A STUDENT PUBLICATION OF MARIAN COLLEGE

STATUS REPORT ON IMPROVEMENTS

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO...

by Ray List

Week after week, the Carbon reports the news. But some projects have not made the news for a while. Some questions need to be answered about the status of these renovation and improvement projects.

The plan to build a new Student Activity Center is still going strong. The Board of Trustees is actively reviewing different options for construction. In fact, the Board has created a Strategic Planning Committee in order to deal exclusively with this and other projects for development of Marian College. The main obstacle at the present moment is the funds needed for this job. The administration is positive that it can match the grant from Lilly. Yet, that will provide only one million dollars of the 3.5 to 4 million dollars that is needed to build the center. The administration is presently waiting for an evaluation study from John Grenzenbach & Associates on the feasibility of raising the other three million dollars. Once the study is out, which should be within a week, the Board of Trustees will continue with plans for the center. Dan Nicoson of the Development Office has firmly stated that this is still the top priority for the administration. He wants to reassure the students that this project has not been put aside. The board is still very enthusiastic about providing an activity center for the students.

Nicoson pointed out that Marian College has two main disadvantages. The first one is that Marian College does not have a very extensive Alumni Program since Marian is fairly new. The other problem is that Marian does not have great visibility among the business community. The second problem, however, is rapidly disappearing because of several factors. The first is that companies really like the graduates from Marian. The flexibility students get from the liberal arts education provided here at Marian makes them popular with many companies. Another factor that is a bonus for Marian is that the faculty are getting involved in off-campus activities. This involvement in the city community has increased the awareness of Marian College. Finally, a really big boost for Marian is that the Board of Trustees has representatives from city businesses. All these factors combined have led to a growing support for Marian College within the city.

The latest report on the new baseball stadium is that everything is proceeding smoothly. The general terms of the lease have been approved by The Board and signed by President Gatto. The main agreement is that IABA will build the stadium as planned with no cost to Marian, in return for Marian allowing IABA to use the field for games. Since IABA will be using the field only in (Please see STATUS REPORT continued on page 9)

MARIAN TUITION TO INCREASE 8%

by Tina M. Kunkler

The January 13 minutes of the Marian College Board of Trustees meeting stated that tuition and room and board fees will increase for students in the fall semester of 1988. Tuition will increase $243 per semester for students carrying 12 to 20 credit hours, according to Bain J. Farris, Chairman of the Board of Trustees. Room and board fees will increase $50 per semester for both the 15- and 20-meal plans.

Farris said that the rise in fees will cover the cost of living increase and that a strategic planning committee has been established to prioritize the use of the funds. Some of the proposed programs the committee will be looking at are the new Bachelor of Science in Nursing program, the increase in the annual stipend for the sisters, and a faculty development program.

Farris said that the Lilly Endowment funding for the proposed student center cannot be matched with a rise in tuition because the money must come from benefactors. Farris said the fees increase will invest in a strong future of Marian College and that it is not a marketing ploy. The minutes of the Board meeting stated that the increase "will still maintain Marian's position well below state and national averages for independent colleges and universities."

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS:

Dear Editors:

As a writer for the Carbon, I deal with the people of Marian College in many ways. Many of the students are working on or off campus to pay for their education on their own, with little or no aid from their parents. When I approached President Louis Gatto for a comment for my story concerning the status of tuition fees and housing costs, he declined comment until he was able to send a letter to students' parents informing them of any changes. He also asked that I not print the information that I had obtained from another source.

I feel that I have the right to know what I will be paying next year at Marian and why, since I am the one who will pay the costs for my education.

My parents are supportive of my education, but they do not sign permission slips for my field trips to the zoo anymore, Dr. Gatto. Why do they need to have information about my financial business before it is available to me?

College is supposed to continue one's education, and the years spent at college are a time to grow into an adult, if that stage has not been attained. Growth usually occurs through experiences or trial and error. If students are continually forced to call home to their parents for permission or for information, they are not given the opportunity to mature into the adults they have the potential to become. Students try to take more responsibility by working, budgeting their spending money, and setting their own hours, but they are held back by an administration who wants to keep them in grade school.

Dr. Gatto, let us grow up! Tell us what is happening. We can deal with a problem if we know what the problem is. We cannot fight the unknown enemy.

Wednesday night, 11:15 p.m. I was quietly sitting in my room, minding my own business. Two of my roommates were fast asleep in the other room, one of whom had been sick all week and was staying in from the cold. My other roommate was taking a shower to wash off the days trials. All was fine in Clare.

Suddenly the quiet was penetrated by the repulsive wail of the fire alarm. With a temperature of 28 degrees outside (I called the weather), the Clare residents were forced to leave their warm beds and showers (yes the water was really warm).

What was the cause of this fire alarm you ask? So did we! Oh, don't worry, Clare was no burning to the ground. This prank was the stunt of some uncaring fellow classmate of ours who pulled an alarm on Three West. I am ashamed to think that a classmate of mine would have such little concern for her friends and neighbors to pull such an assinine trick on us. Wake up! This is college -- not summer camp! It is time to grow up and face the world.

The culprit probably won't be reading this letter, so I would appreciate it if anyone who knows this person would pass my feelings on to her. Ten minutes after the confusion, the security alarm sounded. I rest my case.

PHON-A-THON A SUCCESS

Admissions Student Assistant, Beth Peter, giving a tour to a student that had been reached through the Phone-A-thon.

The Admissions Phon-A-Thon was again so very profitable toward contacting future students. Phone lines were donated by Indiana National Bank. Over fifty campus visits were scheduled at the phon-a-thon.

Many, many calls have come in to the Admissions Office for information, applications, and campus visits due to the great phoning done by students and staff. A big thanks to the Marian College staff and students for assisting the Admissions staff. A special thanks to David Edgecombe, Mary Haugh, Fr. Leopold Keffler, Beth Taylor, Sr. Rosanne Taylor, Dave Roberts, Sr. Carol Slinger, Sally Judd, and the Admissions staff.

For incentive, five one dollar bills were given each night for the first campus visits scheduled. Dollars were won by Raph Bayless, Denis Ratekin, Cindy Partilla, Rich Young, Barb Crock, Patti Boyle, Shawn Nash, Stacey Nicholas, Mike Hemmerich, Nina Fox, Becky Schrader, and Frank Berger. Others that helped phone were Mike Harnishfeger, Patty Koors, Karen Federspiel, Steve Tweddell, Gretchen Fagen, Pam Baker, Scott Van Alst, Oscar Gonzalez, Chris Beals, Michelle, Beno, Kathy Martin, and Lucy Griner. The people are what makes Marian College!

Financial Aid, said that increased costs will likely lead to increased eligibility in certain programs and increased need for some families. The Federal Government will be implementing a new financial need analysis program, Congressional Methodology, which may also impact student financial need. Shelton stated that "increased costs may not mean a dollar for dollar increase in need for students because of the impact of the new methodology."

When approached for comment on the rising costs at Marian, Controller Joe Ryan and President Louis Gatto declined official statements. President Gatto did say that a formal announcement to parents of students will be mailed out in a week and that students will also be informed at that time of the figures for the increase.

REPORT ON STUDENT BOARD

by John Brown

Last Tuesday, the Marian College Student Association met in their conference room in Clare Hall. Among the more relevant issues discussed were:

A meeting between the Board and the Executive Committee of Marian College is scheduled for February 11.

Nancy Hoeing, Vice President of the Board, announced that because of her commitment to student teaching, she is delegating her authority as Chairman of the Publications Committee to Junior Representative Bill Pedtke.

Ellen Frommeyer, Treasurer of the Board, stated that there had been a meeting of the Budget Committee planned for that day, but not enough members had shown up to have it. She announced that there was $570 left over from last semester that could be reallocated. She stated that requests for additional funding needed to have been submitted by February 9.

Frommeyer went on to explain the process for reallocation. First, she meets with all of the club treasurers who have left over funds. Then, after reaching an agreement on the amount of these funds, the Budget Committee meets. They decide on a budget proposal after reviewing the requests for additional funding. Frommeyer takes this proposal to Student Board, which approves it or disapproves it. Should the Board not approve the reallocations, Frommeyer must begin the process again.

Lisa Hartman, Chairman of the Social Planning Committee, reported that the ski trip "was a blast."

The Board meeting was paused for a few minutes so the Board could get its picture taken for the yearbook.

GILKEY SPEAKS AT CONVOCATION

by Corinne Collings

The Marian College Theology/Philosophy Department in association with the Marian College Convocations Committee will be presenting Langdon Gilkey on Tuesday, February 16, 1988, at 12:00 noon, in the Marian Auditorium. Gilkey, a distinguished American theologian with an international reputation, will be discussing the controversy of "religion and science in an advanced scientific culture."

Langdon Gilkey was brought up on conservative and fundamentalist theories but became concerned with the intersection of traditional faith and modernity. He has spent much time questioning the modern world and its interaction with religion. One of his recent books is titled Religion and the Scientific Future. Other books of his may be found in the Marian College library.

Gilkey became an expert witness in the Arkansas textbook case. The controversy in this case was on whether the Creation Theory should be taught along with the other theories of the universe in science classes. Gilkey will be discussing the issue and his position against the creationism theory being taught in the classroom. He believes that the heart of the issue is not actually about religion but about the philosophy of science.

As a result of his appearance at Purdue University last year -- where a few Marian students and faculty heard him speak -- it was suggested to have Gilkey discuss this current issue. Stacey Nicholas, who attended the speech at Purdue, stated that Gilkey is a "speaker who challenges the listener to constantly re-evaluate his personal philosophies."

Students are urged to attend in order to learn more about this controversial issue presented by an enthusiastic and educated speaker. Gilkey will be available for questions following the presentation.

OUR SIDE OF PARADISE

by Kimberly Stafford

Every day, millions of people talk about "World Peace." This peace is a time without war, suffering, and hardship. A time when you do not need to worry about crimes such as rape, robbery, and murder. Is this really possible? The answer may be right in front of us.

We as humans have the power, through nuclear war, to destroy much of the earth and its inhabitants. People must not sit by while such danger is present. The first step toward removing this danger is better communication between people, states, and countries. We must set aside our egos and communicate honestly. Without honesty, we would be wasting our time.

I realize that communication alone will not solve all of the world's problems, and it may not even solve the problem of nuclear war. However, "World Peace" is not possible without honest communication between all of the world's people. This includes honest communication not only between governments, but also between families, friends, and co-workers. Maybe "World Peace" needs to start at home.

D'ARBY ALBUM WORTHWHILE

by Russell Fox

Terence Trent D'arby is without a doubt the freshest and most promising artist to emerge this year. The sensational hype that accompanied his debut "Introducing the Hardline According to Terence Trent D'arby" has garnered him a grammy nomination without a top ten single or album to his credit. But the 25 year old Englishman proves worthy of the excitement. His vocal work on the album is stunning, his band is as tight as any funk/rock band in the business. His arrival is more than welcome.

"The Hardline According to Terence Trent D'arby" kicks off with the anthemic "If You All Get to Heaven." Though rather redundantly arranged, this track allows D'arby to work his vocal range to the limit, which alone makes it worthwhile listening. The L.P.'s weakest cut and poorly chosen first single release, "If You Let Me Stay" follows. Then the fun starts. The pulsating "Wishing Well" is outstanding. Present Heyman's pumping percussion lays the groundwork for the most romantic groove tune you've heard in a while. Saxman Mel Collins and axeman "Blast" Murray get to show their stuff on "Dance Little Sister," a wandering piece of funk that alone could dethrone Prince of his already lofty status. The beautifully written "Seven More Days" closes what is perhaps the finest first side of funk/rock since Sly Stone's "There's a Riot Goin' On."

Sadly, the work goes somewhat downhill from there, but not much. The lilting "Let's Go Forward" and "Sign Your Name" are strong tracks, as well as the cover of Smokey Robinson's "Whose Lovin You." The production and arrangements are generally effective throughout the album, and again, the vocal work is outstanding. Hopefully, the sophomore slump syndrome will not get to D'arby, as he has all the tools necessary to deem him a superstar. As it stands now, his debut shows him to be an articulate and extremely talented artist to be dealt with quite seriously in the future.

LILLY GRANT SOUGHT

by Tina M. Kunkler

The Faculty and Staff Affairs Committee of College Council has made a proposal to the Lilly Endowment Foundation for a $75,000 grant for the professional development of faculty and staff.

Marian College has never before had a coherent plan for such development according to Dr. Ray Craig. Craig said the committee saw need for a plan covering three areas: 1. teaching, 2. administrative service to the college and, 3. professional service to the field. The program they developed at a three day meeting in August of 1987 requires each faculty member to create a written plan for himself concerning these three areas and for him to share that plan with a colleague to help make a commitment to the plan and act as a facilitator for that plan.

Craig said that the Lilly Endowment Foundation coincidentally announced a major grant program for Indiana colleges needing funds for the development of programs such as this. The requested funds will be distributed over a three year period beginning July, 1988. Half of the funding will be used to help the administrators to develop their plan of action and the other half will be used for a proposed annual conference for faculty and staff to do training in the above mentioned areas.

school year, but he is already full of plans for developing a comprehensive departmental handbook.

Other actions handled included a leave of absence for Sr. Olga Wittekind, who is studying in Switzerland.

PROMOTION & TENURE

criteria are met. The criteria include: time, academic background and credentials, teaching experience and quality, and contributions to their field, college, and community.

Promotions to assistant professorships were approved for Mr. Andrew Hohman, Mrs. Sara Reid, and Ms. Megan Rohn. Miss Sally Beckman and Dr. Raymond Craig were promoted to the rank of associate professorship.

Tenure appointments, which involve an indepth and complex evaluation system which is finally decided by the Board of Trustees, provide a certain job security. The faculty members approved for tenure were: Rev. Leopold Keffler, Mrs. Rosanne Pirtle, Dr. Jerry Stumpf, and Sr. Rosanne Taylor.

Requests for sabbaticals made by Sr. Mary Gloria Gallagher, Sr. Carol Slinger, and Dr. Drew Appleby were approved. A sabbatical is given to a faculty member, usually one who has tenure, who takes a year or a semester off to pursue some study in his or her field. Sr. Mary Gloria and Sr. Carol will be taking their sabbaticals for the 1988-89 school year. Appleby, chairman of the Psychology Department, will not be taking his sabbatical until the 1989-90

STATUS REPORT

June, July, and August, parking should not be a problem. The people living next to the baseball field will not be disturbed since the lighting has been designed with this concern in mind and a rule has been set that no ball game can go past 10:00 p.m. Coach Lynn Morrell will have a meeting with IABA February 11, to work out the details. Morrell pointed out that this new stadium will bring more exposure to Marian since many ball teams from around the state and surrounding states will be playing here.

The project to turn the old ice house into a snack shop for the students is still on hold. Mary Lou Gheen from the Transition Center has obtained an estimate of $350 to repair and roof the building. The Marian Alliance for Preservation has raised $300 and FCA has contributed $100. Gheen has met with Ryan to present the plans and to work out some details. Maintenance needs to clear away the trees and to take the roof off. Although a bid has been received, Ryan doesn't want to begin work until he can present the plan to the Board of Trustees. Until that time, the project is on hold.

The latest report on the renovation of Doyle Hall Basement is that nothing is being done. It was in the fall of 1986 that Shawn Nash brought forth the plan for renovating the basement. The original plan was to divide the basement into a game room and a study room. Nash feels that this is a very necessary project since the students in Doyle have no good study room. He drew a floor plan and obtained an estimate for the project. Then he presented this information to the Executive Committee. In October of 1986, he received a letter from the Executive Committee and the President, which approved the project and also stated that this project had high priority. After receiving the letter, Nash went to Ryan's office to work out the details of the project. At that time, Ryan said that he needed to wait for the money to come in for the project.

Over the summer the dividing wall was put up and the room was painted. No other work for the renovation has been done since then. Ryan commented that Nash hasn't gotten in touch with him about the project. In response, Nash stated that he met with Ryan seven times last year and found that nothing had been done for the project. Nash also said that he feels that there is a great lack of enthusiasm and communication from the Controller's Office. At the last meeting between Student Board and the Board of Trustees, Nash informed them of the situation. No word has been received from either the Board or Ryan as of the date of this writing.

ELDERHOSTEL DRAWS COMMUNITY

by John Brown

One of the many ways in which Marian College lends itself to the benefit of the community is Elderhostel, a non-profit program designed to provide people 60 years of age and older with an opportunity to take non-credit, college level classes while living on or near campus. Additionally, this program offers participants the kind of social interaction and sharing of ideas among peers that younger college students have.

Elderhostel, which began internationally in the summer of 1975, added Marian to its list of colleges and universities in 1985. In the past, the program has added extracurricular activities to the three classes it offers. These activities have included trips to the Art Museum, the Children's Museum, and the Benjamin Harrison Home. Last year Elderhostel at Marian served 38 people; most of them living on campus in Clare Hall, while some of them commuted from the Indianapolis area. Marian faculty members who taught classes in the program last year were: Dr. Drew Appleby, Dr. Mary Haugh, Sister Rosanne Taylor, and Professor William Cisco.

The Elderhostel program requires participants to be at least 60 years of age, and companions of the participant to be at least 50 years of age. The fee for the Marian program which includes meals, housing and tuition, is $225.00, plus transportation.

Elderhostel at Marian allows those involved with the program to disprove the common assumption that people 60 years of age and older are less capable of learning, less interested in learning, or less cooperative in a learning atmosphere. The program allows them to show that formal education need not end at age 60. Sister Miriam Clare Heskamp, the coordinator of the program at Marian, says many faculty members enjoy teaching in the program because of the students' enthusiasm and the more experienced point of view they contribute to the classes.

COLLEGE COUNCIL ADOPTS BSN

by Sara L. Matalik

The College Council met on February 9, 1988, with the primary task of approving the BSN program. Among those present at the meeting were Sally Beckman, chairperson of the Nursing Program, and Linda Dugan, BSN curriculum coordinator. They continued to answer questions on the program. One conflict was the program's reduction of options to meet general education requirements. For example, computer science is selected in the proposed curriculum, to the exclusion of logic and mathematics. Several members questioned whether the computer science was actually the best way to promote critical thinking.

Other matters touched on included: the importance of the Humanities (for developing critical thinking) and electives and the fact that no math or chemistry courses are in the curriculum. Beckman noted that chemistry will be learned through Pharmacology, Pathophysiology, and nursing courses. The BSN program was passed with 17 votes in favor and 4 abstentions.

Dr. Louis C. Gatto's announcements included: in further celebration of Marian's 50th anniversary in Indianapolis, Marian expects a papal blessing shortly and a possible proclamation from President Ronald Reagan to be delivered by Senator Richard Lugar at commencement; Marian will receive $1,000,000 in state aid next year, in the top 30 % of private schools; the availability of $200 Lilly Grants; and a minority scholarship program for Education majors of $1,000 each year.

Effective June 1, Student Services will be renamed Student Affairs. In response to questions regarding the increase in tuition, it was noted that a letter will be sent to students' homes by the end of the month.

MEN AT 16-6

by Stephen Tweddell

Wednesday, February 3, the Knights lost to the Wabash Little Giants, 91-83, to drop their record to 15-6. Rick Russell paced the the Knights with 28 points. Scott Fleming scored 19 points and Dave Back scored 11. Steve Simmons put in 8 points but these efforts were not enough to defeat Marian's long time rivals. The Knights were buried under an avalanche of 3 point shots as Wabash connected on 6 of 10 attempts.

The Knights recovered Saturday as they defeated Huntington 71-68. At press time stats were unavailable. The Knights raised their crusading record to 16-6 and 4-2 in the Mid-Central Conference.

On Saturday, Feb. 13 the Knights will attempt to avenge their earlier loss to Grace, the districts # 1 team. Tipoff in at 3 p.m. at the Physical Education Center.

A WIDE RANGE OF EXPERIENCES

by Nora Murphy

I have to start off saying I have had a difficult time writing this article. Maybe that is because there is so much involved in being an RA . . . or maybe it is because while I have been writing this article two students have approached me for new outdoor keys, two students got locked out of their rooms, three students needed toilet paper, and someone pulled the fire alarm on third floor so we all had to evacuate Clare. One of the things I have gained by being a resident assistant the past two years is a sense of humor.

The situation has its drawbacks. I have not been happy with the inconsistency in the disciplinary procedures at Marian. I do not like having to deal with my friends and peers when disciplinary action is necessary, but these are the times that have been challenging, and I think I have learned more about myself and the responsibilities I have accepted as part of being an RA.

Overall, I have really enjoyed being an RA. It is not all about discipline and being a redneck, but it includes parties, dances, movies, bake sales, and much, much more. These activities have allowed me to meet and mix with the students in more normal ways instead of the situations when I feel I receive the RA stereotype. Throughout my resident assistant experiences, I have learned more about responsibility, flexibility, and listening. I want the students to feel comfortable coming to me and not just think of me as a disciplinary figure.

If any of you enjoy working with people and are looking for a challenge, being a resident assistant could be for you. Check into it!!

WEEKEND RECITALS ARE SUCCESSFUL

by Kirsten Ostergren

The Music Department was busy this weekend with two recitals. On Friday, Feb. 5, an all student recital at Stokely opened with the woodwind ensemble playing two pieces. Melissa Peters, Michelle Probst, Susan Fulnecky, and Cindy Kopenc each did soprano solos. Kari Palma played a piano solo, and Fran Zatorski played a clarinet solo. Everyone's hard work paid off in a very well put together recital that ended with a piano duet by Peggi Ann Siefert and Sr. Mary Gloria.

Sunday in Allison Mansion, Kiersten Hurst gave her Senior recital with the assistance of the Optiguard Brass Quintet, the "The Mess" Jazz Ensemble.

Hurst obviously worked very hard on her solos and quintet music. Her solos included "Concerto No. 4 in E Major" by Mozart, and "5 Piecettes" by Leclere.

The Quintet played pieces by Clark, and Bach. They also did a collection of Blues pieces including "Tuxedo Junction" and "The Dog Gone Blues."

"The Mess" performed "Digital Neophyte", "When It Rains in Cartagena", and their own version of "Pachelbel Canon." They ended the recital with a number called "Blues Essay" by Maltby adapted for Horn and Jazz Ensemble.

All in all, this weekend was a big success for music.

STUDENT BOARD

The Board celebrated Fr. Leopold's 25th anniversary of entering the priesthood and sang "Happy Anniversary."

Student Board publicity was discussed as Board President Dave Guerrattaz stated plans to submit a list of their job descriptions to the CARBON. He hopes this will create more general awareness at Marian about what the Board members do. He thought the meeting went very well, whereas the previous meeting he termed "volatile." Concerning Student Board meetings in general he said, "I encourage input."
