Podolak, Drummond Crowned Lady, Lord

Permanent Class Officers Announced; Forrest, Pearson, Lutz, and Drummond Elected

On Friday evening, December 4, the class of 1960 held its Senior Prom "Champagne for Two" at Sunnybrook. Lin Drummond and Loretta Podolak reigned as Lord and Lady of the Ball, and the following permanent class officers were announced: President, John Forrest; Secretary-Treasurer, Helen Pearson; Loyalty Fund Chairman, Joe Lutz; and Reunion Chairman, Lin Drummond.

Couples danced to the music of Matt Gillespie and his Orchestra amid the festive decorations of a huge champagne bottle and glittering silver champagne glasses. A couple seated in a 1929 Model A and a large top hat completed the decorations which were planned by Sally Leshner, Gail Kleckner and Katrinka Schnable. Honored guests in the receiving line included Dr. and Mrs. Helfferich, Dean and Mrs. Pettit, Miss Rothenberger, Dean and Mrs. Whatley, Mr. Schellhase, and members of the faculty.

Between 11:30 and Midnight, the Lord and Lady were presented, and the officers were announced. Dean Pettit escorted Loretta Podolak to her throne where she was crowned and presented with a bouquet of red roses. Dean Rothenberger presented the crown to Lin Drummond. After the crowning, a special dance number was played for the new lord and lady.

Loretta Podolak, who is from Burlington, New Jersey, is majoring in biology. She is well-known for her participation in Curtain Club, Messiah, Inter-Sorority Council, WAA, and the Brownback-Anders Society. She is president of Stauffer Hall, vice president of Newman Club, co-captain of the color guard, and recently was elected to Who's Who.

Lin Drummond is a chemistry major from Pitman, New Jersey. Lin's activities include being president of Sigma Rho Lambda fraternity, a member of Beardwood Chemistry Society, the Varsity Club and the MSGA and president of Cub and Key. He, too, was elected to Who's Who.

John Forrest, who has been president of the Class of 1960 for four years, has participated

Pi Nu Epsilon Receives Nine Members in Group

Thursday evening, December 3, nine students were taken into Pi Nu Epsilon national musical fraternity, at a reception in the Student Union.

New members are Laverne Joseph, Bob Watson, David Emery, Linda MacFarland, Ardith Mumbauer, Bea Hauer, Nancy Springer, Dorothea Lamm, and Katherine Scheffley.

Membership is based upon participation in more than one musical activity for a period of four semesters or longer. An established number of "points" must be attained by the candidate and special consideration is given for leadership or solo parts.

In addition, candidates must have a cumulative average of 80 or above.

The four organizations which are considered by Pi Nu are Meistersingers, chapel choir, Messiah Chorus, and Band.

New members and their activities are as follows:

Laverne Joseph—Meistersingers, chapel choir, Messiah, and band; Bob Watson—Meistersingers, band and Messiah; David Emery—Meistersingers, Messiah and chapel choir; Linda MacFarland—Meistersingers, Messiah, and chapel choir; Dorothea Lamm—Meistersingers, Messiah, and chapel choir; Katherine Scheffley—Meistersingers, and Messiah.

Ardith Mumbauer—Meistersingers, Messiah, and chapel choir; Bea Hauer—Meistersingers, Messiah, and chapel choir; Nancy Springer—Meistersingers, Messiah, and chapel choir; Dorothea Lamm—Meistersingers, Messiah, and chapel choir; Katherine Scheffley—Meistersingers, and Messiah.

Folk Song Society Presents Concert Dec. 12 at U. of P.

The Philadelphia Folk Song Society will present a concert on Saturday, December 12, at the University Museum, 34th and Spruce Sts., Phila., Pa. Roger Abrahams, George Britton, Suzanne Gross, Dick Weissman, Hody West, and the Norfolk Singers will be featured. Tickets may be purchased at the Gilded Cage, 261 S. 21st St., Phila., Pa. or at the concert.

Roger Abrahams teaches English at the University of Pennsylvania where he is working for his doctorate in folk lore. He has traveled through the Appalachian Mountains to collect folk lore. Abrahams accompanies his songs on both guitar and dulcimer.

George Britton, organizer and president of the Philadelphia Folk Song Society, has a repertoire of 1500 lullabies in French, German, Spanish, Italian, Latin, Hebrew, Yiddish, Polish, English and Pennsylvania Dutch. He has been heard in Robin Hood Dell children's concerts, at Philadelphia night clubs, on radio and television, in concerts, on recordings, and his voice and guitar have provided background music for two films.

Born in France, Suzanne Gross married an American student and came to this country to live. She sings songs from all the French provinces; ballads, children's songs, and drinking songs—a recognized part of French culture.

Teamed for the December 12 concert are Dick Weissman and Hedy West. Weissman composes music for and plays both the banjo and guitar. He has appeared on radio and television and in concerts and has made a number of recordings. Although Hedy West was born in Georgia, she spent much of her life in North Carolina. She has sung and played the banjo at various Southern folk festivals including the Asheville Folk Festival, at the Campbell Folk School and with groups in North Carolina and Chicago.

The Norfolk Singers were organized as the Norfolk Four twenty years ago. The group now includes six members and only one member of the original group remains. He is Ormond Oliver, the founder. The Singers have become well-known for gospel songs and negro spirituals through their weekly television and radio programs and through numerous personal appearances.

APO Announces Plans to Decorate

In the fall of 1960, chapters of Alpha Phi Omega from colleges and universities all over the United States will meet in Philadelphia for a national convention. Ursinus' chapter, Lambda Upsilon, will form the official reception committee. Extensive plans are being made for this very important task.

The sale of Watkins' products has been a great success. Many compliments have been made to APO members on the high quality of the products that have been bought. For those students who are wondering what to give for gifts this Christmas, APO urges them to look into Watkins' special gift packages.

Congratulated last year by both faculty and students on its fine job of decorating Ursinus for Christmas, APO intends again this year to put colored cellophane on the windows of Pfahler, a wreath between the pillars of Freeland Hall, and decorations on Bomberger Hall.

Two weeks ago about forty brothers and sisters of APO and KDK, respectively, enjoyed a swimming party at the Pottstown "Y".

WSGA Legislates On Enforcement Of Dress Rules

The WSGA held its open meeting in Paisley Recreation Room on Dec. 2, in the presence of many interested women students. The meeting was lengthy and entailed much discussion with all participating.

Gail Snyder again reminded the women that they may go Christmas caroling by dormitories on Dec. 16; the day students may sign up to go with the various dormitories.

Sandra Motta was appointed chairman of the decorating committee for the Lorelei with Lois Rossi and the students living in the Studio Cottage to assist her.

Since no one was able to attend the NSEA Convention held the eek-end of Dec. 4 and 5 in New York, it was suggested that the Council secure a report of the meeting and wait until the regional convention meeting in Philadelphia to send a representative.

After glancing through the movie catalogue, the Council chose seventeen movies to be shown on Friday evenings during the second semester.

The Council, after much discussion, moved and approved the motion concerning the enforcement of the ruling about female attire to be worn to meals. The members of Council are responsible for seeing that no one enters the dining room wearing improper attire; violators of the dress regulations will be turned away from the dining room and not permitted to enter. The headwaiters are to see that waitresses comply with the regulations also. The regulations are as follows: Bermuda shorts are allowed to be worn to

Sue Pontius Succeeds V. Miller as Ruby Editor

Vickie Miller, because of physical impairment, recently resigned from her position as co-editor of the 1961 Ruby. Elected to resume the duties of the co-editor of the yearbook in Vickie's stead was Sue Pontius. Sue, a history major, was chosen on December 3. Having been editor of her high school annual, Sue has had much experience in yearbook work. Sue, who is from West Collingswood, New Jersey, also sings in the Messiah, plays on the badminton team, is a manager of the tennis team, and a sister Tau Sig.

Spanish Club Celebrates Christmas with "Pinata"

On November 17, the Spanish Club had a program of Spanish folk and classical music.

The club's Christmas party was held on Tuesday night, December 1. The festivities began with Christmas records and singing, and the ceremony of "Pinata," which is a Mexican holiday custom. A gaily-decorated sack is filled with surprise gifts and hung from the ceiling. As part of the ceremony, a blindfolded guest is allowed to rip open the sack with a stick, freeing the presents for his friends.

The Seelyes taught the group several Spanish dances which were accepted enthusiastically and practiced for the remainder of the evening. Refreshments were punch and cookies.

Library Announces Fines on Overdue Books

Students are reminded of the fine rate on all overdue books. Books on overnight reserve (signed out on long white cards) are charged at the rate of 15 cents for the first hour and ten cents for each fraction of an hour after. This comes to $1.00 a day. All other books, two week books, one week reserve books, three day reserve books, are charged at the rate of three cents a day. Fines are cut in half if paid immediately upon return of book.

Attend Math Group Meeting

Professor Foster L. Dennis and Assistant Professor Blanche Schultz of the Mathematics Department of Ursinus College attended the meeting of the Philadelphia Section of the Mathematical Association of America, held at the University of Delaware at Newark on Saturday, Nov. 28.

Dr. Dennis is secretary of the Philadelphia Section.

The reading of two papers occupied the morning session of the meeting. The afternoon session included a business meeting and discussion on the topic of liaison problems in collegiate mathematics with both the graduate school and the high school.

In keeping with the Christmas tradition at Ursinus, the annual performance of Handel's Messiah will be presented on Thursday, December 10, 1959, at 8:15 p.m., under the direction of Professor William F. Philip, chairman of the music department of Ursinus. It will be the twenty-second annual presentation.

When "Doc" Philip first initiated the idea of a Messiah presentation by Ursinus students, there was very little response. The interest in the Messiah has increased and the number of members of the chorus is now nearly two hundred and fifty. The performance itself has also grown through the years. At first only the Christmas portion of the oration was given, and now the full Messiah is performed. This year the Messiah will be recorded by RCA.

Of the four soloists in the 1959 production, three have performed in the Messiah at Ursinus in previous years. The new voice will be that of soprano Carol Bergey. A pupil of Madame Merinka Gurewich, Miss Bergey has sung leading roles in many musical comedies, including performances at Jones Beach, where critics hailed the quality and clarity of her voice. She has also been lauded for her outstanding interpretations of famous operatic roles both on the continent and in this country, where she has sung with the Santa Fe Opera Association, the New Orleans Opera Association, and the Oglesby Institute Opera Workshop. In 1956, she sang the concert version of Carmen with the Philadelphia Orchestra under the baton of Leonard Bernstein.

Miss Gladys Kriese, contralto, won the 1953 Career Performance of the Chicago Theatre of the Air, and in 1954, she was awarded the Women's First Award of the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" in Toronto, Canada. She has been soloist with many symphony and oratorio societies of this country and Canada. At present Miss Kriese is also soloist at the Rutgers' Presbyterian Church in New York.

Frederick D. Mayer, tenor, comes from Lincoln, Nebraska.

Mrs. Helfferich Invites Sophs, Juniors to Dessert

All Sophomore and Junior women are invited to a Christmas party at Super House, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Helfferich, on Monday, Dec. 14, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Helfferich has requested that the women students dress informally as they would for classes. The theme for the party will be Christmas Customs from Other Lands, and entertainment will be presented by members of the college community who have taken part in Christmas customs that differ from those practiced in our American culture.

Doris Bethke Has Poetry Printed in Anthology

The National Poetry Association in Los Angeles, California, recently announced that an Ursinus woman, Doris Bethke, was selected as a contributor for the Annual Anthology of College Poetry. The Anthology is a compilation of the finest poetry written by the college men and women of America.

The poem, "Oh, Life!", which won this honor for Doris is printed on page 2.

Newman Club Program Features Evolution Topic

This evening at 6:45, Rev. Louis P. Georgi will address the Newman Club. This meeting of the club will be held in Women's Day Study, Rev. Georgi, who is Assistant Pastor of S.S. Cosmos and Damien Church in Conshohocken and a philosophy professor at Cabrini College, will speak on "The Theory of Evolution". Everyone is welcome to attend.

REMINDER

Students are requested not to enter the chapel after the speaker has begun. All students are urged to come on time, as a person's late entry is not only distracting but rude.

An Antidote to Apathy

Imagine for a moment the Patterson Field bleachers filled with an overflow crowd of Ursinus men and women cheering for an improved and inspired football team. Picture, if you can, a large group gathering in front of Freeland Hall for pep rallies, or many appreciative students attending Friday night concerts and forums in Bomberger Chapel. Try now to envision every Saturday night dance as lively as a homecoming dance or a prom. If these circumstances, all indicative of a sincere college spirit and unity, seem difficult to imagine, we ought to know the reason why.

Ursinus college does not lack spirit. The problem is the enthusiasm seems to be distributed among a comparatively small number of people, and consequently vociferous complaints about the dearth of college spirit continue. No amount of educational and recreational opportunities, such as dances, athletic events, seminars and forums, are able to stem the tide of resentment and unrest poured out by students who, as we have said before, are not apathetic but just plain lazy.

What happens to these critics when the weekends arrive? What is their alternative to joining the activities of the college community? The answer to these two questions lies in the unfortunate and inaccurate reputation this loud minority has given to Ursinus: "the suitcase college". Those who criticize their college for its supposed lack of spirit contribute most to that which they criticize by packing for home on Friday afternoon.

AN ANTIDOTE FOR THE APATHY SHOWN BY MANY OF THESE TRANSIENTS MIGHT BE—and hold onto your hats — SATURDAY MORNING CLASSES AT URSINUS. The disadvantages of such an innovation are numerous and, we are afraid, insurmountable, but let us at least contemplate the obvious advantages of Saturday school, bearing in mind that even now ours remains one of the few colleges without regularly scheduled Saturday class meetings.

A student supported movement for such a schedule would, of course, add prestige to an already highly esteemed institution. Students' personal schedules in general would become more flexible since classes would not be added to each schedule but merely spread out over an additional day. The Tuesday, Thursday, Friday sequence would become non-existent, and the library would remain open on Saturday since there would be more students on campus to supervise it. In time, new classes might be inserted into the curriculum. Saturday morning classes would, moreover, be an incentive for Saturday and Sunday study. They would also boost interest in Friday night campus activities which would begin to include speakers and concert entertainers as well as movies and student productions. Much of the Ursinus liquor consumption would stop since Friday would be a school night and Pennsylvania bars can remain open only until mid-night Saturdays.

The social advantages which were discussed briefly in the opening paragraph are many. Although there would be no afternoon classes on Saturday, those who had been accustomed to making long weekend trips home would find it more practical and convenient to remain on campus and investigate a football or basketball game or the weekend dance. After all, if increased attendance and participation in campus affairs can't build spirit, what can?

All of us have come to Ursinus to be educated. A certain amount of that education is scholastic and is offered only in the classroom. The rest is social and is offered only by friends and classmates on campus. The scholastic part of education, we believe, is meant to be augmented by the friendships and numerous cultural, social, and athletic activities planned by the college. Saturday morning classes, as distasteful as they may sound, would not only alleviate some of the tension of a five day work schedule, but would make the campus activities more attractive to those students who have detached themselves completely from campus life.

What's Wrong with Marriage?

There seems to be an increasing number of college students opposing the institution of marriage—not a startling number, true, but the word "increasing" makes the movement something to be watched. I'm making dangerous generalities here—the "increasing number" statement being based on a personal observation of an actual one-to-two increment. Never having been one to be stopped or even slowed down to a conservative pace by the danger of generalizing, however, I shall henceforth continue on my ill-informed way, sneering at the statisticians and hoping that the ideas of these few, or rather two, will match the beliefs of others in the "growing throng of confirmed bachelors" (not to be confused in any way with celibates).

Those who want to avoid marriage submit three general reasons: loss of independence, loss of identity and eventually boredom. When a person marries, they say, he (or she) automatically forfeits his independence. He is no longer free to do what he wants to do when he wants to do it. This freedom is important. I say "Bosh!" No one has such independence, married or not. Do the confirmed bachelors love freedom or do they just hate responsibility? Being married doesn't necessarily put you in a neat suburban development, lock the front door, and throw away the key. It does request that you pay the milkman, eat the dinner your wife prepares, and provide some kind of security for the people who depend on you. Marriage does not put a clamp on your independence; it does, admittedly present responsibilities.

As for loss of identity, again I say "Bosh!" Your own personality should remain, of course; that's why she married you. But isn't there a chance that your beloved "identity" will become something even greater by the union of marriage? Isn't it understandable that the many facets of your personality can be increased immeasurably by combining them with the many facets of another personality, through devotion and love? (which, by the way, could be numbered among the strongest forces within human reach, including the H-bomb and compulsory chapel attendance.)

The third reason, eventual boredom, is answered with a third "Bosh!" Agreed, you can get tired of ice cream if you eat it every day and twice on Sundays. But how is it that you can find yourself so "infinitely complex", yet foresee future annoyance with the "shallowness" of a mate? True, marriage may force you into a routine which could make your life stagnant; so could a 9-5 office job. Anyone who is bored is the cause of that boredom. Being bored doesn't necessarily imply being married, as being married doesn't imply being bored.

I wonder if all these reasons submitted by the anti-marriage proponents could be explained by a feeling of self-importance and self-sufficiency. Is it just that they think they don't need anyone, that they are perfect in themselves? Can't they meet responsibilities? And aren't they capable of providing security?

You can dismiss this article with the explanation that I've been steeped too long in a Christian background or that I like to wash dishes. Don't get married; spend the rest of your life running around the countryside in bare feet, glorying in your perfect self, but run my way, so I can see what insecurity looks like without shoes.

STEAK FROM SALISBURY

by Betty Heale

After a week of luxurious living aboard the Mauretania, the Willises and I found ourselves living in a rambling British rectory, which meant we'd be doing quite a bit of our own cooking. We had our first Saturday night meal at the home of some parishioners. On Sunday morning we looked at the contents of the pantry and found some eggs, a loaf of bread, some tinned ham, a couple of jars of marmalade, and naturally, a canister of tea.

We made use of all this food for two breakfasts, a lunch and supper. Luckily, Sunday dinner was provided by some gracious people. On Monday morning Mr. and Mrs. Willis got their foreign driver's licenses, and after another meal that was an exact replica of the one we'd had the night before, Mrs. Willis donned her trench coat and said she was ready to brave the wilds of the English roads. Our car for the summer had a license plate which helped to give it a personality: PAM 447. And we learned that until Pam was scrapped many years from now she would still be Pam no matter who bought her or what year it was, for the British sensibly keep the same plate and just issue new paper seals each year. Of course, the government gets revenue from the paper seals, but just think of the money that is saved by not having to manufacture those plates. Probably one of the "maniac fringe" from Scotland invented that clever idea.

Salisbury was our destination. We had to get some staples that our little town just didn't have. On Sunday Mrs. Willis had asked one of the ladies of the church about the best place to shop in Salisbury. Our friend answered that Woolworths had just built a new super market in the town. My first impulse was to say "but they're five and dime people, not super market builders." Then the woman said they'd also built a five and dime nearby. America had even extended her super market and five and dime culture to historic old England.

However, after a harrowing ride during which we continually warned Mrs. Willis to keep to the left, we found that Salisbury and its cathedral looked just as venerable and beautiful as we could have wished. Even the super market had an English quality to it. Boxes and cans were of either small or medium size—there wasn't a giant economy size to be seen anywhere. Because of the cool damp climate, cream containers are not refrigerated, but stacked in pyramid formations. Bakery goods were plentiful and inexpensive; the cost of meat prohibitive in contrast. We bought a piece of steak that looked lean and was not too expensive.

Home we drove to prepare dinner in our vaguely medieval kitchen. Despite all sorts of tenderizing processes, our Salisbury steak was dreadfully tough. We had to cut the pieces so finely to make them chewable, that they had no flavor.

Though we would now be more wary of the high sounding Salisbury steak, we knew that we would be making many return trips to Salisbury to enjoy the charms of one of loveliest spots in all England.

Socrates Said

by Kay O'Donnell

Thousands of years ago, in the 5th century B. C., Socrates, the Greek philosopher, was unhappily viewing a present problem; that problem was teenagers or, as he wrote, youth. We might think that it is impossible that a topic of discussion over 2,000 years ago is current now, but this is what he wrote:

"Our youth now love luxury. They have bad manners and contempt for authority. They show disrespect for their elders and love to chatter in place of exercise. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up their food, and tyrannize their teachers."

You are probably wondering what this description of ancient youth has to do with us. It is for the benefit of those of us who feel we are so different and wonderful that no one will ever be like us. Not only will there be a likeness to us in all succeeding generations, but we are likenesses to the billions of people who have gone before us.

Oh, Life!

by Doris Bethke

Oh life, you hold within your mighty grasp
So many people tossed on stormy seas
Who struggle to unloose the hellish clasp
Of hopeless fear and trivialities.
For men who work and sweat—all this for treasures
Of gold or riches, such of earthly needs,
Are fools to lust for such things—worthless pleasures—
When life is short and heaven is earned by deeds.

And even deeds will not assure the way
If these are motivated not by love.
For God, our Maker, doth provide this day
For us to build our mansions up above.

And thus our lives of worldly pleasures pass,
For only what we do in Christ will last.

BRASS

The following are questions posed to Dean Pettit by Doris Flehs, reporter.

Q1. Is there any way the college could arrange with the Schuylkill Valley Lines for a night bus from Norristown on Saturdays?

A1. A campus organization, i.e. the WSGA or MSGA, could charter a bus holding forty to forty-five passengers for twelve dollars. The Schuylkill Valley Line is willing to run a bus any night on a guaranteed basis. Such service will not be restored on a regular basis in the foreseeable future because there is not enough public demand for it.

Q2. Has Ursinus ever considered having an academic honor system?

A2. It is felt that the mechanics for an honor system are present in the existing system. All the elements are present for honorable people to operate and for dishonest people to be apprehended. On the other hand, students may request the Dean to assign a proctor to aid the professor, who helps the students by seeing that examinations are conducted properly. Reports of cheating should be brought to the attention of the student government organizations.

Q3. Is there to be a paved path alongside Beardwood?

A3. The matter was brought up at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors on November 11. It is under consideration, but nothing is planned for the immediate future.

What Makes Pop Corn Pop?

Popping corn contains water. When the water gets hot enough, the kernel explodes. Result: popcorn.

We're not passing this information along as a public service. Actually we're up to the same old game.

You see, popcorn makes most people thirsty. Fortunately, when most people get thirsty they hanker for the good taste of Coca-Cola.

Wouldn't you like some popcorn right now? C'mon now, wouldn't you?

Ursinus Quintet Drops Close One to Pioneers

On Friday evening, in Camden Convention Hall, the Bears dropped a much disputed contest to the Pioneers of Rutgers College of South Jersey, 64-63.

After leading by seven points mid-way through the second quarter, the Bears quintet fell behind just before the intermission to trail 37-31 as the third quarter got under-way.

Obviously inspired by a pep-talk of Coach Warren Fry, the Bears came to life in the third quarter, and tied the score at 58 all about mid-way through the final period.

However, thanks to a much disputed call, disputed only by the fans who were sitting in such a position as to be able to voice an opinion, the Pioneers were able to get back into the lead and hold on to it, bringing the contest to a close in the final ten seconds when Jack Volk, a sophomore, hit from the foul line for the final and winning point.

Though the score indicates a close battle, which the game was, it does not indicate a team effort as was the case the night before when the Bears rolled over Philadelphia Pharmacy. Ursinus had four men in the double figures with Jim Wenhold getting 17 points, Walt Dryfoos 14, Dennie Gould 13, and Wes ("The Little Fellow" as he was called all evening by the announcer on WCAM) James 11, but these figures would have been of greater magnitude had the boys played more as a team and less as five individuals.

Rutgers, playing well above their "heads" also carried four men into double figures, their top man being Jerry McCullough who tossed in 15 markers.

The Bears had some reason to smile last evening, however, as the Junior Varsity won their second game of the season by downing the RCSJ Junior Varsity by the score of 57-49. Trailing 22-20 at half-time, the future Bears, led by Bill Daggett and "Sweets" Harper, scored 17 and 14 points respectively, and inspired by the outstanding play of freshman Dave Hall, came on to bring the game out of the fire in the closing minutes of the ball game.

The line-ups for the varsity contest were:

Intramural Basketball To Start After Christmas

Intramural Basketball will start after the Christmas Vacation. It will be composed of two leagues. One will be a fraternity league and the other a dorm league. Each player can only play in one league, dorm or fraternity. At the end of the season there will be a play-off game between the champions of each league. All dorms and fraternities wishing to enter a team or teams must turn a list of players (ten or less) in to Roger Elchlin or Ted Kershner by Friday of this week.

The winner of the Intramural Football League was Curtis II with a victorious season of no losses.

Hel's Corner

Now that the fall season is over, it is very tempting, indeed, to reflect on the athletic contests Ursinus engaged in during the last two months. Owing to the fact that the teams in the two fall sports did not live up to the hopes and expectations of the student body, we fear that any reflections may result in a negative attitude toward sports in this college. And since a negative attitude should be avoided by all means, we shall refrain from any further comments on an already unpopular and unfortunate situation.

However, we would like to extend our sincere congratulations to the outstanding senior on the 1959 football team, Richard Boggio. Richard was chosen by his teammates as the most valuable football player of the 1959 season, and it is our personal opinion that he was the best possible choice. It goes without saying, however, that there was a whole array of senior men to whom credit is due for the fine examples they set. Keith Moyer should be commended for his fine performances this past fall along with Jon Myers, Ted Kershner, John Forrest, Tony McGrath, Bob Petersen and Clement Anderson.

The winter season came to a good start last Thursday when the Ursinus basketball team defeated PCP by a score of 76-40. It was Coach Warren Fry's debut at Ursinus, and it must be said that it was a good and successful one. Fry presented a squad which appeared well coached and likely to be more successful than last year's.

Ursinus Alumnae Chosen for 1960 United States Team at Washington

Six alumnae of Ursinus College were named to the United States Team and to the United States Reserves (second team) at the close of the National Hockey Tournament held in Washington, D. C., over the Thanksgiving week-end. While such nomination is largely honorary, American teams which travel abroad or which meet foreign invaders are picked from those nominated to the Team and Reserves.

Named to the first team were Phyllis Stadler, '56, Rumson, N.J.; Vonnie Gros, '57, Drexel Hill; and Adele Boyd, '53, of Glenside. Miss Stadler and Miss Gros were also named to the United States Team last year.

Among those winning positions with the Reserves were Joanne Duncan, '50, Upper Darby; Elaine Emenheiser, '59, of Feasterville; Mrs. Albert J. Zelle, '58, 1635 Main St., Trappe.

The Tournament, which brings together the cream of hockey talent throughout the nation, was opened by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

In addition to the six Ursinus alumnae honored by national recognition, three other alumnae and two undergraduates played in the Tournament on teams representing different geographical areas.

Miss Eleanor Snell has been coach of Ursinus hockey teams for over a quarter of a century.

Basketball Grizzlies Win Over Philly Drug

Coach Warren Fry, in his debut as Ursinus' varsity basketball coach, had ample opportunity to see all of his men in action this past Thursday night when the Bears opened their 1959-60 basketball season by trouncing the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science to the tune of 76 to 40.

Led by Jim Wenhold and Dennie Gould, who had 21 and 20 points respectively, the Bears had a field day, being threatened only in the first few minutes of the first quarter. From then on it was strictly a one-sided affair as the Bears poured it on, walking off the floor at half time with a 26 point edge, 48 to 22.

Immediately after intermission Coach Fry began to substitute players, so that all would have a chance to play and above all, to be seen in action. As the subs took over, the game turned into more of a contest, but the edge which had been built up in the first half could not be overcome by the future druggists from the City of Brotherly Love.

The starting five for the Bears, in this contest at least, featured three well known faces on the UC campus as well as two new and very promising freshmen in the forms of Walt Dryfoos and Wes Jones. Wenhold, Gould, and Dick Saylor rounded out the starting quintet.

In the appetizer event of the evening, the UC Junior Varsity also made it no contest as they scored their first victory of the season, 71 to 54. The Junior Bears had three men hit double figures as Daggett, Fleming and Brackin hit for 18, 14, and 12, respectively.

Though these two games were actually no contests, it could be seen by watching the Bears that we have a finely drilled and coached squad this year that should bring our record up to a more respectable position.

A Preview of Women's Winter Sports Activities

This year's girls' basketball team, captained by Ingie Reiniger and Faye Bardman has a number of returning letter winners including the following: Susie Wagner, Luey Magness, Lore Hamilton, Lynn Crosley, Winnie Miller, Pat Hoehl, and the two co-captains. In addition, the squad is rounded out by other returning members who will add the necessary experience that comes only with practice. These include Carol Bentley, Sally Bastow, Mary Lozier, Sue Echer, Ruth Fatscher, and Joan Fry.

The team will play such colleges as West Chester State Teachers College, East Stroudsburg S. T. C., Albright, Temple, Swarthmore, and Beaver.

Filled with spirit and determination, the team, under the able leadership of Coach Snell and management of Nancy Faust and Robin Forepaugh, has high hopes of a winning season.

The swimming team also shows promise of a successful season. It is once again under the fine leadership of Coach Beverly Ruhr. Returning swimmers include Joey Ferrell, Sallie Eikner, Kathy Scheffley, Leanne Harten, and Doris Effenburg. This year's team has so many candidates, veterans, and freshmen, that they are certain to be victorious. The number of freshmen will provide building blocks for future years. Besides a varsity team, Ursinus can, this year, provide a full JV line-up. The entire team has shown an extreme amount of enthusiasm, spirit, and determination which is the key to success in any sport.

The badminton team has also started its season with a few returning members including the following: Jeanne LeCato, Sandy Reinhart, Carol Heffelfinger, and Adele Statzel. The biggest rivals are Bryn Mawr and Swarthmore; these matches, especially, are thrillers from start to finish.

Last year several team members entered the class 1B Delaware Valley Badminton Association Tournament. Three girls brought distinction to Ursinus through their outstanding playing. Carol Heffelfinger and Liz Wheeler were runners-up in the womens doubles, and Jeanne LeCato was a runner-up in mixed doubles.

ZETA CHI

Congratulations are in order for Bob Petersen, who recently made "Who's Who". Tom Engel also made "What's This?"

We are proud to announce that our lovely Homecoming Queen, Helen Pearson, was selected as a member of the court for the Liberty Bowl on Dec. 19.

Plans are rapidly being completed for our annual Orphan's party in conjunction with Tau Sig, scheduled for next Saturday. It should be a lot of fun for everyone concerned.

DELTA MU SIGMA

This coming Saturday, the brothers of Demas and the sisters of Phi Psi will stage a Christmas party at the Bethany Children's Home in Womelsdorf, Pa. Planning and discussion of the affair took place in an orderly manner at a preliminary meeting, at which time, smiling, effervescent James Sandercock seemed an almost unanimous choice for Santa Claus; however, Jim's supporters did have more than one doubtful moment when Vernon Morgan leaped menacingly to his feet and staged a vehement forty minute filibuster in an effort to rally some support for his cause in his quest for this hallowed position.

Mungy spoke eloquently, but at the conclusion of his speech, Wydman Snyder rose shyly and asked if Jim Sandercock would be kind enough to stand so that he might get a look at him. "After all," said Glenn, "I've been living off campus for a while now, and, well—you know how it is . . . fellas." As it turned out, Vern lost the election, but he was ably consoled by several of his robust followers, namely Bob Megill, Cal Griffin and Jerry Morita.

On the more serious side, the brothers of Demas wish to welcome John Swinton into the "Green Bean Patch". Congratulations are also due to Cal Griffin and Dick Mayes on their recent pinnings.

In the immediate future, Demas will hold its annual "tea and crumpets" party before Christmas dinner on Thursday, December 17. Caroling will follow the dance, and more "tea and crumpets" will follow caroling.

Sermon

by Cynthia Morris

"Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you."

These words were spoken almost one thousand years ago, yet they are just as applicable today as they were in the past. In a world in which crises always seem imminent, the need is great for love and understanding.

It is the normal human tendency to hate our enemies. People who have the 'eye for an eye, tooth for a tooth' attitude never see beyond their own small existence. Revenge always results in harming one, rather than helping one.

Hatred is like the green-eyed monster, jealousy. Once the seed is planted, it grows and grows until it knows no bounds. "To hate an enemy is to conspire with him for your own defeat. This is because hatred is a destructive adviser which blinds the reason and corrupts the judgment."

Some people feel that only a pacifist would love his enemies. Loving an enemy is not being naive or foolish; it is actually common sense. Psychologically, a person who loves is in a much better state, both mentally and physically, than one who hates.

Hatred spells defeat. Love is the only way to lasting victory and inner peace.

BAND

The Ursinus band has begun practices for its concert season. In order to present the three concerts planned for this year, Ursinus students are asked to give their support to the band. All students who play an instrument are urged to attend the rehearsals held on Monday evenings at 7:30 in Bomberger.

The Philadelphia Folk Song Society was organized two years ago to promote folk music. The group meets on the second Sunday of each month, except during the summer, at the International House, 15th and Cherry Sts., Phila. Anyone interested in folk music, whether or not he performs, is invited to attend meetings.

Chester Watson, bass baritone, has also done extensive radio and television work. He is a regular soloist with the NBC Opera Company, and he recently appeared in the television performance of Beethoven's Fidelio.

Organist Howard L. Gamble, a Philadelphian, was organist and choirmaster at the First Unitarian Church for many years. He is a fellow of the American Guild of Organists, in which he holds the degree of Choirmaster. At present he serves the Germantown Jewish Center as organist and choirmaster.

The orchestra is composed of musicians from the Philadelphia Orchestra and of students and local instrumentalists. Student pianists who have been accompanists for rehearsals, Laverne Joseph, president of the Music Club, and Christine Freed, will play on the evening of the performance.

Section leaders are Laverne Joseph, Sydney Small, Virginia Keller and Mary Pennington.

Socrates . . .

This description is also for the benefit of those of us who believe that our parents are old-fashioned and have never had the experiences which we have had. Surely over these many centuries our parents' generation would not be the only one different from ours and all other generations.

Lastly, this quotation is for those parents who feel their children are the different ones. Have they forgotten so soon their youthful misbehaviors?

We are still youth in spirit but, in, or approaching, adulthood in age. We have, or should have, grown up, so this quotation will not pertain to us, but instead to younger brothers and sisters. If we do think that it applies to us we must decide very soon if we are going to act like typical teenagers of Socrates' time, or like adults of the 20th century.

Some Borrowed Humor

"I don't mind scrimping in order to spend, but I hate to scrimp just to save."

By the time a family acquires a nest egg these days, inflation has turned it into chicken feed.

Politics is a game in which some men are self-made but most are machine-made.

A successful politician is one who can get the public eye without irritating it.

The biggest trouble with political promises is that they go in one year and out the other.

One bureaucrat to another: "So we made a blunder! Don't just stand there—label it 'Top Secret' and file it away!"

One of a group of five-year olds discussing bedtime: "I have to go to bed at 7:30. My mother is a half hour meaner than yours."

Secretary discussing her blind date: "He just got out of the service—sort of a post-naval drip."

Small Hollywood girl, making introductions at a party: "And this is my brother—on both sides."

After a ride in his aunt's new station wagon: "You have a real nice car—two seats and a back room."

His efforts at conversation were returned unopened. Teen-ager: a gawky-talkie.

She's afflicted with rumortism.

Thoughts

by Richard F. Levine

Nobility and dignity are states of mind, not necessarily positive by birth; self-confidence also is as noticeable as a badge.

The first modern psychologist before Freud was Nietzsche. His philosophy was close to true individual thinking because he knew the workings of his own and other minds so well; hence the natural force of his logic. Freud, too, made his generalizations after a careful study of his own mind; his ideas thus conceived were then backed up with the observations of other minds.

On getting drunk: there is no excuse for losing one's self-control in public this way, even at a family celebration. It is a pity that many people are so afraid of their realities. Furthermore, it appears that one either resents performances indicative of intoxication or participates in them himself.

A good test of a person's integrity is to observe how he fulfills his responsibility.

The system of meritocracy, founded and in eminence in America, is based on inherent ability, acquired knowledge, and imagination. It is too bad that this quite natural system is often by-passed, especially in commercial enterprises, both capitalistic and non-profit-making. But then, "money is power," it has been said. And wasn't it the same power which established the Established Order? Veblen demonstrated the truth of this idea in his writing, which is essentially the primer for motivational research, being a work on the motivational and background psychology relating to economics.

Poor is the person who has but few intangible joys.

FRENCH CLUB

At the home of Dr. Wilcox on Tuesday night, November 24, the French Club was entertained by two Parisian actor-poets, Messieurs Jacquemin and Coulet, and three of their friends, also from France. Jacquemin has his own radio show in Philadelphia.

There were dramatic readings from several of the greatest French writers—Hugo, Verlaine, Corneille, La Fontaine, and others. The main presentation was Knock, a contemporary play by Jules Romain. Mike Blewett also read.

The club planned for the coming Christmas party tomorrow night, December 8, at 7:30. They will sing French Christmas carols.

Business Administration Club

On December 8, a movie about the Stock Exchange will be shown for all members of the Business Administration Club; everybody is urged to attend.
