Rebuilding BEARS Lose to Dickinson

By GEOFF LAWRENCE

The Ursinus football Bears have played the last home game of their discouraging '74 season. Coach Whately's club was, once again, victimized by inconsistent defensive play and an ineffective catch-up offense. The Bears are potentially tough and boast one of the biggest defensive lines in the league. Despite their size they were humiliated again for the fifth time this fall 38 to 10 by the Red Devils of Dickinson.

With one game left in the season Ursinus's gridiron hopes lie in the next three years. Of the twenty-two starters on this year's squad only three are seniors; the rest will be back next season to avenge the frustrations of losing in the MAC.

Frustration was evident Saturday when the team fell apart after playing a good first half. Dickinson scored first late in the first quarter when they turned the deflection of Matt Gordon's near-interception into six points. Ursinus retaliated early in the second quarter when Dave Buck booted a twelve yard field goal.

Dickinson's record breaking quarterback Don Johnson responded immediately by moving his team in for another score. On second down a huge hole opened for fullback Jim Gerloch as he sprinted nine yards unmolested through the Ursinus defense for the TD.

Ursinus quarterback Dick Gaglio kept the Bears in the ball game by taking advantage of Glen Pearson's fumble recovery and hitting Pete Nicholas in the end zone. Steve Prociw intercepted a Dickinson pass on their next set of downs. It appeared that Ursinus was ready to play football.

However the Bears had to give up the ball and the Red Devils' quarterback took over again. Johnson fired through good coverage and found Bernard Driscoll who took the ball at mid-field and went in for the score.

The half ended with Ursinus beaten by their own mistakes and Dickinson with the edge 21-10.

In the second half Ursinus gave up their ground game and, in an attempt to score, they took to the pass. Defensively Whit Campbell's coverage halted Dickinson's passing attack momentarily but they still scored on a field goal. Disaster struck twice as Dickinson utilized two interceptions to control the ball and tally two more touchdowns. Tempers flared in the last minutes of the game as the exasperated Bears nailed Dickinson interceptor Dan Basehoar.

Only ONE Game Lost

By MELISSA MAGEE

Three of the four Women's Field Hockey Teams finished their seasons unbeaten. This is the first undefeated Varsity season since 1972. They posted a record of 5 wins, 2 ties and zero losses. The highlight of the season had to be an outstanding 3-2 victory over a strong W.C. team. Twelve of the girls will be practicing indoors until Thanksgiving in order to maintain their skill level and teamwork for their tour of England. Marianne wishes the team GOOD LUCK.

J.V. finished undefeated with only one tie to U. of P. and eight wins. The team was led by captains Senior Linnea Landis and Junior Dee Speck.

Third team ended with an impressive 8-0-1 tying their last game to Swarthmore. This brings them a two-season record of 15-0-1. Fourth team was defeated only by W.C.S.C. and had a 4-1-2 season. Ursinus women's teams remain stronger than ever! CONGRATULATIONS TO ALL!

This past week-end, Ursinus participated in the All-College Tournament. The final results found 3 Bears on the first team—Karla Poley, Judy Turner, and Sherrie Harden; 2 on the second team—Freshman Betsy Meng and Nancy Zurn; 4 on the third team—Becca Garwood, Karen Hansell, Debbie Ryan, and Sally Starr; Missy Herod and Cindy Martin made the fourth team. They will be participating in the Philadelphia sectional tournament next weekend. GOOD SHOW, GIRLS!

Photo Review

By CATHY McCARTHY

The Photography Club of Ursinus has organized a display of art work in Wismer Auditorium which is very much worth an effort to see. Jack Alvarez, the President of the Club and Kim Tilley, a member, arranged the photos and transformed them into a very impressive exhibit of creative art and talent.

Because of my very limited knowledge of the art of photography, I discussed the exhibit with several people who are knowledgeable in that area in order to evaluate it properly. However, I've come to the conclusion that everyone should appraise this display for themselves and I will therefore relate to you what I learned from these people so that you'll have someplace to start.

The first obvious characteristic of these photographs is the color, or the lack of it. The black and white shots express their mood in terms of linear design and are a study in contrasting shades. It is concerned with shapes, how they go together and how they can convey a mood or feeling to the viewer. Many of the black and white photos are interesting for their conveyance of texture.

Color photos, on the other hand, use the subtleness of colors or very different color schemes in order to communicate their message. They, too, are concerned with the way shapes can be utilized to create an image; however, color pictures use contrasting of color to do so.

Different lens systems have been used by the different photographers who worked on this display. Telephoto lenses, for instance, have been used for several of the close-up photos. This type of lens, gets an excellent shot of the subject matter, yet fades the background to a muted shadow which reinforces the content of the picture.

The way in which a photographer centers his picture, using natural surroundings in order to "frame" his subject is also important to the effective photo. The way in which the photo is mounted is also important because it can add or detract from the basic beauty of the shot.

As you can see, I still don't know very much about photography.

First Foreign Student

By ALAN STETLER

Many people think that foreign students attending American colleges and universities is a relatively recent practice. But not so with Ursinus. Our first foreign student, Joan Mirza Maxfield, matriculated at Ursinus in 1926, although she arrived in Collegeville in 1925.

Her story is an extremely interesting one because her arrival in Collegeville was the result of many years of hard work by many people. Mrs. Maxfield was born in Iran, the daughter of a Presbyterian minister. Life was not easy for a Christian family in a Moslem country at that time. She was fortunate in being able to attend an American mission school, but its highest grade level corresponded to just the American 10th grade. In 1921 Mrs. Maxfield and her father migrated to Bagdad. She wanted very much to become a gynecologist and go back to Iran someday and help the Moslem women, but chances of a higher education looked very dim for her there, and her only chance was an education in either England or the United States.

Two American missionaries from the German Reformed Church became acquainted with the Mirzas and wanted to do something to help young Joan reach her goal of becoming a doctor. They contacted their friend, Dr. George L. Omwake, president of Ursinus. It was soon arranged that Mrs. Maxfield would become a student at Ursinus, the first one from a foreign country. Immigration problems were settled and Mrs. Maxfield arrived in Collegeville in June 1925. During her early years in the United States, she lived in the home of Dr. Omwake.

Fulfilling the entrance requirements posed somewhat of a problem, but it was soon solved by having Mrs. Maxfield attend Collegeville High School to make up any deficiencies. In the Fall of 1926 she was ready to enter Ursinus. Foremost in her mind during her four years here was the desire to go back and help her native people.

After graduation in 1930 Mrs. Maxfield was offered a job teaching school in the Collegeville High School. She talked with Dr. Omwake about what she should do. He encouraged her to accept the job in light of the current world situation (Depression, etc.). She accepted the job and was a teacher in Collegeville for thirteen years, until 1943 when she resigned to help with the war effort.

In later years, Mrs. Maxfield moved to California where she began teaching in a Los Angeles high school, but she also did a lot with helping emotionally disturbed children of movie stars and wealthy families. Mrs. Maxfield finally ended her career of active service to people in June of last year.

Mrs. Joan Mirza Maxfield never achieved her original goal of becoming a doctor and returning to Iran, but it is evident that she was always active in humanitarian and patriotic ventures. Her first thought was always of other people. Ursinus is truly lucky to have had such an energetic and selfless woman to start a long tradition of making foreign students feel welcome and productive.
