Bishop Corson Is Speaker at Baccalaureate

"Recovering the Lost Key to Knowledge" was the topic of the baccalaureate sermon delivered by Bishop Fred P. Corson, at the baccalaureate exercises yesterday morning at 10:45 in Bomberger chapel. Bishop Corson is the titular head of the Methodist church in the United States.

The speech stressed the importance of applying learned knowledge to actual living. Bishop Corson used for his text the 52nd verse of the twelfth chapter of Luke, in which Christ addressed the lawyers saying "Woe unto you . . . for ye have taken away the key of knowledge. Ye entered not in yourselves and them that were entering in ye hindered." The Bishop drew a parallel between the learned men living in revolutionary times of Christ's day and the college educated men in the equally revolutionary era of today. He condemned these custodians of knowledge not because they were not industrious but because they used their knowledge inadequately.

Bishop Corson stated that educated men have a responsibility peculiarly large from which they cannot be relieved. They are charged with opening up the doors to a larger life. He said that these doors are closed not because of anything the learned men do but because they do nothing at all about opening them.

Jesus indicted the learned men because they failed to understand the significance of knowledge, the moral imperatives of knowledge and the spiritual aspects of knowledge. Bishop Corson showed how these three indictments held true for the modern world, by using vivid examples. He said that the purpose of knowledge is to dispel ignorance and that too many learned people are basically ignorant of the facts of life. What is even more important than knowing the facts and what is going on in the world, however, is knowing the significance of the facts. Learned people must be able to draw inferences and come to the right conclusions. In this confused world thousands of people do not know in which direction to turn and it is the responsibility of educated people to show them the right direction.

The baccalaureate service was opened with a Bach organ prelude played by J. Richard Carson '50. Dean John W. Clawson gave the invocation and President Norman E. McClure read the scripture lesson. The Rev. Alfred L. Creager offered the prayer and the benediction. The seniors entered in a gowned procession.

Professor Discovers Physics Lab Theft

Seventeen pieces of radio and electronics equipment, including a sound motion picture machine, and a geiger counter, were stolen last Tuesday night from the physics department. Dr. John J. Helleman, head of the department, discovered the theft on Wednesday as he was checking over the amplifying equipment to be used in graduation exercises today. The amplifier was one of the pieces stolen.

The articles, all portable objects, which could be carried in the back trunk of a car, were valued by college officials at $1725. They were taken from one room in the basement of Pfahler hall. There were no evidences of forced entrance into the room. The job seems to have been done by someone thoroughly familiar with the building.

"This is a paradox of our time and even of our country, that despite our reliance on the man of original and creative mind, despite our public and popular eagerness for education, despite our generous investment in schools and colleges, we look askance and sneeringly at the persons, the traditions and the establishments of education." Dr. James Creese, president of the Drexel Institute of Technology, said this, speaking at the commencement exercises of Ursinus on Monday morning, June 2.

Dr. Creese continued to say that "the dilemma of the teacher and his discipline lies in his double responsibility for coming-generations and to discover and teach new truth. He cannot do either if bound fast by a popular though temporary code of orthodoxy."

"Freedom of every kind depends on the individual's right of choice among men, among policies and among beliefs . . . That thesis must be a familiar one at Ursinus college where in a dozen natural divisions, each leading to a range of related careers, a thoughtful student may appraise his interests

MSGA Holds Final Meeting; Case of Plagiarism Discussed

The final meeting of the MSGA was held on Wednesday, May 14. Among the many things on the agenda of the meeting was a case of minor plagiarism and a case of ungentlemanly conduct.

The penalty for the plagiarized paper was a grade of F. The penalty for the conduct case consisted of a dollar fine, fourteen temporary demerits—fifteen temporary demerits render a student ineligible—and a 2500 word term paper for biology.

Next year the MSGA will publish their own book of rules which will be given to all freshman men. In the past, the MSGA rules were included in the booklet published by the Y.

Several cases of theft on campus were discussed. Among the stolen articles were several jackets, forty dollars, and the Fircroft flag.

Jay Kern was chosen to be the MSGA's representative for the campus chest. Each major group on campus is to have a representative.

EDITORIALS

A TRIBUTE

Dr. John Wentworth Clawson, A.M., dean of Ursinus since 1946, and professor in mathematics here since 1907, is retiring this year.

Dean Clawson was born in Canada, received an A.B. degree from the University of New Brunswick in 1901, an A.B. degree from Cambridge University in 1904 and an A.M. from the University of New Brunswick in 1905.

At Ursinus he has taught mathematics to two generations of students. His own three children have grown up and graduated from here during the course of the years.

Dean Clawson's record here has been throughout one of consistently excellent service. Those who have been taught by him testify that he has been an outstanding teacher.

In our small, thoroughly inadequate way, we wish to pay tribute to his forty-five years of service to this college, and wish him the best of happiness in his retirement.

INDIVIDUALISM

Today the eighty-second senior class has graduated from Ursinus college. It has gone through the same ceremonies as the other classes have before it, and listened or not listened to nearly the same advice.

The seniors will face the same basic problem as those in other years have faced—the problem of earning a living and finding a useful place in life. The world will not be stirred or moved greatly by their graduation.

There are those who believe that this lack of individualism is prevalent in college also. These people believe that it is the modern tendency to sneer at individuals who are different and to praise those who dress like everyone else.

We recognize this tendency and agree that it is dangerous. College students, especially in a small liberal arts college such as this one, should be encouraged to be individuals.

The seniors who are graduating today are theoretically prepared to be leaders and the intelligent followers of tomorrow. Supposedly, after four years of college, they are individuals with the ability to think, act and judge for themselves.

We, as undergraduates, cannot say anything new or brilliant to the graduating class. We can only remember them as individuals, and wish them the best of success.

Hints Suggested For Profitable Vacation Hours

A job for the summer seems to be of the utmost concern to most students right now. As soon as exams are over and everyone heads for home, the question of a summer job will seem even more pertinent.

For instance, in the tour line, the Council on Student travel is now offering special round trip sailings to Europe for students, teachers, and any person who might wish to travel for educational purposes.

The ships are one-class vessels and provide dormitory accommodations with double decker beds. Plenty of good food is assured and each ship has a snack bar, lounges and facilities for dancing, games and movies.

Another way to spend the summer is in school. For example, Barnard college and the National Broadcasting company are presenting their second annual Summer Institute of Radio and Television to be held from June 30 to August 8.

This course is mostly for seniors and college graduates, but non-degree holders with some experience in radio and TV are also eligible. It will provide training for those preparing to enter radio or television and additional training to young employees seeking advancement.

In regard to permanent positions the United States Department of Labor has sent out a series of pamphlets dealing with job opportunities for 1952 graduates.

There is a great demand in the field of Natural Science for teachers, administrators, writers, technical salesmen, inspectors and others. Physicists with only a bachelor's degree are badly needed; chemists, mathematicians for work directly concerned with national health and welfare, biological scientists, geologists, geographers and meteorologists are in demand particularly in national industry.

However, here is some good (?) news for the girls graduating this year. To prove to the fellows that they aren't the only ones being paged by the armed services, a woman has an excellent chance to become a WAC officer.

On this happy note we shall close wishing everyone luck in finding summer employment.

Bears Close Season With 9-5 Victory Over Lehigh

The Ursinus Bears rung the final curtain down on this year's baseball season with a triumphant note as they presented coach Sieb Pan-coast with a 9-5 victory over Lehigh. Playing under constantly threatening skies and having the game interrupted for a half hour because of rain, the Bears pushed over a winning three-run spurge in the seventh to clinch a tense push and pull struggle.

The victory brought the final season's record to six wins and seven defeats, but three of these wins were against such outstanding teams as Temple, Lehigh, and F. & M.

The victory over Lehigh marked the fourth hurling victory for parting senior, Hal Feist. The Bears started fast when Jack Popowich lined a long first inning triple and scored when Jay Kern bounced out. After Lehigh tied the score in the third, the home club forged ahead again when they pushed over a counter in the bottom of the third when Jay Kern singled to center.

The Engineers of Lehigh produced three runs in their half of the fifth and the Bears went down in order as a drizzling rain started to fall. With the rain continuing to fall and threatening halting of the game, Gene Harris belted a two-run homer in the sixth to tie the score at 4-4. Before the side was retired, the Bears had counted again when Hal Feist scored from third on a wild pitch. After the last man was retired, the umpires held the game up because of the rain.

A half hour later play resumed and Hal Feist retired the Engineers in the seventh on a brilliant bit of defensive work by centerfielder Dick Glock. With two out and the tying run on third, Glock raced far to his left to pull down a third out drive. In the lower half of the inning the Bears scored three clinching runs. With one away Glock singled past third and Jack Popowich drilled a liner past short. After Kern struck out, Gene Harris walked to fill the bases. Dick Glock scored on a wild pitch and John Anderson looped a two run single to left-center.

In all, the Bears lashed out twelve hits, including three by shortstop Jack Popowich and backed up hurler Hal Feist with errorless ball in the field.

Cinder Men Defeat F & M On Mewing's Last Jump

May 13 was no unlucky day for the Ursinus cindermen. Ray Guryzinski threw his hat down on the locker room floor and let out an Indian yell. It was the first time that the Bears had ever beaten a Franklin and Marshall track team since the series started in 1935. This year's score read — Ursinus 64½, F & M 61½. The meet, a home contest, was won in the last broad jump made by Ed Mewing, a 20 ft. 7 in. leap, which garnered a first place and victory. Ironically enough, Mewing's jump in last year's test with the Diplomats fell one-fourth of an inch short and the Grizzlies dropped a 64½-62½ decision.

The biggest individual news of the day broke when Dick Eshbach, the incomparable hurdler, added the 120 high hurdles school record to his 220 lows crown. His time of 15.6 in the 120 highs broke the former mark of 15.8 which he held jointly with Grimm of Ursinus who set that standard in 1935. Eshbach's record time in the 220 lows is 25.4.

In the F & M meet Bob Swett led the Bears in scoring with firsts in the shot, discus and javelin. He set meet records in the first two events, with a 44 ft. 7 in. put and a 135 ft. heave. Eshbach copped two firsts, setting a new meet record in the 220 lows with a 25.6. Will Loomis was forced into second place in the century as F & M's Moe Glick sped the distance in 10.0. Loomis did a 10.1. However, the speedy captain captured a first in the 220 with a 22.3. Ed Denkin also set a pace, taking the 880 with plenty to spare in 2:11.9. Ken Mammel's 5 ft. 7 in. clearance of the high bar enabled him to ring in with a first in that event.

In the Middle Atlantic Eshbach placed third in the 120 highs and fourth in the 220 lows. Bill Fischer finished sixth among Eastern broadjumpers.

Looking 'Em Over

by Ted Wenner '53

The end of another athletic year. Graduating seniors who performed on the athletic fields of Ursinus college turn to take a last lingering look at the spot where they made a name for themselves. In most cases, the undergraduates won't be forgetting them quickly and they will be aiming to carry on where these seniors left off.

The year opened with the football season, when co-captains Bill Fischer and Herm Litner led their teammates against some mighty rough competition. Herm proved to be the spark-plug of a battling line and Bill ran from half-back as well as he ever did. The fleet-footed back teamed up with Dick Glock to give Ursinus a pair of half-backs hard to beat. Though the team won only three games, a few more breaks would have swung the pendulum the other way.

Then came basketball and wrestling. On the hardwoods, Captain Dave Reice was a standout performer and a flashy play-maker. His biggest feat was the 33 points he poured through the hoops against Philadelphia Textile. It wasn't always the point-making Dave stood out in though, but rather the steady play-making.

In wrestling, the bright spot was the grappling of co-captains Loren Zimmerman and Ted Miller. Both, experienced wrestlers, enjoyed fine years and contributed greatly to the Bear's success.

Finally came this spring and the baseball and track seniors. Performing on the cinders was captain Will Loomis, fleet-footed 100 and 220 yard dash man. Trying to beat him to the tape was about as tough a thing as you could ask for, as many opponents could tell you. On the diamond it was captain Bill Lampeter. Bill turned in many fine mound performances as the Bears completed a successful season.

On the girl's side of the ledger, the final season's record was at its usual high peak. The hockey and basketball teams suffered only a few losses and the softball team completed an undefeated season. This certainly is a tribute to the girls and their coach, Miss Snell. The record they have compiled is outstanding and has been achieved by team play. Outstanding seniors included Marguerite Spencer, Shirley McKennon and Marge Johnson.

Before I close the books, a mention must be made of Don Young who is leaving the college this year, after taking one year of post-graduate work. Don was an outstanding athlete in his four years at Ursinus and is now going to become a coach. His name is on the college's record books and it will be a long time before it is forgotten, if ever.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 42...
THE PORCUPINE

He's listened to the weak thread of so many shallow claims he's fed-up! His point is—there's a thorough test of cigarette mildness. Millions of smokers throughout America concur.

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) you'll see why...

After all the Mildness Tests...

and choose that course of study which will lead him toward the work he means to do. There need be no dogmatic clash between liberal and vocational studies; the two may be conveniently reconciled in the terms of individual choice."

Dr. Creese began his address by saying that commencement ceremonies year after year and decade by decade give us occasion to reaffirm our great commitments to the traditions and disciplines of learning, which have served our country well. He ended it by telling the graduation class that they have been admitted to the ancient fraternity of men who wear college gowns and that they should think sometimes of them and of their devotion to honest work. He said that never before in any country has there been so great a number of people who have had the allowances of time to acquaint themselves with the enduring documents.
