Andy Weir

First hired as a programmer for a national laboratory at age fifteen and has been working as a software engineer ever since. He is a lifelong space nerd and a devoted hobbyist of subjects such as relativistic physics, orbital mechanics, and the history of manned spaceflight. The Martian is his first novel.

A MISSION TO MARS. A FREAK ACCIDENT. ONE MAN'S STRUGGLE TO SURVIVE.

SIX DAYS AGO astronaut Mark Watney became one of the first people to walk on Mars. Now he's sure he'll be the first person to die there. After a dust storm forces his crew to evacuate the planet while thinking him dead, Mark finds himself stranded on Mars's surface, with no way to signal Earth that he's alive. And even if he could get word out, his supplies would be gone years before a rescue could arrive. Chances are, though, Mark won't have time to starve to death. The damaged machinery, unforgiving environment, or plain old "human error" are much more likely to kill him first. Armed with nothing but his ingenuity, his engineering skills—and a gallows sense of humor that proves to be his greatest source of strength—Mark embarks on a dogged quest to stay alive. But will his resourcefulness be enough to overcome the impossible odds against him?

"A hugely entertaining novel [that] reads like a rocket ship afire... Weir has fashioned in Mark Watney one of the most appealing, funny, and resourceful characters in recent fiction."
-CHICAGO TRIBUNE

"As gripping as they come... You'll be rooting for Watney the whole way, groaning at every setback and laughing at his pitch-black humor, utterly nail-biting and memorable."
-FINANCIAL TIMES
