French Club Hears Talk By Member of 'Resistance'

Monsieur Pierre Carlier, a member of the French resistance during World War II, addressed the French Club at their meeting in the Studio Cottage on Tuesday evening, November 19. He spoke about his experiences with the Marquis and the hardships in this dangerous work.

The horrors of the war torn families led Monsieur Carlier and many others to join the Marquis to help the sufferers. Fishing boats to England were used to aid families to escape the atrocious treatment of the Nazis. Through radio connections the Marquis learned information such as advance notice of the American attack.

Monsieur Carlier's talk, given in French, was well received by the large attendance of students interested in France and World War II.

"The student that misses classes during the week preceding the Christmas recess during 1957, according to the College rules, will be assigned double cuts. If, however, a student submits to the Dean in advance written evidence of his having obtained employment, he will be assigned single cuts for the absences during that week.

"A student holding a job under the Bureau of Student Employment will be expected to remain on campus through the last day of classes before the recess unless he makes proper arrangements for a substitute.

Congratulations!

The Ursinus WEEKLY, along with the entire campus, would like to extend congratulations to the seven men and six women who were chosen to represent Ursinus College in WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES. This association selects a number of campus leaders from colleges and universities across the United States. Candidates are chosen on leadership ability, scholastic achievement, character, and their contributions to campus and civic life.

After reading about the people who were selected most students will agree that they are best deserving of the honor. Is it merely because of the qualifications mentioned above? No. Is it because these men and women possess any special ability that raises them above other students? In most cases the answer would again be no. These thirteen people have had the same opportunity and essentially the same ability as most of our students. They are different in that they have had the desire and interest to work and achieve while others were idle—accomplishing nothing, and complaining. What they have made of themselves is not due to luck or popularity, but to the constant effort they have put forth in everything they have undertaken.

These leaders are to be looked up to and respected not only for what they have accomplished on and for the campus, but primarily for how they have achieved their end. Once again—congratulations.

PLAY REVIEW— "Cyrano" and "The Shirkers"

The 1957-58 season for the Curtain Club opened successfully on Tuesday evening, Nov. 26, when a large and appreciative audience viewed the first group presentations. The innovation of a dramatic reading, for which we are indebted to the co-directors, Phil Rowe and Katrina Schnabel, was an experiment which we hope continues in the future. The selection of the balcony scene and the death scene from Rostand's Cyrano de Bergerac provided some quick-witted and choice entertainment although the presentation would have been better if a few rough spots had been smoothed out. Carolyn Dearnaley, as Roxanne, was certainly the outstanding player in the reading and except for a bet too much breathlessness now and then in the death scene she portrayed quite convincingly the role of an aristocratic maiden in love, who demanded the best in repartee and glibness. Except for a small part in a previous group production, Carolyn has done her Curtain Club work behind the scenes. We hope to see more of her before the footlights. Although Al Matusow seemed somewhat artificial while delivering some of his lines as Christian, he generally showed the ability to create this crude and gauche, but humorous, character on the stage. William Hoffman, as Cyrano, seemed to do better in the death scene when he appeared to be a lot surer of himself and more convinced of the character of his role. As a whole, the scenes were pretty well presented, and we hope that there are more presentations of these dramatic readings.

The second production, The Shirkers, was another of the popular "thriller" type of group plays and was a good choice, ably directed by Beverly Glodfelter and Norman Abramson. Phil Rowe, a veteran Curtain Clubber, added another star to his list of successful roles when he very convincingly portrayed the emotionally wrought John Belper who experimented with life rather than living it. His unfortunate wife, Margaret, was excellently played by another veteran Curtain Clubber, Diana Vye. Both of them lived up quite well to their past performances. David Williams, a newcomer, did fairly well in his part as Dick Murray, but his youthfulness betrayed him in a few cases. Dave seems to have good potential as an actor and more experience on the Ursinus stage should produce a good actor for future plays. The staging for The Shirkers was excellently handled and showed that a convincing set can be built on a small stage like the one in Bomberger.

The actors and actresses certainly deserve the hand of applause which they received, and we are sure that no one in the audience went away disappointed.

Roland Speaking

(Ed. Note: For additional information, consult Brodbeck Hall or the Horror Theater Mon. and Tues. at 11:25)

Hello, there! This is Roland; so happy to be with you. It's a pity the Count couldn't come along, but the daylight hours upset his digestive tract. He did promise to pay one of you a visit later in the evening, that is, if you happen to leave your window slightly ajar. Igor! Igor! Excuse me one moment, my friends. Igor! The plasma is running low again. Ahh! That's better, body temperature. Now, what was I saying? Oh yes, we were discussing the Count. Wasn't his last adventure enough to give you low blood pressure? It's a pity that that ingrate, that meddling old fool, the good doctor had to drive a stake into poor Count Dracula just when things were getting bloody.

There, there, Count—relax. I told you Igor would remove the stake when I needed you again. You'll have to excuse his poor manners, my friends, but he gets so cramped up if he can't get out to stretch his wings.

I have some wonderful murders lined up for this week, so please join me on Channel 10 right after John Facenda. What's that? I follow Jack Whitticker and the sports news? I'm sorry, but the sports news is no longer with us. I told Jack to stop teasing Frankie, but he wouldn't listen. What's that you say? Who's Frankie? You want to meet him? How nice, he has so little company these days. Open that door and enter. Of course it's dark in there—feel your way.

Aieee! Frankie! Put him down! No! No! Not the pit, Frankie! That's our guest! — Oh well — Frankie just can't stand having friends.

By the way, are you interested in a job? My mummies look so unsightly since their last adventure and are in dire need of rewrapping. Oh how they miss their old stamping grounds. I've poured tons of sand on the floors, but that just doesn't satisfy them. As if I don't have enough troubles, the moon is full and it has a powerful effect on both the mummies and poor werewolf. What's that? You saw hideous shadows falling across your window shade last night; and heard strange wailing sounds behind your dorm? Relax—forget it; only your imagination, my dear girl. Excuse me again, my dear Igor! Igor! How many times must I tell you to keep those devils away from the girls' dorm? Now, my dear, what were you saying? Umm—I see. But they're quite harmless, I assure you. Haven't you noticed the blank stare in their eyes? The living dead, you see. You say you saw them heading back to Curtis Hall? Quite possible, quite possible.

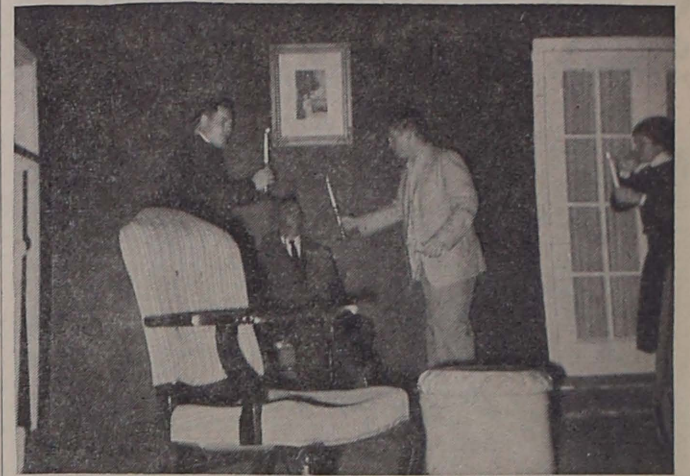

I really must be going now. Igor and I have some digging to do tonight. Until I see you later in the evening, pleasant dreams.

Fall Play Review:

Ten Little Indians

by Ken Gray

And Then There Were Four . . .

Agatha Christie's mystery, Ten Little Indians, seemed to be a great success on the Ursinus Campus. Its heavy leaning towards murder and contrived comedy was very well received. Since public appeal appears to be the criteria of a good play, the selection of this rather tired drama was good.

Ten Little Indians was directed by the very capable Angie McKey, whose terrific drive and perseverance at times made actors out of hams. She and Mr. Jones succeeded in achieving a good pace, most of the time building towards a suspense filled climax. She is to be complimented on her work.

Bob Gilgore, as Sir Lawrence Wargrave, presented to the audience the most startlingly good performance of his Ursinus stage career. Bob's first and second acts were a little strained, he tried too hard to attain the right degree of dignity. HOWEVER, his third act judgment scene was as near professional as an amateur can get. He was never out of character, and his madness was extremely effective.

The part of Vera Claythorne (traveling secretary) was adequately handled by Val Cross. Her delivery was clear and her intonation correct. I noticed a tendency to overact in scenes when she became "frightened", however, she died beautifully.

Phillip Lombard (a good man in a tight spot) was portrayed by Jim Terry in the manner of a matinee idol. His reaction to lines and his tone inflection were good if not excellent, but I was reminded more of Porfirio Rubirosa than of an African adventurer.

Holland Fitts, as William Blore an "Eddie Bracken" type detective, was perfectly type cast. Holland gave a good performance and was always natural.

Emily Brent was played by Ellen Delante, a freshman newcomer to the Ursinus stage. Ellen's portrayal of the narrow-minded spinster was wholly convincing. I am sure that the Collegeville theatergoers are enthusiastic about seeing Ellen in a more likable role.

Phil Rowe was seen as General MacKenzie. I am always amazed at Phil's ability to completely command the audience and players whenever he speaks his lines. His characterization was excellent. His part should have been longer.

Bill Hoffman, as Dr. MacDaniel, was a stabilizing factor in a group of diverse personalities. His performance was adequate. He both looked and sounded like a doctor.

Rogers (the butler) was played by Newt Ruch. His characterization was similar to that of other parts he has acted. Newt gave the impression that he had emotions; a butler "never" has emotions.

Lolly Strasser (Mrs. Rogers) was perfect in her role as a

Among Western Hemisphere cities with the largest per capita enjoyment of Coca-Cola are, interestingly enough, sunny New Orleans and chilly Montreal. When we say, "Thirst Knows No Season," we've said a cheerful mouthful.

So don't take any lame excuses about its not being hot enough for Coca-Cola. Forget the temperature and drink up!

FOOTBALL JOTTINGS

Bill Rogers played a very fine game against Juniata; in fact, he was chosen on Juniata's all-opponent team.

John "Bops", "Lou the Toe" Jackson also played a very fine game. It should be noted that Bops kicked the extra point in the Juniata game with Bill Rogers scoring the touchdown.

Girls' Swimming Team Begins Practice for Season

The girls' swimming team held its first practice on Monday, December 2, at the Norristown YWCA, its home pool. Team members returning from last year are: Merle Syvertsen, captain, Judy Berry, Tama Williams, Jackie Robbins, Stevie Nichols, Linda Wolf, Sally Garside, Kathy Scheffley, and Carolyn Carter, manager.

New members of this year's team include Lois LeFever, Ann Irish, Marilyn Meeker, and Margaret Smith. The swimming coach, Mrs. Beverly Ruhr, was introduced to the team.

Review of fundamentals and timing of heats made up the Monday and Tuesday practices. Wednesday's practice was cancelled because of the snow.

The team has high hopes of bettering last year's record of four wins and four losses, one of the best in the last few years. Ursinus defeated Drexel, Temple, Penn, and Bryn Mawr and lost to Swarthmore, West Chester, Chestnut Hill, and Beaver.

Any girl interested in joining the swimming team is asked to contact any team member as soon as possible.

UC Belles Close Hockey Season With 4-0 Victory

The drenched and shivering girls who returned to campus Tuesday evening, November 19, were those who had traveled to Cheltenham to watch the Welsh hockey team play Philadelphia.

The following day, Ursinus wound up its hockey season in fine style by scoring a double victory over Swarthmore, 2-0 and 4-0. Through the first half of the varsity game, both teams failed to score, and the only unusual occurrence was Nancy Krombolz's quick change (tunics) artisty in the middle of the field.

Ursinus' varsity came alive in the second half, with two goals by Susie Wagner on a hard shot and a flick, giving her high scoring honors for the year. Ingie Reiniger clinched undisputed possession of the title "most accident prone of '57".

The JV finally accepted the fact that darkness comes early, and played just one twenty-five half. This proved to be plenty of time for scores by Liz Wheeler, Faye Dietrich, Nancy Parsly, and Erna Trauger, making a 4-0 victory. Did it get lonely at your end of the field, Adele?

1957 Finale

With the Swarthmore game, Ursinus' varsity hockey team finished a near-perfect season, having accumulated five wins, one tie, and one loss. Penn, Beaver, Gettysburg, and Swarthmore all bowed to defeat at the hands of the red and white. Particularly impressive was the win over Temple, which spoiled their otherwise undefeated season.

Playing on All College teams at the Philadelphia Sectional Tournament were Pat Woodbury, Alice Irwin, Betty Lou Hufnagle, Susie Wagner, Ingie Reiniger, and Tama Williams. Those who participated in the National Tournament at Vassar were Pat and Alice, who made Philadelphia II, and Ingie and Susie, on Philadelphia III.

The JV also chalked up a win-

Bears Bow in Last Game to Indians; Rogers Makes T-D

For their last game of the season, the Bears traveled to Huntingdon, Pa., the home of the Juniata Indians. The Indians entered the game as heavy favorites, as they were going for their fourth undefeated season in the last five years.

The Indians' leaders were the "Berrier Twins", who gave the Indians a fine one, two punch.

At halftime the score was 36-0 in favor of the Indians with the outstanding play being a 92 yd. TD run on a reverse by Jim Berrier.

The Bears made a fine showing in the second half as they held the Indians to 6 points.

In the fourth quarter, reserve end Lottie Varano blocked an Indian punt, tackle Bill Rogers picked off the loose pig-skin and scampered three yards into the end zone for a Bear TD. Tackle "Bops" Jackson added the extra point.

For his play in the game, Bill Rogers was chosen on the Indians All-Opponent squad.

Courtmen Blast Rutgers, 67 to 52; Lose to P. C. P. in Last Minutes

This past Thursday night, Ursinus College broke a 21 game losing streak when they defeated Rutgers College of South Jersey by a score of 67-52. This marked the first time the Bears won a basketball game since the middle of the 1955-1956 season.

The game was played in Camden's Convention Hall before a crowd of 500.

The game began with Ursinus losing. With the score 22-13 midway in the first half, Ursinus put on a scoring surge with 13 straight points without Rutgers scoring a single point. From that point on Ursinus was never headed. The real turning point in the game came in the second half when, with the score very close, Tom Winchester hit for five straight field goals, which gave the Bears a ten point lead. From this time on, the Bears just ran up the score until the end of the game. The high scorer of the game was "Inky" Wagner with 22 points.

With the sound of the buzzer ending the game, the players rushed over to their new coach, Mr. Zdanowicz, and carried him off the court on their shoulders.

Mr. Zdanowicz was appointed this past year as head basketball coach at Ursinus College. Mr. Zdanowicz also is a teacher of social studies and assistant football coach at Norristown Senior High School.

The game was a benefit game for the Frank Ryan "Drop a Buck Club" of Camden, N. J.

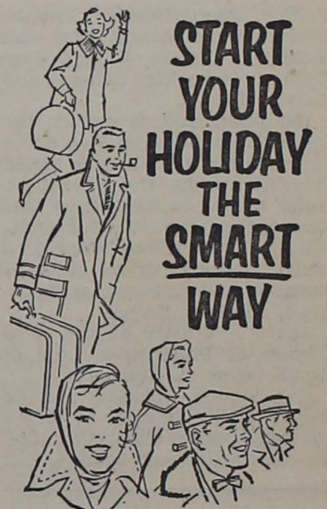

PCP

On Saturday evening, Ursinus College was host to the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy. The game was very tightly played with neither getting more than a 5 to 6 point lead at any one point during the game.

The deciding factor in the game came within the last four minutes of the game. With the score 59-58 in favor of the Bears, Tom Winchester scored two points to up the score 61-58; then Kessler of PCP dropped in a goal—score 61-60. Marv Koff scored for the Bears and Biggie Chern dropped in two foul shots to make the score 65-60. Marone of PCP dropped in a two pointer and Benny of PCP was fouled, then made the 65-63. Benny fouled Williams of Ursinus who made both foul shots, but then Chern fouled Verna of PCP (in the act of shooting with his field goal counting), who made his foul and made the score 67-67. Williams fouled Benny, who made both of his fouls. Benny was fouled again by Wagner and he made his foul—Score 67-71, favor of PCP. Wenhold made two points to make the score 69-71 with 15 seconds remaining. PSP failed to hold onto the ball, but when Ursinus called time-out, they were charged with a technical foul for calling too many time-outs. The foul shot was made by PCP, and they retained possession of the ball until the final buzzer. Final score 72-69 in favor of PCP.

Seniors Hear Heads of Business At Banquet-Discussion, Nov. 25th

Matusow Questions Panel

On Monday, November 25, the seniors attended a banquet held by ACES (Americans for the Competitive Enterprise System) in Freeland Dining Hall. A small but enthusiastic group participated in a panel discussion led by Haleston R. Wood, President of Alan Wood Steel Company; Robert R. Titus, President of Synthane Corporation; John M. Taylor, Jr., President of the Taylor Fiber Company; Melvin Carl, President of the Montgomery County Bank and Trust Co.; Harry C. Shad, Vice President and General Manager of Transportation of the Atlantic Refining Company; William W. Bodine Jr., Assistant to the President of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company; and William S. West, Jr., Vice President of the West Company. The panel was moderated by Mr. Curtin Winslow, Executive Director of ACES.

The discussion centered around the effects of automation on industry and resultant job opportunities, the possibility of inflation in the near future—and its possible effects, and big business versus small business.

After the panel discussion, many members of the senior class asked questions on the topics under discussion, and at the end of the discussion period many of the seniors met with members of the panel privately to ask questions on job opportunities in a particular field, as well as the business outlook in general.

This annual gathering of graduating seniors and heads of business and industry, sponsored by ACES, and by the invitation of President, Norman E. McClure, helped to give a clearer picture of the future to the job-seeking June graduate.

IRC Meetings Give Armchair Travels

Moscow Youth Festival

On December 2, Mr. Mohlenhoff, of the Friend's Service Committee, spoke of his experiences as an observer at the Moscow Youth Festival. ### Minter and Europe

On December 16, Clark Minter will show slides from his recent European travels. A spokesman for IRC stated that this program will be of great interest to Europe-bound students (or graduates), and to those who have been there and would like to re-live a few of those precious weeks and months.

Fall Play . . .

shrewish butler's wife. I was relieved she died early in the play, because I was sorry Rogers had to put up with her nagging.

Dick Miller as Anthony Marston pranced around the stage. His wizard characterization failed to work any magic upon me.

Wilmer Burns played Fred Narracott the boatman who never showed up.

The parts of Badger Berkeley and Lady Constance Culmington contributed little to the success of the play.

Although they occasioned no little amount of discussion, their characterizations were without depth and were devoid of almost everything. In order to be kind we will not mention the actor and actress involved.

The set was rather well conceived. It achieved some amount of character usually not found in the rather "blah" sets of past productions. However, Justice Wargrave could have furnished his room with a little more taste and discretion. The furniture seemed a little shoddy, the view a little too static. In summary, it was a busy set that did not get very far at all.

The play as a whole served its purpose. It scared hell out of everyone. I was impressed!
