SPECIAL FEATURES: PAPERS FROM THE AMERICAN INDIAN LAW REVIEW'S 25TH ANNIVERSARY SYMPOSIUM

INTRODUCTION

The 1997-98 American Indian Law Review editorial board started planning for a 25th Anniversary celebration in August 1997. We decided that the best way we could celebrate the existence of the Review was by publishing two special anniversary issues and present one of the special issues at a symposium focusing on where we have been and where we are headed in Indian law. We succeeded with our plans and goals. On March 21, 1998, the Review hosted a symposium titled, "American Indian Law & Policy Symposium: Looking Back at 25 Years of Indian Law: Where Are We and Where Are We Going?" The following articles in this special features section were original presentations given at the 25th Anniversary American Indian Law & Policy Symposium.

When we planned to publish the papers from the 25th Anniversary American Indian Law & Policy Symposium, we expected that the process would be quick and easy. However, as with most things in life, we ran into problems. Many of the speakers are busy people who work hard in the Indian Law field. We received several late submissions, which did not allow time for adequate editing. Therefore, additional material will be published this fall in volume 24, number 1 of the Review. We apologize for any inconvenience this may cause.
