Cleveland Works: Employment Trends, 2014 to 2015 by Richey Piiparinen and Jim Russell

Document Type: Report

Abstract

The 2000s were unkind to Greater Cleveland. The recessions of 2001 and 2007–2009 were periods of economic restructuring that came with job losses. Nearly 90% of the losses were due to reductions in manufacturing employment. Preliminary data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, though, point to a recovery of sorts. Specifically, Greater Cleveland saw a gain of 23.3 thousand jobs in 2015— the largest year-over-year increase since 1997.

Hi Dr. Ryberg-Webster,

Sharon has asked me to update your profile. I have added publications from Engaged Scholarship and from efaars/Faculty180.

FYI- Your SW page is: http://works.bepress.com/stephanie_rybergwebster/

This SW profile lists your research work as seen in CSU's Engaged Scholarship site. It also contains bio information from your CSU faculty profile.

Please let me know if you have edits or additions so I can update your profile (if needed). If you prefer to personally edit your SW profile you can do so by logging in at <https://works.bepress.com/>. If you have not used SW before or don't remember your password you can obtain a password at: http://works.bepress.com/password_reset/.

Please continue to send Sharon your citations for any new publications so she can add them to the College's Engaged Scholarship page. Also once per semester she runs a report in efaars/Faculty180 for any additional publications and adds all new records to both Engaged Scholarship and Selected Works.

She also adds publications if they are listed in News of the Week.

Feel free to contact anyone on the Levin College's Engaged Scholarship team if you have any questions.

Thanks,
Abhay / Helly and the Levin College Engaged Scholarship Committee
