DICATION

*W*HILE snapping and mounting pictures, planning pages, and doing write-ups, we think of those who have worked in previous years. Resulting from their efforts through days of unflagging diligence is the frame upon which we build. In appreciation of past endeavor, this 1938 edition of THE VIRGINIAN is dedicated to the past editors.

PRE

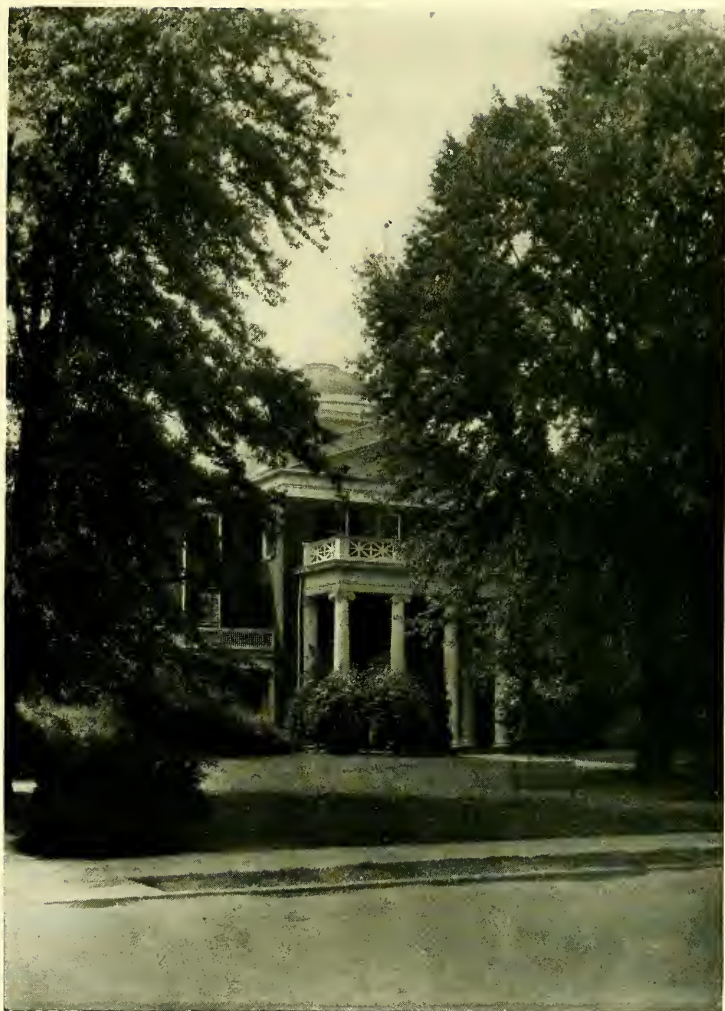

TEACHING, Study and Meditation, Rest, and Recreation—In the heart of our student life are these four elements which symbolize the varied activities of our school and embody the ideals for which Farmville stands. These elements, apart in functional meaning, yet a whole in that they provide a binding influence, give to us a basis for a broader and fuller life.

Our efforts here are an attempt to convey something of the essence of this life. It is with the sincere hope that this book will be to you a lasting symbol of the finer things that go to make up the true spirit which is ours, that the staff of 1938 presents this VIRGINIAN—your own record of another year of achievement.

*F*OREMOST among the elements which throughout our college life broaden and enrich our lives is the influence of our faculty. Through undeviating efforts and constant patience they have given us a basic knowledge and have instilled in us an appreciation of the highest in education, that we may ourselves in future years be a living tribute to their efforts.

TEACHING

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS - - FACULTY

Dr. J. L. Jarman

President of our college for thirty-six years, Dr. Jarman, the embodiment of the gallantry and hospitality of the old South, is not only our president but a force in the character of every individual with whom he comes in contact. Possessing a remarkable quality of remembering names and faces, he is a friend to all and loved sincerely by everyone. He is such an integral part of our institution that the word Farmville suggests to our hearts the red rose in his lapel, his kind eyes, and his all-inspiring motto of "keep on hoping."

Miss Mary White Cox

With the utmost tact and poise, Miss Mary presides at the head of the home department. Patient and understanding in her relations with the student body, she holds dear the standards and welfare of Alma Mater, and devotes unceasing effort to its cause. Her deep appreciation for honest effort makes pleasing her a pleasure; her sympathy for our problems and her charming manner have won our admiration and devotion.

FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION

Martha W. Coulling, L. L., Professor of Fine and Applied Arts, beloved senior member of Farmville faculty, has retained during a half-century of service, the refreshing enthusiasm of youth.

Samuel L. Grabam, Business Manager, never too busy to help in any situation, always smiling, effectively carries out his work.

Virginia Bedford, B. S., M. A., Assistant Professor of Fine and Applied Arts, makes herself a successful art teacher by giving her unique personality to her work.

Georgie Norris, B. S., M. A., Supervisor, Fourth Grade Campus Training School, combines ability with an inherent South Carolinian charm and dignity.

Acknowledged as an outstanding authority on sociology, especially on racial problems, Florence Stubbs, B. S., M. A., Associate Professor of History and Social Sciences, is a notable person and teacher.

An acclaimed authority on modern principles of education, John P. Wynne, B. A., M. A., Ph. D., Professor of Education, Director of Teacher-Training, has won great fame through his book—The Teacher and the Curriculum.

With a love and understanding of history, Sarah B. Tucker, B. A., M. A., Associate Professor of History and Social Science, made a vivid impression on her many students.

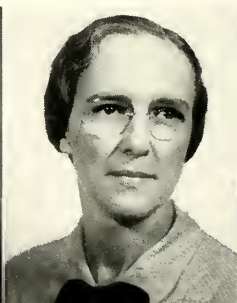

Minnie V. Rice, Professor of Latin, has in her years of service here kept alive a vital spirit that has endeared her to many girls.

Briskly and thoroughly Susan W. Field, M. D., Resident Physician, has gone about her duties of graduating healthy teachers.

Carrie B. Taliaferro, B. S., M. A., Professor of Mathematics, renders invaluable service to the school in contacting alumnae with their alma mater as well as in training teachers of mathematics.

Frances Waters, B. S., M. A., Assistant Professor of Geography, exhibits a keen interest in every individual in her classes and has given a valuable service to the Social Science department.

Noted for his broad, unbiased opinions and a friendly cooperative spirit, J. E. Walmsley, A. M., Ph. D., Professor of History and Social Science, heads an outstanding department.

*Estelle Smithey, B. A., Professor of Modern Languages, imparted to her students a clearer and broader outlook on living and was never without the cheery "Bonjour, mademoiselle," so characteristic of her life.

G. W. Jeffers, B. S., M. A., Professor of Biology, makes every class keenly interesting by his quick wit, sense of humor, and understanding personality.

Georgiana E. Stephenson, B. S., M. A., Supervisor, Worsham Rural Training School, gives unsparingly of time and effort to every phase of the teacher-training work.

Grace E. Mix, B. S., M. A., Assistant Principal Campus Training School, finds the utmost enjoyment in her companionship with little children, her sympathetic understanding of child life winning the love of all.

Winnie V. Hiner, Treasurer, combines her capable management of funds with a lively interest in college activities.

Mrs. Annie F. Shelton, Dietitian, has a fondness for doing nice things to make folks happy, and for answering our wishes.

Leon E. Bell, B. A., M. A., Associate Professor of Education, a scholar of the old type, has, since his arrival in Farmville, made his chief hobby Greek philosophy.

Grace B. Moran, B. S., M. A., Associate Professor of Geography, is wide awake to all life, from international problems to the minutiae of nature.

Katherine Tupper, B. S., M. A., Professor of Home Economics, is characterized by her immaculateness and style. Her charming manner of getting things done thoroughly and well has given impetus to the rising success of Farmville's Home Ec. Department.

Mary Nichols, B. S., M. S., Assistant Professor of English, with a twinkle of humor and a dash of spontaneity, finds time to add much to the Alumnae Association as its president.

J. M. Grainger, B. A., M. A., Professor of English, has a true appreciation for literature and fine arts and is invaluable as a faculty adviser of the Farmville Quarterly Review.

Mary Clay Hiner, B. S., M. A., Professor of English, is known for the shining sweetness of her character and has contributed endless good to the college during her loyal service here.

Sybil Henry, B. A., M. A., Supervisor, Second Grade, Campus Training School, with her open frankness and practical manner, helps student teachers to get at the vital quirks and problems of teaching.

*Died March 1, 1938.

Mary E. Peck, B. S., M. S., Associate Professor of History and Social Sciences, using up-to-date methods, gives students a background of past history on which to base their judgment of present-day events.

M. Boyd Coyner, B. A., M. A., Professor of Education, besides teaching classroom psychology, finds time to be an excellent Junior class adviser.

Loved by little children and popular with all students, Alice E. Carter, B. S., M. A., Supervisor of Grammar Grades, Campus Training School, has gained friendships by her amiable personality.

With an extensive knowledge of sciences, Edith Stevens, M. A., Ph. D., Associate Professor of Biology, teaches her classes in such an interesting way that she gains the whole-hearted attention of her students.

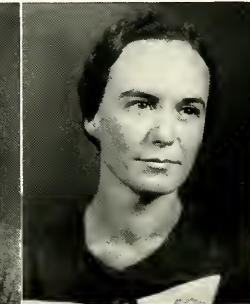

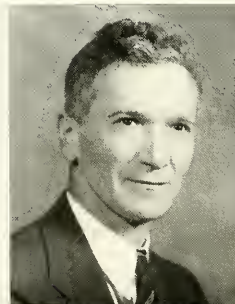

With an artistic temperament and sweetness of character, Lucie Jennings, B. S., M. S., Associate Professor of English, gives time and talent to her classes and to the Farmville Quarterly Review.

Products of the keen mind of Francis B. Simkins, B. A., M. A., Ph. D., Associate Professor of History and Social Sciences, are "South Carolina during Reconstruction," "The Tillman Movement in South Carolina," and "The Women of the Confederacy."

Bessie H. Jeter, B. S., M. A., Associate Professor of Home Economics, gives to students an excellent practical background on which to base their studies here, their teaching of the subject, or further research in dietetics.

Willie R. McKee, R. N., Resident Nurse, always in spotless white, efficiently attends to her duties with a brisk and stimulating manner.

Tirelessly, Maud K. Taliaferro, Postmistress, has served this school many years and has taken a definite and personal interest in every one of us.

Otie Craddock, B. A., Assistant Professor of Fine and Applied Arts, is responsible for the expansion of Farmville's commercial department and gives thorough instruction in the art of penmanship.

Adviser of THE VIRGINIAN, manager of college activities from making schedules to making commencement lines, T. A. McCorkle, B. A., M. S., Professor of Chemistry and Physics, never seems too hurried to help anyone or to be an expert science teacher.

An authority on student teaching, Bessie Gordon Jones, B. S., M. A., Supervisor, Rice Rural Training School, has the wonderful quality of inspiring a student to do her best work.

Our newest faculty member, Elizabeth Hutt, B. S., M. A., Assistant Professor of Modern Languages, has already made for herself a place in our college.

Records of students, new and old, in her care, Virginia I. Bugg, Registrar, with a pleasing, but methodical way of going about her many duties, has become an integral part of the college.

Alfred H. Strick, Professor of Music, combining a vast knowledge of his art with an unusual ability in training others, has brought the College Choir and Choral Club to their present heights of success.

Possessing a wealth of knowledge as well as an understanding of her pupils, Stella B. Taylor, B. A., M. A., Assistant Professor of English, is a beloved and respected member of the faculty.

An unexcelled knowledge of child training and a sympathetic manner befitting her position has brought unequalled success as Supervisor of First Grade, Campus Training School, to Mary B. Haynes, B. S., M. A.

Hers is a spirit fired with vitality—giving much of time and energy as coach and adviser of the Dramatic Club, Leola Wheeler, B. A., M. A., Professor of Reading and Dramatics, has brought this organization into state-wide prominence.

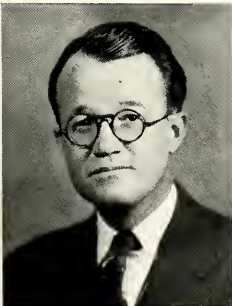

A familiar frequenter of the campus, Samuel M. Holton, B. A., M. A., Associate Professor of Education, has become a friend of many students, who are constantly amused by his "rapid-fire" sense of humor.

Undeviating loyalty and service characterizes Lila London, B. S., M. A., Professor of Mathematics.

A wealth of wisdom colored by a bright tone of friendliness has brought Wilhelmina London, B. S., M. A., popularity as Associate Professor of English.

Beloved by students old and new is Raymond Holliday French, B. S., M. S., Assistant Professor of Chemistry and Physics—friend of every student, classman preeminent!

Unexcelled patience and understanding of her pupils have won respect and admiration from members of the student body for Assistant Professor of English Nancy Foster, B. A., M. A.

A warm smile for everyone characterizes the charming cordiality of Lisabeth Purdom, B. Mus., Assistant Professor of Music.

A brisk efficiency together with a sincerity of purpose and depth of understanding gives to Carolyn Cogbill, B. S., M. A., Principal of Campus Training School, those qualities indispensable to a true leader in education.

Mary Barlow, B. S., M. A., Professor of Physical and Health Education, has, by years of unselfish and loyal service, given to the college an invaluable contribution in her improvements of the Physical Education Department.

*V*ITALLY important in the completion of a well-rounded college life are those times which are devoted to study and meditation. In this way we have sought after knowledge and true wisdom and have found opportunities for self-expression and development of initiative. Through our studies has been presented the opportunity of contacts with the faculty which have resulted in preparing us adequately for future work.

CLASS HISTORY

"CHALLENGE, Compete and Conquer!" was chosen enthusiastically as the motto of the class of 1938 at one of the first class meetings in the fall of 1934. The class of 1938, which became the largest senior class in the history of the school, elected in its freshman year Miss Jane Royall classman, Ann Peple president and proceeded vehemently with activities, always conscious of the sympathy of its sister class under the leadership of Tac Waters.

In the fall the circus was always the first really important event. As a freshman, Isabel Plummer ran for queen of the event, but on the gala day Evelyn Knaub, then a senior, was revealed as the wearer of that cherished crown. As clowns, the members of the class of '38 failed to impress the judges in 1934, but for the next three years they won first prize. As sophomores, the songbirds of the class blacked up and sang darkey songs before a typical background. As juniors, the same songbirds, in white evening dresses and under the direction of Virginia Agee, formed a background of music for models of clothing and behavior typical of various historical periods. Gay Steiffen and Betty Butterworth characteristically got rhythm-mad in both the junior and senior stunts. As seniors, the class presented a series of dance events—leading up to the grand climax—the Big Apple!

Lib Harris was "joint queen" of the circus with Johnnie Lybrook in her junior year, and Gay Steiffen, as a witch on Halloween night, was queen of the 1937 circus—in spite of her being director of the seniors' prize-winning stunt.

Jane Royall was presented as classman to the student body first by Ann Peple as the "Royal queen of the freshman hearts," second by Madeline McGlothlin, who remained president of the class from her sophomore year on, as the one about whom the hall clock constantly ticks in praise, third as captain of the class dressed as hockey players, and finally as the loyal friend of a dignified senior class, garbed in cap and gown.

Fall Cotillions, Hampden-Sydney dances, Thanksgiving holidays, exams, and Christmas holidays made the fall quarters fly by rapidly each year. May Day elections in December early found Jennie Belle Gilliam, Madeline McGlothlin, Isabel Plummer, Susan Lane, Ruth Montgomery, Virginia Doughty, Frances Maxey, Lib Harris, Carter Belle Munt, Mary Harvey, Eugenia Jolly, Gay Steiffen, Kathleen McCann, and Nan Seward among the fairer members of the class. Isabel Plummer was May Queen of 1938 with Jennie Belle Gilliam as her maid of honor.

Each year some of the same fair ladies composed the court at Mardi Gras. For two years Susan Lane reigned as the queen of that Pre-Lental fiesta, and for four years members of the Class wore all manner of dress and mixed with the noisy, colorful mob in the gym. Norvell Montague was in charge of that occasion as a senior.

In sports, the class sometimes excelled and sometimes fought nobly and lost. Since Thanksgiving holidays were given for the first time in years, the first year the class was in school, as freshmen, the members saw no traditional color rush. In 1935, Red and White won the color rush, and the sophomores the hockey title in one of the most exciting days in the class's history.

Betty Butterworth and Inez Chappell led the class basketball and baseball teams, respectively, to victory their freshman years. Evelyn Mann was not as successful with her courageous volley ball team. Edna Bolick captained the sophomore basketball team, and Ruth Phelps won the archery title her freshman year. Betty Butterworth won the tennis title two years but lost it in the spring of 1937 to her twin, Army, after a furiously fought tie. As seniors, the basketball team was defeated by its sister class, the freshmen.

The names of Miriam Marmein, Charles Weidman, and Doris Humphreys, dancers, stand out prominently as performers in lyceums. Richard Keane, actor, the Siberian Singers, and Kyril's Symphony Band also were enthusiastically accepted as guest artists.

Beorc Eh Thorn, English honor society, founded in 1935, brought such celebrities as John Erskine, Richard Halliburton, Nancy Byrd Turner, and Lawrence Lee to this campus.

Many members of the class were charter members of this society, and Carter Belle Munt was installed as president in May, 1937.

Founders' Day, 1935, stands out mainly as the time when the "Messiah" was presented, and then the class was first introduced to the wild excitement that the return of old girls always brought. In 1936, Farmville S. T. C. trounced Harrisonburg S. T. C. on the Friday before Founders' Day in a never-to-be-forgotten game. White dresses, lengthy banquets, unfamiliar faces, and Founders' Day were synonymous. Nora Jones was in charge of the 1938 Founders' Day program.

Maypole of Mery Mount, old Egypt reincarnated, Hansel and Gretel, and Merrie Englande were themes of May Days with group parts danced by such members of the class as Mary Joyner Cox, Susie Clark, Ruth Emma Chambers, Lib Harris; Bruce Crowell, as a senior, headed the May Day committee.

"57 Varieties" opened the class productions with a series of fashion hints and advertisement charades, and "Syncopatin' Sailin'" the following year made the class conscious of such talented members as Virginia Lane, Liz Carroll, Will Scott, Betty Butterworth, and Virginia Agee. A minstrel with end-men resplendent in gay-colored tails was the theme of the Junior production, and the Senior dance in November, 1937, was widely acclaimed as a success—financially and socially.

Jo Quinn, as a freshman, won a coveted part in "A Bird in the Hand," and Madeline McGlothlin was one of the characters noticed most in "A Kiss for Cinderella." Virginia Agee, however, soon proved herself the most talented actress in the class. Her most notable part was that of Mary in "Mary of Scotland," opposite a detestable Queen Elizabeth, played ably by Liz Carroll.

In forensic activities, Dudley Allen and Juanita Callis were stars. As head of the Chapel committee, Kathleen McCann made cutting Chapel an accomplishment. Shannon's remained the main hang-out of the class during the four years of its stay in Farmville.

In the last Chapel of the year Madeline McGlothlin officially bid Farmville State Teachers College farewell for the class. With scarcely a dry eye, members of the class held their academic caps for the juniors to walk under as they gave to the class of 1939 the "Alma Mater."

Commencement came with banquets, the daisy chain, the reception, class day, and finally the awarding of degrees by Dr. Jarman. Releasing hands as class songs were completed on the campus after the final exercises, the class that had lived through four full years as a whole separated into individuals.

Following a long list of triumphs, Farmville's outstanding thespian, versatile, hard-working VIRGINIA AGEE climaxed a long and brilliant dramatic career with a masterful performance in the title role of Maxwell Anderson's historic "Mary Queen of Scots." . . . If the much debated closed study hour ultimately proves a success, orchids to strong-willed, competent DUDLEY ALLEN who has been the moving force behind its adoption. . . . 22,440 miles of shuttling back and forth between Prospect and Farmville in search of knowledge have failed to dim the resolute spirit or to change the high scholarship of capable CAROLINE ALSOP. . . . A transfer from Arlington Hall, suavely attired MARY AMES modestly becoming an integral part of her adopted class, won scores of friends with a gracious and vibrant personality. . . . Proving to be an inexhaustible source of news and campus comments BONNALYNN AVERY has made her name synonymous with good fellowship. . . . Coming to Farmville to her sophomore year—a transfer from Virginia Intermont—LETITIA BAGWELL, a day student, has won a place among many friends.

With the same sportsmanlike determination to win that she shows on the hockey field, KATHLEEN BAILEY tackled her school problems and always came through with spectacular gains. . . . Considerate and understanding, MARGARET BAILEY gives advice like a philosopher and is loved for her sincerity and loyalty. . . . Conquering books and winning friends with the same ease, MARTHA BAILEY has made for herself in two years a vital place in the Student Body. . . . Musically inclined MARY RIVES BLACK gave her talents to the College Orchestra adding to its success. . . . EDNA BOLICK'S calm spirit of strength and determination brought victories on the Hockey Field as well as A's in Home Ec. . . . Scholarly MARGARET BRYDON, enriching her life through study, took an active part in school life.

Tall, brown-eyed ETHEL BURGESS' knowledge of Chemistry and her ability as a chemist in the lab are unsurpassed. . . . Although contributing her abundant store of grace and beauty to many school activities, ELIZABETH BUTLER graduated in three and one-half years with honor roll grades. . . . Cherished comedienne of S. T. C., BETTY BUTTERWORTH leaves memory of four years of "sings," circuses, class productions, and her catchy humor as impersonator, songster, and dancer. . . . Reserved HELEN CALLIHAN, with true sincerity of purpose, has followed an undeviating path of earnestness in her work and loyalty to her friends. . . . Equally as assertive in her own convictions as in her famed debating, ingenious JUANITA CALLIS captures the admiration of many with her unexcelled ability and candor. . . . The strength of dependability and the will to work, essential for all successful class productions, were always found in KATHRYN CARLTON.

Fearing no one, LIZ CARROLL religiously tore private lives to shreds before the eyes of the Student Body in her daring weekly column in The Rotunda. Her name graced the only "dirt" column of which The Rotunda has ever been proud. . . . Prompted by a desire for further learning and possessing a philanthropic spirit, KATYE CARTER made for herself a foremost place in the hearts of the faculty and her fellow students as well. . . . With swift, sure progress RUTH EMMA CHAMBERS worked her way to the front in the class, taking only two years to prove herself as reliable a worker in class and studies as she is a valued and trusted friend. . . . Helpful service and a love of good books assure DELHA POPE CHAMBLISS' success as a librarian; the quiet reality of her good nature assures her success as a person. . . . With the staunch spirit of a genuine sportswoman, INEZ CHAPPELL has brought many honors to her class from the fields of sport. . . . MARY WILLSON CLARK'S lacquered neatness typifies her character. Original ideas and a quick knack of expressing them won her distinction in the Dramatic Club.

B. S.

Few May Days or dance recitals would be complete without SUSIE CLARK, whose poise and grace added much to the success of dance programs. . . . Keenly interested in literary work, FRANCES COLLIE has proved herself invaluable as an able secretary of the English honor society and as a worker on the Magazine Staff. . . . Under MARY JOYNER COX'S term as president, the Dramatic Club moved smoothly to unusual heights of success. . . . MARGARET CRENSHAW contradicts the tradition that a red head is an index to a hot temper. With her, impulse gives way to reason and quarrels melt away. . . . Nothing but ultimate success can result from May Day with the charming executive ability of BRUCE CROWELL, its chairman. . . . When GEORGIE CUSTIS speaks, the thoughts that lie behind the flash of her black eyes, her real depth realized only by closest friends, are a charming surprise to listeners.

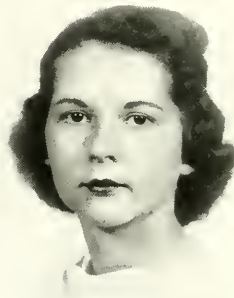

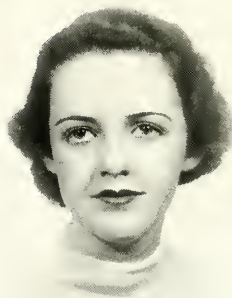

Like a flame from the tropics, MILDRED (DUCKY) DAVIES, with her sun tan, crisp black curls, and red mouth, spreads the warm glow of her personality wherever she goes. . . . West Hampton's loss is our gain, for JACQUELINE DAVIS has proved invaluable with her quiet and unassuming helpfulness. . . . Big, brown, wistful eyes, a petite stature, and a big accent of intelligence that scores the dean's list belong to ERNA DICKERSON. . . . "Tillie the Toiler" profile and infectious laughter proclaim ELEANOR DODSON a happy soul whose curly head continually produces mischief, belying her willing helpfulness in time of work. . . . Sweetheart of Pi KA, VIRGINIA DOUGHTY, with her blond fragility and dainty loveliness, is like a tea rose, and is known for her sweet disposition. . . . Noted on the basketball court for speed, drive, and action, SUE EASTHAM displays remarkable versatility in an equal ability to play bridge or simply to play.

Quiet-eyed, tenuous ANNE ELLIS is the owner of a manner that corresponds with the immaculateness of her appearance. . . . After days of foolish, happy nonsense mixed with reading magazines and a comfortable amount of work RICHIE ELLIS and Blanche blend their voices to make harmony in the night. . . . Poised dignity and reserve characterize impeccably groomed KATHERINE GALUSHA, whose name spells excellence in scholastic honors. . . . Latin is no dead language to MILDRED GIBBONEY, but a vital interest on which she enjoys exerting her alert mind. . . . Star of the court, ELLEN GILLIAM, varsity's captain of basketball, backed her team with the spirit that led them to state championship. . . . JENNIE BELLE GILLIAM'S unusual personal charm and undenied executive ability have made her a part of every production requiring beauty and the executor of any jobs requiring real judgment.

ANNE GRAHAM, unselfish and utilitarian, delights in helping friends through difficult or troublesome situations and loves music even better than chocolate sauce. . . . A look into MARTHA GRAINGER'S calm eyes imparts to us the understanding and kindness that are hers and leaves us just a little better for having looked. . . . Presto! ROSALIE GREEAR changes impromptu from a serious, grave person to the very imp of mischief. . . . In just the right clothes and with just the right manner, ELSIE GREENE, with her cool, blond loveliness, is good for the eyes, and her work is accomplished with a replica of the same rightness. . . . Determination, sincerity, and untold patience stand out in the quiet personality of NANCY GREGORY, who says nothing that she does not mean. . . . Outstanding in MILDRED HABEL'S friendly personality is her deep appreciation and her habit of seeing beauty in everything.

Knowing all the answers in every class, ERVIN MAY HAMILTON steals a march on those who imagine her a bookworm. She likes fun and plenty of it. . . . Even being a math major didn't interfere with dean lists for EDITH HAMMACK, whose contagious laughter makes everything seem easy. . . . Akin to the blue of gentians is MARY ANNESS HARPER'S sheer sincerity—the index to her attractiveness. . . . MARY ELIZABETH HARRIS'S face as fair as pink and white blossoms and her eyes the color of sunny earth are a counterpart of her warm, loving disposition that never speaks of another's faults. . . . Beneath a seemingly nonchalant air of MARY HARVEY there lies as much fire of personality as is displayed in her lovely red hair. . . . When others are flustered, EVLYN HASTINGS remains calm and collected. We wonder how she has managed utter serenity and composure through four years of college life.

The fair quaintness and shy smiles of ANNA BELLE HILL makes us long for a sun-bonnet and a full, flowered skirt to complete the picture. . . . Quaint, fluffly looking ANNIE WATSON HOLDEN, aptly domestic, is a surprising personality, undaunted in asserting her opinion, and lending zest to her cause with a bit of spit-fire and wit. . . . Norwegian in appearance and a doctor at heart, ANNA (MUSSE) HOYER knows just the remedy for any hurt, and administers first-aid with that old teasing light that we love in her eyes. . . . Cutting the ice of gloom and boredom, and extracting laughter from the most sober soul, witty MARY HUBARD, never at a loss for words, makes life hum with clever "comebacks." . . . Practice makes perfect. At least, such was the theory that keen-minded ROSE-MARIE HUNTER displayed in becoming S. T. C.'s bridge expert. . . . Dullness surrenders before DORIS ISBELL'S bright manner as she charges upon the "blues" with a regiment of high spirits and good humor.

Lively and vivacious but with a surprising yen for study that brings the A's her way, KATHRYN JAMISON climaxed all her fun with a glorious trip to Nashville as delegate of the I. R. C. convention. . . . Pretty PATTIE JEFFREYS in a winsome way captures both A's in grades and a long line of ardent admirers. . . . Slender JACQUELINE JOHNSON'S laughing brown eyes stamp on our memory the carefree humor and graciousness of an unaffected manner and a cheerful look-out for all the joy to be had from living. . . . Queenly bearing, eyes sparkling with friendliness, clothes that are the essence of style and charm make us speak of "Vogue" and EUGENIA JOLLY, suave sophisticate, in the same breath. . . . Debating her way to victory, small bright-eyed NORA JONES, in her attractive way, makes friends even of her opponents. . . . Quietly and with the spirit of a soldier, IVYLYN JORDAN meets life with admirable courage and determination, tackling her work with a zest that will take her far.

When FRANCES KENT, Home Ec major is not cooking or sewing, she finds diversion in her chief hobby—reading. As to disposition, “Kent” never loses her temper, not even when the biscuits burn. . . . With a flare for wearing exotic clothes well and making an attractive appearance, SUSAN LANE won admirers to the extent of being chosen Mardi Gras Queen twice in succession. . . . The progress and interest of Pi Gamma Mu and other social science projects are greatly enhanced by NELLWYN LATIMER’S methodical reasoning. . . . If VIRGINIA LAYNE, town girl and publicity chairman of the College Choir, is as much of a joy to town people as she is to her friends at S. T. C., there is small wonder that she sings so happily. . . . ELIZABETH LEGRANDE, the success of any recital, combines great musical talent with strength of character, and the result is a personality that is a melody in itself. . . . Jolly, athletic RUTH LEONARD, who swims with perfect form literally plowing through the water, is also quite the philosopher.

ELLA B. LEWIS, ideal companion for any mood, has a deep appreciation of beauty in little things, loves poetry, and delights in speaking French. . . . Being a town girl did not interfere with a vital interest in school-life nor the excellent work that tall, dark-haired MAXINE LEWIS did as a member of the Y. W. Cabinet. . . . In a quiet way, dignified MARY AGNES LOVE goes about her work with seriousness, accomplishing tasks that seem impossible. . . . MERIEL McALLISTER, treasurer of Alpha Phi Sigma, and chairman of Student Day Chapel, works with a will that's an inspiration, and through it all her "Irish Eyes Are Smiling." . . . Wearing unusual colors with the chic of a professional KATHLEEN McCANN soon established her reputation for style and good taste. . . . The strength of JEAN McCONNAUGHEY'S character and her zest for work are recognized in many honor societies.

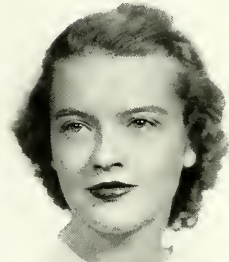

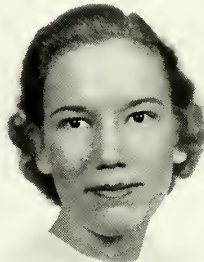

Earnestly, MADELINE McGLOTHLIN led her class as president, sparing no time or effort and accomplishing wonders with her ease and tact. . . . With her systematic, business-like manner of gaining knowledge, CARRIE D. MAHOOD astonishes classmates with the alertness of her answers, and excels in discussions of art. . . . EVELYN MANN, the rare exponent of the highest form of sportsmanship, made it possible for her class to display proudly its colors and banners. . . . Orchids and real ones at that to cute FRANCES MAXEY, whose presence graced many college proms and brought beaux from far and wide! . . . Strong-willed, competent NORVELL MONTAGUE, noted for unusual initiative and executive ability, brought the Farmville Quarterly Review to unsurpassed heights of success. . . . Master of cross-word puzzles, EVELYN MONTGOMERY well qualifies herself as a commentator on the latest news of the day.

With eyes shining deeply and a heart that is the emblem of sincerity, RUTH MONTGOMERY, editor of THE VIRGINIAN, finds double joy in play by first assuming thoughtfully and capably her responsibilities. . . . With the courage and dignity of a person far beyond her years, ELIZABETH MORRIS endeared herself as student body president, making a friend of each student in her sincere, lovable way. . . . As a vitally alive, typically American girl, CARTER BELLE MUNT gave unlimited time and energy to numerous organizations in school. . . . Through much time spent in the Home Ec Lab, MABEL MURDEN has made the solution of all grave problems of domesticity quite easy. . . . With a heart deeper than her laughter, ALICE NELSON, refreshing jokester, spills her giggle on a funny story, making it twice as funny in her own adorable way. . . . No formal discussion can remain staid long when AUDREY PARKER contributes her intelligence and keen sense of humor.

Zeal combined with the determined and undaunted spirit of MARY VIRGINIA PILCHER has resulted in that outstanding organization, the B. S. U. . . . An infectious giggle and a spirit of fun make immaculate CLARA PINCKARD an ever-welcomed member of any gathering. . . . GRACE ALLEN PITTARD proves that looks do not tell everything, for in spite of her little-girl appearance, she is quite grown up, with a way of knowing always the right thing to do or say. . . . Tall, blond and graceful ISABEL PLUMMER reigned as May Queen, bearing her crown in true regal style. . . . We'd choose MILDRED POTTER with the reddish hair and the fun-sparkles in her eyes as the last word in jocund company. Regrets are made that her town home has deprived us of her constant presence.

Although LIVIAN POWELL was influenced by an outside interest, the social committee of the Y. W. C. A. progressed under her leadership. . . . With a serious attitude toward her classes GRACE PRICE spent much of her time when on the campus accomplishing her work and making friends. . . . The Tea Room's "star boarder," amicable VIRGINIA PRICE has become the quiet, dependable friend of those who know her. . . . Famed in the Home Ec department for her understanding and skillful management of the necessary arts, MARY VIRGINIA PUTNEY'S future success in any line is foreseen. . . . Loved for her friendly relations with the student body, JOSEPHINE QUINN, vice-president of the Dramatic Club, reciprocates by flashing her quick, "catchy" grin. . . . With her dry wit, JULIA MAY RANEY wants to know why and keeps the "profs" busy by shooting questions that make them guess. However, they can't help liking her any more than we can.

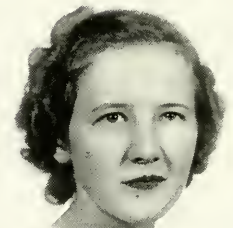

Although ALMA RICKETTS says little, we know, by the twinkle in her eyes, that she sanctions all our fun. . . . Competent secretary of the College Choir, ANNETTE ROBERTS, soprano, managed programs and business transactions with the same assurance and poise which are typical of her as a member of the A Cappella. . . . A complex personality and a genuine frankness give LIBBY ROBERTS the qualities of a person dependable in all crises and ready for fun with the best of them. . . . The Student Council proudly claimed MARJORIE ROBERTSON as a member for four years, and has been richly endowed by her sweet, understanding personality and high endeavor. . . . Gifted with a keen mind and even-tempered disposition, ELIZABETH RUCKER has become known as a sure shot in solving the most involved mathematical problems. . . . The mere mention of the "Cape" of the Eastern Shore, the color blue and the region of West Point brings a sparkle to the eyes of amiable VIRGINIA SCANLAN. . . . An exuberant personality and a spirit of utmost sincerity are rolled into one WILL SCOTT-Fire Chief-joyful joker-unexcelled coiner of vocabulary-"tops" in the hearts of fellow students. . . . Possessing a flair for making friends, RUTH SEARS in three years has proved herself a true sportswoman and a vital part of her class. . . . ELIZABETH SIEBER, musician and scholar, gives voice to the music in her soul through the strings of her violin and applies her quick intelligence to a book with equal joy. . . . Dancing feet, flashing eyes, and ready intelligence brought GAY STIEFFEN friends who expressed their approval by crowning her circus queen. . . . Gracing the home office with calm dignity, dependable MILDRED STONE has been an essential factor in the workings of the college. . . . FRANCES THOMAS, ace of friendliness, who is always on hand to sew a fine seam or to try a new recipe, is found to be as much of a gem to the "Y. W." as she is to the "Home Ec" Club.

The naivete and the deep blue eyes of CAROLINE UPSHUR, vice-president of the student body, will live forever in our memories. . . . Agreeability is innate to the nature of shy AURELIA VARNER, whose charm lies in her simplicity. . . . Though LOIS VASSAR, expert typist, contributes her interest and effort to many activities, she always found time to type for THE VIRGINIAN, keeping her bright disposition through every rush and storm. . . . Vibrant MARY HARRISON VAUGHAN, her effervescent spirit giving impetus to the outstanding success of The Rotunda, combines gaiety and a wealth of stability in a lovable personality.

Deep sincerity marks the character of reserved MARGARET VIA, whose friends find her adjustable to any mood. . . . Refreshing in appearance and responsive in manner, CATHERINE WALDEN has made for herself an enviable place among many friends. . . . ELLA WARE, in her own dignified and subtle way, has made teaching seem quite the thing to do, a pleasant and successful business. . . . With a true love and an ability for teaching, ELIZABETH WATTERSON has done well, and her success as a teacher is inevitable. . . . JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

IN September, 1935, we packed our trunks and came to Farmville, a new group among new faces and surroundings, with a new life ahead. We became the class of '39 and elected as our president, Sarah Hayes, whose capability and good sportsmanship soon had us well on our way in campus activities. We chose for our classman Miss Moran, whose guiding influence we shall never forget.

During rat week, we endured the ordeals of hair plaited in pigtailed, dresses worn backwards, meals eaten with gloves on, and house-cleaning for upperclassmen. "Shining" at Shannon's has printed upon our memories droll pictures of Marguerite Blackwell proposing to a strange gentleman and Tizzie Rawlings giving her version of a spring dance. However, we became a paler shade of green as time flew, and the blank, sick feeling that came at the mention of home began to give way to school spirit and a pride in Alma Mater.

For our presentation that year we used a garden scene, presenting Miss Moran as the lovely mistress. This theme, carried out with our class flower, the white rose, was repeated the next year.

Spurred on by winning first place in the swimming meet, our athletes began the blazing of a trail headed for great things. Carroll, Burton, Badger, and Smith led with a running start.

Then came the first production, "Over the Wires," starring Margaret Britton in the lead. To flee from life's boredom she went traveling, and flash!—to the audience came her telegrams from Paris, Spain, Persia, and all parts of the globe. We had our great moment when Vera sang,

"They Met One Night in Monte Carlo."

Sophomores at last, we entered whole-heartedly into the practice of the maxim that turn about is fair play. What a luxury to give orders at random and to produce all the horrors of rat court!

In our 1936 production we turned nursery rhymes topsy turvy under the direction of Pattie Bounds, and called the result "Mother Goose Goes to Town." Nor did she go alone; Stallard as Little Miss Muffett, Gray as Dr. Foster, Army as Bo-Peep who had lost her front teeth, and May Terrell as Humpty Dumpty went to town with her. "Fun sublime," breathed the happy cast as the curtain closed while they heard the last rounds of applause.

Goodbyes came in June of '37. Joan of Arc was the theme for class day exercises, and Ann Dugger was salutatorian, when the graduating sophomores received their certificates. We miss Nancy Sellman, Fagg, Em Easley, and the other good comrades who did not return.

Reaching the enviable goal of being juniors, we joyfully carry on, with Vera Ebel, pride of our hearts, as president. Mr. Coyner, our classman, was presented amid a jolly crowd who sang our class songs and gave the "green and white" yells led by our class officers, Clara Nottingham, Tony Anthony, Virginia Whitehead Smith, and Vera Ebel.

In the contest of class sings this year we took the prize. College life fifty years from now was portrayed. Girls enjoyed the luxury of staying in bed as long as they desired, hearing class lectures and rotunda news over the radio and keeping up with the news of the world by television. Army and Margaret, as the children of two of our well-known seniors who had returned for Founders' Day, stole the show with their antics.

Our circus stunt won honorable mention, featuring a fashion parade of "Minnie the Moocher's" wedding trousseau with Charlotte Minton in a red wedding gown as "Minnie."

Something different is always the vogue, and Frances Hutcheson and Ann Dugger concocted just that for the production of '38. "Sister Pat (with Apologies to Brother Rat)" was the name, and Frankie Bryan as "Pat," Theresa Graff, Lib Wilson, Amy Powell, and Burke brought gales of laughter at their take-off on dormitory life.

Three times now we have packed our trunks to come to Farmville. Three years of classes, friendships, and unforgettable experiences seasoned with laughter and tears have passed. Next year we will be seniors, and then— Beyond being seniors the junior class refuses to speak further, but we are looking forward to all the glories connected to that happy state and to another year of ultimate success.

SOPHOMORES

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

AS Freshmen, green and scared, the class of '40 chose Jane Powell for president and Miss Virginia Bedford as the artist who could blend the various colors of the freshmen class into one perfect picture of college life.

The terrors of the Inquisition were as nothing compared to the terrors of Rat Week. One look at that picture of Pauline Scott in the annual would terrify anybody. But Rat Week not only put class members in their places but also made them feel at home. Putting homesickness behind, students were out for honors for the class of '40.

To begin with the freshmen carried off first place in the water carnival. What could have been a more appropriate theme for a Teachers College than Professor Whale and his school of fish! Anne Billups made a grand professor and Brownie Johnson's diving was enough to turn the spectators green with envy. This class won, too, in other athletics. Several stars have developed. Among them is Chlotilde Jarman. Speaking of Chlotilde what other class has produced anything like that third floor Main trio of Cleo, Sue, and Prince?

On the whole the class contains an original bunch. When production time came, green little freshmen showed them a thing or two with the Club Manhattan in the Rec. Who can forget Sarah Keesce's singing or Mary Page Huff's lecture on table manners? In fact the night club went over so big that the class had a gala reopening its sophomore year. Having added Senorita Beverly Baptist and Virginia Lee Pettis in a grass skirt, it was twice as successful this year.

Having looked on Rat Week from the sophomore side, the class is willing to agree that it is a noble institution.

The typical sophomore attitude predominates in that the class members now think they own the place, but they'll always be willing to die for S. T. C. and Red and White.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

CHOOSING Mr. Raymond French, classman, and Ruth Lea Purdum of Danville, president, the Class of 1941 soon found itself a ridiculous part of the institution with Rat Week and its sights in full sway. Such fair members as Frances Williams lost their beauty for a while and such sleepy heads as Helen Seward had to arise early and clean rooms of worthy sophomores.

Emily Hoskins with her five-piece band gave a vivid impression of Cab Calloway and Jamie Lee Peake made a name for herself singing "Temptation."

In class basketball with Mary Sue Edmonson's accurate goal shooting the team was victorious over the sophomores and seniors, thus winning the championship. Several freshmen won places on the varsity squad.

Mr. French was presented as the able chemist he is, to the student body by Ruth Lea while the class sang songs honoring him.

"Sausages and Sweepstakes," the class's first production, dramatized children's story and poem characters with Ann Leake shining as Baby Ray and Norma Pamplin as Alice in Wonderland. "Swing" was the idea, and the freshmen did it with pigs, wolves, and all kinds of interesting people.

A REAL Japanese Bazaar, Sunday Morning Watch, Hanging of the Green at Christmas—all these are old Farmville traditions kept alive through the efforts of the Freshman Commission. This group, composed of twelve girls elected from the Freshman class, work under the supervision of a Freshman Councilor elected from the student body.

Foremost among the purposes of this organization is the establishment of a closer relationship between the Freshman class and the Y. W. C. A. Through their work they are given an appreciation of the value of a Christian organization on the campus—and the significance of the true meaning and spirit of the Y. W. C. A. is made more real to them.

FRESHMAN names stand out prominently on the roll of Alpha Phi Sigma, as this is the only honorary society to which freshmen are eligible. Valedictorians and salutatorians of high schools are automatically qualified for membership upon their entrances in college. Alpha Phi Sigma also recognizes qualities of scholastic ability in the girls who have made high records after two quarters in school or when their scholarship becomes satisfactory.

The Delta Chapter of Alpha Phi Sigma, the honor society confined only to A grade teachers' colleges, was established at Farmville in 1930 with seventy-five members. The honor society instills within each member a love for learning by association with others who have won high scholastic honors and who strive continually to maintain them.

Alpha Phi Sigma furthers the cause of scholarship by making it possible for many worthy students to attend college each year through a scholarship fund maintained by the organization. During the past year Alpha Phi Sigma has done deserving work in establishing a Book Exchange in the school. This proves of valuable service to the school, as second-hand books are competently managed and exchanged. Here Alpha Phi Sigma not only benefits its members but encourages scholarship in the entire school as well.

ASSOCIATION OF CHILDHOOD EDUCATION

*N*URSERY school, kindergarten, primary grade teachers, and others who are interested in young children and their education find excellent opportunity for a broader understanding of child life through the Association of Childhood Education, a national organization. Under the capable leadership of Caroline Upshur, A. C. E. presented delightful and unusual programs displaying the talents and work of the young child—giving a clearer conception of the child. The organization, realizing the importance of the training of children, has for its goal to provide all possible opportunities for development physically, intellectually, socially, and morally. This organization creates and keeps alive a real interest in and love for children.

IT was January 15! The small auditorium was filled with strangers — representatives to the Kappa Delta Pi regional conference. Addresses and discussions were held from 10:30 till 4:30. Discussion of ways of maintaining Kappa Delta Pi ideals, of inspiring members to foster higher standards of teacher-preparation, and attaining excellence of scholarship and distinctive achievement as students were held.

“Germany emphasizes militarism in her schools” — “French children study literature and arts” — These and other remarks have been prompted by this year’s study of comparative education, led by Deane Saunders.

Ann Dugger’s remarks deal chiefly with Atlantic City, where she represented Farmville at the National Convocation. Besides seeing the city she gained many ideas for improving the work of Beta Epsilon Chapter.

THE many complicated student problems that continue to cloud college life are cleared through the precise reasonings and exact decisions of the Student Standards Committee. This organization, composed of representative people of the school—major officers, class representatives, and five faculty members appointed by Dr. Jarman—acts as a clearing house between the student body, the faculty, and the home department. In a friendly way it brings about a spirit of cooperation and fosters high standards of actions and scholarship. The committee exercises its power of regulating extracurricular and academic work through the point system.

THE loyal spirit of Alma Mater has been upheld many times and in various ways, but never quite as strikingly or forcefully as at the Pi Kappa Delta National Convention in Topeka, Kansas. Credit goes to Nora Jones, Lorana Moomaw, and "Congressman" Pattie Bounds, who are members of the Virginia Alpha Chapter, chartered at Farmville in 1928. Other members have brought honors to their school by victories won at Winthrop College. Juanita Callis for the past three years has not failed to gain distinction for both herself and the organization in a number of oratorical contests. The diamond insignia key serves as an inspiration for the members of the organization, being the highest honor bestowed by Pi Kappa Delta.

*C*O the youth of today rest does not mean merely inactivity; and true to the exuberant spirit of American youth, we have found rest and surcease from the monotony of classes in participation in the many activities on our campus. Times have been many when we have found rest and pleasure in our work, and it has been during these times that an invaluable something has been added to our lives—We have, by friendships formed here, become broadened in views and buoyed in spirit, and have made our hours of rest not ones of idleness, but hours in which our lives have been more enriched.

SERVING as a beacon of high ideals for our college, and furthering the truest standards of living, our honor system, of which each one of us is a vital part, shines as a guide for loyalty to one's self and to the group. It has one code—truth. And in signing this code we pledge truth to self and thereby truth and honesty to all. It is a light which claims in response to its flow the eternal voice of honor which speaks in every girl's heart. In responding, complete beauty and joy and the fullness of life are found in college days.

Motto: "Not by might, not by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts"

THE Y. W. C. A. is a fellowship for the unity of students and faculty who are seeking a full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God and desire to have a part in making this life possible for all people. "In this task we seek to understand Jesus and to follow Him."

We are reminded that our lives, which we would live fully, are not simple. Unconsciously, perhaps, by our daily thoughts and actions, we influence the countless numbers of people about us. Since our lives are bound together, it is impossible to live fully except as we live in relation to others. Our Y. W. C. A. strives to give us an insight into the real values of life. We cannot live together without some sense of direction, and we believe that sense to be encompassed in the philosophy of finding and sharing life together.

For the past few years, the Y. W. C. A. has been building up a background of service. Indeed, it has come to represent this idea almost entirely. During the past years an attempt has been made to lay the foundation which will lead to that spiritual inspiration without which no Christian organization can work efficiently.

JUST before the Christmas holidays, a new regulation was voted upon and adopted by the student body; it was the closed study hour. Many of us "griped" about it at that time, but it has turned out to be one of the finest things we have at this time. We have no fear of Jane bursting into our room when we are up to our shoulder-blades in Ovid or some similar study. We have the peace and quiet that is so necessary to diligent study. For two hours and a half we study . . . then, when ten o'clock comes, how we break loose! Wild romping in the halls—gay laughter and hearty conversation—frantic running of water in bath tubs . . . the bell tolls ten-thirty, and we hear our hall president "sloshing" down the corridor in her bed-room slippers—we hear her tap on the doors and call, "Lights out," and in a flash all signs of light are extinguished throughout the dormitories. Sometimes, however, it isn't as simple as that—the hall president has difficulty in maintaining the quiet of study hour and in getting all lights out when she taps on the doors. And—when she does have difficulty?—little marks go down on the charts on her door!

The duties of the House Council keep all members constantly on their toes, for the preservation of quiet is a big issue in itself. A bird's-eye view of other duties . . . chasing down the halls in the middle of the night in search of ill-stifled gales of laughter—locating the culprits and finding it hard to deal with them, especially when these same culprits explain the reason for their outbursts . . . hearing the strains of a good orchestra after eleven o'clock, then starting down the hall to ask the so-called rule-breakers to turn their radio off; knowing all the while it won't be turned off, but that some device will be invented which will prevent audibility . . . and the last straw, to smell late-at-night snacks being prepared and having to ask the "diners" to cut off at least two of their burners or the light fuse will be blown . . . sometimes it is blown anyway and that means finding Mr. Reed and having the damage mended . . . a typical hall president's life!

In spite of our bad behavior at times, we respect and appreciate this untiring body of diligent workers. And so, we raise our hats to the House Council; we congratulate them on the zeal and efficiency with which they "carry on"!

ON Monday nights Pattie Bounds with her news articles, LeNoir Hubbard with her features, Vera Ebel with society items, and Frances Alvis with her world of sports met in the publication office and struggled to write the headlines assigned to their articles by Mary Harrison Vaughan.

Marguerite Snell sent typists to type and retype articles according to the ideas of the editors. A mad dash over school for last-minute news or for space-fillers often took place. Much laughter accompanied the stretching of stories to the *n*th degree.

On Tuesday nights the numerous reporters read proof while the editor with her worn ruler spaced articles into a dummy. Wednesdays were days for last-minute touches to the make-up.

Libby Roberts' job each week was to give salesmanship in exchange for ads, and Virginia Yager and her circulation staff labored every Wednesday afternoon to fold and address papers for mailing and to deliver copies to students and faculty members.

Wednesday nights new articles were assigned reporters by the editors, and the same circle of work went on every week that a paper was printed.

THE first chilly days of the fall brought Tom Daniel, photographer, popular as a frequent visitor on the campus. Catching students in various characteristic moods and poses, he recorded a complete pictorial history of life on our campus.

Night after night found Ruth and Ficklen groping for ideas. Silent—other members of the staff sat lost in thought searching for inspiration. The beginning, born in some more active brain, brought all efforts to the fore and constructive work began.

The engraver—a word with magic powers—loomed ahead—an ever present goal—Nights meant work far into the early hours of the dawn. Behind closed doors, which guarded secret upon secret, work progressed, and the book began to take shape.

Things seemed merely a jumbled mass at first. Could we never wade through the huge piles of work to be done? Ideas developed, and inspirations came to the rescue. With our interest, yours grew too. How could you help it, with whispered conferences filling every nook and cranny of the halls?

Up to the last frantic minute, pens scratched, typewriters clicked, and careful eyes read proof far into the night—then that breathless moment of seeing all our efforts shipped to the printer for the final touch.

Now that it's all over, we hope that we are justified in sensing a small feeling of satisfaction. If you are not disappointed, then we are doubly rewarded. Mere words are inadequate to express what THE VIRGINIAN means to us—and our sincerest hope is that it will be to you a colorful record of your life—something you will cherish in later years.

*M*ORE and more of an institution it becomes—The Farmville Quarterly Review. To have your creative effort accepted for publication is a reward for whatever effort may have been expended in applying the seat of your skirt to the seat of a chair.

But to wrest these creative efforts from incipient authors is not always an easy job. That's why those gay, to-the-point posters greet you as you come down the hall from the post office. The editors trust and fondly believe that more and more people will be possessed of the creative urge and shower them with short stories containing new and interesting plots; with poetry dear to the heart of every fair college maid, and essays from more intellectually minded students; not to mention spicy sketches and new ways of saying old things. The editors are proud of the section on Virginia book reviews—unique in the State. Indeed, they are proud of its progress since the first issue two years ago, and they look forward to greater things to come.

DINNER is over at S. T. C., and our gay lassies find time for a few minutes of relaxation and quiet before donning spectacles and trudging off to the evening studies.

Suddenly, sweet strains of "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life" come wafting through the evening air. Girls pause to listen, wondering whence such lovely sounds issue. "Oh yes! Choral Club is practicing tonight!"

And down in the Choral Club room we find Mr. Strick playing those melodies we love, while sixty-odd girls blend their voices to produce music . . . music wealthy in beauty and harmony, for these qualities in the Choral Club voices insure them of a packed house at every concert!

BURGUNDY and white, blue and white—when we see these colors together, we know the College Choir and A Cappella Choir are ready to give one of their concerts. This group of choral singers is composed of sixty-odd girls, and is the largest of the State Teachers College's singing bodies. Besides giving concerts in the school and local churches, the Choir has its annual broadcast from WRVA. Of the many invitations over the State, the choir has accepted Portsmouth's, Richmond's, and Lynchburg's this year. The choir ends its musical year with a spring concert. *M*ELLOW voices—soft lights on burgundy and white robes—Rising to heights of success in the second year of its existence, the A Cappella Choir is synonymous with excellence in the field of music.

Although not entirely in keeping with the meaning of its name, the choir uses accompaniment for some numbers. Eighteen members, carefully trained under the competent guidance of Mr. Alfred H. Strick, blend their voices in the four parts—soprano, mezzo, first alto, and second alto.

In spite of being yet in its infancy the reputation of the choir has spread to many parts of the State and its members have sung on programs in Richmond, Portsmouth, and Lynchburg.

UNDER the able direction of Miss Purdom, whose ability and sympathetic feeling have been an inspiration to all members, the harmonies of the orchestra ring true. Bringing much pleasure and sincere appreciation, it adds greatly to all school programs. After long struggles whether with Beethoven, Bach, or Mozart, there comes a complete satisfaction to the members and a realization—"divided they fall"—hence the excellent coordination. Now to Jean Moyer and Julia Hutchinson go the responsibility of the first violin section which has been so admirably held for three years by Elizabeth LeGrand and Elizabeth Seiber. The last notes of their music at concert and commencement fade away, but the melodious strains linger.

*O*N to Winthrop was the cry of Sudie Yager, Lorana Moomaw, Nora Jones, and Pattie Bounds, who once again brilliantly upheld the intercollegiate debating standard of S. T. C. at the Strawberry Leaf Tournament. "How High Is a Point?" asked Juanita Callis, Caralie Nelson, Frances Holloway, Marguerite Snell, Marie Allen, and Mary Rice at the contest in North Carolina. The answers, according to reports, proved quite clever. Pleasant surprising trips of this type and forensic encounters at home advance the participants in social and cultural graces and give them a fuller understanding and an appreciation of the art of speech.

ALPHA KAPPA GAMMA

ELIZABETH Shiplett, with her soft Southern voice, made the words of the beautiful tapping service of Alpha Kappa Gamma impressive as she handed the gavel to members in the auditorium. Not a sound was heard from students as each cap and gowned member of the honorary fraternity in leadership walked down the steps from the stage and honored a leader "found among them." Three such services were held during the year.

Sometimes business meetings became interesting discussions by the members of Alpha Kappa Gamma, often ending in vital changes of attitudes throughout the school. About three times during the year Isabel Plummer planned a program meeting with girls talking on assigned topics. All the honorary members were invited to these occasions, and refreshments were served. Usually, Dr. Jarman came, and the sitting room in Senior Building was where the programs were given.

The circus given on October 31 was a complete success with Gay Stieffen crowned queen and the Senior Class winning the prize for the best stunt. Members of Alpha Kappa Gamma were in charge of the circus, and money from the door went to their treasury.

The national convention was held here in October with Elizabeth Shiplett presiding and Madeliene McGlothlin representing this circle as speaker. At this time Norvell Montague presented the scrap-book of which she is in charge, and each member contributed material to Madeliene for her speech on "The Teaching Field in Vocation."

Every Wednesday afternoon the circle met in the honor room. Such things as the establishment of a loud speaker in the dining room, a victrola in the 'Rec, and a trophy room were projects planned during the year.

ACTIVE MEMBERS: Virginia Agee, Dudley Allen, Pattie Bounds, Sarah Button, Miriam Ficklen, Jennie Belle Gilliam, Madeliene McGlothlin, Charlotte Minton, Norvell Montague, Ruth Montgomery, Elizabeth Morris, Carter Belle Munt, Ruth Phelps, Isabel Plummer, Elizabeth Roberts, Katherine Roberts, Jane Royall, Nan Seward, Elizabeth Shiplett, Virginia Whitehead Smith, Caroline Upshur, Mary Harrison Vaughan.

JOAN CIRCLE

Founded in 1928

*State Teachers College
Farmville, Virginia*

FESTIVE crowds, gay costumes, barkers yelling their wares, clowns, animals and what not in various stunts, and a husky-voiced ringmaster presiding over the celebrations—all this and more besides remind one of an autumn night with S. T. C.'s gym miraculously transformed into the "Big Tent."

The ring show brought to spectators skits of various natures—the origin of the "Big Apple," a showing of the newest fall fashions, a modernized version of old Grecian myths, dancing in a cabaret with "Cab Calloway" and his madcap minstrels—and finally a troupe of trained animals "gathered from the four corners of the earth."

Brightly decorated and laden with prizes—side-shows and booths lined the "midway." Throngs tried their luck at roulette and fish ponds and—exhausted with laughter—poured out of the most popular side-show of the evening—"The Better Half of Life."

Far into the hours of the night, the crowds in gala spirits joined into the merry making. With the early hours of the morning came the lifting of the spell—decorations and all signs of festivity disappeared—familiar bare walls proclaimed the end of another S. T. C. circus.

EMINENT in the field of social science is the Virginia Gamma Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, which recognizes students having outstanding ability in all lines of social improvement. The center of interest throughout the year is the educational project—last year studies were concentrated on industrial conditions in South America.

Mardi Gras, an annual festivity of costumes and dancing, is sponsored by Pi Gamma Mu. This gala affair, presided over by the queen and her court, means gay laughter, music and many prizes. Because of more elaborate costumes, prizes, and planning, this occasion has become one of the most popular on the school calendar.

BRUSHES, smocks, and the smell of paint mean that artistic talent is being developed and given expression in Gamma Psi. Our campus finds the fraternity invaluable for help in advertising, in decorating, and in preparing art exhibits. Bulletin boards speak proof of the ingenuity of the group with a collection of posters. Many objects, both useful and decorative, are made as girls find an outlet for artistic ideas, which range from the abstract to softer realism and from jewelry to bookends and lampshades.

TYPICALLY English in every respect, Beorc Eh Thorn was founded at Farmville in October, 1935. Although new, this English honor society has rapidly grown and found quite an important place on the campus. The three old English rune letters adopted for the name symbolize the quest for literature to which its members are pledged and the inspiration and discipline which it affords.

In January the student body was skillfully and artistically carried miles away and underwent quite exciting adventures through the charming and delightful lecture of Mr. Richard Halliburton. This man of great literary ability and world fame was brought to the campus under the auspices of Beorc Eh Thorn. In presenting worth while and attractive programs of this type to the student body the English honor society serves its purpose of creating literary interest. Besides sponsoring visits of distinguished writers and poets to the college, Beorc Eh Thorn lends its active support to the quarterly publication of the college magazine and offers prizes at the close of the year for the best, most outstanding, most original essay, poem, and short story of the year.

Filling a great need for an honor society in English, Beorc Eh Thorn was organized primarily to cultivate and encourage the artistic use and enjoyment of the English language. The membership is composed of the members of the English faculty and those girls who have made high averages in English and who have displayed appreciative ability, talent, and interest in literary study and in creative writing. This honor organization proves of great value to the members while they are students and later as teachers of English in the state. The society meets twice a month with the sole purpose of enjoying the English language. At this time delightful programs are presented, the members participating. The programs consist of the reading of the creative literary work of the members, interesting poems, stories, and essays. Many of the programs are devoted entirely to reviews and criticisms of Pulitzer prize winners and of recent discussions of the work and merit of famous literary men. These delightful programs prove very inspirational to the members.

LE CERCLE FRANÇAIS

*L*E Cercle Francais, a local club composed of all the members of the French classes, affords an excellent opportunity to learn to converse in the language, and to become more familiar with the life and customs of France. Every program is held entirely in French, thereby giving actual experience in the use of the language. The circle's meetings, although educational, are made entertaining and interesting as well, by the singing of favorite familiar songs of France such as "Frere Jacques," "La Marseillaise," and "Au Clair de la Lune," and by the playing of French games. The club might be compared to a recreational laboratory in which are created enjoyment and appreciation of one of the foremost of all languages of the modern world.

"The Latin language is not dead! Roman civilization did not suddenly pass out of existence when the Roman empire was destroyed! Roman literature is not dull and uninteresting to the modern student!" Confirming the truth of this statement, Sodalitas Latina lies open to anyone interested in the study or teaching of Latin, having as its purpose the promotion and stimulation of interest in Roman literature and life. Monthly meetings are entertaining, with programs pertaining to many phases of Latin. The organization collaborates with Sigma Pi Rho to publish the Tributum, a quarterly literary magazine. This year copies were sent all over the State and to all other chapters of Sigma Pi Rho.

SIGMA PI RHO, a national honorary fraternity in Latin, was founded in November, 1929, at Farmville. Later it was also made national at Farmville. Only students interested in the Classics with high Latin averages are eligible for membership in Sigma Pi Rho, which has as its aims to foster the love of the classics, to inculcate the ideal of scholarship, and to promote training for Latin teachers. Through the Tributum, the quarterly publication of the honor society, subjects of classical nature and those pertinent to the aims and ideals of Sigma Pi Rho are developed interestingly and clearly—even to the understanding capacity of non-Latin students.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

BEYOND a doubt everyone has heard the ancient adage, "The shortest way to a man's heart is through his stomach." The Home Economics majors are ready and willing to verify that statement: really—it works!

All Home Economics girls can take on any amount of darning, mending, sewing, meal planning, cooking—honestly, there seems to be nothing they can't do. And everyone of them is proud of her skill—and justly so, we must admit. Have you ever missed seeing their new clothes?—"I made it," they admit modestly and pass on, unconscious of the fact that our mouths and eyes are wide with astonishment. Or have you ever smelled the excruciating wonder that only hot biscuit can hold?—"Yes, we did bake today," and they go on their way completely undisturbed and unruffled.

Besides this "personal touch" to their ability, the club has and will continue to sponsor and lend aid in many of the most worth-while enterprises of the school. The May Day Committee finds invaluable cooperation here in the making of costumes. And when delightful and de-lovely teas are to be given?—the Home Economics girls make their best bows. Devastating fashions . . . superb dinners . . . they are all in a day's work for the lucky Home Economics major.

We must admit that they showed excellent judgment in choosing their major. Their possibilities are practically endless . . . tea room management . . . teaching . . . designing . . . dietetics . . . and, last but by no means the least, the knowledge of the hows and wherefores of a happy future home of their own.

Envy them!—certainly—it's only natural!

*B*REAKING into the routine of classes, labs, and studying, there have been hours filled with varied activities, and we find that days and weeks have passed quickly while we have found unlimited pleasure—some in play and some in work. In various fields talents have been developed and leaders have become evident—working with others in giving to the students and to the school those essential elements of cooperation and that spirit of unselfish service which characterizes the democracy of spirit which is Farmville's.

THE Athletic Association, in keeping with the spirit of the College, is an organization whose fundamental principles are based on the standards of democracy—each student is a part of the Association, and as a result, is expected to contribute her share toward bringing athletics to higher standards.

Through the influence of the A. A., its adviser, Miss Olive T. Iler, and its leaders, there is instilled in Farmville students, to the point of inherency, a true sense of sportsmanship in all phases of life. Each student realizes the vital importance of fairness and of the preservation of honor at all times and with all associates. Development of an individual through participation in the activities of the A. A. is not merely a physical strengthening but a development of moral excellence as well.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

S P O R T S M A N A G E R S

THE managers of the various sports play a vital part in encouraging participation in athletics. These managers, with advice from the Athletic Council and its adviser, Miss Iler, take charge of the sports that they have been selected to manage. They post practice schedules and check practice rolls to see that each player has the number of practices required of a participant in the game.

Our season of sports begins with hockey. Harriet Vaden is manager of this sport, and her assistant is Emily Hoskins. This sport has strong class competition, especially between the proud and mighty sophomores and the rats. The winning of the game determines whether the rats will remain rats and wear rat caps or whether they will discard them and become freshmen. The four classes struggle to win because winning means points toward the winning of the color cup. A varsity team is also selected from the members of the four class teams. This year the varsity team played other schools and made an excellent showing.

The next sport to attract attention is basketball. Virginia Whitehead Smith is manager of basketball. Intramural games were also played in this sport. The varsity squad is selected from the girls who come for varsity tryouts. Our team remained undefeated throughout the entire season. For three years they have been undefeated. Chlotilde Jarman was manager of the freshman team. The baby team played varsity high school teams, and they too remained undefeated.

Volley ball precedes basketball. "Dot" Fischer manages this sport; her assistant is Juanita Smith. Competition between classes puts spice into this sport. The playing of class games closes this sport until next season.

Spring comes, and with it comes archery, tennis, and baseball.

Archery, Cupid's game, is managed by Louise Anthony, who is assisted by Margaret Stallard. The tournaments arouse the campus to excitement.

Tennis is managed by Ruth Sears. Tennis tournaments are sponsored by the council, and an award is presented the winner. From the participants in the tournaments, the varsity squad is selected.

Swimming is a very cool sport. It is managed by Ruth Leonard. Telegraphic meets, class contests, and life-saving awards make up the activities carried on in this sport. A varsity team is also picked.

Baseball is another spring sport. A definite number of practices are required, as are in all sports. Class competition in this sport is keen, and the class games make us think of the "Giants" or the "Yankees" in action.

Mable Burton is manager of minor sports. These sports are carried on throughout the year, and her duties are to do all she can to create interest in these sports. Ping Pong is also included in these sports, and singles tournaments were played off. Much interest was created in this sport. Our aim is to create even greater interest in every sport next year!

*H*ERE'S to Sue Eastham, Virginia Smith, and Jennie Belle Gilliam shooting goals, and to Edna Bolick, Mary Elizabeth Badger, Inez Chappell, Mable Burton, and Kathleen Bailey, who are lightning on the hockey field. Here's to Ruth Phelps, trying it all and being successful in everything.

Efficiency tests, hiking on brisk, cold days, or in balmy spring weather, tearing across the hockey field, trying their muscles at archery, swimming, and other sports have meant more than straight fun. All this has meant the joy of a blue and white emblem. Following the motto of "Sportsmanship Always," girls have gained the required points for admission to this club, which recognizes athletic ability, scholarship, and sportsmanship. These girls who proudly wear their white sweaters with the blue monograms are recognized for their ideals of fair play and are known as "good sports" who play a straight game in all phases of college life.

I SHOT an arrow into the air. It fell to earth;”—We do know where!— the bull's-eye. Good marksmanship and straight swift shooting make the goal for the archery team who are Ruth Phelps, Sara Keesee, Ruth Sears, Ann Billups, Ruby Adams, Louise Anthony, manager, and Margaret Stallard, assistant manager. For the spring, tournaments are planned for the selection of new members of the team, and competition with teams of other colleges are scheduled. Dan Cupid has nothing on these sharpshooters, who on clear days make for the A. A. Field to try their skill and incidentally their muscle. Every year archery plays a more important part in sports activities, and with their new equipment, the girls have more pep and greater zeal than ever.

ON November the eighteenth, the Farmville varsity squad went to Richmond for the first game of the season with Westhampton College. Both teams fought hard from the start. Westhampton's forward line proved too strong, and at half time the score was 1-0 in favor of Westhampton. Farmville went in stronger than ever at the last half, and gave the Richmond girls a scare when they almost scored twice. Just before the whistle Westhampton made another goal, and after several quick passes the game was theirs.

On December the second, our squad ventured forth to meet the team of William and Mary Division. Determined to take a victory back to Farmville, they played with the pep that it takes until the last whistle blew. The half ended with the score of 3-1 in favor of S. T. C. In the second half Farmville scored two more points holding William and Mary to a scoreless half. Thus they brought home the victory.

H₂O CLUB

A COOL dip in the crystal-clear pool is good for the nerves and plowing through water in exciting races affords fun as well as a slenderizing exercise, claim H₂O members.

"Who knows?" says the club. "Next year we may be in the inter-collegiate meet!" Such is the enthusiasm at the close of an eventful season.

H₂O's water carnival delighted throngs with its dopey beach scene, beautiful dives, breath-taking stunts, and the inevitable "Big Apple." Juniors reached top score; Sophomores gained second.

Color meet with star divers, racers, and form-swimmers caused crowds to gasp and cheer. And the H₂O Club goes merrily on its way!

ESTABLISHING standards of excellence along all lines of sorority endeavor is the main work of the Pan-Hellenic Association, composed of two representatives from each sorority. This organization acts as a fundamental factor in the school and as a force in the lives of all graduate members. Many matters of great interest to all sororities arise constantly and are dealt with in the forum that is made by the association for these discussions. In the event that sorority difficulties arise, the organization acts as a final court of appeals and settles the important question with wise, unbiased judgment. A code of sorority ethics is defined by the organization.

The Fall Rushing Season finds the Pan-Hellenic Association at its busy peak. At the time a set of rushing rules is made and enforced, and a regular bid day is set—agreeable to all sororities.

The open forum discussion that takes place in the fall is one of the big events of the year for the organization. Opinions concerning sorority life and both adverse and constructive criticisms are given. A tea or a musical is the important event of the winter, while the impressive installation of the officers is quite significant in the spring.

A most successful dance in February, sponsored by the organization shone forth as a headlight both in the social function of the school and of the association itself—the first Pan-Hellenic Dance in the history of the college.

SIGMA gossip in the fall centered around Nan Seward's European adventures, Ruth and Mary Harrison's trip to the Chicago Press Convention, and, of course, the merits of the freshmen. Several Sunday afternoons the chapter room was the scene of informal teas and "sessions" that lasted till the dinner bell rang. "Will" even brought the big blond Sam to meet us at one of them. Later in the season secrets were whispered through the halls about plans for pledge parties and a banquet.

Miss Camper's tea heralded the approach of Christmas. Candles, holly, and cedar all combined to make our conversation gay and festive that afternoon.

In February everybody received Perrye's artistic valentines inviting the actives to a party given by the pledges. To add another frill to the shortest month of the year, Betty Hardy and Virginia Epes Irby announced a supper at the Hardy cabin. That cabin party caused the invention of new adjectives. "Cute," "dear," "precious," etc., were worn out the first ten minutes.

In April wherever a group of Sigmas gathered, "Whom are you having to Cotillion?" and "What are you going to wear?" were frequent questions. Then Tri Sigma's Founders' Day was the chief topic under consideration for weeks. That banquet at Longwood!

May . . . and the names of Isabel and Jennie Belle on every tongue. Beauty and grace reign.

The last of the year is filled with the sound of the Sigma Seniors as they prepare to return for fun next year in the same breath that they say "good-by."

A GLORIOUS summer for Gamma Theta included that never-to-be-forgotten house party at Virginia Beach, and as a result, Gammies brown as berries and eager to plunge into a new year of work and fun returned to Farmville in September. Hours filled with comparing notes and listening with mouths a-gape at tales of Lib George's trip to Europe occupied most of our time for several weeks. While the fall quarter was yet in its infancy, there were plans to be made for fall rushing. We were in high spirits as we celebrated the arrival of our pledges with a party in the chapter room, with music, laughter, gaiety and the biggest treat of all—food from home! As a climax to a superb week students and alumnae met once more at Fall Cotillion.

Throughout the fall and winter Sunday afternoon teas by candlelight in the chapter room helped to pass away long week-ends and provided wonderful setting for discussions of basketball games in which Sue and Virginia Smith fought with the best of them.

Midst all the excitement of exams and packing to go home Miss Stubbs issued invitations to her long-awaited Christmas party with a tree and all the trimmings.

The beginning of the winter quarter brought Helen Cover back as assistant in the Home Ec Department, and with the return of an alumna for a nice long visit, our spirits soared.

George Washington's birthday, bugles, drums, and the "Spirit of '76" heralded the party given by the pledges, at which "baby" Gammies enjoyed a rare evening in their best sunsuits and rompers. And following close on the heels of that occasion came our Founder's Day banquet in the Tea Room. Then, the Spring Banquet at Longwood climaxed another year of fun. All eyes turned to May Day; Butler was one of our girls in Queen Elizabeth's Court.

Days passed quickly bringing graduation and with it, tears at memories of times together, and joy at the thought of seniors returning as alumnae in the fall. With murmurs of "good-bye" and "please write" another year in Gamma Theta passed with departing figures in caps and gowns.

AFTER a grand and glorious summer in which one flew East, one flew West, and the rest flew everywhere except, perhaps, into the proverbial cuckoo's nest, Mu Omega once more settled down to a year of college work—and fun!

The fall term slid along smoothly amid a series of teas, buffet suppers, and parties, with Agee starring over footlights as Mary of Scotland, and the pledge banquet with its Christmasy candles and pine, Mrs. Fitz's tea, and the Christmas party adding that certain something in the way of a finishing touch.

Scattered along the way were those unforgettable bull sessions in which we learned all about Libby seeing America first last summer in New York, Marjy at the Atlantic City Convention, and Libby Roberts' trip to Chicago to attend the press convention.

Then came a brand new year, bringing with it new girls, new associations, and new bits of everything to add to memory books—glimpses of Libby leading her G-girls to basketball endeavor in rompers, Libby welcoming alumnae on Founders' Day, and Libby in receiving lines.

We'll always remember the baby party—for Mu Omegas aged two to six—given by the new girls and graced by a theme of bunny rabbits.

Once more Agee took the lead—this time as our "First Lady" and spring was almost complete with Founders' Day in May and all that a Longwood banquet means! Nothing was left but June, Commencement, and all the things that go with it to complete a perfect year.

Time marches on, and another summer's ahead, but though we'll miss our Seniors, we'll look forward to seeing them again as we look back on Mu Omega in 1937-38.

WHEN the opening day of school arrived and all the Pi Kaps gathered around Elsie Dodd, they found out that Alpha Epsilon had won the efficiency award at the national convention. The chapter room soon became a hangout for all who were interested in being carried to Colorado Springs by pictures and tales of exciting things Elsie and Lucy P. had done. These same sessions were interspersed with that interesting topic—rushing.

Then with glances about the chapter room, stock was taken, and all decided a bit of redecoration to be a good plan. After several exciting trips to Richmond, furniture was selected, and soon a transformation began. Venetian blinds and a scheme of burgundy and gold took the place of the old.

A gala banquet at Christmas for the pledges was topped off by having the honor of old Saint Nick's presence. And who could possibly forget the lovely tea Miss Iler gave in January at her new apartment!

Speaking of lovely things, Charlotte Minton and Elsie Dodd were in Mardi Gras Court and again in May Court. Norma Johnson was another noteworthy beauty of the May Court.

Conventions were attended not only before school but during the year. The millionaire Kitty caught at Vanderbilt and the wonderful time Ruth had with the second Bob Burns while attending the I. R. C. Convention are still topics of conversation.

Spring heralded in with an enormous time the first week-end in April. Our Spring Banquet, with so many alumnae, was on Friday night, and Spring Cotillion and an intermission party in Chapter room were on Saturday night. Then, last on the social calendar, was a farewell party for the graduates, which brings to mind the last lines of our Toast Song:

“When college days are over,
Our paths lie different ways.
Still memories are golden
Of dear old Pi Kap days.”

GREETINGS to the right of you and greetings to the left of you—back to school were the Alpha Sigma Taus with a glorious summer of experiences behind them to feed bull sessions the winter long.

Early in October Bailey, Gay, Frankie, Annette, Musse, and Miss Nichols went to Concord College in Athens, W. Va., to the District Convention. The Anchor (A. S. T. magazine) gave mention to Zeta Taus presiding over the meeting.

Then there came the talk of a circus—the talk of a queen and trucking Gay carrying away the crown.

New pledges were welcomed into the chapter earlier than usual and with them came parties, teas and suppers—best of all, the Annual Pledge Banquet at Longwood on our Founder's Day. Many alumnae returned for the occasion, making it the biggest get-together of the year.

Thanksgiving passed and Christmas came. More parties—a Christmas tree—crazy gifts—for serious pleasure Frankie leading the glee club in the Christmas concert and then to Richmond.

New Year resolutions were made. Faces were smiling because of six more grand girls taking the chapter pledge. A dinner party at Miss Bedford's and the winter glided by with much trucking to Charlottesville, Lexington, Blacksburg, and Richmond.

Exams again and spring! Spring brought publication appointments with LeNoir and Johnny shining.

Spring also brought new officers with Adelaide leading the crew. Welcome new girls again—parties and another banquet in their honor!

May Day came with Gay and Frankie marching in the Court.

And with sadness at the loss of our seniors, commencement brings one of Alpha Sigma Tau's most successful years to a close. It's au revoir—happy landings and I'll see you at the Houseparty in the mountains!

DELTA THETA ALPHA

THE chatter of the twenty-two girls in the D. T. A. room would seem to a stranger just a conglomeration of hopes, ambitious trials, and joyful anticipations with a note of romance at times to color the situation.

We all eagerly awaited letters from Paris where our adviser, Miss Draper, is studying this session. Miss Jennings is taking her place and is largely responsible for our progress this year.

Excitement enlivened hard work before we got our newly acquired room furnished for the event of all events—fall rushing! After much planning we decided to use green and cedar rust as the predominating colors with Madeliene's burgundy barrel-backed chair the center of attraction.

Edna Bolick didn't have enough vacation after hockey season closed; she took a week off and went to the American Dietetic Association Convention in Richmond.

The pledge banquet coming after Christmas was almost a homecoming. All the charter members were here to welcome their new sisters except Virginia Acworth, who still seems to be home-minded.

Rolling along into spring, Anne and Mildred think of nothing but preparations for May Day. Anne walks around with "horses' heads" and Mildred with costumes. Madeliene is in the Court, a beautiful vision in pink.

The twenty-first of May marked our second anniversary as an organization and completed our first year as a sorority on the campus. All the founders were present at the banquet, which was held at Longwood.

The first week of June brought Commencement and fond farewells. Kathryn Carlton, Catherine Walden, Edna Bolick, and Madeliene McGlothlin are now alumnae. They've already made plans to join their remaining sisters at the house party this summer.

September and another school year found on the campus a new group of eight girls, inspired by the mother of their leader, and with high hopes which had been growing over the summer holidays. October twelfth marked the birthday of Phi Zeta Sigma, and under the guidance of "Miss Willie" and Frances, the charter members set to work in earnest to make as much of their dream as possible come true during the first year.

In the beginning there was little time for anything but business, for the most important thing was building a firm foundation. But can you imagine such a delightful hostess as our adviser being content not to entertain? As a result, Miss Mix and the Zeta Sigs were her guests at a lovely tea in October.

Thoughts of rushing came soon, and upon advice to "be slow but sure in everything," a few girls were invited to a gala Christmas party in the Little Sitting Room. Thoughts of Christmas also bring reminders of the wonderful trip Margaret B. had to Chicago and of the promised ones to Los Angeles and Europe this summer and next, respectively.

The charter members entertained the pledges at a tea in February, and an Easter party was held in the Little Sitting Room for both actives and pledges.

Spring brought us Kathleen's Old English May Day . . . and Jac still hopes that her "interests" at the University did not take Kathie too seriously in "How to Become a Bachelor."

It took Lil's steadfast dependability, Betty Sue's wit, Elizabeth's constancy and sweetness, Margie's sheer business ability, Meg's scholarship, all to complete the first year of a group, a great number of whose dreams have materialized, but the greater number of which are yet to come true.

WHAT price fun—goats unfashionable and unattractive in appearance—made to do the meanest of tasks—all for the glory of a dance. But this humiliation is soon forgotten upon the first thrilling strains of a really good orchestra. Low lights reflecting gracefully moving silhouettes—shimmering chiffon—silvery satin—corsages—“best beaux”—spectacular transformation of the gym—that is Cotillion, climaxing the social events of the fall. That gay scene appears once again, even more brilliantly in the spring, to top all social activities of the year with an afternoon dance and a graceful formal figure at the evening dance. These gloriously typical college events are made possible by the two hundred members who make up the Cotillion Club. Organized for social purposes, it completes with vividness the school year.

*A*N Old English May Day with all the traditional dances, tournaments, and costumes brought the atmosphere of Merrie England to Longwood dell on May Day, 1938.

On the village green, peasants danced a welcome, meeting and greeting friend and kin. Lads and lassies gathered their bit of May, while the debonair Robin Hood amused the crowd. Regal in satin and velvet, the Queen watched the festivities from her flower-wrought throne. Stately lords and ladies smiled and bowed in the courtly Pavane and Gaillard. The village folk hailed the traditional May Pole, and to the strains of rustic music wove in and out among the rainbow-colored streamers.

*M*AY Day with its intricate, clever, and fantastic dances displays the efforts and achievements of Orchestis. This is a local dance club organized mainly for the purpose of furthering the appreciation of the art of dance among the students. The members of this club have proved themselves appreciative artists in the Fundamental and Composition Classes. Under the able supervision of Mrs. Fitzpatrick, a recital of original compositions is given each year. This program is a colorful presentation of interpretative studies. The dances range in theme from humorous numbers to those based on various phases of life.

THE following girls were chosen by the student body from a list of names submitted by an unbiased committee as the eight most outstanding girls on the campus. The forceful Christianity of Elizabeth Morris, the winsome smile of Nan Seward, the utter honesty of Ruth Montgomery, the refreshing spontaneity of Mary Harrison Vaughan, Madeline McGlothlin's low-voiced initiative, Ruth Phelps's keen sportsmanship, the girlish sweetness of Carolyn Upshur, Norvell Montague's energetic efficiency are all caught and recaptured on these pages to be remembered forever as what kept the school traditions alive during the year 1937-'38.

SENIOR STATISTICS

Editor's Note: At any school some students are members of a large number of extra-curricular activities. Others, while excelling in their regular academic work, find it impossible to indulge in such extra-curricular work. In the obvious interest of democratic presentation, we, the editors, have lifted the list of activities from the regular Senior Section. However, realizing the importance attached to general activities we have listed below the name of each senior the organizations with which she has been affiliated.

Appreciation

AS the last picture is mounted, the last word written, as the 1938 VIRGINIAN finally goes to press, we pause a minute to give a backward glance, remembering the various stages of work in compiling these pages.

First there came Mr. Tommy Daniel of Dunbar & Daniel Studio armed with his photography equipment, taking individual pictures, planning poses for the feature section and arranging group pictures in characteristic backgrounds. Willingly, he gave his time and effort, and we feel that his personal interest in us has made our picture sections what they are.

Jahn & Ollier Engraving Company and J. P. Bell Company have deserved our thanks, too, for they have been patient and wise in engraving and printing our material. We have been indeed fortunate in our business relationships with these two companies.

All year Mr. T. A. McCorkle has been our able business adviser, never too tired to heed our demands. Miss Nancy Foster, Literary Adviser, Miss Virginia Bedford, Art Adviser, have been untiring in their efforts, too. We have felt always that they were backing us in all undertakings.

The Student Body have posed for pictures, paid for pictures, subscribed to the book, and willingly given statistics. For their consideration we are grateful. To the Staff of THE VIRGINIAN we are perhaps the most grateful. They have been excellent workers and dependable guardians of this book's "secrets."
