J. Robbins is '59 May Queen Court, Committees are Picked

The annual May Day Pageant, to be held on May 9 this year, seems a long way off. Already, however, most of the important preliminary plans have been well organized by this year's manager, Barbara Tucker, and Mrs. Connie Poley, who is serving again in the capacity of director.

Jackie Robbins has been elected May Queen and will be attended by seniors, Beth Davis and Penny Hill; juniors, Helen Person and Jane Glinger; sophomores, Coral Lee Koffke and Joan Meszaros; freshmen, Lore Hamilton and Linda Peiffer. As queen, Jackie will reign at the performance of the pageant, which was written by this year's manager and author of last year's May Day Pageant, Barbara Tucker. The story is that of a small girl and her dream of the festivities in anticipation of spring, taking place in a kingdom beneath the sea. Having fallen asleep while sailing, she finds herself the delighted witness of the dances and display of the colorful undersea inhabitants. The celebration is climaxed by the crowning of the lovely queen of the deep.

All of those who wish to try out for any dance may do so on Monday evening, March 9, at 7 in the new gym. There is opportunity for a great number of participants, and as many as possible are encouraged to be at the new gym this evening. To facilitate selection of dancers for each dance, the girls are requested to wear large name tags.

Lolly Strasser is chairman of the Dance Council. Dance leaders and their dances are as follows: Rene DeRyder, mermaids (interp.); Flora McQueen, crabs (comedy interp.); Winnie Nace, pirates (interp.); Linda Brenner, fish (comedy); Gail Triplician, Greeks (interp.); Loretta Podolak, knights (marching); Sharyn Sands, Russians (Cosack); Sandy Motta, Brazilians (samba); Sandy Pfaffhausen, Chinese (oriental); Elsie Catlett, circus (tumbling); Polly Hunt, lobsters (interp.); Sally Leshar, Maypole.

At the beginning of last week, committee chairmen and their committees were posted: Costumes, R. A. Spencer, chairman; K. Ridyrd, R. A. Barker, D. Doyle, S. McSparren, M. Miller, S. Abel, L. Habel, K. McNitt, C. Smith, S. Reider, D. Fiehs, A. Epting, M. Pennington, M. White.

Juniors Plan to Present Prom

On April 10 at Sunnybrook Ballroom, the Junior Class is presenting its first prom for the Ursinus student body. With the aid of a theme committee headed by Loretta Podolak and Cindy Buchanan, the class chose an oriental theme. Ideas have been proposed for carrying it out. The atmosphere of a pagoda in springtime, which would include a centerpiece of a Japanese couple crossing a bridge, could pervade the ballroom with the use of delicate overhanging lanterns and trees bursting with cherry blossoms. Other typical scenes and figures will be used in appropriate places. Charing the decorations committee are Loretta Podolak, Lynn Ransom and Sally Leshar. A name for the prom has not yet been selected.

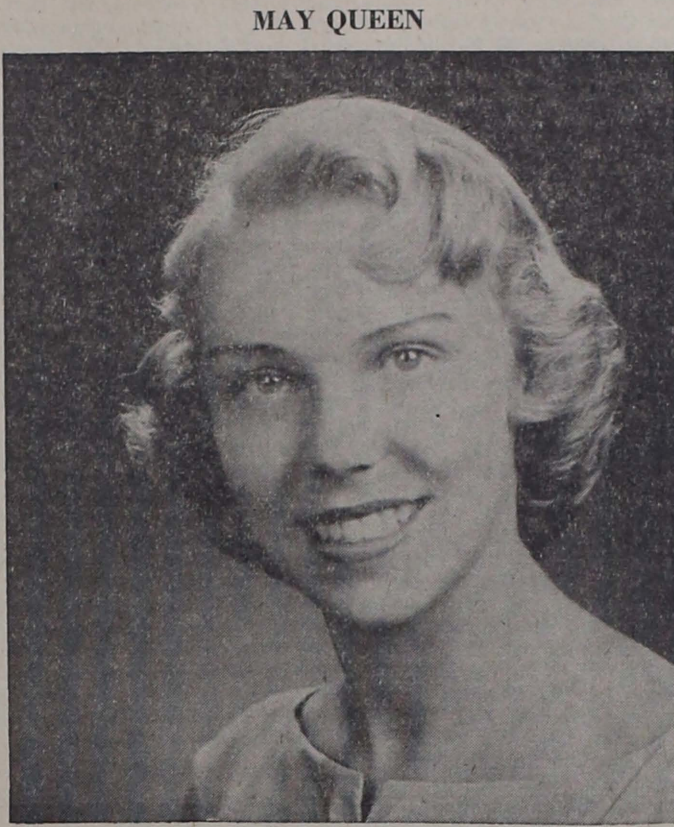

Tony McGrath succeeded in obtaining the orchestra of Rich Raymond for the evening. Possibly either this orchestra's special jazz group or a male chorus will perform during the intermission.

Heading the program committee are Cindy Buchanan, Joan Refford and Jack Bauman, and the publicity committee chairmen are Temple Critchfield, Mary Lou Mook and Helen Pearson.

YM-YWCA

In response to the requests of the students, Mr. Bruce Rigdon and Mr. James Jonah of the Student Volunteer Movement will return to the Ursinus Campus on Wednesday evening at 6:45 p.m. to talk with the students on Summer Workcamps Abroad.

Jim and Bruce had visited the campus this past Friday and spent time sitting in on classes. Jim, who is from Sierra Leone in West Africa, lectured to two of the political science classes.

JACKIE ROBBINS

Dr. Helen Cam To Speak at Forum Wed.

Ursinus is most fortunate in having as its guest this Wednesday, March 11, an outstanding woman scholar. After speaking at Bryn Mawr Tuesday, Dr. Helen M. Cam, an authority on medieval history, will address the Ursinus Forum on Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in Bomberger. Dr. Cam is a dynamic person who finds great joy in discovering the history of the medieval period and takes pleasure in delving into the hidden aspects of that time. She has done extensive research on the hundred rolls and radiates enthusiasm for scholarly pursuits.

Coming in the afternoon to speak informally with the history students, Dr. Cam will discuss topics and answer questions which most interest students. Of international renown, Dr. Cam was the president of the International Commission on Assemblies of Estates which was formed to investigate the origin of medieval parliaments or representative assemblies in various countries, such as Hungary and Poland.

Dr. Cam received her Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees at London University and then took her Doctor of Literature degree at Cambridge in (Continued on page 4)

90th Anniversary of Its Charter Celebrated by Ursinus on Feb. 19

Quietly and unobtrusively, Ursinus marked the 90th anniversary of its charter on Thursday, Feb. 19, 1959. Not even a chapel talk was dedicated to the observance of the college's history.

When Ursinus was established in 1869, the institution in mind was one where young men could be "liberally educated under the benign influence of Christianity". Founded by the members of the German Reformed Church, the college was named for the 16th century scholar and reformer, Zacharius Ursinus.

It was in 1880 that young women were admitted to the college. At this time Ursinus became, and still remains, the only co-educational college in Montgomery County.

Dr. N. E. McClure, President Emeritus of Ursinus, has this formula for Ursinus: "to bring serious and competent students into personal contact with scholars and scientists who have found in teaching both success and happiness. The development of the plan depends upon the quality of teachers and students, their ability, their seriousness of purpose, their character." Dr. Donald Helfferich, incumbent president, stated that "good teaching" typifies Ursinus.

Junior Men Should Apply for Cub and Key

Men of the Junior Class who wish to be considered for membership in the Cub and Key Society 'tapping' which will take place at the annual Junior Prom on April 10, must submit a note outlining their respective qualifications for Cub and Key membership to the society by March 16.

All men in the Class of 1960 are eligible for acceptance into the society; however, no more than seven men may be 'tapped'. High scholarship, active participation in extra-curricular activities and good citizenship in the college community are the most important criteria for membership. No man will be considered for Cub and Key membership unless he has submitted a list of his qualifications. This list should be given to one of the undergraduate members of the society, a list of whose names is as follows: Wally Christ, Sam Fogel, Fred Glauser, and Ted Holcombe.

Campus Chest Opens Annual Charity Drive

Goal Set for $1600 This Year; Four Charities Are Represented; Dorm Representatives Appointed

From March 9 until March 20, the annual campus charity drive will take place. The Campus Chest, which sponsors this drive, is an organization composed of various groups on this campus who unite to aid the 4 worthy charities chosen. The organizations composing the Campus Chest are the Women's Student Government Association, YM-YWCA, the Varsity Club, the WAA, the Inter-Fraternity and Inter-Sorority

Councils, and the men and women day students. The slogan of the Campus Chest Committee is "Give once for all"—as seen on the pep tags which will be given to each donor.

The charities to be supported by this year's drive are the American Friends' Service Committee, the World University Service, the Philadelphia Association for Retarded Children, and Town House. The fourth charity, Town House, is new to the Campus this year.

The American Friends' Service Committee, a Quaker organization, operates a program aimed at such things as (1) meeting human needs of refugees and villagers abroad, (2) bringing together the leaders of thought from many nations, (3) challenging discrimination in United States community life, (4) giving young volunteers practical experience in service to the community, (5) helping American adults and youth work for peace, and (6) receiving and using wisely gifts of money and goods.

The World University Service offers American students and professors an opportunity for giving to students abroad who are in need, and for increasing international understanding both at home and abroad. The WUS effort is rooted in a firm belief that education is the key to many world problems.

Town House is a part of the Norristown State Mental Hospital. Thirty women, in the last stage of normal recovery, are living in this house. The purpose of this home is to give these women a feeling of security and a normal home life in the outside world away from the institution. Our contribution will help provide new and attractive home furnishings.

The Philadelphia Association for Retarded Children is a non-profit, non-sectarian organization, caring for Philadelphia's mentally retarded children, regardless of their color, creed, or economic standing.

The members of the Campus Chest feel these causes are worthy ones, greatly in need of support. This year's goal is $1600, a slight increase over last year's goal of $1400. Each student is asked to do his share to make a whole-hearted effort for a successful campaign.

This year's officers leading the Campus Chest are Cora Lee Eddy and Bill McQuoid, co-chairmen; Marlene White, secretary; Loretta Witmer, corresponding secretary; Bob Turn-

APO Plans For Future Events

The Lambda Upsilon Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega held its regular meeting Thursday, February 19, in Bomberger Chapel and approved the schedule of social and service events for the spring semester. President Ron Tempest directed the meeting.

For their first social event of the semester, APO planned a co-ed swimming and bowling party, held Friday, Feb. 27, at the Pottstown YMCA. The chapter also planned a square dance in conjunction with Kappa Delta Kappa sorority for March 14. Paul C. "Poesie" Scheirer will be the caller for the affair to take place in St. John's United Church of Christ in Pottstown.

Five couples from Ursinus attended the annual Sweetheart Dance of the Delaware Valley Area Conclave of Alpha Phi Omega. The dance was held in Bennett Hall of the University of Pennsylvania on Feb. 14, and all those from Ursinus had an enjoyable evening.

APO is going to hold several open meetings for the pleasure of the whole school at various times during this semester. The first of these meetings is set for March 19 when an hour long nature film entitled "Hunting and Fishing" will be shown at 6:30 p.m. As a further activity the Lambda Upsilon Chapter has

SEAP Hears Pupils Discuss Teachers

On Tuesday evening, March 3, the members of the SEAP listened to a panel of eleven high school students speak on what characteristics they thought a good teacher should have. The panel was composed of the following students: Collegeville-Trappe High School, Robert Christy and Ned Scheer; North Penn High School, Lane Keedler and Lee Peterson; Springfield High School, Pat Ward and Toni Flores; Norristown High School, Judy Herdman, Carolyn Culp and Sue Mason; Plymouth-Whitemarsh High School, Betsy Thompson and Dorothy Wilson.

The discussion on teacher qualities was greatly enjoyed by SEAP members. After the panel discussion which was moderated by Al Wilson, a lively question and answer session followed. This period was of special interest to the members who had just completed their practice teaching and will soon be teaching classes of their own.

Plans were discussed at this meeting for the annual Southeastern SEAP Convention to be held here at Ursinus on March 14.

RUBY

The editors of the 1960 Ruby have engaged the photograph services of Merin Studios. The individual senior pictures for the year book will be taken this March 23, 24 and 25, since spring is the agency's slack season, and the studio will thus be enabled to give our pictures greater attention. Having the pictures taken now will alleviate the fall work load of the editors. The members of the Junior Class have been requested to sign the schedule sheets posted in Bomberger for their time preference. The staff is presently occupied with the selection of a publisher.

"Giving?"

Today the Campus Chest Drive begins. This annual drive serves to remind us of our many good fortunes. When we examine the charities—World University Service, Philadelphia Association for Retarded Children, Town House, American Friends' Service Committee—we discover that we are grateful we cannot classify ourselves among these needy. But we stop our consideration of the problem here and do not pursue this problem of giving any further.

In a sense, the Campus Chest Committee has made giving as painless as possible—we barely feel it. Ultimately we give for what we can get out of it—freedom from bothersome, constant solicitation, the amusement of throwing pies at fellow students, and the glory of having the ugliest man in our favorite fraternity. When we do consider our giving, we find that two dollars is not so much, especially when we realize that many pay that same amount just to go and sit at a fraternity party which features a good band. This is not a monetary sacrifice which is too demanding. This is not really a sacrifice at all.

Perhaps what we should realize is that we have to develop an emphatic attitude about giving. We are vaguely conscious of the problems of these "unfortunates", but we ignore them as something too far removed from us to be solved. These people are outside the circle of our concern and are only the misty rings around our own clear world. Because we are unacquainted with these people as individuals, we try to simplify them into a nebulous grouping which we call the mass. When we do this, we forget the value and dignity of each as a person. It is the individual and not the mass that we must understand, and it is for him, not just his group, that we must take on responsibility.

Thus, when we consider the motives behind our giving, let us not just consider it as a painless "thing-to-do", simplified donation, but as a concerned contribution of ourselves to the individual—to each person, not just the mass of "unfortunates".

THE WEAVERS

by John Swinton

This week (March 2) Time Magazine devoted a large spread to contemporary folk artist, Harry Belafonte. This article recognized a country wide trend toward commercial folk singing which has become evident during the present decade. The commercial popularity of this particularly American type of music evolved in an interesting way.

Well-known folk singers have been vending their wares (the traditional Anglo-American and Negro ballads) for many years in small night clubs, recital halls, and, occasionally, on radio and television; the names of Richard Dyer-Bennet, Josh White, and Burl Ives are familiar to nearly everyone. But there have also been scores of rebellious college boys and frustrated laborers who hit the rails, picking up guitar chords and tunes as they went, and who, like our present day beatniks, knocked around the country, absorbing what they could of the various distinctive musical cultures in America. Such a fellow was young Pete Seeger, who left Harvard during the depression to see the world from the top of a freight car. Somewhere along the way he uncovered an old-fashioned long-necked banjo, and, worrying through different picking styles, he was able to collect Americana from share cropper camps, union rallies, Negro chain gangs, and city streets.

Seeger was not exactly like most of the singing bums, however, for he had an undeniable talent for making the banjo echo the mood of his song, and he had an untrained but amazingly agile voice to augment his rippling instrument. He worked with Alan Lomax in the Library of Congress for a while, helping to compile huge files of wire-recorded folk music. Then, in the late 1940's, Seeger met Ronnie Gilbert and Fred Hellerman at a Greenwich Village folk sing and, adding a pal from his union-organizing days, Lee Hays, he formed the group known as the Weavers. Commercial folk music was born.

The Weavers sought work in the Village Vanguard, long a haven for jazz and folk interpreters, and were an immediate success. The memories of "Goodnight Irene", "So Long, It's Been Good to Know Ya", "On Top of Old Smokey", "Tzena Tzena Tzena", "The Roving Kind", "Wimoweh", and others remain today though the name of the group that created them may have been forgotten.

The Weavers were followed in the next ten years by The Tarriers, The Gateway Singers, The Easy Riders, The Kingston Trio, and Harry Belafonte, but no group or person has been able to render a song with the same rousing raucous quality that the Weavers possess. Indeed, most of our present folk material, including "Tom Dooley", was taken from the Weavers' vast repertoire.

Saturday evening, Feb. 28, The Weavers gave one of their rare concerts in Philadelphia's Town Hall, "Folk Songs Around the World". Peter Seeger did not play with the group. He amassed such a devoted following among the progressive teen-age set, with his expert twelve string guitar and five string banjo work and his maudlin dissertations on international brotherhood, that he now appears alone, or with a guest artist, and has filled Carnegie Hall in New York on several occasions. In his stead was young Erik Darling, a highly proficient banjo player, not nearly as competent a singer. Clear-voiced Ronnie Gilbert was older and chubbier, Fred Hellerman appeared more cynical than ever, and rumbling Lee Hays still wheezed dauntlessly through each number.

Familiarity with The Weavers does not breed contempt for them as it does for so many performers. Their program included well-known folk tunes that they have recorded and performed for years. They did introduce a few new ditties such as a Hellerman composed ballad, "I Never Will Marry", sung hauntingly by Fred and Ronnie Gilbert, and a "Martian Love Song." For the most part, however, the audience was able to hum or sing right along with "Kisses Sweeter Than Wine", "Wimoweh," and the others. The Weavers have suffered by losing Seeger. The twelve string guitar, the chaili, and the piercing yodel are no longer a vital part of their program. But, they are still the most enthusiastic and captivating of the commercial folk singers, and, with their group of foreign songs, they are certain to be well received on their forthcoming tour in Israel.

Today folk singers gather in smoky taverns, in city parks, or on college campuses. They play banjos, mandolins, guitars, bongos, steel drums, or pots and pans. They sing and holler and dance. They cram their cigarettes in their guitar stings, drink German beer, and perform late into the night. Yesterday they were unknown; today they are Jerry Silverman, Bob Carey, Erik Darling, Harry Belafonte, Tom Paley, Odetta, and The Kingston Trio, all recognized artists. No matter whom they emulate, their love for folk music, American style, was encouraged and abetted by the singing of Pete Seeger and The Weavers. As poet Carl Sandburg has said, "When I hear America singing, The Weavers are there."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

In answer to the letter in the last Weekly concerning the student apathy towards the radio station, I would ask another question proven by the stock that was subscribed for. The amount was well upwards of what the station has expected. As far as participation is concerned, remember the adage "too many cooks spoil the broth". There is presently the technical problems to be solved and only certain people are qualified to handle them. If people stormed to the station volunteering to help there would be little they could do before the station is put on the air.

As I understand the situation, the members feel they have solved most of the technical and financial problems and the main hurdle to be straddled is faculty support. Why did the faculty back out when the station had come so close to completion? It seems that student apathy is not the problem so much as is faculty apathy!

Another hopeful radio listener

Dear Editor,

I have noticed this year several discourtesies on the Ursinus Campus that weren't prevalent last year. The well worn path across the campus, used as a short cut to the drug, has been mentioned previously, but bears repeating. Another violation of courtesy is the entering of first floor chapel after the speaker has begun speaking. As I mentioned before, these things were not prevalent last year, at least not this late in the season.

I don't wish to point but most of the offenders are freshmen. Is it possible that this new neglect of the traditional college courtesy is due to the New Deal Customs?

The Sun Dial Was Fast

by Cindy Buchanan

Last fall, on a clear day, I spent a few minutes trying to figure out the workings of the sun dial. It was fast! I know there is a scientific explanation, but philosophically there might have been a different meaning.

It is evident that, in spite of all our material progress, we are still years behind in mental, spiritual and social measures. In human relations our nation and civilization are still in the dark. Polished words of international diplomacy do not offer any more protection or security than the flints of the earliest ages. War, economic poverty, class inequality, and educational inadequacies still hang heavy over our heads. That's a world-wide problem calling for world-wide perspective. What about Collegeville? What about Ursinus? Where do we need a re-evaluation? I think that one look at our library in proportion to the size of enrollment today in 1959, should be more than enough to make prospective students wonder if Ursinus has got its feet on the ground. Directly in back of the once adequate Bibliotheque is a sign, a change, of adaption to growth, that is more than luxurious.

The new dormitories make a wonderful impression. But our library! We have one large reading room that is caught in the bustle of people coming and going, walking through, finding books, climbing over those who are trying to study. Let's clean out the museum on the second floor, get rid of the paintings and junk in the cellar, reopen the stacks and make use of all of these reading rooms. And if we should happen to have a weak moment—add a new wing.

NEWMAN CLUB

On March 14, during their regular bi-weekly meeting, the Newman Club of Ursinus College elected their new officers for the 1959-60 season. The new officers are as follows: Joseph Procak, president; Loretta Podolak, vice president and program chairman; Elizabeth Tadley, secretary-treasurer.

Joe is a junior track man and chairman of the Math Club. Loretta is a member of Omega Chi sorority and a member of the color guard. Betty is a junior psychology major.

Well just wait till you awaken

And acid spewed on your

Last week the Ursinus College basketball team played its final game of the 1959 season. Its final record was a dismal one win and 15 losses.

Perhaps the only bright spot in this year's season was the fine solid play of Jim Wenhold. Jim led the team in every offensive department—both high for a single game and average over the season.

The wrestling season also came to an end within the past week. In spite of a fine start, the matmen ended with a disappointing 3-5 record.

Basketball Championship

Brodbeck II, champions of the A League, defeated Maples Hall, champions of the B League, 39 to 28. However, the game was closer than the score indicated and Brodbeck only ran away with it in the last two minutes of the contest.

The final league standings were as follows:

Badminton Team Wins Third In Row

On Tuesday, Feb. 24, the girls' badminton team traveled to Bryn Mawr and successfully defeated their opponents 5-0, extending their season record to 3 wins.

Playing at first singles Carol Heffelfinger defeated L. Cooper 11-5, 11-9. Carol LeCato kept her opponent from scoring a single point when she beat B. Jaurey, 11-0, 11-0.

Sandy Rinehart returning to the team after missing the first two matches because of illness and her partner Jeanne LeCato displayed a lot of teamwork and skill when they won their doubles match over H. Milland and M. Irwine 15-11, 17-15.

The Ursinus J.V.'s ran into much stiffer competition but still managed to win 3-2. Adele Statzel and Weezie Sperber whipped through their matches 11-3, 11-3 and 11-2, 11-5, respectively.

March 2 the girls are aiming for their fourth straight win when they travel to Rosemont. Several of the players are participating in the Girls Middle States Intercollegiate Badminton Tournament Saturday, Mar. 7.

Courtmen End Season; Lose 2 More Contests

Bears Lose to Hopkins 80-62; Drexel 77-54; U.C. Finishes Season with 1-15 Record

Bring out the gloves, track-shoes, and tennis rackets; basketball is dead, long live baseball! This might well be the cry of Ursinus cage fans, for the Bears ended this season with an unimpressive 1-15 log when Drexel clobbered U.C. 77-54 in the curtain closer.

Drexel, after trailing in the early moments of the first half, shot past U.C. and didn't stop pouring on the points till the end of the game. Wally Christ opened the game with a lay-up, assisted by a beautiful feed by "Inky" Wagner, then Mike Becker and Rich Hilmer exchanged baskets.

Grapplers End Season With 3-5 Record

On Tuesday, Feb. 24, the Drexel grappling team defeated the Ursinus wrestlers by a 19-13 count. Drexel won the first five matches to secure the victory and then held on for the win.

Drexel picked up two quick points to open the match. Larry Glass was pinned in the third period in the 123 lb. class. Bob Turnbull was next in line as he ran into John Orr, the MASCAC champ of 1957, at 130 lbs.

Bob Newbauer then dropped another decision in the 157 class to give Ursinus a 19-0 deficit and cinch the match for Drexel. However, U. C. finished with a flourish, winning the last three matches.

with fouls, dropped the lead and never headed the league leading Drexel five. Desperately trying to retake the lead, Coach Zdanowicz wisely called for time with the score 29-15, the visitors way out in front.

Ursinus, coming out in the second half, began the weave; however, Koff, who played a good game, fouled out and the team was again hampered by excessive personals and lost ground steadily to the Dragons.

Playing in their last basketball game for Ursinus were four seniors: Mike Becker, Wally Christ, Marv Koff, and "Inky" Wagner. Without the services of these stalwarts, the Ursinus basketball future looks quite bleak.

As for next year... worry about that when it comes. Right now the big swing is toward the ballfield.

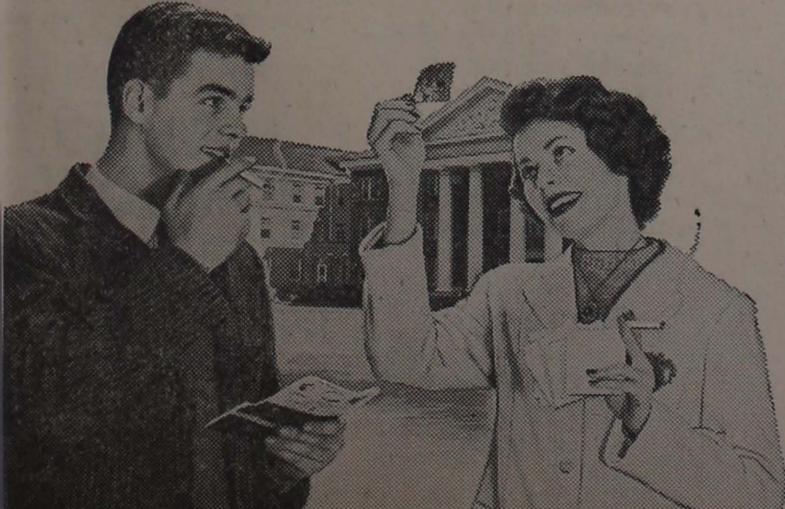

Table with columns Ursinus, F.G., F. Pts. Lists players like Wenhold, Koch, Becker, etc.

Ursinus never had the lead and was outclassed all the way by a strong Johns Hopkins team. In the losing cause, 80-62, Jim Wenhold was once again the workhorse of the team with 23 points.

Hopkins immediately took command and before many minutes had passed, the visitors built up a formidable lead, and by half-time had a 42-29 bulge. During this first half, U.C.'s Mike Becker was the mainstay of the squad with 9 points, but the rebounding of J.H.'s big Dick Weinstein and the near perfect outside shooting of Bill Devoe and Larry Becker easily nullified Mike's effort.

"Religion in Life Week" Presented

The Student Worship Commission of the YM-YWCA sponsored Religion in Life Week from Feb. 23 to 26. The theme of this week was "A Method (Science) for Finding Truth."

Various programs highlighted the week, among which activities were a faculty debate, a lecture on scientific advancement, and informal student discussions.

Participating in the faculty debate of February 23, Dr. Snyder, Dr. Wagner, and Dr. Stein considered the relationship of science and religion. Dr. Creager acted as moderator of the debate.

On Feb. 24, Dr. Theodore B. Hetzel lectured on the questions presented by scientific advancement. Dr. Hetzel is chairman of the Department of Engineering at Haverford College.

Group discussions led by students culminated the activities on Feb. 25. Science students, Jerry Malick, Ted Clair, Carolyn Carpenter and Phyllis Longmire, were aided in these discussions by outside resource persons who were experienced in the various areas of science.

Students began each morning of Religion in Life Week with a Morning Watch program. The topic of these morning programs was Prayer.

Curtain Club Begins Tryouts For Spring Play

Tuesday evening, March 3, the Curtain Club reception was held at Superhouse, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Helfferich. The speaker for the evening was Mr. H. Lloyd Jones, professor of English, speaking on the topic, "Drama, an Intellectual Challenge."

Tryouts will be held for the spring production, The Solid Gold Cadillac, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, March 9 and 10, in the T-G Gym, starting at 8 p.m. Anyone interested in acting in the play should be there on Monday. Previous acting experience is not necessary. People interested in doing committee work should also come Monday evening to sign up. The cast of characters includes Ed Gobrecht as Aubrey, Joan Refford as Amy, Carolyn Dearnaley as Mrs. Fisher, and Sandy Hall as Mrs. Hall. This domestic comedy of the twenties in Philadelphia revolves around Aubrey's toupee.

planned a hike on the beautiful Horseshoe Trail for Saturday, April 18. All members of the school are cordially invited to attend this hike which will begin at Valley Forge sometime during the morning. Hiking can be both healthful and enjoyable, and therefore APO hopes that many students and faculty members will attend this day on the trail.

The brothers of APO extend their congratulations to David Emery on his pinning to Margaret Sensenig.

With the Campus Chest drive coming up, Alpha Phi has again planned for the annual "Ugly Man" Contest. In the past, this contest, in which each fraternity tries to raise money for the Campus Chest by sponsoring their "ugliest" member, has raised large sums for the charity. If the members of the student body support this most interesting phase of the annual drive the contest will be even more successful and interesting than in the past.

APO has been granted a concession to sell all types of paperback books on campus. Present plans call for selling Anchor Books, the Modern Library Series (both hard and soft bound), Penquin Books, the College Outline Series, Pocket Library books, Mentor Books, and numerous others. Exact details for selling the books are not complete, but watch the bulletin boards this week for further information.

CANTERBURY CLUB

This evening in the Girls' Day Study at 8 p.m., the Canterbury Club will hold its first meeting of the month. Cathy Harrelson and George Busler will debate the problem of "Integration." Students are invited to attend and discuss this pressing problem.

nipped the nets for 12 points. Slowly, but always pulling away to a bigger and bigger lead, J.H. spurted once more near the end of the half and in all probability had the game on ice then and there.

Both teams began to play bad ball at the start of the second half, and points were not only scarce, but couldn't be bought. However, Johns Hopkins changed tactics and started to fast breaks. Before Ursinus realized the sudden change, the Blue Jays had a 57-39 lead. The Bears now called time to try to organize a defence against the high scoring visitors. Although Ursinus did stop Hopkins, mainly through the efforts of Wenhold's torrid shooting, there was no chance whatsoever for a win. In the ensuing time left till the sound of the final buzzer, Wenhold did practically all the scoring, chucking in 14 points out of the 21 points scored. Soon after Detweiler blistered the net with a hook shot from the corner, the game ended, 82-60.

The Bear's Wenhold was not only the high scorer with 23 points, but also a demon off the boards. Mike Becker followed with 16 points for Ursinus while Bill Devloe was high for Johns Hopkins with 22 points, followed by Larry Becker with 12, Dick Weinstein with 11, and Shelle Weillman with 10.

The plan for Ursinus College is clearly outlined in Dr. Helfferich's Inaugural Address. "Ursinus College of the future must be built on the old foundations. The pervading influence must be Christian. The objectives must be to continue to produce men and women who are intellectually superior, men and women who will strive for excellence in their home and in the business and social circles in which they move."

Student Faculty Show To Be New & Different

A cloud of secrecy surrounds this year's Student-Faculty Show. From Diana Vye, student director, and Carolyn Dearnley, student producer, plans are heard for a new type show which will be well worth the dollar admission charge. The show, which will be held at 8 o'clock in the T-G Gym on Mar. 20, will feature several of the traditional acts greatly enjoyed by students in former years and many new dancing, singing, and dramatic acts. Mr. David Hudnut, the faculty director, has some new entertaining presentations planned which should be greatly enjoyed by all.

The committees for this year's show are: tickets and ushers, Jane MacDougall; make-up, Joan Refford; lighting, Fred Genter; properties and costumes, Nancy Springer; programs, Loretta Podolak; refreshments, Merle Thomas; and stage crew, Jack Bauman.

The annual auction is in the charge of Loretta Witmer and the members of Alpha Phi Omega. This year's auctioneer is Bob Petersen.

One of the highlights of the show will be the announcement of this year's winner of the "Ugly Man" Contest.

Each student is asked to come out and support this Climax of this Campus Chest Drive for four worthy causes. If any students are interested in working on any of the afore mentioned committees, they are asked to contact the chairman of the committee in which they are interested.

PRE MED SOCIETY

On Thursday night, Feb. 19, the Pre-Med Society held its first meeting of the semester. The guest speaker was Dr. Lerner, a plastic surgeon from Philadelphia. He gave an informative and interesting talk on the assets of Rhinoplasty, and showed its medical importance in today's society.

After his talk, a medical film was shown on Rhinoplasty or more commonly known as "nose job". A step by step explanation was given in the film of a Rhinoplasty operation, illustrating the intricate procedure used to correct a deformed or malfunctioning nose. A question and answer period followed the film along with the usual refreshments. Pamphlets were distributed on the history of medicine and pharmacy after the meeting.
