Mr. Gist and Finch were dressed alike yesterday morning, both having on coat, corduroy trousers, and big black hat, and both rode black horses. At a distance they looked very much alike. A.r. When the horse was shot down Mr. Gist could easily have been shot had the man in ambush desired to kill him; and there can be but little doubt but that he took Mr. Gist for some one else.

Eusy Men Take to Saddle Horses for Needed Exercise.

Latest reports from around the country addicate that in at least one instance the automobile has been a benefit to horse breeders instead of detriment, as so many people seem to think. This relates to saddle horses which were never so sequilar at any time within contemporarisons history as at present, and many preceders and dealers attribute to a consent ment to the general and of the auto mobile

In these days worn in toy cars are put to almost every a sinuside use and when most business such regard them as indispensible in the daily routine of their affairs, one greadrawback has made itself apparent and that is the lack of exercise, with consequent poor health, to so many busy men To overcome this effect men of affairs throughout the land have taken to the saddle horse, and saddle horse breeders report that the demand for all kinds and classes of saddle horses was never so great as

This has been a great stimulus to the breeding of saddle horses in Ken tucky and Missouri, the homes of the greatest saddle horses ever fooled Other states also find the same favor able conditions, and in this connection Colorado bids fair to take rank as one of the leading western states in the breeding of these beautiful animalswhich have been christened by horse experts and lovers as "the exquisits American horse."

At the horse and stock show in Denver, January 16 to 21, some extraor dinary rings on saddle horses will be exhibited and many of the foremos breeders in nearby states have already sent in their entries. The Denver show is now recognized throughout the west as a most liberal education for horse breeders of every type from the harness horse to the mammoth draft horses.

IMPROVING WESTERN CATTLE

National Western Stock Show Big Fac tor in Distributing Pure Bred Animais.

With the passing of the live stock business of the western ranges into the hands of stock farmers and ranch men, has come a tremendous change in the quality of the cattle. The on long horn, long legged cattle o, terand fifteen years ago have almost completely disappeared and their places have been taken with the broad backed cattle of the shortworn hereford and polled breeds, it is largely due to the big annual stock shows of the country that this evolution has been so rapid and none of the shows has been of more value to the west than the National Western Stock Show, which opens its sixth annual exhibition in Denver on January 16. This show was organized and continned by an association of some 500 western stockmen and business men who saw the importance of educating the people to the most modern ideas in live stock and in addition to exhibuing the best the country affords in cattle, the big breed associations hold public sides at which selected animals are sold without reserve. As a result of these annual sales herds of pure bred cattle are springing up all over the west and it is predicted that at the coming show in Denver, western herds will give the eastern herds a and the overfat an mals are conspicuclose run for the ribbons

At the Denver show next month the sell tiffy selected bulls and heifers and the Hereford Association will sell at the year at the west be con the proper kind of horses for Association will sell a number at pri vate sale and the Galloway Associa tion will sell about forty head. These cattle are all selected from the best herds in the country and this annual distribution of pure blood will have a tremendous effect upon the quality of the western eartle in the future.

The Final Test

A big feature of the Denver stack show which opens on January 16, wihe the careass contest. The black is the final test in meat makin, and it is proposed to educate the western meat producers to that fact. The steers to be slaughtered in this competition will be first judged on foot in a judging competition and then slaughtered and judged in the carcass. The idea is to try to make the stock growers both under the hide of his animals. The carcasses will be judged from the butcher standpoint as to what con-titutes prime edible meat

The annual National Western Stock Show, which is held in Denver every January, has grown in six years to be one or the big live stock expositions of the country. It is backed by an organization or some 500 stockmen and people interested in live stock agriculture all over the west and is financed by the Oenver Union Stock Yards. The show was started as an educational institution, to educate the Western farmers in the most modern lines and methods of producing live stock. it has already been a tremendous factor in improving the live stock of the west and the stock yards and hustness Interests of Denver have backed it by providing buildings costing over $400,000 which are used almost exclugively for this annual show. A mag nificent amphitheater is the principal building and is one of the most convenient buildings of the sind ever constructed, providing seats for 10,000 people around a large arena in which the fine stock is exhibited. florse racing may well be termed the sport of kings, and this is true in more than one sense. It surely takes a kingly purse to maintain a racing stable, whether of runners or light harness horses, but according to some of the largest show exhibitors, both a this country and across the water, the most costly way to indulge one's lovfor a good horse is to equip and main tain a big abow stable and take it around the circle of metropolitica frome shows.

There is absolutely no equable renumeration for the expense incurrein riding a hobby of this kind as the premiums given, even at the largest shows, would be wholly inadequate to defray the outlay necessary for the maintenance of a high class show stable.

A COMMUNITY INVESTMENT.

How Good Schools Draw Citizens and Help to Build Up Towns.

More than a year ago a Rochester (N. Y.) manufacturer was seated in his office when a telephone message came from the chamber of commerce city's invitation for the 1910 play congress. He at once replied that he was too busy to think of making the trip. A few moments after, while walking around his workshop, he noticed a new face. Upon inquiring be found that the workman had recently come up from the far south.

"How did you happen to come all this distance?" asked the manufacturer. "Well," said the workman, "I thought of my three children I wanted to give them all the advantages : could possibly afford. The schools in my small southern community were not as good as I wished. In some way I heard that the Rochester it means for the future of my children and young people. It meant a good deal of a sacrifice, for I left a fore man's job in Georgia to work at the bench here. But when I think of what it means for the future of my children the sacrifice is forgotten and I am glad I came."

It took scarcely a moment's reflection to lead the manufacturer back to his office, and his voice was soon traveling over the telephone wire to the chamber of commerce, saying that he would go to Pittsburg to try to secure the play congress for the benefit it would be for all Rochester's children -Survey.

Roads Affect Living Costs.

The National Grange prints an arti-cle showing the relation of the good roads question to the problem of the increased cost of living and the relatively decreasing population of the farming districts, which are now attracting universal attention. The article shows clearly that improved roads will increase the productivity of our farms, make effective co-operation among the farmers possible, create a market for many of the smaller farm products which are now unsalable, af ford better educational facilities for the farmer's children and in many ways make country life more desir ble and profitable.

NEVER think of Christmus but 4 think of the one I spent when on detached service down in Virginta in '62. I was a captain then, and, being on special service. I happened to be temporarily attached to the command of General Cox at Gauley Bridge, Va. 1 was warmly welcomed as I arrived on Christmas eve and brought some letters to both officers and men, the first many of them had received for nine months. The command was the First Kentucky and a fine lot of fellows they were Captain Raiph Hunt invited me to share his test, and as we sat smoking together after taps he threw me a letter, saying, "Read that."

Dear Raigh-1 have sent you a turkey and some fixings and also some new un-derwear, and I hope the tox will reach you in time for Christmas

"That's enough," he said, for there was a lot more in the letter, and it was signed Susie. "The box is under my bunk, and as you are to leave to morrow night you are sure of a good dinner anyhow." So we turned in. and Christmes day dawned clear and cold, and when it came time for din ner the captain's orderly had denhimself proud by cooking that turke: in time style.

"That turkey isn't cold yet, and we'll finish it when we get back.

Plan to Enthuse Civic Pride

The Houston (Tex.) Business league has adopted some novel ideas as regards its letterheads. The envelopes and letterheads used for correspondence within the city are replete with a number of quotations estimated to enthuse the people of Houston with a pride in their city Among these quotions are the following: "Build and "Use the Ship Channel." Boost." For Scif, but For All," "What Helps Our City Helps You." "Greater Prosperity Through a Greater Houston,' Build More Factories and Increase the Tin Bucket Brigade." The letter head used for out of town work is altogether different. It talks of and not to, Houston "Where seventeen rallroads meet the sea," is the burden of the tale it carries. It tells in statistics of Houston now and future. Down at the bottom it all ends, "A City of Unlimited Manufacturing Opportuniies. Come and Blow Your Whistle With Us.

CUPID MAKES A CHRISTMAS CALL

OHE had written to him: "It will seem quite like old times to have you with us again at Christmas, It seems much longer than four years since you were here, but I am sure things will appear quite as usual to you. We make no change in our yearly program for Christmas. It is really the children's day, as it was when you and I first spent it together. (I besitated when I went to write how many years ago. It must be eighteen.) But I think father and mother-and 1-take quite as much interest in it as grown people do in the circus-quite for the children's sake, of course.

"I would ask you to dinner immediately on your arrival Christmas eve. but If I dared to suggest the presence of an outsider there would be a hubboth among the powers that rule the nursery and at this season—the entire household. I simply dure not say anything save that we should like to have you come at 9 precisely, so that we may have a little chat before the arrival of our other guests.

And indeed as he walked up the avenue with his long prairie stride Christmas eve he was depressed to find everything so little changed from the night four years since, when he had left New York for the west to make ever his life in a new pattern of work and usefulness. Here was the familiar door and the old bronze doorknob which had once been on a level with his eyes. And the old butter, whom the Stantons had but for twenty years, opened the door to him and answered his greeting with a respectful "Good evening Mr. Burngiving him his Christian name as if he had called only the evening before.
