Yale Coach Speaks at Assembly

Place for Sports in College Scheme Is Outlined

Kanaly Urges Students To Balance Studies With Athletics

"Athletes possibly overlook the fact that they are not the whole issue," Frank M. Kanaly, Yale track coach, pointed out to University students and faculty at the Athletic Recognition Assembly held Tuesday in the Memorial Gymnasium. He went on to show how important is the cooperation of the treasurer, the manager, and the faculty with the coach and team.

Coach Kanaly's talk was entitled "The Value of Athletics in a College Career." He opened with a quotation of Dean Briggs of Harvard in "Harvard and the Individual," to the effect that one who shows a sincere interest in the welfare of others is bound to succeed. Kanaly recognized the importance of other phases of college life, although restricting himself to a discussion of athletics.

At Cornell, the veteran coach was much impressed by a placard announcing that "If by gaining knowledge we destroy our health, we gain a tool which is useless in our hands." At Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he encountered cases of breakdown from overstudy. One student, an experienced hurdler, he advised to quit track, but to continue to exercise. The student failed to keep in physical trim by any means, and at a certain time he insisted on entering without having trained. The coach advised against it, but the man insisted, with the result that he made no showing, knocking over hurdles and failing miserably. He went insane and never recovered.

Such cases, the coach said, indicate the need for a balance, an even development, scholastic and athletic. There is, in particular, a far greater chance for over-indulgence in the field of athletics than in other fields.

Men who participate in athletics make a better go of it in business than do others, Kanaly has found among such friends of his as an M.I.T. man now in Bethlehem Steel. This man stated athletic experience developed the personality of an individual so he could get a better start.

In the course of 32 years of experience, Kanaly says, he has carried away the fondest memories of the University of Maine. The gymnasium has been constructed since his day; tribute should go, he says, to the man without whom the structure would be impossible, William Sawyer.

The indoor track was built during Christmas vacation by the University track men themselves. Kanaly himself took the first lap around the track.

Women, Kanaly says, should receive the same support for their athletics that they give to the men. At a certain cross country meet in which the boys plodded doggedly on to a bitterly cold finish in snow and sleet, they were cheered on to the finish from opened windows of the girls' dormitory. The girls have always given loyal support to boys' sports, and it is time for the boys to reciprocate.

Kanally, himself an experienced and powerful speaker, emphasized the importance of ability and practice in public speaking, particularly for athletes, giving examples of English perfection in this and related fields. He recalled numerous amusing incidents such as the occasion when he was announced on an assembly program as Professor Kanaly, which gave Professor Weston occasion to remark that since they couldn't make the professors coaches, they made the coaches professors. He ended with a significant quotation:

"He who shuns the dust and heat of the arena shall not enjoy the cool shade and olive branch of victory."

NOTICE

All students who plan to teach should know that they will require a certificate issued by the State Department. Applications for these certificates will be filled out next spring, and Dean Lutes points out that a copy of the applicant's birth certificate must accompany the application. The birth certificate is usually obtainable from the town clerk. It is advisable to secure it during the coming vacation in order to avoid delay in the spring.

Ethelmae Currier Elected New Honorary Colonel at Ball Friday

The election of Ethelmae Currier as the new honorary lieutenant colonel of the Maine R.O.T.C. battalion featured the annual Military Ball held in Memorial Gymnasium Friday night. More than 200 couples attended the ball, which was sponsored by the Scabbard and Blade fraternity.

Miss Currier was given the certificate of office by Elizabeth Story, who won the distinction last year. Miss Currier is a member of the Y.W.C.A., Maine Outing Club, and the Home Economics Club. She comes from Caribou and is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

During intermission at the ball the new initiates into Scabbard and Blade were presented and then Ethelmae Currier, in recognition of her election to the honorary colonelcy, was led to the center of the gymnasium by James Dow, chairman of the Military Ball committee.

Carrying out the military idea, the walls were decorated with the crest of Scabbard and Blade. Huge piles of armaments were arranged in corners of the ballroom and scarlet and blue streamers adorned the ceiling. The feature of the program that was presented were "The Three Burnett Sisters."

The patrons and patronesses at the ball were Dr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Hauck; Colonel and Mrs. Robert K. Alcott; Dean

Proctor, Hunnewell, And Smith Elected Captains at Banquet

Dewey Proctor, Bill Hunnewell, and Don Smith were elected honorary captains of varsity football, varsity cross country, and freshman cross country, respectively, at the annual Athletic Banquet in Memorial Gymnasium recently.

Dewey Proctor, a senior, was one of the leading guards in the state, being a unanimous choice for All-State honors. He was a power in the line, both offensively and defensively.

Last week he was chosen All-New England guard by Bill Cunningham, sports writer on the Boston Post, and two weeks ago, he was given honorable mention on the Associated Press All-East football team. Last Sunday he was awarded honorable mention on the All-American small college team as chosen by the Associated Press.

His latest honor was made known a few days ago when T. S. Curtis, faculty manager of athletics at the University, received word that Proctor had been selected on the second All-American team chosen by Stanley Woodward.

Proctor was also one of the leading place-kickers in the country. Bill Hunnewell has been, since his entrance into Maine, one of the leading harriers of the nation. During his first year, he was national freshman cross country champion.

Last fall Hunnewell won the New England intercollegiate championship and finished quite high in the Nationals. He attained the peak of his glory, however, this year. In the Nationals, Madison Bill finished fourth against the best harriers of the nation.

Don Smith, the freshman cross country captain, was the freshman New England cross country champion this fall. He also took sixth place in the Nationals against former interscholastic champions from all sections of the nation. Although starting the season rather slowly, Smith soon rounded into good condition until, today, he is rated as one of the most promising runners to have ever entered Maine.

High School Editors In Conference Here

The annual two day journalistic conference was held by the department of English last Friday and Saturday. Thirty-seven delegates from 14 secondary schools attended the conference.

Friday's program consisted of round table discussions. On Saturday lectures were delivered by Reginald Coggeshall, professor of journalism at the University, and by Thomas E. Lynch, editor of the Prism.

The conference started Friday at 3:30 by a meeting of the representatives. After the meeting the delegates were greeted by Dean Edward J. Allen of the College of Arts and Sciences, Milton Ellis, professor of English at Maine, Oliver Eldridge, editor-in-chief of the Maine Campus, and Thomas E. Lynch, editor of the Maine Prism.

At 4:30 Edward Kelley, the faculty adviser of the Maine Prism, discussed problems which face year book editors and managers. Professor Reginald Coggeshall, of the department of journalism at the University, spoke to another group on the functions of the school paper.

The representatives criticized each other's magazines at a round table discussion at 5:30.

Friday's portion of the conference was ended by a dinner at the Log Cabin in Orono. Professor Reginald Coggeshall and Professor Charles J. Rohr spoke after the dinner.

Saturday's part of the conference was begun at 9 o'clock by Mr. Thurston Thompson, a Bangor printer, who discussed art layout and printing problems that face the yearbook and periodical publisher. At the same time Professor Coggeshall spoke to another group on the form of the news story.

The editor of the student year book at the University, Thomas E. Lynch, of South Portland, discussed, "What Goes Into a Year Book," at 10 o'clock. After Lynch's talk, Professor Reginald Coggeshall talked on "Literary Aspects of the Student Year-book and Newspaper."

The session was concluded by a luncheon at noon after a general meeting of the delegates.

Dean Allen To Attend Two Conferences During Vacation

Dean Edward J. Allen of the College of Arts and Sciences will attend the 23rd Annual Meeting of the Association of American Colleges to be held at Hotel Mayflower in Washington, D. C., Thursday and Friday, January 14 and 15. The main theme under discussion at this meeting will be "Contribution to Liberal Education in the College."

Dean Allen will also attend a meeting of the American Economic Association in Chicago to be held a few days after Christmas.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

*Christmas is here;
Winds whistle shrill,
Icy and chill.
Little care we;
Little we fear
Weather without,
Sheltered about

The Campus wishes all its readers a truly merry Christmas and the best of good fortune for the coming year.

The next Campus will appear on January 14, 1937.

Vocational Week Set for January

Prof. Magoun Will Speak At Three-day Program For All Classes

Professor F. Alexander Magoun, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will be one of the main speakers on the Vocational Week program of the University during the second week of January, according to Philip J. Brockway, Placement Director. Professor Magoun, who has had wide experience in placement and personnel work, will conduct an extensive program concerned with the details and procedures of job application, especially for senior and junior students, but including interested undergraduates.

In addition to the activities to be conducted by Professor Magoun a detailed three-day program is being planned by the individual colleges, during which information about occupations will be presented to students of all classes through the cooperation of business and professional men. Some of the types of work it is hoped to include are the professions of medicine, law, banking, insurance, agricultural credit work, sales engineering, pulp and paper, public utilities, chain stores, dairy and ice cream industries, aviation, transportation, and chemistry, in addition to a number of other important occupational fields.

As the climax of this program, Professor Magoun will conduct practice interviews with seniors, read and comment on letters of application written by the students, and present in detail the problems and principles of how to go about getting a job. By imitating the actual conditions of job interviews and applications Professor Magoun will offer seniors an opportunity to benefit by his years of experience at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and in industry. By means of his criticism, mistakes and weaknesses in methods of job application will be shown to seniors and ways of improvement demonstrated. By actual practice interviews, seniors will be enabled to participate and learn by doing, and the criticism of application letters from students will illustrate right and wrong methods in this aspect of job-seeking.

A number of business and professional men are being invited to participate in this program for the benefit of students of all classes of the University. General talks by the participating speakers will be followed by questions and round-table discussion with an opportunity in some cases for individual interviews with students afterward.

This is the first time in the history of the University that a program of intensive vocational information derived from the experience of successful men in the world of business, industry, and the professions has been attempted. Through the interest of all the colleges of the University and the generous cooperation of the local and national business men this program is designed to assist undergraduates to make a more intelligent choice of an occupation and a more effective approach to the problems of job-getting.

Winner Takes 37 Men Delta Tau Second With 25

LIST MADE PUBLIC

A.T.O.'s Two Year Lead Is Upset As Frosh Make Choices

Fraternity rushing officially closed Monday afternoon when 279 freshmen, 55 more than at the close of rushing last year, pledged to 15 Maine fraternities.

Phi Eta Kappa shattered the fraternity pledging record by pledging a total of 37 men. The previous record held by Alpha Tau Omega for two years was 33 on the pledging date. A few more names were later added.

Following Phi Eta Kappa were seven houses all closely grouped. Delta Tau Delta captured second position with 25. Then came Phi Mu Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon with 24 each in a tie for third. Kappa Sigma had 22. Twenty freshmen went Sigma Chi, while Phi Gamma Delta and Alpha Tau Omega pledged nineteen.

A Call for Student Opinion

Throughout the fall the Campus has been lamentably lacking in student support of its correspondence column. Only one letter has been printed since the first issue in September. This is not as it should be.

As a campus newspaper it is the aim of the Campus not only to report news but to provide a medium for the expression of student opinion. There are numerous subjects that arise out of fraternity "bull sessions" and daily discussion that should receive consideration on our pages. If students are interested in talking about such matters, it stands to reason that they will be glad to read about them. Healthy criticism should not be lacking at any college.

Let us have more student opinion in the Campus. Anonymity may be secured by the author of a communication by indicating a pen name as well as his real name.

Out of State Bands

At the unanimous request of the social chairmen of campus societies and organizations last year, out of state dance bands were finally approved for use for large formal dances. It was then believed that the quality of music at these affairs would be greatly improved. There had been considerable dissatisfaction among students with conditions as they had been, and in particular with one orchestra which, strangely enough, seemed to be monopolizing the big formal at the University. It was hoped that a better quality and variety of dance music would be obtained by this action.

The experience during the past year, however, has indicated other considerations which tend to place the out of state bands in a less favorable light. Due to the distance from a metropolitan center and the high costs of the best bands, the results still have been far from satisfactory. Apparently only second-rate bands are available and many have been of the opinion that in quality they were in no way superior to local band organizations. They also have proved themselves undependable. On two occasions dance committees have been embarrassed when orchestras failed to appear on time.

Perhaps the solution to the situation lies in contracting in the future for a local band with several extra pieces.

A First Step in Job-Hunting

That the senior in the University today has a far greater chance of getting a position upon graduation than could be afforded to a similar graduate several years ago is largely due to the efforts of the Placement Bureau which has conducted a steadily expanding program of assistance to seniors in their quest for jobs.

For the week of January 13 has been planned a valuable program of vocational guidance which is designed to help the senior to an intelligent choice of his life work and to instruct him in the best way to go about getting a position which he desires.

Needless to say it will be to the best interest of every senior to participate in this program in as far as he is able.

Faculty Papers Will Be Read at Meetings

Four members of the faculty of the University of Maine will read papers at meetings of learned societies during the Christmas holidays, and a score of the various staffs will attend conferences.

Three of the papers will be given by members of the faculty of the College of Agriculture. Prof. E. R. Hitchner will present a paper on "Bacteriostatic Action of Brilliant Green on the Colon-aerogenes Group of Bacterium" before the Society of American Bacteriologists at Indianapolis. Prof. George P. Steinbauer will speak on "Dormancy in Germination of Fraxinus Seeds" to the section of American Society of Plant Physiologists at the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Atlantic City.

Prof. James H. Waring will read a paper on "Winter Injury Study with the Apple in Maine" prepared in cooperation with M. T. Hilborn, to the American Society of Horticultural Science at the A.A.S. meeting. Margery J. Greene of the zoology department of the College of Arts and Sciences will give a paper on "The Significance of Trichopteran Larvae in the Study of Invertebrate Animals with Slow Blood Circulation" to the Entomological division of the A.A.S.

Prof. C. O. Dirks, Prof. Fay Hyland, Prof. J. Thomas Pedlow, Prof. S. M. Raleigh, and Prof. W. C. Libby, all of the College of Agriculture, will attend the A.A.S. meetings, Prof. M. E. Highlands will attend the Indianapolis meeting with Prof. Hitchner. Other members of the staff of the agricultural college attending meetings are: Prof. Maurice D. Jones and William E. Schrupf, the Farm Economic Association at Chicago.

Four members of the department of history in the College of Arts and Sciences will attend the meeting of the American Historical Association at Providence. They are Prof. Albert A. Whitmore, Prof. E. Faye Wilson, Prof. Rising L.

Oak Contest Winners

Artemus Weatherbee '39, of Bangor, who placed second in the Maine preliminaries for the inter-collegiate peace speaking contest held last spring, won first place and $25 in the finals of the John M. Oak speaking contest held last evening at 8 o'clock in the Little Theatre. The subject of Weatherbee's address was "Peace by Education."

Second place went to Sargent Russell '37, who spoke on "Public Ownership of Electric Utilities." Oliver Eldridge was third with a talk on "Teachers' Oaths." The second and third place winners received $10 and $5 respectively.

Morrow, and George E. McReynolds, Miss Wilson will also carry on some research work at Widener Library, Harvard University.

Dean Edward J. Allen of the College of Arts and Sciences will attend the meeting of the American Economic Association at Chicago.

Walter S. Neff of the department of psychology will attend the A.A.S. sessions.

Delta Tau Delta held a vic party Friday evening with Mrs. Graffam as chaperon.

Among those present were: John Haggatt, Gertrude Garcelon; Roger Bouchard, Iris Guion; Lloyd Hatfield, Madeline Jones; Robert Harvey, Amy Wood; Carl Toothaker, Dorothy Phair; Albert Bahrt, Dorothy Hines; Albert Bouchard, Julia Moynihan; William Kinney, Maxine Cates; Russell Gamage, Anna Simpson; Kenneth Bouchard, Margaret Peaslee; Eugene McLaughlin; Elizabeth Mulholland; Kenneth Burr, Helen Grace Lancaster; Robert Sherman, Ferne Hunt; Conrad McDowell, Blanche Castonguay; Lawrence Frederickson, Ruth Damery.

Neither Here Nor There

By Bill Cumerford

Girls in cellophane raincoats of variegated hues are invariably reminiscent of stick candy wrapped in colored paper, ready to hang on a Christmas tree—and Christmas is in the air. Somehow it all seems just another excuse for remembering—there are still some memories hilariously funny—yet all of them are a bit sad because they are only the fragments that remain of lost childhoods.

There was always something very noble about giving a cousin a gift that one could have used easily—even when one was certain that the cousin was going to pay just as much for an exchange present—Santa Claus caught his beard on fire from a candle on the tree; peering from singed remnants was the Sunday School Superintendent—the parties in holly-windowed houses that one walked to through the clear cold night—gangling girls stood through hopeful moments under the mistletoe over the door, while oblivious-eyed boys lunged awkwardly around the walls wondering why the fool girls didn't sit down. Later in the night there would be singing over the sleeping town as the carolers wandered from house to house.

Not meaning to be critical, but after those comments of the Maine co-eds about the eds printed herein last week; we assembled the following additional material from both sides: The men say they don't like these things in women: bright red fingernails, giggling, screaming, cattiness, "screwy" hats, false sophistication, too much chatter, exposed slips and shoulder straps. The girls felt that they didn't like these things in men: dirty fingernails, short haircuts, plaid shirts, sloppy appearances, bullying attitudes, bow ties, bristly cheeks, crooked hair parts, and humming in partner's ear while dancing—Laugh it off—a matter of opinion anyway.

Back to the exams we must face on our return—we are glad to note that a college in the west is going over to the "no quiz, no marks" system. It's about time this mad chase for "A's" and "B's" and other pedagogical symbols was stopped. For a while there, it was getting so the students would do almost anything for grades. They'd even work for them.

Under this new system (or so it seems) you stay a psychic distance from your instructors and your classes and your books and just go to the football games and the dances. Thus you can get all of the advantages of a higher education without having to learn anything.

The pay-off of the whole week was this story we heard about a loyal Maine rooter a few days ago:

A kindly citizen, passing by an apartment house in Bangor in the wee hours of the morn, saw a man dropped against the doorway.

"What's the matter?" he asked.
 "Drunk?"
 "Yep."
 "Live in this house?"
 "Yep."
 "Want me to help you upstairs?"
 "Yep."

With much difficulty he half dragged, half carried the Maine man up the stairway to his second floor.

"This the floor you live on?"
 "Yep."
 Rather than face an irate wife who might perhaps take him for a casual element, he opened the first door he came to and dropped the limp figure inside. He groped his way downstairs again. Going through the vestibule, he came across another man, worse off than the first.

"What's the matter—drunk?"
 "Yep," was the feeble reply.
 "Live upstairs?"
 "Yep."

The good samaritan half carried him to the second floor, opened the same door and pushed him in.

Coming down again, he came across a third man, even worse off than the other two, more dishevelled, and bleeding from wounds on his head and face. He started for the man, when the drunk rushed out into the street and threw himself into the arms of a passing policeman.

"For Heavensake, off'er," he gasped, "protect me from this man. Hesh done nothin' all night long but drag me upstairs and throw me down the elevator shaft!"

A series of one day schools for florists was conducted last week in Bangor, Augusta, and Portland, under the leadership of Professor Roger Clapp, of the Department of Horticulture, assisted by Dr. F. H. Steinmetz and Dr. Charles O. Dirks, of the Department of Botany and Entomology.

The program presented by the faculty members included discussions on light and temperature responses in plants, plant disease control, insect control, greenhouse soil and its fertility, followed by a written examination and a round table discussion.

A Cabaret will be held by the Pale Blue Key society on the evening of January 15. Features are to include a floor show, refreshments, and dance music.

Tickets will be sold for table reservations, and only couples are to be admitted.

In The Library

By Jane Stillman

"More Poems" of A. E. Housman have the same controlled, epigrammatic quality which characterizes his two slim books of lyrics, "The Shropshire Lad" and "Last Poems." "Published by his permission, not by his wish" explains his brother, Laurence Housman, in the preface. Housman left the responsibility of publication to his brother along with the order to destroy "all other poems and fragments of verse." ($2.00, 71 pages)

This book is not about the "Shropshire lad" grown-up, but is a collection of poems which cover a range of years, some of which just missed appearing in that book. The simplicity of structure is here, retaining the elements of crystal strength. Still the impeccable lyricist, Housman combines his appreciation of nature with his philosophy of defeat.

"The snows are fled away, leaves on the shaws
 And grasses in the mead renew their birth,
 The river to the river-bed withdraws,
 And altered is the fashion of the earth."

The following is self-explanatory, embodying the reason for allowing the poems to be published.

"They say my verse is sad: no wonder;
 Its narrow measure spans
 Tears of eternity, and sorrow,
 Not mine, but man's."

"This is for all ill-treated fellows
 Unborn and unbegot,
 For them to read when they're in trouble
 And I am not."

Housman has the ability to twirl the rudiments of language between his fingers, thus causing average words to appear in poems which have the perfection of a master-craftsman and the vitality of a genius.

"Nothing: too near at hand,
 Planning the figured sand,
 Effacing clean and fast
 Cities not built to last
 And charms devised in vain,
 Pours the confounding main."

the lunatic asylum where he has been confined and returns to Margaret, apparently cured. Sydney Fairfield now finds that there is insanity in the family and realizing the impossibility of marrying Kit Humphrey, the boy to whom she is engaged, urges her mother to go through with her plans to marry Gray, while she, the flesh and blood of Hilary, remains with him, giving up Kit. Aunt Hester sprinkles humor through the serious play, and Bassett, Dr. Alliot, and the Bishop seem at times the only ones not almost incensed with the agonizing complexity of the depressing situation.

Madeline Davis and Mary Leighton made their debut in Masque productions Wednesday night, Neil Sawyer and Bernice Hamilton appeared last year in "Bird in Hand," and William Whiting, Marion Hatch, and Clark Kunev have appeared in a number of Masque productions in the past.

Johnny Gowell Leads Juniors to Victory

Track Records Fall As Class of '38 Retains Title

By Erwin Cooper

Led by blond Johnny Gowell, the well balanced junior class track team emerged the victor in the annual interclass track meet held in the indoor field by running up 48 points. The freshman team showed unexpected strength as it finished second, followed by the seniors and a sophomore aggregation weakened by the absence of many of its best performers.

High scorer of the meet was Johnny Gowell who equaled one college record and two others as he contributed 15 points to his class's winning total. The blond junior, running in his first competition of the year, stepped out in the 45 yd. high hurdles to equal his own college record of six seconds which he set last year. However, he was not yet warmed up to the afternoon's work for a little while later he skimmed the 100 yard low hurdles to establish a new college record at eleven seconds, breaking a record which was made in 1930. Gowell simply would not be stopped. Competing in his third event of the afternoon he broke the broad jump record when he leaped 22 ft. 5 5/8 in.

Murray, senior sprint star, easily won the 100 yard dash and then went on to win the 220 from Sid Hurwitz, speedy junior. Hurwitz, however, had previously stepped away from the field in the 440 to win by at least 15 yards over long-legged Sherwood Edwards, sophomore. Dingwall, a senior, ran third.

Bill Hunnewell outclassed his opponents in the two mile run as he more than lapped the field. One of the thrills of the day came in the battle for second place between Alvin Hersey, a junior, and John Dequine, freshman distance runner. The yearling had trailed Hersey all during the race when suddenly with about three-quarters of a lap to go he let go with a sprint that carried him by Hersey.

Don Smith, the great Freshman star, ran the mile in 4 minutes 39 and 2-5 seconds as he led "Shadow" Mowatt, varsity cross country man, to the tape.

Ed Mitchell, having on the previous Saturday bettered the freshman record in the shot put, nearly broke the college record when his heave of 45 ft. 9 5/8 inches failed to clear the standing indoor mark by two inches.

Wally Hardison pole vaulted to 11 ft. 7 in. to win the junior's sixth first place of the afternoon. Two freshmen, Weaver and Philbrook, tied for second place. Harold Webb cleared the high jump bar at 6 ft. 1/2 in to win his specialty.

Fraternity houses at the University of Florida lodge more than 100 more students than the dormitories. The fraternities have 600 men, while the dormitories have 491.

Preparations for Intramural Basketball Nearly Completed

Preparations for the intramural basketball season are nearly completed. Referees have been appointed and the new schedule will soon be announced.

The Athletic Association has made no final decision yet, but it is expected that plans will be made for intramural handball competition.

Wells Again Reduced Frosh Squad, Retaining 25 Men

Coach Wells again reduced the freshman basketball squad last Monday. Five men were dropped, leaving 25 candidates for the five first string positions.

During the middle of the week the freshmen had practice scrimmages with the Varsity squad. The team showed a remarkable improvement since the opening of the season. After the Christmas recess the boys will make their first public appearance in a game against Old Town High School on January 9.

Since school began there have been classes three times a week on boxing instruction under the direction of Jack Thompson. These classes are mainly to teach beginners the pugilistic art.

This instruction is given Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 3:30 to 5 o'clock in the boxing room at Memorial Gymnasium, and may be taken in place of physical training.

The men usually follow a routine which consists of exercising, punching the light and heavy bag, jumping rope, and boxing two or three rounds.

"Fatty" Clark, the 355-pound guard who played with the University of Arkansas in 1930 and '31, was the largest college football player in the world.

More than $1,000 worth of valuables have been stolen from fraternity houses on the campus of Washington and Lee University this semester.

Over a million students entered institutions of higher learning this fall. Thirty-three of each hundred of the 1936 high school graduates are now college freshmen.

BEAR FACTS

By Bill Saltzman

Dewey Proctor again... We can't seem to leave Dewey Proctor, All-Maine football guard, alone. Last week we mentioned the fact that Proctor had been selected as a guard on Bill Cunningham's All-New England eleven and had been given honorable mention on the Associated Press All-American team.

But today we have even better news about Mr. Proctor. Believe it or not, Dewey was chosen on the second team of an All-American aggregation. Stanley Woodward, one of the leading football writers in the country and president of the American Football Writers' Association, selected Proctor as left guard of the second eleven of his Real All-American team. Woodward was aided in his selection by 65 football coaches, professional scouts, and football writers throughout the country.

Incidentally, Francis Smith, Joe Hamlin, and Roddy Elliott were all given honorable mention on this same team.

Shame on you, Arts and Sciences... An athletic assembly, with Frank Kanaly, track coach at Yale, as principal speaker, was held Tuesday morning in Memorial Gymnasium. Although a large attendance was present, it seemed as if the assembly had been forgotten by members of the faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences. At least the number of faculty members of this college was very small. Technology and Agriculture were well represented, but Arts and Sciences faculty members were conspicuous by their absence.

In past years faculty members of the College of Arts and Sciences have complained over poor attendance at assemblies. They have scolded students for not listening to learned professors. Yet, these same college professors and instructors do not attend an assembly when it is outside their own field.

We grant these professors that athletics may be remote from their ideas. But we do think that they should have shown at least fair play by attending an athletic assembly.

Highlights on Interclass Meet... Johnny Gowell certainly went to town... Two records and a tie in another, not bad at all... This may be telling tales outside of school, but we understand that Shadow Mowatt, who was not in his usual form in the mile, was up at 3 o'clock in the morning prior to the meet. Shadow had not figured on Don Smith and thought that he could take the race even without sleep. Let this be a good lesson to you, Shadow... Announcer Cooper was off-form. Said Cooper after one event had been held: Results of the 440 yard run—Hurwitz, first; time 51 minutes 1-5 seconds—Correction, 51 and 1-5 seconds flat... Johnny Hagggett seemed in old time form as he won the 880 yard run... Joel Marsh, former national great in this run and now a graduate student, jogged around the track with Hagggett during the race, but couldn't quite keep up the pace that Johnny set. Despite this factor, Marsh finished second—unofficially, of course—only about 10 yards behind Hagggett.

The All-Maine Hockey team was announced Tuesday evening at the hockey rally. The team is chosen by the four class captains, W. A. A. council, hockey managers, and the girls' athletic department. The girls honored this year are Elizabeth Story '37, center-forward; Lorna Robbins '40, left inner; Mary Helen Raye '38, right inner; Ruby Black '37, left wing; Lucy Cobb '38, right wing; Elizabeth Ashby '37, right half; Mary Deering '38, left half; Laura Chute '39, center half; Betty Littlefield '38, left full; Henrietta Cliff '37, right full; Jane Holmes '40, goalie.

At the same rally the Junior team received silver pins in the shape of hockey sticks as a reward for winning the tournament.

The following girls received their letters for the first time: Audrey Bishop '37, Lucy Cobb '38, Mary Deering '38, Margaret Hinckley '38, Mabel Mayhew '38, Cora Sharon '38, Elizabeth Henry '39.

Madeline Davis '38, Margaret Lowell '38, Georgia Taylor '38, Betty Holmans '39, Jane Holmes '40, Lorna Robbins '40 received their numerals for the first time.

Elizabeth Story '37 received the Maine Seal, the highest reward for athletic achievement that girls can obtain.

The basketball meeting last Saturday was well attended by coaches, officials, and about seventy-five students of ten high schools. The interpretation and demonstration were given by sophomore and freshman girls in games in charge of Elizabeth Story and Elizabeth Ashby.

Ben Ela, Joe Hamlin Are New Recruits For Basketball

Bill Kenyon sent the basketball team through its last workout of the year today as the men began making preparations for a 20 days' Christmas vacation. There will be no more regular practice sessions before next year, but there will probably be an opportunity for a few to work out for a short while before school reopens.

This week the varsity tangled a couple of times with the freshmen. This plan was devised by the coaching staff to take care of the whole of both squads, they being badly pressed for time. The varsity group was divided into two divisions, and they took turns with the first year men.

No set lineup has been decided upon even at this late date. Each combination that plays together seems to meet its match with some other quintet, and the Maine mentor is rather puzzled over what to do.

The reporting of Ben Ela and Joe Hamlin has added to the confusion. Both of these men are good, and there will have to be a space found for them somewhere.

In the scrimmages against the Frosh, Joe had everyone wondering just what he was going to do next. Ben is the type of a player who never bears down in practice, but when the real competition starts, is right in the middle of the fighting.
