Dear Madama We hasten to reply to your letter of March 21st on our first opportunity after the recent holiday. It would be almost impossible for us to include your article with illustrations in our May number, and it could not as you point out be well postponed; moreover we hesitate to anticipate, in a manner, Professor Venturi's book. We therefore now return your article and photographs with regret, at the same time, if you would send us a brief note, in the form of a comment on Professor Venturi's lecture, of about 200 words we should be pleased to insert it under the heading Notes which appears for the first time on p. 57 of our April number. On reference to that number you will see that these notes refer to matters of immediate interest.

Yours faithfully
The Editors
