Foreword

In 1972, two Annual Conferences, both Methodist, both named "The South Carolina Conference", merged to form "The South Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church."

This book contains the names of those who served this Conference during the year 1974-75, either as retired members, probationary members, lay pastors, special appointees, or as members of the Conference under pastoral appointment.

When possible, it also contains biographical material and a picture of each minister. Early plans to include a self-"characterization of ministry" were abandoned in the interests of economy of space and uniformity of format.

Space limitations also made abbreviations necessary, and forced the decision to confine the publication to factual statements regarding the life of each minister. These facts have been furnished by each minister or a member of his family. If they have not been submitted, or their use has not been agreed to in the uniform style of the book, the name is listed with "no information furnished."

Following the receipt of biographical material, typescripts of the copy were furnished for correction by the biographee. From these corrected copies type was set by the printer. "Proofs" were then mailed to each minister for correction. Unfortunately, the extensive emendations of copy which some requested at this stage could not be made. And some late submissions of first-time material could not be returned for correction.

All of this is by way of saying that the book is as accurate as the limitations of deadlines allow it to be. It was the understanding of the Committee and the Editor that publication was desired by the meeting of the Annual Conference in June, 1975. Toward this we have aimed. A later deadline which would have made possible the inclusion of new material, of 1975-76 appointments, changes of address, and newly admitted Probationary members, would have delayed publication by another three months.

In the former "South Carolina Conference" which listed 1785 as its organizing date, six editions of biographical sketches and photographs of Methodist ministers preceded this one. Each of these was characteristic of the time in which it was published. Twentieth Century Sketches (1901) and Revised (1914), gave insight into the life and character of each biographee. Both were edited by Watson Boone Duncan.

Eighteen years later, Builders was edited in 1932 by E. O. Watson. It included historical accounts of the Conference's beginnings, institutions of the Conference, and photographs of some outstanding churches as well as the biographies and photographs of the ministers.

In 1943, George K. Way and C. E. Peele edited a volume of sketches and pictures. A similar volume appeared in 1952, edited by Mr. Way. In these, historical material was limited to a listing of General and Jurisdictional Conference delegates and alternates, and the names of ministers who died or otherwise terminated their Conference membership during the period covered.

In the editions of 1943 and 1952, the biographical section was followed by the photographs. Essentially the same format was adopted for the 1961 edition, edited by Adlai C. Holler.

The current edition reverts to the earlier format, in which pictures and sketches are published together. It is hoped that this will make reference and recognition easier for the reader.

The story of Merger, which is reflected in this volume, must await the historian's labors.

Suffice it to say here that in the third year of the "South Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church", formed from the Conferences of 1785 and 1866, the Editor and Committee are pleased to offer this book in dedication to all of those persons, known and unknown, who have committed their lives to "making Merger work."

In Appreciation

The Committee and Editor thank Mrs. Charles (Mary B.) Goode for the extraordinary effort involved in typing the biographical sketches; to Harry White for arranging for much of the photography in this book; to Thad Herbert, conference treasurer, for handling the funds; and to the ministers who cooperated in supplying the information and photographs of which this book is made.
