Message from the President

AS THANKSGIVING APPROACHES Margaret and I want to extend to the University community our warmest regards and best wishes. We who are privileged to be associated with Governors State University have much for which to be grateful. Above all we give thanks for our motivated, richly talented and experienced student body. We are blessed too in our faculty, highly qualified women and men who are committed to nourishing the kind of academic environment in which teaching and learning flourish. On a grander scale we can all be grateful that our State and nation continue to demonstrate the confidence and determination required to address effectively the problems which confront us as a people.

To each and every GSU student a special note: may your Thanksgiving be rich in good food, good times and good fellowship and may you return to your studies rested in body and renewed in spirit.
