ny hospital. Et done to save the life of this noble young man, or rather boy, who was facing the hardships of border life in the service of his country. Following the operation it was necessary to infuse new blood into his yeins with the hope that his life might be saved. So well was this young man loved by his comrades that a half a dozen volunteered to furnish blood from their own bodies to be infused into his veins.

Two were chosen but this last resort failed to save his life. Judge J. S. Fitzhugh, of this place, father to the young man, was summoned to Columbus and reached there shortly before his death. On Monday before the remains were shipped to Clovis, a military funeral was conducted by the Chaplain of the regiment, the solemn music for the occasion being furnished by the regimental band.

The remains arrived in Clovis Wednesday and the funeral service was conducted by Dr. Moore at the Presbyterian Church, after which the body was laid to rest in the Clovis cemetery. Before he volunteered for service in the New Mexico National Guard, young Fitzhugh was an apprentice in the Santa Fe shops and the pall bearers at the funeral were made up of the young men who were associated with him in his work there.

The casket was lined with beautiful floral offerings from the school, the Presbyterian Church, the working associates of the young man at the shope and the boys of Company K.

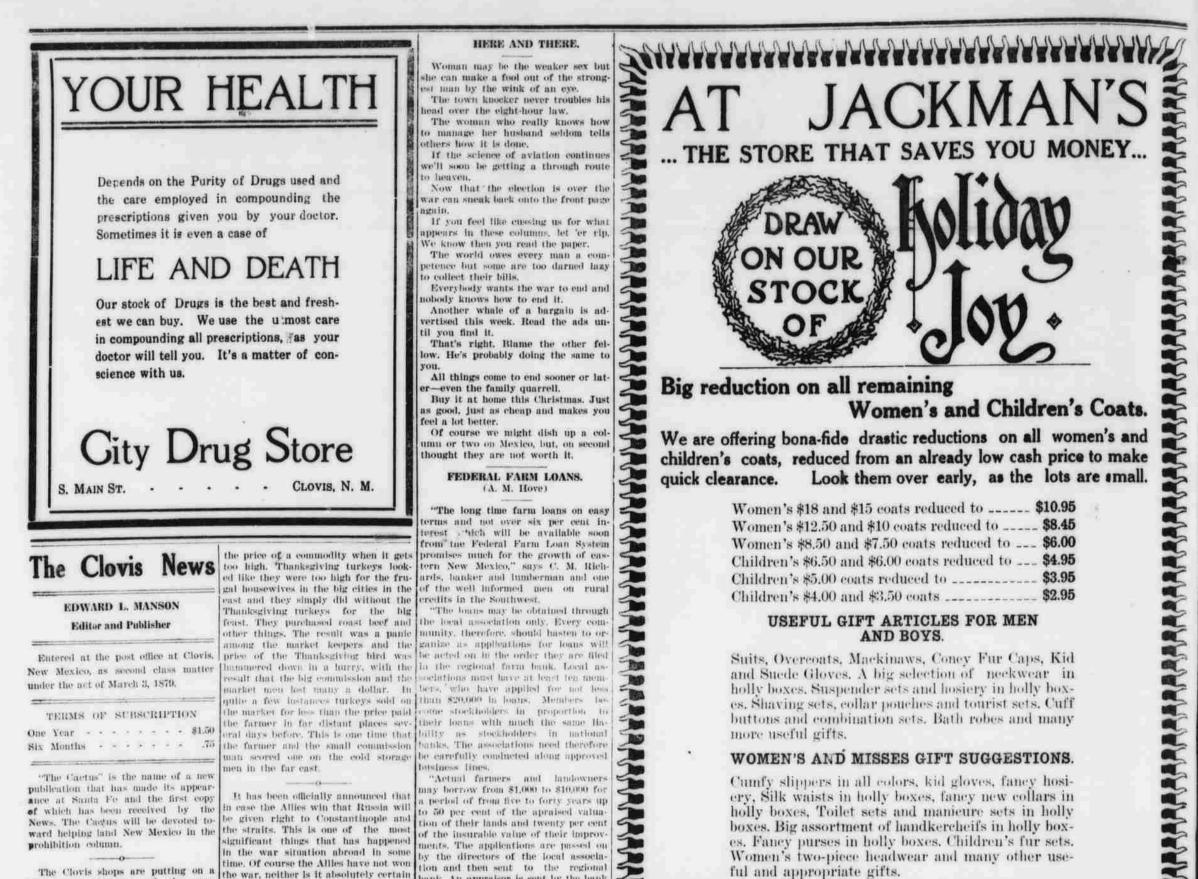

His is the first death that has occurred among the volunteers from the state of New Mexico, and it is doubt-ful if there are many in the entire number who are younger than he was, a's his age was only 18. He died in the service of his country a mere boy, but his manly heart was filled with patriotism for his country.

The heartbroken father and other relatives have the sympathy of a host of friends.

This store makes no distinction in the wide variety for choice offered in its great showing of Holiday gifts for the tot---up to the remembrance for the grand parents. Equal care was exercised in the selection so that no discordant note would disturb the harmony of the Yuletide spirit which surrounds them all. The true sentiment of giving is revealed in them --- a sentiment which will gratify the recipient, because the gift will at once convey the idea of the careful consideration which guided the choice of the one who gave. You will find a cheerful greeting, whether you come to buy, or only look.

"It certainly has no equal for is grippe, bad colds, liver and stomach troubles. I firmly believe Black-Draught saved my little girl's life. When she had the measles, they went in on her, but one good dose of Thedford's Black-Draught made them break out, and she has had no more trouble. I shall never be without

We urge the early buying of gifts not wholly from a selfish reason. It is our policy to offer goods that are not commonplace, hence most of the articles can not be duplicated at once or at all.

Our stock is now at its best and the advantage of making early selections need only be suggested.

You can advantageously buy modestly priced gifts here as well as expensive ones and your patronage will be appreciated, regardless of the expenditure. - . E@F
