Dear Mr. Walker:

I am thrilled at the initiative you are taking with the BLUEPRINT magazine but, unfortunately, I cannot accept your very gracious invitation to be a part of the Advisory Board. The demands on my time are too burdensome at this time to allow me to accept.

I am enclosing some Herald of Truth radio transcripts on subjects that might interest you. Any part of these you may feel free to publish should you find in any of them a desirable article. If I can write for the magazine at some future time, I would be glad to consider an assignment.

Sincerely yours,

John Allen Chalk

Dear Mr. Chaulk:

As a group of Christian young people, we feel the need for a monthly Christian magazine aimed primarily at teenagers. True, there are some teen-oriented Christian magazines, but they are denominational. We will not stress any doctrine but the Word of God, thus uniting Christian young people of all faiths.

We have put much prayer and thought into selecting people to serve on our Advisory Board. We would like very much for you to serve as an advisor. You can serve in an honorary or active capacity as you see fit.

Any questions which might arise about this magazine, we will be glad to answer. Please let us know your answer by July 1, as we want our first publication out by August.

Thank you for your cooperation. May the Lord bless you.

Sincerely yours,

Bruce Walker, Editor
BLUEPRINT
