Directors' Note

The original Dr. Faustus was written by Christopher Marlowe based on an actual man who lived in the mid-fifteenth century. This project began as a three man attempt to turn Marlowe's play into a combat-filled show. Soon into the creation process we added characters from works by William Goldman(The Princess Bride) and Edmond Rostand(Cyrano DeBergerac). When we finally had a script we loved, the need was discovered for more than just three men with a dream. You can see from the program how many more it took. Although we are extremely grateful to these people, our friends, we realize the need to give all glory to God . . . isn't that ironic.
