IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF IDAHO

STATE OF IDAHO,)

V.) Bonneville County Case No.) CR-2014-8190 BENJAMIN THEDORE HINES JR.,) Defendant-Appellant.) RESPONDENT'S BRIEF)

Issue

Has Hines failed to establish that the district court abused its discretion, either by imposing a unified sentence of seven years, with two years fixed, upon his guilty plea to possession of methamphetamine, or by denying his Rule 35 motion for a reduction of sentence?

Hines Has Failed To Establish That The District Court Abused Its Sentencing Discretion

Hines pled guilty to possession of methamphetamine and the district court imposed a unified sentence of seven years, with two years fixed, and retained jurisdiction. (R., pp.144-48.) Hines filed a notice of appeal timely from the judgment of conviction. (R., pp.154-57.) He also filed a timely Rule 35 motion for a reduction of sentence, which the district court denied. (R., pp.149-51.)

Hines asserts his sentence is excessive in light of his childhood experiences, mental health issues, and substance abuse. (Appellant's brief, pp.4-9.) The record supports the sentence imposed.

The length of a sentence is reviewed under an abuse of discretion standard considering the defendant's entire sentence. State v. Oliver, 144 Idaho 722, 726, 170 P.3d 387, 391 (2007) (citing State v. Strand, 137 Idaho 457, 460, 50 P.3d 472, 475 (2002); State v. Huffman, 144 Idaho 201, 159 P.3d 838 (2007)). It is presumed that the fixed portion of the sentence will be the defendant's probable term of confinement. Id. (citing State v. Trevino, 132 Idaho 888, 980 P.2d 552 (1999)). Where a sentence is within statutory limits, the appellant bears the burden of demonstrating that it is a clear abuse of discretion. State v. Baker, 136 Idaho 576, 577, 38 P.3d 614, 615 (2001) (citing State v. Lundquist, 134 Idaho 831, 11 P.3d 27 (2000)). To carry this burden the appellant must show that the sentence is excessive under any reasonable view of the facts. Baker, 136 Idaho at 577, 38 P.3d at 615. A sentence is reasonable, however, if it appears necessary to achieve the primary objective of protecting society or any of the related sentencing goals of deterrence, rehabilitation or retribution. Id.

The maximum prison sentence for possession of methamphetamine is seven years. I.C. § 37-2732(c)(1). The district court imposed a unified sentence of seven years, with two years fixed, which falls well within the statutory guidelines. (R., pp.144-48.) At sentencing, the state addressed Hines' ongoing criminal offending and substance abuse, his high risk to reoffend, his failure to rehabilitate or be deterred despite prior legal sanctions and treatment opportunities, and the presentence investigator's recommendation for a prison sentence. (Tr., p.29, L.6 – p.30, L.7.) The district court subsequently articulated the correct legal standards applicable to its decision and also set forth its reasons for imposing Hines' sentence. (Tr., p.30, L.23 – p.31, L.25; p.32, Ls.13-20; p.33, L.9 – p.34, L.9.) The state submits that Hines has failed to establish an abuse of discretion, for reasons more fully set forth in the attached excerpts of the sentencing hearing transcript, which the state adopts as its argument on appeal. (Appendix A.)

Hines next asserts that the district court abused its discretion by denying his Rule 35 motion because he "had an opportunity to attend inpatient treatment at the Walker Center with funding from BPA." (Appellant's brief, p.10.) If a sentence is within applicable statutory limits, a motion for reduction of sentence under Rule 35 is a plea for leniency, and this court reviews the denial of the motion for an abuse of discretion. State v. Huffman, 144 Idaho, 201, 203, 159 P.3d 838, 840 (2007). To prevail on appeal, Hines must "show that the sentence is excessive in light of new or additional information subsequently provided to the district court in support of the Rule 35 motion." Id. Hines has failed to satisfy his burden.

Hines provided no new information in support of his Rule 35 motion. (R., pp.149-50.) He merely argued that the district court should reduce his sentence because he still desired probation with community-based treatment (possibly funded by BPA) instead of the rider program – an argument he previously made at the time of sentencing. (Tr., p.30, Ls.10-14; p.33, Ls.20-21; p.36, Ls.11-21.) Because Hines presented no new evidence in support of his Rule 35 motion, he failed to demonstrate in the motion that his sentence was excessive. Having failed to make such a showing, he has failed to establish any basis for reversal of the district court's order denying his Rule 35 motion.

Even if this Court addresses the merits of Hines' claim, he has still failed to establish an abuse of discretion. At the hearing on Hines' Rule 35 motion, the district court expressed its concern that the BPA-funded 30-day inpatient program Hines requested may not be sufficient to address Hines' longstanding substance abuse issues, and stated that it preferred the more intensive rider program, followed by the Wood Court. (Tr., p.38, L.14 - p.39, L.1.) The district court's concern was wellfounded, as it appears that Hines requires an extremely intensive, long-term residential treatment program, given his 34-year history of substance abuse and his numerous prior failed attempts at treatment. (PSI, pp.1, 14, 20-21.) Hines has previously participated in a 28-day inpatient treatment program at ARA; a 28-day inpatient treatment program at Pathways; a one-year outpatient treatment program at Easter Seals; a six-month inpatient treatment program in Montana, which was followed by one year of outpatient treatment; Drug Court; and three prior rider programs (in 1991, 2002, and 2011) - none of which curtailed his use of alcohol, marijuana, methamphetamine, or cocaine. (PSI, pp.14, 20-21.) As such, it was entirely reasonable for the district court to determine that a 30-day inpatient treatment program in the instant case was not adequate, either to protect the community or to meaningfully promote Hines' rehabilitation. Given any reasonable view of the facts, Hines has failed to establish that the district court abused its discretion by denying his Rule 35 motion.

Conclusion

The state respectfully requests this Court to affirm Hines' conviction and sentence and the district court's order denying Hines' Rule 35 motion for a reduction of sentence.

Your Honor, Mr. Hines asked me to file this motion to ask the Court to take the this argument into consideration. Mr. Hines at his sentencing asked the Court to consider an inpatient program, and at the time of sentencing we weren't really aware of anything that he could do. He did call BPA. Or actually Mr. Hines didn't call BPA. I called BPA to see if there was funding. What I was told, there is funding; but they wouldn't commit the money to treatment unless there was an absolute guarantee that the Court was going to allow him to go. So BPA does have money for an inpatient program, which Mr. Hines is considering Walker Center, which is a
