Dear Richard:

I regret that the Yokefellow Conference breaks into your vacation, but I am also happy to learn that you will return for the conference. It will be such a pleasure to be there, not only to become personally acquainted with Dr. Trueblood but also to get to know you better.

Your two letters have been sources of genuine encouragement and inspiration. It thrills me to know that some of the material we have presented on Herald of Truth has also been able to stir your own heart.

I pray for a very stimulating association with you, Dr. Trueblood, and others during the Yokefellow Conference.

Sincerely yours,

Dear John Allen Chalk,

I shall never be able to express to you the deep deep appreciation I have for your fine letter and the sermon copies that were to follow. I have been in the process of indexing the pamphlets so that they may be of an even better help to me. I have read only about six of them but I find that there is so so very much to ponder over that to read more than one or two a day is a waste of finely written words. Each of the sermons tells or asks something different. The many questions are profound yet answerable; the many answers are full and action provoking.

I deeply appreciate the excitement these sermons are bringing me. You can't possibly conceive the appreciation. My vacation here at Earlham starts the 14th of March and is over on the 24th. I am however flying back from my home in Maine early so as to be here for the Yokefellow Conference. I myself am a Yokefellow and this shall be my first Conference. I shall be here to help Dr. Trueblood keep things organized (although he has the capacity to keep the entire movie cast of Ben Hur in line if he had to). He is indeed a great man and he is to this point the most influential person in my life. I shall very much look forward to becoming acquainted with you at the conference.

My Sincere Appreciation,

Dick Dyer
