Dear Hewi:

I have waited and waited, in vain, for the familiar hand writing which did not appear on the much hoped for letter. My first thought was, what have I done? I could think of nothing this time, strangely enough. I only entreat you, dearest, sometimes faithless, always faithful, friend; if you forsake me for a day, a week, a year — always remember how happy I am to look forward to the seemingly inevitable reunion.

I had at last, two or three weeks ago, the pleasure of hearing your record, at a friend's house. Everyone was impressed with the beauty of your tone, and it seemed to me larger and lozier than it was years ago when I knew you.

Of course, the Pichergo Tarentelle dazzled us all, as it always did.
It is a strange experience hearing a record of someone playing whom one has not seen or heard for years. Rather like hearing the old, familiar voice again.

It was a great pleasure for us, and at the same time it made me a bit sad. You were there, and yet you weren't, really.

Stokowski accepted me for the Philadelphia Orchestra, so now I bring up the rear, so to speak, on the last stand of the second fiddler. I am in Baltimore for the concert to-night.

I have heard from several sources, none too reliable, that Hersch is coming to "the Jubilee" next year. Is that true? Now, you see, you will be forced to write to me, to answer my question.

Since I still hope to hear from you, I shall give you my new address which is, briefly, and simply: Paoli, Pennsylvania.

As ever,

your adoring friend,

Lois
