PROSECUTORS' PROGRESS

The editor's word is her bond, so now for the sports, alumni division: we seem to be taking over the crime-fighting world. Michael Angarola '72 (and also of the trial advocacy faculty) has just been appointed first assistant Cook County State's Attorney, the second-in-command of that office. On the federal side, Candace Fabri '75, the prosecutor in the Greylord case against Judge LeFevour and executive assistant to U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas, was just profiled in a Sun-Times piece in which Valukas said he'd be honored to have her succeed him in the top slot. We've also conquered the ISBA Institute for Public Affairs: there were two Institute fellowships given this year, and one went to Audrey Lyon '85 and the other to Miriam Soloveichik '85.

Stay tuned for further developments.

WHICH BECOMES A LEGEND MOST?

You're in the computer lab facing the Bull That Is A Screen With No Instructions On It. You're in front of your moot court panel arguing the other side from the one in your brief. You're blowing away candidates from all other law schools at your interview. For those of you who've accomplished these Herculean tasks and more, the bookstore announces the sale of new t-shirts, bearing the (proper!) name of the law school and the legend, "Underestimate Us . . . Once." As the university's colors are scarlet and grey, the t-shirts are maroon and white.

JANUARY 1986 GRADUATES, AGAIN

Nancy Fallon Houle has offered a factual amendment to the petition concerning the date set for graduation, January 19. Please examine the petition and the amendment, both of which are posted on the second floor bulletin board.
