About HIGHER Ground

The HIGHER Ground Women's Leadership Development Program at Virginia Commonwealth University provides opportunities for personal and professional growth through leadership development, education, mentoring and networking. The program seeks to provide women in higher education, faith and community organizations with the skills and tools necessary to enhance their personal and professional leadership. HIGHER Ground seeks to offer intellectual and experiential opportunities for women in order to aide them in successfully combating and overcoming obstacles that prevent advancement in the workplace.

The HIGHER Ground Women's Leadership Development Program is a dynamic five-month leadership development experience for current and emerging women leaders who exhibit the skills, potential and desire to lead organizations and themselves to a higher level. This training fosters collaboration across organizational settings, as well as among women from diverse racial, ethnic and religious backgrounds. We seek women from higher education, faith and community organizations who are ready to transform themselves and their organizations. This highly rated program received initial funding support from the Jessie Ball DuPont Fund.

About the Institute

The Grace E. Harris Leadership Institute was established in May 1999 by the Board of Visitors at Virginia Commonwealth University in honor of 32 years of service to the university by Grace E. Harris, Ph.D. While at VCU, Harris served as a faculty member, dean, vice provost, provost and vice president for academic affairs, and acting president. She was the highest-ranking woman and highest-ranking African-American in VCU's history. She currently serves as a distinguished professor at VCU.

The institute develops and implements programs based on principles of collaboration and partnership. Other unique features include its strong theoretical grounding in the concept of transformational leadership, its commitment to long-term relationships with clients and participants and its focus on leadership in academic and community settings. The institute also conducts research and disseminates knowledge on the best practices in leadership.

➤AFTERNOON PLEANARY SESSION OVERVIEW➤

Session A- Managing Your Virtual Reputation: Facebook, Linked In, and Other Online Tools, lol
Location— Salon V

Women have the natural instincts to communicate, collaborate, and network. These qualities are coupled with the comfort of having support and making connections in both our personal and professional lives. Because of these reasons, women are better positioned to take advantage of the many uses of social media. By effectively building a presence on Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, and LinkedIn, users can share ideas, build networks, and market themselves to millions of potential clients. Come find out how to tailor your virtual presence to fit your professional goals.

Session B- At the Intersection: Gender and Sexual Identity at Work
Location— Madison, Jefferson

In today's job marketplace, where the glass ceiling is giving way to the glass cliff, women learn to negotiate a labyrinth where more opportunities also bring more challenges and risks. But the maze is even more complicated for lesbian, bisexual, or transgender women whose sexual orientation or gender identity may represent a complicating factor in their career paths. How does the intersection of gender and sexual identity play out in today's workplace? What are the advantages and pitfalls of being "out"--and is it safe yet for any woman to step away from sexual norms? Join our panelists for a discussion about the complex interaction of these issues and their implications for working women

Session C- Crossing the Border: Stories of Strength and Survival
Location— Salon VI, VII

Armed with the dream of building a better life for themselves and their families, women cross the border into the United States every day. But starting over in a new place is a great risk--with new opportunities also comes uncertainty and even danger. In unfamiliar territory, how do you navigate the challenges of finding work? How do you know whom to trust? In this session, immigrant women share their personal stories of courage, perseverance, and determination to be successful and create a home in their new homeland.

Session D- The Popcorn Forum: Transforming the Gender Dialogue
Location— Dominion, Commonwealth

Just because they say the glass ceiling is shattered doesn't make it true! In our politically correct society, we often avoid sensitive subjects because we don't want to offend anyone or seem insensitive. These days, we are so afraid to say the wrong thing that we end up saying nothing. If someone brings up race, sexism, or religion in "polite company," they are often greeted with hushed tones and awkward glances. Instead, we save these conversations for our closest friends and associates —likeminded individuals who are more likely to reinforce our opinions than challenge them. Join us for an afternoon workshop based on work by The Conciliation Project's TCP in 3-D. Come see what happens when we use theater arts to "pop out" of our comfort zones and cross over into significant exchanges designed to inform, inspire and include everyone in open and honest dialogue to promote meaningful change.
