Class of 1957 Receives Degrees, June 10

Mr. Robert Titus Gives Graduation Address

Two Honorary, 135 Bachelor's Degrees Conferred; Thirteen Receive Honors

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

MR. ROBERT R. TITUS

On Monday, June 10, at eleven o'clock the commencement exercises for the eighty-seventh academic year were held in the New Gymnasium. The president of the college, Dr. Norman E. McClure, presided. The college chaplain, the Reverend Dr. Alfred L. Creager, offered the opening prayer.

Address by Robert R. Titus

Following the prayer, Mr. Robert R. Titus, president of the Synthane Corporation, Oaks, Pennsylvania, delivered the commencement address. He spoke to the graduates about their heritage—the universe, and how all history has progressed from one "commencement" to the next, creating in its path progress through revolution—"evolution, past, present and future has been and will be preceded or accompanied by revolution", was the statement of Mr. Titus that led to his main topic, "Revolutionary Thinking," and its essential part in the future of the world.

Mr. Titus spoke of "entrenched dogma, the greatest single roadblock in the path of progress", and how it has always taken "revolution by thought, word or deed—violent or peaceful—to shake it loose from its foundation". References, including Moses, Jesus, Galileo, Pare, Pasteur, Fulton, Ben Franklin, McCormick and the Wright brothers were named as illustrations of the revolutionists who helped to give today's man the foundation on which he stands. "Military, Medicine and scientific revolutions all seemed ominous and destructive in their time... but the same revolutions have made evolution possible," said Mr. Titus.

Mr. Titus told the graduates to, "Think of the dignity of four billions of years of change... that has preceded you... Grasp all of the knowledge that those years have placed at your feet... keep in mind the very continuity of change, and that same creative ingenuity that made our past will surely fashion our future." Mr. Titus ended his address with a quotation from the book of Ecclesiastes, "He that observeth the wind will never sow. He that seeth the clouds will not reap his harvest."

Bachelor's Degrees

William S. Petit, Dean of the College, next presented the candidates for bachelor's degrees. President Norman E. McClure then conferred degrees on the members of the Class of 1957.

Junior Advisors Picked for 1957-58

At the end of each year several women students are appointed by the WSGA to be junior advisors to the freshman women. The junior advisors are representatives of all classes and are selected on the basis of friendliness and ability to make others feel at ease. Faye Dietrich, Nancy Owen, Barbara Romig, Mary Pennington, Carol Schmidt, Mary Wilson, Cora Lee Eddy, Tama Williams, Sue Berger, Annette Wynia, Johanna Miller, and Nancy Byrne were chosen as junior advisors for 1957-58. Chairman of the committee is the junior representative to the WSGA, Marilyn Spangler.

The committee members write to the freshmen women about two weeks before school begins and give them information concerning their future life at Ursinus. On the Sunday before school begins, several junior advisors help Miss Stahr greet the freshmen and find their respective dormitories.

The Junior Advisory Committee undertakes several social projects in addition to helping

Alumni Day, June 8 Brings Old Grads To Ursinus Campus

A large number of Ursinus alumni thronged to the college campus on Saturday morning, June 8, for the annual pre-commencement Alumni Day. This year, William T. Parsons, a member of the class of 1947, was the chairman of the Reunion Committee for the fifth year reunions.

The program for the day began with a buffet luncheon held at 12:30 in the dining room of Freeland Hall. At 3 p.m. Dr. Norman E. McClure, president of the college, held a reception for the alumni in the college library.

The annual meeting of the Alumni Association was held at 4:30 in Bomberger Hall. At this meeting the new officers of the Association for the coming year were announced. The officers are elected for a two year term. They are: President—Paul I. Guest ('38), Vice-President—Margaret Degen Eachus ('33), Faculty Representative—Blanche B. Schultz ('41), Alumni-At-

Dr. M. W. Armstrong Speaks at Baccalaureate

The annual Baccalaureate Service for the graduating class of Ursinus College was held on Sunday morning, June 9, at 10:45 in Bomberger Chapel.

Following the organ prelude, Stoughton's "Festival Prelude", the graduating class, led by its president, Joseph Donia, proceeded into the chapel to the music of Galbraith's "Stately March."

Service of Worship

After the procession, the service of worship was opened with an invocation delivered by William S. Petit, Dean of the College. The scripture lesson was read by Dr. Norman E. McClure, President of the College. The Reverend Dr. Alfred L. Creager, the College Chaplain, delivered a pastoral prayer, and, then, the worshippers sang the College hymn, "Our God, Our Help in Ages Past."

Baccalaureate Sermon

Dr. Maurice Armstrong, the head of the Ursinus College history department, gave the Baccalaureate sermon. His topic was "What Shall I Do With My Life?" Dr. Armstrong, who is also an author of such books as Presbyterian Enterprise and The Great Awakening in Nova Scotia 1776-1809, went on to explain that there are four answers to this question: you must enjoy it, enrich it, express it and lose it. The first three are necessary, for they add meaning to life in different ways. Through these three methods you will be able to make your life both better and richer.

But the first three answers are not good enough. We must lose our life in order to make life really worth-while, for only when we lose ourselves to God, good works and our fellow man will we be able to release that imprisoned splendor which is within us all.

After the sermon, the congregation sang, "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah". The service closed with the benediction pronounced by the Reverend Dr. Creager. Mr. Wallace D. Angstadt played the organ postlude, "Grand Choeur in C", by Maitland.

Dr. Sturgis Elected to Science Honorary June 3

Dr. Russell D. Sturgis, Chairman of the Department of Chemistry, has been elected a member of the University of Pennsylvania Chapter of the Society of the Sigma Xi. Dr. Sturgis was initiated on June 3, 1957, at a meeting held at Hotel Penn Sherwood in Philadelphia. Ursinus was represented at the dinner by Dean William S. Petit and by a former student of Dr. Sturgis, Dr. Morton J. Oppenheimer, '27, Professor of Physiology at Temple University School of Medicine. Dr. Oppenheimer has served as president of the Temple University Chapter of Sigma Xi.

Dr. Sturgis has been a member of the faculty of Ursinus College since 1927. Previously he had served as professor of Chemistry at Franklin and Marshall College and as instructor in chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Sturgis completed his undergraduate work at the University of Delaware where he was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science. Dr. Sturgis earned the degrees of Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania.

The Society of Sigma Xi was founded at Cornell University in 1886 to recognize ability and achievement in scientific research as distinguished from the honor bestowed in the classics and humanities by election to Phi Beta Kappa.

Congratulations

The editors, writers, and staff of The Ursinus Weekly extend their congratulations to all the members of the graduating class.

It's Only the Beginning

June is the month of change as far as the student is concerned. Today, one hundred and thirty-five Ursinians are leaving to begin a life for which they have been preparing themselves these past four years. There is a story, or a fable as it were, that bears retelling at this time.

There lived, once upon a time in a little village far beyond the furthest hills, a youth, who was taught the ways of his people. He learned well. He could hunt and fish, and when the winter snow fell upon his land he built a shelter that kept him warm. He learned the lore of his people, and his mind, as well as his body, grew strong with the training he received.

He loved the land and his people, but as the years passed there grew an emptiness within him that he could not fill. He grew restless, and his father saw his anxiety. He watched his son gaze at the distant mountains, and he listened patiently to his son as he asked questions about the world beyond the village—beyond the hunting grounds and the river where they had fished.

One day the father took his son to the top of a hill where the land stretched for endless miles before them, and he told his son of the mountains and valleys that lay beyond the furthest hills. He spoke to him of wide rivers and deep seas, and of great villages that held many people. And when he talked of these things he watched his son, and he saw that he was ready.

He took the youth to a path that went to the valley and the mountains and seas and villages beyond, and he was sad, but he knew that he and his people had prepared the boy well, and the path would be travelled well. He watched his son start on the path—until the trees hid the boy from view, and then he walked back to the village. There were others to be readied.

Graduates, this is only the beginning, but a part of Ursinus goes with you. You have the knowledge to reach your horizon—and beyond.

Seniors Give Thoughts at Commencement Time

Ursinus is a kindergarten, a beginning. Students gather from unique environments to learn things basic about life and knowledge. One must learn to use his crayons and fingerprints of self-expression on paper, not on the walls. One must realize that should is more important to do than want. One must comprehend that there is a wider world than he has known or is ever capable of embracing within the syllable, mine. One must adjust to the fact that others his age sometimes act differently than his parents, siblings and neighbors. One must identify himself as an individual within the realm of otherhood, and yet, become a piece of the whole puzzle. One must respect the person of the teacher first because of his position, then because of superior knowledge, and sometimes, happily, as a friendly personality. One must accept punishment and reward not as imposed will and favor, but as an extrinsic reaction to personal action.

Some find lasting friendships and a place within the otherhood. Others run crying elsewhere for what they deem security. Others want to stay in the bright, light room full of lovely diversions and pleasant times. Some will leave prepared to enter the higher school of life, and some necessarily will not. But all will exchange an indelible impression of themselves as kindergartners for some of the atmosphere there that has become an integral part of each of them.

Bobbe Hunt

I think of four wonderful years that seem to have flown by. I remember a lot of good times and a lot of studying—but not in vain. It's hard to realize that I now have to go out into the "cold cruel world" and make a living, but as I graduate I look forward to coming back next year and renewing acquaintances with my college friends.

Lois Sutton

Suffice it to say that it has been a lucrative experience.

Bruce Holcomb

Concerning the past four years at Ursinus: I would rather analyze than eulogize!

In the words of the song, "There've been some changes made." Slowly, but nonetheless noticeably—especially in the past two years, the student body has been rousing itself from its former lethargy.

Attitudes have improved. There is, for example, a more general cognizance of the fact that there is such a thing as real campus citizenship. People want good, honest, effective, efficient government. There is a growing recognition, also, that college men and women are not simply taking a series of professional training courses, that they have duties to the culture in which they live, not just to themselves. Whether we like it or not, we are intellectuals, and we must assume the social responsibilities of intellectuals.

Then, too, the students have begun to wake up to the fact that Ursinus is—not could be, but is—a good college with a good faculty and administration and a good student body, the "unsavory element" excepted, and that many of the school's supposed faults lie within themselves.

Larry Foard

Ursinus, as McVey said of a university, is a place; it is a spirit. It is men of learning; it is a collection of books; it is laboratories where work in science goes forward; it is the source of the teaching of the beauties of literature and the arts. It is the center where ambitious youth gather to learn. It protects the old traditions, honors the new, and tests its value. It believes in truth, protects against error, and leads men forward by reason rather than by force.

W. Lee Lawhead

Although I have had some rough times at old U.C., I have had some great ones. I will never forget some of the dorm pranks, proms (sprained ankles, measles, and all), and of course classes. The friendships I have acquired I hope I will keep. All in all it has been great, but I don't believe I would want to do it again.

Dave Dickson

I don't think that I will ever forget these four eventful years at Ursinus. Many were the times when I complained about one thing or another, yet, viewed with an objective mind, the complaints were trivial ones. They were, in a sense, normal growing pains.

When I hear the name Ursinus mentioned in the future, I will think of the fellowship and "togetherness" of the students, the warm and congenial student-faculty relationship, the diversified liberal education that is offered, and the many opportunities that are ours for the taking. Without carrying this analysis any farther than this "surface" reflection, I can truthfully say that these were the four best years of my life.

Joseph Donia

U.C. has been a stage, Seniors, men and women, merely players. They have passed their exams, and flunked them too. And one man in his time did many things. His acts being four ages. At first, the freshman struggling and studying in the professor's grasp. Then the whining sophomore, with English Lit. And after a coffee breakfast, creeping like a snail unwillingly to class. And then the junior sighing like a lover, and hand interdigitated with his mistress. Then the senior far above the ways of the underclassmen, full of pseudo-sophistication. Right up to graduation. And then the world.

Ed Sella

Four years at Ursinus has given me a fuller understanding of life. Technical knowledge is only a part of this understanding. Perhaps more important is the recognition of other people's abilities and talents and the satisfaction achieved by working with the many friends I have made.

Al Breidegam

I, as many other seniors, am facing graduation with mixed emotions. In addition to close friendships with students, Ursinus offers the opportunity for close association with the faculty. Having enjoyed many memorable experiences at college, I am anxious to begin my job and face new experiences. I believe it is the responsibility of each senior, however, to recognize all that others have done for him and to appreciate the opportunities for the education which Ursinus has given to him.

Connie Cross

We were fresh and ambitious, And Oh! how we tried, But new friends and activities Made studying easy to pass by. When finals approached We crammed, then we waited; The marks were all right, It was the waiting we hated! Now that it's over, We're sorry to go, But this is the day We're confident, we know.

Michael Hritz

As sadly now I leave U.C., Many memories will go with me. Happy times I shall recall Exams and such—forget them all! However, this is no time for woe, (After four years loaf in father's dough) Because, at last, it can be said: Graduation's here—I'm "college bred!"

Marilyn Welsh

I leave, and gladly, the meals and the "Little Men". I shall take with me my diploma, overjoyed, and many cherished friendships that I shall remember forever.

Doc Carver

It took me 'til my senior year to realize that college is what you make of it. I've spent four wonderful years at U.C. On the other hand I'm anxious to get out on my own and see what I can accomplish.

Bill Rheiner

COMMENCEMENT

by Art King

Finished: four years which will, in retrospect, grow richer through the decades. Sombre gown and curious cap are symbols of respect, tradition being time's best-honored clown, essential to effacement or renown.

Where the fled hours muster their final roll was never listed on the proudest screech of education; but the timeless soul can call scenes back through memory, and read past joy and sorrow into present need.

The world is always brave and new for those who would not have it any other way. Man's knowledge of reality is a pose which changes with the subject and the day. True understanding never bids them stay, but, arming its cowardice with the verities, whispers that truth and love are multiform, all-conquering, and bred by mysteries. The core of grace is ever sweet and warm, though round its edges blustering doubt-fears swarm.

Begun: a trek by four long years foretold. Trumpets of tin, transmute; and change your blare to joyous melody from horns of gold. Discords, resolve and vanish in the air, for strains of song are bruited everywhere.

Some will remember lectures, labs, parties and good times, but I'll remember the people I've known at Ursinus: the cheery waiter at breakfast, the professor who looked pained when my pearls scattered over the floor during lecture, the preceptress who blinked when I came in at 12:31, the friends who volunteered to help with activity projects, the dorm mate who yelled "fire drill" at 2 a.m., the roommate who consoled me when I discovered I had three finals the same day, and the professors who were interested in me—not only my exam papers. Memories of Ursinus? Many pleasant, but all revolving around the people I met.

Georgie Bryson

Graduation! Why, it seems only yesterday that I was wearing my green dink as a frosh. Now I leave Ursinus, but I will take with me many subjects: Exams—to be forgotten. Fun—to be recalled. Friendship—to be treasured. Knowledge—to be used. Ursinus—to be remembered.

Doris Lockey

My four years at Ursinus have provided me with friendships and experiences of lasting value. I appreciate the opportunities which have been mine and the sacrifices of those who made them possible. My only regret is that I did not take advantage of more of them.

I am sure that the knowledge I have gained and the lessons that I have learned from my mistakes will serve me in good stead throughout the coming years.

Dick Winchester

At cap and gown time, I think of friendships which have begun and grown here with hopes that they may continue as we leave. A closeness that we have never felt before, thanks to warm advice and guidance by professors comes to mind as the benches and rocking chairs signify the reality of the nearness of June 10. Ursinus is a place I look forward to returning to—for Home-coming and reunions.

Women's Sports Reviewed At the End of Year 1956-57

The women of Ursinus can be justly proud of a very fine year and an impressive record in intercollegiate sports. The "racquet squads" had a perfect season, the badminton team won six and the tennis girls cleared eight. In basketball hopes for an undefeated season were crushed by an early season loss to Beaver, but the Belles went on to win the remaining nine games. As usual the softball team compiled an excellent record of three wins and one loss. The swimming team improved a great deal on last year's record of two wins and five losses—they broke even with four wins and four losses. The newly formed lacrosse team won one game out of two. The hockey team missed the opportunity for an undefeated season when they lost to East Stroudsburg 0-1. In addition to the wonderful team records Ursinus had representatives on the All-college, All-Philadelphia, and All-American hockey teams, in the intercollegiate tennis tournament, and on the Philadelphia and All-American Lacrosse teams.

Vonnie Gros and Miss Snell led the hockey team to a 6-1 season. The Belles triumphed over West Chester 2-0, Beaver 3-2, Temple 3-0, Drexel, Gettysburg and Penn and lost the only game of the season to East Stroudsburg 0-1. The Ursinus hockey players once again made a name for themselves on the All-College, All-Philadelphia, and All-American teams. Pat Woodbury made goals on the All-College team and the All-Philadelphia second team. Vonnie Gros played full-back on the All-College, All-Philadelphia, and All-American reserve teams. Olive Irwin made the All-College second and All-Philadelphia third teams. Carol LeCato—left inner, Marge Dawkins—center, and Jane Dunn—left halfback earned places on All-College second team. Sue Wagner was right wing on the fourth team.

Captained by Marge Dawkins and coached by Miss Eleanor Snell, the basketball team had a very fine season. Senior Vonnie Gros led the offense, scoring as many as 56 in the East Stroudsburg game. She was ably assisted by freshmen Sue Wagner and Faye Bardman and sophomore Carolyn Custer. Returning veterans on defense were Marge Dawkins, Jane Dunn, Rene Rawcliffe, and Pat Woodbury. The team defeated East Stroudsburg 73-58, William and Mary 82-39, Immaculata 65-29, West Chester 36-33, Albright 71-34, Temple 78-48, Rosemont 75-30, Reading 59-49, and Gettysburg 61-23. They lost to Beaver early in the season.

The swimming team had its best season in several years. "Sis" Bosler coached the team and their captain was Lucy Fay. The Ursinus Mermaids defeated Bryn Mawr 34-22, Penn 33-24, Drexel 44-12, and Temple 29-28. They lost to Beaver 22-25, Swarthmore 11-46, West Chester 16-41, and Chestnut Hill 42-15. Team mainstays were Lucy Fay, Tama Williams.

Bear's Sports Record for The Year 1956-57 Reviewed

The football team, coached by Ray Gurzynski, ended their season with a disappointing three wins, four losses, and one tie. There were many players that were injured and several freshmen were called upon to fill key positions on the squad. The outstanding players were Captain Harry Donnelly and Bob Famous. Coach Gurzynski is expecting a better season next year even though he has lost such seniors as Dick Padula, Jerry Nunn, Dick Briner, Les Applegate, Bob Slotter, and Harry Donnelly. Hats off to these men who played four years of outstanding football.

The soccer team, coached by "Doc" Baker, finished their season with a record of two wins, five losses, and three ties. Co-Captains Bill Rheiner and Dave Burger spirited the soccer team. Special honors go to freshman Mike Blewett who led the scorers with nine goals, and to Dave Burger who reached All-American recognition at his goalie position. "Doc" Baker has several hard positions to fill, but is expecting a rather successful season next year.

He is the son of Mrs. Jesse R. Pollock of 2209 Murray Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Pollock's wife, the former Ethel Lutz, likewise a 1955 Ursinus graduate, lives at 425 Main Boulevard, Allentown, Pennsylvania.

Winter Sports
The basketball team, at the beginning of the season coached by Yost, and later by Reid Watson, was not able to win a game. The final record of the team was sixteen losses. Due to the lack of capable replacements after the starting five, the team never had the spark for victory. There were several bright spots on the squad. Don Sowers averaged 18 points a game, and captain Dave Burger played outstanding basketball in each contest.

The J.V. basketball team was more successful than the varsity winning four and losing ten. This team, however, was racked with ineligibilities during semester finals. Jim Wenhold, the captain of the team and a freshman, showed the greatest promise with his all around abilities.

Wrestling became the most popular sport on the campus last year, taking the place of basketball. The team coached by Kurt Wenieke and captained by Dick Padula compiled a 4-3-2 record. Captain Dick Padula lost his only match in four years of competition and also captured the outstanding wrestler award at the M.A.C. Championships. Sophomore Jack Prutzman was undefeated throughout the season. Due to ineligibility several men were lost.

There will be several large gaps to fill this coming year, but coach Wenieke is still hoping to coach the wrestling team to another victory.

Spring Sports
The track team, coached by Ray Gurzynski, ended their season with a record of one win and six losses. Individually, the track team had several men that always won their events. Bob Carney, Ken Buggeln and Lee Lawhead won two events in almost every track meet. Perhaps the main reason that the record was so poor was due to the lack of strength in the two and three positions. Only Lee Lawhead and Al Frank will be leaving this year. The rest of the team will be back. The co-captains for next year's track team will be Bob Carney and Ken Buggeln.

The baseball team, coached by Dr. G. Sieber Pancoast, ended their season with a record of eleven wins and seven losses. With the support of some freshmen and the return of the rest of last year's team coach Pancoast was able to mold together a fine spirited eleven. The main weakness of the team was the pitching. Captain Slotter was the only pitcher returning from last year's squad. Then several freshman came out along with the conversion of Barrie Ciliberti from an outfielder to a pitcher. With the loss of three of the starting eleven, however, Coach Pancoast is looking forward to a more successful season next year.

The tennis team, coached by Sidney Quinn, ended the season with five wins and five losses. The most valuable player of the team, Art Martella, led the team to many close victories. This year's captain, Eugene Morita, has been elected to be captain next year. The team will lose only Ismar Schorsch by graduation. The rest of the team will be back next year and Mr. Quinn expects a much more successful season.

The badminton team, captained by Connie Cross and ably coached by Jen P. Shillingford, bettered last year's record of four and won by writing a perfect season on the record. The girls defeated Drexel, Penn, Chestnut Hill, and Rosemont by scores of 5-0. the new students become oriented. The committee plans the Welcome Back Dance which is attended by all students the evening before classes begin. Several weeks after school has commenced, the junior advisors sponsor an after dinner dessert, at which time the members of the student government council and the soph rulers are introduced, and the work of the WSGA is explained. The junior advisors plan the Junior-Frosh breakfast, and the Color Day program. To wind up their activities, the committee informs the freshmen to make flower baskets or corsages on May Day for their big-sisters.

The new chairman, Marilyn Spangler, said, "The duties of this group of women students are perhaps unknown to most of us, yet without the planning of this committee many important traditions of Ursinus would cease to exist. The advisors are challenged to make the first year at Ursinus pleasant and memorable, and to perform an important function by making the freshman women feel welcome and at home on the Ursinus campus."
