 2004. MR. BANDY.

An analysis of selected works by the founders of modern sociology. Particular emphasis is given to understanding differing approaches to sociological analysis through detailed textual interpretation. Works by Marx, Weber, Durkheim, and selected others are read.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or permission of the instructor.

215b. Criminology and Criminal Justice. Fall 2003. MS. LOHMANN.

Focuses on crime and corrections in the United States, with some cross-national comparisons. Examines the problematic character of the definition of "crime." Explores empirical research on the character, distribution, and correlates of criminal behavior and interprets this research in the light of social structural, cultural, and social psychological theories of crime causation. Discusses the implications of the nature and causes of crime for law enforcement and the administration of justice. Surveys the varied ways in which prisons and correctional programs are organized and assesses research about their effectiveness.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or permission of the instructor.

216b. Sociology of Identity and Interaction. Fall 2003. MR. BANDY.

A survey of various social dynamics and sociological theories regarding interactions among individuals, and between individuals and social structures. Examines such issues as power and powerlessness, conformity and deviance, as well as difference and identity. Also investigates the social issues surrounding different forms of political identity, including the constructs of gender, race, sexuality, class, and religion.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

217b,d. Overcoming Racism. Spring 2004. MR. PARTRIDGE.

Explores and critiques a variety of proposed solutions for healing racism in the United States. A working definition of racism is developed through a careful examination of the social structures that support the continuance of racism and discrimination based on race in the United States. The dominant/subordinate relationships of European Americans with African Americans, Latino/a Americans, Native Americans, and Asian Americans are reviewed. (Same as Africana Studies 217.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 10 or 101, or Anthropology 101.

[218b. Sociology of Law.]219b. Sociology of Gender. Spring 2004. MS. CADGE.

Focuses on gender as an organizing principle of societies, and examines how gender is involved in and related to differences and inequalities in social roles, gender identity, sexual orientation, and social constructions of knowledge. Explores the role of gender in institutional structures including the economy and the family. Particular attention is paid to the sexual differentiation of language, sex inequality and sex segregation in the workplace, the global feminization of poverty, and compulsory heterosexuality and the experiences of lesbians and gay men. (Same as Women's Studies 219.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101 and Women's Studies 101 or a 200-level sociology course.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

221b. Environmental Sociology. Spring 2005. MR. BANDY.

An examination of the complex social processes that define, create, and threaten the natural environment. Investigates the relationships among various environmental and social problems, as well as the many political ideologies, philosophies, and movements that define and redefine how we think of nature and sustainability. Explores issues of science and technology, popular culture, urbanization, racial and gender relations, as well as environmental movements. (Same as Environmental Studies 221.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

222b. Introduction to Human Population. Fall 2004. MS. RILEY.

An introduction to the major issues in the study of population. Focuses on the social aspects of the demographic processes of fertility, mortality, and migration. Also examines population change in Western Europe historically, recent demographic changes in Third World countries, population policy, and the social and environmental causes and implications of changes in births, deaths, and migration. (Same as Environmental Studies 222 and Women's Studies 224.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

[223b. Cultural Interpretations of Medicine.]

225b. Globalization and Social Change. Fall 2003. MR. BANDY.

Focuses on social theories related to the international economy and its current restructuring. Explores the impact of globalization on the lives of working people, on the global division of labor, on human rights, on gender inequality, and on the natural environment. Examines the modern history of economic development, and the many social conflicts and resistance movements they have sparked. Touches upon various world regions and their unique positions in the global economy, including Latin America and East Asia.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

229b. Religion in American Life: A Sociological Approach. Fall 2003. Ms. CADGE.

Introduces the tools and concepts central to the social scientific study of religion and considers how social scientists define religion. Asks how religion is present and influential in a range of religious and secular institutions in the contemporary United States. Also considers the impact of religion in public spheres (government and the courts) as well as private spheres (family and individual life). Examines the range of religious traditions present in America such as Christianity, Judaism, Buddhism, Islam, and Hinduism. Includes visits to different religious centers in the Brunswick and Portland areas. Readings by Weber, Durkheim, Berger, Bellah, Wuthnow, Davidman, Ammerman, and Eck.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

[251b. Sociology of Health and Illness.]252b. Sociology of Chronic Illness and Disability. Fall 2003. Ms. BELL.

Focuses on the subjective experience of illness, especially chronic illness and disability. What strategies do people use in their daily lives to manage and direct the course of their illness? In what respects do these experiences vary according to such factors as gender, race, ethnicity, and social class? Issues to be addressed include stigma; identity; sexuality; relationships with family, community, and caregivers; work self-help and the independent living movement; feminism and disability rights.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or permission of the instructor.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in gay and lesbian studies.

253b. Constructions of the Body. Spring 2005. Ms. BELL.

Explores the body as a reflection and construction of language, a source of metaphor, and a political and social "space." Considers historical and cross-cultural studies about men's and women's bodies, sexuality, gender, and power. Throughout the course, we draw from and compare theories of the body in sociology, women's studies, and gay and lesbian studies. (Same as Women's Studies 253.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, and one of the following: Women's Studies 101, Gay and Lesbian Studies 201, or a 200-level sociology course.

254b. Witchcraft in the Modern World. Fall 2003. MR. TOMLINSON.

Explores witchcraft as a modern phenomenon from an anthropological perspective. Questions examined include: What has it meant to identify as a witch, Wiccan, Neo-Pagan, or the like in recent history and the present age? Why have narratives of witchcraft circulated so successfully in different cultural contexts for such long historical periods? In what ways do such groups borrow from mainstream religious ideologies and practices, and in what ways subvert them? How can we investigate the interplay between religious practices and the representations of such practices? (Same as Anthropology 254.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101.

255b,d. Traditional Healing in Sociohistorical Perspective. Spring 2004. MR. JOHNSON.

Places non-western healing traditions in social and historical context to illuminate their contemporary popularity. Considers voodoo, spirit worship, herbalism, and other traditional beliefs and practices of African-Americans, Latinos/as, Native Americans, and other marginalized groups. Explores the universalizability of the meanings of illness and healing across cultures and through history, and factors influencing observed variability.

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, or permission of the instructor.

[258b. Religion, Language, and Performance.]261b,d. Contemporary Chinese Society, Part I. Fall 2003. Ms. RILEY.

Examines several key elements of contemporary society, exploring how Chinese society has changed in recent years and how social institutions such as family, education, and community have been a part of the recent economic and social restructuring. Pays particular attention to issues of work, family, gender, and migration. Part of a two-course sequence including Sociology 262. (Same as Asian Studies 261.)

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor. Because this course is part of a two-course sequence that includes a five-week trip to Asia, students are selected on the basis of a short application to be submitted in the spring. Preference is given to sophomores.

262b,d. Contemporary Chinese Society, Part II. Fall 2003. Ms. RILEY.

A continuation of Sociology 261. Consists of a five-week trip to Asia over winter break to see firsthand some of the issues studied during the regular semester at Bowdoin. Includes lectures and seminars on current issues in China, and students continue work on projects developed during the semester. Grading is Credit/Fail. (Same as Asian Studies 262.)

Prerequisite: Asian Studies 261 must be taken concurrently, and permission of the instructor.

291b–294b. Intermediate Independent Study in Sociology. THE DEPARTMENT.310b. Advanced Seminar: Current Controversies in Sociology. Spring 2004. MR. BANDY AND Ms. RILEY.

Draws together different theoretical and substantive issues in sociology in the United States, primarily since 1950. Discusses current controversies in the discipline, e.g., quantitative versus qualitative methodologies, micro versus macro perspectives, and pure versus applied work.

Prerequisite: Senior standing and Sociology 209 or 211, or permission of the instructor.

401b–404b. Advanced Independent Study and Honors in Sociology. THE DEPARTMENT.

ANTHROPOLOGY

First-Year Seminars

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

20b. Fantastic Archaeology. Fall 2003. MR. MACÉACHERN.22b. Inventing the Seaside. Spring 2004. Ms. BALLINGER.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

101b,d. Introduction to Cultural Anthropology. Fall 2003. MR. TOMLINSON. Spring 2004. MS. BALLINGER.

Cultural anthropology explores the diversities and commonalities of cultures and societies in an increasingly interconnected world. This course introduces students to the significant issues, concepts, theories, and methods in cultural anthropology. Topics may include: cultural relativism and ethnocentrism, fieldwork and ethics, symbolism, language, religion and ritual, political and economic systems, family and kinship, gender, class, ethnicity and race, nationalism and transnationalism, and ethnographic representation and validity.

102b,d. Introduction to World Prehistory. Spring 2004. MS. KAPLAN.

An introduction to the discipline of archaeology and the studies of human biological and cultural evolution. Among the subjects covered are conflicting theories of human biological evolution, debates over the genetic and cultural bases of human behavior, the expansion of human populations into various ecosystems throughout the world, the domestication of plants and animals, the shift from nomadic to settled village life, and the rise of complex societies and the state.

201b. Anthropological Research. Fall 2003. MS. DICKEY.

Anthropological research methods and perspectives are examined through classic and recent ethnography, statistics and computer literacy, and the student's own fieldwork experience. Topics include ethics, analytical and methodological techniques, the interpretation of data, and the use and misuse of anthropology.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101.

202b. Essentials of Archaeology. Fall 2003. MR. MACEachern.

Introduces students to the methods and concepts that archaeologists use to explore the human past. Shows how concepts from natural science, history, and anthropology help archaeologists investigate past societies, reveal the form and function of ancient cultural remains, and draw inferences about the nature and causes of change in human societies over time. Will include a significant field work component, including excavations on campus.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 102, or Archaeology 101 or 102, or permission of the instructor.

203b. History of Anthropological Theory. Fall 2003. MS. BALLINGER.

An examination of the development of various theoretical approaches to the study of culture and society. Anthropology in the United States, Britain, and France is covered from the nineteenth century to the present. Among those considered are Morgan, Tylor, Durkheim, Boas, Malinowski, Mead, Geertz, and Lévi-Strauss.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101.

206b. The Archaeology of Gender and Ethnicity. Fall 2003. MS. SHAW.

Explores the lives of "people without history," using archaeological data and emphasizing gender and ethnicity. Focuses on the Americas, and covers both prehistoric and post-conquest archaeological site research, including Maya, Inca, Native American, and African American examples. The long temporal aspect of archaeological data allows exploration of such issues as how gender inequality developed in emerging civilizations, how European contact affected indigenous gender roles within the economy, and how enslaved peoples maintained and reinforced an ethnic identity. (Same as Women's Studies 206.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102, or permission of the instructor.

218b,d. Anthropology of Islands. Spring 2004. Ms. HENSHAW.

Focuses on the diversity of island peoples and cultures and the unique place they hold within the field of anthropology. Explores the range of environmental contexts in which island peoples adapt, as well as the unique socioeconomic systems and historical experiences that characterize them. Examines the powerful sense of cultural identity that islanders share, and the many challenges and opportunities they face in an age of globalization and limited resources. Selected case studies draw from islands in the Pacific and North Atlantic, including Maine, to bring a comparative and interdisciplinary understanding of island societies past and present. (Same as Environmental Studies 213.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102.

221b. The Rise of Civilization. Spring 2005. Mr. MACEACHERN.

Archaeology began with the study of the great states of the ancient world, with Egypt, Mesopotamia, China, the Maya, and the Aztecs. Examines the origins of civilizations in the Old and New Worlds, using archaeological, historical, and ethnographic data. Reviews the major debates on state formation processes, the question of whether integrated theories of state formation are possible, and the processes leading to the collapse of state societies.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102.

[222b. Culture through Performance.][223b. Nationalism and Ethnicity.]*225b. Class and Culture. Fall 2004. Ms. DICKEY.

Examines theories of class and hierarchy, ranging from Marx and Weber to Foucault, and ethnographies of class cultures. Investigates the mutual impact of class and culture, the places of socioeconomic classes in wider systems of stratification, and the interaction of class and other forms of hegemony.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101.

228b. Language, Culture, and Emotion. Spring 2004. Ms. VAN VLEET.

Explores emotion as shaped by culture and language and as produced in interactions in a variety of social and cultural contexts. Focuses primarily on oral expression. Topics may include language acquisition and childhood; concepts of the self and subjectivity; emotional performances; cross-cultural concepts of emotion; class, gender, and emotional conventions; language and embodiment; bilingualism, solidarity, and cross-cultural communication; affect, literacy, and social transformation; aesthetics. Genres such as gossip, story-telling, sermon and prayer, ceremonial wailing, and love letters are included. Attention is given to the methods of linguistic anthropology. (Same as Women's Studies 228.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 and one additional course in anthropology or sociology, or permission of the instructor.

[229b,d. Maya Archaeology and Ethnohistory.]230b. Language, Identity, and Power. Spring 2005. Ms. VAN VLEET.

What place does language have in everyday life? How are identities produced and perceived in personal and social interactions? How is language used to reinforce, challenge, or reconfigure relationships of power? Approaches the study of language as a social and historical reality that emerges in the interactions of individuals. Using examples from a variety of social and cultural contexts, discusses: the relationship between language, culture, and thought; structure and agency; language and social inequality; language acquisition and socialization; multilingualism and multiculturalism; verbal art and performance. Throughout, considers how aspects of an individual's identity such as gender, race, ethnicity, class, age, and sexual orientation articulate in social and linguistic interactions.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101, or permission of the instructor.

231b,d. Native Peoples and Cultures of Arctic America. Fall 2004. Ms. KAPLAN.

For thousands of years, Eskimos (Inuit), Indian, and Aleut peoples lived in the Arctic regions of North America as hunters, gatherers, and fishermen. Their clothing, shelter, food, and implements were derived from resources recovered from the sea, rivers, and the land. The characteristics of Arctic ecosystems are examined. The social, economic, political, and religious lives of various Arctic-dwelling peoples are explored in an effort to understand how people have adapted to harsh northern environments. (Same as Environmental Studies 231.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102.

233b,d. Peoples and Cultures of Africa. Spring 2005. Mr. MACEachern.

Introduction to the traditional patterns of livelihood and social institutions of African peoples. Following a brief overview of African geography, habitat, and cultural history, lectures and readings cover a representative range of types of economy, polity, and social organization, from the smallest hunting and gathering societies to the most complex states and empires. Emphasis upon understanding the nature of traditional social forms; changes in African societies in the colonial and post-colonial periods are examined, but are not the principal focus of the course. (Same as Africana Studies 233.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology.

[234b,d. Women, Power, and Identity in India.]235b,d. South Asian Cultures and Societies. Spring 2004. Ms. DICKEY.

An introduction to the cultures and societies of South Asia, including India, Nepal, Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka. Issues of religion, family and gender, caste, and class are examined through ethnographies, novels, and films, and through in-class simulations of marriage arrangements, and caste ranking. (Same as Asian Studies 235.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101, or permission of the instructor.

237b,d. Family, Gender, and Sexuality in Latin America. Spring 2004. Ms. VAN VLEET.

Focuses on family, gender, and sexuality as windows onto political, economic, social, and cultural issues in Latin America. Topics include indigenous and natural gender ideologies, marriage, race, and class; machismo and masculinity; state and domestic violence; religion and reproductive control; compulsory heterosexuality; AIDS; and cross-cultural conceptions of homosexuality. Takes a comparative perspective and draws on a wide array of sources including ethnography, film, fiction, and historical narrative. (Same as Women's Studies 237.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101, or permission of the instructor.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

[238b,d. Culture and Power in the Andes.]239b,d. Indigenous Peoples of North America. Fall 2003. Ms. SHAW.

An overview and analysis of native North American societies from pre-Columbian times to the present. Topics include the political, economic, family, and religious organization of Native American societies; the impact of European expansion; and the current situation—both on and off reservation—of Native Americans.

Prerequisite: Previous course in anthropology or sociology, or permission of the instructor.

240b,d. Nationalism and Transnationalism in the Pacific Islands. Spring 2004. MR. TOMLINSON.

New nationalist movements in the Pacific Islands give fresh urgency to questions about how the "nation-state" has become a standard sociopolitical category in the modern era. Focuses on nationalist movements that have taken place since the 1970s in the post-independence Pacific, drawing people into national orbits through shared senses of culture, ethnicity, and consumption. Readings include material from Melanesia, Micronesia, and Polynesia, focusing especially on Papua New Guinea, the Solomon Islands, Fiji, Hawaii, and New Zealand.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101.

246b. Anthropology of the Balkans. Fall 2003. MS. BALLINGER.

Explores the conceptual and political construction of the Balkans as a crossroads between great empires, religious systems, languages, and ethnic and national groups. Topics covered include: the tensions (past and present) between visions of commonality (pan-Slavism, for example) and exclusive national definitions; local responses to broad processes of state formation, war, and modernization; and the transformation of much of the region as a result of five decades of state socialism. The ongoing changes in the region with the transition from socialist rule will receive particular attention.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or permission of the instructor.

248b,d. Activist Voices in India. Spring 2005. MS. DICKEY.

Examines contemporary social and political activism in India. Focuses on film, essays, and fiction to investigate the ways that political messages are constructed through different media and for specific audiences. Case studies include activism concerning religious conflict, gender inequalities, gay and lesbian identities, and environmental issues. (Same as Asian Studies 248 and Women Studies 246.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101, and one previous course on contemporary South Asian societies (Anthropology 234, 235; History 256, 258, 259, 288; or Religion 12, 221, 323) or permission of the instructor.

[249b,d. Mesoamerican Civilizations.]

254b. Witchcraft in the Modern World. Fall 2003. MR. TOMLINSON.

Explores witchcraft as a modern phenomenon from an anthropological perspective. Questions examined include: What has it meant to identify as a witch, Wiccan, Neo-Pagan, or the like in recent history and the present age? Why have narratives of witchcraft circulated so successfully in different cultural contexts for such long historical periods? In what ways do such groups borrow from mainstream religious ideologies and practices, and in what ways subvert them? How can we investigate the interplay between religious practices and the representations of such practices? (Same as Sociology 254.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101.

256b,d. African Archaeology: The Roots of Humanity. Spring 2004. MR. MACEachern.

Examines the prehistory of Africa since the appearance of modern humans on that continent about 100,000 years ago. Particular attention is paid to changes in African economies and social systems through time. Topics include the cultural development of modern humans in Africa; the beginnings of agriculture in different parts of the continent; state formation processes in sub-Saharan Africa; and the coordination of ethnographic, linguistic, and archaeological data in research. (Same as Africana Studies 256.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102, or permission of the instructor.

[257b. Environmental Archaeology.][258b. Religion, Language, and Performance.]*260b,d. Cultures on Display: Anthropology and Museums. Fall 2003. Ms. KAPLAN.

The public, fascinated by other people's traditions, flock to anthropology, art, and natural history museums to view artifacts produced by other cultures. Examines the changing roles and responsibilities of museums that curate and exhibit objects and photographs representing cultures of non-Western peoples. Issues of interpretation, the ethics of collecting, and questions of repatriation facing anthropologists are among the topics that are examined using case studies, exhibits, and Arctic Museum collections.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102, or permission of the instructor.

[270b. Changing Cultures and Dynamic Environments.]280b. Race, Biology, and Anthropology. Fall 2005. Mr. MACEachern.

Critically examines the biological justifications used to partition humanity into racial groups. Investigates the nature of biological and genetic variability within and between human populations, as well as the characteristics of human biological races as they have traditionally been defined. Considers whether race models do a good job of describing how human populations vary across the earth. Critically appraises works by a variety of authors, including Phillippe Rushton, Charles Murray, and Michael Levin, who claim that racial identity and evolution work together to structure the history and the potentials of human groups in different parts of the world. (Same as Africana Studies 280.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102, or Sociology 101, or permission of the instructor.

291b–294b. Intermediate Independent Study in Anthropology. THE DEPARTMENT.310b. Contemporary Issues in Anthropology. Spring 2004. Mr. MACEachern.

Close readings of recent ethnographies and other materials are used to examine current theoretical and methodological developments and concerns in anthropology.

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101, 102, 201, and 203, or permission of the instructor.

401b–404b. Advanced Independent Study and Honors in Anthropology. THE DEPARTMENT.

Students may minor in dance or theater. Although no major is offered in the Department of Theater and Dance, students with special interest may, with faculty advice, self-design a major in conjunction with another academic discipline. More information on student-designed majors may be found on page 27.

Interdisciplinary Major

The department participates in an interdisciplinary major in English and theater. See page 178.

DANCE

The Dance curriculum provides a coherent course of study through classes in dance history, theory, criticism, choreography, and performance studies, including dance technique and repertory. The department emphasizes dance's relation to the performing and fine arts, and its fundamental connection to the broad liberal arts curriculum. The program's goal is dance literacy and the development of skills important to original work in all fields: keen perception, imaginative problem solving, discipline, and respect for craft.

Requirements for the Minor in Dance

The minor consists of five course credits: Dance 101; Dance 111/112, 211/212, or 311/312; Dance 102, 130, or 140; and two additional courses at the 200 level or higher.

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

101c. Cultural Choreographies: An Introduction to Dance. Every year. Fall 2003. Ms. VAIL.

Dancing is a fundamental human activity, a mode of communication, and a basic force in social life. This course is primarily concerned with dance and movement as aesthetic and cultural phenomena. Explores how dance forms and movement activities reveal information about cultural norms and values and affect social perspectives in our own and other societies. Using ethnographic methods, focuses on how dancing maintains and creates conceptions of one's own body, gender relationships, and personal and group identities. Examines dance and movement forms from different cultures and epochs—for example, the hula, New England contradance, classical Indian dance, Balkan kolos, ballet, contact improvisation, and African American dance forms from swing to hiphop—through readings, performances, workshops in the studio, and field work. (Same as Women's Studies 102.)

102c. Making Dances. Every year. Spring 2004. Ms. VAIL.

Explores ways of choreographing dances and multimedia performance works, primarily solos, duets, trios. A strong video component introduces students—regardless of previous experience in dance—to a wide range of compositional methods that correspond to creative process in other arts: writing, drawing, composing. Includes some reading, writing, and discussion, as well as work with visiting professional dance companies and attendance at live performances.

104c. Stagecraft. Every other year. Fall 2003. Mr. SCHIFF-VERRE.

Introduction to the language and practice of technical theater. Hands-on experience in lighting, sound, costuming, and scenic and property construction. Considers the demands and limits of different theatrical spaces, as well as job roles and management for theater and dance productions. Includes forty hours of laboratory work. May be taken as Credit/Fail only. (Same as Theater 104.)

130c. Principles of Design. Every year. Spring 2004. Ms. GAILEN.

Studio course that stimulates students to consider the world of a play, dance, or performance piece from a designer's perspective. Through projects, readings, discussion, and critiques, students explore the fundamental principles of visual design, text analysis for the designer, and the process of collaboration. Strong emphasis on perceptual, analytical, and communication skills. (Same as Visual Arts 165 and Theater 130.)

140c. Performance Art. Every other year. Spring 2004. Ms. BERG.

Performance art is live art performed by artists. It includes, but is not limited by, elements of both theater and dance. Students study the history and theory of performance art through readings and the creation of original work. Students consider the social context of different movements in performance art, and the creation of performance art in contemporary culture. The class creates and performs pieces in both traditional and "found" spaces. (Same as Visual Arts 175 and Theater 140.)

201c. Topics in Dance History: Five American Originals. Every third year. Fall 2004. Ms. VAIL.

Focuses on five acclaimed and controversial twentieth century choreographers. Students analyze their widely differing aesthetic goals, political stances, and popular and critical reception. Also explores these artists' signature styles, combining movement with reading, viewing, writing, and discussion. Students will devise a project including research and performance components on an innovative American choreographer in the dance form of their choice. Choreographers from past courses have included—among others—Isadora Duncan, Fred Astaire, Martha Graham, Merce Cunningham, George Balanchine, Charles "Honi" Coles, Twyla Tharp, and Bill T. Jones.

Prerequisite: Dance 101, 102, 111/112, 211/212, or 311/312, or permission of the instructor.

220c. Dance Genres. Spring 2004. Ms. VAIL.

Studio technique and theory, focusing on three disparate dance genres. Students learn and practice these forms, and examine their meaning as art and cultural expression. When applicable, they are used as sources for the skills, strategies, and subjects of concert dance. The genres may range from African dance to ballet; hip-hop to contact improvisation; ballroom to belly dance; and other national, regional, or ethnic dance forms.

Prerequisite: Dance 101, 102, 111/112, 140, 211/212, or 311/312.

265c. Narrative and Dance. Fall 2003. Ms. REIZBAUM, MR. SARVIS.

Interrogates the nature of the dichotomy between story and form, narrative and abstraction in both the study and practice of literature and dance. Considers the correspondence between these media. Includes a dance studio component. (Same as English 265.)

Prerequisite: A 100-level English or dance course or English first-year seminar.

320c. Advanced Performance Theory and Practice. Every third year. Fall 2005. THE DEPARTMENT.

Designed for strong and experienced dancers, and conducted as a series of rehearsals culminating in a performance at the semester's end. The final performance piece is either an original faculty-choreographed piece or a reconstructed historical dance. Students should expect a more rigorous rehearsal process than in Dance 112 or 212, with greater demand placed on their individual creative, musical, organizational, and physical skills. Students are required to participate in rehearsals and performances outside of class time.

Prerequisite: Previous 200- or 300-level dance course.

321c. Viewing and Re-viewing Theater and Dance: Critical Perspectives on the Performing Arts. Every third year. Spring 2006. Ms. VAIL.

Investigates critical perspectives on the performing arts and develops writing skills such as description, analysis, evaluation, and interpretation. Video, film, and live performances provide the basis for reviews and essays. Combines theory and practice in developing modes of reflexive critical response that acknowledge the participation of the observer in the creation of both event and commentary. (Same as Theater 325.)

Prerequisite: Previous full-credit course in dance or theater, or permission of the instructor.

322c. Advanced Performance Theory and Practice: Ensemble Performance. Every third year. Spring 2006. MR. ROBINSON.

An opportunity for theater and dance students to work together on an original performance piece. Examines other groups in dance and theater that have developed similar works based on literature, current events, and personal experience. Students research and explore a theme together to build a work that blurs the boundaries between theater and dance, using a combination of physical and narrative exercises to develop the score/script. Students build the piece collaboratively over the semester and present it at the end of the term. (Same as Theater 322.)

Prerequisite: Previous 100-level theater or dance course and an additional theater or dance course, preferably at the 200 level.

323c. Advanced Dance: Breath, Voice, Movement, and Text. Fall 2004. Ms. JONES.

Explores the relationship between movement and language. Text is considered as an inspiration, subject, formal template, or framing device for dance. May be taught as a performance class, a creative process class, or a studio/theory class, and may be team-taught with a member of the English department faculty. Some outside rehearsal time is required.

Prerequisite: Previous 200- or 300-level dance course.

324c. Advanced Dance: Borrowed Forms. Spring 2004. MR. SARVIS.

Under faculty direction, experienced dancers create and perform a dance based on historical models. May be based on the values of a single choreographer (e.g., the music visualization and ironic humor of Mike Morris), or on unlikely combinations (e.g., abstract expressionists performing the chance operations of Merce Cunningham). Students are required to rehearse and perform outside of class time.

Prerequisite: Previous 200- or 300-level dance course.

291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study in Dance. THE DEPARTMENT.401c–404c. Advanced Independent Study in Dance. THE DEPARTMENT.

Performance Studies in Dance

The foundation for performance studies classes in dance technique and repertory is modern dance, a term designating a wide spectrum of styles. The program focuses on an inventive, unrestricted approach to movement informed by an understanding of basic dance technique. This offers an appropriate format for exploring the general nature of dance and the creative potential of undergraduates.

Performance studies courses (111, 211, 311; and 112, 212, 312) earn one-half credit each semester. Each course may be repeated a maximum of four times for credit. Students may enroll in a technique course (111, 211, 311) and a repertory course (112, 212, 312) in the same semester for one full academic course credit. Attendance at all classes is required. Grading is Credit/Fail.

Instructors for 2003–2004: Gwyneth Jones, Paul Sarvis, and Lisa Hicks.

111c. Introductory Dance Technique. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

Classes in modern dance technique include basic exercises to develop dance skills such as balance and musicality. More challenging movement combinations and longer dance sequences build on these exercises. While focusing on the craft of dancing, students develop an appreciation of their own styles and an understanding of the role of craft in the creative process. During the semester, a historical overview of twentieth-century American dance on video is presented. Attendance at all classes is required. One-half credit.

112c. Introductory Repertory and Performance. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

Repertory students are required to take Dance 111 concurrently. Repertory classes provide the chance to learn faculty-choreographed works or reconstructions of historical dances. Class meetings are conducted as rehearsals for performances at the end of the semester: the December Studio Show, the annual Spring Performance in Pickard Theater, or Museum Pieces at the Walker Art Building in May. Additional rehearsals are scheduled before performances. Attendance at all classes and rehearsals is required. One-half credit.

211c. Intermediate Dance Technique. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

A continuation of the processes introduced in Dance 111. One-half credit.

212c. Intermediate Repertory and Performance. Every semester. THE DEPARTMENT.

Intermediate repertory students are required to take Dance 211 concurrently. A continuation of the principles and requirement introduced in Dance 112. One-half credit.

311c. Intermediate/Advanced Dance Technique. Fall 2003. Ms. HICKS. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

A continuation of the processes introduced in Dance 211. One-half credit.

312c. Intermediate/Advanced Repertory and Performance. Fall 2003. Ms. HICKS. Spring 2004. THE DEPARTMENT.

Intermediate/advanced repertory students are required to take Dance 311 concurrently. A continuation of the principles and requirement introduced in Dance 212. One-half credit.

THEATER

The theater program at Bowdoin offers students the opportunity to examine the ways in which theater serves a community, challenges assumptions, entertains, and provokes. Courses are offered in performance, theory, history, design, and stagecraft. Faculty-directed productions are open by audition to the entire student body. Student-directed projects under faculty supervision are encouraged through independent study and honors projects. Emphasis is placed on theater's fundamental connection to the liberal arts curriculum at Bowdoin, as well as theater literacy, performance skills, respect for language, and an understanding of social/historical influences on drama. The aim is to develop imaginative theater practitioners who collaboratively solve problems of form and content with a passionate desire to express the human condition on stage.

Requirements for the Minor in Theater

The minor consists of five courses: Two courses from Theater 101, 102, 103, 105, 106, 120, 130, 140; two courses from Theater 220, 240, 250, 270, 320, 321, 322, 360; and one additional course in theater or dance.

101c. Making Theater. Fall 2003. Ms. MARCUS.

An introductory exploration of the nature of theater: how to think about it, how to look at it, how to make it. Focuses on active studio work. Students examine theories of twentieth-century theater makers, see and reflect on live performances, and experience different approaches to making original work. Students work together to develop and perform three small pieces and a final group performance project.

103c. Women in Performance. Fall 2003. Ms. BERG.

An exploration of women on stage—as characters, performers, playwrights, directors, designers, and technicians. Reflecting their studies and personal experiences, students engage in historical research and in-class studio work that culminates in performance projects at the end of the semester. (Same as Women's Studies 103.)

104c. Stagecraft. Every other year. Fall 2003. Mr. SCHIFF-VERRE.

Introduction to the language and practice of technical theater. Hands-on experience in lighting, sound, costuming, and scenic and property construction. Considers the demands and limits of different theatrical spaces, as well as job roles and management for theater and dance productions. Includes forty hours of laboratory work. May be taken as Credit/Fail only. (Same as Dance 104.)

105c,d. Puppetry. Fall 2004. Ms. MARCUS.

A thorough introduction to the art of puppetry. Involves puppet construction and an examination of how puppetry has been used in various cultures. Students create theater pieces in which puppetry is the primary form of expression. (Same as Visual Arts 105.)

106c. Introduction to Drama. Spring 2004. Mr. KITCH.

Traces the development of theater in the West from the Festival of Dionysus to contemporary productions in America and Europe. Topics include plot structures, staging techniques, characterization, the construction of "interiority," the politics of affect, as well as key cultural and political contexts of the stage. Readings may include Sophocles, Shakespeare, Anton Chekhov, Samuel Beckett, August Wilson, Caryl Churchill, David Mamet, Amiri Baraka, and Tony Kushner. (Same as English 106.)

120c. Acting I. Every semester. Fall 2003. MR. ROBINSON. Spring 2004. MS. CAMPBELL.

Acting I introduces students to the physical, emotional, and intellectual challenge of the acting process. Voice and movement work, analysis of dramatic texts from an actor's point of view, and improvisational exercises are used to provide students with a variety of methods for acting truthfully on stage.

130c. Principles of Design. Every year. Spring 2004. MS. GAILEN.

Studio course that stimulates students to consider the world of a play, dance, or performance piece from a designer's perspective. Through projects, readings, discussion, and critiques, students explore the fundamental principles of visual design, text analysis for the designer, and the process of collaboration. Strong emphasis on perceptual, analytical, and communication skills. (Same as Visual Arts 165 and Dance 130.)

140c. Performance Art. Every other year. Spring 2004. MS. BERG.

Performance art is live art performed by artists. It includes, but is not limited by, elements of both theater and dance. Students study the history and theory of performance art through readings and the creation of original work. Students consider the social context of different movements in performance art, and the creation of performance art in contemporary culture. The class creates and performs pieces in both traditional and "found" spaces. (Same as Visual Arts 175 and Dance 140.)

210c. Shakespeare's Comedies and Romances. Every other year. Fall 2003. MR. WATTERSON.

Examines A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, As You Like It, The Winter's Tale, and The Tempest in light of Renaissance genre theory. (Same as English 210.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

211c. Shakespeare's Tragedies and Roman Plays. Every other year. Spring 2004. MR. WATTERSON.

Examines Hamlet, Othello, Macbeth, King Lear, Julius Caesar, Antony and Cleopatra, and Coriolanus in light of recent critical thought. Special attention is given to psychoanalysis, new historicism, and genre theory. (Same as English 211.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

[212c. Shakespeare's History Plays.]

220c. Acting II. Every year. Fall 2003. MS. CAMPBELL.

An intermediate course extending the work of Acting I. Students research and present a variety of scenes from classical and contemporary texts, with emphasis placed on the link between language and emotional truth. Text analysis is accompanied by rigorous voice and movement work to provide students with a practical approach to scene work.

Prerequisite: Previous 100-level theater course.

223c. Renaissance Drama. Fall 2003. MR. KITCH.

Examines a wide range of non-Shakespearean drama from all genres, with specific attention to the history of dramatic form, the development of staging techniques, the expansion of classical genres, and the representation of class, gender, racial ideologies. Readings include Thomas Kyd, Christopher Marlowe, Ben Jonson, Thomas Dekker, John Ford, Francis Beaumont, Elizabeth Cary, and John Webster. Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department. (Same as English 223.)

230c. Restoration and Eighteenth-Century Drama. Every other year. Fall 2004. Ms. KIBBIE.

This study of English drama from 1660 to the end of the eighteenth century focuses on a variety of dramatic modes, including Restoration comedy, heroic tragedy, "she-tragedy," and sentimental comedy. Authors may include Wycherley, Etherege, Behn, Congreve, Shadwell, Dryden, Rowe, Otway, Centlivre, Inchbald, Addison, Steele, Sheridan, and Goldsmith. (Same as English 230.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in the English department.

[236c. Opera.]

240c. Improvisation. Every other year. Spring 2005. Ms. BERG.

Improvisation is a fundamental tool used by dancers, musicians, actors, writers, and other artists to explore the language of a medium and to develop new work. An interdisciplinary introduction to some of the primary forms of improvisation used in dance and theater. Content includes theater games, narrative exercises, contact improvisation, and choreographic structures.

Prerequisite: Previous 100-level theater or dance course.

250c. Acting Shakespeare. Every other year. Fall 2004. MR. ROBINSON.

An acting course with emphasis on the theatrical use of verse and heightened language, understanding Elizabethan culture, and the creation of contemporary theatrical productions from classical texts by Shakespeare and his contemporaries. Vigorous voice and movement work, combined with dramaturgical research, results in a workshop production of a classical play to be performed for the public at the end of the semester.

[262c. Drama and Performance in the Twentieth Century.]

270c. Directing. Every year. Spring 2004. MR. ROBINSON.

Introduces students to the major principles of play direction, including conceiving a production, script analysis, staging, casting, and rehearsing with actors. Attention is also paid to collaborating with designers. Students study directing theories and techniques, and complete the course by conceiving, casting, rehearsing, and presenting short plays of their choosing. A final research and rehearsal portfolio is required.

Prerequisite: Previous 100-level course in theater or dance.

280c,d. Self on Stage: The Nô Theater. Spring 2004. MR. NISHIUCHI.

Examines Zeami, a medieval aesthetician of the Nô theater. In particular, considers the self, emerging in the theatrical way in which "actor" and "spectator" encounter each other to disappear into "empty." Gadamer's "playing field" and Nietzsche's "tragedy" are considered as possible means of interpretation. (Same as Asian Studies 280.)

320c. Advanced Performance Theory and Practice: Theater Styles. Spring 2004. MR. ROBINSON.

An advanced acting class that explores issues of style. What is Tragedy? Farce? Melo-drama? Commedia? Realism? The Absurd? Through research, analysis, and scene work in class, students become familiar with a range of theatrical idioms. Emphasis is placed on understanding the social/cultural needs that give rise to a particular style, and the way in which style is used in contemporary theater to support or subvert a text.

Prerequisite: Previous 100-level theater course and an additional course in theater or dance, preferably at the 200 level.

321c. Advanced Performance Theory and Practice: Comedy in Performance. Every third year. Spring 2005. MR. ROBINSON.

Looks at several facets of comedy on stage, from its origins in Greek and Roman theater to contemporary comic forms. Theory is combined with practical exercises in clowning, satire, physical comedy, wit, timing, phrasing, and partner work to develop a comic vocabulary for interpreting both scripted and original work. Students work in solos, duets, and groups to create final performance projects that are presented to the public at the end of the semester.

Prerequisite: Previous 100-level theater course and an additional course in theater or dance, preferably at the 200 level.

322c. Advanced Performance Theory and Practice: Ensemble Performance. Every third year. Spring 2006. MR. ROBINSON.

An opportunity for theater and dance students to work together on an original performance piece. Examines other groups in dance and theater that have developed similar works based on literature, current events, and personal experience. Students research and explore a theme together to build a work that blurs the boundaries between theater and dance, using a combination of physical and narrative exercises to develop the score/script. Students build the piece collaboratively over the semester and present it at the end of the term. (Same as Dance 322.)

Prerequisite: Previous 100-level theater or dance course and an additional theater or dance course, preferably at the 200 level.

325c. Viewing and Re-viewing Theater and Dance: Critical Perspectives on the Performing Arts. Every third year. Spring 2006. MS. VAIL.

Investigates critical perspectives on the performing arts and develops writing skills such as description, analysis, evaluation, and interpretation. Video, film, and live performances provide the basis for reviews and essays. Combines theory and practice in developing modes of reflexive critical response that acknowledge the participation of the observer in the creation of both event and commentary. (Same as Dance 321.)

Prerequisite: Previous full-credit course in dance or theater, or permission of the instructor.

360c. Playwriting. Alternate years. Fall 2004. MS. BERG.

A workshop in writing for contemporary theater. Includes introductory exercises in writing monologues, dialogue, and scenes, then moves to the writing and revising of a short play, a solo performance piece, or a staged adaptation of existing material. Students read plays and performance texts, considering how writers use speech, silence, and action; how they structure plays and performance pieces; and how they approach character and plot. (Same as English 360.)

Prerequisite: Previous 100-level course in theater or dance or permission of the instructor.

291c–294c. Intermediate Independent Study in Theater. THE DEPARTMENT.

The Women's Studies curriculum is an interdisciplinary program that incorporates recent research done on women and gender. Women's studies combines the scholarly traditions of each field in new and productive ways to develop a culture of critical thinking about sexuality, gender, race, and class. Courses in women's studies investigate the experience of women in light of the social construction of gender and its meaning across cultures and historic periods. Gender construction is explored as an institutionalized means of structuring inequality and dominance. The program offers a wide range of courses taught by faculty members from many departments and programs.

Requirements for the Major in Women's Studies

The major consists of ten courses, including three required core courses—Women's Studies 101, 201, and either 300 or 301—that are designed to illuminate the diverse realities of women's experience while making available some of the main currents of feminist thought.

The seven remaining courses for the major may be chosen from the set of women's studies courses, or from a set of courses in other disciplines that have been approved by the Women's Studies Program Committee to count towards the major. Of the seven courses, at least two must be listed as "same as" women's studies courses. Women's studies courses are numbered to indicate both the level of course instruction and the degree of emphasis on feminist theory. The general level of instruction is indicated by the first number, so that courses below 30 are first-year seminars, 100–199 are general introductory courses, 200–290 are general intermediate-level courses, and 300 and above are advanced seminars intended for juniors and seniors. Within each level, numbers above 50 indicate courses with a substantive feminist-theoretical or gender-analytic approach. Four of these seven courses must be selected to constitute a focused methodological and thematic concentration that will culminate in a required project or presentation in the student's final semester.

A student who declares a women's studies major will design a concentration in consultation with the director of women's studies. In the concentration, the student uses the methodologies and perspectives of related disciplines to develop a focused expertise in gender analysis. For example, a student might choose a concentration in literature and gender analysis, or in the historical development of gender relations and the cultural representation of gender.

The student will take three additional women's studies courses or courses approved by the program committee outside the concentration that explore other methodologies, themes, or questions of gender, thus allowing the student to gain multidisciplinary breadth. In total, no more than three of the seven elective courses (courses within the concentration and courses outside the concentration) may be from the same department. In case of elective courses that are listed as related women's studies courses, the departmental affiliation of the course is considered the department of which the instructor is a member.

During the spring of their junior year, students who wish to undertake an honors project must secure the agreement of a faculty member to supervise their independent studies project. The honors project supervisor must have taught women's studies courses and served on the Women's Studies Program Committee. If the student's chosen supervisor has not fulfilled both of these requirements, the student may appeal for permission from that committee. Two semesters of advanced independent study (Women's Studies 401 and 402) are required for an honors project in women's studies. No more than two independent studies courses may count toward the women's studies major.

Requirements for the Minor

The minor consists of Women's Studies 101 and 201, normally taken in the first or second year, and three additional courses. Students may count courses in their major, but may count only two courses from any given discipline.

First-Year Seminars

For a full description of first-year seminars, see pages 135–45.

17c. Portraits of the Marys: The Virgin Mary and Mary Magdalene in Academic Perspectives. Spring 2004. Ms. DENZEY.

(Same as Religion 18.)

20c. In Sickness and in Health: Public Health in Europe and the United States. Fall 2003. Ms. TANANBAUM.

(Same as History 20.)

[21c. The Great Soviet Experiment through Film.]

Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced Courses

101b. Introduction to Women's Studies. Fall 2003. Ms. GHODSEE. Spring 2004. Ms. SCANLON.

An interdisciplinary introduction to the issues, perspectives, and findings of the new scholarship that examines the role of gender in the construction of knowledge. The course explores what happens when women become the subjects of study; what is learned about women; what is learned about gender; and how disciplinary knowledge itself is changed.

102c. Cultural Choreographies: An Introduction to Dance. Every year. Fall 2003. Ms. VAIL.

Dancing is a fundamental human activity, a mode of communication, and a basic force in social life. This course is primarily concerned with dance and movement as aesthetic and cultural phenomena. Explores how dance forms and movement activities reveal information about cultural norms and values and affect social perspectives in our own and other societies. Using ethnographic methods, focuses on how dancing maintains and creates conceptions of one's own body, gender relationships, and personal and group identities. Examines dance and movement forms from different cultures and epochs—for example, the hula, New England contradance, classical Indian dance, Balkan kolos, ballet, contact improvisation, and African American dance forms from swing to hip-hop—through readings, performances, workshops in the studio, and field work. (Same as Dance 101.)

103c. Women in Performance. Fall 2003. Ms. BERG.

An exploration of women on stage—as characters, performers, playwrights, directors, designers, and technicians. Reflecting their studies and personal experiences, students engage in historical research and in-class studio work that culminates in performance projects at the end of the semester. (Same as Theater 103.)

201b. Feminist Theory and Methodology. Fall 2003. Ms. SCANLON.

The history of women's studies and its transformation into gender studies and feminist theory has always included a tension between creating "woman," and political and theoretical challenges to that unity. This course examines that tension in two dimensions: the development of critical perspectives on gender and power relations both within existing fields of knowledge, and within the continuous evolution of feminist discourse itself.

Prerequisite: Women's Studies 101 or permission of the instructor.

204b. Families: A Comparative Perspective. Spring 2005. Ms. RILEY.

Examines families in different societies. Issues addressed include definition and concept of the "family"; different types of family systems; the interaction of family change and other social, economic, and political change; the relationships between families and other social institutions; the role of gender and age in family relationships; and sources and outcomes of stability, conflict, and dissolution within families. (Same as Sociology 204.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

206b. The Archaeology of Gender and Ethnicity. Fall 2003. Ms. SHAW.

Explores the lives of "people without history," using archaeological data and emphasizing gender and ethnicity. Focuses on the Americas, and covers both prehistoric and post-conquest archaeological site research, including Maya, Inca, Native American, and African American examples. The long temporal aspect of archaeological data allows exploration of such issues as how gender inequality developed in emerging civilizations, how European contact affected indigenous gender roles within the economy, and how enslaved peoples maintained and reinforced an ethnic identity. (Same as Anthropology 206.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or 102, or permission of the instructor.

209c,d. Gender in Islam. Spring 2004. Ms. BUCKLEY.

Explores categories for interpreting, first, female symbolism in Islamic thought and practice and, second, women's religious, legal, and political status in Islam. Attention is given to statements about women in the Qur'an, as well as other traditional and current Islamic texts. Emphasis on analysis of gender in public vs. private spheres, individual vs. society, Islamization vs. modernization/Westernization, and the placement/displacement of women in the traditionally male-dominated Islamic power structures. Religion 208 is helpful, though not a prerequisite for this course. (Same as Religion 209.)

217c. Dostoevsky or Tolstoy. Fall 2003. Ms. KNOX-VOINA AND MR. MILLER.

This team-taught two-part course explores and compares two giants of Russian literature, Lev Tolstoy and Fyodor Dostoevsky. Their works are read for their significance, both to Russian cultural history and to European thought; special attention is paid to the portrayal of women and women's issues in both authors.

Part I studies Dostoevsky's quest for guiding principles of freedom and love in a world of growing violence, cynicism and chaos of late tsarist Russia. "The Woman Question" emerges as a constant subject: Dostoevsky particularly concerned himself with the suffering of poor and humiliated women. A close reading of several short works and the novel Brothers Karamazov set in their historical, intellectual framework. Emphasis on the novelist's struggle between Western materialistic individualism and Eastern voluntary self-renunciation. Examines Dostoevsky's "fantastic realism" as a polyphony of voices, archetypes, and religious symbols.

Part II studies Tolstoy's development both as a novelist and a moral philosopher. Examines several works, the most important being the novel Anna Karenina, with special emphasis on the tension between Tolstoy-the-artist and Tolstoy-the-moralist. Discussion of the writer's role as "the conscience of Russia" in the last thirty years of his life, as well as his influence on such figures as Gandhi and Martin Luther King.

Screening of Russian, American, Italian and Japanese film versions. (Same as Russian 224.)

218b. Sex and Socialism: Gender and Political Ideologies of the Twentieth Century. Spring 2004. Ms. GHODSEE.

Focuses on gender issues in nations whose social, cultural, political, and economic histories have been shaped and/or influenced by Marxist-Leninism. Begins with a thorough examination of socialist ideas about the role of men and women in society and how these ideas evolved over time in the different countries and regions. The practical ramifications of these ideologies are studied through a survey of policies, programs, and projects that were implemented by socialist governments around the world. Addresses how socialist ideologies of gender influenced everything from the rise of the second wave feminists in the United States to the political ascendance of the Taliban in Afghanistan. Considers the political and economic changes that have occurred after the collapse of the Soviet Union. Specifically deals with issues of race, class, religion, ethnicity, sexuality, and gerontocracy, as they directly relate to the (re)construction of identity taking place throughout former and/or transitioning socialist countries.

219b. Sociology of Gender. Spring 2004. Ms. CADGE.

Focuses on gender as an organizing principle of societies, and examines how gender is involved in and related to differences and inequalities in social roles, gender identity, sexual orientation, and social constructions of knowledge. Explores the role of gender in institutional structures including the economy and the family. Particular attention is paid to the sexual differentiation of language, sex inequality and sex segregation in the workplace, the global feminization of poverty, and compulsory heterosexuality and the experiences of lesbians and gay men. (Same as Sociology 219.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, and Women's Studies 101 or a 200-level sociology course.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

[221c. Soviet Worker Bees, Revolution, and Red Love in Russian Film.]

[222c. Women in Russian Society and Culture.]

[223b. Cultural Interpretations of Medicine.]

224b. Introduction to Human Population. Fall 2004. Ms. RILEY.

An introduction to the major issues in the study of population. Focuses on the social aspects of the demographic processes of fertility, mortality, and migration. Also examines population change in Western Europe historically, recent demographic changes in Third World countries, population policy, and the social and environmental causes and implications of changes in births, deaths, and migration. (Same as Environmental Studies 222 and Sociology 222.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101.

227b,d. Women and World Development. Fall 2003. Ms. GHODSEE.

Makes an interdisciplinary and critical survey of the previous development paradigms and their diverse and wide-ranging consequences. Using literary, journalistic, theoretical, and visual texts, first examines the issues and experiences of women in the "developing" and "transitioning" world through their own words. Then reviews the major theoretical underpinnings of the "Women and Development," "Women in Development," and "Gender and Development" movements and the critiques that they have engendered over the previous three decades. Also explores women's issues in the post-modern context, looking at the emerging challenges that late capitalist globalization, neo-liberal economic hegemony, and self-redefining nationalisms and fundamentalisms pose to the way that women ultimately experience their lives and societies.

228b. Language, Culture, and Emotion. Spring 2004. Ms. VAN VLEET.

Explores emotion as shaped by culture and language and as produced in interactions in a variety of social and cultural contexts. Focuses primarily on oral expression. Topics may include language acquisition and childhood; concepts of the self and subjectivity; emotional performances; cross-cultural concepts of emotion; class, gender, and emotional conventions; language and embodiment; bilingualism, solidarity, and cross-cultural communication; affect, literacy, and social transformation; aesthetics. Genres such as gossip, story-telling, sermon and prayer, ceremonial wailing, and love letters are included. Attention is given to the methods of linguistic anthropology. (Same as Anthropology 228.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 and one additional course in anthropology or sociology, or permission of the instructor.

231b. Economics of the Lifecycle. Spring 2004. Ms. CONNELLY.

Considers economic issues that occur at each age as one moves through life, such as economic factors affecting infant mortality around the world, economics of education, career choice, marriage (and divorce), fertility, division of labor in the household, child care, glass ceilings, poverty and wealth, health care, elder care, retirement, and bequests. For each lifecycle stage, samples from economic models relevant to that age, the empirical work that informs our understanding, and the policy questions are considered. Differences in experience based on race, gender, sexuality, income level, and national origin will be an important component. Not open to students who have taken Economics 301. (Same as Economics 231.)

Prerequisite: Economics 101.

237b,d. Family, Gender, and Sexuality in Latin America. Spring 2004. Ms. VAN VLEET.

Focuses on family, gender, and sexuality as windows onto political, economic, social, and cultural issues in Latin America. Topics include indigenous and natural gender ideologies, marriage, race, and class; machismo and masculinity; state and domestic violence; religion and reproductive control; compulsory heterosexuality; AIDS; and cross-cultural conceptions of homosexuality. Takes a comparative perspective and draws on a wide array of sources including ethnography, film, fiction, and historical narrative. (Same as Anthropology 237.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101, or permission of the instructor.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

[240c. English Romanticism I: Radical Sensibility.]241c. English Romanticism II: Romantic Sexualities. Fall 2004. MR. COLLINGS.

Investigates constructions of sexuality in English romantic writing. Examines tales of seduction by supernatural or demonic figures; the sexualized world of the Gothic; the Byronic hero; the yearning for an eroticized muse or goddess; and same-sex desire in travel writing, orientalist fantasy, diary, and realist fiction. Discusses the place of such writing in the history of sexuality, repression, the unconscious, and the sublime. Authors may include Austen, Beckford, Emily Brontë, Burke, Byron, Coleridge, Keats, Lister, Mary Shelley, and Percy Shelley, alongside secondary, theoretical, and historical works. (Same as English 241.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English or Women's Studies.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

243c,d. Central Asia through Film and Literature. Spring 2004. Ms. KNOX-VOINA.

Examination of little known Central Asian peoples of the former Soviet Union and their role in solving cultural, economic, and geopolitical issues facing the twenty-first century. Focus on changes in the socio-economic status of women in the former Soviet Central Asia: Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Tadjikistan, Kyrgyzstan, Turkmenistan, and Mongolia. Discussion of the history and culture of this transit zone linking West to East, Christianity and Islam,

Europe to Asia, for a better understanding of important geopolitical processes occurring in the border regions of the modern world. Examples of Central Asian literature and cinema. Questions include 1) how do politicization and industrialization affect belief systems of indigenous ethnic groups and their attitude toward the environment, and rural or subsistence economies, and 2) what is the significance of this vast area, rich in oil and gas, for the twenty-first century? Films shed light on the culture, history, spirituality (shamanism), environment, and sociopolitical and gender issues of these ethnic groups. (Same as Russian 251.)

[244c. Victorian Genders.]

245c. Bearing the Untold Story: Gender, Race, and Ethnicity in the United States. Fall 2003. Ms. SCANLON.

Women of color are often ignored or pushed to the margins. There is a cost to that absence, obviously, for women of color. As Zora Neale Hurston put it, "There is no agony like bearing an untold story inside you." There is also a cost to those who are not women of color, as women of color are encountered as objects, rather than subjects. Addresses the gaps and explores the histories and contemporary issues affecting women of color and their ethnic/racial communities in the United States. (Same as Africana Studies 245 and History 245.)

246b,d. Activist Voices in India. Spring 2005. Ms. DICKEY.

Examines contemporary social and political activism in India. Focuses on film, essays, and fiction to investigate the ways that political messages are constructed through different media and for specific audiences. Case studies include activism concerning religious conflict, gender inequalities, gay and lesbian identities, and environmental issues. (Same as Asian Studies 248 and Anthropology 248.)

Prerequisite: Anthropology 101 or Sociology 101, and one previous course on contemporary South Asian societies (Anthropology 234, 235; History 256, 258, 259, 288; or Religion 12, 221, 323) or permission of the instructor.

[248c. Music and Gender.]

249c. History of Women's Voices in America. Spring 2004. Ms. McMAHON.

Seminar. Examination of women's voices in America from 1650 to the present, as these emerged in private letters, journals, and memoirs; poetry, short stories, and novels; prescriptive literature, essays, and addresses. Readings from the secondary literature provide a historical framework for examining women's writings. Research projects focus on the form and content of women's literature and the ways that it illuminates women's understandings, reactions, and responses to their historical situation. (Same as History 249.)

Prerequisite: Previous course in history.

250c. Topics in the Eighteenth-Century Novel: Women and the Novel. Spring 2004. Ms. KIBBIE.

How are women represented in eighteenth-century fiction? What is the impact of women readers and women writers on this developing genre? Authors will include Daniel Defoe, Samuel Richardson, Frances Burney and Jane Austen. (Same as English 250.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or one 100-level course in the English Department.

[252b,d. Women, Power, and Identity in India.]

253b. Constructions of the Body. Spring 2005. Ms. BELL.

Explores the body as a reflection and construction of language, a source of metaphor, and a political and social "space." Considers historical and cross-cultural studies about men's and women's bodies, sexuality, gender, and power. Throughout the course, we draw from and compare theories of the body in sociology, women's studies, and gay and lesbian studies. (Same as Sociology 253.)

Prerequisite: Sociology 101 or Anthropology 101, and Women's Studies 101, Gay and Lesbian Studies 201, or a 200-level sociology course.

256c. Women in Religion. Fall 2003. Ms. DENZEY.

Analysis of the ways in which religion authorizes women's oppression and provides opportunities and resources for women's emancipation. Topics include the enforced gender relationships of monotheism; the goddess movement as alternative society; and the conflicts generated among women by racial, class, religious, ethnic, and sexual differences. Materials drawn from Christianity, Neopaganism, Voudon, Judaism, Islam, and Hinduism. (Same as Religion 253.)

[258c. Women and Art in Western Europe and the United States: From Renaissance to Present.][261c. Gender, Film, and Consumer Culture.]*[262c. Drama and Performance in the Twentieth Century.]*263c. Modern British Literatures. Every other year. Fall 2003. Ms. REIZBAUM.

Examines a century of significant writing in the "British Isles" or "United Kingdom" and investigates the national, political, and literary critical shifts in the creation and representation of these literatures. Includes all genres and cuts across national, cultural, and period boundaries. Likely topics include the Great War and "Englishness" (Wilfred Owen, Ezra Pound, Pat Barker), canonic and non-canonic modernisms (T. S. Eliot, Virginia Woolf, James Joyce, Djuna Barnes, Jean Rhys), and the colonial and post-colonial (E.M. Forster, Hanif Kureishi; films by Danny Boyle, Neil Jordan). (Same as English 263.)

Prerequisite: One first-year seminar or 100-level course in English or Women's Studies.

Note: This course is offered as part of the curriculum in Gay and Lesbian Studies.

264c,d. Islamic Societies in Africa. Spring 2004. MR. STAKEMAN.

An examination of Islam as a theological system and as an ideology that orders social relations in some African societies. The course places particular emphasis on the role of women in African Islamic societies. (Same as Africana Studies 264 and History 264.)

266c,d. Women and Writing in Modern China. Fall 2003. Ms. CUI.

Approaches the subject of women and writing in 20th-century China from perspectives of gender studies and literary analysis. Considers women writers and their works in the context of Chinese history and as a challenge to the master narratives of Chinese literary tradition. In addition, constructs a dialogue between Chinese women's texts and Western feminist theory. (Same as Asian Studies 266.)

300b,d. Capstone Seminar: Doing Gender Studies: Research Methodologies and Social Change. Spring 2004. Ms. GHODSEE.

Explores how research and scholarship on gender can be an engine for social change. Students learn how to use the different "tools" of the scholar: interviews, surveys, oral history, archival research, participant observation, and discourse analysis. Through a semester-long research project, each student has a hands-on experience of designing and implementing an in-depth study on the gender issue of the student's choice.

Prerequisite: Open to Women's Studies majors and minors, or with permission of the instructor.

322c. Race, Gender, and Ethnicity in British and European Society. Spring 2004. Ms. TANANBAUM.

An analysis of cultural traditions in Britain and Europe. Explores the impact of immigration on Britain and the Continent, notions of cultural pluralism, and the changing definitions and implications of gender in Britain and Europe from the late eighteenth century to the present. Students undertake a major research project utilizing primary sources. (Same as History 322.)

[323c,d. Voices of Women, Voices of the People.]

291–294. Intermediate Independent Study.401–404. Advanced Independent Study and Honors.

Students may choose from the following list of related courses to satisfy requirements for the major or minor in women's studies. For full course descriptions and prerequisites, see the appropriate department listings.

Educational Resources and Facilities

BOWDOIN COLLEGE LIBRARY

Historically, Bowdoin College Library has been among the more distinguished liberal arts college libraries in the country, known for its outstanding book, journal, and manuscript collections. Today, the Library combines its constantly growing treasury of traditional print material with a wealth of digital information resources. The Library's collections, developed over a period of 200 years, contain nearly 950,000 volumes and include nearly 2,000 current periodical and newspaper subscriptions, 132,000 bound periodical volumes, 40,000 maps, over 35,000 photographs, more than 2,500 linear feet of manuscripts, and over 2,500 linear feet of archival materials. Approximately 15,000 volumes are added annually. Subscriptions to over 130 online indexes and databases provide access to thousands of full-text electronic journals and other information resources.

The Library serves as the intellectual heart of the campus, offering not only this vast array of print collections and electronic sources, but also instructional programs in their use. The Library's World Wide Web-based Gateway (<http://library.bowdoin.edu>), accessible from all campus buildings and through Internet connections worldwide, serves as a central portal to electronic online information in the library and around the globe: the Bowdoin library catalog, the catalog holdings of the Colby and Bates college libraries, and other libraries in Maine, around the United States, and throughout the world; electronic periodical indexes in a broad range of disciplines; the Library's subscriptions to hundreds of electronic full-text journals; electronic course reserve readings; and links to hundreds of additional e-text journals, reference works, and research collections. The Library Web Gateway also provides links to the enormous assortment of text, recordings, and images available on the Web.

Librarians and faculty members work together to teach research skills and to encourage the use of library and electronic resources throughout the curriculum. Librarians provide an active instruction program, training students how to effectively locate information by searching online indexes, full-text database services, and the Web, as well as the library catalog and print resources. Librarians also create Web pages offering research strategies for specific courses, and guides to resources for the major fields taught at Bowdoin.

The Library provides a number of services that extend access to resources not held locally. Through an active interlibrary loan program, materials arrive daily from the library collections of Colby and Bates colleges, and from other libraries in Maine and beyond, often incorporating the use of Ariel and other high-speed, high-resolution electronic document delivery services. The Web-based library catalogs of Colby, Bates, and Bowdoin and other Maine libraries may be searched simultaneously, and students and faculty may place their interlibrary loan requests online for materials held by libraries worldwide.

Hawthorne-Longfellow Library, the main library, houses humanities and social sciences materials, which comprise the majority of the collection. The Library also includes four branch libraries: the Hatch Science Library, the William Pierce Art Library, the Robert Beckwith Music Library, and the Language Media Center. The Hawthorne-Longfellow Library building, which was opened in the fall of 1965, was expanded in 1985 to connect to Hubbard Hall, which contains five stack tiers topped by the Albert Abrahamson Reading Room; further remodeling of Hawthorne-Longfellow occurred in 1993-94. A major renovation project, completed in the fall of 2001, transformed the Library into a more inviting and comfortable campus center. The Library now provides additional individual and group student study spaces, a technology commons in the reference area, increased network access, wireless connections throughout the building for laptop use and expanded electronic services, improved instructional facilities, and a handsomely renovated reading room with network connections in the George J. Mitchell Department of Special Collections & Archives.

Among the amenities in Hawthorne-Longfellow Library are an alcove offering new titles, works by Bowdoin authors, a small children's corner for very young visitors, and an audio book collection. Exhibition cases feature displays of interest to students and visitors. Bright, refurbished reading areas, including a new, casual seating area under a central atrium, afford attractive reading and study space, and the reference area offers banks of computer workstations, reference books and bibliographies, CD-ROM databases, and other indexes that support research use of the collections.

The Library provides a variety of new facilities to support the integration of technology into teaching and research. These include a nineteen-station computer laboratory; a newly equipped and expanded twenty-five-seat electronic classroom for instruction in online resources and the use of general and instructional software; a multi-media production drop-in lab; the USG Corporation Library Technology Seminar Room; videoconferencing equipment that enables Colby, Bates, Bowdoin, and other faculty worldwide to team teach, share guest speakers, and collaborate in new ways; and the Chandler Reading Room for literary events, lectures, and student presentations. The Library also hosts the Educational Technology Center, where staff work to integrate technology into the curriculum and research.

The Library's first volumes—a set of the Count Marsigli's Danubius Pannonica-Mysicus, given to the College in 1796 by General Henry Knox—are still a part of its collections. In the early decades of the nineteenth century, Bowdoin College's library was among the largest in the nation, primarily because of extensive gifts of books from the Bowdoin family and the Benjamin Vaughan family of Hallowell, Maine. Today, the Library remains one of the outstanding college libraries of the United States and provides strong support for all of the College's curricular areas. Notable collection strengths lie in British and American history, French and American literature, Arctic studies, Maine history and Maine writers, anti-slavery and the Civil War, World War I, and modern European history.

The beautifully renovated George J. Mitchell Department of Special Collections & Archives includes rare books and manuscripts, archives documenting the history of the College, and the Senator George J. Mitchell Papers related to the career of the former U.S. Senate majority leader (Class of 1954). These collections are described on the World Wide Web at <http://library.bowdoin.edu/arch>.

The books, manuscripts, photographs, and other research materials in Special Collections serve an important function in introducing undergraduates—in their research projects, class assignments, and other independent work—to the experience of performing original research and evaluating primary source materials. In addition to the Bowdoin and Vaughan collections of early imprints are extensive published and manuscript materials by and about Nathaniel Hawthorne and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, both members of the Class of 1825; books, periodicals, and pamphlets of the French Revolution period; the elephant-folio edition of John James Audubon's Birds of America; E. S. Curtis's The North American Indian; a broad representation of early American and early Maine imprints; the work of three distinguished Maine presses: the Mosher Press, the Southworth Press, and the Anthoensen Press; artists' books by Maine artists; and the Maine Afro-American Archive, a depository for rare books, manuscripts, letters, and other works about slavery, abolitionism, and Afro-American life in Maine.

Records of political figures include materials related to Bowdoin alumni William Pitt Fessenden (Class of 1823) and Ralph Owen Brewster (Class of 1909). Special Collections also includes the Bliss collection of books on travel, French and British architecture, and the history of art and architecture, all housed in the exquisite Susan Dwight Bliss Room in Hubbard Hall.

Other remarkable manuscript collections include the papers of General Oliver Otis Howard (Class of 1850), director of the Freedmen's Bureau; papers of prominent Bowdoin faculty and most of Bowdoin's presidents, especially Jesse Appleton, Joshua L. Chamberlain, William DeWitt Hyde, and Kenneth Charles Morton Sills; and writings by Kenneth Roberts, Robert Peter Tristram Coffin, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Elijah Kellogg, and such contemporary authors as Vance Bourjaily, John Gould, John Pullen, and Francis Russell. Access to all of these collections is enhanced by descriptive information on the library's Web site.

In 1993, the Bowdoin College Archives were established in Special Collections through grants from the National Historical Publications and Records Commission and the Albert and Elaine Borchard Foundation. The archives serve both as a repository for two centuries of the College's historical records and as a vital information center for the campus and the larger scholarly community, and students frequently incorporate archival material into their research.

The Hatch Science Library, opened in the spring of 1991, offers science-related materials, including periodicals, microforms, maps, government documents, a wealth of indexes and full-text resources, online database searching, and a full range of reference and instructional services to faculty and students. The building accommodates readers at individual carrels, study tables, informal seating areas, seminar rooms, and faculty studies.

The William Pierce Art Library and the Robert Beckwith Music Library, housing small departmental collections in art and music respectively, are located adjacent to the offices of those departments. The glass-wrapped Art Library provides an elevated view over the campus green. The Music Library, which was renovated and expanded in 1994, offers a handsome study room with computer and listening stations, and houses scores, sound recordings, videos, and books about music.

Library operations and the development of its collections and services are supported by the general funds of the College and by gifts from alumni, other friends of the Library and the College, and by foundations. In 1998, the Hawthorne-Longfellow Library was awarded a $500,000 Challenge Grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities toward the building renovations completed in 2001, and to establish endowments for future purchases of information resources in the humanities. The Library benefits from the income of more than a hundred endowed gifts, and it also receives generous donations annually, both of library materials and of funds to support the immediate purchase of printed works and electronic resources that the Library would otherwise be unable to acquire.

INSTRUCTIONAL MEDIA SERVICES

Instructional Media Services, an administrative unit of the Library, coordinates the services of the Language Media Center and Audiovisual Services to support academic and administrative programs.

The Language Media Center, in the basement of Sills Hall, provides audio, video, and multimedia facilities to support the teaching of foreign languages. The center houses a major part of the Library collection of audiovisual materials, with special strength in the areas of foreign culture and film. It is equipped with a Tandberg audio-active language laboratory; twenty monitors and players for individual viewing of videodiscs and all international standards of videocassettes and DVD; and fourteen networked Macintosh computers with a variety of language-instructional software. A connected room featuring high-resolution video/data display accommodates up to thirty people for group viewing of multimedia productions and teleconferences. Foreign-language broadcasts received by seven satellite dishes are directed to the lobby of the Language Media Center and to classrooms and faculty offices in Sills Hall. A campus video network allows for the broadcast of these signals to all classrooms and dormitories. A gift from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation in 1996 to the foreign language departments of Bowdoin, Bates, and Colby Colleges supported the joint development of new multimedia applications and faculty development centers housed in each institution's foreign language resource center. An additional gift from Mellon supported the creation of a three-way videoconferencing system to support administrative and academic projects among the institutions.

Audiovisual Services, housed in Coles Tower, supports the academic program by providing and maintaining an array of portable and installed instructional technologies. Support also is provided for a wide range of co-curricular activities.

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Bowdoin places a strong emphasis on the role of technology in the academic program and understands the vital importance of a coherent and coordinated information system solution to support Bowdoin's academic mission. The Chief Information Officer manages the technology budget and coordinates technology for all departments at the College.

Staff of the IT department work with faculty to enhance their teaching and research with innovative uses of technology. They provide technical, design, editorial, and project development opportunities for faculty and monitor trends in educational technology, such as new techniques introduced by online education, the impact of technology on student learning, and the evolving architectural standards of educational products and resources.

Additionally, IT staff provide secure personal email accounts; high speed Internet access in all dorm rooms, offices, and most public areas; wireless networking in some areas; video conferencing capability; cable television; telephone systems; and voice mail. They also provide a full-time Help Desk that includes a student-run help desk (REACH), and site-licensed software such as Microsoft Office Professional.

In addition to sixteen academic department computer labs, there are nine public labs and more than two hundred publicly available computers. The labs are fully equipped with Windows, Macintosh, or Linux computers; printing is available in most labs.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE MUSEUM OF ART

An art collection has existed at Bowdoin almost since the founding of the College. It came into existence through the 1811 bequest of James Bowdoin III and was one of the earliest to be formed in the United States. Bowdoin's gift consisted of two portfolios containing 141 old master drawings, among which was a superb landscape attributed to Pieter Bruegel the Elder, and 70 paintings. A group of Bowdoin family portraits was bequeathed in 1826 by James Bowdoin III's widow, Sarah Bowdoin Dearborn. Through the years, the collection has been expanded through the generosity of alumni, College friends, and members of the Bowdoin family, and now numbers 14,000 art objects.

Although various parts of the College's art collection were on view during the first half of the nineteenth century, it was not until 1855 that a special gallery devoted to the collection came into being in the College Chapel. This gallery was made possible by a gift from Theophilus Wheeler Walker of Boston, a cousin of President Leonard Woods. It was as a memorial to Walker that his two nieces, Harriet Sarah and Mary Sophia Walker, donated funds in 1891 for the present museum building, designed by Charles Follen McKim of McKim, Mead & White. Four murals of Athens, Rome, Florence, and Venice by John La Farge, Elihu Vedder, Abbott Thayer, and Kenyon Cox, respectively, were commissioned to decorate the museum's rotunda.

The museum holds an important collection of American colonial and federal portraits, including works by Smibert, Feke, Blackburn, Copley, Stuart, Trumbull, and Sully. Among the five examples by Robert Feke is the full-length likeness of Brigadier General Samuel Waldo, generally regarded as the finest American portrait of the first half of the eighteenth century. The nine paintings by Gilbert Stuart include pendant portraits of Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. Colonial and Federal Portraits at Bowdoin College, published in 1966, describes this collection in detail.

The College's collection of ancient art contains sculpture, vases, terra cottas, bronzes, gems, coins, and glass of all periods of the ancient world. The most notable benefactor in this area was Edward Perry Warren, L.H.D. '26, the leading American collector of classical antiquities of the first quarter of the twentieth century. Five magnificent ninth-century B.C. Assyrian reliefs from the Palace of Ashurnazirpal II, an acquisition facilitated for the College by Henri Byron Haskell M1855, are installed in the museum's rotunda. Ancient Art in Bowdoin College, published in 1964, describes these holdings.

The College has been the recipient of a Samuel H. Kress Study Collection of twelve Renaissance paintings; a large collection of medals and plaquettes presented by Amanda Marchesa Molinari; a fine group of European and American pictures and decorative arts given by John H. Halford '07 and Mrs. Halford; a collection of Chinese and Korean ceramics given by Governor William Tudor Gardiner, LL.D. '45, and Mrs. Gardiner; and a collection of nineteen paintings and 168 prints by John Sloan bequeathed by George Otis Hamlin.

The College's Winslow Homer Collection comprises works of art and memorabilia pertaining to the artist's career. In the fall of 1964, a gift from the Homer family brought to Bowdoin the major portion of the memorabilia remaining in the artist's studio at Prout's Neck, letters written over a period of many years to members of his family, and photographs of friends, family, and Prout's Neck. A large collection of wood engravings was later purchased to augment these holdings and to create a center for the scholarly study of the life and career of this important American artist.

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, the museum acquired through gift and purchase a survey collection of paintings, drawings, and prints by the American artist and illustrator Rockwell Kent.

The permanent collections also contain fine examples of the work of such nineteenth-century and twentieth-century American artists as Martin Johnson Heade, Eastman Johnson, George Inness, Thomas Eakins, John Singer Sargent, William Glackens, Marsden Hartley, Jack Tworkov, Arshile Gorky, Alexander Calder, Franz Kline, Andrew Wyeth, D.F.A. '70, Leonard Baskin, and Alex Katz. A recent bequest has added important European modernist works by Picasso, Matisse, Braque, Magritte, Matta, and Miro.

In 1982, the museum published the Handbook of the Collections, dedicated to the memory of John H. Halford '07. In 1985, a comprehensive catalogue of the College's permanent collection of old master drawings was published. The Architecture of Bowdoin College, an illustrated guide to the campus by Patricia McGraw Anderson, was published in 1988.

During 1993-94, the Museum of Art commemorated the bicentennial of Bowdoin College and the centennial of the Walker Art Building with the publication of a book titled The Legacy of James Bowdoin III and a series of major exhibitions. The book includes scholarly essays on the career and collections of the College's first patron, who was a merchant, agriculturalist, politician, and President Jefferson's minister to Spain. Additional essays discuss the campus life of the art collections left by James Bowdoin to the College, the intellectual foundations of the American college museum, the commission for the art building given by the sisters Harriet Sarah and Mary Sophia Walker in memory of their uncle Theophilus Wheeler Walker, and Walker family history.

In addition to exhibitions of the permanent collections, a lively temporary exhibition program, often featuring contemporary art, is designed to place the collections in larger contexts and expand traditional ways of seeing. Recent major exhibitions include Brutal Beauty: The Paintings of Walton Ford; two video installations by the anti-apartheid South African artist William Kentridge; Reflections in Black: African-American Photography—The First 100 Years; Simple Pleasures, a site-specific sculpture on the quad by North Carolina artist Patrick Dougherty; The Prints of Andy Warhol; and The Culture of Violence. Smaller exhibitions are organized with faculty and student involvement to supplement specific courses.

The College lends art objects in the custody of the museum to other institutions throughout the United States and, occasionally, to institutions abroad. The museum also sponsors educational programs including gallery talks and lectures to foster dialogue about the permanent collections and temporary exhibitions.

A group of volunteers conducts tours and assists the museum staff with clerical activities and educational programs. The museum recently was awarded a challenge grant by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation that permanently endows an internship at the museum for recent art history graduates to encourage use of the art collections in a broad variety of courses across the disciplines at the College.

In 1993, the Winslow Homer Seminar Room was established at the request of students for closer study and examination of works of art normally in storage. During the academic year, this space is used actively by faculty and students for course work and/or independent research projects. The museum is scheduled to undergo a major renovation that will provide full climate control, as well as improved and expanded exhibition, storage, and teaching spaces.

THE PEARY-MACMILLAN ARCTIC MUSEUM AND ARCTIC STUDIES CENTER

The Peary-MacMillan Arctic Museum was founded in honor of two famous Arctic explorers and Bowdoin alumni, Admirals Robert E. Peary (Class of 1877) and Donald B. MacMillan (Class of 1898). On April 6, 1909, after a lifetime of Arctic exploration, Peary became the first person to reach the North Pole. MacMillan was a crew member on that North Pole expedition. Between 1908 and 1954, MacMillan explored Labrador, Baffin Island, Ellesmere Island, and Greenland. Most of his expeditions were made on board the Bowdoin, a schooner he designed for work in ice-laden northern waters. MacMillan took college students on the expeditions and introduced them to the natural history and anthropology of the North. He was not the first to involve Bowdoin students in Arctic exploration, however. In 1860, Paul A. Chadbourne, a professor of chemistry and natural history, had sailed along the Labrador and West Greenland coasts with students from Williams and Bowdoin.

The museum's collections include equipment, paintings, and photographs relating to the history of Arctic exploration, natural history specimens, and artifacts and drawings made by Inuit and Indians of Arctic North America. The museum has large collections of ethnographic photographs and films recording past lifeways of Native Americans taken on the expeditions of MacMillan and Robert Bartlett, an explorer and captain who sailed northern waters for nearly fifty years. Diaries, logs, and correspondence relating to the museum's collections are housed in the Special Collections section of the Hawthorne-Longfellow Library.

The museum, established in 1967, is located on the first floor of Hubbard Hall. The building was named for General Thomas Hubbard of the Class of 1857, a generous benefactor of the College and financial supporter of Peary's Arctic ventures. The museum's galleries were designed by Ian M. White, former director of the Fine Arts Museum of San Francisco, who sailed with MacMillan in 1950. Generous donations from members of the Class of 1925, together with gifts from George B. Knox of the Class of 1929, a former trustee, and other interested alumni and friends, made the museum a reality. Continued support from friends of the College and the Kane Lodge Foundation, and federal and state grants have allowed the museum to continue to grow.

The Arctic Studies Center was established in 1985 as a result of a generous matching grant from the Russell and Janet Doubleday Foundation to endow the directorship of the center, in recognition of the Doubledays' close relationship to MacMillan. The center links the resources of the museum and library with teaching and research efforts, and hosts traveling exhibitions, lectures, workshops, and educational outreach projects. Through course offerings, field research programs, employment opportunities, and special events, the center promotes anthropological, archaeological, geological, and environmental investigations of the North.

RESEARCH, TEACHING, AND CONFERENCE FACILITIES

The Bowdoin Pines

Adjacent to the campus on either side of the Bath Road is a 33-acre site known as the Bowdoin Pines. Cathedral white pines, some of them 135 years old, tower over the site, which is a rare example of one of Maine's few remaining old-growth forests. For biology students, the Pines provides an easily accessible outdoor laboratory. For other students, the site offers a place for a walk between classes, an inspirational setting for creating art, or simply a bit of solitude. A system of trails within the Pines makes the site accessible to students and community members.

Bowdoin Scientific Station

The College maintains a scientific field station on Kent Island, off Grand Manan Island, in the Bay of Fundy, New Brunswick, Canada, where qualified students can conduct research in ecology, animal behavior, marine biology, botany, geology, and meteorology. The 200-acre island was presented to the College in 1935 by John Sterling Rockefeller. Since then, the field station has built an international reputation, with more than 150 publications based on research at Kent Island, many of them co-authored by Bowdoin students.

Kent Island is a major seabird breeding ground. Its location makes it a concentration point for migrating birds in spring and fall. The famous Fundy tides create excellent opportunities for the study of marine biology. The island also features a variety of terrestrial habitats.

Although formal courses are not offered at the station, students from Bowdoin and other institutions select problems for investigation on Kent Island during the summer and conduct independent field work with the advice and assistance of the director, Professor Nathaniel Wheelwright. Students have the opportunity to collaborate with faculty members and graduate students from numerous universities and colleges. Three-day field trips to Kent Island are a feature of Bowdoin's courses in ecology and ornithology.

Breckinridge Public Affairs Center

The Breckinridge Public Affairs Center is a 23-acre estate on the tidal York River in York, Maine. Owned and operated by Bowdoin College, the center is used for classes, seminars, and meetings of educational, cultural, and civic groups. Business and professional organizations also use the facility for planning sessions and staff development activities. The center includes a 25-room main house, a clay tennis court, and a 110-foot, circular, saltwater swimming pool. River House, which accommodates 19 overnight guests, was designed by Guy Lowell in 1905 and is on the National Register of Historic Places. The estate was given to Bowdoin in 1974 by Marvin Breckinridge Patterson, whose husband was the Honorable Jefferson Patterson of St. Leonard, Maryland. Named in honor of Mrs. Patterson's family, the estate is available for use April 1 through Thanksgiving, each year.

Coastal Studies Center

The Coastal Studies Center occupies a 118-acre coastal site that is about twelve miles from the campus on Orr's Island and known as Thalheimer Farm. The Center is devoted to interdisciplinary teaching and research in archaeology, marine biology, terrestrial ecology, ornithology, and geology.

The Center's facilities include a marine biological laboratory with flowing seawater for laboratory observation of live marine organisms, and a terrestrial ecology laboratory, which serves as a field station for research and study of coastal ecology. These facilities play an active role in Bowdoin's programs in biology, environmental studies, and geology, and the site has been widely used for studio art courses. In addition, the centrally-located farmhouse provides seminar and kitchen facilities where classes from all disciplines can gather in a retreat-like atmosphere that encourages sustained, informal interaction among students and faculty members.

The Coastal Studies Center site is surrounded on three sides by the ocean and encompasses open fields, orchards, and old-growth spruce-fir forest. A 4.5-mile interpretive trail runs through the site, offering students and the local community a glimpse into the cultural and natural history of the property and surrounding coastal waters.

Coleman Farm

During the course of the academic year, students study ecology at a site three miles south of the campus, using an 83-acre tract of College-owned land that extends to a salt marsh and the sea. Numerous habitats of resident birds are found on the property, which is also a stopover point for many migratory species. Because of its proximity to campus, many students visit Coleman Farm for natural history walks, cross-country skiing, and other forms of recreation.

LECTURESHIPS

The regular instruction of the College is supplemented each year by lectures, panel discussions, and other presentations sponsored by the various endowment funds, departments of study, and undergraduate organizations. As of June 30, 2003, these funds included:

John Warren Achorn Lectureship (1928): The income of a fund established by Mrs. John Warren Achorn as a memorial to her husband, a member of the Class of 1879, is used for lectures on birds and bird life.

Charles F. Adams Lectureship (1978): The income of a fund established by the bequest of Charles F. Adams '12 is used to support a lectureship in political science and education.

Beecher-Stowe Family Memorial Fund (1994): The income of a fund established as a memorial to Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of Uncle Tom's Cabin; her husband, Calvin Ellis Stowe (Class of 1824), Elizabeth Collins Professor of Natural and Revealed Religion at the College from 1850 to 1852; and her brother, Charles Beecher (Class of 1834), by Harold Beecher Noyes, great-grandson of Charles Beecher, is used to support a lectureship addressed to "human rights and/or the social and religious significance of parables."

Brodie Family Lecture Fund (1997): Established by Theodore H. Brodie '52, an overseer of the College from 1983 to 1995, this fund is used to bring to campus at least once a year a speaker of note in the field of education, to deliver a message on the subjects of problems and practices of teaching and learning.

Tom Cassidy Lectureship (1991): The income of a fund established by the bequest of Thomas J. Cassidy '72 and memorial gifts of his family, friends, and classmates is used to support a lectureship in journalism.

The Harold and Iris Chandler Lectureship Fund (2001): Established by family and friends in memory of Dr. Harold L. Chandler of the Class of 1934, the income from this fund is used for lectures on the use of technology to enhance teaching and learning in the humanities and on the impact of educational technology on our society.

Dan E. Christie Mathematics Lecture Fund (1976): Established by family, friends, colleagues, and former students in memory of Dan E. Christie '37, a member of the faculty for thirty-three years and Wing Professor of Mathematics from 1965 until his death in 1975, this fund is used to support lectures, courses, or research in the field of mathematics.

Annie Talbot Cole Lectureship (1907): This fund, established by Mrs. Calista S. Mayhew in memory of her niece, Mrs. Samuel Valentine Cole, is used to sponsor a lectureship that contributes "to the ennoblement and enrichment of life by standing for the idea that life is a glad opportunity. It shall, therefore, exhibit and endeavor to make attractive the highest ideals of character and conduct, and also, insofar as possible, foster an appreciation of the beautiful as revealed through nature, poetry, music, and the fine arts."

John C. Donovan Lecture Fund (1990): Established by colleagues, friends, and members of the Donovan family, through the leadership of Shepard Lee '47, this fund is used to support a lecture in the field of political science.

Elliott Oceanographic Fund (1973): Established by the Edward Elliott Foundation and members of the Elliott family in memory of Edward L. Elliott, a practicing geologist and mining engineer who expressed a lifelong interest in science and the sea, this fund promotes oceanographic education, in its widest definition, for Bowdoin students. Part of the fund may be used to support the Elliott Lectures in Oceanography, which were inaugurated in 1971.

Alfred E. Golz Lecture Fund (1970): Established by Ronald A. Golz '56 in memory of his father, this fund is used to support a lecture by an eminent historian or humanitarian to be scheduled close to the November 21 birthday of Alfred E. Golz.

Cecil T. and Marion C. Holmes Mathematics Lecture Fund (1977): Established by friends, colleagues, and former students to honor Cecil T. Holmes, a member of the faculty for thirty-nine years and Wing Professor of Mathematics, this fund is used to support lectures, courses, or research in the field of mathematics.

Karofsky Faculty Encore Lectures (2000): Supported by the Karofsky Family Fund established by Peter S. Karofsky, M.D., '62, Paul I. Karofsky '66, and David M. Karofsky '93 in 1992, the Karofsky Faculty Encore lectures feature one member of the Bowdoin faculty each semester who is selected by members of the senior class to speak at Common Hour.

Arnold D. Kates Lecture Fund (2000): Established by Mark B. Garnick, M.D., '68, a Trustee of the College, and Dr. Barbara Kates Garnick, this fund is used to support periodic lectures, seminars, or colloquia at Bowdoin on scientific topics, with a preference for topics in the biological sciences or aspects related to the health sciences.

Kibbe Science Lecture Fund (1994): This fund, established by Frank W. Kibbe '37 and his wife Lucy K. Kibbe, is used to support lectures by visiting scholars on "topics deemed to be 'on the cutting edge of' or associated with new developments or research findings in the fields of Astronomy or Geology."

Lesbian and Gay Lectureship Fund (1992): Established by members of the Bowdoin Gay and Lesbian Alumni/ae Association, this fund is used to sponsor at least one lecture annually in the field of gay and lesbian studies.

Mayhew Lecture Fund (1923): Established by Mrs. Calista S. Mayhew, this fund is used to provide lectures on bird life and its effect on forestry.

Charles Weston Pickard Lecture Fund (1961): The income of a fund established by John Coleman '22 in memory of his grandfather, a member of the Class of 1857, is used to support lectures, courses, or research in the fields of journalism, communication, or public relations.

Kenneth V. Santagata Memorial Fund (1982): Established by family and friends of Kenneth V. Santagata '73, this fund is used to provide one lecture each semester, rotating in the arts, humanities, and social sciences, with lecturers to be recognized authorities in their respective fields, to present new, novel, or nonconventional approaches to the designated topic in the specified category.

Edith Lansing Koon Sills Lecture Fund (1962): This fund was established by the Society of Bowdoin Women to honor Mrs. Kenneth C. M. Sills, the wife of a former president of Bowdoin College and to sponsor lectures by outstanding women.

The Harry Spindel Memorial Lectureship (1977): Established by the gift of Rosalyn Spindel Bernstein H'97 and the late Sumner Thurman Bernstein in memory of her father, Harry Spindel, as a lasting testimony to his lifelong devotion to Jewish learning, this fund is used to support annual lectures in Judaic studies or contemporary Jewish affairs.

The Jasper Jacob Stahl Lectureship in the Humanities (1970): Established by the bequest of Jasper Jacob Stahl '09, Litt.D. '60, this fund is used "to support a series of lectures to be delivered annually at the College by some distinguished scholarly and gifted interpreter of the Art, Life, Letters, Philosophy, or Culture, in the broadest sense, of the Ancient Hebraic World, or of the Ancient Greek World or of the Roman World, or of the Renaissance in Italy and Europe, or of the Age of Elizabeth I in England, or that of Louis XIV and the Enlightenment in France, or of the era of Goethe in Germany."

Tallman Lecture Fund (1928): Established by Frank G. Tallman, A.M. H'35, as a memorial to the Bowdoin members of his family, this fund is used to support a series of lectures to be delivered by men selected by the faculty. In addition to offering a course for undergraduates, the visiting professor on the Tallman Foundation gives public lectures on the subject of special interest.

Phyllis Marshall Watson Fund (2000): Established by Cheryl McAuley and Sheila Marshall Walton in honor of their friend and sister, respectively. Income from the fund provides research support for honors candidates in the history department, and supports periodic lectures, seminars, or colloquia at Bowdoin on selected topics in history.

PERFORMING ARTS

Music

Music performance at Bowdoin ranges from informal student repertory sessions to professional performances by visiting artists, and from solo recitals to large-scale performances for chorus and orchestra. Many ensembles, such as the Chamber Choir, World Music Ensemble, Bowdoin Chorus, Concert Band, and Chamber Ensembles are part of the curricular program. Other groups, such as the Polar Jazz Big Band and the a cappella vocal groups, are sponsored by students.

The Chamber Choir is a select group of approximately twenty-five singers that performs a wide variety of choral and soloistic music. Its repertoire in the past few years includes Bach's motet Jesu meine Freude, Palestrina's Missa Lauda Sion, music of the African Diaspora and Cuba, and songs by Jimi Hendrix and Reba McEntyre. Recent tours have taken the choir to Europe, South America, England, and Ireland. The Bowdoin Chorus, which tours within the United States, is a choral ensemble composed of students, faculty, staff, and community members. Recent performances by the Chorus include Ernest Bloch's Sacred Service, Rachmaninoff's Liturgy of St. John Chrysostom, Carl Orff's Carmina Burana, and the music of Latin America. Plans for 2003–2004 include two works with orchestra.

Contemporary music receives considerable emphasis at Bowdoin. There are frequent visits by guest composers such as Karel Husa, Pauline Oliveros, Henry Brant, and Thea Musgrave, and the Chamber Choir often performs new music. Student compositions can be heard on campus. The performance of American music has included visits by professional jazz musicians such as pianists Kenny Barron and Renée Rosnes, and saxophone virtuoso Kenneth Radnofsky.

Other visiting artists in recent years have included Stanley Ritchie, Mark O'Connor, the Renée Rosnes Quartet, Yoko Hiraoka, the Lydian String Quartet, and Kurt Ollmann '77. In addition to performing, the artists often teach master classes and hold discussions with students.

Bowdoin owns a collection of orchestral and band instruments and over twenty grand pianos available for use by students studying and performing music. There are also sizeable collections of early instruments, and drums from a variety of world traditions. Soloists and ensembles perform in a number of halls on campus, including Gibson Recital Hall, Kresge Auditorium, Pickard Theater, and the Chapel, which houses a forty-five-rank Austin organ. A new, 300-seat recital hall is planned for the former Curtis Pool Building. Private instruction is available in piano, organ, harpsichord, voice, guitar, and all the major orchestral instruments.

Theater and Dance

Dance

The dance component of the Department of Theater and Dance evolved from the Bowdoin Dance Program, which was founded in 1971 and soon developed an academic curriculum. Each year, the Bowdoin Dance Group, the student performing ensemble, presents two major concerts of student- and faculty-choreographed works: one in December and one in April. Students also perform at Parents' Weekend in the fall and at the Museum of Art in May and additional informal showings. Performances are strongly linked to participation in technique, repertory, and choreography classes, but independent work is also presented.

Student-run dance groups often perform as part of Bowdoin Dance Group concerts and in other shows on and off campus; they represent genres as diverse as hip-hop, ballet, ballroom, tap, break dance, capoeira, and African-American step dancing.

Dance concerts are presented in the Dance Studios, Pickard Theater, Wish Theater, and the Museum of Art, as well as in unconventional spaces such as the Smith Union, the squash courts, or outdoors on the Quad. Renovation of Memorial Hall in 2000 now provides a second dance studio with skylights and a sprung wooden floor, as well as a new state-of-the-art flexible theater designed for both theater and dance.

Besides student and faculty performances, the department sponsors visits by nationally known dance companies, choreographers, and critics for teaching residencies and performances. A partial list includes Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble, Johanna Boyce, Art Bridgman and Myrna Packer, Richard Bull Dance Company, Merce Cunningham, David Dorfman Dance, Douglas Dunn, Meredith Monk, Mark Morris, Phoebe Neville, Wendy Perron, Pilobolus, Dana Reitz, Kei Takei, UMO Performance Ensemble, Doug Varone, Trisha Brown Company, David Parker and the Bang Group, and Susan Marshall Dance Company; and lectures by dance writers Susan Foster, Jill Johnston, Laura Shapiro, and Marcia B. Seigel. Choreographer Deborah Hay was on campus for a residency in 2001. These professionals teach master classes and offer lecture-demonstrations as part of their visits to campus, and sometimes are commissioned to create choreography especially for the Bowdoin dancers.

Theater

The theater component of the Department of Theater and Dance evolved from the student performance group Masque and Gown, which was founded in 1903. In the mid-1990s an academic curriculum in theater was developed, combining courses and departmental productions, and Masque and Gown became an independent student organization with continued ties to the department. The department annually presents numerous plays and events, directed or created by faculty and by students, ranging from new plays to performance art to Shakespeare. Recent departmental productions have included Lanford Wilson's Book of Days, Chekhov's The Cherry Orchard, Elizabeth Wong's China Doll, Naomi Wallace's In the Heart of America, and student-directed projects such as The Glass Menagerie, original student plays, and an honors project of A Midsummer Night's Dream done in Peking Opera style. In conjunction with the department's activities, visiting artists present performance workshops and professional courses in a variety of areas. The department has sponsored several residencies and performances by artists such as Spalding Gray and Dan Hurlin (both Obie-award-winning performance and theater artists), Anna Deavere-Smith, and award-winning playwrights Tony Kushner and Holly Hughes.

Memorial Hall, a striking gothic-style granite and stained glass memorial to Bowdoin's Civil War veterans, was completed in 1882 and houses the College's main performance spaces. Pickard Theater, the generous gift of Frederick William Pickard, LL.D., in 1955, includes a 600-seat theater with proscenium stage equipped with a full fly system and computer lighting. Major renovations of Memorial Hall, completed in 2000, include a complete remodeling of the main theater; construction of the 150-seat, flexible Wish Theater, made possible by an extraordinary gift from Barry N. Wish '63 and Oblio Wish; and new seminar rooms, expanded rehearsal space, and a new dance studio.

Masque and Gown sponsors an annual, student-written, one-act play festival, a sixty-year-long tradition, partially underwritten by the generous gift of Hunter S. Frost '47. In addition to the one-act play festival, Masque and Gown presents numerous plays throughout the year.

Student Affairs

A residential college adds significantly to the education of students when it provides the opportunity for a distinctive and dynamic learning community to develop. In such a community, Bowdoin students are encouraged, both directly and indirectly, to engage actively in a quest for knowledge both inside and outside the classroom, and to take responsibility for themselves, for others, and for their community. They are challenged to grow personally by constant contact with new experiences and different ways of viewing the world. Simultaneously, they are supported and encouraged by friends, faculty, staff, and other community members and find opportunities for spontaneous as well as structured activities. Such a community promotes the intellectual and personal growth of individuals and encourages mutual understanding and respect in the context of diversity.

The programs and services provided by the Division of Student Affairs exist to support students and the College in developing and maintaining the learning community. Staff throughout the Division of Student Affairs assist students with their studies, their leadership and social growth, their well-being, and their future. The Bowdoin College Student Handbook provides comprehensive information about student life and the programs and services of the Division of Student Affairs. Additional information is available on the Bowdoin College Web site: <http://www.bowdoin.edu>.

THE ACADEMIC HONOR AND SOCIAL CODES

The success of the Academic Honor Code and Social Code requires the active commitment of the College community. Since 1964, with revisions in 1977 and 1993, the community pledge of personal academic integrity has formed the basis for academic and social conduct at Bowdoin. The institution assumes that all Bowdoin students possess the attributes implied in the codes. Bowdoin College expects its students to be responsible for their behavior on and off the campus and to assure the same behavior of their guests.

The Academic Honor Code plays a central role in the intellectual life at Bowdoin College. Students and faculty are obligated to ensure its success. Uncompromised intellectual inquiry lies at the heart of a liberal education. Integrity is essential in creating an academic environment dedicated to the development of independent modes of learning, analysis, judgment, and expression. Academic dishonesty is antithetical to the College's institutional values and constitutes a violation of the Honor Code.

The Social Code describes certain rights and responsibilities of Bowdoin College students. While it imposes no specific morality on students, the College requires certain standards of behavior to secure the safety of the College community and ensure that the campus remains a center of intellectual engagement.

Individuals who suspect violations of the Academic Honor Code and/or Social Code should not attempt to resolve the issues independently, but are encouraged to refer their concerns to the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs. The college reserves the right to impose sanctions on students who violate these codes on or off campus. A thorough description of the Academic Honor Code, the Social Code, and the disciplinary process is included in the Bowdoin College Student Handbook.

RESIDENTIAL LIFE

The Office of Residential Life is responsible for the management of the residential life program, support for the College House System, and the maintenance of a healthy and safe community. These responsibilities include: planning educational and social programs; connecting students with support networks and resources on campus; mediating conflicts between students as they arise; intervening in crisis situations; and providing a direct administrative link between College House leaders, the Office of Residential Life, and the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs.

SAFETY AND SECURITY

The College Safety and Security Department provides a uniformed security staff 24 hours a day to respond to emergencies and to maintain a regular patrol of the campus. The Safety and Security Office is located in Rhodes Hall. The Safety and Security Office is staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Security staff can be reached at:

Emergencies - Ext. 3500 or 725-3500

Non Emergencies - Ext. 3314 or 725-3314

Business - Ext. 3458 or 725-3458

Security is a community responsibility. All community members have an obligation to report suspicious activities, criminal activity, emergencies, and unsafe conditions immediately to insure a safe environment.

Information about personal safety, vehicle registration, parking and shuttle service is contained in the Student Handbook.

BOWDOIN STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Bowdoin student government was reformed in Spring 2002 to create a structure that permits flexibility and encourages more members to take on leadership roles. Student Government consists of twenty-six students including a president and five vice presidents elected by the student body, two elected representatives from each class, the president of the Inter-House Council, the treasurer (chair of the Student Activities Fee Committee), a representative from each College House, and four members chosen by the president and vice presidents through an interview process in which all students are eligible to apply. Each vice president has specific oversight responsibility for a particular area of Student Government. The fundamental goal of Bowdoin Student Government remains to be an effective force for the presentation of student opinion to the faculty and the administration.

This reform of Bowdoin student government was made in order to achieve the following goals:

1. To improve student access to members of Student Government.
2. To promote efficiency through the use of small groups and the sharing of responsibility.
3. To improve communications and coordination between the various elements of Student Government.
4. To create an accessible and dynamic forum in which student issues and concerns can be raised and debated.

The full text of the revised Bowdoin Student Government Constitution is in the Student Handbook and on the College's Web site.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Student organizations present an array of programs, services, and activities for the College community. Membership in all organizations is open to all students. Among the oldest groups are the Bowdoin Bugle (yearbook), the Outing Club, the Orient (campus newspaper), and Masque and Gown (a student-run dramatic organization). Between five and ten new student organizations or clubs are formed each year. For a complete list and description of student organizations, please consult the Student Organizations Handbook published by the Student Activities Office.

The David Saul Smith Union, which houses the Student Activities Office, exemplifies a small neighborhood block by providing services, conveniences, amenities, programs, and activities for the Bowdoin College community. It is not just a campus center; it is an venue for lectures, concerts, dances, and information, and a place that responds to the needs of all members of the College community.

The Smith Union contains the Campus Information Desk, the Student Activities Office, a game room/recreation area, Jack Magee's Grill, a TV room, student organizations resource room, student mailboxes, the campus mail center, and several lounges. Also located in the Union are the campus bookstore, the Café, and the convenience store.

ATHLETICS

Bowdoin is a member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), sponsoring one of the largest athletic programs within its division. Intercollegiate teams compete on the Division III level. In Division III, financial aid is need-based. The athletic experience is a wonderful complement to students' academic experience.

The College is a charter member of the New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC), an eleven-member league of similar schools committed to academic excellence and athletics with the student-athlete's best interests at heart. NESCAC includes Amherst, Bates, Bowdoin, Colby, Connecticut College, Hamilton, Middlebury, Trinity, Tufts, Wesleyan, and Williams. These schools are also linked in efforts to provide safe, productive environments for students to learn and grow while engaging in rigorous academic pursuits.

NESCAC Statement Regarding Alcohol

In addition to being partners in athletic competition, the eleven colleges and universities comprising the New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC) are united in efforts to provide safe environments in which students may mature intellectually and socially.

Recognizing that social life plays a role in the college experience, each campus has increased its efforts to encourage students to make responsible choices. Each school takes a strong stand against substance abuse, including alcohol. While the vast majority of students at NESCAC institutions who choose to drink alcohol do so responsibly, each school has disciplinary and educational programs in place for students who misuse alcohol and other substances.

Additionally, all of the member schools expressly prohibit hazing.

Intercollegiate and Club Programs

Bowdoin's athletic program complements students' academic experience and encourages participation by maximizing the number and variety of athletic opportunities in varsity, club and intramural sports. Over thirty intercollegiate teams, three levels of intramural competition in ten sports, and over twenty physical education courses are all a part of the athletic program. The scheduling of practice and intercollegiate contests is planned to minimize conflict with the scheduling of classes, laboratories, or other academic exercises. If and when conflicts do occur, students are responsible for consulting with their instructors well in advance. Excusing students from academic obligations may occur solely at the discretion of the faculty.

Bowdoin gives equal emphasis to men's and women's sports, and the desired quality of competition is similar in all sports. The following intercollegiate and club programs are available to men and women. (Junior varsity teams may be available in some sports depending on participation and opportunities for competition.)

Men: Baseball, basketball, cross country, football, ice hockey, lacrosse, skiing, soccer, squash, swimming, tennis, track (winter and spring), golf, rugby, volleyball, water polo, rowing.

Women: Basketball, cross country, field hockey, ice hockey, lacrosse, skiing, soccer, softball, squash, swimming, tennis, track (winter and spring), volleyball, golf, rowing, rugby, water polo.

Coed: Sailing, equestrian, ultimate frisbee.

Coaching and Athletic Facilities

Bowdoin supports students in their efforts to reach high levels of performance by providing them with first-class coaching, superior facilities, and appropriate competitive opportunities with students from within NESCAC and in New England.

Bowdoin's coaches are excellent resources for students, providing athletic guidance and instruction, and personal and academic support and encouragement. Coaches focus on skill development, teamwork, the pursuit of individual and team excellence, the values of fair play, and the development of important leadership skills.

Students are encouraged to use the athletic facilities for recreational or free play. Seasonal schedules and schedule changes are posted on gymnasium and field house bulletin boards. Intercollegiate teams, classes, and intramurals have priority in the use of these facilities.

The facilities include: Morrell and Sargent gymnasiums; the Dayton Ice Hockey Arena; the Sidney Watson Fitness Center; a multipurpose aerobics room; 8 hard court tennis courts; a 400-meter, 6-lane outdoor track; Farley Field House, which houses a 6-lane, 200-meter track and four regulation tennis courts; Greason Pool, a 16-lane, 114-foot by 75-foot swimming pool with two 1-meter and one 3-meter diving boards; the Lubin Family Squash Center with 7 international squash courts; 35 acres of playing fields; the new Howard F. Ryan Astroturf Field, and locker room and training room facilities.

Physical Education

The Athletic Department offers an instructional program in a variety of activities utilizing campus and off-campus facilities. These activities have been selected to provide the entire on-campus Bowdoin community (students, faculty, and staff) with the opportunity to receive basic instruction in various exercises and leisure-time activities in the hope that these activities will become lifelong commitments. The program will vary from year to year to meet the interests of the Bowdoin community.

Please contact Coach Dawn Strout, Physical Education Coordinator, at Ext. 3945 (email: dstrout@bowdoin.edu) with any questions or special interests.

WOMEN'S RESOURCE CENTER

<http://www.academic.bowdoin.edu/wrc>

The Women's Resource Center (WRC) is a welcoming and comfortable place for students to meet and study. It is located at the corner of Coffin and College streets (24 College Street) and shares the building with the Women's Studies Program. The WRC sponsors speakers, gatherings, workshops, and discussions, many of which draw together students, faculty, staff, and community members. It also sponsors off-campus trips to selected conferences and events. The WRC houses a resource collection of books and current periodicals on women's and gender issues. Readings for Women's Studies courses are often held on reserve at the WRC for students to use in the building. The WRC publishes a newsletter, WomeNews, jointly with the Women's Studies program and posts current information about news and events on and off campus. The WRC's Web site (<http://academic.bowdoin.edu/wrc>) posts contact information, an up-to-date listing of events, links to other resources at Bowdoin, and information on WRC history.

CAREER PLANNING CENTER

<http://www.bowdoin.edu/cpc>

The Career Planning Center (CPC) complements the academic mission of the College. One goal of the Center is to introduce students to the process of career planning, which includes self-assessment, career exploration, goal setting, and the development of an effective job search strategy. Students are encouraged to visit the CPC early in their college years for counseling and information on internships and summer jobs. The CPC assists seniors and recent graduates in their transition to work or graduate study and prepares them to make future career decisions.

A dedicated, professionally trained staff is available for individual career counseling. Workshops and presentations provide assistance in identifying marketable skills, writing resumes, preparing for interviews, networking, using the Internet as a job search tool, and refining job-hunting techniques. Career exploration days, panel discussions, and informational meetings throughout the year are designed to broaden students' awareness of their post-graduate career options and to enhance their understanding of the job market. Programming and advising related to graduate and professional school study are offered as well. In counseling style and program content, the CPC addresses the needs of students realizing that they have diverse interests, values, and expectations.

Each year, nearly 100 private sector and non-profit employers and 80 graduate and professional schools participate in Bowdoin's program. An additional 80 employers participate in interviewing consortia in Boston and New York City. The office maintains a comprehensive Web site; houses informational materials on nearly 1,000 summer, semester, and January internships; and provides access to over 2,000 online job leads and nearly 18,000 internship listings through participation in the Liberal Arts Career Network and experience.com. In addition, the Center uses cutting-edge technology to manage job leads, and target outreach to students. The Center also has a data base with directory information on over 1.6 million organizations in the United States.

The Career Planning Center continually updates an extensive alumni/ae advisory network and a resource library located on the first floor of the Moulton Union. A bi-weekly bulletin publicizes all CPC events and programs in addition to featuring internship, fellowship, and job opportunities.

FELLOWSHIPS AND SCHOLARSHIPS

<http://www.bowdoin.edu/cpc/fellowships>

Bowdoin students receive guidance and support in their efforts to pursue national and international fellowships and scholarships for their undergraduate and graduate education. Opportunities include the Rhodes, Marshall, Truman, Fulbright, Beinecke, and Churchill Fellowships. Bowdoin is one of the select schools eligible for student nominations for the Watson Fellowship and the Junior Fellows Program at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

The fellowship program works jointly with faculty to identify, nurture, and advocate for Bowdoin students who are interested in competing for these opportunities.

HEALTH SERVICES

The Dudley Coe Health Center, Ext. 3770, offers primary and acute care services to students while classes are in session. Regular office hours are Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Most health care needs can be met on a walk-in basis. Gynecological services, comprehensive physical exams, and travel medicine consultations are available by appointment.

The Health Center is a fully-equipped primary care medical office with on-site laboratory and x-ray facilities. It is staffed by a board-certified family physician, board-certified physician assistants, a registered nurse, and a certified radiology technologist.

Emergency and after hours coverage is provided through two local hospitals. Mid-Coast Hospital (207-721-0181) and Parkview Hospital (207-729-1641) both operate 24-hour, fully-staffed emergency rooms, urgent care centers, and in-patient care facilities. Security will arrange for transportation when needed, when called at Ext. 3314. In-patient care at both facilities is under the direct supervision of the College's Health Service director, Dr. Jeff Benson.

The Health Center also serves as an international travel immunization center for the State of Maine, providing consultation in travel medicine and vaccinations, including yellow fever. These services are offered to Bowdoin students, faculty, and staff, as well as to the community at large. To schedule a travel clinic appointment, please call Ext. 3770.

All services offered to students at the Health Center are covered by the student health fee. Questions about medical claims and insurance coverage may be referred to Brenda Rice (Ext. 3770).

The staff of Student Health Services are committed to promoting the health and well being of the Bowdoin College community through the provision of quality primary and acute care, and educational outreach services. Our approach is comprehensive, holistic, and personally attentive, and emphasizes health promotion, disease prevention, and individual self-advocacy. Our goal is to foster wellness, in the broadest sense, within the College community as a whole, and for every individual student in particular. We are happy to discuss any health-related issues with students, and to offer support and resources to health-promoting groups on campus.

COUNSELING SERVICE

The Counseling Service is staffed by experienced mental health professionals who are dedicated to helping students resolve personal and academic difficulties and maximize their psychological and intellectual potential. During the course of a typical academic year, close to 20 percent of Bowdoin students take advantage of the opportunity to work individually with a counselor. The counseling staff assists students who have concerns such as anxiety, depression, academic pressure, family conflicts, roommate problems, alcohol and drug abuse, sexual assault, eating disorders, intimate relationships, and many other matters. In addition to providing individual and group counseling, the staff conducts programs and workshops for the Bowdoin community and consults with campus peer support/education groups. Free in-house psychiatric medication consultations are also available. The Counseling Service maintains a particularly strong commitment to enhancing cross-cultural awareness. Two of the counselors serve as multicultural consultants who specialize in addressing the concerns of students of color on the Bowdoin campus.

Students may schedule counseling appointments by calling 725-3145 or stopping by the office in person. Regular hours are Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. For student concerns requiring immediate attention, an emergency hour is available each weekday from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. After hours and on weekends, students may reach an on-call counselor for emergency consultation by calling Security (Ext. 3500). The Counseling Service does not provide services to students during College vacation periods. Information disclosed by a student to his or her counselor is subject to strict confidentiality. The Counseling Service offices are located at 32 College Street.

Alumni and Community Organizations

Alumni Association

The Bowdoin College Alumni Association has as its purpose “to further the well-being of the College and its alumni by stimulating the interest of its members in the College and in each other through the conduct of programs by and for alumni, and by encouraging the efforts of its members in programs that promote the Common Good.” Membership is open to former students who during a minimum of one semester’s residence earned at least one academic credit toward a degree and whose class has graduated, to those holding Bowdoin degrees, and to anyone elected to membership by the Alumni Council.

Alumni Council

Officers: Michel J. LePage ’78, president; president-elect Mark W. Bayer ’79; Kevin P. Wesley ’89, secretary and treasurer.

Elected and appointed members of the Alumni Council are listed on pages 329–30.

Alumni Council Awards

Alumni Service Award: First established in 1932 as the Alumni Achievement Award and renamed the Alumni Service Award in 1953, this award is made annually to the person whose volunteer services to Bowdoin, in the opinion of alumni, as expressed by the Alumni Council, most deserve recognition.

The recipient in 2003 was Walter E. Bartlett ’53.

Alumni Award for Faculty and Staff: Established in 1963, this award is presented each year “for service and devotion to Bowdoin, recognizing that the College in a larger sense includes both students and alumni.”

The recipient in 2003 was Anthony F. Antolini ’63, Director of the Bowdoin Chorus.

Distinguished Educator Award: Established in 1964, this award recognizes outstanding achievement in the field of education by a Bowdoin alumnus or alumna, except alumni who are members of the Bowdoin faculty and staff.

The recipient in 2003 was Cameron K. Dewar ’70.

Foot Soldier of Bowdoin Award: Established in 1999 through the generosity of David Z. Webster ’57, this award is presented annually to one who exemplifies the role of a foot soldier of Bowdoin through his or her work for the development programs, BASIC, and/or other alumni programs during the prior year. In addition to an award, a scholarship is awarded each year in the name of the award-winner to a deserving Bowdoin undergraduate.

The recipient in 2003 was Leroy P. Heely ’51.

Polar Bear Awards: Established in 1999, these awards, up to six of which may be awarded annually, recognize significant personal contributions and outstanding dedication to Bowdoin. The award honors a record of service rather than a single act or achievement.

The recipients in 2003 were C. Ingersoll Arnold ’39, Kathleen McKelvey Burke ’89, Richard M. Burston ’49, Kenneth M. Cole III ’69, Peter D. Fuller ’59, and Richard C. Johnstone ’44.

Young Alumni Service Award: Established in 1999, these awards, up to two of which may be awarded annually, recognize distinguished and outstanding service to Bowdoin among members of the ten youngest classes. The award honors a record of service rather than a single act or achievement.

The recipients in 2003 were Andrew C. Wheeler '93 and Kerry A. McDonald '99.

Bowdoin Magazine

Established in 1927, Bowdoin magazine is published four times a year and contains articles of general interest about the College and its alumni. It is sent without charge to all alumni, seniors, parents of current students and recent graduates, faculty and staff members, and various friends of the College.

Bowdoin Alumni Schools and Interviewing Committees (BASIC)

BASIC is a volunteer association of approximately 600 alumni in the United States and several foreign countries which assists the Admissions Office in the identification and evaluation of candidates. BASIC responsibilities include providing alumni interviews for applicants in their home areas, representing the College at local "college fair" programs, and, in general, serving as liaison between the College and prospective students.

Presidential Awards for Leadership in BASIC: These awards are given to acknowledge remarkable service to the College through a contribution to BASIC and uncommon effort and commitment to increasing the diversity of Bowdoin through the recruitment of outstanding students of color.

The recipients in 2003 were Susan A. Hays '81 and Tamara A. Nikuradse '84.

Alumni Fund

The principal task of the Bowdoin Alumni Fund is to raise unrestricted financial support for the College's educational programs and other student-related services on an annual basis. All gifts to the Alumni Fund are for current operational expenses and play a significant role in maintaining a balanced budget. Since the Fund's inception in 1869, Bowdoin alumni have consistently demonstrated a high level of annual support, enabling the College to preserve and enhance the Bowdoin experience. In 2001-2002, the Fund total was $6,148,147, with 57.8% alumni participation.

Chair: Thomas J. Costin '73.

Directors: Mark C. Schulze '93, Jeffrey Mao '92, Elizabeth Butterworth Michalski '87, Terence M. Crikelair '96, Richard G. D'Auteuil '82, John D. Hourihan '77, Paula M. Wardynski '79, Barbara D. Gross '77, Anne M. Ireland '76., Robert F. Lakin '68, Adam E. Black '91.

Alumni Fund Awards

Leon W. Babcock Plate: Presented to the College in 1980 by William L. Babcock, Jr. '69, and his wife, Suzanne, in honor of his grandfather, Leon W. Babcock '17, it is awarded annually to the class making the largest dollar contribution to the Alumni Fund.

The recipient in 2002 was the Class of 1977, agents Jeffrey B. Goldenberg, Barbara D. Gross, Laurie A. Hawkes, John D. Hourihan, Bruce J. Lynskey, Gail M. Malitas, Lisa A. McElaney, and Robert F. White.

Alumni Fund Cup: Awarded annually since 1932, the Alumni Fund Cup recognizes the Reunion Class making the largest contribution to the Alumni Fund, unless that Reunion Class wins the Babcock Plate; in that event, the cup is awarded to the non-Reunion Class making the largest contribution.

The recipient in 2002 was the Class of 1976, class agents Anne M. Ireland and Stephen P. Maidman.

Class of 1916 Bowl: Presented to the College by the Class of 1916, it is awarded annually to the class whose record in the Alumni Fund shows the greatest improvement over its performance of the preceding year.

The recipient in 2002 was the Class of 1962, agents Alan R. Titus and Peter B. Webster.

Class of 1929 Trophy: Presented by the Class of 1929 in 1963, it is awarded annually to that one of the ten youngest classes attaining the highest percentage of participation.

The recipient in 2002 was the Class of 1992, Samantha Fischer Pleasant and Holly N. Pompeo, class agents, and Andy C. Cowen and Christopher L. Kraybill, leadership gifts chairs.

Robert Seaver Edwards Trophy: Awarded annually to that one of the ten youngest classes raising the most money for the Fund, this trophy honors the memory of Robert Seaver Edwards, Class of 1900.

The recipient in 2002 was the Class of 1992, Samantha Fischer Pleasant and Holly N. Pompeo, class agents, and Andy C. Cowen and Christopher L. Kraybill, leadership gifts chairs.

Fund Directors' Trophy: Established in 1972 by the directors of the Alumni Fund, the trophy is awarded annually to the class that, in the opinion of the directors, achieved an outstanding performance not acknowledged by any other trophy.

The recipients in 2002 were the Class of 1972, agents Thomas R. Friedlander and Clifford S. Webster; and the Class of 1997, agents Ellen L. Chan, Katherine C. M. Denmead, Joshua P. Dorfman, Shannon M. Reilly, Andrew L. Stevenson, and Michael L. Volpe.

Harry K. Warren Trophy: Awarded annually beginning in 1998, the Harry K. Warren Trophy recognizes the two reunion classes achieving the highest percentage of participation.

The recipients in 2002 were the Class of 1977, agents Jeffrey B. Goldenberg, Barbara D. Gross, Laurie A. Hawkes, John D. Hourihan, Bruce J. Lynskey, Gail M. Malitas, Lisa A. McElaney, and Robert F. White; and the Class of 1952, agents Adrian L. Asherman, Theodore H. Brodie, Donald R. Kurtz, Reginald P. McManus, and Campbell B. Niven.

Robert M. Cross Awards: Established by the directors in 1990, the Robert M. Cross Awards are awarded annually to those class agents whose outstanding performance, hard work, and loyalty to Bowdoin, as personified by Robert M. Cross '45 during his many years of association with the Fund, are deserving of special recognition.

The recipients in 2002 were Richard P. Caliri '67, Richard G. D'Auteuil '82, and Edward E. Langbein, Jr. '57.

$750,000 Club: Established by the Alumni Fund directors in 2001, the $750,000 Club recognizes each class agent and special gifts chair who has led his or her class over the $750,000 figure during an Alumni Fund year.

The recipients in 2002 were Class of 1977 agents Jeffrey B. Goldenberg, Barbara D. Gross, Laurie A. Hawkes, John D. Hourihan, Bruce J. Lynskey, Gail M. Malitas, Lisa A. McElaney, and Robert F. White.

$250,000 Club: Established by the Alumni Fund directors in 2001, the $250,000 Club recognizes each class agent and special gifts chair who has led his or her class over the $250,000 figure during an Alumni Fund year.

The recipients in 2002 were Class of 1977 agents Thomas R. Friedlander and Clifford S. Webster; and Class of 1976 agents Anne M. Ireland and Stephen P. Maidman.

Society of Bowdoin Women

The Society of Bowdoin Women was formed in 1922 to provide “an organization in which those with a common bond of Bowdoin loyalty may, by becoming better acquainted with the College and with each other, work together to serve the College.”

Today, the Society of Bowdoin Women Advisory Board continues to consult in the administration of four endowment funds. The Edith Lansing Koon Sills Lecture Fund, established in 1961, is used to sponsor cultural, career, and literary speakers. The Society of Bowdoin Women Foundation, created in 1924, provided resources for the College’s general use. With the inception of coeducation at Bowdoin in 1971, the Society decided to restrict the funds to provide annual scholarships to qualified women students and renamed it the Society of Bowdoin Women Scholarship Foundation. The Society of Bowdoin Women Athletic Award, established in 1978, recognizes effort, cooperation, and sportsmanship by a senior member of a women’s varsity team. The Dorothy Haythorn Collins Award, created in 1985, honors a junior student exemplifying overall excellence and outstanding performance in his or her chosen field of study.

Advisory Board: Kimberly Labbe Mills ’82, O. Jeanne d’Arc Mayo, Joan R. Shepherd.

Association of Bowdoin Friends

Founded in 1984, the Association of Bowdoin Friends is a group of approximately 1,300 midcoast-area residents who share an interest in the well-being of the College. Its mission states “the association strengthens the relationship between Bowdoin and the community, affording members the opportunity to support and engage in the life of the College.” Some members are alumni or otherwise have direct ties to the College, while most are simply interested members of the community. Members regularly attend lectures, concerts, performances, and special events on campus, and some audit classes. Activities sponsored by the Friends include receptions and dinners held in conjunction with College events, large and small book discussion groups, and bus trips to New England museums. Through the Friends Fund, many members choose to support the College library, museums, athletics, and music and performing arts programs.

Bowdoin Friends are also invited to become involved in the Host Family Program. Administered by the Office of Residential Life, the Host Family Program pairs local families with international students, teaching fellows, and visiting faculty, as well as interested first-year students, easing the transition to College life and fostering lasting friendships. Through this program, international students and faculty are offered a taste of American life and culture.

A $40 to $55 annual fee is requested of all Bowdoin Friends. Benefits of membership include receipt of a bi-weekly calendar of events, discounts to many campus performances, free library borrowing privileges, and discounts at the museum shops.

Steering Committee for 2003–2004: Eileen Fletcher, Jeanne D’Arc Mayo, Roy Heely ’51, John Hodge, David Millar, Dian Petty, Barbara Reinertsen, Chris Schmidt, Larry Clampitt, Judy Collette, Jim Carter, and Richard Steele. Host Family Program liaisons, Larry Clampitt, Jeanne Clampitt; Warren Dwyer, Friends Fund chair; Edward E. Langbein ’57, alumni liaison; Peggy Schick, administrative manager; and Sarah Lewis, secretary.

Summer Programs

BOWDOIN COLLEGE summer programs provide an opportunity for a variety of people to enjoy the College's facilities and to benefit from the expertise of Bowdoin faculty and staff during the nonacademic portion of the year. Summer programs consist of educational seminars, professional conferences, sports clinics, specialized workshops, and occasional social events that are appropriate to the College's overall mission as an educational institution and as a member of the Maine community.

The longest-running summer program involving members of the Bowdoin faculty and the longest-running summer program in its area of study in the United States is the Infrared Spectroscopy Course. Initiated at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1950, the program moved to Bowdoin in 1972. Over three thousand scientists have come to campus to work with many of the original staff.

Upward Bound, which began at Bowdoin in 1965, is one of over 500 similar programs hosted by educational institutions across the country. Funded by the U.S. Department of Education, these programs are intended to provide low-income high school students with the skills and motivation necessary for success in higher education.

Founded in 1964, and separately incorporated in 1998, the Bowdoin Summer Music Festival, Inc. comprises a music school, a concert series featuring internationally acclaimed guest artists and the Festival's renowned faculty, and the nationally recognized Gamper Festival of Contemporary Music. Approximately 200 gifted performers of high school, college, and graduate school levels participate in a concentrated six-week program of instrumental and chamber music and composition studies with the Festival's faculty, which is composed of teacher-performers from the world's leading conservatories.

The Hockey Clinic, under the direction of the Athletic Department, began at Bowdoin College in 1971. Boys and girls, ranging from nine to eighteen years old, come from throughout the United States to train with Bowdoin coaches as well as coaches from other prep schools and academies with outstanding hockey programs.

Each year additional camps are offered by members of the athletic staff in baseball, diving, tennis, basketball, field hockey, lacrosse, and soccer. A day camp for children entering grades 1-9 is based in Farley Field House.

In addition to the four long-term programs described above, other programs brought to campus by Bowdoin faculty, staff, and outside associations attract several thousand people to the College each summer.

Persons interested in holding a conference at Bowdoin should contact the Events and Summer Programs Office, which schedules all summer activities and coordinates dining, overnight accommodations, meeting space, audiovisual services, and other amenities. For more information on camps, workshops, and conferences, visit our Web site at <http://www.bowdoin.edu/events/summerPrograms.html>.

APPENDIX I

Prizes and Distinctions

Awards listed in the Catalogue are endowed prizes and distinctions. There are also a number of fellowships, national awards, and prizes that are given annually or frequently to students who meet the criteria for distinction. Each year, awards received are listed in the Commencement Program, the Sarah and James Bowdoin Day Program, and the Honors Day Program.

THE BOWDOIN PRIZE: This fund was established as a memorial to William John Curtis 1875, LL.D. '13, by his wife and children. The prize, four-fifths of the total income not to exceed $10,000, is to be awarded "once in each five years to the graduate or former member of the College, or member of its faculty at the time of the award, who shall have made during the period the most distinctive contribution in any field of human endeavor. The prize shall only be awarded to one who shall, in the judgment of the committee of award, be recognized as having won national and not merely local distinction, or who, in the judgment of the committee, is fairly entitled to be so recognized." (1928)

The first award was made in 1933 and the most recent in 2000. The recipients in 1990 were Professors Dana W. Mayo and Samuel S. Butcher. The recipient of the award in 1995 was Senator George J. Mitchell '54. In Fall 2000, the award was presented to former Secretary of Defense William S. Cohen '62.

THE PRESERVATION OF FREEDOM FUND: Gordon S. Hargraves '19 established this fund to stimulate understanding and appreciation of the rights and freedoms of the individual, guaranteed under the Constitution of the United States. The prize is to be awarded to a student, member of the faculty, or group of Bowdoin alumni making an outstanding contribution to the understanding and advancement of human freedoms and the duty of the individual to protect and strengthen these freedoms at all times. (1988)

The first award was made in 1988 to William B. Whiteside, Frank Munsey Professor of History Emeritus. The most recent recipient of the award, in 2003, was Christopher R. Hill '74, United States Ambassador to the Republic of Poland, former director for Southeast European Affairs at the National Security Council, special envoy for the Kosovo crisis, former Ambassador to Macedonia, and distinguished career diplomat and peace negotiator.

THE COMMON GOOD AWARD: Established on the occasion of the Bicentennial, the Common Good Award honors those alumni who have demonstrated an extraordinary, profound, and sustained commitment to the common good, in the interest of society, with conspicuous disregard for personal gain in wealth or status. Seven Common Good Awards were presented during the bicentennial year and one or two awards are presented each year at Reunion Convocation.

PRIZES IN GENERAL SCHOLARSHIP

Abraxas Award: An engraved pewter plate is awarded to the school sending two or more graduates to the College, whose representatives maintain the highest standing during their first year. This award was established by the Abraxas Society. (1915)

Sarah and James Bowdoin Scholars (Dean's List): Sarah and James Bowdoin Day accords recognition to undergraduates who have distinguished themselves in scholarship. Originally named in honor of the earliest patron of the College, James Bowdoin III, and instituted in 1941, the day now also honors James Bowdoin's wife, Sarah Bowdoin Dearborn, for her interest in and contributions to the College. The exercises consist of the announcement of awards, the presentation of books, a response by an undergraduate, and an address.

The Sarah and James Bowdoin scholarships, carrying no stipend, are awarded in the fall on the basis of work completed the previous academic year. The award is given to the twenty percent of all eligible students with the highest grade point average (GPA). Eligible students are those who completed the equivalent of eight full-credit Bowdoin courses during the academic year, six credits of which were graded and seven credits of which were graded or non-elective credit/fail. In other words, among the eight required full-credit courses or the equivalent, a maximum of two credits may be taken credit/fail, but only one credit may be for a course(s) the student chose to take credit/fail. Grades for courses taken in excess of eight credits are included in the GPA. For further information on the College's method for computing GPA, consult the section on General Honors on page 33.

A book, bearing a replica of the early College bookplate serving to distinguish the James Bowdoin Collection in the library, is presented to every Sarah and James Bowdoin scholar who earned a GPA of 4.00.

Brooks-Nixon Prize Fund: The annual income of a fund established by Percy Willis Brooks 1890 and Mary Marshall Brooks is awarded each year as a prize to the best Bowdoin candidate for selection as a Rhodes scholar. (1975)

Dorothy Haythorn Collins Award: This award, given by Dorothy Haythorn Collins and her family to the Society of Bowdoin Women, is used to honor a student "who has achieved academic and general excellence in his or her chosen major" at the end of the junior year. Each year the society selects a department from the sciences, social studies, or humanities. The selected department chooses a student to honor by purchasing books and placing them with a nameplate in the department library. The student also receives a book and certificate of merit. (1985)

Almon Goodwin Phi Beta Kappa Prize Fund: This fund was established by Mrs. Maud Wilder Goodwin in memory of her husband, Almon Goodwin 1862. The annual income is awarded to a member of Phi Beta Kappa chosen by vote of the Board of Trustees of the College at the end of the recipient's junior year. (1906)

George Wood McArthur Prize: This fund was bequeathed by Almira L. McArthur, of Saco, in memory of her husband, George Wood McArthur 1893. The annual income is awarded as a prize to that member of the graduating class who, coming to Bowdoin as the recipient of a prematriculation scholarship, shall have attained the highest academic standing among such recipients within the class. (1950)

Phi Beta Kappa: The Phi Beta Kappa Society, national honorary fraternity for the recognition and promotion of scholarship, was founded at the College of William and Mary in 1776. The Bowdoin chapter (Alpha of Maine), the sixth in order of establishment, was founded in 1825. Election is based primarily on scholarly achievement, and consideration is given to the student's entire college record. Students who have studied away are expected to have a total academic record, as well as a Bowdoin record, that meets the standards for election. Nominations are made three times a year, usually in September, February, and May. The total number of students selected in any year does not normally exceed ten percent of the number graduating in May. Students elected to Phi Beta Kappa are expected to be persons of integrity and good moral character. Candidates must have completed at least twenty-four semester courses of college work, including at least sixteen courses at Bowdoin.

Leonard A. Pierce Memorial Prize: This prize, established by friends and associates of Leonard A. Pierce '05, A.M. H'30, LL.D. '55, is awarded annually to that member of the graduating class who is continuing his or her education in an accredited law school and who attained the highest scholastic average during his or her years in college. It is paid to the recipient upon enrollment in law school. (1960)

COMMENCEMENT PRIZES

DeAlva Stanwood Alexander Prize: Established by DeAlva Stanwood Alexander 1870, A.M. 1873, LL.D. '07, this fund furnishes two prizes for excellence in select declamation. (1906)

Art History and Visual Arts

Anne Bartlett Lewis Memorial Fund: This fund was established by Anne Bartlett Lewis's husband, Henry Lewis, and her children, William H. Hannaford, David Hannaford, and Anne D. Hannaford. The annual income of the fund is used for demonstrations of excellence in art history and creative visual arts by two students enrolled as majors in the Department of Art. (1981)

Art History Junior-Year Prize: This prize, funded annually by a donor wishing to remain anonymous, is awarded to those students judged by the Department of Art to have achieved the highest distinction in the major program in art history and criticism at the end of the junior year. (1979)

Art History Senior-Year Prize: This prize, established by a donor wishing to remain anonymous, is awarded to one or more graduating seniors judged by the Department of Art to have achieved the highest distinction in the major in art history and criticism. (1982)

Richard P. Martel, Jr., Memorial Fund: A prize is awarded annually to those students who who, in the judgment of the studio art faculty, are deemed to have produced the most creative, perceptive, proficient, and visually appealing art work exhibited at the College during the academic year. (1990)

Biology

Copeland-Gross Biology Prize: This prize, named in honor of Manton Copeland and Alfred Otto Gross, Sc.D. '52, both former Josiah Little Professors of Natural Science, is awarded to that graduating senior who has best exemplified the idea of a liberal education during the major program in biology. (1972)

Donald and Harriet S. Macomber Prize in Biology: This fund was established by Dr. and Mrs. Donald Macomber in appreciation for the many contributions of Bowdoin in the education of members of their family, David H. Macomber '39, Peter B. Macomber '47, Robert A. Zottoli '60, David H. Macomber, Jr. '67, Steven J. Zottoli '69, and Michael C. Macomber '73. The income of the fund is to be awarded annually as a prize to the outstanding student or students in the Department of Biology. If, in the opinion of the department, in any given year there is no student deemed worthy of this award, the award may be withheld and the income for that year added to the principal of the fund. (1967)

James Malcolm Moulton Prize in Biology: This fund was established by former students and other friends in honor of James Malcolm Moulton, former George Lincoln Skolfield, Jr., Professor of Biology, to provide a book prize to be awarded annually to the outstanding junior majoring in biology, as judged by scholarship and interest in biology. At the discretion of the Department of Biology, this award may be made to more than one student or to none in a given year. (1984)

Chemistry

Philip Weston Meserve Fund: This prize, established in memory of Professor Philip Weston Meserve '11, is awarded to a junior chemistry or biochemistry major and is intended to stimulate interest in Chemistry." (1941)

William Campbell Root Award: This award, established in honor of Professor William Root, recognizes a senior chemistry major who has provided service and support to chemistry at Bowdoin beyond the normal academic program.

Forbes Rickard, Jr., Poetry Prize: A prize, given by a group of alumni of the Bowdoin chapter of Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity in memory of Forbes Rickard, Jr. '17, who lost his life in the service of his country, is awarded to the undergraduate writing the best poem. (1919)

David Sewall Premium: This prize is awarded to a member of the first-year class for excellence in English composition. (1795)

Mary B. Sinkinson Short Story Prize: A prize, established by John Hudson Sinkinson '02 in memory of his wife, Mary Burnett Sinkinson, is awarded each year for the best short story written by a member of the junior or senior class. (1961)

Bertram Louis Smith, Jr., Prize: The annual income of a fund established by his father in memory of Bertram Louis Smith, Jr. of the Class of 1903, to encourage excellence of work in English literature is awarded by the department to a member of the junior class who has completed two years' work in English literature. Ordinarily, the prize is given to a student majoring in English, and performance of major work as well as record in courses is taken into consideration. (1925)

Geology

Arthur M. Hussey II Prize in Geology: This prize, established by his colleagues in honor of Arthur M. Hussey II, Professor of Geology, is awarded annually for an outstanding research project by a senior majoring in geology, with preference for field projects undertaken in Maine. The award recognizes Professor Hussey's lasting contributions to the Geology Department, notably his ability to inspire students through geological field work. (2000)

German

The German Consular Prize in Literary Interpretation: This prize was initiated by the German Consulate, from whom the winner receives a certificate of merit and a book prize, in addition to a small financial prize to be awarded from the income of the fund. The prize is awarded annually to the senior German major who wins a competition requiring superior skills in literary interpretation. (1986)

The Old Broad Bay Prizes in Reading German: The income from a fund given by Jasper J. Stahl '09, Litt.D. '60, and by others is awarded to students who, in the judgment of the department, have profited especially from their instruction in German. The fund was established as a living memorial to those remembered and unremembered men and women from the valley of the Rhine who in the eighteenth century founded the first German settlement in Maine at Broad Bay, now Waldoboro. (1964)

Government and Legal Studies

Philo Sherman Bennett Prize Fund: This fund was established by William Jennings Bryan from trust funds of the estate of Philo Sherman Bennett, of New Haven, Connecticut. The income is used for a prize for the best essay discussing the principles of free government. Competition is open to seniors. (1905)

James E. Bland History Prize: The income of a fund established by colleagues and friends of James E. Bland, a member of Bowdoin's Department of History from 1969 to 1974, is awarded to the Bowdoin undergraduate, chosen by the history department, who has presented the best history honors project not recognized by any other prize at the College. (1989)

Class of 1875 Prize in American History: A prize established by William John Curtis 1875, LL.D. '13, is awarded to the student who writes the best essay and passes the best examination on some assigned subject in American history. (1901)

Sherman David Spector of the Class of 1950 Award in History: Established by Sherman David Spector '50, this award is made to a graduating senior history major who has attained the highest cumulative average in his/her history courses, or to the highest-ranking senior engaged in writing an honors paper or a research essay in history. (1995)

Mathematics

Edward Sanford Hammond Mathematics Prize: A book is awarded on recommendation of the Department of Mathematics to a graduating senior who is completing a major in mathematics with distinction. Any balance of the income from the fund may be used to purchase books for the department. The prize honors the memory of Edward S. Hammond, for many years Wing Professor of Mathematics, and was established by his former students at the time of his retirement. (1963)

Smyth Mathematical Prize: This prize, established by Henry Jewett Furber 1861 in honor of Professor William Smyth, is given to that student in each sophomore class who obtains the highest grades in mathematics courses during the first two years. The prize is awarded by the faculty of the Department of Mathematics, which will take into consideration both the number of mathematics courses taken and the level of difficulty of those courses in determining the recipient. The successful candidate receives one-third of the prize at the time the award is made. The remaining two-thirds is paid to him or her in installments at the close of each term during junior and senior years. If a vacancy occurs during those years, the income of the prize goes to the member of the winner's class who has been designated as the alternate recipient by the department. (1876)

Music

Sue Winchell Burnett Music Prize: This prize, established by Mrs. Rebecca P. Bradley in memory of Mrs. Sue Winchell Burnett, is awarded upon recommendation of the Department of Music to that member of the senior class who has majored in music and has made the most significant contribution to music while a student at Bowdoin. If two students make an equally significant contribution, the prize will be divided equally between them. (1963)

Neuroscience

Munno Neuroscience Prize: This prize, established by David W. Munno '99, is awarded for excellence in research by a student majoring in neuroscience. (2000)

Philosophy

Philip W. Cummings Philosophy Prize: This prize, established by Gerard L. Dubé '55 in memory of his friend and classmate, is awarded to the most deserving student in the Department of Philosophy. (1984)

Physics

Edwin Herbert Hall Prize in Physics Fund: The annual income of this fund, named in honor of Edwin Herbert Hall 1875, A.M. 1878, LL.D. '05, the discoverer of the Hall effect, is awarded each year to the best sophomore scholar in the field of physics. (1953)

Noel C. Little Prize in Experimental Physics: This prize, named in honor of Noel C. Little '17, Sc.D. '67, professor of physics and Josiah Little Professor of Natural Science, is awarded to a graduating senior who has distinguished himself or herself in experimental physics. (1968)

Psychology

Frederic Peter Amstutz Memorial Prize Fund: This prize, established in memory of Frederic Peter Amstutz '85 by members of his family, is awarded to a graduating senior who has achieved distinction as a psychology major. (1986)

Religion

Edgar Oakes Achorn Prize Fund: The income of a fund established by Edgar Oakes Achorn 1881 is awarded as a prize for the best essay written by a member of the second- or first-year classes in Religion 101. (1932)

Lea Ruth Thumim Biblical Literature Prize: This prize, established by Carl Thumim in memory of his wife, Lea Ruth Thumim, is awarded each year by the Department of Religion to the best scholar in biblical literature. (1959)

Romance Languages

Philip C. Bradley Spanish Prize: This prize, established by classmates and friends in memory of Philip C. Bradley '66, is awarded to outstanding students in Spanish language and literature. (1982)

Goodwin French Prize: This prize, established by the Reverend Daniel Raynes Goodwin 1832, A.M. 1835, D.D. 1853, is awarded to the best scholar in French. (1890)

Eaton Leith French Prize: The annual income of a fund, established by James M. Fawcett III '58 in honor of Eaton Leith, professor of Romance languages, is awarded to that member of the sophomore or junior class who, by his or her proficiency and scholarship, achieves outstanding results in the study of French literature. (1962)

Charles Harold Livingston Honors Prize in French: This prize, established by former students and friends of Charles Harold Livingston, Longfellow Professor of Romance Languages, upon the occasion of his retirement, is awarded to encourage independent scholarship in the form of honors theses in French. (1956)

Russian

Russian Prize: This prize, established by Professor of Russian Jane Knox-Voina, is awarded to a graduating senior who has achieved distinction as a Russian major. (2003)

Science

Sumner Increase Kimball Prize: This prize, established by Sumner Increase Kimball 1855, Sc.D. 1891, is awarded to that member of the senior class who has "shown the most ability and originality in the field of the Natural Sciences." (1923)

Sociology and Anthropology

Matilda White Riley Prize in Sociology and Anthropology: This prize, established through a gift from distinguished sociologist John W. Riley '30, Sc.D. '72, honors Matilda White Riley, Sc.D. '72, Daniel B. Fayerweather Professor of Political Economy and Sociology Emerita, who established the joint Department of Sociology and Anthropology and a tradition of teaching through sociological research. It is awarded for an outstanding research project by a major. (1987)

Elbridge Sibley Sociology Prize Fund: Established by Milton M. Gordon '39, the prize is awarded to the member of the senior class majoring in sociology or anthropology who has the highest general scholastic average in the class at the midpoint of each academic year. (1989)

Theater and Dance

Bowdoin Dance Group Award: An appropriate, inscribed dance memento is awarded annually to an outstanding senior for contributions of dedicated work, good will, and talent, over the course of his or her Bowdoin career, in the lively, imaginative spirit of the Class of 1975, the first graduating class of Bowdoin dancers. (1988)

Abraham Goldberg Prize: Established by Abraham Goldberg, this prize is awarded annually to that member of the senior class who, in the opinion of a faculty committee headed by the director of theater, has shown, in plays presented at the College during the two years preceding the date of award, the most skill in the art of designing or directing. (1960)

Alice Merrill Mitchell Prize: This prize, established by Wilmot Brookings Mitchell 1890, A.M. '07, L.H.D. '38, Edward Little Professor of Rhetoric and Oratory, in memory of his wife, Alice Merrill Mitchell, is awarded annually to that member of the senior class who, in the opinion of a faculty committee headed by the director of theater, has shown, in plays presented at the College during the two years preceding the date of award, the most skill in the art of acting. (1951)

William H. Moody '56 Award: Established in memory of Bill Moody, who for many years was the theater technician and friend of countless students, this award is presented annually, if applicable, to one or more sophomores, juniors, or seniors having made outstanding contributions to the theater through technical achievements accomplished in good humor. The award should be an appropriate memento of Bowdoin. (1980)

George H. Quinby Award: Established in honor of "Pat" Quinby, for thirty-one years director of dramatics at Bowdoin College, by his former students and friends in Masque and Gown, this award is presented annually to one or more first-year members of Masque and Gown who make an outstanding contribution through interest and participation in Masque and Gown productions. The recipients are selected by the director of theater, the theater technician, and the president of Masque and Gown. (1967)

Scholarship Award for Summer Study in Dance: A monetary award toward tuition costs at an accredited summer program of study in dance is given to a first-year student with demonstrated motivation and exceptional promise in dance technique or choreography, whose future work in dance, upon return, will enrich the Bowdoin program. (1988)

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH ASSISTANCE

In addition to the Bowdoin-based fellowships described below, students have the opportunity to be nominated for selection for a number of national research grants. Further information on undergraduate and graduate research grants and fellowships is available in the career Planning Center.

James Stacy Coles Undergraduate Research Fellowship and Summer Fellowship Fund (1997): Established by gifts of family members and friends as a memorial to James Stacy Coles, the fund supports the activity of students engaged directly in serious scientific research. Fellowships are awarded annually to highly qualified students by the President of the College. The funds are used by students for substantial participation in a scientific research project under the direction of a faculty member who is independently interested in the area under study. While the name of the project differs from discipline to discipline, all projects give students first-hand experience with productive scholarly scientific research. Awards are made on the basis of the candidate's academic record, particular interests and competence, the availability of an appropriate research project, and a faculty member's recommendation.

Martha Reed Coles Undergraduate Research Fellowship Fund (2000): Established in honor of Martha Reed Coles, by members of her family. As the first lady of Bowdoin College from 1952 to 1967, she took an active and vital interest in every phase of life at the College. The pleasure she received from her interaction with Bowdoin's students and her appreciation of their youthful energy, intellect, achievements, and promise inspired her children to establish the fund. Income from this fund supports students engaged in scholarly research in the arts or humanities.

Henry L. and Grace Doherty Charitable Foundation Coastal Studies Research Awards (1997): Doherty Fellowships are awarded to students to support substantial participation in a scientific research project by a student under the direction of a faculty member who is independently interested in the subject under study. Fellowships are awarded for summer research projects in marine and coastal studies.

Freeman Fellowships for Student Research in Asia (1998): Awarded to Bowdoin students to encourage travel and research in Asia, these fellowships are intended to increase understanding and awareness of Asia among students majoring in any academic discipline by supporting research or study projects in Asia resulting in the award of academic credit. Fellowships may be taken during the summer months, between semesters, or to extend study away experiences. Fellowships may also be used to support credit-bearing summer language training in Asia. Fellowships may not be used for study away programs during the academic year. These fellowships are made possible by a generous grant from the Freeman Foundation.

Students are expected to develop proposals in consultation with a faculty mentor. Because Freeman Fellowships are intended to encourage scholarly work of academic value, projects should result in work that will earn course credit toward the Bowdoin degree, typically by means of an independent study or honors project or language study.

Recipients are chosen on the basis of the quality, coherence, and feasibility of the project described in the narrative proposal and the project's relevance to the student's educational plans. Applications are reviewed by a faculty committee, once in the fall, and once in the spring.

Each student awarded a fellowship will be expected to write a 1-3 page report that will be circulated to the faculty on the Freeman Committee and included in the institution's annual report to the Freeman Foundation.

Gibbons Summer Research Internships (2001): The Gibbons internships, established in 2001 through the gift of John A. Gibbons, Jr. '64, provide grants for student summer research, especially for projects that use technology to explore interdisciplinary areas and to develop fresh approaches to the study of complex problems that extend beyond the traditional academic calendar.

Alfred O. Gross Fund (1957): This fund, established by Alfred Otto Gross, Sc.D. '52, Josiah Little Professor of Natural Science, and members of his family, is designed to assist worthy students in doing special work in biology, preferably ornithology.

Howard Hughes Medical Institute Summer Fellowships: The Howard Hughes Medical Institute Summer Fellowships provide funding for interdisciplinary undergraduate research, particularly in biochemistry and neuroscience, and for student research in marine biology and other biological field studies conducted at Bowdoin's Coastal Studies Center on Orrs Island.

Fritz C. A. Koelln Research Fund (1972): This fund was established by John A. Gibbons, Jr. '64, to honor Fritz C. A. Koelln, professor of German and George Taylor Files Professor of Modern Languages, who was an active member of the Bowdoin faculty from 1929 until 1971. The income from the fund may be awarded annually to a faculty-student research team to support exploration of a topic which surmounts traditional disciplinary boundaries. The purpose of the fund is to encourage broad, essentially humanistic inquiry, and should be awarded with preference given to worthy projects founded at least in part in the humanities.

Edward E. Langbein, Sr., Summer Research Grant: An annual gift of the Langbein family is awarded under the direction of the president of the College to undergraduates or graduates to enable the recipients to participate in summer research or advanced study directed toward their major field or lifework. The grant is named in memory of a former president and secretary of the Bowdoin Fathers Association.

The Logan Environmental Studies Internship (2002): Established by Peter B. Logan '75, this fund provides support for a deserving student who is interested in pursuing a summer internship with one of the Maine environmental organizations that are working with Bowdoin to provide these practical opportunities in the field.

Mellon Minority Undergraduate Fellowships: The Mellon program provides two-year fellowships to undergraduate students of color who are interested in pursuing a Ph.D. and are considering a career in teaching at the college level. Students work with a faculty mentor. The grant provides funds for summer research and other expenses during the academic year.

Physics Summer Research Internships: The physics fellowships support substantial participation in a scientific research project by students independently interested in the area under study, under the direction of a faculty member. The research projects are intended to give students firsthand experience with productive scholarly scientific research.

Public Interest Career Fund Fellowships (1996): A generous gift from an anonymous donor has provided the College with funds to support students committed to enhancing social justice by serving the needs of the underserved and disadvantaged through policy making, direct service, or community organizing. The Public Interest Career Fund Summer Fellowship Program was established to encourage students to intern for U.S.-based social services agencies, legal services, humanitarian organizations, and public education during the summer, with the hope that they will, as undergraduates, begin to build a foundation for future career development in these areas.

Rusack Coastal Studies Fellowships (2001): The Rusack Coastal Studies fellowships, provided through the generous gift of Geoffrey C. Rusack '78 and Alison Wrigley Rusack, are open to students in the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences involved in projects that bring new insight and understanding to coastal studies. The fund promotes and facilitates student and faculty disciplinary and interdisciplinary study projects at Bowdoin's Coastal Studies Center, the surrounding coastal areas, and Casco Bay.

Spector Fellowship (2002): This annual fellowship, established by Sherman David Spector '50, is awarded to a graduating senior who plans to pursue graduate studies in history and a career in teaching history at any academic level.

Surdna Foundation Undergraduate Research Fellowship Program (1959): An undergraduate research fellowship program established in 1959 was renamed in 1968 the Surdna Foundation Undergraduate Research Fellowship Program in recognition of two gifts of the Surdna Foundation. The income from a fund, which these gifts established, underwrites the program's costs. Fellowships may be awarded annually to highly qualified seniors. Each Surdna Fellow participates under the direction of a faculty member in a research project in which the faculty member is independently interested.

The purpose is to engage the student directly in a serious attempt to extend knowledge. Each project to which a Surdna Fellow is assigned must therefore justify itself independently of the program, and the fellow is expected to be a participant in the research, not a mere observer or helper. The nature of the project differs from discipline to discipline, but all should give the fellow firsthand acquaintance with productive scholarly work. Should the results of the research be published, the faculty member in charge of the project is expected to acknowledge the contribution of the Surdna Fellow and of the program.

Surdna Fellows are chosen each spring for the summer or for the following academic year. Awards are made on the basis of the candidate's academic record and departmental recommendation, his or her particular interests and competence, and the availability at the College of a research project commensurate with his or her talents and training. Acceptance of a Surdna Fellowship does not preclude working for honors, and the financial need of a candidate does not enter into the awarding of fellowships. Surdna Fellows are, however, obligated to refrain from employment during the academic year.

AWARDS IN ATHLETICS

Annie L. E. Dane Trophy: Named in memory of the wife of Francis S. Dane 1896 and mother of Nathan Dane II '37, Winkley Professor of Latin Language and Literature, the trophy is awarded each spring to a senior member of a varsity women's team who "best exemplifies the highest qualities of character, courage, and commitment to team play." (1978)

Lucy L. Shulman Trophy: Given by Harry G. Shulman, A.M. H'71, in honor of his wife, this trophy is awarded annually to the outstanding woman athlete. The recipient is selected by the director of athletics and the dean of student affairs. (1975)

Society of Bowdoin Women Athletic Award: This award is presented to a member of a women's varsity team in recognition of her "effort, cooperation, and sportsmanship." Selection is made by a vote of the Department of Athletics and the dean of student affairs. (1978)

Frederick G. P. Thorne Award: This award is presented to the male student athlete who has most demonstrated the qualities of leadership both in the athletic arena and outside it. (1999)

Baseball

Francis S. Dane Baseball Trophy: This trophy, presented to the College by friends and members of the family of Francis S. Dane 1896, is awarded each spring "to that member of the varsity baseball squad who, in the opinion of a committee made up of the dean of student life, the director of athletics, and the coach of baseball, best exemplifies high qualities of character, sportsmanship, and enthusiasm for the game of baseball." (1965)

Basketball

William J. Fraser Basketball Trophy: This trophy, presented by Harry G. Shulman, A.M. H'71, in memory of William J. Fraser '54, is awarded annually to that member of the basketball team who best exemplifies the spirit of Bowdoin basketball. The recipient is selected by the coach, the director of athletics, and the dean of student affairs. (1969)

Paul Nixon Basketball Trophy: Given to the College by an anonymous donor and named in memory of Paul Nixon, L.H.D. '43, dean at Bowdoin from 1918 to 1947, in recognition of his interest in competitive athletics and sportsmanship, this trophy is inscribed each year with the name of the member of the Bowdoin varsity basketball team who has made the most valuable contribution to this team through his qualities of leadership and sportsmanship. (1959)

Women's Basketball Alumnae Award: A bowl, inscribed with the recipient's name, is given to the player who "best exemplifies the spirit of Bowdoin's Women's Basketball, combining talent with unselfish play and good sportsmanship." The award is presented by Bowdoin alumnae basketball players. (1983)

Football

Winslow R. Howland Football Trophy: This trophy, presented to the College by his friends in memory of Winslow R. Howland '29, is awarded each year to that member of the varsity football team who has made the most marked improvement on the field of play during the football season, and who has shown the qualities of cooperation, aggressiveness, enthusiasm for the game, and fine sportsmanship so characteristic of Winslow Howland. (1959)

Wallace C. Philoon Trophy: Given by Maj. Gen. Wallace Copeland Philoon, USA, '05, M.S. '44, this trophy is awarded each year to a non-letter winner of the current season who has made an outstanding contribution to the football team. The award is made to a man who has been faithful in attendance and training and has given his best efforts throughout the season. (1960)

William J. Reardon Memorial Football Trophy: A replica of this trophy, which was given to the College by the family and friends of William J. Reardon '50, is presented annually to a senior on the varsity football team who has made an outstanding contribution to his team and his college as a man of honor, courage, and ability, the qualities which William J. Reardon exemplified at Bowdoin College on the campus and on the football field. (1958)

Ice Hockey

Hannah W. Core '97 Memorial Award: Given to a member of the women's hockey team who best represents the enthusiasm, hard work, and commitment for which Hannah will be remembered. (1996)

Hugh Munro, Jr., Memorial Trophy: This trophy, given by his family in memory of Hugh Munro, Jr. '41, who lost his life in the service of his country, is inscribed each year with the name of that member of the Bowdoin varsity hockey team who best exemplifies the qualities of loyalty and courage which characterized the life of Hugh Munro, Jr. (1946)

John "Jack" Page Coaches Award: Established as a memorial to John Page of South Harpswell, Maine, through the bequest of his wife, Elizabeth Page, this award is to be presented annually to the individual who, in the opinion of the coaching staff, has distinguished himself through achievement, leadership, and outstanding contributions to the hockey program, the College, and community. (1993)

Peter Schuh Memorial Award: This trophy is presented to the most valuable player in the annual Bowdoin-Colby men's ice hockey game. (1995)

Orren Chalmer Hormell Cup: This cup, given by the Sigma Nu Fraternity at the College in honor of Orren Chalmer Hormell, D.C.L. '51, DeAlva Stanwood Alexander Professor of Government, is awarded each year to a sophomore who, as a first-year student, competed in first-year athletic competition as a regular member of a team, and who has achieved outstanding scholastic honors. A plaque inscribed with the names of all the cup winners is kept on display. (1949)

Lucien Howe Prize: Fifty percent of the income of a fund given by Dr. Lucien Howe 1870, A.M. 1879, Sc.D. '10, is awarded by the faculty to members of the senior class who as undergraduates, by example and influence, have shown the highest qualities of conduct and character. The remainder is expended by the president to improve the social life of the undergraduates. (1920)

Masque and Gown Figurine: A figurine, The Prologue, carved by Gregory Wiggin, may be presented to the author of the prize-winning play in the One-Act Play contest, if one is conducted, and is held by the winner until the following contest. (1937)

Masque and Gown One-Act Play Prizes: Prizes may be awarded annually for excellence in various Masque and Gown activities, including playwriting, directing, and acting. (1934)

Horace Lord Piper Prize: This prize, established by Sumner Increase Kimball 1855, Sc.D. 1891, in memory of Maj. Horace Lord Piper 1863, is awarded to that member of the sophomore class who presents the best "original paper on the subject calculated to promote the attainment and maintenance of peace throughout the world, or on some other subject devoted to the welfare of humanity." (1923)

Michael Francis Micciche III Award: This award is given annually to that individual who embodies the entire Bowdoin experience; who engages the College community, achieves academic excellence, and earns the respect of his or her peers and professors. This individual must plan on broadening his or her education following graduation, either through enrollment at a graduate school or through a structured travel or volunteer program. (2001)

The President's Award: This award, inaugurated in 1997 by President Robert H. Edwards, recognizes a student's exceptional personal achievements and uncommon contributions to the College. The student's actions demonstrate particular courage, imagination, and generosity of spirit; and they benefit the atmosphere, program, or general effectiveness of the College. (1997)

Franklin Delano Roosevelt Cup: This cup, furnished by the Bowdoin chapter of Alpha Delta Phi Society, is inscribed annually with the name of that member of the three lower classes whose vision, humanity, and courage most contribute to making Bowdoin a better college. (1945)

Paul Andrew Walker Prize Fund: This fund was established in honor and memory of Paul Andrew Walker '31 by his wife, Nathalie L. Walker. Forty percent of the income of the fund is used to honor a member or members of the Bowdoin Orient staff whose ability and hard work are deemed worthy by the Award Committee chosen by the dean of student affairs. A bronze medal or an appropriate book, with a bookplate designed to honor Paul Andrew Walker, is presented to each recipient. (1982)

MISCELLANEOUS FUNDS

Delta Sigma/Delta Upsilon Activities Fund: The income of this fund is used to support public events and individual projects that further the welfare and enhance the community of Bowdoin College, and that preserve and promote the fellowship, community, spirit, diversity, and ideals that Delta Sigma and Delta Upsilon offered to the Bowdoin community. (1997)

Faculty Development Fund: The income of this fund, established by Charles Austin Cary '10, A.M. H'50, LL.D. '63, is expended each year "for such purpose or purposes, to be recommended by the President and approved by the Governing Boards, as shall be deemed to be most effective in maintaining the caliber of the faculty." These purposes may include, but not be limited to, support of individual research grants, productive use of sabbatical leaves, added compensation for individual merit or distinguished accomplishment, other incentives to encourage individual development of teaching capacity, and improvement of faculty salaries. (1956)

Faculty Research Fund: This fund, founded by the Class of 1928 on the occasion of its twenty-fifth anniversary, is open to additions from other classes and individuals. The interest from the fund is used to help finance research projects carried on by members of the faculty. (1979)

The Fletcher Family Fund: This fund was established by William C. Fletcher '66. Income from the fund provides support for faculty research leading to publication and presentation. (2000)

Sydney B. Karofsky Prize for Junior Faculty: This prize, given by members of the Karofsky family, including Peter S. Karofsky, M.D. '62, Paul I. Karofsky '66, and David M. Karofsky '93, is to be awarded annually by the dean for academic affairs, in consultation with the Faculty Affairs Committee on the basis of student evaluations of teaching, to an outstanding Bowdoin teacher who "best demonstrates the ability to impart knowledge, inspire enthusiasm, and stimulate intellectual curiosity." The prize is given to a member of the faculty who has taught at the College for at least two years. In 2003 the award was given to Rachel J. Beane, assistant professor of geology. (1992)

James R. Pierce Athletic Leadership Award: Established by James R. Pierce, Jr., in memory of James R. Pierce '46, the income of this fund is used to support an annual stipend for a member of the Bowdoin coaching staff to attend a professional conference or other continuing education activity. The recipient is selected on the basis of "superior teaching ability, unbridled enthusiasm for his/her sport, empathy for the Bowdoin scholar-athlete, and desire to inculcate a sense of sportsmanship and fair play regardless of circumstances." (1993)

Appendix II

Bowdoin College Environmental Mission Statement

THE ENVIRONMENT within and beyond Bowdoin College is one of the fundamental aspects of our community and one that we, as members of the College, have in common. In keeping with Bowdoin's bicentennial motto, "The College and the Common Good," the opportunity exists to reaffirm our commitment to the history and future of Bowdoin's relationship with the environment.

Both the institution as a whole and individuals in the Bowdoin community have an impact on the environment and therefore should commit themselves to understanding their personal responsibility for the local and natural environment. In consideration of the common good, Bowdoin recognizes its responsibility to take a leadership role in environmental stewardship by promoting environmental awareness, local action, and global thinking. Because sustainability reaches beyond the Bowdoin campus, choices made by the College in its operations shall consider economic, environmental, and social impacts. Members of the Bowdoin community shall orient new faculty, staff, and students to the campus-wide environmental ethic and conduct research and teaching in a sustainable and responsible fashion. As a way to capture this ethic, the following Environmental Mission Statement has been developed:

Being mindful of our use of the Earth's natural resources, we are committed to leading by example to integrate environmental awareness and responsibility throughout the college community. The College shall seek to encourage conservation, recycling, and other sustainable practices in its daily decision making processes, and shall take into account, in the operations of the College, all appropriate economic, environmental, and social concerns.

To implement the mission statement within and beyond the Bowdoin Community, the College commits itself to the following actions:

Sustainable Awareness

- Leading by example, Bowdoin shall integrate environmental awareness and responsibility throughout the College community.
- Resources for learning and acting shall be available to the Bowdoin community, including recycling bins, awareness lectures, information centers, and opportunities to become directly involved in environmental protection, such as environmental action committees to advise and monitor activities of the College,
- Sustainable awareness shall encompass the social causes and consequences of environmental practices in compliance with the common good.

Sustainable Education

- Students, faculty and staff shall be offered the opportunity to participate in an orientation program that provides information on the College's commitment to environmental sustainability. Members of the College community shall be encouraged to act in a manner that reflects the objectives of the environmental mission statement.
- The College will strive to inform students about environmental management, sustainable economic development, and the social impacts of choices in order to provide co-curricular programming to ensure that graduates are environmentally literate and responsible citizens, and to acknowledge environmental leadership as a continuous, participatory process of learning,

Sustainable Policy

- To promote a sustainable economy in Maine and New England, Bowdoin shall use all reasonable efforts to make new purchases that favor affordably priced local and renewable products that reflect the College's commitment to sustainability.
- To reduce waste in public landfills, Bowdoin shall use all reasonable efforts to purchase reusable and recyclable products when available.
- To complete the loop of recycling products, Bowdoin shall use all reasonable efforts to purchase products with recycled content when available and conduct vigorous recycling programs.

Campus and Buildings

BOWDOIN COLLEGE IS LOCATED in Brunswick, Maine, a town of approximately 22,000 population, first settled in 1628, on the banks of the Androscoggin River, a few miles from the shores of Casco Bay. The 200-acre campus is organized around a central quadrangle.

On the north side of the quadrangle is Massachusetts Hall (1802), the oldest college building in Maine, which now houses the Department of English. The building was designated a Registered Historical Landmark in 1971, and the campus became part of the Federal Street Historic District in 1976. To the west of Massachusetts Hall, Memorial Hall, built to honor alumni who served in the Civil War and completed in 1882, was completely renovated and reopened in Spring 2000. The historic building contains the modernized 610-seat Pickard Theater and the 150-seat Wish Theater in a pavilion linked to Memorial Hall by a glass atrium. New support space houses a scene shop, a costume shop and storage, rehearsal spaces, and dressing rooms for the theater and dance programs.

On the west side of the Quad along Park Row, the Mary Frances Searles Science Building (1894) has also undergone a complete renovation. The remodeled facility houses the Departments of Physics, Mathematics, and Computer Science, and the Baldwin Center for Learning and Teaching. Adjacent to Searles, the Visual Arts Center (1975) contains offices, classrooms, studios, and exhibition space for the Department of Art, as well as Kresge Auditorium, which seats 300 for lectures, films, and performances. The Walker Art Building (1894), designed by McKim, Mead & White, houses the Bowdoin College Museum of Art; and the Harvey Dow Gibson Hall of Music (1954) provides facilities for the Department of Music. At the southwest corner of the quadrangle is Hawthorne-Longfellow Hall (1965), which houses the main facilities of the College library, including the George J. Mitchell Department of Special Collections and Archives on the third floor. The offices of the president and the dean for academic affairs are located on the west side of Hawthorne-Longfellow Hall.

On the south side of the Quad is Hubbard Hall (1903), once the College's library and now the site of the Peary-MacMillan Arctic Museum and Arctic Studies Center; the Departments of Economics, Government, and History; Information Technology offices; and the library's Susan Dwight Bliss Room, which houses a small collection of rare illustrated books. The back wing of Hubbard Hall is connected to the library and contains stacks and a study room.

On the east side of the Quad stands a row of six historic brick buildings: five residence halls—south to north, Coleman (1958), Hyde (1917), Appleton (1843), Maine (1808), and Winthrop (1822) halls—and Seth Adams Hall (1861), that once served as the main facility of the Medical School of Maine and now houses the Environmental Studies Center as well as classrooms and faculty offices.

In the center of this row is the Chapel, designed by Richard Upjohn and built between 1845 and 1855, a Romanesque church of undressed granite with twin towers and spires that rise to a height of 120 feet. A magnificent restoration of the historic Chapel interior was completed in 1997-98. The Department of Psychology occupies Banister Hall, the section of the Chapel building originally used for the College's library and art collection.

To the east of the main Quad are two secondary quadrangles divided by a complex comprising Morrell Gymnasium (1965), Sargent Gymnasium (1912), the Sidney J. Watson Fitness Center, the David Saul Smith Union (1995, originally built in 1912 as the General Thomas Worcester Hyde Athletic Building), the Curtis Pool Building (1927), and Dayton Arena (1956). Whittier Field, Hubbard Grandstand (1904), and the John Joseph Magee Track are across Sills Drive through the pines behind Dayton Arena.

The David Saul Smith Union houses a large, central, open lounge, the College bookstore and mailroom, a café, Jack Magee's Grill, a game room, meeting rooms, and student activities offices.

To the north of this cluster of buildings, a new multidisciplinary science center (1997) combines 75,000 square feet of new construction, named Stanley F. Druckenmiller Hall in honor of the grandfather of the building's chief donor, Stanley F. Druckenmiller '75; and 30,000 square feet of renovated space in Parker Cleaveland Hall (1952), which is named for a nineteenth-century professor who was a pioneer in geological studies. The new facility is linked to the Hatch Science Library, which opened in 1991. The complex houses the Departments of Biology, Chemistry, and Geology.

Adjoining the science facilities is Sills Hall (1950), home to the Departments of Classics, German, Romance Languages, and Russian; and the Language Media Center. One wing of Sills Hall, Smith Auditorium, has a newly renovated auditorium for films and performances.

Construction began in the summer of 2003 on a new academic building, Kanbar Hall, located at the corner of Bath Road and Sills Drive adjacent to Smith Auditorium. The 25,500-square-foot building will house the Departments of Psychology and Education and the College's academic skills programs, including the Baldwin Center for Learning and Teaching. The building is scheduled to open in September 2004.

To the south of the athletic buildings and the Smith Union, an area now called the Coe Quadrangle adjoins the Moulton Union (1928), which contains the offices of the dean of student affairs, the residential life staff, and the Office of Student Records, as well as dining facilities, several lounges, and the Career Planning Center. Also in that quadrangle are Moore Hall (1941), a residence hall, and the Dudley Coe Building (1917), which contains student health care offices on the first floor and the Campus Services copy center and the WBOR radio station in the basement. The upper floors house the Office of Off-Campus Study and faculty offices.

On College Street near Coles Tower, the John Brown Russwurm African-American Center (1827), a former faculty residence previously known as the Little-Mitchell House, was opened in 1970 as a center for African-American studies. Named in honor of Bowdoin's first African-American graduate, the Center houses the offices of the Africana Studies Program, a reading room, and a library of African and African-American source materials.

The Russwurm African-American Center stands in front of 16-story Coles Tower (1964), which provides student living and study quarters, seminar and conference rooms, lounges, and additional offices. Connected to the tower are new and expanded dining facilities in Frederick G. P. Thorne Hall, which includes Wentworth Servery and Daggett Lounge. Sarah Orne Jewett Hall, the third side of the Coles Tower complex, currently houses several administrative offices.

To the east of the Coles Tower complex are two new residence halls completed in the summer of 1996. A six-story building is named Harriet Beecher Stowe Hall in honor of the author of Uncle Tom's Cabin. A four-story building is named Oliver Otis Howard Hall in honor of Major General Oliver Otis Howard of the Class of 1850, first commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau and founder of some 70 educational institutions, among them Howard University. Bowdoin's newest residence hall, Chamberlain Hall, named for Joshua Lawrence Chamberlain of the Class of 1852, was completed in the summer of 1999 and stands on the west side of Coles Tower.

The building at 22 College Street, which stands to the east of Coles Tower and which housed the Delta Kappa Epsilon and the Kappa Delta Theta fraternities, has been extensively renovated to serve as the Admissions Office. The building has been named the Burton-Little House in honor and memory of Harold Hitz Burton (Class of 1909, LL.D. 1937), United States Supreme Court Justice from 1945 to 1958; and of George T. Little (Class of 1877), who was for many years a Bowdoin professor, librarian, and College historian and an ardent benefactor of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. The Student Aid Office is located at Gustafson House, 261 Maine Street.

Various offices occupy buildings around the perimeter of the campus, many of them in historic houses donated by townspeople and former members of the faculty. The Asian Studies Program inhabits 38 College Street. The Women's Resource Center, at 24 College Street, includes a library and meeting rooms. The Herbert Ross Brown House, at 32 College Street, now houses the Counseling Service offices.

Johnson House (1849), on Maine Street, named for Henry Johnson, a distinguished member of the faculty, and Mrs. Johnson, was designated a Registered Historical Landmark in 1975. It contains offices of several student organizations as well as meeting and seminar spaces. Chase Barn Chamber, located in the Johnson House ell, is used for small classes, seminars, and conferences. Ashby House (1845-55), next to Johnson House, is occupied by the Departments of Religion and Education.

On Bath Road, Ham House and the former Getchell House have both undergone recent extensive renovations. Ham House now serves as the location of the Treasurer's and Investments Offices, while Getchell House, now the Edward Pols House, contains offices of the philosophy department and faculty in Latin American studies. The Matilda White Riley House at 7 Bath Street houses the Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

Surrounding the central campus are various athletic, residential, and support buildings. The largest of these is the athletic complex two blocks south of Coles Tower. Here are the William Farley Field House (1987) and Bowdoin's 16-lane A. LeRoy Greason Swimming Pool; Pickard Field House (1937); the new Lubin Squash Center with seven international courts; eight outdoor tennis courts; Pickard Field; the Howard F. Ryan Astro turf Field; and 35 acres of playing fields.

Rhodes Hall, once the Bath Street Primary School, houses the offices of the Departments of Facilities Management and Security. The former home of Bowdoin's presidents, 85 Federal Street (1860) was converted in 1982 for the use of the Development Office. Cram Alumni House (1857), next door to 85 Federal, is the center of alumni activities at Bowdoin. Number 79 Federal Street, formerly the home of Professor of Sociology Burton Taylor, was acquired by the College in 1997. Cleaveland House, the former residence of Professor Parker Cleaveland (1806), at 75 Federal Street, has served as the president's house and is used for some College functions and guests. Copeland House, formerly the home of Manton Copeland, professor of biology from 1908 until 1947, provides additional office space for the Development and College Relations Office.

Student residences and fraternity houses, many of them in historic houses, are scattered in the residential streets around the campus. Several of these have been selected to serve as College Houses as part of the new College House System. These include Baxter House, designed by Chapman and Frazer and built by Hartley C. Baxter, of the Class of 1878; Burnett House, built in 1858 and for many years the home of Professor and Mrs. Charles T. Burnett; 7 Boody Street, formerly the Chi Psi fraternity house, now on loan to the College; Helmreich House, formerly the Alpha Rho Upsilon fraternity house and named in honor of Professor Ernst Helmreich; the former Alpha Delta fraternity house, now named Howell House in honor of Bowdoin's 10th president, Roger Howell, Jr.; and the former Psi Upsilon fraternity house, now named the George (Pat) Hunnewell Quinby House in honor of a former director of theater at Bowdoin (1934–1966). Fraternity houses acquired by the College have been named in honor of alumni members and are being renovated to serve as student residences. These include Kappa Sigma/Alpha Kappa Sigma, now the Donovan D. Lancaster House; Zeta Psi/Chi Delta Ohi, 14 College Street, now named the Samuel A. Ladd, Jr., House; and Theta Delta Chi, 5 McKeen Street, now called the Donald B. MacMillan House.

Additional College-owned student residences include the Brunswick Apartments, on Maine Street, which provide housing for about 150 students; 10 Cleaveland Street; 30 College Street; the Harpwell Street Apartments and the Pine Street Apartments, designed by Design Five Maine and opened in the fall of 1973; the Mayflower Apartments, at 14 Belmont Street, about two blocks from the campus; and the Winfield Smith House, named in memory of L. Winfield Smith, of the Class of 1907.

Bowdoin's facilities extend to several sites at varying distances from the central campus. A new office building, the McLellan Building located a few blocks from campus at 85 Union Street, houses the offices of Human Resources, Communications and Public Affairs, the Controller's Office, art studios, and a large conference room. Research and field stations, which in some cases also serve as areas for outdoor recreation, include the Bowdoin Pines, on the Federal Street and Bath Street edge of the campus; Coleman Farm in Brunswick; the Coastal Studies Center, with marine and terrestrial laboratories and a farmhouse and seminar facility on nearby Orr's Island; the Breckinridge Conference Center in York, Maine; and the Bowdoin Scientific Station at Kent Island, Bay of Fundy, Canada. Property at Bethel Point in nearby Cundy's Harbor has served as a marine research facility and is used as a practice site by the sailing team.

The architectural history of the campus is thoroughly discussed in The Architecture of Bowdoin College (Brunswick: Bowdoin College Museum of Art, 1988), by Patricia McGraw Anderson.
