IN MEMORIAM

Gilbert W. Hagerty, 1908-1984

Gilbert W. Hagerty, member of the CNEHA executive board from 1970 through 1978, passed away on September 19, 1984, at Glens Falls, New York. Born in Bellwood, Pennsylvania, he graduated in 1931 from Ithaca College and completed graduate courses at Syracuse University and St. Lawrence University. He served as first director of the Fort Stanwix Museum from 1959 to 1965, and from 1965 until 1971 was Director of School Services for Old Sturbridge Village. Hagerty was one of the original participants in the "Annual Symposium on Historic Site Archeology," delivering a paper on "Stem Bore Sequence of the Kaolin Pipe" at the April 1967 meeting. At the third Annual Symposium in April 1968, he copresided over a "panel discussion on the kind of organization we need to develop to best serve Archeologists and related fields." The result, April 4, 1970, was the establishment of the Council for Northeast Historical Archaeology, of which he was appointed an original member of the executive board. Hagerty published numerous articles, both popular and scholarly, in the CNEHA journal as well as in other journals and magazines. He was a Fellow of both the New York State Archeological Association and the Company of Military Historians. He was a faithful member of CNEHA, serving on the Publication Committee until 1977. Always eager to share new information, teach, encourage further research and contribute knowledge, Gil leaves with us his influence through CNEHA and the memory of his dedication to the field of archaeology.

Iain Walker, 1938-1984

Iain Walker was born in Edinburgh, Scotland on January 13, 1938. He studied prehistoric archaeology and received his M.A. from the University of Edinburgh in 1961. The following year he moved to Canada. His first archaeological work in Canada was at the Fortress of Louisbourg in Nova Scotia. From 1967 until 1983 Walker held several positions with Parks Canada and the National Museum of Man. While at the museum, he was influential in starting a program in Historical Archaeology. He was an early supporter of the Society for Historical Archaeology and an active member in the Council for Northeast Historical Archaeology. In October of 1970 Walker was the Keynote Speaker at the Council meeting in Ringwood, New Jersey. From 1972 to 1978 he served on the Executive Board. During this time he held important positions on several subcommittees. It was through his foresight that Canada became part of the Council, and it was through his insistence that the Council began looking at a wide range of material culture. He was also a major contributor to Northeast Historical Archaeology. During a period of twenty years he published over eighty articles. His major work, "Clay Tobacco Pipes with Particular Reference to the Bristol Industry," was part of his doctoral dissertation. While most of his articles are about tobacco pipes, he also published on bottles, ceramics and prehistory. He was elected a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries in Scotland in 1961 and a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries in London in 1980.
