When God Turns The Trenches To Gardens Again

Words and Music by GILBERT C. TENNANT

Piano

Waltz Moderato

A fath-er and moth-er sit close to each oth-er, by the fire to - night, —
When God made cre - a - tion, he meant ev - ry na - tion to love each oth - er too, —

Both brok - en - heart - ed for they have just part - ed with one who had gone forth to fight; —
Some - how or oth - er they hate each oth - er, which he did not mean they should do; —

Things seem so lone - ly with - out him she sighs, He draws her close to his heart — And Think of the blood - shed that's caused thro' it all, Hearts that are brok - en to - day — If whis - pers "My dar - ling, tho' skies may be gray, Re - mem - ber we're do - ing our part! —

I could but do it, I'd lay down my life, If that would bring peace right a - way. — rall.

Refrain (tenderly)

When God turns the trenches to gar-dens a - gain, And the bloom of the rose scents the p-f air ——— When the fields are all cov-ered with bright gold - en grain, Where our

he-roes have fought o - ver there; ——— Tho' our hearts may grow heav-y and lone-ly, —

For the loved one we can-not re - gain, ——— Let our next gen-er - a - tion be proud of its na - tion, When God turns the trench-es to gar-dens a - gain. When gain.
