John Canady Addresses Art Seminar Group

Last Monday night Mr. John Canaday concluded the series of lectures for the Fine Arts Seminar and universities will present onesponsored by the YM-YWCA. In his talk Mr. Canaday touched on the schools of impressionism and cubism. His excellent deliverance of his topic is due to his vast background in the field of art; Mr. Canaday now holds the position of Director of Education at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Mr. Canaday spoke to his audience of the various characteristics of the Impressionists. In this by Richard Harrity. school one finds naturally refreshing painting. Next Mr. Canaday turned to a rather unique school of art, cubism. The cubism appeared in the earlier twentieth century, with the discovery of African sculpture. By MSGA on Tuesday These young artists found great vitality, directness and strength in this sculpture, which was absent in European works. The basis of cubism is to present all forms in their most natural state, reduced to cubes, cylinders and spheres. In this is seen the unrealism of abstraction in art. It is a style which originated with a fourth dimension, time, and which was later reduced to only two, length and width.

Teacher Problems Outlined For FTA By Mrs. Swavely

MONDAY, MARCH 15, 1954

Mrs. Swavely, the former Miss Hazel Reininger of Ursinus, spoke to the FTA on March 9. Mrs. Swavely is a history teacher at Boyertown and serves as a critic teacher for students from Ursinus.

Mrs. Swavely spoke on the problems of the teacher, having gained some of her information from the new teachers at Boyertown and from experienced teachers.

The speaker outlined four major problems: classroom management, discipline, adjustment, and the necessity for outside interests. Under the first heading, Mrs. Swavely urged that the new teacher have everything planned in full for the first day, including such mundane matters as pencil sharpening, taking roll, and distribution of paper. Griffin, Mathewson Star in Group Play

On the night of Wednesday, March 17, Group II of the Curtain Club will present one of James M. Barrie's most delightful comedies, The 12 £ Look. Lest we shock the patriotism of the wearers of the green, we might add that the play deals with the downfall of a pompous English lord at the hands of two charming young ladies and a small but mighty machine.

The cast is headed by Nancy Griffin as the millionairess, Kate; Rod Mathewson as Lord Harry Sims; Marion Haslam as his wife Emmy; and Jimmy Bowers as the perfect butler.

this semester is Dave Seay who did to be a good father, and one rehis traveling mostly in the United States. Dave took his technical training in Jacksonville Pensacola, where he became a Photographer's Mate. After traveling around the states awhile and studying photography, Dave was married on October 25, 1952, and the two happy honeymooners went to Bermuda, the land of sunshine and joy. According to Dave, everyone should plan a honeymoon in Bermuda with its sky blue water, beautiful weather and fabulous sights. Anyone wishing information concerning the best places to eat, the best sights to see, and the best places to go should contact Dave. and he will willingly oblige and tell many fascinating tales of his weeks in Bermuda.

Returning to the states, Dave was sent to California to a camp about 70 miles above Los Angeles. There he worked on photographing and experiments with guided missiles, spending free time with his wife, sightseeing in California and watching the Pacific Ocean. When asked if the Ocean was any different out there than the Atlantic Ocean, Dave laughed and said, "A little rockier maybe, and just a bit warmer, but it's just as salty."

While in California, Dave had many amusing experiences, but one in particular seems the funniest to relate. At one of the canteens, Dave course, there is a great deal of povwas walking down a receiving line shaking hands and grinning at everyone, when he stood in front of one fellow he swore looked exactly like Jack Benny. Gazing intently he remarked as he passed, "You sure do look like Jack Benny." After completing the line, Dave discovered much to his chagrin that the line up had been one of celebrities, and the man looking like Jack Benny had been Jack Benny. To put it mildly Dave said he felt a little flustered, or as the expression is now, "shook."

I glanced in the mirror and then tore my glasses from my face. My ears had disappeared. Taf, alias Gene Harris, received his nickname in an odd way. While known to his friends, is a twentyconvalescing on crutches after a bout with the medics, Gene gained Pa. In fact, he lives only six doors a heap of weight. When he started playing basketball afterwards, his teammates called him Fat but later they reversed the letters (out of consideration) to read Taf.

Taf is Bears' Lou Gehrig

Gene is a twenty-one year old junior from Upper Darby, a physed major, and proud of the fact that, "I've been known to study once in a while." Baseball is Taf's strong point and he tries to pattern his play after Lou Gehrig. It worked out all right because as a freshman he batted .298 and hiked it to .330 last year.

Hill-billy music is in fashion with this three year Demas man, not jazz, and the song "Margie" probably rates high on his list. A steak eating husky at six-foot-one, Gene rates skating, boating, ping-pong, card sharking, dancing, and harmonica playing in his line of skills to be kept secret.

Taf improves his mind each night by playing games "for children in the first to sixth grades" which he has on his desk.

Answers Vital Questions

Gene's answers to certain questions are enlightening. On Malenkov, "What's that got to do with this article?" On his studies, "Forget that!" On Tide-lands oil, "I don't know anything about it." On his driving, "I've been known to be in an accident now and then."

Congratulations certainly are in order for Ralph Schumacher, who was recently named to the first team All-Middle Atlantic States Basketball squad. Also bouquets to Herbie Knull who made the second team, and Bill Burger and Gene Harris who were named for honorable mention.

Schumacher Success Story

Ralph, one of the best shots in the league, improved his all-around play this year to a degree this writer would never have thought possible. In high school Schumacher was second string, and was lucky to get into the game in the final minutes; today he is considered one of the five best players in the Middle Atlantics, is one of the best board-men on the squad, and is a sports teams? passer and play-maker par excellence. His success story should be an inspiration to any aspiring Badminton Team young courtman.

Knull, Burger, Harris Honored

Herb Knull, despite a severely hampering case of pneumonia, played his heart out as a captain should, and also finished among the league leaders in scoring. Burger, one of the finest floor-men and playmakers in the league certainly deserves special recognition, as does Gene Harris, the fiery harddriving junior who was recently elected co-captain for next year.

Heller's Goal Clinches Game

Ruth Heller's field goal with one minute to go clinched the game for the Belles. But that barely tells the story of the thrilling contest.

The final score was 38-35. But just five minutes before the game trailing end of a 33-31 score.

The fourth and deciding quarter had opened at 30-31, East Stroudsburg leading with numerous nearmiss shots by both sides before Jo Kuhn was fouled. She made the free throw, but a terriffic halfcourt set by an E. S. forward put the teachers ahead again.

First Quarter Sloppy

Ursinus maintained a lead most of the game. The first quarter was marked by numerous walking violations and sloppy passing by the Ursinus team and inaccurate passing by the teachers.

The visitors opened the scoring but Jo Friedlin's driving lay-ups put the Belles ahead, only briefly as the teachers, refusing to be left behind, countered once, then again for the lead. Jo Kuhn's chest shot followed by an East Stroudsburg foul preceded three consecutive Ursinus lay-ups. The period ended as the two teams exchanged goals at Even with guards Marge Merrifield and Marge Dawkins snatching interceptions right out of the outstretched hands of the teachers, the Belles had trouble keeping ahead of the strong E. S. team. Only Jo Kuhn could hit at all for the Belles and the stanza closed with the Belles one point behind.

Guards Feel Pressure

The exciting last period put excessive pressure on both teams' guards. East Stroudsburg was exceptionally strong off the backboards, eliminating any repeat shots for the Ursinus forwards.

On Jo Kuhn and Jo Friedlin fell most of the scoring burden. The former tallied 15 points via five field goals and as many fouls, while Captain Friedlin had eight goals and one free throw to her credit. Ruthie Heller is credited with the remaining six points.

Little Marge's Deserve Praise

Playing the tall East Stroudsburg forwards was a big job for Ursinus' little guards. But the three Marge's again deserve credit for staying the teachers' tremendous drive and scoring punch.

Except for the exciting situation of the game, it was not a good one to see. The forwards' shooting average took a big drop and the guards had the second most points this year scored on them.

John Canaday

(Continued from page 1) with his point brushing method, through the application of the laws of physics and light. Using mostly red, blue and yellow, the artist created an allusion of confetti on the canvas. However, this was an agonizing style and was never adopted by other artists, who felt that Seurrat's calculations were too apparent and his art lacked the necessary vitality. Mr. Canaday stated that Seurrat employed a technique so novel yet so painful that in viewing his works one often fails to get past this technique, thus missing the artist's message.

Lastly, Mr. Canaday discussed the famous Picasso, the ultimate example of the school of cubism. Again the artist applied geometric reduction to his art. Picasso even reduced his colors to monochromes. Still life was treated in the same fashion by Picasso. He searched for a new direction in art, one away from intelligence; ultimately, however, the artist was led to severe ultra-intelligence.

Mr. Canaday noted a second aim of Picasso, that of presenting many different aspects of a single object in one painting. The image tends to disintegrate at first and then reassembles in a more fashionable nature. Picasso's career is one of the most interesting of the art world. Mr. Canaday spoke of several of his numerous phases in art. His paintings abound with inventiveness and variety.

In conclusion, Mr. Canaday gave his audience a glimpse of the latest school of art, decorative cubism. Here the critic finds free use of motives, with models of Bohemian life, cafes, and cards used profusely. Mr. Canaday cited Paul Klee as the outstanding artist of the day, although most of his works are minor and are difficult to understand for the amateur. Klee creates a world of magic in art with primitive, cubist and plastic

The Y should be commended for its presentation of such a renowned member of the art field as John Canaday. His lectures were brilliant and his audience was appreciative.
