Frat Beating Draws Administrative Fire

An incident that occurred nearly two weeks ago has led to administrative action against one of the college's oldest social fraternities. The incident occurred early Sunday evening January 21 between members of Zeta Chi and Delta Mu Sigma fraternities.

Apparently, the trouble was precipitated by a brief altercation between fraternity members on Friday night (January 19) in front of Todd Hall where a registered party was being held.

According to a reliable account of the incident, early Sunday evening members of Zeta Chi placed a phone call to the third floor of Curtis Hall during the last few minutes of the Super Bowl game. They informed members of Delta Mu Sigma that they would be arriving at Curtis Hall within minutes.

Curtis fight

When they arrived, they succeeded in cornering one Delta Mu Sigma member. Zeta Chi members then held the cornered one while they rest beat him. This trouble led to minor incidents during the following week in the New Men's Dorm.

The Grizzly has learned from a source close to the fraternity that Zeta Chi has been placed on two year disciplinary probation by the administration. Apparently, the probation contains three major parts, but details have not been made public at this time.

In an interview, Dean David L. Rebeck would not reveal information concerning the specifics of the incident, but he stated that Zeta Chi had indeed been placed on disciplinary probation. He did not state the length of the probation.

Rebeck stated that "any further outrage by Zeta Chi or any other group or individual on campus would result in strict disciplinary action by the school. Any specific group that tries to assault or intimidate any specific individual will be dealt with severely."

Rebeck informed The Grizzly that the Zeta Chi charter was not in danger of revocation, but "any further action by that fraternity or any other (fraternity) would put their charters in danger."

Students intimidated

Rebeck commented that, "In my opinion many students have been intimidated by certain groups and are afraid to come forth....There is no place on campus for any physical threats."

Rebeck also informed The Grizzly that meetings with the Ursinus Student Government Association and the Inter-Fraternity Council have pointed out that students should take a stand against these threats and such actions would be discontinued. Rebeck concluded, "any retaliation will be dealt with strictly."

Paul Metrione, Delta Mu Sigma president, wished to make no comment, and Donald Paolicelli, Zeta Chi president could not be reached for comment at press time.

New Frat Gathers Steam

by Carol J. Kennedy

A new fraternity has joined together this year in an effort to get away from "The same old social scene" that now exists on campus. The fraternity, Pi Omega Delta, was organized mainly by Jake Arner, who is president of the fraternity, Mike Arcieri, vice president and Doug Bahney, a senior economics major.

Their majors are varied, though half are economics majors. There are four political science, two chemistry, one biology and one philosophy and religion major.

Most of the guys were friends to begin with. They felt that by organizing themselves into a chartered fraternity, they could hold social functions of their choice. And, by working with the Inter-Fraternity Council, help to change some of the existing social problems.

Vice-president Arcieri said that they are eager to work with other groups on campus and are thinking of sponsoring a party with a sorority. This year they are building a base for next year when they hope to have more parties and dinner dances. At present they are a little low on finances but are optimistic and looking forward to a full year in the 1979-80 semesters.

Holiday Thefts: Negligence or Lack of Concern?

by Dave McPhillips

"Help! I'm being robbed by Ursinus College!" This may be exaggerated but it is the way several students at Ursinus must feel after coming back to school after Christmas vacation. Christmas proved to be a time of giving, but for some it was instead a time to steal. Students who feel secure at Ursinus may be alarmed at the property which was stolen. From Hobson the following thefts were reported: a $250 movie camera, several bottles of wine and record albums. Also, an extra chair was found in a room, hall posters and paint chips were found in a wastebasket inside a supposedly locked room.

The girls in this house were told that the halls were going to be painted during the break, then right before break they were told that the building was not going to be painted. A friend of one of the girls who lives in the house called Hobson at 11:00 p.m. a week before vacation was over, thinking we had returned to school. A man answered the phone saying "Hobson Bakery" and told her that school hadn't started yet. What was a man doing in Hobson over break at 11:00 p.m.? (Making donuts?) A member of a girls' sports team returned early to school for practice and she found the front door open and all but one room unlocked. This girl found nothing of hers missing, but when the rest of the residents returned many of them were not so lucky. The girls did notice, however, that the halls had been painted (contradicting what they had been finally told). Let's assume maintenance wanted to paint the dorm. If so, why were the doors open and even if there was a reason, why weren't they locked again? There was no evidence of any forced entry and many of the doors are the type which have bolts and can't be "carded."

From Shreiner, a $450 stereo was stolen, which was hidden at the bottom of a box covered by sweaters. Some members of the Girls' Gymnastics Team stayed in Shreiner (including this room), but through negligence on someone's part, no keys were issued to these girls, so they had to leave the building open and their rooms unlocked while they weren't there.

In Memoriam

The Grizzly expresses its sympathy to the family and friends of Kathleen B. Cunningham, a 1978 graduate, for her untimely death. Kathy was killed in an auto accident Thursday, January 25, while driving to work. She was a teacher in the Quakertown School District.

While at Ursinus, Kathy was a biology major and an active member in her sorority, Phi Alpha Psi. She was also the 1978 Homecoming Queen.

COMMENT...

Judiciary Board Revival

While the Student Faculty Administration Relations Committee prepares to be replaced by a committee of the faculty, and while the USGA is busy doing whatever it does without fireworks for the better or for the worse, one campus committee is conspicuous in its new found vitality. The Judiciary Board of the USGA and faculty has experienced reincarnation.

The J-Board, as it is known, existed before the current student handbook. Yet through the unwillingness of the administration under the leadership of former President William Pettit to let the faculty or students participate in the judiciary process, disciplinary power was invested nearly exclusively in the Deans of Men and Women. The J-Board did not meet from 1973 to this year; it met twice in 1973 which was the first year it had met since the 1960's. The Judiciary Board was so moribund during the Pettit Administration that for periods of time neither the faculty nor the student body elected delegates to this group. The J-Board also lacked a set of guidelines or rules establishing how much due process the College was willing to grant students brought forward for a hearing.

One of the most significant and least heralded effects of the new student handbook is the re-vitalization of the J-Board. The J-Board has been granted a working mandate and guidelines which simultaneously set rules for the Board and alert students to the degree of the due process which they may expect from the College.

Among the due process guarantees is the right to a closed hearing.

Cultural Kaleidoscope

James Michener...Lisa Richette...Al Meltzer...David Amram...Jessica Savitch...Peter de-Groote...What do these people have in common? All have appeared at Ursinus College. How many of you have complained about the dearth of cultural and entertainment offerings on campus? How many others have frittered away several hours and wondered where the time has gone? How many of you have ever attended a concert at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia? Do you realize all of these opportunities could be yours by prying yourself loose from gab sessions, toga parties, beer bouts and boredom?

The Forum and Cultural Program has existed at Ursinus College since I was a student, but in recent years it has modified considerably. Opportunities are many! The Forum and Cultural Committee, composed of students and faculty, has selected a varied program. Suggestions for program possibilities from the entire campus community are encouraged. In addition to seven programs for this semester, cultural opportunities abound in several spheres. ProTheatre is performing Shakespeare's Twelfth Night in April. For Spring Festival, the College Choir (formerly the Messiah Chorus) is preparing a program, the Band is planning a concert, and Concertisti is performing a variety of selections.

Ruth Harris

Our Meistersingers carry culture to churches throughout the east. During the year, Art Leagues and individual artists display their works on campus. A number of special interest field trips are offered throughout the year, including opportunities to see art treasures in New York, Washington and Philadelphia. Trips featuring top-notch performers, such as Marcel Marceau, are available.

Do you realize that the College purchases a block of tickets to a series of concerts designed for College students, performed by the outstanding Philadelphia Orchestra, at the Academy of Music? In addition to complimentary tickets, door-to-door transportation is provided. Students, staff, faculty and friends are welcome to avail themselves of this opportunity.

For this semester, a variety of performers and lecturers have been obtained. Through the generosity of the Presser Foundation, we engaged Carlos Serrano and David Barg, participants in the Young Artists Series; recognized performers in the Philadelphia area are available. The artist is responsible for providing a workshop before the performance. The afternoon session provides an informal introduction to the artist and allows interaction among the participants. Each workshop has its own structure, influenced by the guest artist's personality. The credentials, experience and offerings of the young artists determine our selection.

Other musical opportunities are The Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia and Mignon Bozorth of Collegeville. The Chamber Orchestra, founded and conducted by Marc Mostovoy, has travelled extensively, both abroad and in the United States. Mr. Mostovoy researches and edits every score his group performs. A dynamic and decisive style characterizes these artists.

Two lectures are scheduled as morning forums. Dr. Rubenstein, an authority on United State - Soviet Relations, has traveled and lectured extensively. The author or co-author of ten books, he has

Snack Shop Complaint

What has happened to the student snack shop? As a day student, having little time between classes, I am forced to eat at the Union. There was a time when I was delighted to do so. I could enjoy a light, inexpensive lunch and with a little music to go along. Not so anymore! The sandwich, thrown at me over the counter by cook, is more roll than meat. The order of french fries I receive is mostly grease (the few which are proportioned). However, there seems to be plenty of soda to go around, with the exception of Sprite being out of commission too often. As for the music, that has been replaced by the chitter chatter of the employees. One doesn't have to listen to carefully to overhear their dirty jokes, or insulting comments.

Lunchtime is not the only time of day I'll go to the Union. Often I would stop in during the late afternoon. I use to purchase a forty-cent dish of ice cream. Recently however I haven't been doing so. I'm afraid I will find a piece of lettuce or pretzel piece, mixed with it, as I have on two previous occasions. Sometimes I'll settle for a pretzel, but they are usually too hard to chew. These comments seem harsh, but these conditions exist. It is worse on the weekends when the manager isn't around to inspect things. The tables are always dirty, and the counter where the food is made is a disgrace.

We have all seen many visible changes. Yet in my opinion what is needed is a change in procedure. Clean up what is there! Greet the customer with a smile (instead of making him feel bad that he is interrupting your television show). But most of all strive for a better lunch delivery.

QUESTION: What did you think of the Grease Band?

OPINIONS:

"It was a worthwhile activity. It's a good idea that the school sponsors such things. I'm not really into fifty's music, but maybe along the same lines we could have another type of rock band. I'm sure everyone had a good time and people would go to more events if they were held."

—John McGonigile
Chemistry '80

"The concert was really excellent and I think that the school should have more activities like it because it gets kids interested. It brings everyone out of their rooms and gets them all involved."

—Gwen McKeon
Physical Education '82

"It was really good. A lot of kids dressed up in fifty's costumes which really added to it. Something about this band had real attraction. Many kids don't appreciate disco and won't go to that type concert. If we have bands in the future they should get rock bands. We should definitely get The Grease Band back because I think the turnout will be just as good."

—Carol Kennedy
English '81

"The Grease Band was a terrific idea for this school. The turnout displayed the popularity for the event. I hope in the future Ursinus has more concerts at the school."

—Scott Pfeffer
Biology '82

"I thought they were pretty good. I've seen them before at the shore and for the type of music they play, they do a good job. I'd like to see more modern types of music. There were a lot of people down there and everybody liked it. If they brought in beer and held it in T.G., they could turn it into something really big. Helfferich Hall is limiting in that aspect."

—Vince Tini
Political Science '79

"I think the school should sponsor more concerts like that because it brings the school together, and makes the college a little more well known to the public by sponsoring such name bands."

—Michele Nathan
Biology '82

"It is a good idea. We should have more activities like this to keep people here on the weekends. I think that things like this better the social life here."

Dishroom Profile

Roy Schuetz: Man or Myth?

by Rick Morris

Every so often, a living legend will emerge and take the world by surprise. These people usually perform some magnificent feat 'ha' gains them instant fame and catapults them into the limelight of society, as was the case with Elvis Presley in the music world in the 1950's and Martin Luther King with the human rights movement in the 1960's. However, on rare occasions, a humble but gifted citizen will achieve in an almost supernatural manner and still travel among the proletariat, yet never receive special recognition. Here on campus, we are fortunate to have one of these silent deities who has passed himself off as just another sheep in the Ursinus flock. The man I am referring to is Roy Schuetz and his dishroom accomplishments speak for themselves.

Roy's phenomenal dishroom prowess caught my attention the very first week of school. Setting a school record by working 39½ dishroom hours the opening week of the school year, Roy had every right to flaunt his stellar service record. But modesty is Roy's middle name and the 6 foot, 3 inch, 220 pound Wismer veteran felt no compulsion to create a gap between himself and the less accomplished employees who surrounded him. So the king of the dishroom finished the semester an unsung hero with his only reward being his meager salary. Roy's status make it evident that the average student all too often takes his meals for granted and never realizes the significance of Roy's record, but "Mr. Rack," as he is fondly known to his peers in the trenches at Wismer, has accomplished something tantamount to Hank Aaron's 755 home runs. Congenial Roy admitted that he would've liked to have hit the magic 40 hour mark, the number commonly equated with full time employment, but he didn't want to risk losing his student status before he was ready to be labeled a "Wismer employee."

Leadership spotted

One man who did spot Roy's invaluable contribution to the dishroom was Food Service Director Jim Sakell, who has had him working in a supervisory capacity where his leadership qualities could aid rookies in learning the basics. Anyone who has had the pleasure of working with this gentle giant will attest to his inspirational value and one of Roy's dishroom companions had this to say about him: "Roy makes you want to work. You can learn so much about plates or trays from the man that I'd be willing to work for nothing except for the experience, if I knew Roy was supervising!" Has success gone to Roy's head? Not at all — even when running the troops he can often be spotted carrying dirty plates or teaching a new move to someone of less experience in an effort to erase the tension so predominant between supervisors and subordinates.

This dedicated senior is the son of Alfred and Karla Schuetz from Allentown, PA and he is majoring in economics, something which he finds almost as important as his dishwork. Hopint to utilize his dishroom experience after graduation, he is considering red-shirting so he can pick up an extra semester as a supervisor. When not in the dishroom, Roy can often be seen entertaining the fancy of the lovely Lisa Hartman with his endless supply of anecdotes from behind the scenes at Wismer, stories which can only be appreciated when told with that lovable Schuetz charm. Expecting to make first team All-Dishroom as a racker, a term Lisa ascribes to him as well as fellow employees, Roy's dedication can be seen from this comment he made while reflecting on his years at Ursinus. "When one arrives at Ursinus, one must set his priorities. You can't become so consumed in your studies that you let them interfere with your campus job!" When one hears statements as profound as that, one has to take price in being a member of a school that is turning out men with tremendous foresight and who are guaranteed success in whatever walk of life they pursue.

Grease Is The Word

by Rick Morris

In this time where campus unrest seems to be in vogue at many Ursinus parties, it takes a unique and refreshingly new idea to bring groups of divergent interests together in a peaceful atmosphere. Though paradoxical in nature, it is true that this 'new idea' came in the form of a "touch of the past." Last Friday night, this experience occurred in Helfferich Hall as both townies and residents and students and faculty all gathered harmoniously to listen to the nostalgic sounds of

"The Fabulous Greaseband."

While many Ursinus College social events often gather steam slowly, this one was packed with energy from the band's opening rendition of Danny and the Junior's "At The Hop" to the show's finale of the same group's "Rock and Roll is Here to Stay." The fanatical reaction at the front of the stage by apparent "Grease Band groupies," who were dancing and shouting from the moment the band hit the stage, provided an impetus for the less brave to take to the dance floor with no fear of being conspicuous. Even with this cult-like throng creating a vibrant atmosphere among the 500 spectators, the affair was well run and APO Security Chief Greg Gifford commented that, "The crowd was no trouble at all, I was pleased I didn't have to hurt anyone."

The band played three one hour sets of songs from the 1950's and early 1960's, combining spectacular choreography with their music, thus providing an excellent show for the passive onlookers seated in front of the stage and for the people taking a respite from the fervent dancing. Four dancers controlled the show from the front of the stage with their intercoordinated movements, visual displays and harmonizing voices. Capitalizing on the style made famous by Sha Na Na and Dom and the Derelicts in the early 1970's the "Fabulous Greaseband" further enhanced their act with comic movements. The comedy highlight of the evening occurred in the final set when they gave a song a five-minute introduction by parodying a teenager on a first date. Ironically, the skit came to a climax when the ambitious and aggressive male, attempting to make it with his virgin date, failed to come to a climax.

Overall, the Philly-based band provided quality entertainment for what proved to be one of the more successful social events on campus this year and brought a welcome change to the Ursinus party scene. The confusing yet pleasurable effect of the event was evidenced by Junior teenybopper Dot Crosson. In her excited state she mistook the band for her pet's nightwear, as she stated, "These guys are the cat's pajamas."

Holiday Thefts

From the Quad, two clock radios were stolen and several stereos were tuned to stations they hadn't been on before. Small pieces of glass were found all over the floor of a room. Also, a girl in Paisley returned to find her door just as she left it...locked. Her $300 stereo, however, was gone. This means someone not only had a key to open the door, but also had the key to lock it when they left. This type of door cannot be locked without a key. Why would someone steal a stereo on the third floor of a building when there were many others in the building and even on that hall that were far more expensive?

Apparently, the thieves knew what they were looking for. A small coincidence is that maintenance men had recently been in this room before break repairing something. Is this just a coincidence? Probably, but it becomes less of one when you know that a set of master keys has been missing since Thanksgiving.

This piece of information only came to the student's attention recently when she noticed a police report while reporting about her stolen stereo. No students were warned of this, no locks were replaced and an "investigation" was carried out with no results. Oh yes, double security was supposed to have been put on the Women's Quad. Now replacing locks would have been too expensive, and it would be hard to find a place to even start replacing them. However, at least someone could have warned the students about this and told them to take home as much of their valuable property as possible since it was in danger of being stolen. Note: All of these rooms, however, were locked before each student went home for break.

Page 18, paragraph four, in the Student Handbook, 1978-79 reads as follows: "The College shall not be liable, directly or indirectly during the academic year or during vacations, for loss or theft of any personal property of students or their guests or for damage or destruction of such property by fire, water or any other cause."

This sentence puts a blanket over this whole issue. Unfortunately nothing is mentioned in the Handbook about the College's responsibility to students when negligence appears to be present.

Nicolette Larson Debuts In Style

by Joe Lazar

It always helps to have friends in high places. When I asked The Grizzly's Arts & Culture editor, Brian Barlow, if I could write an album review, his affirmative answer astounded me. Since I am a professed Bruce Springsteen enthusiast it was enlightening that Mr. Barlow would entrust a column to me.

Back in December, a friend recommended that I buy an album called Nicolette, by Nicolette Larson. Who? Anyone whom I had never heard of could not be worth my $4.99. Then my curiosity got the best of me, so with apprehension, I purchased it and was pleasantly surprised.

Invariably, every new female singer is compared to the queen of rock, Linda Ronstadt. Nicolette has many characteristics of Miss Ronstadt's albums. Her songs are not original compositions, but the arrangements are wise. Like Linda Ronstadt's Simple Dreams, Nicolette is a balanced mixture of good, clean, rock 'n' roll fun and country-flavored ballads. Nicolette Larson, again like Miss Ronstadt, has assembled a talented band around her voice. I would even be so bold as to claim that Nicolette sounds like Linda, especially on the track "Mexican Divorcee".

Neil Young's "Lotta Love" is the ear-catching, Top 40 song on Nicolette and it is the opening track of side one. Neil Young performs "Lotta Love" on his Comes A Time LP and while I enjoy his mellow, guitar-oriented version, Miss Larson's is by far better. The rest of side one maintains the pop/rock, Top 40 image of "Lotta Love", but is thoroughly enjoyable. "Rhumba Girl" by Jesse Winchester and "You Send Me" by Sam Cooke are performed in a way that would please both of the original composers. The sleeper of the entire album is a track entitled "Can't Get Away From You". It could be the next song from Nicolette to be played on WYSP. At least WIOQ and WMMR have chosen to play it along with the other tracks from the album. The second side displays the country influence on Nicolette Larson. Three songs have the country flavor, but they are arranged in a way that shouldn't offend even the hardcore rock 'n' roller.

It makes it a lot easier to record a hit debut album if the supporting cast is of class quality. Ted Templeman produced it and has also worked with the Doobie Brothers, Van Morrison and Carly Simon. Also, it doesn't hurt to have Linda Ronstadt, Herb Pedersen and Valerie Carter for background vocals and Billy Payne and Paul Barrere of Little Feat on keyboards and guitar, respectively.

As a debut album, Nicolette is a winner. But, as Foreigner and Boston found out, the second album will be judged more critically.

USGA Elections

by Kathleen McShary

February 1 marked the petition deadline for this coming year's USGA positions. Petition due at 6:30 p.m. determined qualifications for candidacy in next Thursday's election. Due to lack of petition response certain positions will be decided by the sole candidates running, these positions include: recording secretary, Linda Lewandowski; class of 1981 representative, Thomas Reilly and day student representative Thomas Ward. Positions not petitioned for such as corresponding secretary, and class of 1980 representative will be appointed by incoming USGA members.

Offices to be decided by the coming election will be USGA president, whose candidates are Diane Meeker and Kim McFadden and Men's Vice President, David Roth, John Fuller and David McPhillips. The three candidates which will compete for the position of treasurer are Kevin Ludwig, John McGonigle and Rosalie Bair while candidates for class of 1982 representatives include Frank Ayres, Gerry Kramer and Arthur Montano.

The election will be held during lunch and dinner hours, February 8, in the Parent's Lounge of Wismer Hall. USGA members encourage informed voter turnout, and therefore suggest that those planning to vote seek out the candidates running to speak with them about any particular issues.

Dr. Conrad E. Kruse

by Mark B. Woodland

Who would get disgusted enough with the way that beer glasses are cleaned to go ahead and invent his own beer glass sterilizer? The man is Dr. Conrad E. Kruse, and should he ever patent this invention he would make a mint at Ursinus alone.

Dr. Kruse was a hard worker from the start. At age 16 he worked with a construction firm to help pay for his education. In 1941, he attended Ursinus and stayed for a year; after which he transferred to Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. His main interest were in microbiology, histology and embryology. During the summers he worked in the family frozen food business, where he put his creative mind to work by inventing and patenting a fruit pitting machine. His biological interests were also stimulated by their business and he stressed microbiology in his studies, which led him to devise better ways in preservation methods.

Micro, marriage and Masters

After the war, he returned to Philadelphia to finish his education. He received his Bachelor of Science in microbiology in 1949 and also married a girl he had met at school. His wife is presently the chairwomen of the Biology Department at Cabrini College. Kruse and his new wife moved to Wisconsin where he worked on his Masters degree at the University of Wisconsin while studying microbiology under Mike Foster, and biochemistry under Esmond and Schnell. He received his Masters in micro with a minor in biochemistry.

His first child, Conrad, was born while he and his wife were in Wisconsin. Conrad later went on to study business administration and marine biology. Conrad was killed in a tragic train accident a few years ago and Dr. Kruse suffered a tremendous loss. His other child is now a CPA at Notre Dame.

After receiving his M.Sc., Dr. Kruse and family returned to Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science where he worked on his Doctorate. He received his Doctorate in 1953 majoring in microbiology and minoring in pharmacology. During this time he served as a consultant for the Clinical Lab at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia on the development of new techniques and the refinement of procedures. At the same time he became a consultant for the Food and Pharmaceutical Industry.

Upon receiving his doctorate he worked as the Supervisor of the Customer Service Laboratory for the Crown and Seal Company in Philadelphia. While there he worked on the early development of the aerosol can for use with whipped cream.

From here he moved on into journalism as an editor and scientific advisor for Lea and Febiger Publishers. Through this job he traveled on medicine, pharmacology, veterinary medicine, radio isotope methodology and general sciences. He also aided Baily on the subject of open heart surgery. When Gray's Anatomy published their Centennial Edition, Kruse was there helping to edit the massive text. Among these works he also helped prepare many manuscripts for publishing and distribution to various medical schools.

Return Philadelphia

Having decided that all the travelling involved with this job was keeping him away from his family, he returned to the Philadelphia area and went to work with William Rorer Inc. where he helped in the development of Maalox. He served as a Clinical Coordinator and Supervisor of Evaluation of New Pharmaceuticals. While with Rorer he decided to pick up teaching and started as an Assistant Professor at Drexel Institute of Technology in the biology department. He also taught a few courses at Cabrini College and at the Evening Division at Saint Joseph's College. During all these new teaching jobs, Dr. Kruse found time to help develop "canned scrapple" for Haberset.

A local T.V. show "Mr. Wizard" also called on Kruse to help write various experiments for the show. Mr. Wizard (Don Herbert) and Kruse later developed a Mr. Wizard Ecology Kit which was sold nationwide, and is still available today.

In 1967, Dr. Kruse returned to Ursinus. Since starting here he has initiated the biochemistry course, microbiology course and cell physiology course. He has taught histology, biochemistry, microbiology, embryology and the general biology courses.

Pharmaceuticals have always been a main interest and in 1968 he and his brother-in-law started a pharmaceutical company called Tablicaps Inc. They manufacture generic drugs for larger companies and distribute their products nationwide.

Dr. Kruse himself admits that he has lead a "crazy and mixed up life." Yet at the same time he has to admit it has been very exciting and more than interesting. From all his works and vast areas of accomplishments one begins to recognize the dedication of this man to his particular field. Above all things he has done, teaching has been his mainstay. He confided, "I'm interested in students, they're young and give me vitality." He is certainly an inspiration to all.

Racquetball Review

by Ray Dougherty

At the beginning of this week, it became apparent that the so-called "Ursinus Apathy" had not reached the racquetball court. No less than 43 couples have entered the mixed doubles tournament that began on Tuesday. Early preliminary action has seen Chris Warren and Pam Brown sweep two games from Keith Wright and Abbie Green (15-8, 15-8) with Chris Good and Kyle Jackson defeating Jeff Carlow and Marianne Mattson.

In other match-ups, the quickness of John Davis, who partners with Barb France, proved too much to handle as they beat Al

Koster and Gwen McGuen in two out of three games. The last match played to date featured forty-third seeded Rick "Fish" Morris and Xenia Politis against Clayton "Whale" Ebling and Pam Kelly. At first it appeared as if Morris and Politis would cruise to victory winning the first game 15-11. However, Ebling and Kelly won the second game 15-8 and swallowed the Fish and Politis 11-1 in the tiebreaker.

Next week, the tournament moves into full swing as the preliminary rounds will be completed.

Judiciary Board Revival

Unless students brought forward for hearings waive this right in numbers it is almost certain that few on campus will ever see a J-Board hearing. This is certainly not a negative observation -- the fewer students who have hearings, the fewer instances of rulebreaking occur. The J-Board deserves, however, to be seen at work. In 1973, the last year in which the J-Board met, a mock hearing allowed students and others to witness how the J-Board works. This appears to be a sound idea. It familiarizes students who care to attend with the procedures of the J-Board. It encourages comment. It probably encourages students to read the Student Handbook, stimulating them to learn more about the College judiciary processes. It may work in favor of those who are referred to the J-Board inasmuch as they have been given an opportunity to see what a J-Board hearing is like. To the extent that a mock J-Board is attended, students may learn a great deal about a campus institution which to many is unfamiliar.

The Judiciary Board should be applauded for the work it is doing. The present administration should be applauded for exercising the leadership necessary to rejuvenate the J-Board, and the J-Board should be encouraged to repeat its 1973 mock hearing as a method of educating students as to its purpose and procedure.

Bio Club Spawned

You may have heard that during the last two weeks, a new club has been formed at Ursinus. Even though the biology department has more majors than any other department, there has never been a club for the “straight” bio majors.

During the past two meetings the Biology Club discussed their future plans and have elected officers. The officers elected for this year are Richard J. Greco, president; Julie Meehan, vice president; Brad Friedman, secretary and Bennett Shanker, treasurer.

The plans for this semester include a medical hypnotist on February 27, a field trip to Merck, Sharp and Dohme during the first week in April, a probable canoe trip in the New Jersey Pine Barrens and another lecturer in the field of ecology.

At the end of this semester, the Club hopes to become a student chapter of the National AIBS Biology Club and also the honorary Tri Beta Biology Club.

Anyone interested in biology may join. The Biology Club has their next meeting at 6:00 p.m., February 13 in Wismer Auditorium.

Dr. Ira Feit will discuss “Origin of Life”. Concentrating in developmental biology and human embryology, he is preparing a textbook on human development. The recipient of the Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching in 1978, he organized the present Franklin & Marshall lecture series in science and religion under the auspices of the college's History and Philosophy of Science Program.

After sampling the selections planned by the College Community this spring, suppose you wish to expand your exposure. In the Philadelphia area, the Pennsylvania Ballet, theatrical attractions, and a tremendous variety of music are available. Local college provide additional sources of entertainment. Embodied in the mission at Ursinus College is the following directive concerning preparation of individuals “For a creative and productive role in a changing world through a program of liberal education that cultivates the following: ...A comprehension of our natural and social environment and our cultural heritage.” The diversity of the College's cultural program seems sufficient to stave off murmurs concerning the lack of culture at Ursinus.

Gymnasts Place Third In Tourney

Fifty four competitors from five teams met at the Pancott School of Gymnastics in Malvern to tumble it out for the first PAIAW Gymnastics Championships. The January 27 matchups saw West Chester State College as the outstanding team, with so much depth and excellence that even the recent loss of their two top members did not lessen the power they generated. The question was whether Ursinus would be able to take third place or a more prestigious second place.

The Ursinus gymnasts were confident they could out score both Bryn Mawr and Swarthmore, but the University of Pennsylvania proved to be more proficient than expected. West Chester captured first easily with 122.7 points, while Penn drew a strong second with 93.6 points. The Bears ended with a respectable 88.0 points to clinch third in the championships. Freshman Carol Hess was Ursinus' only medal winner with a third all-around and also placing high in vaulting and uneven parallel bars by placing fifth. Ursinus will have their chance for a rematch with Penn on February 2 at Bryn Mawr.

Wrestlers Manhandle Mules

by John O'Neill

Last Wednesday the Wrestling Team defeated Muhlenberg College in the second home match of the season, 36-12. Coach Irwin watched months of hard work pay off as seven of nine wrestlers won their matches, five of them by pins. The other six points against us were forfeited due to a vacancy in the 158 lb. class.

Freshman Bob Schisler won his match at 118 pounds with a pin early in the second period to set the momentum for the match. Greg Gifford then ran his dual meet record to 5-0 when he pinned his man early in the first period. Gifford (at 126 lbs.)

stunned his opponent with a superbly executed pancake at the beginning of the match to set up his pin. The lower weights were not finished yet though, as co-captain Eric Rea finished off his victim with a first period pin at 134 lbs. Freshman Dave Viola ran up a score of 13-0 against his opponent at 142 lbs. and then topped the evening off with a well deserved third period pin to make the score a decisive 24-0.

150 pounder Jan Dalina faced one of Muhlenberg's tougher grapplers in what was perhaps the best match of the evening. He decided his opponent 7-4 after

by Jeff Plunkett

This past week of basketball action saw the Bears take a few steps towards regaining respectability in the Middle Atlantic Conference. While they could only manage a 1-1 record in the two contests, there were some definite signs of improvement. The Bears lost to Widener on Saturday, January 27, 69-61. This eight point margin will undoubtedly surprise anyone who watched the Pioneers put on a clinic at the Bruins expense, in Helfferich Hall, while completely destroying Coach Skip Werley's squad 76-42 earlier this season.

Ursinus was led by Kevin McCormick's 13 points and 11 rebounds. Dave Petitta threw in 13 also, while Mike Brophy had 12 counters. U.C. actually out-rebounded the taller Widener squad, but was nonetheless victimized by the host team's ability to counter seven more field goals, while shooting five less attempts.

Widener was paced by Mark Tucker and Dave Smith, who managed 17 and 11 points, respectively.

On Monday, January 29, the Bears journeyed to Moravian where they completed their recent turnaround by impressively handling Moravian's Varsity with a 75-57 score. The Bears trailed at the end of a poor-shooting first half by a 25-22 margin. However, in the second half Ursinus had fewer missed shots (5) than they had field goals (11) in the first stanza. The Bears shot a blistering 73% from the field after intermission but needed every bucket as Moravian shot an even more impressive 83% for the half. Guards Jim Mobley and John Curley led the Bruin offense with 18 and 17 points each. Rich Cosletti and Bob Gunselman combined for 32 points to lead Moravian who fell to 6-9 on the year.

Bear Facts: Season record now stands at 7 wins and 10 losses.... Against Moravian Petitta had 14 points and 7 rebounds; McCormick had 12 points....Both the Bears and Moravian were almost as cold in the first half as they were unconcious in shooting the ball after halftime. Still, U.C. shot 57%....Ursinus won the rebounding battle in both contest, which is key to establishing a running game.

Slavin Breaks Record Mermaids Lose

The Women's Swim Team broke their perfect record by losing to both Drexel and Villanova last Thursday, January 25. But that's not all the records that they broke that day...junior Shari Slavin smashed her old team record of 37.1 for the 50-yard breaststroke by over two seconds! Just getting back into training due to numerous accidents, Slavin swam an amazingly strong 34.9 to replace the team record which she previously held.

Freshman Lynn Engler did not fair as well against Drexel and Villanova as she did against previous teams in losing for the first time of the season. Engler still hold her personal record of setting pool records at every away meet this far in the season. At Dickinson she crushed the record with a satisfying 1:09.0 for the 100-yard backstroke.

Even though Ursinus has such excellent swimmers as Slavin and Engler (not to mention the great power Ursinus pulls from the rest of the team in depth) they were still defeated by Drexel and Villanova. A few reasons: Drexel recruits, they give scholarships-against which Ursinus cannot compete. Swimming on Villanova's team was none other than Jenni Franks, the former U.S. Women's record holder of the 400-yard individual medley who is still in fine shape. This was a tri-meet which made scoring difficult and thus the scores are unavailable yet, but the Mermaids found it hard trying to capture any seconds or thirds. Their record now stands at 4-2 and the next home meet is February 6 against Widener.

Ford short

Senior 190 pounder Mark Ford came up short in an aggressive match, losing by an 8-4 decision. Ford, who usually wrestles at the 177 lb. spot moved up a class this match to make room for Groce. Freshman heavyweight Bob Citta finished off the evening on a positive note by pinning his opponent midway through the first period in what was also his first match of the season. Dave Lewis, a newcomer to the squad was pinned in an exhibition match at 167 lbs., after having practiced one day. Hopefully, Viola will be able to fill the void at 158 lbs.

The win against the Mules brought the team record to 2-3.

Badminton Drops One

by Lori Armbrust

The Women's Badminton Team and Men's Badminton Club traveled to West Chester College for a scrimmage on January 25 against number one ranked West Chester in the PAIAW conference as well as the East Coast. Coaches Miss Boyd and Missy Herod felt the team played well against such a skillful opponent even though there were numerous loses.

Our number one ranked singles player, co-captain Leslie French, lost to an outstanding freshman, Peg Sausen, of West Chester.

Second singles player, co-captain Betsy Cox faired no better as she was defeated by last year's first singles player Pam Lutz.

In the men's matches captain Bill Sutherland defeated Roger Bonnet 15-11, 15-12 and then went on to play and defeat the number one girl Sausen for lack of additional West Chester men players. Another win was chalked up for the men as Greg Curran defeated West Chester's Steve Natalie 15-4, 15-4. Ursinus will have a rematch on February 8 in their first home match.

late sports score

In an exciting MAC South basketball game last night, the Bears downed Johns Hopkins University by a score of 71 to 57. The Bears were led by Jim Mobley who had 15 points, Jay Defruscio had 12, and John Curley added 10. The win moved the Bears record up a notch to
