Enhancing Discoverability:

How to describe DigitalCommons content for harvest in cultural heritage institutions

Andrew Wesolek
Head of Digital Scholarship
Clemson University

Josh Morgan
Digital Projects Manager
Clemson University

Clemson at a Glance:

Land Grant institution for SC

Science and Engineering orientation

Enrollment of nearly 22,000:
        17,000 undergraduate
        5,000 graduate

Cooper Library at a glance:

~90 FTE

26 professional librarians

Traditionally focused on outreach and instruction

History of our Digital and Scholarly Communication Initiatives*:

Launched in 2007 with the hiring of a Head of Digital Initiatives and the selection of CONTENTdm as our DAM

Aggressive pursuit of grants to fund development of Digitization Lab

2010: Awarded $775,000 IMLS grant to develop the OPN

2010: Partnered with Internet Archive to outsource Digitization of both OPN and Clemson-held materials

2012: Awarded 150k grant from DPLA

*Institutional repository and associated publishing activities are housed, organizationally within Library Technology Unit, which also includes digital projects.

TIGER PRINTS

Part II:

August, 2013: Hired Head of Digital Scholarship

October, 2013: Launched bepress Digital Commons institutional repository: TigerPrints

Today:

      ~8,000 Items
      ~485,000 full-text downloads
       2 open access journals
       1 Conference
    ~4,000 ETDs

Pressure Point Reveals Opportunity

CONTENTdm cap set at 10,000 items

Shifting efforts towards digitization of more of Clemson's holdings

Perhaps the IR can relieve some of this strain?

Critical:

Can content deposited here

Be found here?
