Ursinus College Summer School

Students who are planning to take summer courses in the Ursinus College Summer Summer School should obtain a Summer School brochure from the Dean's office. This brochure lists the courses offered and the sessions in which they are given. Registration forms should also be obtained and filled in appropriately, includ-ing your Advisor's signature, so that he may have a record of your summer work in his files. Both the brochure and the registration form may be obtained from the Dean's of-fice or from Dr. Vorrath, Director of Summer School.

In order to facilitate plan-ning for the Summer School, as well as to assure that cours-es which you wish will in fact be given, it will be helpful if students will enroll for this summer work without delay. Since course offerings are contingent upon sufficient enrollment, early enrollment will help to avoid later disappointment.

Friday night at the Diecaster's Union Hall in Pottstown was the most formal of the three affairs, with the men wearing coats and thes and their U.C. dates working hard to outdo each other's dressy attire. #### EDITORIAL

Greek Weekend

From the depths of criticism to the brightness of grateful praise is a long editorial lead, but the events of May 13, 14, and 15 make it a delightful diversion indeed.

To those who have shared and enjoyed the festivities of the Greek's Spring Weekend this year, little need be said. But to those who have condemned this and other fraternity functions, or even worse, to those who ignored them as merely trivial, a lesson can be presented.

From the highest administrator to the newest freshman or transfer student, everyone can profit from the fraternity and sorority activities at Ursinus. At no time during the year can the college boast of high school and neighboring college visitors in such quantities as during removal of the column the past Spring Weekend. Neither proms, nor class trips, nor festi- month. I feel somewhat responvals, plays and the like bring out so much interest and sible for the inadequate coverparticipation from the students. ### But 50% More Stay at UC Than at Average College

Concomitant with the arrival of spring, talk of transferring seems to fill the air at American colleges, At this time of the year, certainly, hundreds of Ursinus students talk of transferring, and already 5% of the entire student body have sent transcripts to their dream schools. It would seem that the only people who do not want to leave Ursinus are those who haven't gotten here yet!

But most of the talk is only talk. If this year follows the pattern of the past, about 2 % of the college will transfer to other schools. According to Dean Pettit, only 19 of the 89 students who withdrew from the College last year were transfers. The other students withdrew for various other reasons: health, marriage, work, low academic averages,

In fact, Ursinus has an un-usually small transfer rate. As Dean Pettit pointed out, more students stay all four years at Ursinus than at an average American college." SM

The statue of Robert Emmet, an Irish patriot and a martyr of the Irish fight for independence, was the object of this search. It seems that a millionaire Irishman named Example of Washington, D.C. wanted a status of Francis Kane of Washington D.C. wanted a statue of Emmet, and said statue happened to be owned by Mr. Fred Grimison of Trappe, Pa., Mr. Grimison is the proprietor of the Muhlenberg House in that town.

The statue, as area residents know, was sort of a landmark to the community. Mr. Grimison bought the statue for the estate of its creater, who was a German artisan (this man also lived in Montgomery County). The statue which Grimison owned is the original of at least two statues that there are of Emmit.

Thought to be Nathan Hale

"The statue itself was originally thought to be of Nathan Hale," said Grimison, "And I had no intentions of parting with it, even when I learned the real identity of it."

But, as fate would have it, Mr. But, as fate would have it, Mr. Grimison gave into his Irish sentiment the is Scotch-Irish). What was that fate? Well, the reason Kane wanted the statue was to send it back to Ireland, in celebration of the fittieth anniversary of The Irish Rebellion (Continued on page 4)

Hovey Scores 8 for JV's

East Stroudsburg was very proud of its JV team, having lost only one game all season, to West Chester. Therefore, it was quite an achievvement for the Ursinus JV's, as they swamped E-Burg 8-2. Fran Hovey played a spectacular game, scoring all eight goals. The JV's ended their season with a fine 5-2 record.

ern Division title race. The Bears dropped a tough 2-1 decision in a rainy, muddy contest with Moravian at Bethlehem.

Once again, the lack of offensive punch caused the Bears' downfall. Hard luck losing pitcher Al Soles hurled his finest game of the year, only to lose on an unearned run in the bottom of Eltringham.

Moravian tied the game in the sixth on a pair of singles, sandwiching a sacrifice bunt. The score remained knotted until the bottom half of the ninth when Eltringham led off with a bunt single. The combination of a wild pitch, an error, and a oneout sacrifice fly allowed him to score.

Shortened seven-inning contest. Henry allowed just five hits, but two of them, combined with a two of them, combined with a two of them, combined with a patolen base produced the deciding rum.

down the final stretch of the scholastic year in traditional style. Thousands turned out for the first annual wild, agnostic "Perk Party" and for the wild, sloppy party at the Bosler (the "Lizard") Castle. Freddy "Mr Muscles" Wolfinger, for some unknown reason, claimed water rights to the East Bank of the Perk.

Sloppy is the only word descriptive enough to use in speaking of the party at Bosler's. It seems that some unknown person (witheld by the police), did a "sloppy" job on tapping the kee (excuse me, pouring the chocolate milk) and Mrs. Bosler's pots and pans never smelled so good. "Uncle Georgie" got his kieks later in the evening by informing the whole place that "the gentlemen in blue" had surrounded the place and that they had said that "they were coming in shooting unless we gave our selves up." At this news the party disbanded and after all were gone "Uncle Georgie" was saying "ha, ha, it's a big joke." Thanks George!

Two UC Coeds Participate In Negro Voter Registration Drive

Campaign Teaches Them Some Things About Real World

The stillness of deep night, the black horizon revealing like a festering sore the orange smoke of a near brush fire, a car full of students and freedom songs—this was a part of the 1966 Voter Registration Project in Columbia, South Carolina, Unknown to most people on campus, Nancy Grabert and I participated in this program during the recent spring vacation, motivated not so much by dedication to the freedom movement but rather by a desire to know something of a world beyond our small hometowns and to learn through involvement the facts of a very real situation today.

Under the sponsorship of the National Student YWCA and co-ordinated with standing local programs and committees of the NAACP and other civic organizations, the week long project in-volved primarily mass distribution and canvassing activities.

Offer Encouragement

A small core of project mem bers, hailing from Indiana University, Thiel College, and Ursinus, worked with local students and personnel to determine the degree of registration in various precincts and to encourage those not registered to vote to exer-cise this privilege. Columbia is record time of 4 driving hours to the bio, field trip. We plan to award the best water ice customer—Shelly Grove and Carol Pierce are leading contenders with five cones a day!
