NRA'S LIFE was threatened last week as the Senate, which has been idle for the past ten days, took sudden action on the proposed extension of the bill, P. D. R. had called for an extension of two years, but the Senatorial committee reported the measure out with provisions for only 12 months. Further clipping of the Blue Eagle's wings is believed that the National Recovery Act has served its purpose and should now be discarded.

SOUTHERNERS ended their seven-day filibuster on the lynching bill successfully Wednesday and the Senate is expected to vote on the measure. Despite many elements in Washington hostile to the movement to pay the authors, indications are strongly in favor of passage of the measure. Morgan predicted an increase in taxes if the bill went through but mentioned an inheritance tax as the possible solution to the home layout. That in itself is sufficient cause to align Wall Street capital against the measure. However, in this connection that the Democrats will "pay off" to assure victory in the upcoming election.

PARLIAMENT arose with a job this week when Adolph Hitler boasted that the German air fleet was stronger than the English. As long as Germany continued her military operations to the development of a fleet, John Bull was not particularly interested, but when development of aircraft was mentioned as a part of the program that something had to be done. As a result of the speech, the British minister, advanced a plan for the appropriation of $25,000,000 for the development of a fleet. The amount specified in the budget. Everyone knows that Britain's preeminence in the world is based on her navy, the water, and the development of air-planes on the scale proposed by Germany could very well cut her supremacy.

MOMENTARY deflection of the focus of the eyes of the American people from world affairs this afternoon is a certainty as the 61st renewal of the Kentucky Derby is expected to draw a crowd of 40,000 people to Churchill Downs in Louisville. With the event lacking a favorite, high interest has developed, and long shots have been considered highly by bettors. The Kentucky Derby is expected to start at a faster clip than any of the other starters.

MORRIS DANCE FEATURES MAY DAY Y PROGRAM

Healthy Children Given Blue Ribbons By County Medical Doctor.

The May Day Festival of the Morehead State Teachers College, featuring old English games and dances, together with a colorful program of the series May Day characters followed by the youthful king and queen, was staged on the green of the campus Wednesday, and was one of the most picturesque scenes witnessed on the campus this year.

SPORTS FORUM

By J. K. WELLS.

Kentucky, noted for her horses, colts and mint juleps, will host to the world this afternoon when the 61st Kentucky Derby is run off at Churchill Downs. Since last Monday, Louisville has had her gala colors out and an air of festivity has permeated the whole city. Boxing matches, wrestling matches, dances, parades and parties, have kept their bit in showing the visitors a sample of old Southern hospitality during Derby week.

The celebration will be climaxed this afternoon when sixteen of the world's best brilliant thoroughbred meet in the racing circle of the world, the Kentucky Derby. According to the race track experts the race is wide open, with Omaha, Today and Nellie Flag favored. Personally, I take Omaha to win by a shade, however, following the showings yesterday, I wouldn't be surprised to see Nellie Flag, a filly and a modern, come in second.

RULES ADOPTED FOR SOFT BALL

Bradley's Boxhorn and Widener's Today Favored As Chance Sun Runs Out In Prep

FIVE MANAGERS

Chance Sun Scratched By New York Owner After Prep Failure.

With Chance Sun's failure to comply with the renewal of the Kentucky Derby prom to be wide-open affair when it is run at Churchill Downs this afternoon. The Widener colt failed to show satisfactorily in his final race to start in the classic.

Omaha is rated by Eastern commissioners as the "horse to beat" Today's sterling performance in finishing third in Today in the Woods Memorial last Saturday was a firm heavy support over night. Credited rank to eleventh place in a field of twelve shortly after the start, Omaha was taken to the outside and ridden hard to finish eighth in third place.

Col. E. R. Bradley Spring probably to the post as co-favorite with Boxhorn. He won the Pontiac classic last Saturday in front of Bluebird and Omaha.

Warren Wright's Today Flag will receive excellent support despite the fact that she is a filly. . . only one filly having ever won the race. After her sterling performance last week, some critics pick her to take the measure of the colts at old Whitman's Roman.

Regent Soldier, Commonwealth and Psychic Bid are being given close attention by betters looking for a price. Either horse in the winning circle would say excellent odds.

After the failure of Ballister, Col. Bradley was rounded fifth place, but the starting performance of Boxhorn has brought those odds of supporters to his side. It is likely that the Life Hour representative will be backed down to short odds by Bradley enthusiasts who believe that the three-year-old will repeat the victory of Bulldog City, D. B. Behave Yourself, Broker's Tip, Burgho' King in the Kentucky Breeding Stock Derby.

The play on the field will be more divided than last year when Cavalry made the overwhelming favorite to win. With Today, Boxhorn, Omaha, Nellie Flag, Commonwealth and Psychic bid are the work horses.

WESTERN ROMPS ON BAGLES 14-7 IN BATTLE BEE

The Western Hilltoppers punched their bids in the last three innings of a baseball game here yesterday, to score 14 runs on the bagels. The head College nine 14 to 7. Although only 13 to 12, the Hilltoppers finished 8 hits with 4 walks and 2 errors to score 10 runs in the last three frames and sew up the game.

Dale on the mound for the Independents, although pitched for one less bit than William Hayden, opponent, was well throughout the game; losing 8 walks and won a big slash by the pitcher, William Joy. Western granted 13 hits but kept them so well scattered that Morehead was unable to cash in with only 7 runs.

Morehead fielded well and was credited with hit two errors while Western committed four. The work of Varney and Nolan in the field was especially good as they snagg numerous long flies and drove the Hilltoppers' score, Clayton and Varney led the Independents at bat with three safe baselines.

Morehead started strong and led for the end of the fifth inning led 4 to 2 while the score in the sixth and went on a scoring spree in the seventh and eighth to clinch the game.

British Chronicles Saga of England

(A BOOK REVIEW)
 BY ALICE PALMER MORRIS

ENGLISH JOURNEY. By John
 Baynes Priestley.

Mr. Priestley is an Englishman well known to us as the author of "The Good Companion" and other novels. The latest book, "English Journey" is however, not a novel but as he himself describes it, "a rambling but truthful account of what a man saw and heard and felt and thought during a journey through England during the autumn of the year 1933." Except for the description of the Cotswold villages, there is very little of the green and pleasant land in it. The book is mostly a picture of the depressed industrial parts of England. Though the subject hardly lends itself to humor, there is, as one reviewer says, "a certain irony of that type of wit that appears when a talent for an art slips in just at the service of a groove, or indignation."

The vivid narrative style in Mr. Priestley's own, as for instance the opening sentence of the book: "I will begin, I said, where a man might well find land, at Southampton. There was a motor coach going to Southampton — there must be a motor coach going anywhere in this island — and I caught it, I caught it with the misnomer of clothes, a portable typewriter, the usual paraphernalia of pipes, notebooks, rubbers, paper fasteners, razor blades, pencil, Whitman's "Blue Guide to England," Stamp and Dealer's "Geographic and Economic Survey," and, for reading to bed, the tiny paper edition of the "Oxford Book of English Prose."

Though he does not follow his diagnosis of the present condition of industrial England with any prescription or outline of a course of treatment, Mr. Priestley concludes with this statement: "We have led the world, many a time before to-day, on good expeditions and had one, on pivotal rails and on quays for the Hesperides. We can lead again. We headed the procession when it took what we see now to be the wrong turning, down into the dark bog of greedy industrialism, where money and machines are of more importance than men and women. It is for us to find the way out again, into the sunlight. We may have to risk a great deal, perhaps our very existence. But rather than live on manly and savagely, I concluded, it would be better to perish as the last of the civilized peoples."

Japanese are industrious, not lying like the Americans," he said. With their cheap labor, low cost of living, every penny working full time and a quick turnover, they are able to undersell Americans goods, even if they have to import their raw materials from America. To prove this, Dr. Park had a shirt which he had bought in Japan for 40 cents, which would cost around $3 in this country. He said that a Japanese laboring girl can live like a queen on 25 cents a day.

The Japanese gave self-defense as their excuse for taking Manchuria, he said. This self-defense is based on the premise that they need elbow room and would starve to death without new territory; that the bandits needed clearing out, and that China had violated certain treaties. Dr. Park answered by saying that the Japanese had enough territory stored away in government stockpiles to last for a long time. He based on the premise that they need elbow room, as to the bandits before the coming of the Japs, the bandits totalled 40,000, after three years of Japanese control they totalled 60,000. As to the treaty violation, Dr. Park pointed out that Japan refused to let the League of Nations Judge China's guilt. He spoke of Henry Pu-Yi "a mere tool in the hands of Japs, saying 'I am all dead from the neck up,'" and

According to his definition, "the best government for a country is the government that best fits into the situation." The factors working against the success of China are the following: lack of team spirit, the warlords, lack of transportation and communication, and the government that best fits into the situation.
