Utention Sick Women

If you had positive proof that a certain remedy for female ills had made many remarkable cures, would you not feel like trying it?

If during the last thirty years we have not succeeded in convincing every fair-minded woman that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands and thousands of women of the ills peculiar to their sex, then we long for an opportunity to do so by direct correspondence. Meanwhile read the following letters which we guarantee to be genuine and truthful.

Hudson, Ohio,-"I suffered for a long time from a weakness, Hudson, Ohio.—"I suffered for a long time from a weakness, inflammation, dreadful pains each month and suppression. I had been doctoring and receiving only temporary relief, when a friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and wrote to you for advice. I have faithfully followed your directions and now, after taking only five bottles of the Vegetable Compound, I have every reason to believe I am a well woman. I give you full permission to use my testimonial."

—Mrs. Lena Carmocino, Hudson, Ohio. R. F. D. No. 7.

St. Regis Falls, N. Y.—"Two years ago I was so bad that I had to take to my bed every month, and it would last from two to three weeks. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am happy to say that I am cured, thanks to your medicine and good advice. You may use my letter for the good of others."—Mrs. J. H. Breyere, St. Regis Falls, N. Y.

There is absolutely no doubt about the ability of this grand old remedy, made from the roots and herbs of our fields, to cure female diseases. We possess volumes of proof of this fact, enough to convince the most skeptical. For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has d thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Representing the best interests of all the people of Otero County Respecting All; Fearing None

IT IS DRY ELSEWHERE

Otero county has felt keenly the shortage of rain. Up to the present time, our rainfall has been just about half of normal. Trees here in Alamogordo look bad; fruit, alfalfa and other crops have been badly affected. Not only has the rainfall been light in the valley, but in the mountain districts as well, the latter materially lessening our supply of water for irrigation.

But this scarcity of water is an affliction which has not been visited solely upon Otero county. Other localities have had the same ill luck. The drouth has covered nearly every district of New Mexico. Travelers report that nearly all the other states also have suffered. There is some consolation to be derived from the fact that our troubles have included other districts and states.

The writer recently has made two trips through the Mesilla Valley. Dry? It is all of that. The bed of the Rio Grande river is dry enough to be used for the storage of powder. The big irrigation canals and ditches are cracked open through a long, unbroken process of baking. There is no water anywhere. The only hope lies in the slender prospect of rain. Those of us who have lived long in New Mexico know how vague and elusive is hope so founded. The Mesilla Valley has a great future. Nestling in the shadow of that gigantic dam, it is a question of only a few years until an abundant supply of water will be available for irrigation.

This beautiful and fertile Valley of the Sacramentos also has resources, possibilities and a wonderful future. Present day conditions here differ substantially and materially from the Mesitla Valley. Lying behind and guaranteeing the future of the Mesilla Valley, is an enormous Government project, involving the expenditure of many millions of dollars. The future prosperity of that valley therefore is definite and absolutely certain. The reclamation of this valley, and our consequent salvation, must be worked out through private enterprise, industry and thrift. What we need is ideas energized and capitalized, if we may be allowed such an expression. Energy alone is not sufficient. Nor will capital, unaided, serve the purpose. Capital, energy and ideas, -these three, combined, are essential. The time is not far distant when fortable for a while. we shall have the people who possess the three essentials.

Three or more separate and distinct tides of immigration have been necessary to build empires in this western desert land. In the crucial stages the process cruelly, yet necessarily and inevitably narrows down to a survival of the fittest. That process of elimination or selection soon will be commenced here. Some of us must yield our places to those more energetic and resourceful. and blessed with more of the progressive spirit. Mr. Citizen and Brother Old-Timer, let's wake up, keep pace, and stay in the week to put in the pasture.

Women Make Many Grimaces While Talking

By W. R. NIETSPE

Why do so many American women twist their features when talking?

The writer, who hails from another continent originally, but who has been a resident of Chicago for a number of years past, has observed that in the majority of instances women here express their feelings almost as much by facial expression as by at fire headquarters: actual speech.

It does not seem to matter who or what they may be-rich, poor, invalids, athletes, modest violets or jolly girls, home grown or imported—they all seem to get the habit. Is it the climate or what?

PUZZLED Hard Work, Sometimes, to Raise Children.

Children's taste is ofttimes more socurate, in selecting the right kind of food to fit the body, than that of adults. Nature works more accurately through the children.

A Brooklyn lady says: "Our little boy had long been troubled with weak digestion. We could never persuade him to take more than one taste of any kind of cereal food. He was a weak little chap and we were puzzled to know what to feed him on.

"One lucky day we tried Graps-Nuts. Well, you never saw a child eat with such a relish, and it did me good to see him. From that day on It seemed as though we could almost see him grow. He would eat Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper, and I think he would have liked the food for dinner. "The difference in his appearance is something wonderful.

"My busband had never fancied cereal foods of any kind, but he became very fond of Grape-Nuts and has been much improved in health since using it.

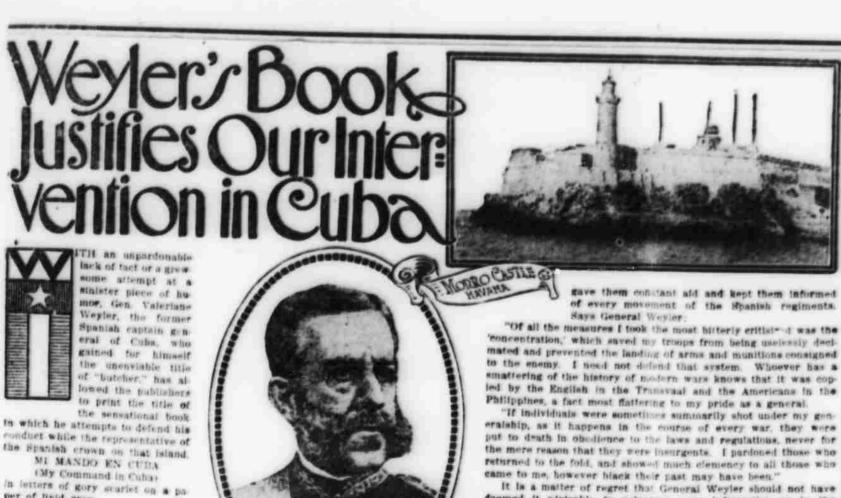

"We are now a healthy family, and naturally believe in Grape-Nuts.

"A friend has two children who were formerly afflicted with rickets. I was satisfied that the disease was caused by lack of proper nourishment. They showed it. So I urged her to use Grape-Nuts as an experiment and the result was almost magical.

"They continued the food and today both children are well and strong as any children in this city, and, of course, my friend is a firm believer in Grape-Nuts for she has the evidence before her eyes every day."

Captain General of the most fertile province of Spain and a province which more than once manifested her intention to throw off the Bourbon yoke, he makes such a case against the country that teuys his services as no citizen of the United States could have over made to justify America's attitude in the Cuban mix-up-Weyler was the best hated man in Cuba when the government of his nation finally recalled him. This book will cause him to be cursed the length and breadth of the peninsula.

"I wrote it," he says, "to give all the facts about my conduct as general in chief, a conduct admired not only by army officers, high and low, who wrote me innumerable letters, but by privates, who, on their return to the peninsula, spoke of me with an enthusiastic fervor for which I can never thank them enough. Various reasons prevented me from doing years ago (when I could not have freed my mind from a certain bias) a work which I can now do in perfect peace of mind, thanks to the time that has passed, and which has soothed the irritation due to the injustice I suffered at the hands of some men.

"Furthermore I did not wish to sadden Senor Sagnata by retelling the story of our colonial disasters; neither did I feel any pleasure in censuring the illustrious Gen. Martinex Campos, my predecessor in Cuba, however uncharitably he acted toward me after his return to the capital."

A perusal of the book fails to prove that Weyler kept his promise to treat the subject with perfect moderation; the general's blood is still bolling, and with some justification, for atroclous as his conduct was in many instances, it could not very well be criticized in Spain by the Spanish government.

Had Weyler been endowed with the literary genius of a Marbot or a Las Cazes, he could have made a much stronger case against Spain and presented his own actions in a much more favorable light. Unfortunately his knowledge of the writer's craft is as deficient as his fund of information touching political economy, general history, national anad international politics is meager.

Weyler is not a diplomat; the slippery land of nuances and innuendos is to him terra incognita; a primitive brute, with rudimentary ethics, though unflinehingly frank and straightforward, he never ventures an assertion which cannot be supported by documents; he never pays any attention to hearsay but quotes people's letters in extenso.

A fascinating type, after all, for the observer blessed with the sense of history; just imagine what a Weyler would have developed into if he had not been born some 500 years too late; clad in steel, he had been riding a caparisoned mount, or, if he had been allowed to range over Europe during the Thirty Years' war!

General Weyler's style is very trying; even his proclamations vainly modeled after Napoleon I's oratorical gems, rarely sound the note that makes a people or an army vibrate. His relations of the Cuban campaign with all the facts, figures, names recorded in haphazard fashion day by day, is well nigh unreadable.

But the documents he publishes in support of his thesis (some of them of a confidential character and which must have been secured through 'diplomatic means") make it well worth while wading through an otherwise dull, shapeless and indigestible piece of writing.

First of all we are made to realize how hope less the plight of the Spanish commanders had become in the Island when Weyler took the situation in hand; the many generals who preceded him had been losing ground from day to day; their cables to the Spanish government gave information of a pessimistic character of which the public and the press were seldom apprised; their confidential correspondence betrayed heartrending facts; more than once poor Gen. Martinez Campos had humbly confessed himself beaten, while the cabinet led the Spanish nation to believe that the war was practically over.

Weyler himself, when placed in command of the Cuban army, was not even given what he was entitled to, an honest account of the situation.

When I landed in Cuba," he writes, "I did not even suspect the terrible conditions that prevailed in the island. I did not know anything besides what the minister of war had told me and what I had read in the papers or in anonymous letters sent by Spaniards living in Cuba, and I thought that all of them exaggerated the facts; I had no knowledge of the secret documents I have appended to this book. How gloomy the outlook was is set forth graphically in Gen. Martinez Campos to Canovas del Castillo, prime minister of Spain.

Although from the very first I realized the gravity of the situation, I refused to believe it; my visits in Cuba, Principe and Holgin appalled me; however, in order not to appear pessimistic, I did not express all my thoughts, and I decided to visit not only the maritime communities, but the towns in the interior. The few Spanfards who live in the island do not dare to mention their origin except in the cities. The rest of the population hates Spain. Wherever you pass a farm and ask the women where their husbands are, they answer with terrifying frankness: 'In the mountains with Chief So and So

"You could not get anyone to carry a message for 500 nor 1,000 pesetas; he would be hanged if he were ever caught.

The rebels who charged Weyler with wanton cruelty seldom restrained themselves from accomplishing deeds of violence likely to terrorize the few remaining supporters of the Spanish rule. To quote Weyler:

"The insurgents did not seturn in any way the considerate treatment accorded to them by this generous commander (Martinez Campos). At the beginning of the war Maximo Gomez showed himself very fair; but Maceo, as I shall prove by authentic documents, ordered his bands to set fire to all the sugar mills whose owners were not paying war tribute, to plunder and loot the country, to shoot mercilessly all the messengers, men caught repairing railroad lines or bringing provisions into the villages. Worse yet: The insurgent chiefs did not hesitate to kill with their own weapons defenseless islanders, and Maximo Gomez in his 'Memotres' confesses to having shot personally a man he had sentenced to death, a deed which I call willful murder. And still that individual presumes to call me 'assassin,' "

As his authority for the foregoing statement General Weyler not only quotes extracts from the Cuban papers, but appends a proclamation of Macco, Gomez's lieutenant, to his bands.

"Comrades in Arms: Destroy, destroy everything, day and night; to blow up bridges, to derail trains, to burn up villages and sugar mills, to annihilate Cuba is the only way to defeat our enemies. We have not to account for our conduct to anyone. Diplemacy, public opinion and history don't matter. It would be sheer insanity to seek the laurels of the battlefield, to bear the fire of the enemy's artillery and contribute to the glory of the Spanish commanders. The essential thing is to convince Spain that Cuba will be but a heap What compensation will she receive then for the sacrifice entailed by the campaign? We must burn and raze everything. It would be folly to fight as though we were an European army. Where rifles are of no avail let dynamite do the work. A. MACEO,"

The only way to subdue such bloodthirsty, des perate pirates was to adopt their own tactics. The insurgents, of their own ad nission, never gave nor accepted battle, but barassed the regulars and destroyed their sources of supply. "Concentration" seemed to be the only solution of the problem, for the wives and children of the insurgents

It is a matter of regret that General Weyler should not have deemed it advisable to volunteer more information as to the organization of the concentration camps. He says that one pound of meat and a quarter of a pound of rice were allowed to every individual over fourteen, and spe-half that ration to children, which seems quite sufficient under the elecumstances.

few paragraphs. however, couched in his blunt, soldierly style, setting at naught the terrible charges preferred against him in connection with that stern system of wartare would have been interesting, but they were lacking. His silence amounts to a confession of guilt. He makes a weak attempt at explaining that the wives and children of insurgents were not "concentrated," but obliged to betake themselves where the head of the family was supposed to be found. This is worse yet, for one can conceive the appalling abuses which such an order emanating from the general in chief must bave countenanced and justified. As the revolutionary bands were constantly moving from east to west and from west to east and could not be located with any certainty, what an existence must have been that of families whose men were not serving in the ranks of the regular army. Refused army rations, compelled to roam from one devastated village to a burnt down hamlet, they could not but succumb to hunger and exhaustion.

Had Weyler been less brutally honest, he would have omitted such a damaging admission. Up to this day we have had books of many kinds dealing with the Cuban war; pamphlets put forth by the insurgents and notoriously unfair to Spain; Spanish publications which misrepresented grossly the attitude of the United States: articles in European newspapers almost unantmously censuring the Americans for "robbing" Spain of her colony.

Now, however, we have the facts presented almost without any comments and certainly without embellishment by a Spaniard who loves his country and frankly detests the Americans.

Once or twice he registers a protest against the senate's decision concerning the recognition of belligenercy or the campaign of defamation directed against him in American papers.

He complains that in March, 1896, when he had the situation well under control, the senate of the United States interfered most unfairly, for it recognized the belligerency of the insurgents, thereby giving them new courage.

This is less convincing than the majority of maidens were likely to prove unprofithis arguments, for if we compare dates we find able investments. letters in which he admits his failure to stop the progress of the insurrection.

His gravest charge against the United States is contained in the following paragraph, which farming implements. The seeds were is too vague to be taken as seriously as some other statements of his:

"The United States were against everything sold, and the owners moved on. that would bring about a termination of the war-American citizens held several millions worth of Cuban bonds, issued with the provision that the island would pass under the domination of the United States ten years after Cuba would have separated herself from Spain. The Yankees saw that with the pace I set the much-longed-for independence of Cuba and its corollary, the annexation thereof, was becoming a more and more remote possibility. But there was no reason why the peninsula should have robbed all the goastp which originated in America."

But on the whole the picture his letters and reports, as well as the letters of Martinez Campos he publishes, present to our eyes of Cuba in the years preceding the Maine incident would have justified any nation, near or remote, in intervening for the sake of humanity; a population usanimous in its desire for independence; a bloody war which could only lead to an ephemeral peace and at best would have left the island a dreary waste for years to come; the rights of foreign land owners and investors trampled under foot; all this horror had to be stopped.

Spain did not lose Cuba as a consequence of the war with the United States; by the very admission of Spain's military representatives in that ill-fated colony, Cuba was irretrievably lost to Spain in 1897, and the few Spaniards residing in the coast towns, the only safe abode for them, felt themselves a despised, ostracised minority.

THE OUTCAST GYPSY I

Now the Modern Ishmael Among Civilized Nations.

England and the United States New Turned Against Them-Efforts to Induce Them to Settle Down Unavailing.

Washington - Everywhere through out the civilized world the hand of mankind seems to be raised against the gypnies. The last two refuges to which they betook themselves the United States and England-have set their faces against them. Hereafter in England they are to be treated like common vagrants, without visible means of support, while in the United States the immigration laws serve to debar them as idle and dangerous nomads.

France decided some years ago that the gypsy was a public menuce and, in the summary fashion of the republic when it makes up its mind to a thing, expelled him as relentlessly as it has expelled the monks.

Germany, which is a grim manufacturing establishment, after all simply ordered its thousands of sentinels along Its bayoneted border to turn back every gypsy who showed his nose at the line.

Wrathful and perplexed, the Romany moved on to Belgium; but hostile bayonets met them there. Desperate, for they hate water like so many wildcats, they took to the canals of placid Holland. But the phlegmatic Dutchmen, every tradition of their plodding industry outraged at sight of the gay wanderers, drove them out

Meanwhile, the Balkans, where the gypsy has ever roamed as free as any other bird of prey, have begun to feel the call of settled prosperity-if Balkan politics will ever give agriculture its chance—that attends the lowing kine and the Importation of American reapers and binders. Sheep stealers and horse swindlers are impressing the flery-souled mountaineers less than they used to, and the bars are being steadily raised against the gypsy, on the ground that he is a common tramp, who contributes nothing to the country and deserves nothing from it.

Transylvania, time out of mind, has been the gypsy's native heath. The bills and caves let him live the life of the early troglodyte, and the industrious among the population afforded him sustenance. But all Romany American Type of Gypsy Woman. vania, and Hungary and Austria received the first overflow.

Maria Theresa a hundred and fifty years ago had a brilliant idea for squelching the dangerous nomads. She provided doweries for all gypsy maidens who would marry her Austrian subjects. It was the most popular move any empress ever made, especially with the gypsy maidens. They applied for the dowries in and ran off with their gypsy husbands and lovers day after day, until Maria Theresa concluded that gypsy

There are believed to be 300,000 of them in Austria and Hungary still; 100,000 in Turkey; 150,000 in Russia; 200,000 in Spain and Portugal; 50,000 in Italy; 10,000 in the United States, and several thousand in South America, to whose broad pampas and rich plantations their nomad fancy has been turning for some years past. In all, the whole race of gypsies, as known to the white nations, numbers fewer than a million; and the whole mass of them is forever moving on.

The great traveler and ethnologist, Sir Richard Burton, whose translation of the Arabian Nights has immortalized him, is one of the few genuinely scientific men who have studied the origins of the gypsies in a genuinely scientific manner. He does not condemn them utterly, and is at pains to note that the race has, at times, produced men of real distinction. He quotes the families of the Hungarian Hunyadis, the Russian Tolstoys, the Scotch Melvilles, the Cassilis and the Contis in France under Louis XIV. and the famous gypsy chief, Thomas Julgar, who, in 1496, gave Bishop Sigismund the help he needed to beat back the Turkish invader from Europe.

Grocer Man Used Formula That Made Little Harry Long to Be Far Away.

Mrs. Jones' favorite warning to her young progeny when they were in mischief was that she would tend to them in a minute. "Tending" was accomplished by applying the open hand where it would do most good. When Harry was four years old he was sent for the first time round the corner to the grocery. In a few minutes he came trotting soberly back with the nickel still in his hand, but no bag of onions. "What's the matter?" asked his mother. "I'm 'fraid of the man," he said, solemnly.

"Oh, he won't hurt you," reassured Mrs. Jones. "Run along and bring the onions. I'm in a hurry for them."

A second time Harry disappeared round the corner, and a second time returned without his purchase. "I'm 'fraid of the grocer man," he explained, as before. "Well, what makes you afraid of him?" demanded his mother, impatiently.

Why, answered the little fellow "bofe times when I goed in, he looked at me, an' said, 'I'll tend to you in a minute." - Youth's Companion.
