Mignon towers

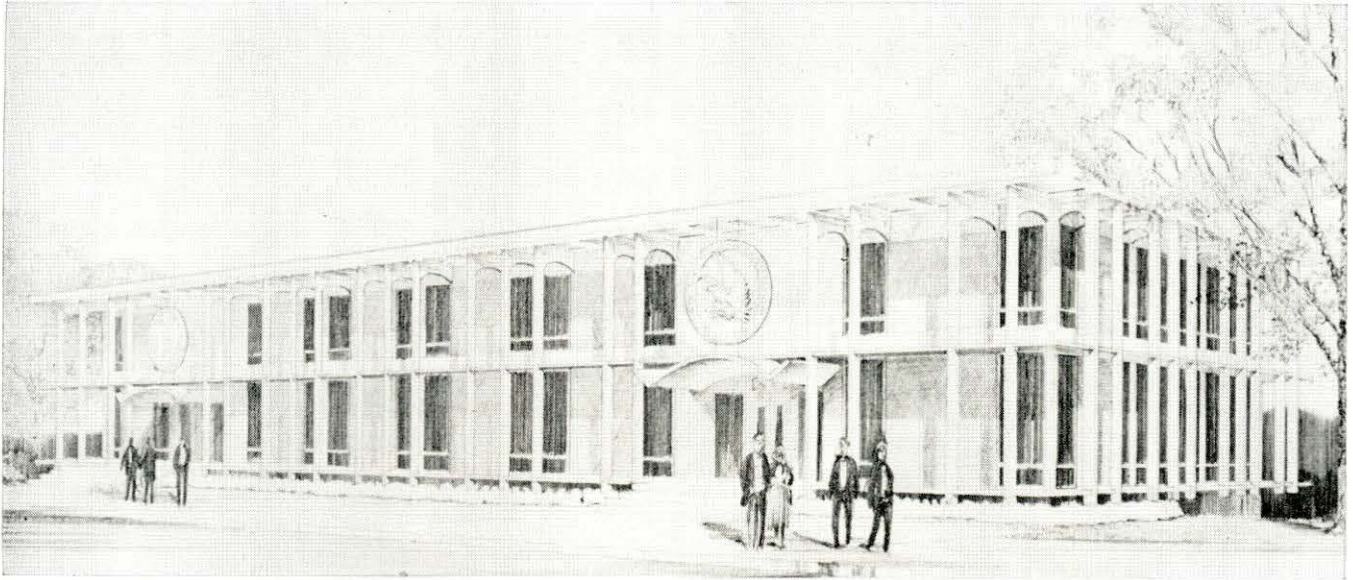

REACHING NEW HEIGHTS—Construction is expected to start October 1 on the 16-story, circular Mignon Tower on the Morehead State College campus. The $1,500,000 residence hall will house 300 women in 75 suites. It will have a sun deck and lounge on the top level and will be the tallest structure in Kentucky east of Lexington. The circular building is the final residence hall in the four-unit complex named for Mignon Doran, wife of Morehead president Adron Doran. The complex was designed by Clark and Associates, Lexington.

Alumni towers

New Alumni Towers—A 12-story, twin-tower men's residence hall costing $2,300,000 will be constructed on the Morehead State College campus. The air-conditioned structure, which will house 400 men, will have a dining hall seating 500. Construction is expected to be underway this fall, said Dr. Adron Doran, President of Morehead State College, the structure was named Alumni Towers in honor of the 6,294 graduates of Morehead State College.

New Morehead Addition—Construction on a third level of the Morehead State College administration building is expected to begin soon. The $250,000 addition will provide additional space for the Dean of Students and federal program offices, the Director of Graduate Studies, the Director of Admissions and a computing center for instructional purposes. The 15,000 square feet addition was designed by Clark and Associates, Lexington. The structure, built on a hillside, will have two-levels facing College Boulevard as seen in this drawing and will be a three-level structure facing College Street at the rear.

1965 To Be Boom Year For Construction At Morehead

The value of the Morehead State College physical plant has increased over 300 percent since 1954. Since that date facilities have been constructed at such a pace that Morehead is one of the fastest growing institutions of higher education in the nation today.

The Industrial Appraisal Company made a study and listed the physical plant value of the college in 1954 at $5,514,350. Construction at the college this year alone will exceed $10 million.

Ten major structures will have been completed or are under construction this year. They are:

Cooper Hall, $850,000; East Mignon Hall, $920,000; Breckinridge T. S. Addition, $750,000; Maintenance Building, $200,000; Perkins Hall, $196,000; Lappin Hall Addition, $1,320,000; Health and Physical Education Building, $1, 140,000; Administration Building Addition, $250,000; 12-story mens dormitory, $2,400,000; and 16-story Mignon Towers, $1,500,000.

Other expansion in 1965 will include Button renovation, $140,000, and utilities expansion, $495,000.

A steady construction program has been carried out the past decade. Major projects completed since 1954 include: Fieldhouse, $607,700; Doran Student House, $656,031; Harry Waterfield Hall, $1,150,000; 100-unit Lakewood Terrace, $949,706; Bert Combs Classroom Buildings, $1,315,703; Butler Hall, $725,800; Wilson Hall, $841,121; Industrial Arts and Home Economics Building, $1,044,337; Administration Building, $427,891; Mignon Hall, $1,150,826; Regents Hall, $842,318; Carter Hall, $221,345; Baird Music Addition, $463,727; Boiler and Steam Line, $440,519; Lappin Hall re-equipping, $97,000; campus-wide renovations, $43,657; Breathitt Sports Center, $600,000; West Mignon Hall, $975,471; Clifford Rader Hall renovation, $42,000; Palmer House renovation, $25,000; Library Addition, $843,000; Mass Communications Network, $24,000; Faculty Duplexes, $124,300; and numerous other projects.

The Morehead Board of Regents has approved the investigation of a second campus site close to the Cave Run Dam which the Federal Government is constructing at a cost over $35 million.

All indications are that Morehead State College will experience greater success in the next decade than in the glorious one just passed. Morehead is spearheading a drive for quality education which is being felt across the nation and will serve as a model for the future.

Roger Meade On Staff Of Wittenburg University

Roger C. Meade, who earned the bachelor of arts degree from Morehead in 1960 and the master of arts in guidance and counseling the following year, has just completed a very successful year as a member of the Dean of Students staff of Wittenburg University, Springfield, Ohio.

Meade has taken over as head resident of Myers Hall which dates back to the 1840's. This building was the original college building and has served in a number of capacities. For a number of decades the building has been a residence hall for men.

"With Diann, his lovely wife, helping him Roger has turned Myers Hall into one of the more desirable housing assignments on the campus," said Wittenburg Dean Robert O. Long.

Mrs. Meade graduated with highest distinction in languages from Morehead and is now teaching in Springfield.

"Roger has that rare capacity to provide a disciplined living context yet providing freedom for self-expression and relief from the oppression that normally goes with discipline," Dean Long said.

Under his direction the hall is pursuing an active social and athletic program. Several new traditions have been pioneered under his supervision, Dean Long said. "Under Roger's direction the hall has improved its academic performance drastically over the work of previous years," Dean Long said, "and study conditions are good. Roger is always available for helpful counseling."

"We are delighted to have Roger with us and hope he continues for a long time. His contributions to Wittenburg have been notable, not the least of which has been, the first son born in Myers Hall. So it is that we now have a head resident staff of three!"

The Meades have the one son, Roger Bryan.

President Doran Heads N.E.A. Commission

Dr. Adron Doran, President of Morehead State College, has been named Chairman of the National Education Association Legislative Commission.

The appointment became effective July 1. Dr. Doran has been a member of the 11-man Legislative Commission for the past year.

During the past year, the Kentucky educator has travelled extensively representing the NEA and testified several times before legislative and governmental bodies on behalf of educational legislation.

His testimony on behalf of the elementary—secondary education act and appearance before the Democratic Platform Committee prior to the Democratic convention were highlights of the year.

Dr. Simpson Named Division Chairman

Dr. William C. Simpson, Associate Professor of Physics at the Georgia Institute of Technology, has been named Chairman of the Division of Science and Mathematics at Morehead State College. Dr. Simpson, who has been at Georgia Tech since 1955, will assume his duties at the beginning of the summer term, Morehead President Adron Doran said today.

He replaces Dr. William B. Owsley who was named Dean of Kentucky Wesleyan College last September. A three-man committee has functioned in the capacity of the Division Chairman during the interim.

"We have made a careful, thorough search in looking for the caliber of individual to replace Dr. Owsley whom we felt met all of our qualifications," said Dr. Doran,

"and we found in Dr. Simpson an outstanding man whose training and experience eminently qualify him for this position."

Dr. Simpson, who will hold the rank of professor of physics, earned the AB degree from Mercer University, the MS degree from the University of Kentucky and the PhD degree from the University of Virginia.

While at Georgia Tech, Dr. Simpson also held the position of Research Associate at the Engineering Experiment Station and has had numerous articles published in scholarly journals.

He served as an officer in the U.S. Navy from 1943 to 1946 and from 1951 to 1953 and has served as a visiting faculty member at the Oak Ridge School of Reactor Technology, Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Honorary Life Members

LIFETIME MEMBERS—These individuals were recently recognized by the Morehead State College Alumni Association for devoted service to the College and the Association. Presented Honorary Life Membership—the highest award given by the Alumni Association—were: (seated, l to r) Lloyd Cassity, a past president of the Association from Ashland; Morehead President Adron Doran; Mrs. Doran; Gabriel C. Banks, professor emeritus; (standing, l to r) Arthur McKechnie, a member of the Northern Kentucky Alumni Chapter coordinating committee from Cincinnati; Ray Hornback, Assistant to the President at Morehead, and Monroe Wicker, Director of School Services at the College.

On The National Education Scene

Never in the history of this great nation has there existed a better climate for education at all levels than the present. The Federal Government is assuming an ever-increasing role in financial assistance to education—especially in our region of Appalachia.

And Morehead State College—located where the Bluegrass meets Appalachia—will be called upon more and more in the future to provide educational leadership in the region.

Currently providing the leadership for the National Education Association's Legislative Commission is our own distinguished president, Dr. Adron Doran. Serving as Chairman of the 11-member Legislative Commission, it is the duty of Morehead's energetic president to represent the more than one million members of NEA.

This great honor means that Dr. Doran must spend a great deal of time in Washington, not only planning legislative strategy, but also appearing before both Senate and House committees answering the probing questions of Senators and Congressmen.

This type of experience is not only aiding the many members of NEA, but also is providing President Doran with the type of contacts which can mean so much to Morehead State College in the days and years ahead.

In July, Dr. Doran was one of the representatives at the White House Conference on Education, serving as a panelist along with distinguished educators from Harvard, Stanford, and the University of Chicago. Needless to say, we on the home front rejoice in this achievement.

His travels as the legislative spokesman for NEA have taken Dr. Doran from coast to coast; he has associated closely with distinguished educators and Congressional leaders and has talked with President Johnson on several occasions.

All of these experiences combine to provide our president with the type of background which will prove exceedingly beneficial in the days ahead. It is impossible to enumerate now the many ways in which his experience will benefit Morehead State College. But suffice it to say, Morehead's prestige and influence are now at the highest peak in the history of this great institution.

And with the continued and loyal support of the alumni association, there is no reason why our beloved college cannot continue this influential rise to greatness. Because an institution can be but the lengthened shadow of a man—and our great president casts a shadow of Lincolnseque proportions.

Mrs. Doran was responsible for the visit of Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson to Kentucky when the nation's First Lady addressed the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs while Mrs. Doran was President of the organization.

President Doran was master of ceremonies at the ground-breaking of the Cave Run Dam which will be built by the Federal Government at a cost of over $35,000,000. Participating in the ground-breaking were L to R—General Walter P. Leber, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, President Doran, Congressman Carl Perkins and Senator John Sherman Cooper. Congressman Carl Perkins (left) and Senator John Sherman Cooper (right), have done a great deal for education in Kentucky. The two were honored recently with the naming of residence halls in their honor at Morehead State College.

Mrs. Doran talked with Vice-President Humphrey in Washington recently.

President and Mrs. Doran are personal friends of Dr. and Mrs. Dexter Arnold. Mrs. Arnold is immediate past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Humanistic View Of Life

By DR. GEORGE BOSWELL

Dictionary definitions are agreed that humanism is a way of thought in which man as a human being, neither fairy, beast, nor robot, is placed at the center of consideration.

According to the classification of Jacques Barzun, the humanities are classics, history, language, and the arts (literature, painting, music, philosophy, the dance, sculpture, and architecture)—all products of human beings, about human beings, and for human beings. On the one hand it avoids extreme Romanticism which, in the words of Richard Harter Fogle, is an "all-embracing naturalism which confused nature, man, and God in one indiscriminate, inchoate mass" and on the other hand exclusive worship of verifiable fact. Barzun puts it: "Let humanists say to scientists: 'Butchers and bakers, be quiet, and discharge your debt to us for the alchemy which makes your life behind the counter bearable.'" Says Samuel Johnson: "He that reads books of science . . . will grow more knowing; he that entertains himself with moral or religious treatises, will imperceptibly advance in goodness."

Dr. George Boswell

Perhaps Johnson's dictum errs a trifle in the direction of scholasticism. Other enticements of transcendentalism or other-worldliness, alluring but potentially specious, are fallacies like the substitution of man for God, spiritual abstraction, dualism, fear of baneful influences of the artist, pantheism, wish-fulfillment, and pessimistic anti-progressivism. This is Walt Whitman on the first:

What do you suppose I would intimate to you in a hundred ways, but that man or woman is as good as God?

And that there is no God any more divine than Yourself?

Even a seemingly constructive aphorism like this of Kahlil Gibran must be viewed with a certain hard-headed rationalism: "For that which is boundless in you abides in the mansion of the sky, whose door is the morning mist, and whose windows are the songs and the silences of night." How much more, then, the dualism of Albert Schweitzer: "In nature there are matter and spirit. Spirit serves matter as a formative agent, organizing and licking it into shape"; fear and suppression of imaginative creativity as voiced by Plato: "For the poet is a light and winged and holy thing, and there is no invention in him until he has been inspired and is out of his senses" (Ion). "In our State such as he are not permitted to exist . . . So when we have anointed him with myrrh . . . we shall send him away to another city" (The Republic); and the implicit pantheism of Wordsworth:

One impulse from a vernal wood
May teach you more of man,
Of moral evil and of good,
Than all the sages can.

It is beguiling but not necessarily realistic or helpful to agree with Andrew Fletcher when he said, "Let me make the songs of a nation, and I care not who makes its laws," or with Oscar Wilde: "Literature always anticipates life. It does not copy it, but molds it to its purpose." One wonders whether Thoreau's heart was wholly in his condemnation: "Our inventions are wont to be pretty toys, which distract our attention from serious things. They are but improved means to an unimproved end," or whether Donald Davidson's intellect was wholly committed in his complaint: "We do not any longer ask a philosopher for explanations, and least of all a novelist or poet. . . . We live under the rule of scientific expertism."

Great thinkers and phrase-makers have given body to humanism under at least eight headings. This is not to insist that all contributions of humanism are herein specified or that no other attitude toward life touches on any of them; but the points enumerated are as follows: propensity for work, broad-mindedness, independence, books, civilization, iconoclasm, human interrelations, and practical idealism. Crane Brinton's phrase for the leading attribute of the initiators of humanism is "a lusty appetite for hard intellectual labor." Further, tolerance of the opinions of others—"heretics must not be burned." A humanist must take the initiative in society, be devoted to helping raise the sights of modern mass man. As Emerson pleaded in "The American Scholar," "let men of ideas lead in the development of an American vernacular," and as Dostoevsky cogently observed in Notes from Underground, "what man wants is simply independent choice, whatever that independence may cost him and wherever it may lead."

The continuity of learning from generation to generation is well known to humanism. Reading safeguards man against mere existence; in Austin Dobson's verse,

Who without books essay to learn
Draws water in a leaky urn.

Civilization itself is wholly dependent on the transmission of knowledge. According to the dictionary, one concept of the humanities is "branches of polite learning . . . conducive to culture." Are they of utility? Not, if Jacques Barzun is right, in the social worker's sense of "useful," but they are useful every day to "those who respect and enjoy and require the evidences of civilization." The humanist is both a collaborationist and an iconoclast. In The Republic Plato emphasized cooperation: "The origin of society is the helplessness of solitary man." On the other hand, in Barzun's words, "It is men brought up on arts, literature, languages, history, and philosophy who have been the ambitious and the intriguers, rebels and tyrants."

This conflict between independence and cooperation, leading and interpenetrating, is not easy to resolve but one to which humanism can contribute its wisdom. In terms of dollars and cents, John D. Rockefeller is reported to have said: "I will pay more for . . . the ability to deal with people . . . than for any other under the sun." Above earth-bound practical considerations, however, its upper stratum approaches a cautious idealism. Patrick Hazard observed, "It is admirable and desirable to get out on cloud 7 so long as one stays in radio contact with the control tower." And Longinus contended: "It is a fact of Nature that the soul is raised by true sublimity, it is filled with joy and exultation, as though itself had produced what it hears." Insightful correction is still possible for our generation; in the words of Joseph Wood Krutch,

"the modern failure to write tragedies springs from loss of faith in human nature, not religion."

The Achilles heel of humanism is its propensity to drift toward pseudoscience, to forget its immeasurability, to become what Barzun sarcastically calls a "Misbehavioral Science," to deny its spiritual heritage. According to T. S. Eliot, "The whole of modern literature is corrupted by what I call Secularism"; the "humanist has suppressed the divine . . . ; if . . . supernaturalism is suppressed . . . the dualism of man and nature collapses at once." Erle Stanley Gardner describes for us an amputee who (as told in a letter from a hospital library) wouldn't "return to realities" until he read a page from a Perry Mason book. Writing in 1924, Gilbert Seldes satirized the "Seven Lively Arts" as vaudeville, jazz, newspaper satire, movies, comic strips, revues, and the circus. Would he now add television?

But with a minimum of wisdom and restraint, the humanistic view of life can triumph over its fuzzed edges and be seen to emerge convincing, dependable, and comforting. Lord Chesterfield wrote, "Be wiser than other people, if you can; but do not tell them so." In the words of W. H. Davies:

A poor life this, if full of care
We have no time to stand and stare.

How shall we conclude then? That a humanist is the balanced middle-of-the-road journeyman through life. In accord with Aristotle's famous principle of the "golden mean" he avoids at one extreme metaphysical fanaticism and at the other scientific determinism. Speaking as a good humanist, Goethe said he strove to present in Faust the example of a positive spiritual attitude and endeavor which would achieve permanent things and live on in others after his death.

Roger Jones Joins Morehead State College Staff

Roger H. Jones, immediate past-president of the Kentucky Education Association, has been named Director of Professional Relations and an Instructor at Morehead State College.

Jones comes to Morehead State College from Breathitt County High School, Jackson, where he has taught art, Spanish and journalism since 1952.

Dr. Adron Doran, president of Morehead, said in announcing the appointment of Jones, "Roger is eminently qualified to correlate the programs offered at Morehead State College with the activities of professional associations at the local, state and national level. He is a fine young man who has shown outstanding leadership qualities during his term as president of the KEA who will certainly bring great distinction to our campus."

Prior to his election to the KEA presidency, Jones served as vice-president and president-elect of the KEA and as president of the Upper Kentucky River Education Association.

Jones was named president-elect of the National Council of State Association Presidents of the National Education Association in New York last week.

He is now president of the KEA Department of Classroom Teachers and this summer attended the World Confederation of Organizations of the Teaching Profession in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, as the KEA delegate.

During his presidency of the KEA, he traveled over 50,000 miles speaking throughout the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Jones holds the AB degree from Georgetown College and the MA degree from the University of Kentucky and has surveyed the school systems of Mexico, Cuba and Japan during his travels in those countries.

Wright Named Basketball Head; Laughlin Director of Athletics

Bob Wright, one of the most successful young high school coaches in Kentucky history, has been named head basketball coach at Morehead State College.

The 39-year-old Wright, who has coached at Ashland for the past six years, replaces Bob Laughlin, who will devote his full-time efforts to the athletic directorship at Morehead.

In making the announcement, Dr. Adron Doran, President of Morehead said, "Bob Laughlin has served as head basketball coach for 11 years along with his heavy duties as athletic director. As the college has grown, so have his duties. We think the development of a total sports program at Morehead requires the full time of Mr. Laughlin as athletic director."

"We believe that in Bob Wright we have found one of the most capable young men in the United States to follow in Coach Laughlin's footsteps," said Dr. Doran, "and we sincerely feel that his philosophy and that of Morehead State College are congruent."

Dr. Doran commended Laughlin for his fine record during his coaching tenure at Morehead and for his 29 years of service in various capacities at Morehead State College.

"We are cognizant of the great contributions which Bob Laughlin has made to the field of athletics," said Dr. Doran, "and the Board of Regents and I agree that in Bob Wright we have the type of individual who will carry on in fine fashion."

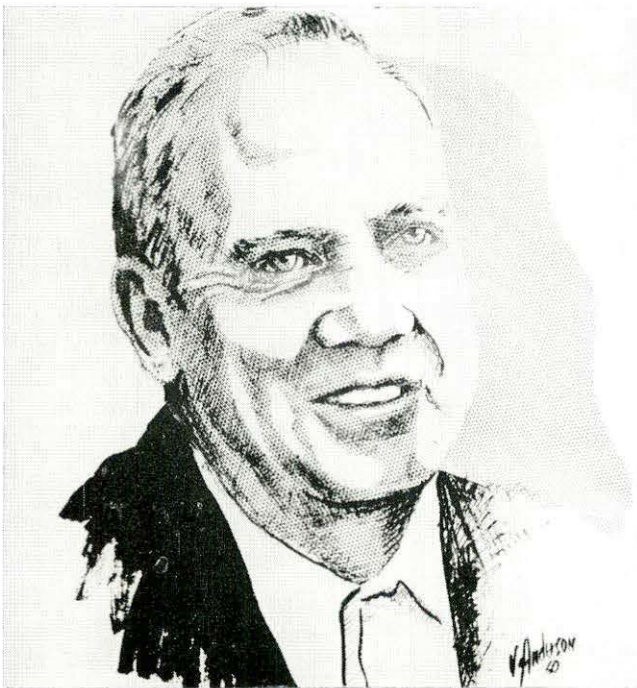

Wright, who had a brilliant high school coaching career in which he won 82% of his games over a 13-year period, responded humbly by saying, "I consider this opportunity to be the greatest of my career and I only hope that I can live up to the faith and trust which have been placed in me as I approach this job."

His life-long record includes 329 wins and 72 losses highlighted by a state championship at Ashland in 1961 when he was named "Coach of the Year" in Kentucky.

During his six years at Ashland his teams posted a sparkling record of 168 wins and only 29 defeats. Before going to Ashland, he had a 161-43 record at Lewis County High School over a span of seven years.

Wright, who earned the MA degree from Morehead, will follow in the footsteps of a highly successful coach who during his 11 seasons at Morehead won 166 games and lost 119. Laughlin's teams captured four Ohio Valley Conference co-championships and competed in three NCAA tournaments—winning three games and losing four.

Laughlin's finest season's record was set in 1956-57 when Morehead had a 19-8 record but the 52-year-old is probably most proud of his underdog 1960-61 team which posted a 19-12 record, won the Ohio Valley Conference title in a two-game playoff and went on to defeat Xavier University in the NCAA before losing to the University of Kentucky.

Coach Bob Wright

College Coaching 'Dream' Of New Basketball Head

By BOB WRIGHT

I guess it is the dream of most high school coaches to be named head coach at a great institution of higher learning like Morehead State College! And I am no different.

I consider this opportunity to be the greatest of my career and I deeply, sincerely hope that I can live up to the faith and trust which have been placed in me as I approach this challenging job.

I would be less than truthful if I did not say that this is the kind of position of which I have often dreamed. But I must also say that it was not until Dr. Doran and Coach Laughlin approached me saying that they wanted me to continue the excellent program which has been started that I thought it would come my way.

It is a right humbling experience to follow in the footsteps of such a man as Coach Laughlin who has experienced such outstanding success as a major college coach. It will be a great challenge to follow him and I am looking forward with great comfort to his counsel and wisdom in the days ahead.

As you know, I am a graduate of Marshall. But my most recent degree is from Morehead State College where I earned the MA degree in 1961. As a result, I have been very close to this great institution of higher learning and have followed her growth and development very closely.

It has been a heart warming experience to observe the manner in which President Doran has led Morehead as she has continued to grow and develop into its rightful place of leadership in not only this region but the state as a whole.

As you know, Morehead has developed a fine reputation for the great strengthening of the academic program. And this great college has continued to grow in its service to the region.

I am in complete accord with the philosophy of this growing college and it is with this thought that I am so pleased to join the faculty as we continue to push toward excellency on all levels. You can rest assured that I will do all within my power to justify the backing which I have received from all of the wonderful people here.

Athletic Director Looking to Enlargement of Job

By BOB LAUGHLIN

I am looking toward the enlargement of my job as athletic director with great enthusiasm and challenge.

Surely, I will miss coaching. But I know that there comes a time when a man must realize that responsibilities must be divided if a program is to continue to grow and develop.

And that is the case at Morehead State College. Twelve years ago, I took over the job as athletic director and Head of the Department of Health and Physical Education and Head Basketball Coach.

At that time we had about 700 students and played in the old gymnasium as a small college in basketball participation. We began a rapid growth, soon became a major college in basketball and built a new field-house.

The growth has continued to skyrocket . . . we have built a new 10,000 seat stadium for football . . . a track which has no equal in this state . . . a new baseball field . . . and our enrollment has gone from that original 700 to almost 4000.

We've added swimming, golf, tennis and wrestling to our list of intercollegiate sports. Frankly, gentlemen, we have grown by the proverbial leaps and bounds.

President Doran and I agreed that the time had come when we should think of a greater portion of my time being spent in the athletic director's position. And it was then that, realizing we were the only OVC college in Kentucky to have coach in a major sport serving as athletic director, that we decided to look for a man to take over the basketball coaching.

We didn't have to look far to find the man we wanted in Bob Wright. Here is a man who has gained the respect of all Kentuckians for the outstanding job which he has done. And here is a man whom we felt unqualifiedly meets the requirements for this position.

I have sincerely enjoyed the past 11 years of coaching basketball on the college level and I value the friendships and experiences which go with coaching. As athletic director, I will be working closely with our coaches and I am looking forward to helping further develop the total athletic program at Morehead.

Eagles To Have Tough Defense, Wide Open Offense This Year

Morehead State College has compiled three winning seasons in a row and Guy Penny teams have gained a reputation for a tough, aggressive defense and a wide open offensive attack.

But the same old problem faces Penny and his staff—a lack of personnel to utilize the new substitution rule to its fullest. Fifteen lettermen return from last year's 5-4 club but gone are five outstanding starters.

Lost by the graduation route are five veterans who averaged 55 minutes of every game last year—All OVC ends Jack Smith and Richard Pare, All-OVC tackle Jim Osborne and his fellow tackle Richard Jones and four-year letterman fullback, Russ Campbell.

But several outstanding veterans, a host of junior college transfers and a handful of unusually talented freshmen make the outlook for 1965 brighter than some downtown coaches predict.

Returning at quarterback is passing sensation Mike Gottfried who will share the quarterbacking duties with fast-improving sophomore Tommy Eads. The halfback slots will be manned by dependable senior Dennis Brown and speedy Tommy Gray, who has run the 100 in 9.4. A bevy of shifty halfbacks will provide outstanding relief.

At fullback, Penny will probably go with sophomore Bill Binder and former quarterback Jay Brogan although a newcomer could break into the lineup here.

In the most significant change of the Spring, Penny moved halfbacks Tally Johnson and Scotty Reddick to the end slots to beef up the graduation depleted position. Both are fast, shifty and splendid receivers who will be backed up by veteran Bill Baldridge and several highly touted junior college transfers.

The tackle position was hard hit by graduation and Penny will have to call for help from junior college transfers Eddie Jones and Dwight Pawlowski. The starters will probably be Paul Conner and Bill Hornbeck, who was moved from center during Spring drills. Senior James Hall, moved from guard in Spring drills, will have to improve over last year's performance if this position is to have any depth.

The starting guards are veterans Ken Howard and Mike Fletcher but there is little experience behind these two. Relief will have to come from several junior college transfers and if one or two freshmen come along fast, the guard position may not be as questionable as it looks in pre-season dopstering.

At center is All-OVC candidate Gary Virden who can do everything. He will be backed up by Ron Breitfelder and several newcomers.

The key to Morehead's success will not lie in its first unit as Penny will again field a starting eleven as good as any OVC opponent. But his second and third units will be spotted by untested youngsters as Morehead embarks upon its most ambitious schedule in years.

There are no pushovers on the schedule as all of the OVC opponents are greatly improved this year and Marshall University and Youngstown University will both be cast in favored roles over the Eagles.

But despite the heavy schedule, lack of depth and heavy losses by way of graduation, Penny is promising an exciting, speedy team which will surely thrill the crowds who flock to see his wing-T pro offense in the new 10,000 seat Beathitt Sports Center stadium.
