Dear Henri:

The other night when we were talking, I mentioned to you that I just could not send you a perfunctory form letter thanking you for your contribution to the Allegro Ball. I also feel a little embarrassed writing formally about this, because we are so tremendously indebted to you for so much that it is redundant and inadequate to express appreciation. However, there is one matter which Blanche has told me about that I cannot refrain from writing about to you. It was your contribution of your educational television fee to the Society. Considering that we cannot and do not exist without you, it is most heartwarming and impressive to know that you have made this additional important contribution.

At this point, I do not know whether the rest of the Board is aware of what you have done, so I can only speak for myself when I give you my thanks but undoubtedly the rest of the Board members will feel as indebted to you as I do when they learn of this.

Cordially,

Robert J. Stoller, M.D.
