20th Annual Youth Forum Set for April 20-21

Jeff Walling, popular among young people as a speaker at youth rallies, will keynote this year's Harding Youth Forum April 20-21 with the theme "The Master's Plan."

His four-part lesson — My Master, My Message, My Mission, My Model — will help young people focus on their relationship with God. Jeff's appearance last year at Harding drew the largest audience ever to attend Youth Forum.

While serving as minister of the Newland Street church of Christ in Garden Grove, Calif. for the past five years, Jeff has maintained a fast-paced schedule including several gospel meetings, soul-winning workshops and youth rallies each year, totaling more than 300 presentations.

The 26-year-old Californian began preaching the gospel at the age of 16, and was influenced partly by his father, the late T. J. Walling, who founded the "Joy Bus" concept of evangelism at Redlands, Calif. in 1973, in which Jeff was very active.

Since then he has consulted with and held seminars on the busing ministry for many congregations. He was minister for the Ball Road church of Christ in Anaheim, Calif. for one year before assuming his current position. Jeff received his bachelor's degree from the University of California at Irvine and has begun work toward a master's degree in counseling at Pepperdine University.

He has contributed articles to several brotherhood publications, including Christian Family magazine and the Firm Foundation.

On Dec. 17, 1983 Jeff married Harding graduate Cathryn Pate (BA'79). During part of their three-week honeymoon, Jeff spoke to a large group of young people in Jonesboro, Ark. at the Youth in Action rally.

Jeff is currently writing a book to be published in the spring of 1984, and plans to begin preaching for the Mission Viejo (Calif.) church of Christ in March 1984.

Jeff Walling captivates a standing room only crowd at the 1983 Harding Youth Forum.

New Scholarships Offered For 1984-85 School Year

Harding University will offer for the first time ever a limited number of full-tuition scholarships for the 1984-85 school year, according to University President Clifton L. Ganus Jr.

In addition several partial scholarships will also be awarded. The 32 scholarships will be awarded by the Admissions office and the Department of Music.

A total of 15 Trustee Scholar Awards will be available to qualified students. According to Durwood McGaha, director of admissions, five full-tuition scholarships, five half-tuition scholarships and five third-tuition scholarships will be awarded for the fall semester.

In order to qualify for these scholarships, students must have a 30 or higher ACT composite score, a 3.5 high school grade point average (based on 4.0), be a full-time dormitory student, possess leadership ability, have good moral character, be a member of the church of Christ and be a new Harding student with less than 14 transferable hours.

To maintain the scholarship, a student must have a 3.25 GPS his first year, maintain a 3.50 GPA his sophomore through senior years, and remain a full-time dormitory student.

Students must be accepted to Harding University and apply for a scholarship by June 1. Notification of award will be made June 15 and students must accept on or before July 1.

"We are very excited about the awards and are hoping to get even more high quality students to attend Harding," McGaha said.

A full-tuition scholarship award and 16 other partial scholarships will be available from the Harding University music department this fall, according to Dr. Kenneth Davis Jr., chairman, and will be based on competitive auditions.

The over-all competition award will be a full-tuition $3,000 scholarship. In addition, there will be four first place awards worth $1,500 each, four second place awards worth $1,000, four third place awards worth $750 and four fourth place awards worth $600 each. The scholarships are available to prospective students in the areas of voice, string, brass, woodwind, percussion and piano.

The preliminary audition dates for the awards are Saturday, Feb. 25, 1984 at 1:00 p.m. and April 19, 1984 from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. The finals will also be held Thursday, April 19, at 7:00 p.m.

All auditions and finals will be held in the Claud R. Lee Music Center. Cassette tapes may be submitted in lieu of personal appearances in cases where travel is a hardship. To be eligible for the overall award, finalists must be present for the competition finals on April 19, 1984.

For additional information on the Harding University Trustee Scholar Awards, contact the Director of Admissions, Harding University, Box 762, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

For more information and applications for the Music Department Scholarship Awards, contact Dr. Kenneth Davis Jr., Harding University, Box 772, Searcy, Ark. 72143. Toll free numbers that may be called for more information on either scholarship are 1-800-643-3792 (out of state) and 1-800-632-4751 (in Arkansas).

4th 13-in-1 Bible Workshop to be Held July 31-August 2

The biennial Harding University 13-in-1 Workshop, with three days of concentrated study in 13 areas, will be conducted July 31-Aug. 2 by more than 75 teachers, according to Workshop Director Eddie Cloer.

"The Workshop is designed to provide Christian training in key areas of service," Cloer said, "and we feel there'll be something for everyone."

Classes will be held Tuesday through Thursday from 8:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., with workshops and their coordinators as follows: Biblical Studies, Paul Pollard; The Christian Woman, Barby Smith; Counseling, Lew Moore; The Cradle Roll, Sheri Shearin; Death and Dying, Will Ed Warren; Early Childhood, Lynn England; Local Evangelism, Allan Isom; Mental Health, Jack Thomas; Spiritual Life, James Walters; Topical Studies, Tom Eddins; Visual Aids, Jennifer Hurd; Youth, Ken Spoor; and World Evangelism, L. V. Pfeifer.

A 7:30 p.m. opening session on July 30 will kick off the series with Avon Malone of the Harding Bible faculty speaking. His topic will be "This Is The Will of God, Even Your Sanctification."

Neale Pryor will present "A Royal Priesthood" Tuesday night, and Jimmy Allen will speak Wednesday night on "Christ In You, The Hope of Glory."

Kenneth Davis Jr. will direct congregational singing each evening at 7:00.

All workshops will be held on or near the Harding campus and housing will be available in the dormitories and University-owned apartments.

Further information may be obtained by writing Eddie Cloer, 13-in-1 Workshop Director, Box 939, Harding University, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

CCP Changes to School of Biblical Studies

Harding University's Christian Communications Program, an intensive, two-year ministry training program, will soon have a new name — the Harding School of Biblical Studies — according to Joe Jones, program director.

"We've always been more of a School of Biblical Studies than a communications program," said Jones, "and we feel the new name will strengthen our identity in the minds of prospective students and among the Brotherhood in general."

Jones said the name change will be effective with the fall semester, when new classes begin, but that current advertising will carry the new name.

"In the past we've shied away from using this kind of terminology because we didn't want to appear to be in competition with ourself," Jones said.

"We feel this is a positive step because it reflects the viability of three different Bible programs at Harding — ours, the undergraduate program, and the graduate program at Memphis," he added. "We're all part of the same team."

Three new classes — Church and Youth, Techniques of Counseling, and Education Work of the Church — will be added to the curriculum this fall, Jones said, adding that this was made possible by combining several other courses now being taught.

The Harding program is designed for mature individuals (students must be at least 21), and is unique because of its location on a Christian college campus. Graduates of the program can have up to 50 semester hours of credit validated upon entrance into the University's undergraduate degree program, and all classes are taught by members of the Harding Bible faculty.

Currently 45 students are enrolled, with 23 in one class and 22 in the other. "We'd like to have about 30 students to a class," Jones said. "That's what we're set up to handle."

Since the program's purpose is to prepare

Christians for ministry, women are also admitted. One woman has completed the program and another will graduate in August.

"Our women follow the same curriculum as the men except for two sermon delivery classes," Jones explained. "Instead, women are enrolled in two speech classes."

One hundred and forty students have graduated from the program, begun in 1974, and are serving in the Lord's church in varying capacities throughout the world as youth ministers, personal evangelism directors, prison evangelists, campaign team workers, foreign missionaries and pulpit evangelists.

College Bowlers Prepared for Regionals

Harding University will participate for the fourth consecutive year in regional College Bowl competition Feb. 23-25 at Texas A&M University, according to team sponsor Dennis Organ.

Five students will represent Harding at Texas A&M, Organ said, from among eight finalists made up of four at-large nominees and members of the Fifth Column, who won the intramural championship Dec. 8.

Thirty-two teams competed in the fall intramural tournament at Harding for the right to play in chapel.

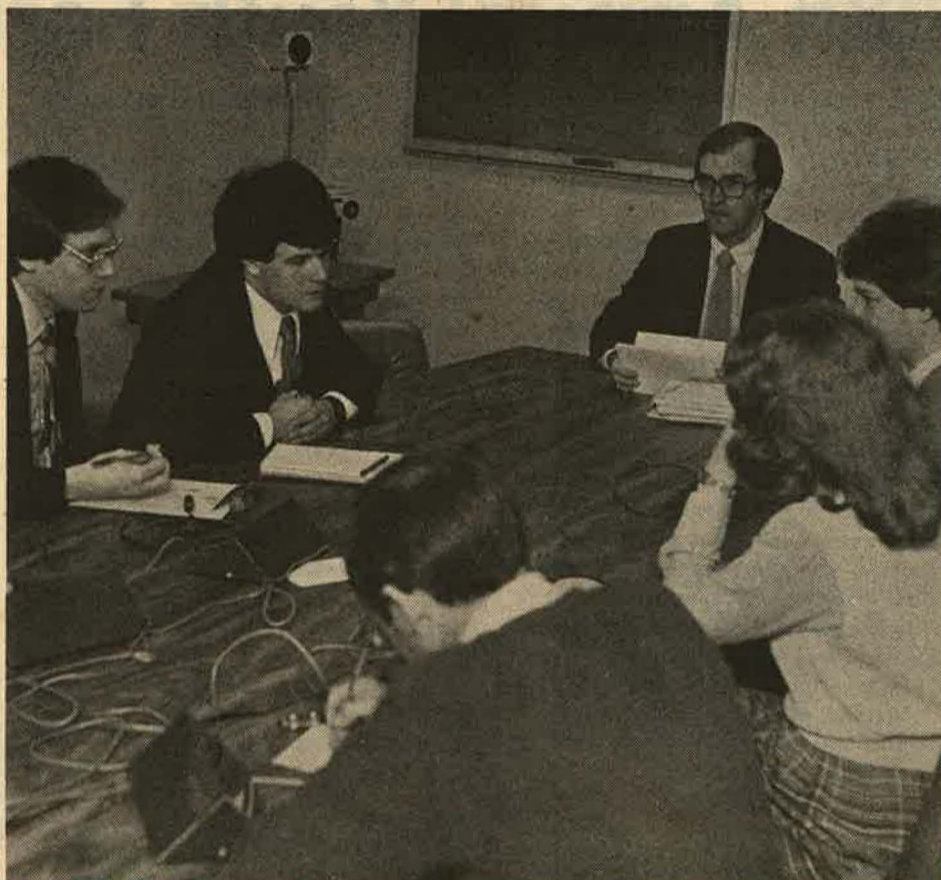

The Fifth Column includes Neil Thompson, Marion, Ill.; David Smith, Searcy; Ed Metcalf, Bridgetown, N.J. and Keith Williams, Memphis, Tenn. At large members are Greg York, Louisville, Ky.; Tonya Mitchell, Holly Springs, Miss.; Kyle Northam, Lexington, S.C. and Britt Burcham, Kennett, Mo.

York, who is a student at Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, has captained Harding's College Bowl team every year since the University began competition in 1980-81, and will lead the team again this year, Dr. Organ said.

College Bowl patterns itself after the 1960's television show of the same name, and questions for the matches are taken from information in Time magazine.

Harding finished third last year in regional competition, defeating the University of Texas, Baylor, Rice, and Stephen F. Austin University before losing twice to Texas A&M.

Assisting Organ as co-sponsors are Drs. Fred Jewell and Larry Long.

Members of the Harding College Bowl team practice for regional competition Feb. 23-25.

Spring Enrollment Numbers 2,730

by Lisa Keen,
Student Journalist

All 50 states and 20 foreign countries are represented in the spring enrollment at Harding University, according to Registrar Virgil Beckett.

A total of 2,730 students have been registered, Beckett said.

Arkansas again leads all states in the number of students with 789, while Texas is second with 235 students. Two hundred nineteen Tennesseans are enrolled and Missouri students total 135.

Michigan, with 91, Florida with 83, Illinois with 78, California with 73, Georgia with 70, and Indiana with 68 are also well represented.

The School of Business again leads in the total number of declared majors on campus, with 837 students enrolled in accounting, economics, computer information systems, business administration, marketing, management, general business, applied office science, systems analysis, office systems, office administration, secretarial science and business education.

Other popular majors include elementary education, with 148 students; nursing, with 178 students; physical education and sports management, 110; computer science, with 136 students; and Bible, with 118 students. Two hundred fifty-one students are undecided as to their major.

A sizable number of new students (131) were enrolled this spring, Beckett said, which helped to offset the 136 December graduates.

The enrollment by classification includes 758 seniors, 565 juniors, 638 sophomores, 638 freshmen, 68 graduate, 26 post graduate and 27 special.

Preacher's Forum Set for April 17

Spiritual Growth of the Local Minister will be the theme of the Eighth Annual Preacher's Forum on April 17, 1984 at the Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, Tenn. Lectures will begin at 9:00 a.m. and end at 4:50 p.m.

Featured speakers scheduled are: Billy Watson, Jimmy Adcox, Terry Bell, Rubel Shelly, Doug Brown, Martel Pace, Don Fike, Jim Massey and John Simpson. Their topics will be "Burnout in Ministry," "Time Management," "Roles of the Minister," "The Kind of Person Needed," "Study Habits and Devotional Life," "Developing Relationships," "The Mid-Life Crisis," "Some Suggestions for Spiritual Growth," and "Grow Where You Are." There will also be two Open Forums.

Although the Preacher's Forum is designed primarily for preachers, elders, and church leaders, everyone is invited to participate. For further information, contact the Harding Graduate School at 1000 Cherry Road, Memphis, Tenn. 38117 or call 901-761-1353.

Stevens Memorial Scholarship Fund to Aid Bible Students

A scholarship fund in memory of Alvin O. Stevens has been established at Harding University, according to President Clifton L. Ganus Jr.

The fund was established by Colleen S. Miller of San Angelo, Texas in memory of her father so that it might benefit students who show potential and capability for future service to the Lord's work.

Stevens, a military chaplain and Harding alumnus, died Nov. 25, 1973 after a sudden illness in El Paso, Texas where he was stationed at Fort Bliss.

He served in the U.S. Navy from March 1945 to January 1949, then attended Harding and earned a B.A. in 1953. That same year he married a Harding classmate, Corene Brown. He and his wife had three children: Beth, David and Colleen.

Stevens also attended the Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, where he completed M.R.E. and M.Th. degrees. He and his wife did missions work in both France and Newfoundland before his return to military service in 1962.

As an Army chaplain, Stevens was promoted to the rank of major and voluntarily made numerous jumps with his paratrooper unit in order to be closer to and understand better those he served.

Stevens was highly decorated during his military career, receiving the Bronze Star, Air Medal, Vietnamese Staff Service Medal, Korean Expeditionary Forces Medal, Civic Actions Medal and Army Commendation Medal.

The scholarship fund will be administered by a committee composed of the chairman of the Bible Department, the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and the director of the Mission Prepare Program.

In order for students to qualify for the scholarship, they must be enrolled on a full-time basis, be a junior or senior, be majoring in Bible or a related field, and meet the academic standards of the University. Preference will be given to students who plan to be full-time missionaries or chaplains.

Interested students may make application for the scholarship through the office of the Bible Department. Scholarships will be awarded each semester in amounts determined by the committee, based on their evaluation of student need, number of qualified applicants and availability of funds.

Two Receive Promotion in School of Business

Two members of the Harding School of Business faculty have been given additional responsibilities, according to Dr. Neale Pryor, vice president for academic affairs.

Dr. Jim Henderson, associate professor of accounting and director of the master's program in accounting, has been named assistant dean of the School of Business, and David Johnson, assistant professor of accounting, has been named administrative assistant.

Dr. David B. Burks, American Studies Director, is dean of the School of Business.

"Both of these men have proven their abilities and dedication to Harding," Pryor said, "and we are happy to announce their increasing involvement in school affairs."

Henderson graduated from Harding in 1971 and served in the U.S. Air Force for three years. He completed a master's degree at Memphis State University in 1976 and the Ph.D. from Texas A&M University in 1979.

A native of Memphis, he joined the Harding faculty in 1978.

Henderson is sponsoring the Harding Intercollegiate Business Team for the fourth year and is also a sponsor of Knight's Social Club. A member of College church of Christ, he and Burks teach a Bible class entitled "Facing the Issues."

Henderson is a certified public accountant, member of the American Accounting Association, and member of several committees at Harding, including Athletics, Telecommunications and Physical Plant and Property.

He is married to the former Rennie Willis and the couple has three children: Beth, Matthew David and Julia.

Johnson is a native of Gadsden, Ala. and joined the Harding faculty in 1982. He graduated from Harding in 1977 with a double major in Bible and accounting, and completed an M.B.A. at Memphis State in 1982.

He has a varied background in business, serving as corporate accounting supervisor for Gulf Coast Grain, Inc. from 1980-81, senior accountant at Deloitte Haskins & Sells from 1978-80, and staff accountant at Price Waterhouse & Co. from 1977-78.

At Harding Johnson is sponsoring King's Men Social Club, and directing the Harding University Invitational Business Games. He is also serving on several committees, including Student Affairs and North Central Reaccreditation.

He is a deacon at West Side church of Christ and is church accountant. David is married to the former Marlea McMillin and the couple has two children, Zachary and Ryan.

Isom Named Assistant Bible Chairman

Dr. Allan Isom, professor of Bible at Harding University, has been appointed assistant chairman of the Bible Department, according to Dr. Neale Pryor, vice president for academic affairs and acting chairman of the Bible Department.

"Allan has served for a number of years as a capable teacher and preacher, and we look forward to drawing more fully on his organizational and leadership skills," Pryor said.

Isom graduated from Harding in 1960 and completed M.R.E. and M.Th. degrees at the Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis in 1962 and 1963, respectively. In 1972 he earned the Ed.D. degree from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. A Harding faculty member since 1963, Isom is a licensed professional counselor by the State of Arkansas, and serves as education director at the Downtown church of Christ in Searcy.

He has preached for many years and spoken at college lectureships, workshops and seminars across the nation.

Isom is also an assistant coach for Harding's intercollegiate baseball team, and served in the U.S. Army from 1953 to 1955. He is a member of the Searcy Optimist Club and for many years was the announcer at Bison home basketball games.

The 50-year-old native Arkansan is married to the former Carole Thomas and the couple has four children: Danny, Alana, Susan and Jeannie.

Capacity Crowd Expected For Gala Spring Sing Program

Gypsies, soldiers, prisoners and cats will entertain April 19-21 during the 11th Annual Harding University Spring Sing, according to Dr. John Ryan, Spring Sing coordinator.

Other themes planned by participating clubs for the gala musical extravaganza include "Looney Tunes," "Fire," "The Exercise Craze" and "The Olympics."

Seventeen clubs are involved in the productions, according to Ryan. They include King's Men, Oege, TNT, Zeta Rho, Ka Re Ta, Pikes, Chi Sigma Alpha, Regina, Ko Jo Kai, Sub T-16, Ju Go Ju, Galaxy, Shantih, Tri Sigma Delta, Kappa Tau Omega, Kappa Sigma and Kappa Kappa Kappa.

Preparations for Spring Sing are also being made by Kevin Cave, lighting director; Warren Casey, director of the jazz band; Robin Miller, technical director; Jacqueline Northcut, production assistant; and Jeff Hopper, hosting director.

Serving as host and hostesses this year are David Slater of Dallas, Sharon Healy of Beebe, and Veronica Williams of Fort Worth. This group is also an integral part of the show, performing about 15 numbers in all and introducing each club act.

Slater is a veteran performer with credits including the Time of Day, Magic Springs U.S.A., Belles and Beaux, and A Cappella Chorus. Healy is a three-year veteran of the Belles and Beaux and has been a member of both the Chorale and A Cappella. She also played Eve in the Searcy Summer Dinner Theatre production of "The Apple Tree." Williams has had roles in "Oklahoma," "Fiddler on the Roof," and was a hostess for the 1983 Spring Sing show. She is a member of A Cappella and also is creative producer for "The Gospel Explosion," a unique look at black history.

Hopper said the group has based their music around a "magical, mystical theme" this year and is presently working on a cassette recording of their music with the jazz band to sell at Spring Sing. The cassette, a first-time project for a host/hostess group, will be on sale for $6.95.

Spring Sing awards are given in four areas: theme development, music, costume and choreography, and according to Ryan, approximately 30 judges have been selected to rate the show this year.

The sweepstakes winner (the show with the highest number of total points from the four areas) will win a trophy plus $300 per club. First runner-up will receive $250 per club plus a trophy. Second runner-up will win $200 per club plus a trophy, third runner-up, $150 per club plus trophy; and fourth runner-up, $150 per club plus trophy.

Plaques are awarded to the winners of each area and a plaque is also given to the club with the highest percentage of member participation.

Ryan expects capacity audiences of more than 12,000 for the four performances, which begin at 7 p.m. nightly and at 3 p.m. on Saturday. Tickets are $4.50 for Thursday and $5.50 for Friday and Saturday performances. Tickets are $2.50 and $3.50 with Harding I.D., Ryan said.

Benson Recovering From Recent Surgery

Dr. George S. Benson, 85, was released in late January from a Searcy hospital, where he had spent more than a month.

The former Harding president and his wife, Marguerite, spent the month of November in Zambia. Upon returning, he scheduled a routine physical, but was hospitalized for major surgery following tests which revealed a malignancy.

Subsequent complications resulted in further surgery and he was in intensive care for several weeks.

Dr. Benson has now returned to his suite in the American Heritage Center where he is slowly regaining strength.

Summer Enrollment Goal in Sight, Long Says

Summer school programs that include a broad spectrum of both undergraduate and graduate courses, workshops, recreation and entertainment have been announced by Dr. Larry Long, associate professor of English in his first year as director of the annual mid-year sessions.

Beginning with Intersession May 14-30, Summer Sessions will also include two five-week class programs offered June 4-July 6 and July 9-Aug. 10, respectively, and the overlapping Summer's End July 25-Aug. 10.

Elderhostel Sessions Scheduled

Harding University will be among the more than 600 institutions participating in the international Elderhostel program this summer, a special low-cost, short-term residential academic program for adults over 60. Harding's sessions will begin June 17, June 24 and July 1.

Harding's Elderhostel is under the supervision of Dr. Jimmy Carr, assistant to the president, but functions as a branch of the international headquarters in Boston.

"The Elderhostel program is based on the belief that one's retirement is an excellent time to enjoy new challenges," Carr said. Participants from 18 states have attended Harding's program, many of whom had never heard of the University previously. In 1982 Carr performed a wedding ceremony for two of the students.

The class beginning June 17 will include a study of Birds of Central Arkansas with early morning field trips; a study of Experimental Utopian Communities of the 19th Century, with philosophies of their leaders; and Four Gospels, a study of the life and teachings of Jesus Christ.

Second session offerings will be "Have you ever wondered . . .?", a visual, hands-on

Citizenship Seminar to be Held June 10-15

The 28th annual Youth Citizenship Seminar will be held June 10-15, when several hundred teen-agers will spend a week on the Harding campus to learn more about the spirit of Christianity, American democracy and free enterprise.

In past years, high school juniors and seniors from Arkansas, Missouri, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee and Texas have been instructed in the country's heritage.

The program is coordinated by Civitan International and the University's American Studies Program, with individual clubs sponsoring the visiting students.

Speakers for the 1984 program include Eldridge Cleaver, former Black Panther leader; Col. Joseph E. Hickox, former attache to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow; and Dr. Walter H. Judd, former Minnesota Congressman and medical missionary.

Harding President Clifton L. Ganus, Dr. Don Diffine, director of the Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education, and Dr. Bob Reely, director of the Center for Management Excellence, will also have a part on the program.

On the final day of the seminar, students will be given opportunity to display their talents at a banquet, and some students will make presentations of what they have learned during the week.

Reely, assistant director of the program, said he considers the seminars to be a two-fold investment: the program encourages good citizenship and leadership and it sometimes recruits those leaders of the future to further their education at Harding University.

A recreation program will include a float trip on the Buffalo River, movies, watermelon cuttings and four Dinner Theatre presentations by the Department of Speech: "Hold Me," "Sarsparilla, Please," "The Four-Poster" or "I Do, I Do" and "The Mouse Trap."

For the past few years, Harding's administrators have set an enrollment goal of 1,000 students. Enrollment has increased each year, and Long said he hopes the mark will be reached this summer.

approach to the more curious things found in nature; "How to live 365 days a year!", an exploration and application of Philippians, and a Reader's Theatre, with participants permitted to perform favorite literary and dramatic selections.

"Have you ever wondered . . .?" will be repeated in the third session, and "Microcomputers," and "Pottery Making" will round out the classes.

The program requires that students attend at least one of the three classes each session. More than 100 persons have attended the sessions each year and many

Summer Dinner Theatre Provides Change of Pace

Searcy Summer Dinner Theatre, after a successful initial offering last year, will again be a part of the Summer Sessions, according to Evan Ulrey, chairman of the speech department.

Designed both as a workshop for college students and as entertainment for the community, theatre presentations will be directed by Robin Miller and Morris Ellis of the speech faculty, with each directing two plays.

Miller will direct "Hold Me," set for June 21-23, and "Sarsparilla, Please," scheduled for July 5-7. "Hold Me" is a series of vignettes of one's relationships and self-concepts, and the characters convey a humorous, bittersweet view of their lives, Miller said. The second is a musical melodrama.

Productions by Ellis will be "The Fourposter," the story of a couple from the time they wed to their retirement, or "I Do, I Do," which is the musical version of the

Cleveland Endowment Fund Needs $2,400 to Reach Goal

Contributions are still being accepted for the Jo Cleveland Creative Writing Endowment Fund, a project begun last fall to honor the professor of English who recently retired after 17 years on the faculty.

Dr. Dennis Organ, English department chairman, said that $2,600 has been given in tribute to Mrs. Cleveland, who sponsored the Creative Writing Contest for University students for several years.

"We set a goal of $5,000, which is the amount necessary to generate enough interest to take care of prizes for the contest each year and for the annual publication, Shapes and Names," Organ said. "We know that we were not able to contact all those whose lives were enriched through Mrs. Cleveland's teaching, and anyone wishing to make an initial contribution or an additional gift to the endowment may do

Graduate-level courses are available in the education/teaching fields and provide an excellent opportunity for in-service teachers to acquire additional college credit, Long noted.

Long mentioned summer school as an opportunity for students to accelerate college programs or to take classes for which they otherwise would not have time. "Most students do better work in summer school because distractions are so few," he said, "and teacher/student relationships improve have come back again, Carr said.

Classes require no exams, no homework and no grades, although teachers often suggest helpful outside projects or study.

The cost of the week-long program is $180, and covers meals, housing in the American Heritage Center, classes and any extracurricular activities. Meals are provided in the American Heritage cafeteria.

Further information may be obtained or applications may be received through contacting Elderhostel, 100 Boylston St., Boston, Mass. 02116.

same story, on July 26-28. The final presentation will be "The Mousetrap," an Agatha Christie 'whodunit' on Aug. 9-11.

Location for the dinner theatres has not been set, but Ellis anticipates using the Hammon Student Center, where the shows played last summer to audiences of approximately 75. Meals were catered by the Heritage Cafeteria.

Season tickets will be available through May and individual tickets may be purchased two weeks prior to each show. Interested persons will be notified of ticket prices and seating arrangements by sending name and address to Harding University SSDT, Box 771, Station A, Searcy, Ark. 72143. Further details will be announced later.

Ellis mentioned that high school juniors and seniors are urged to participate in the theatre as performers or technicians. College credit is available for those enrolled in the workshop.

so," he added.

The Creative Writing Contest each spring encourages student expression in the categories of fiction, essay, poetry and hymn lyrics. Winning selections are published as Shapes and Names.

Mrs. Cleveland joined the faculty in 1966. She earned the doctorate from the University of Mississippi. Twice she was the winner of a Distinguished Teacher award, receiving the honor in 1972 and 1981. In addition, the senior class dedicated the 1983 Petit Jean yearbook to her. She retired at the end of the spring semester for health reasons.

The professor was honored at a dinner in October at the Heritage Room.

Contributions for the Endowment Fund may be sent to Organ at Box 811, Harding University, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

in the concentrated studies. Students seem better able to focus on academics."

Long will also conduct a tour of New England for upper-level English credit during Intersession.

"Intersession especially has a magnified response," he added. "For 13 days the students don't do anything else, and in that short time they can earn three hours of credit."

Other advantages of summer school include saving money, as students may acquire 17 hours of credit in a 13-week effort with cost of room and board significantly decreased for the shorter time period.

For more information contact Dr. Larry Long, Box 898, Harding University, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

Board Member Dies In Memphis

James B. Ellers, a member of the Harding University Board of Trustees since June, 1969, died suddenly Dec. 10, 1983 after attending a Memphis State University basketball game.

Ellers, an architect, was a partner in the Memphis firm of Ellers, Oakley, Chester and Rike, consulting engineers.

He is survived by his wife, Terry, and four children — James B. Jr., Henry John, Teresa Ann and Sharon Dale — all of whom attended Harding Academy in Memphis.

Born Jan. 6, 1922, Ellers was educated at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. He served on the Advisory Board of Harding Academy and was a member of the Raleigh church of Christ. He also was instrumental in raising funds to establish the Mid-South Christian Nursing Home.

"We have lost a tireless worker in the Lord's Kingdom and a devoted friend of Christian education," said Harding President Clifton L. Ganus Jr.

News Briefs . . .

Dr. David Burks, director of the American Studies Program, will accompany 52 students and two other faculty members to Washington, D.C. March 23-31

Dr. Jimmy Carr will lead an 18-day tour (April 30-May 18) of Holland, Germany, Switzerland and Italy for persons over 55 with air transportation from Atlanta to Amsterdam and return. A $200 deposit will be required for a reservation and the remaining $1,400 is due by Feb. 29. A 15-day Eurail pass for first class train travel on all trains in Western Europe except England and Scotland will be provided.

Dr. Larry Long will lead a New England study tour May 12-24 for three hours credit in English. A maximum of 12 students will be taken on the tour, Long said. Cost of the trip will be approximately $1,000, which includes tuition, plane fare, hotels, transportation and food.

Dr. Nancy Clark and Jerry Myhan from the Harding School of Nursing will participate in a medical mission trip to Panama March 30-April 8 along with six senior nursing students.

Mrs. Elaine Camp Thompson is retiring from the Home Economics faculty in May 1984. A memory book composed of letters and photographs from her former students and classmates is planned. If you would like to participate, please send a letter written to her for inclusion in the book. She would also appreciate a snapshot of your family. Please send them to Dr. Mildred Bell, Box 761, Harding University, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

First High School Bowl Planned for March 2-3

Harding University will sponsor for the first time ever a High School Bowl March 2-3 for teams from 15 Christian schools representing a five-state area, according to Admissions Director Durward McGaha.

$500 scholarships will be offered by the University to members of the winning team who enroll at Harding for their first year of college study. Members of the second-place team will receive $300 scholarship offers for their first year at Harding.

A double elimination format, similar to that used in College Bowl competition, will be in effect for the two-day tournament.

According to Chris Dell, admissions counselor and director of the High School Bowl, 13 schools have already confirmed that they will participate this spring. In-

Accounting Program to Offer New Classes

Six new courses will be added to the curriculum this fall in conjunction with the newly-approved Master of Science in Accounting program, according to Dr. Jim Henderson, program director and assistant dean of the School of Business.

Included will be Systems Analysis and Design, Financial Management, Auditing II, Cost II, Seminar in Contemporary Accounting and Seminar in Accounting Theory. An Independent Study in Accounting will also be offered on demand.

The exact program of study will vary for each student, Henderson said, depending on his educational background. Students with an undergraduate degree in accounting can complete the program requirements by taking 32 semester hours.

Students with an undergraduate degree in business can complete the program by taking 41 semester hours, and students with an undergraduate degree in a non-business field may be required to take a maximum of 78 semester hours.

Certain requirements must be met in order for students to be admitted into the program, Henderson said. They must have a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution, submit an official transcript from each institution attended, submit two letters of reference and take the Graduate Management Admissions Test (GMAT).

Applicants must achieve a composite score of 1000 or above to be admitted, Henderson said. This score is based upon the GMAT score plus 200 times the student's overall undergraduate grade point average.

In order to graduate, all students must have received credit for a minimum of 39 semester hours in accounting at the undergraduate and graduate level combined, Henderson said.

At least one new faculty member will be added to assist in teaching the new courses, Henderson said, and several courses now being offered at the undergraduate level will be offered concurrently for graduate credit.

"We feel the addition of the master's program in accounting puts Harding in a position of leadership in the field," Henderson said, "and further strengthens the excellent reputation of our School of Business.

"We look forward to assisting all interested, qualified students in receiving a high quality education," he added.

For more information, contact Dr. Jim Henderson at (501) 268-6161, Ext. 241, or Box 774, Harding University, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

cluded are Columbia Academy (Tenn.), West Memphis Christian, Madison Academy (Huntsville, Ala.), Mars Hill Bible School (Florence, Ala.), Central Arkansas Christian, Ezell-Harding (Nashville, Tenn.), Crowley's Ridge Academy, Greater St. Louis Christian Academy (Mo.), Jackson Christian (Tenn.), Shreveport Christian (La.), Green Country Christian (Tulsa, Okla.), Harding Academy — Memphis and Harding Academy — Searcy.

Preliminary competition will be held Friday in the Mabee Business Center and final rounds will be played Saturday in the Benson Auditorium so that students and faculty members can view the matches.

Dr. Dennis Organ, chairman of the Harding English Department, and co-sponsor of the Harding College Bowl team, will direct the actual High School Bowl competition.

"We feel it's a unique opportunity for students to compete against other Christian schools," Dell said.

The five-member teams (including an alternate) will be housed on the Harding campus free of charge, with team sponsors staying in the homes of faculty members.

Participating teams have been mailed a set of sample questions along with rules and regulations governing the competition. Each school will also receive a certificate at an awards banquet to be held following the conclusion of the tournament.

Dell also added that students will have the opportunity to visit academic departments while on campus.

American Studies Program Awarded National Honor

The Harding University American Studies Program, directed by Dr. David Burks, has been awarded the Valley Forge Honor Certificate for excellence in the category of Community Programs, according to Robert W. Miller, president of Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge, Pa.

The award covers the period from Sept. 1, 1982 to Sept. 1, 1983, and is based on quality, comprehensiveness and amount of local involvement in community programs, especially as they relate to education of the public concerning the basic principles upon which America was founded.

The Harding entry consisted of a 16 x 13 inch scrapbook containing newspaper clippings, brochures and photographs concerning the American Studies Program. Included in the program are an annual Youth Citizenship Seminar, Management Seminar, field trip and lecture series.

Judging of the entries was conducted by an independent National Awards Jury.

"We're extremely pleased that our program at Harding has been recognized for its contributions to citizenship education," Burks said, "and we will continue to reach out to our students, the local community and the Central Arkansas area."

During the last three decades Harding, its faculty, staff and administration, have won more than 50 Freedoms Foundations awards, honors, medals, plaques and certificates.

Freedoms Foundation is an independent, non-profit organization which seeks to recognize superior performance and achievement in promoting the American way of life.

Channel 12 Programming Set for Spring Semester

Harding University's television station, Channel 12, is offering a variety of programs for students, faculty and the Searcy public this spring, according to Mike James, director for programming.

A variety of shows is scheduled, including a live local news show at 6:30 p.m. each weeknight. Anchor positions for this semester are being filled by Doug Hurst, a junior from Dallas, Tex., Lori Johnson, a junior from Columbus, Ohio, and senior John Tom Thompson of Nashville, Tenn. Jeff Mansur, an Ozark, Mo. senior, is the student director for the news.

In addition to news, the station offers sports and religious programs and many other shows featuring Searcy and its residents.

Sports shows on Channel 12 include delayed broadcasts of sporting events from the University, Searcy High, Harding Academy and other area schools. John Tom Thompson directs a show which reviews sports and interviews the coaches.

Herald of Truth, a weekly religious program, and films provided by the Arkansas Endowment for the Humanities are also aired on Channel 12. Jack Boersma is post-production editor for these shows.

Lori Johnson is the student director for a show entitled "Ideas for Creative Living," which is hosted by Loleta Higginbotham and offers helpful home hints.

Shows featuring Searcy and her people are "Searcy: A Page out of the Past," hosted by Dr. Ray Muncy and directed by Tim Frakes and Anthony May; "Searcy on the Move," hosted by Dr. Jimmy F. Carr Jr. and directed by Andy Pearce; and "Woman Watch," a show highlighting Searcy area women, directed by June Middleton. News from Harding Academy and Searcy High School is presented under the direction of Kyle Reeves.

Dr. Cathleen Shultz, dean of the Harding School of Nursing, hosts "Health Issues," which is a show outlining medical care available in the Searcy area. This show is directed by Kevin Cave.

"Management Tips," a show bringing valuable tips on management, is hosted by Dr. Bob Reely, a business professor at Harding University. This show is under the direction of Bob Ritchie.

Shows which are new to the schedule this semester include a variety show which will feature local talent, a show for children which is hosted by Tom Ritchie, and "Physics Wonders" which presents marvels of nature and science. This show is hosted by James Mackey and Lambert Murray and is directed by Mike James and Bob Ritchie.

The schedule each day ends with a devotional thought. The devotional segments are directed by Glen Studebaker.

Further information about Channel 12 can be obtained by contacting Mike James.

Between Two Thieves Planned for Feb. 20-25

"Between Two Thieves," a two-act play based on the trial and crucifixion of Jesus, will be produced by the Harding University Department of Speech Feb. 20-25 at 7 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

The retrospective play will explore human nature rather than religious doctrine or individual characterization, and according to Director Robin Miller, "It is a rather powerful piece of theatre."

An 18-member cast has been rehearsing since Jan. 23, including David Asbill as John, Stephen Grimsley as Judas, Scott Harris as Peter, Becky Maupin as Mary, and Robin Starck as Pilate.

Other cast members and their roles are Dan Billingsley as Caiphas, Jay Copeland as the Third Spectator, Tim Covington as David, Julie Grahm as the Young Spectator, Connie Hill as Rebecca, Rona Lyon as Sara, Kelly McCox as Thomas, JoEllen Noland as the Blonde, Carla Thompson as Mary Magdalene, Todd Thompson as Elias, Jenetta Walker as the Nun, Mary Withen as the Second Spectator and Voices and Marneda Wade as the Stage Manager.

Miller said the script, written in 1958 by Warner LeRoy, will be updated and modernized considerably. The play focuses on the later reactions of those present at the crucifixion of Jesus.

Tickets will be one dollar with Harding I.D. and $2.50 for general admission.

Long-Time Art Teacher Retires

by Alice Ann Kellar

Since 1946, the name Elizabeth Mason has been synonymous with the Harding art department. In December, Mrs. Mason retired, ending formal association with the University.

But just as her colorful paintings will continue to hang in select locations in Searcy and in many other places across the country, so will her influence continue through the lives of the students that the colorful professor herself has assisted.

The daughter of G. C. Brewer, pioneer gospel preacher who brought his only child to a deep faith that has dominated her life and sustained her goals, she attended Abilene Christian College and earned a degree in pre-med with an art minor ("They didn't have a major then.")

"I would have gone to med school, but my mother thought girls should 'stay put,'" she said. So the new graduate pursued her art, studying in her hometown of Memphis.

It was her father, too, who encouraged her to become a "free thinker," a characteristic that the feisty adventurer perpetuated. "He was one who respected women for their brains — not a popular trait for his day — but he helped me know it was all right to have a thought," she said, adding, "I'm not a feminist, though, as we know the word today."

After studying a year she was married to Perry Mason, whom she had met at ACC. Mason was a teacher and coach. The new bride kept on painting, and now she has among her art works a painting done on a cardboard stuffing the laundry used to fold her husband's shirts. "I had no money to buy canvas, and I had the urge to paint," she says of the piece.

That knack for making the best of her environs was to come in handy later on as well.

Finding she had more time on her hands than she needed ("I would clean my apartment — then what?"), she turned to teaching on the high of the faculty at Lubbock Christian College. He and his wife, Lynne, have four children.

In the Post War days, when President George S. Benson was building up Harding College, the Masons were persuaded to come to Searcy, where Elizabeth would chair and also be the only faculty member in the art department. Perry filled the position of Academy superintendent, a post he held until his retirement in 1976.

the ups and downs of a developing University, teaching and guiding students from various locales on campus.

"The art department was in the Science Annex for a while, and I taught six months wearing galoshes," she laughs of her experience in a building plagued with drainage problems.

As she taught art she also tried to teach her students how to live, a probable outcropping of her father's influence in her life.

someone just because I thought they might like to have it."

If anyone wants one of her paintings, she'll give it for the asking. And, too, over the years, she has sold many of her works. But she's adamant about forcing her works on someone — anyone — if he doesn't want it.

After 18 years, an enlarged department claimed home in the new Mildred Taylor Stevens Art Center adjoining the former president's home. The house itself serves as faculty offices and a gallery. Classrooms and studios are in the addition, completed in 1969.

The gallery is open throughout the year with senior art majors holding their required shows during the semesters and traveling exhibits or other special shows displayed at other times for the enjoyment of the Harding family.

In January, Mrs. Mason showed a collection of her works, which included the one on the shirtboard, completed many years ago, and one finished only a few weeks ago — a scene inspired by a West Texas storm. It was the first time she had ever held a one-woman show on the campus.

Graduates of her art classes are teaching in many other Christian colleges, including Abilene Christian University, Pepperdine, Columbia Christian and Oklahoma Christian, to name a few. At a number of colleges, departments have been started by her former Harding students.

Musing at random about former students, stories of college days, and memories of her parents, she pensively remarked, as if trying to convince herself, "I should write a book."

"My greatest works of art, I would hope, are the many students I have worked with and whose lives I have touched in some way, hopefully for good."

— Elizabeth Mason

school level. And she found herself growing in confidence. Admittedly a timid person who finds it difficult to 'join a crowd', she realized that teaching was enjoyable. Along with her husband, she earned a master's degree and, maybe even without realizing it, set her lot for a long career.

The Masons resided in West Texas several years, interrupted by World War II, when Perry served in the Navy. Elizabeth attempted to join the WASPS. "I wanted to travel, and I thought that would be a good way to get to do some," she notes.

But she was denied that venture because she had Perry Jr., now a member Elizabeth was department chairman until she resigned in 1978, turning the job over to Don Robinson. For the past five years, she has done full-time classroom teaching only.

Arriving in Searcy, the family stayed at the Mayfair Hotel until the first of six rock houses on Blakeney Street could be completed, and watched the construction of Rhodes Memorial Field House a short time later.

While residing there, the Masons became a foursome with the birth of Molly, now Mrs. Dennis Noble. The Nobles reside in Searcy with Nathan and Nieka.

During the years, Elizabeth rolled with

As the many crises of money shortages faced Christian Education, her department was relegated to a section of the Academy building and art students vied with Academy students for quiet halls and noise choices.

"We'd tromp through the halls, getting to class, while the Academy teachers were trying to teach. No sooner would we get settled then the bell would ring and the halls would fill with lively teenagers and we would be the ones adjusting," she reminisced.

Along with the rest of her duties, she painted. "I've never painted anything just to try to sell it," she states sternly. "And I've never painted something for Serendipity is the process of the unexpected happening when something else is sought. It is finding valuable or agreeable things not sought after.

In many ways serendipity can describe the providence of God, for God accomplishes His will in sometimes unexpected ways.

Serendipity is the word that applies to Gordon Hogan, visiting professor of missions at Harding University and president of Four Seas College of Bible and Missions in Singapore.

Little did he know that his work with the church as a deacon in Pinellas Park, Fla., in 1959 would result in him doing mission work for the next 23 years.

Since 1960 Hogan has been involved in the preaching of the gospel in Lahore, Pakistan and Singapore.

Toward the end of 1959, he was asked to invite Ira Y. Rice Jr., a missionary on the island of Singapore at that time, to preach a gospel meeting at Pinellas Park.

When he contacted Rice, Rice suggested a new idea. Instead of a regular gospel meeting they would have a World Evangelism Mission Clinic. The clinic was scheduled for January 1960.

After the clinic the elders at Pinellas Park decided they would send a man to a country that had no missionary.

A 4 a.m. phone call three months later was the stimulus that was the change in the life of Hogan. Ira Rice called and asked Hogan to consider going to India.

After much soul-searching Hogan decided to go if Pinellas Park would sponsor him. The church agreed and a departure date of November 1960 was set.

In February 1961, after an overland trip from Turkey, Hogan, his wife, and three children arrived in Lahore, Pakistan.

When they found their visas were denied, they decided to stay in Pakistan.

There was no church in Pakistan when Hogan arrived. It was seven months before the first person was baptized, but in the eight years the Hogans spent in Pakistan, he baptized 800 people.

From Pakistan they went to Singapore, where they have been the last 15 years.

What was it like for three children to live in a foreign land? "They thought it was great," Hogan said.

He said children have no problem adjusting to the change; the problem is with adults.

All of his children attended Harding. His daughter, Beth, is the wife of Mike James,

Merritt Advocates Christian Education

by Bruce Cook and Lisa Keen

Roy Merritt, 39, is a firm believer in both Christian education and missions work. He has found the best of both worlds at Namwianga Christian School in Kalomo, Zambia, an African nation of about six million.

Merritt is no stranger to Zambia, having grown up there as the son of missionary J. D. Merritt, who spent 50 years in Zambia. And on the maternal side, he is the grandson of Zambian missionary George Scott.

Namwianga Christian was begun in January, 1966 by J. D. Merritt, J. C. Shumaker, John Kledzik, Keith Besson and Dennis Mitchell, Roy said. Soon afterward, in the spring of 1963, Roy Merritt enrolled at Harding College as a freshman.

He graduated with a double major in Bible and psychology in 1967 and then pursued graduate work at McGill University and Scarritt College, returning to Zambia in the fall of 1968 as a teacher at Namwianga Christian.

Merritt said he teaches mathematics, geography and Bible and preaches on the weekend. He also sponsors the school basketball team, the Cobras, which have won seven provincial championships during the past eight years and in 1983 were in the national quarterfinals.

During his 15 years at the school, Merritt has formed several opinions about education and missions. "Missionary preachers should have a vocation whenever possible," he said.

Merritt also believes that no one type of missions work is absolute. "We should encourage all of the different methods," he said, "because each has its own advantages and disadvantages."

Merritt is quick to refer to the parable of the sower for a Biblical approach to missions. "Some plant the seed, some till the soil and some reap the harvest," he said. "Not everyone is comfortable with the same approach."

While there is diversity in missions methodology, Merritt said there are common goals. Included are providing opportunities for people to hear the gospel, providing a Christian example, baptizing people, bringing converts to maturity through teaching, developing church leaders and developing independent churches.

"The greatest method of all is love," he said. "That will cover a lot of mistakes."

Merritt listed several methods, including preacher schools, Christian schools, food relief, medical missions and hospitals, mission teams, youth camps, mass media publicity and programing, personal work, Bible and tract distribution, correspondence courses, financial contributions to support mission efforts, foster homes and orphanages, vocational missionaries, and full time preachers.

Education in Zambia differs greatly from that in America, he said. All students in Zambia take a government examination at the end of the seventh grade, Merritt said, and only about 15 percent qualify to attend high school. Then at the end of the tenth grade, students take a second mandatory test and another 50 percent are cut. "It's quite a competitive environment," Merritt said.

A little over 200 students attend Namwianga Christian, which offers a five year program of study (grades eight through twelve), Merritt said.

Many of the students are baptized while at the school, and go on to become Bible teachers, preachers and church leaders, he said.

Merritt returns to the states about once every three years. On his most recent visit to the states, he spoke to the West Side church of Christ, in Searcy, on the four advantages of a Christian education in fulfilling the great commission.

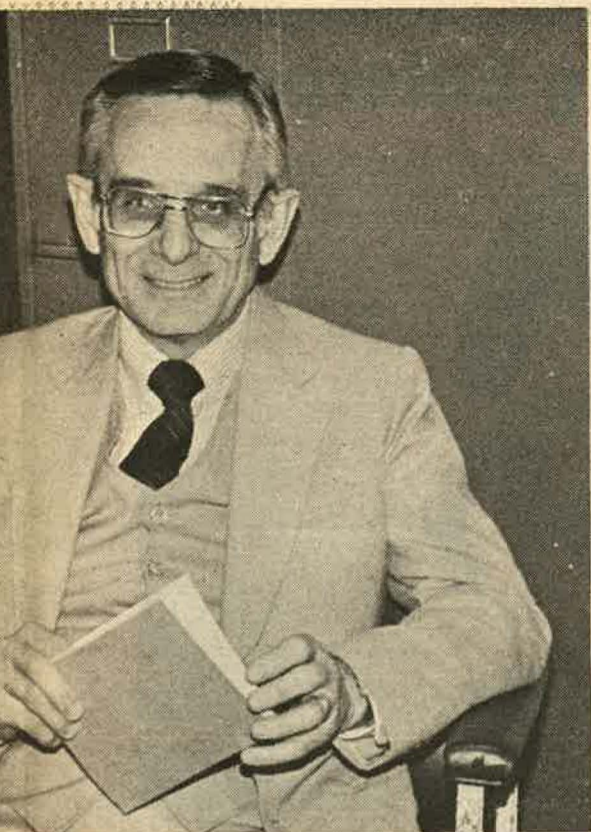

Merritt believes that the first advantage is that "the school provides the time and environment needed to make disciples," he said. He believes there is a big difference between the disciple and the Christian. The disciple is the student who promotes the cause. Merritt said that "many missionaries make the mistake of evangelizing an area, baptizing the people and then leaving them to learn on their own."

A Christian education gives the students opportunities to practice spreading the gospel while under supervision. The boys in the school at Namwianga speak in chapel, the girls teach Bible classes and the students participate in campaigns. The young people really get involved in evangelizing this way.

The third advantage is that a Christian school provides quite an evangelistic outreach. The school reaches out to the villagers in two different ways. These two ways are by campaigning and holding church leaders' seminars. Merritt said that there are nearly 140 churches in Zambia today. The leaders of these churches are primarily the people who have attended the missions schools.

A Christian education lastly, provides training so that the church can be financially independent. "If you can train a person in a vocational field, then he can support himself," Merritt said.

Educated Africans are the leaders in the African churches, he concluded.

Visiting Missionary

associate instructor of journalism at Harding. His daughter, Julie, is married and lives in Dexter, Mo. His son, Dave, a graduate of Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, is now a missionary in Singapore.

Hogan was 32 years old when he decided to go to India. Before that the East St. Louis, Ill., native was employed by Dun and Bradstreet, the largest credit reporting company in the world.

After he spent one and a half years in the Air Force, he used his GI bill to go to St. Louis University at night and studied accounting. He spent two years in East St. Louis and then moved to Florida.

During the last 23 years, he has become somewhat of a world traveler. He has traveled and preached in about 50 countries of the world.

In Singapore the church is young, vibrant and alive, Hogan said. Yet the church isn't that way in the countries around it.

Indonesia, according to Hogan, has 150 million people, the fifth largest population in the world. Yet there is only one American Christian family working in Indonesia. There is a need for workers in southeast Asia, and the workers have got to come from the homes, he said. It must happen in the homes, where they believe that the people of the world are lost and that the family is an integral part of getting the message of salvation to the world, Hogan said.

But the church must be the focal point instead of the Christian colleges, he added. "The way we are doing it now it will never get done. The church has the resources, it just needs the mindset," he said. One of the reasons for not having the proper mindset is that "we probably have a generation of Biblical illiterates," he continued. The word of God produces faith and unless there is faith there will be no action. We are going to have to get back to the Book, he said.

"We look at missions from a doom and gloom perspective, but it is joy-filled opportunity," Hogan said. Mission work draws families closer together, allows you to see the world from a broader perspective, gives you the joy of seeing people come out of paganism to serve God, and provides the possibility of changing a nation, he explained.

Yet, Hogan believes the job will get done. He gave guidelines for the prospective missionary. The person wanting to do mission work needs to study and know God's word, understand and have experience in church planting and set time goals.

Serendipity does describe the life of Gordon Hogan, for he found through mission work an agreeable and valuable lifestyle although he didn't seek it.

Tate Heads Mission-Prepare Program

by Lisa Keen,
Student Journalist

Dr. Van Tate, associate professor of sociology at Harding University, is a missionary whose dreams are continually coming true. Tate, who was a missionary in Kenya, Africa for 10 years, was recently appointed to direct the Mission-Prepare program at Harding.

The Mission-Prepare program is designed to give the University campus a missions emphasis and to prepare students interested in mission work for the field of his or her interest. The program involves coordinating campaign groups, organizing and teaching missions courses, overseeing the missions laboratory, and overseeing a summer apprentice program.

The summer apprentice program allows students to receive financial assistance in order to work in a foreign field, Tate said. Tate said that he would like to see more students take advantage of the missions lab.

"I feel that the information we have in the lab would be useful to those students planning to participate in the Harding University-Florence program, those going on campaigns, and those who feel the need to share Christ but don't know where to start," Tate said.

The lab contains more than 2,000 cassette tapes of workshops and lectures relating to mission work, information on every country and their mission situation, and an updated list of missionaries in the field in each country.

"I've always wanted to do so much in the area of mission work," Tate said. He and his wife, Jean, had planned to go back to Kenya when their youngest daughter was enrolled in college. Tate feels now he is accomplishing more in the area of mission work by helping to prepare others who want to be active in the field.

Increasing mission awareness on campus and gaining the involvement of students from a broader spectrum are two goals that Tate started with when he was appointed Mission-Prepare director. Since then he has issued a prayer quest to the University.

"I wanted to inform students of the unevangelized areas of the world and to ask students to pray for these people," Tate said.

According to Tate, only one-fourth of the world's population has any kind of allegiance to Christianity, and statistics show the number of missionaries going into foreign fields is decreasing.

Churches are becoming discouraged with the lack of success in overseas work, and economic hard times are making funding for missions more difficult to find, Tate said.

The lack of success occurs because missionaries are not adequately trained for the problems they will face. Tate believes the University's program helps to prepare the student for these problems.

The program is designed to help the student better adjust to the new area, learn the language and to be prepared Biblically, psychologically, socially and emotionally for the new environment, Tate said.

Tate would like to see more non-missions majors become interested in the field. "The students need to see the challenge for mission work before they will become interested," he said. Tate thinks the lack of interest comes from our secular-oriented society.

"I would like to see the development of some new missions courses at Harding," he said, "even though our current program is very good."

Tate graduated from Abilene Christian University in 1958 with a B.A. in Bible. He received an M.A. in missions from Fuller Theological Seminary and the Ph.D. in anthropology from the University of Nairobi. Tate, a native Arkansan, was a full-time evangelist from 1959-64 in Oklahoma, Florida and Louisiana.

In 1965 he and his wife went to Kenya as missionaries. Only one other missionary family was present. Together they were the first church of Christ missionaries to evangelize Kenya.

Tate said they planted new churches, started leadership programs, and traveled across Africa visiting designated mission points. "We were welcomed whole-heartedly by the Africans," Tate said.

Currently there are 175 churches in Kenya," Tate said, and the number is rapidly increasing. Tate believes there will be several thousand churches there within the decade of the '80's.

"One really amazing fact is that three-fourths of the missionaries in Kenya are Harding graduates," he said.

Tate returns to Kenya every other summer to campaign and to visit mission points. He also lectures on missions all over the United States. He believes that through the power of prayer and training of more students that missions at Harding will continue to grow.

Tate also puts his beliefs into practice as an elder at the Cloverdale congregation in Searcy, where 43 percent of the church's 1984 budget will be spent for missions. "We hope to make that 50 percent in the near future," he added.

The Tates have four daughters: Susan, Lori, Ann and Jill.

Ted ('70) and Liz Parkhurst are as different as two people can be.

Ted, 35, is as tall as a basketball player, dreamy as a poet. He will ponder the answer to a question, searching for the right word to say the right thing.

Liz, 25, is as tiny as a ballerina, quick as a calculator. She will detail the answer to a question like an accountant, making sure it all adds up.

The two opposites have found a happy medium at August House Inc., a small, non-profit, Little Rock-based publishing house that is making waves in literary circles nationwide.

With the Parkhursts at the helm, the small press has gone from being a bare-bones operation a few years ago to a respected publisher of books that has gained notice in such prestigious journals as Publisher's Weekly and Booklist. One of its titles, "The Redneck Bride," by John Fergus Ryan, is scheduled to be made into a movie next spring.

The Parkhursts give talented Arkansas writers an outlet for their creative efforts.

Mrs. Parkhurst is relatively new to the operation. She joined August House in — appropriately — August 1981. A graduate of Southwestern at Memphis, she had worked as a youth director for Idlewild Presbyterian Church when she decided on a career change.

Thinking that the publishing business would allow her better use of her English degree, she contacted her third cousin, Walter Nunn, who was president of Rose Publishing Co. in Little Rock, to ask his advice.

Though she had never met Nunn, the two hit it off. They met a short time later, about the time that Nunn's administrative assistant was leaving Rose Publishing and the position was open. Liz was offered the job, and she accepted.

She started work Sept. 22, 1980, and one week later was manning a Rose Publishing booth at a meeting of the Arkansas Library Association in Hot Springs.

"My understanding at that time was that we (Rose) were the only Arkansas publisher," she recalls. When she spotted the August House booth, her curiosity was piqued. She went over and began snatching literature to "check out the competition."

"Ted came up to me and asked, 'Can I help you?' I said, 'No, I'm an exhibitor.'"

Parkhurst approached the competition a bit differently. He asked for a date. That night they went out together. One year later they married and Mrs. Parkhurst started working for August House.

Parkhurst has been with the company since its birth. "In the mid-'70s," he says, "there was a circle of poets in Little Rock who gravitated around John Biguenet, who is now the editor of the New Orleans Review."

Getting published, he says, was the most frustrating part of being a poet.

So, he says, the group discussed the prospect of an Arkansas publishing house so that local writers would not have to deal with publishers by long distance.

In 1979, Parkhurst and a friend, John Looney, decided that the best way to raise money was to sell books by subscription. They called on people they knew were interested in the arts and offered six books by Arkansas writers for an initial investment of $25. "We figured if we published six books of 48 pages each, we could sell enough to justify expenses."

More than 100 people responded. "It was a wonderful act of faith," he says.

Money was all that was needed. A name had already been chosen. "Several years before we made the commitment for publishing books, we dreamed up the name," he said.

With a poet's love for the rhythm of words, they decided a two-word name with the word "house" on the end sounded right. They rejected titles such as "Nebo House" and "Razor Books." One of the poets began going through the months of the year until they got to August. "It was perfect," he says.

The capital not only allowed the men to begin printing books, but also to open a one-room office at the Arkansas Times Building on West Second Street.

Four months later, in June 1979, a fire destroyed the building, burning all of Parkhurst's furniture and the entire inventory of printed books.

They had no insurance, and it was a complete loss. "We decided to get serious or quit," Parkhurst says.

Parkhurst quit his full-time job and began selling books door to door.

He knocked on doors for 18 months, recruiting about 100 members and selling approximately 1,500 books.

Looney dropped out of the operation during that period, so August House in essence became Ted Parkhurst.

For six months Parkhurst worked out of his house, until he was approached by Pratt Rimmel, a former mayor of Little Rock, "who made me an offer I couldn't refuse."

Rimmel offered three months free rent in his vacant turn-of-the-century building at 1010 W. Third St., if Parkhurst agreed to pay full rent afterwards.

At his new office, Parkhurst says, "people started calling me and asking if I would help publish their books through August House."

Stabilized by an office and buoyed by the extra business, August House began to take off. As word got out about the new publisher, writers flocked to Parkhurst with manuscripts.

Since its birth in 1979, Parkhurst says, August House has published more than 65 books. That amounts to more than 10 books a year by Arkansas writers.

Though he gets help sorting through manuscripts from an "editorial advisory group" and a group of "first readers," more time is spent producing the book than promoting it, and that should change, Parkhurst says.

August House does not need to turn a profit on each book. Parkhurst says only 10 percent of its publications have "ever paid their own way."

Money comes from donations, grants and memberships, he says. "But it is an economic reality that we are not selling enough books. Because we are not free from debt, we have to re-evaluate how we operate."

Bisons Find Right Combination Of Talent, Experience

Harding University has turned the tables on the preseason pollsters by jumping out to a first division ranking in the 1983-84 Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference race.

Standing 10-9 on the season, coach Jess Bucy's Bisons have compiled an early record and a third place position in the early season AIC race.

Two junior college transfers and improved performances from returning veterans have keyed a new level of competition for the Bisons this year.

"We are definitely an improved ballclub," Bucy said. "We're better balanced overall and we have greater depth than we've had in some time."

The two junior college additions, 6-5 Rich Foster of Festus, Mo., and 6-3 1-2 Dwight Weaver of Wheatley, Ark. have moved right into the Bison program and have played a major role in the rapid start of this year's squad.

The Bisons rushed out to their best conference start in a decade by reeling off consecutive victories over UA-Monticello, Henderson State University, Arkansas College and Hendrix College. The 4-0 mark earned Harding the top spot in the AIC.

Playing key roles for the Bisons were 6-9 senior Allen Gibbons of North Little Rock, 6-6 sophomore Kenny Collins of Valley Springs, Ark., 5-9 Floyd Smith of Marvel, Ark. and junior David Allumbaugh of Dallas, Texas.

A hand injury which required surgery has put the 6-5 Allumbaugh out for the season and his loss came at a crucial time for the Bisons.

Foster is setting the scoring pace for the Bisons with a 13.7 average per game. Right on his heels is Gibbons, an All-AIC selection last year when he led the conference in scoring, who has compiled a 12.7 point average. Collins is averaging 10.2.

"We feel that we have the talent to win," Bucy said, "and this is the year we need to go out and do it."

Smith is leading the team in free throw shooting with 34 of 45 attempts for an impressive 75.6 percent accuracy. Right behind is Weaver, with 52 of 69 tallies for 75.4 percent, and Foster, with 32 of 45 hoops for 71.1 percent.

Gibbons leads in rebounding with 138 for the season, an average of 7.3 per game. Weaver is second with 107 grabs and a 5.6 per game average.

Smith is also ranked second in the AIC in assists with 118 for a 6.2 per game average.

Football Lettermen Chosen by Coaches

Forty-three football lettermen, including all-conference honorees Greg Poston and Bobby Jones, have been announced by Harding University head coach John Prock.

Poston, a senior linebacker from Memphis and Jones, a junior tailback/return specialist from Steens, Miss., were selected on the 1983 Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference first team. The two players were also named to the NAIA District 17 honor team.

Six Bison athletes were recognized as four-year award winners. They were Durwood Dry of Merritt Island, Fla.; Mark Hoppe of Nashville, Tenn.; Steve Hunter of Stigler, Okla.; James Joyce of Huntsville, Ala.; Poston and John Tom Thompson of Nashville, Tenn.

Dry and Hunter were All-AIC honorees in 1982.

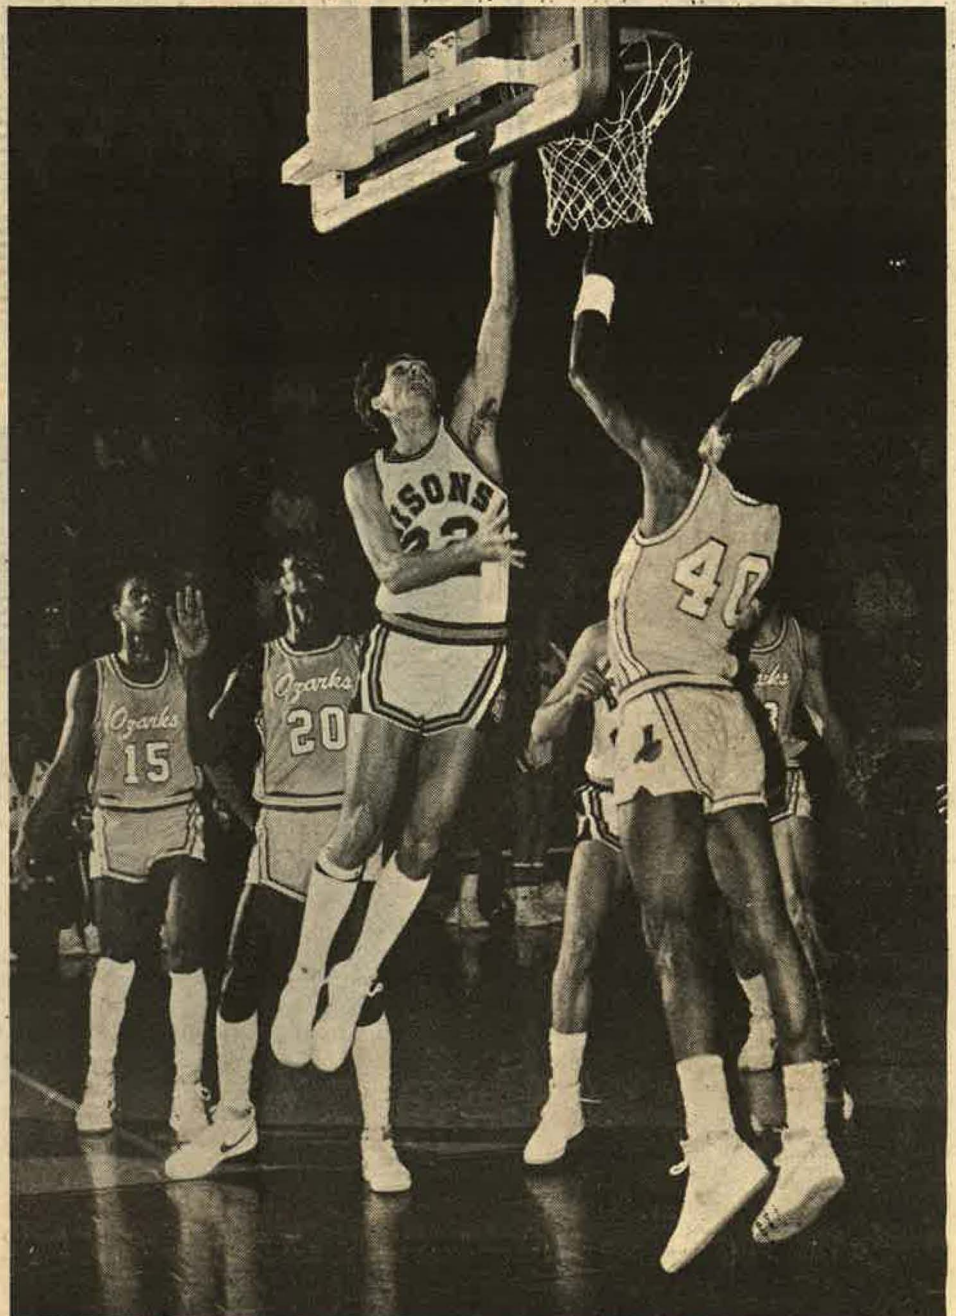

Three-year lettermen were Mark Adkison of Tulsa, Okla.; Darren Clepper of Hurst, Texas; Bret Frantz of Dallas; Gary Hill of Memphis; Paul Maturi of Dallas; Phillip Nannie of Nashville, Tenn.; Gordon Roddenberry of Pavo, Ga.; Don Shumate of Sherwood, Ark. and Byron Walls of Columbus, Ohio.

Two-year numeral winners were Jo Reed Brumley of Columbus, Miss.; John Baker of Fort Walton Beach, Fla.; Scott Franklin of Dunwoody, Ga.; Wes Hunt of Denison, Texas; Drake Jackson of Temple, Texas; Jeff Klein of Tabernacle, N.J. and Z.C.O. Uhatafe of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Receiving their first letter were Matt Clouser of Huntsville, Ala.; Chad Denney of Longwood, Fla.; Kenneth Forte of Little Rock, Ark.; Chip Foster of Dallas; John Fox of Searcy; Paul Golden of Caddo Gap, Ark.; Leonard Hampton of Memphis; Jeff Hendrick of Nashville, Tenn.; Luther Henry of Fort Worth, Texas; Kevin Hinkle of Paducah, Ky.;

Jay James of Searcy; Jones of Steens, Miss.; James Kiggins of Louisville, Ky.; Brent LeDoux of Jennings, La.; Mannie Lowery of Little Rock, Ark.; Chris McDavid and Chuck Nelson of Dallas; Todd Potter of McGehee, Ark.; Rick Riddle of Irving, Texas; Kenneth Shivers of Oxford, Miss. and James Smith of West Helena, Ark.

Also receiving four-year letters were trainer Mark Pettit of Eljay, Ga. and manager Tim Thrasher of Tulsa, Okla.

Terry Jones

HU Diver Qualifies for National Meet

Harding University diver Terry Jones scored 433.9 points in the three-meter diving competition to qualify for the NAIA national championships in a triangular swimming meet recently in Russellville.

"Terry's performance was outstanding," Waterbuffalo head coach Jack Boustead said. "The NAIA qualifying standard this year is 420 points and that's even higher than the NCAA Division II standard."

A senior from Rogers, Jones' performance in the three-meter event is one of the finest ever by a Harding diver. He earned the right to participate in the championships to be held at Ouachita Baptist University in March, and became the first University diver to qualify for the national meet since Mark Trotter pulled the trick in 1976.

His performance also led the Buffaloes to a runner-up finish in the meet against Ouachita and Arkansas Tech. OBU had 62, Harding had 52 and Tech finished with eight points.

A physical education major, Terry serves the team as co-captain and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Jones.

Booklet Cited for Excellence

A Harding University sports publication, "Harding Cross Country '83" has been named the recipient of a citation of excellence by the College Sports Information Directors Association (CoSIDA).

The cross country brochure was compiled and edited by Bruce Cook, director of information. Prepared primarily as an information piece for the media, the brochure covered the men's and women's cross country programs at Harding.

"Burse has been working with the cross country program for the past two years and does an excellent job." Stan Green, Harding director of public relations said. "The award is especially appropriate because it recognizes Bruce's organizational and writing abilities."

The Harding publication was judged into the category of NAIA Division I and NCAA Division II for colleges and universities. The 26-page brochure was organized in an 8 1/2 x 11 format and featured a photograph of a Bison cross country runner on the front cover.

Judges for the cross country brochure competition were Jim Laise, sports department, Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Chris Arnold, sports director, KKDA-FM, Grand Prairie, Texas; and Robert Peaks, Stafford-Lowdon Printing Co., Fort Worth.

Cook is a graduate of the University of Arkansas-Little Rock and earned a master's degree at Harding in 1980. He joined the University's public relations staff in 1981.

Married to the former Meg Garland of Tulsa, Cook is a native of McRae.

14 Runners Letter

Fourteen cross country letters have been awarded by Harding University coach Ted Lloyd.

Seven men and seven women athletes received recognition for the 1983 season when Harding captured the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference and NAIA District 17 championships in the men's division and runnersup honors in the women's division of the AIC and District 17.

Award winners for the men's team were Al Bates of Nashville, Tenn., Kenneth Berry of Little Rock, Darryl Halbert of Lakewood, Colo., Michael Kamperschroer of Caledonia, Minn., Eddie Neal of Griffithville, James Pinson of North Little Rock and Larry Wayne of Fairhope, Ala.

Bates, Neal, Kamperschroer and Wayne were named to the All-AIC team.

Letter recipients for the Lady Bisons were Marci Crump of Salado, Texas, Lynn Dupaul of Houston, Texas, Le Ann Eno of Boise, Idaho, Tiny Fraley of Turrell, Ark., Anne Sears of Webster Groves, Mo., Stacie Turner of Ben Lomond, Ark. and Debi Wilson of Fort Worth, Texas.

Crump, who was the AIC and District 17 individual champion, Sears, Dupaul and Turner were named to the conference all-star units.

Harding University admits students of any race, color, and national or ethnic origin. Also, in compliance with Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972, and section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Harding University does not discriminate on the basis of sex or handicap in its educational program, activities, or employment except where necessitated by specific religious tenets held by the institution and its controlling body.

FEBRUARY 1984

Lady Bisons Celebrate First Victory

An early return from the holidays paid off for the Lady Bisons basketball team. Combining hustle and a good shooting night, Harding defeated Arkansas Baptist College 68-42 in January to record the first victory in the women's program which was started this season.

"I'm really pleased for the girls," Bison head coach Phil Watkins said. "It's hard to start a program from scratch because you're trying to play people that have had programs going for a long time. Our players have played every game with a lot of enthusiasm and I'm glad to get that first win."

Senior Jill Shipman of Shreveport, La. led the team in the Arkansas Baptist victory with 17 points. Sophomore Kim Taylor of Dallas and Lynette Gardner of Andover, Kans. each added 10 points. In all, 11 players got into the final box score.

"Two things were evident in the win," Watkins said. "We are cutting down on turnovers and our passing has improved."

The Lady Bisons have been shooting 68 percent from the free throw line and percent from the field.

The victory was a costly one for Watkins, who had promised earlier in the season to shave his mustache to celebrate the team's first win.

Harding initiated its women's basketball program this year and will likely become a member of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference for the 1984-85 season.
