Engineering Experiment Station Titles	504
State Cooperative Extension Publications	507
Newspaper Titles	512

How to Use This List

Organization of the List

The list is divided into five sections. The largest section includes periodical titles, many annual publications, continuing series and government documents in the library's collection, as well as periodical titles held in several departmental libraries.

The second section lists Agricultural Experiment Station series published by SDSU and other Experiment stations throughout the United States. All of these publications are shelved on the lower level.

The third section includes Engineering Experiment Station series published at SDSU and other Engineering Experiment Stations. These are also shelved on the lower level.

The fourth section lists State Cooperative Extension publications that are collected and retained by the library. Currently, the library retains Cooperative Extension series from twenty-six states and South Dakota. They are all shelved on the lower level.

The last section of the list includes all of the newspapers that the library receives and retains. Both paper and microfilm format are listed, as well as any newspaper indexes the library may have.

All sections include titles currently received and those titles that have been discontinued but are still retained in the collection. Each section is in alphabetical order. Word-by-word alphabetizing is used for each entry. Titles whose initial elements are capital letters are written as initials and they file at the beginning of each letter in the alphabetic sequence. For example CALICO Journal files at the beginning of the C's, not between Calcutta Review and California Fish and Game. Note also that a mark of punctuation is considered to be a letter. Therefore, an entry such as South Dakota State University University Bulletin will file before South Dakota Animal Disease Research.

Serial titles are listed in two ways. A title may be listed under the name of its sponsoring organization. For example, Journal of the American Medical Association is listed as American Medical Association Journal. A title may also be listed under its actual title, e.g. Journal of the American Society for Information Science. It is wise to check both the title and the sponsoring organization in the Serials List. Often as cross-reference from one entry to the other is provided to aid you in locating the entry needed.

Sample Entry

650 5 JOURNAL OF BUSINESS
J81 V 1-33(MC)34(P)+ 1928+
 SEARCHBANK-BUSINESS ASAP APRIL 1991+

- The library has this journal from volume 1(1928) and continues to receive it
- Volumes 1 to 33 are on microcard (MC)
- Volumes 34 to the present (+) are in paper format (P)
- April 1991 to the present (+) are also available via the WWW on SEARCHBANK
- The call number for the copy housed in the library is 650 5 J81 This journal has a Dewey Decimal call number and is shelved on the Main and Lower Levels

Locating Serials

The call number, which is in the left column of each entry is the key to locating the serial you want within the library If the call number begins with a number, e g , 612 05 In85, then it is a Dewey Decimal call number and will be located on the Main Level (current issues) and Lower Level (back years)

If the call number begins with a letter, but contains both letter and numbers e g TG315 I55B then it is a Library of Congress call number and will be located on the Upper Level

The call number may also begin with a word or an abbreviation of a word, e g , DOC A 1 36 If it does consult the Abbreviations List below for location of the serial
