At the powder yard the greatest excitement and confusion prevailed.

The explosion wrecked the pellet packhouse and the press room in the upper yard. The bodies of victims were hurled in all directions from the destroyed mill, in many instances mangled beyond recognition.

One body identified was that of Elmer Neal, a driver who lived near the powder yard.

Raymond Meredith of this city is one of seven wounded at Delaware hospital. He is terribly mangled and may die.

The police said this afternoon the depth of the crater was twenty-five feet.

The injured in the Delaware hospital are said to be in a critical condition and no hope could be held out by the attendants for their recovery.

TOTAL OF BRITISH CASUALTIES REACHES NEARLY TO 600,000

By Evening Herald London, Nov. 29 (11:55 a. m.)—British casualty lists during November total 1,732 officers, 43,184 non-commissioned officers and men in all fields of war, bringing the total since the beginning of hostilities up to approximately 600,000.

Heavy as were the losses in killed, wounded and missing, for the present month they were much lighter than in October when the names of 2,319 officers and 71,187 non-commissioned officers and men were included in the lists.

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months. I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles. Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me. At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing. I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health. If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years. At all druggists.

An order for the sale of certain personal property and allowing claims was issued in the matter of the estate of Antonio A. de Lopez.

Says Lawyer Made Frivolous Motion For Appeal

Judge Salas Issues Statement to Declare He Deprived Heacock of Nothing to Which He Was Entitled.

Justice D. E. Salas, of the Old Terr. probate court, gave out a statement today regarding the litigation between him and Judge Heacock in court yesterday afternoon, when he felt compelled to call the attorney to order as the latter was protesting against a refusal to allow an appeal. Judge Salas made his statement primarily to the public, but he has never had a statement of an appeal to which an appeal to a suit was entitled. Judge Salas refers to Judge Heacock's motion yesterday as a consistently frivolous.

The statement follows: "Old Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 29, A. D. 1915.

"To the Editor of the Evening Herald: "Dear Sir:—I read in your last night's issue an account of what had taken place in my court, of a case that was pending in my court, entitled, 'The State of New Mexico vs. Lulu Heacock.' When the said case was called for trial, Heacock appeared for the case and stated to the court that he could find no crime charged in the complaint against the defendant and that he would not proceed with the case. I then dismissed the case, and taxed the costs against the complaining witness that had caused the arrest of the defendant. Then Heacock told the court that he appealed from his decision and tried to intimidate the court. Then the court told him that an appeal had not been granted, and that the court had not rendered any final judgment, that he had nothing to appeal from; that the case had been dismissed, because the attorney did not charge any crime, and that his motion was a frivolous one and that he knew it. The court never has rendered any appeal to any one, when the parties are entitled to it, from my final judgment within his jurisdiction that he may consider against them, but in this case no such final judgment was rendered by the court. I make this declaration because the people might believe that I had refused an appeal to Heacock when he was entitled to one.

"Yours truly,

Carry Off Everything That Could Be Picked Up or Pried Loose at the Dutcher Place.

Throughout the thieves took advantage of the fact that no one was about to go on to the ranch of M. M. Dutcher, out far from Pajarito, during the past few weeks. They carried off everything portable. According to reports received by Under Sheriff Dick Lewis this morning, when the robbery was discovered, the thieves didn't leave a thing at the ranch that could be picked up or pried loose.

Dutcher works in the city, and does not go on his ranch for days at a time. From the nature of the robbery it is estimated that the thieves probably rifled the place during several nights, using a woman in which to carry off the loot.

RAILWAY CHIEFS CONFERENCE TO ELIMINATE CONGESTION

Presidents of Trunk Lines Running Into New York City Meet at Pennsylvania Terminal for Important Steps.

THREE ROADS DECLARE EMBARGOES ON EXPORTS

Every Freight Terminal in Eastern District Running Top Speed for Weeks but Number of Cars Increases.

(By Evening Herald Special Wire)

New York, Nov. 29.—The presidents and representatives of all trunk line railroads running into New York City, met today at the Pennsylvania terminal, Jersey City, to consider ways and means for relieving the freight congestion which has become acute during the last few weeks.

Although in many cases railroads have been loath to discuss present freight conditions, it is known that between 40,000 and 50,000 freight cars are now at or near New York terminals waiting to be unloaded.

Today's meeting follows the action of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio yesterday in declaring embargoes on export freight and the conference lent strength to the report that the railroads will cooperate on uniform embargo rules.

The Lackawanna began its embargo yesterday on various forms of freight coming into New Jersey terminals. This affects the shipment of grain from Buffalo and other like points, as the Lackawanna regulates the grain movement by retaining the number of cars at Buffalo.

Every freight terminal in this district has been running under top speed for several weeks, but the number of loaded freight cars in yards has increased so rapidly that three of the trunk line roads were forced to declare embargoes and all of the other roads have found it necessary to take determined action at once.

C. K. McCain, chairman of the Trunk Line association, is now in Washington conferring with the interstate commerce commission in an effort to obtain permission to allow for the meeting roads to claim by the effect of the embargo to empty the great yards to empty their elevators as quickly as possible to receive additional grain before the great lakes shipping season officially closes on December 15.

Presidents of eastern railroads meeting today in the office of President Rea of the Pennsylvania lines to consider how to move from 10,000 to 30,000 cars of freight now held up along the Atlantic seaboard decided to appoint a committee to deal with the situation.

The committee, which will include representatives of all the roads, will convene in the office of Mr. Charles McCain in chairman.

Mr. McCain said that while certain original conditions might cause the delay on the roads, would take individual action in the shape of embargoes or otherwise until the committee had an opportunity to formulate its plans.

As a preliminary step of relief Mr. McCain went to Washington today to urge with the interstate commerce commission an application to reduce the limit of thirty days' storage before the issuance of demurrage charges on goods in cars. Up to the present, goods shipped to eastern ports for export could be stored indefinitely in yards without any demurrage charges. In order to expedite shipment within a reasonable time from the arrival of their goods at the seacoast it is now proposed to impose storage rates on goods in cars.

Dieguez Trying to Intercept Villistas

Strong Representations Made for Maintenance of Adequate Garrison in Yaqui Valley to Prevent Outrages.

(By Evening Herald Special Wire)

Topolobampo, Mexico, Nov. 29. (By Special Wire)—The Carranza forces again have opened communications between Guaymas and Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora state, and General Dieguez is endeavoring to intercept 2,500 Villa troops supposed to be heading through southern Sonora in an attempt to join General Planderer. The Villa commander in northern Sonora, according to advices here today.

Fear of an attack by Indians upon the American settlers in the Yaqui valley has increased as all but fifty troops have been withdrawn from that vicinity to participate in the Carranza campaign in the north.

The necessity for maintaining an adequate garrison in the Yaqui valley for the protection of Americans and other foreigners and thus possibly averting a massacre, is now being strongly presented to General Dieguez in a message from Admiral Woodson, the cruiser San Diego, in an expeditionary force for Topolobampo. The position of the San Diego was reported last night as off Cape San Luis on the southern extremity of Lower California.

According to today's dispatch the Villa officers are evincing evidence of being at Los Mochis, and actually saw Carranza soldiers ransacking houses of Americans. This was all brought to the attention of General Woodson, commanding the cruiser San Diego, and the Villa officers would be stopped and appropriated property returned.

With the presence of Carranza troops in large numbers at Los Mochis, Americans who had been ordered to leave the United States, and Carranza troops are now being ordered to return to San Luis at once.

WANT DUES PAID UP AND MAINTAINED SO Drive Being Made to Get All Delinquent Dues Off Books in One Way or Another Before Many Days.

Every member of the Commercial Club is urged to assist the new policy of "dues strictly in advance" to the extent of taking care of their membership dues on December 1 promptly. A large majority of those on the books already follow this policy and to them is mailed on the first of every month a statement which is not at once, it is to be the work of the club for some time to come to get all of the members in the habit of following this procedure, that time which might be spent working for the advancement of the city need not be taken up with collecting. The officers of the organization call attention to the fact that every time someone is compelled to go out after dues, the community loses the value of that man's time.

A new system of collecting is being inaugurated which will facilitate the collecting. Every member will be asked to give the club an authorization slip which will allow the member's bank to pay his dues every month and charge the same to his account. This method has been tried in other cities and found very satisfactory, both for the members and the organization. It not only relieves the club of collecting but it also relieves the members from being inconvenienced at the busiest time of the month with the call of a collector. It makes the membership dues available to the club on the first day of the month and makes it unnecessary for each member to write a check every month for $2. A list of members and authorization slips are now in the hands of the bank, and members are requested to call for them when they are doing their banking business that they may soon them.

Realizing that the club must adhere to a strict policy regarding the collection of dues and not feeling that dues can be paid in the way of the start-up of back dues when the club is getting about to effect some of the members who have allowed their dues to drop are mailing in either checks or short fine notes for the amount when paying the first week of the month the delinquents will be cleared from the club books, either by the posting of the money and those dropping them from the list or by checks and notes. While the club is badly in need of the real cash, it is accepting three months notes in cases where payments cannot be made in order to facilitate the work of getting a clean membership sheet showing no dues in arrears.

"Start the New Year Right" is also the slogan for the collection department of the organization which proposes to begin 1916 with the policy well in force that membership dues must be paid promptly and that in order to work on a business-like basis which is the only one which will succeed, the directors will carry out the provisions of the by-laws regarding the suspension of membership after sixty days of delinquency. Those who have not been seen, who are absent from their jobs, and whose dues will be credited before the new membership campaign is started.

THE CHILDREN'S CONTEST.

THE Herald believes that the people of New Mexico will watch with lively interest the result of the prize contest in behalf of children and their rights, inaugurated by Dr. C. E. Lukens of the Children's Home Society and announced through yesterday's Albuquerque papers.

Dr. Lukens has been moved to offer several substantial cash prizes for the best lecture-essay on "The Rights of Children and How to Secure Them," by his belief that many of the best minds in New Mexico have given careful thought to this vital subject and that the contest will bring forth expressions from many of the best thinkers of the state, who will be moved less by the cash value of winning the contest than by a sincere desire to contribute something worth while to the literature of a great cause.

Upon this ground participation in this contest becomes almost a public duty on the part of men who are competent, through study, thought and experience, to enter it, and it should be no doubt will result in a material stimulating of interest in a work in New Mexico the extent of which few of us realize.

No more propitious time for such a contest could be chosen than the Christmas season. It is the season when men and women give most thought to childhood and when we are most active in contributing to the happiness of children. It will be none of us to turn our attention, as a part of it, from the legislation of the Christmas season, and from the best of our own children, to thoughtful consideration of the unfortunately vast number of children whose rights in birth and parentage and education have not been met.

The contest, as Dr. Lukens has phrased and announced it, is open to all, and no man who has given thought and study to the subject should hesitate to enter it no matter what his station. Very modestly and with only the most necessary publicity Dr. Lukens has given ten years to the work of caring for unfortunate children in New Mexico. He has built up a well systematized, business-like organization which has provided homes for homeless children the number of which is simply astounding. It is a work which carries the Christmas spirit with it all through the year in its most practical manifestation, and it is a work which merits the most cordial understanding and co-operation from every thoughtful man and woman. There is high honor involved in winning this particular prize contest and honor in participation in it whether one wins a prize or not.

THE COUNTY AGENT LUNCHEON.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made that a luncheon will be held in the Commercial club the evening of Saturday at which the matter of securing a county agricultural agent for Bernalillo county will be discussed. The matter is held under the auspices of one of the most important events held in the club for many months. Nothing is more essential to the proper development of the valley than to Albuquerque than intelligent farming. Nothing will bring a more speedy realization of the possibilities of this development than education among the farmers we now have. The Herald has pointed away for the past two years upon the need for a county agent. We began our demand for such an official with the passage of the act of congress providing federal aid to the work and have been unanimously at it ever since. It is a cause of considerable gratification now to see the business men of this city and the farmers of the nearby valley taking hold on their own account. The matter has been discussed at various times for one reason or another good, but no sufficient. There is no need for further delay. The county is in a position to co-operate fully in the national burden. The Commercial club will be ready to do so, and a number of business men have announced their willingness to help. This being the case there is no reason for waiting any longer.

Albuquerque has many resources in its tributary territory, but its most substantial and most important resource is the great acreage of fertile and now idle land surrounding us. There will be no extensive development of this land until the demand for its development comes from the owners themselves. This demand will not come until the owners have been taught by practical demonstration the real money they are losing through their indifference, neglect or ignorance. There is no other available influence so likely to overcome the ignorance and indifference as a competent county agricultural agent who will be on the job during every working hour. In Bernalillo county this official will not be a public expense. He will be an important contributor to the public revenue.

YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

CHRISTMAS goods are being placed on display today in almost every retail store in Albuquerque. These stocks are large and well chosen. They cover the widest range of articles for Christmas giving and they are priced as reasonably as in any city west of the Mississippi river.

The Herald has not the slightest idea of attempting to tell Albuquerque shoppers what to buy and what not to buy. We have only the slightest interest in the Society for the Prevention of Useless Giving and we are firm in the conviction that a little extravagance at Christmas time, especially in the matter of toys is as near to being a virtue as extravagance can ever be.

But we have very decided ideas as to where the buying should be done. It should be done at home stores, and home stores exclusively. If Albuquerque were a one-store village without a selection outside the grocery and staple grocery lines, mail order Christmas buying would be quite well enough. But when Albuquerque merchants have invested their money in Christmas stocks which for range and selection and quality, if not quantity, cannot be excelled in any city in the Rocky mountains, there is no justice and no intelligence in sending Albuquerque money to eastern cities for Albuquerque Christmas presents and pleasures.

The advertising columns of the Herald during the next few weeks will contain a Christmas shopping guide which will permit of shopping as satisfactory and as economical as can be found in any city in the mountain states, and quite as economical and much more satisfactory than any to be done through a mail order catalogue.

Stomach Trouble

AT LAST accounts, if we remember aright, there were some ninety-odd abdominal, chest and general complaints masquerading as "stomach trouble." Some of these deceptive troubles arose in the nervous system; some in the lungs; some in the heart; some in the gall sac and the appendix; and some goodness knows where, and all alike sent but one urgent message, "Get out of the stomach, and hence was "stomach trouble."

The poor, helpless, outraged stomach! What a target it is for the great American nostrum! What a prodigious assortment of diets, drugs and diagnostic mistakes it has to endure!

To be perfectly sober about it, the stomach stands third in the list of popular "complications." First comes "the nerves," blamed for a thousand and one difficulties which with the nerves really have as much to do as has the receptaculum chylis. Next, beyond a doubt, the liver, the good old over-ready liver. And then, the patient, hard-working stomach. The usual innocence of the stomach under serious charges is what makes us first opponents of circumstantial evidence. We would never hang a man on circumstantial evidence, because we know too much about the stirring events in the pit. Here we find at least sixty distinct and separate conditions—nasty, count them—all passing in popular parlance as "stomach trouble," and one of them the fault of the stomach!

Take the faker who sells the alleged "cure" for gallstones. Doesn't he also include "stomach complaints" in the list of ailments his colored olive oil "cures"? He does. Well he knows the popular delusion. He is not so reckless as the old-time shell-gaine fellow whose nostrum was "good for all diseases of the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys." But still he is as bad as the law will allow today—some, what worse, rather, at least in his circular matter, even if he has to be careful how he lies on the label.

"Stomach trouble" signifies something less than the all-inclusive "cold." It means simply that the patient is conscious of stirring events in the pit. The problem presented by a case of "stomach trouble" is to find out which of the ninety-odd extra-gastric ailments may be causing the difficulty.

FINISHING SCHOOLS

WHEN a girl is too refined or too exclusive or too stupid to be sent to a public school any longer, her fond parents send her to a finishing school. These schools are so named because of what they do to her.

Finishing schools are conducted by eminent financiers. Their object is to get $500 a year and extras per head from their students. The finishing school can take a raw, timid girl with a fair-sized bundle of money and by judiciously separating the two can produce in time a beautiful young lady who can read French, play "The Rosary," talk about the drama, get in and out of a room like a princess, and make a poor relation as tearfully that the latter will thank her with tears in his eyes for the favor. It costs from $500 to $1,000 a year to varnish a young lady in this style, and after she is properly finished it costs $5,000 a year for upkeep and decorations until some bright young man comes around for her. The education part comes cheap in these schools, but the extras are better than they are in the contracting business. There was once a private school proprietor who radiated a wonderful atmosphere of repose, and his name of the apostrophe, drawing up extras for the wear and tear on his atmosphere.

Private schools are very strict in discipline, and it really seems a pity that so many efficient guards are wasted on nice young ladies all over our land, while desperate criminals are leaking from their prisons and every hand in the best private schools parents are only allowed to see their daughters once a year, and then only if their influence is deemed desirable by the head jatter.

Views Of The Press

American Fortunes

THAT we were once, and not so long ago, afraid of our giant, the highest skill and personal attention and is subject to constant rivalries and attacks. And the same conditions practically embrace all forms of industrial wealth in this country. So the general theory that great American fortunes seem to be fleeting phenomena is based on economic conditions as they prevail among us.

Twenty-three years ago Jay Gould died. In a generation the great railroad properties that he left passed out of the family's control. The Goulds surrendered control of the Western Union Telegraph Company half a dozen years ago. In 1883 they gave up the Manhattan elevated lines in New York City. And so the Gould fortune is broken into smaller bits and invested in permanent, non-worrying shape. Thirty years ago the Vanderbilts controlled the New York Central and other Vanderbilt lines; the Garretts of Baltimore controlled the Baltimore & Ohio; the Harringtons controlled the Southern Pacific; and a group of Boston families controlled the Burlington system. None remains. The economic forms of pressure in this country have, one by one, taken from all these great centralized fortunes their character and wrested from them the properties on which they were based, their wealth being separated and passing to "invested" forms. American fortunes inevitably break, divide and disappear, while active control of the forms of wealth on which they were based pass to other hands. Re-heater Democrat and Chronicle.

On The Second Bounce
Q. I am a farmer residing a short distance from town. A railroad track runs parallel with an adjoining landowner's property. Last summer, sparks from a locomotive set fire to a haystack in this owner's field. There was a high wind prevailing at the time and the sparks were carried by the wind from the haystack to my land and set fire to my barn, about a quarter of a mile away. My barn was destroyed. Could I hold the railroad company liable?
A. It is very doubtful in view of the facts in your case, whether the railroad company would be liable. As your barn probably would not have been damaged if there had been no wind, the original cause of the fire would seem to be rather remote. The law looks to the proximate, rather than the remote cause. If your statement is correct, the railroad company could hardly be held liable.

When The Fat Man Came Along
Q. My father was walking along a sidewalk which was not protected by guard-rails. The place is dangerous and the walk is elevated. At this place, six or eight feet above the ground, some one in passing, accidentally pushed him off the walk and he was seriously injured. Could he sue the city and recover damages?
A. Yes, if the city's negligence in failing to provide the guard-rails or in otherwise making the sidewalk reasonably safe was the proximate cause of the injury.

Current Poetry

A Mitten
I wove her in the winter time,
And wove her, so I thought, forever.
She wove that she was fond of rhyme,
And doted on my least endeavor.
Her eyes were of cerulean hue;
She had a merry way of mocking,
And though she loved to dress in blue,
She was not a "bluestocking!"

Sometimes before the sea-coal fire
(Close side by side our toes we toasted);
Sometimes we braved the north wind's ire,
And skated gleefully or coasted,
And once, when raged the bitter storm,
And she by cruel cold was smitten,
To keep her little fingers warm
I gave the maid a mitten.

She treasured it, or so I deemed,
Through days of invariable vernal;
And still within her glance there gleamed
A tender light that seemed eternal.
And so love's tide flowed on and on,
What time the year was at its Juning,
And ever in my slumbers shone
Fond dreams of honeymooning.

But, lo! this morning in the mall
I found a wedding invitation,
Announcing that the wood-woman
That she had caught a rich relation,
And with the word (alack-a-day!)
There was a brief note neatly written.
The maiden had but this to say:
"I send you back your mitten!"

BEE-KEEPERS CAN REDUCE LOSSES DUE TO COLD

Interior of Hives Should Be Maintained at Equable Moderate Temperature, Say Specialists in Culture.

It is entirely practical for beekeepers in this vicinity to reduce their winter losses to less than one per cent. At present, the loss is at least one-tenth of the colonies, and this minimum is frequently increased to one-half or even more.

This unnecessary waste is ascribed in a new bulletin of the department Farmers' Bulletin No. 825, to two causes, inadequate stores and excessive heat production, forced upon the bees by inefficient insulation of the hives. No beekeeper, declares the bulletin, ever gave a colony too much protection in the winter; if the hives were to give enough winter losses would be vastly decreased.

The main duty of the beekeeper should be to maintain a temperature about the bees of approximately 57 degrees Fahrenheit. When the temperature in the hive falls below this point, the bees form a cluster. Those in the center begin to generate heat by muscular activity, and those on the outside crowd together to prevent the escape of the heat the others are generating. The lower the temperature outside of the cluster is permitted to fall, the more heat must the bees produce inside, where the temperature frequently reaches 80 degrees or even more, an abnormal condition. Prolonged excessive heat production exhausts their vitality, and even if they survive the winter they are unfit for the task of brood rearing in the spring. This is usually the cause of "spring dwindling." The adult bees, worn out by the hard winter, die faster than the young bees emerge and the population diminishes.

Increased heat production also causes increased consumption of stores. This in turn leads to an accumulation of bees, with consequent starvation, further activity, and more heat production. Sometimes the bees are unable to retain the stores and they are then said to be suffering from dysentery.

These facts emphasize the necessity of properly insulated hives in any locality where the temperature often falls to 10 degrees Fahrenheit. It is not possible to give the hives too much insulation. To give them too little is very easy and practically universal. As a means of insulating any of the various materials in common use, such as sawdust, chaff, broken cork, shavings, paper, dry leaves, etc., should prove satisfactory. With sufficient insulation the exact method of packing is also comparatively unimportant. A common practice, however, of packing hives at the sides, top and rear only, leaving the front facing the south and unprotected, is to be condemned. The theory of nature is that the heat of the bees will warm up the interior of the hive and so reduce the work of the bees. Any material, however, which admits heat from the outside will do it, and so in winter the sun shines even on clear days for only a small portion of the twenty-four hours, more heat is lost than is gained.

In experiments conducted in Philadelphia in 1913 and 1914, four single-walled hives were placed in a large packing case, two being east and two west. Three inches of packing were placed below the hives, five inches on the ends, six inches on the sides and eight to twelve inches on top. The air that was in the hives had outside the cluster was found to range generally from 55 to 57 degrees. In colder climates greater protection than this will be of course be necessary. A safe guide for the beekeeper is the fact that there is no such thing as too much insulation.

The weak place in the insulation of hives is usually the entrance. An opening eight inches wide and three-eighths of an inch high, constructed five to ten inches from the front, is usual. Even this small opening should be carefully shielded from the wind. As a matter of fact, however, the beneficial effects of even abundant insulation are to a great extent lost if the entrance hives is not thoroughly protected from the wind. The desirability of such protection has long been known to beekeepers, but recent experiments have shown that it is even more important than had been supposed. Like insulation, it is not possible to have protection from the wind too thorough.

Proper wintering will greatly diminish the strain which severe weather puts upon bees, but even under the best of conditions their vitality will suffer before spring arrives and brood-rearing begins. For this reason it is most desirable that in the fall the colonies should be both populous and full of young bees. A strong colony presents, in proportion to its numbers, a smaller surface for the radiation of heat than a weak one, and in consequence a smaller proportion of the heat escapes. In weak colonies the bees, in their effort to replace the heat that is lost, repeatedly raise the temperature of the interior of the cluster so high that brood-rearing begins. This is most disastrous if it happens at a time when frequent flights are impossible.

To secure strong colonies of young bees, an rapid increase in the number of colonies during the summer must be avoided and prolonged brood-rearing carried on late in the season.

Essential adequate insulation to the safety of bees, if the packing is delayed too long it may do more harm than good. A colony that has been forced by low temperatures to generate heat is considerably disturbed by the process of packing, and the temperature in the interior of the cluster is at once raised unduly. This may result in injurious premature brood rearing. There is probably no place in the United States where it is safe to postpone packing later than Thanksgiving day.

Excessive and unnecessary heat production and the death of colonies by starvation—a common occurrence—are closely connected. The more heat the bees are called upon to generate the more honey will they consume. In consequence, if inadequate stores are provided for them they starve before the winter is over. The thrifty beekeeper will aim to save bees, not stores, and will therefore be liberal in his providing. If he really wants to save stores, however, he can do it by supplying insulation instead of stinting the bees.

When frames or honey are supplied they should be given before cold weather in order that the bees may form a proper clustering space by moving the honey. Extracted honey may also be fed. Honey-dew honey causes dysentery, and if present in the fall should be removed. In place of extracted honey a thick syrup is more frequently supplied. This is made of from 2 to 2 1/2 parts of sugar to 1 part of water, by volume, with an ounce of tartaric acid added to each 40 or 60 pounds of sugar.

In conclusion the bulletin declares that a better appreciation of the fundamental principle of wintering adequate protection to lessen heat production will result in a great development of the possibilities of commercial beekeeping. The winter losses, which are now regarded as almost inevitable, can in fact be readily avoided. The consequent profit should revolutionize the beekeeper's balance sheet.

A CHILD GETS CROSS, SICK AND FEVERISH WHEN CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated clean little liver and bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, if it is a dirty, gray, yellow, or brownish color, if the bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once, when your child is cross, peevish, restless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs." in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Such a simple remedy is needed to take this harmless fruit laxative. Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know by action on the stomach, bowels and to be a prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 10-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups. It is a safe, reliable, and sure remedy for the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

FOREIGN INFLUENCE SHOWN IN CHANGE OF CHINESE SENTIMENT

Several Newspapers Which Led in Monarchical Movement Now Said to Be Wobbling in Their Advocacy.

'FARICAL CHARACTER' OF ELECTIONS BLAMED

Trade of China Suffering From Agitation, Says North China Daily News, Formerly a Strong Exponent of Change.

(Associated Press Correspondence.) Peking, Nov. 1.—Newspapers which were originally friendly to the monarchical movement and were inclined to accept without qualification the statements of its leaders, are now becoming somewhat wobbly in their faith as the result of the "farical" elections now being held. The North China Daily News of Shanghai which is generally recognized as a more or less official mouthpiece for English interests in China, is one of the early supporters of the movement which is weakening. The following extract from an editorial in this paper shows its position:

"Meanwhile the trade of Shanghai is suffering, and foreigners want to know whether they are watching comedy or farce. Foreigners and the majority of Chinese are quite prepared to sit through the performance as long as it promises to reach a denouement in keeping with real life. They are prepared even to applaud as the curtain falls and to call Yuan Shikai in front of it to receive their bows. But they do not want to be led on from scene to scene towards a goal that is merely fantastic. These worthy mandates, this manoeuvring of so-called popular assemblies, these petitions, the whole bag of tricks, do they or do they not represent genuine sentiment somewhere, a real sentiment which is worth the trouble of a struggle? Or are we watching a sham and nothing but a sham, the prolonged evolutions of a top-syttery piece of nonsense made as elaborate as possible only to cover the absence of any sound, reasonable plan. Is the remedy being carried beyond the point of indifference to means and to the point of indifference to ends also? If so, we wish Yuan Shikai that his finale will be an interruption and a troubled one."

"This month talked of monarchical sentiment with its elaborate investigation of pros and cons, with its making up of massy records and its beseeching peering into the eyes of presidents is yielding more than a resting power for selfish purposes, then it will prove disastrous to those who are being part of it and disaster to the country as a whole. The great bulk of the Chinese do not care two straws what government they have as long as it is a good one. But it may be a good one and unless the abandonment of republican principles is being carried out in order to set up a government into existence, the monarchical movement will earn the rewards of the worst force that has ever been staged in China."

Commenting on this changed attitude of the North China Daily News, the Peking Daily Times says: "It is clear that what is moving the Shanghai paper to a lower valuation of the movement is the introduction of the apparatus of unreality into it, and just as a sense of reality and actuality is a condition of efficiency in the government of a nation, so does the exhibition of a marvelous capacity of unreal in serious affairs strike the foreign mind of once as plain for failure and as intellectually offensive. The material that is at work in our country today—so especially manifested in the government—has been based on an order of ideas which may have corresponded with reality in the seventeenth century, when China stood in splendid isolation, but in those days when our very existence as a nation is in the trust of friendly powers, medieval concepts of government must give way to the other order of ideas which inspires men in the need to govern a country as a nation and not as a family domain. We write these words less in the sense of active opposition to the monarchical movement than of caution and counsel to those who may have been misled by the reasons which are in truth lacking in the foreign experience which alone can enable them to understand and to deal—otherwise than croppily—with certain great categories of foreign affairs."

Continuing the discussion of the monarchical movement, apart from the attitude of the foreign papers, the Peking Gazette says: "While we fear that there may be tragic possibilities in the movement which is hurrying the nation to the foot of a throne, we are free to admit that the president—whose knowledge of his people is far more than that of any other living Chinese—may be right in believing that China may be ruled as an empire if her salvation is to be achieved. But not the least of the things that must be done in this possible success is the necessity of envisaging the moral consequences of a transition that cannot be complete unless it receives foreign sanction and approval. The situation in the present to the west vacated by the Manchus has hitherto been regarded as a purely domestic matter. Nothing is more calculated to lead the nation than in a single step from their own adherence to such a dubious and false view of the relations of this country to the outside world. We have to insist upon the real connection that lies between the success of the great experiment which is on the eve of trial and foreign opinion."

Discussing the recent elections in

Peking, the Peking correspondent of the Peking Daily Times says: "The whole proceeding was most illegal and reflects great discredit on the Peking government. It gives the impression to the world that the government is endeavoring to cook the elections to suit its own ends, and to ensure that the voting shall go the way the government desires. The president has issued instructions that the elections shall be carried out according to law, but the manner in which his instructions had been set at naught, and the attempt to take the voting as evidence in the Peking elections, show how little those who are engineering the elections for their own ends are willing to obey his instructions. This matter should be brought at once to his notice, and those responsible for not carrying out his order should be severely punished. Unless the government wishes the world to believe that the elections are free and voluntary and that the people have been robbed of their independence of voting, the recent Peking elections must be cancelled. Foreigners have been led to believe that a referendum of those qualified to vote on the question of the form of state would be taken. They have believed the bona fides of President Yuan Shikai, and the statements he has made on the matter. If, however, this election is allowed to stand and it is shown that he is willing to allow such shameful breaches of the election regulations as to give the election to those who are not qualified to vote, then his confidence which has been reposed in him will be considerably shaken, and it will be believed that he is a party to these discreditable practices."

ENGLISH OFFICERS REFUSE TO TAKE WAR SERIOUSLY

Persist in Looking on It as a Huge Sporting Proposition; Shown in Accounts Sent From the Battle Fronts.

(Associated Press Correspondence.) London, Nov. 14.—The much criticized British view of war as a sort of excited game or sport is emphasized in a British officer's description of the bombardment of Breda by the British fleet, contained in a letter published here. His letter bristles with such phrases as "It was a grand picnic for the men." "The ships' companies enjoyed themselves immensely." "The harbor-master's office burned splendidly." "The destroyers were able to creep in and plug all manner of things."

The officer began his letter by remarking that he was playing piquet with the captain when the orders came to lift anchor and attack Breda, and he regretfully chronicles that "the exigencies of the service made me sacrifice a hand containing some preparations for the battle in the captain's cabin, which had been turned into an operating theater. No need arose for using it, however, as no defense of the port was attempted by the Bulgarians."

The description of the actual bombardment is in part as follows: "At about a quarter past one in the afternoon we passed off at the big barracks. Our first shot brought the soldiers tearing out of the buildings and we ceased up a bit and let them get clear. Then we lunged and battered away at about 2,500 yards, making enormous holes and smashing in great areas of walls. Unless someone was killed inside the buildings I think we did not hurt anyone. (German accounts of the battle declare that several hundred soldiers were killed in these barracks.)"

"We were only out for destruction and damage, not slaughter, as the thrifty Bulgarian hates to have his property knocked about but cares very little if his neighbor—or even himself—is laid out."

"After a bit we went for the harbor—very tricky work, as the bulk of the caigues which we had orders to shoot at were just beyond a low water breakwater and with low tides, tory from the ship, the least alteration in the elevation of the gun made a big difference. The difficulty was largely settled when our shells set the masts and sails afire, and the flames spreading downward to the ships."

"The destroyers and monitors drew much less water than our larger ships and were able to get in on the land. The charts of Breda being inaccurate, and they plugged all manner of things. Fortunately the population of the town had all gone away, and the troops started behind up in the hills, so I don't think anyone was hurt. We killed a lifting engine which tried to hide itself behind a bank, but one which ran away escaped all right. Two of the destroyers inspired it to still greater efforts with their four-inch guns."

"When we realized that there was no one to hurt, it just became a bonfire of Tostafax day fireworks—it being the 15th anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar. We set all manner of things on fire. Cannon shells were effective but it didn't seem better. We burned a vast mountain of coal, many railway vans and trucks, ships, and two oil storerooms."

"But the best blows were warehouses behind the caigues harbor and an immense factory stuffed with highly inflammable goods. It was six stories high, ten windows square, and had two annexes each of four stories. With a roaring wind to help us and no fire brigade to spoil the fun, it was a most gorgeous flare-up, and the flames were bright enough to cast a shadow six miles away."

Real Worth vs. Low Cost

If you asked your butcher for a porterhouse steak and he handed you a cut of the flank and said, "This doesn't cost as much and is just as good," you wouldn't believe him, would you?

Yet the butcher's statement is just as truthful as an assertion that inferior baking powders made of alum or phosphate of lime are as good as Dr. Price's, which is made from cream of tartar.

Alum is a mineral acid salt, declared by many medical authorities unsafe to use in food.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is as pure and wholesome as the grapes in the vineyard, from which cream of tartar is derived.

The only reason for using such substitutes as alum and lime phosphate is because their cost is less to the manufacturer.

ADOLFO CHAVEZ OF LOS CHAVES MURDERED; ROBBERY THE MOTIVE

A report reached Albuquerque last night of the discovery of the body of Adolfo Chavez, a prominent citizen of Valencia county, which had been buried under a thin covering of earth near his home at Los Chaves. The body was discovered by Silvestre Chavez, a relative, Chavez has been missing for several days and a search was being conducted for him. He had been struck over the head and stabbed several times in the body. It is believed robbery was the motive for the murder, Chavez having sold some corn in Los Lunas, receiving a small sum of money.

NO COMPETITION FROM EUROPE FOR YEARS HE SAYS

Pinot, Representing French Steel Manufacturers, Declares U. S. Must Continue Main Source of Supply.

VAST REBUILDING OPERATIONS NECESSARY

"We Will Be Working Next Twenty Years to Pay What We Owe." Is Summary of French Trade Leader.

[Associated Press Correspondence] Paris, Nov. 29.—That the volume of business between the United States and Europe will not cease with the war, that the United States will not for several years have to fear European competition in manufactured products, is the opinion expressed here by Robert Pinot, general secretary of the Comité des Forges de France. This organization is the official representative of the French works and all the other iron and steel manufacturers of France and the medium through which the French government is now securing large quantities of war munitions for the use of the French and Russian armies.

In an interview Mr. Pinot said: "It is unfortunately true that we must look to the United States for several years to supply us with money credits and with raw and manufactured materials. I say this is unfortunately true because I realize that we will be working for the next twenty years to pay what we owe. Not before that time can we begin to put any profit in our own pockets. The fear that so soon as the war is ended the manufacturers now busy making arms and cannon and shells will convert their factories into the making of products to compete with yours is unfounded.

"While we French iron and steel men have been doing surprising work in our munitions, while we are turning out more than the English factories, while our people have shown a marvelous example of improvisation, while we have done all this with our best plants and our mines in the hands of the Germans, we are not suffering. We cannot turn around so soon as the war is over and begin producing your home markets, because of our cheaper labor, or compete with you in your foreign markets. How can we? We will first have the enormous task of rebuilding our old steel plants, re-equipping our automobile, bus, truck, cloth, printing and railroad shops, all now busy making munitions, back to their old uses. We will have to try to rebuild the vast material destruction that has come with the war. We will have to do our best to satisfy our own home markets. To do these things we will have to continue to buy of you as we are now doing for war supplies.

"What chance is there for the American to do a steady business with us long after the war is over, to follow up and establish himself in the business now begun? I am not a prophet, and the war is not yet over, but here is a fact to be considered by the American manufacturer. So far as concerns France, we iron and steel men had begun to do a surprising business in the few years before the war. We were not only filling the demands made in the home market, but we were beginning to do into the foreign trade. France had almost ceased to be an agricultural nation. I believe, too, that our products were the most perfectly made in the world. They were made to stand up to wear. I won't say that we were right in manufacturing this way, that the American method is not the best ter; but our customers demanded long wearing articles, and we satisfied their demands. An American locomotive is built to last seven years, whereas the railroads we supply want them to last thirty years. This is a condition the American must meet in future competition with us."

In connection with the reconstruction of the French factories destroyed in the north of France, referred to by Mr. Pinot, a current report indicates increasing imports of cotton from the United States and shows that France is now using more American cotton than ever before the war. The totals for the first eight months of this year of such imports were six million metric quintals of 100 kilos each. Before the war France had 7,200,000 cotton spindles and 120,000 looms. At the end of 1914 but 25 per cent, or 800,000, were in operation, due to the German invasion of the Vosges and Lille districts. Now 40 per cent, or 3,000,000 spindles, are in operation, with 1,200,000 still idle.

There is a prospect for large orders of American railway supplies being placed in France. The northern and eastern railways suffered severely by the German invasion, and the other four large railway systems are badly in need of new material of all kinds. While the latter four railways have, during the present year, earned over 70 per cent of their normal receipts both for freights and passengers, they delayed placing orders for new material until this fall. So far American car firms have taken orders for 10,000 freight cars, March delivery. Other orders amounting to more than twenty million dollars were being placed by the French roads when the Italian situation interfered with available ocean freight, and now these orders are either being delayed or being placed in England. The Southern railway ordered 1,000 cars from a Belgian firm newly established in Spain when this freight situation developed, otherwise this order would have gone to an American firm.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Uncertainty and nervousness were manifested in the wheat market here today. Widely varying opinions of the effect of commencing in Canada remained the chief disturbing elements, swinging prices alternately upward and downward without causing any permanent well defined change. The opening, which ranged from 1/2¢ off to 3/4¢ up, with December at $1.03 1/2 and $1.04 1/2 and May at $1.05 1/2 and $1.05 1/2, was followed by a reaction all around to well below yesterday's finish, and then a moderate rally. The close was unsettled with December at $1.02 and May at $1.03 1/2.

Fine weather made the corn market easier. The December option especially was at a discount. After opening at 1/2¢ decline to 1/4¢ advance, the market underwent a general rise. The close was weak at a loss of 1/4¢ to 1/2¢.

Secretary of National Farm Credits Conference Details Irish Tenantry Operation for Benefit of Great Convention

Chicago, Nov. 29.—How the biggest real estate deal in the history of the world was consummated by the British government buying out the Irish landlords and reselling the property to the tenants was told today by Secretary Charles W. Holman of the National Conference on Marketing and Farm Credits at that body, in session here.

How the principle so successfully in Ireland could be administered in America was explained by the speaker, who recently returned from Great Britain where he made a study of Irish land regulations and administration. Holman urged the adoption by congress of that section of the report of the United States commission on industrial relations which fear with the land problem. He was in charge of the field studies made by the commission.

"A state aid land purchase," he said, "is the immediate hope of the American farm tenant, but by that means only can we hope for a quick action to stem the growing tide of landlessness."

Secretary Holman credited state-aided land purchase in Ireland with these benefits: The industry of agriculture increased; farm houses and farm out-buildings have improved, the tendency to sell interests in land has decreased; the tendency to sublet and divide holdings has become almost dormant; the activity of the occupiers has improved, there is a feeling of contentment; a prevalence of law and order that did not exist under landlord and tenant relations.

What a contrast this affords against the American movement toward tenancy," the speaker said. "In Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania, tenant farmers have increased by 121,167, while the number of home owning farmers has actually decreased by 62,815. But in Texas and Oklahoma we find about the saddest distribution of America's hopes for home ownership. Forty years ago Texas had 65,468 tenant families. That number comprised 27.6 per cent of all the farms in the state. In 1910 the tenant farmers had increased to 219,671, which made 52 per cent of all the farms in the state. In Oklahoma 84 per cent of the state is in the hands of tenant farmers."

"America cannot evade this growing land question. The American people must recognize that ours is the last of the first-class countries, to recognize the need of fixing upon a sound law policy. How to redistribute the population upon the land, how to care for the increasing immigrants, how to readjust the relation of city to country must be the great issues of the immediate future."

SHOULD USE SUN IN HEALTHSEEKERS' HOUSEHOLDS

Department of Agriculture Tells How Effective Solar Rays Are Against Bacilli on Clothes, Rugs and Dishes.

Facts regarding sunshine as a germicide of peculiar interest to the families of healthseekers and others in this city are given in the latest weekly news letter received at the office of the Mansano forest from the department of agriculture. The information, while designed primarily for the farm housekeeper and the dairyman, is rich in suggestion for the local housewife and the builders of houses in this city.

Sunshine is an amazingly potent germicide, says the government investigator. The practice of exposing clothing and other utensils used in connection with food to direct sunlight makes use of this fact, although comparatively few appreciate exactly the work done by the sun in this regard. Probably only those who are acquainted with tests which have actually been made realize how quickly sunshine kills disease germs exposed to it. Hence the following tests may be generally instructive and interesting.

A paste, creamy mass of tuberculous material, which was proved to contain uncountable numbers of virulent tubercle bacilli, was obtained from a tuberculous cow and spread in thin smooth translucent layers on sheets of glass, pieces of wood and strips of muslin. Some sheets of glass, pieces of wood and strips of muslin were placed outdoors on a moderately warm, clear, calm day where the sun could shine on them, and an equal number were placed in a dark room. After 15 minutes exposure to the sun the tuberculous material on the glass, wood and muslin still contained large numbers of living tubercle bacilli, which were proved to be fully capable of causing tuberculosis, but after thirty minutes exposure to the sun no living tubercle bacilli could be found; every test that could be made proved that they were all dead.

Similar tests with quite large opaque masses of tuberculous material, larger and denser than any tuberculous person is apt to expectate, proved that the bacilli in such masses on glass are still alive after 4 hours, but entirely dead in less than 8 hours, and still alive in the material on wood and muslin after 4, but dead in less than 15 hours.

The tuberculous material in thin layers on glass, wood and muslin kept in a dark room, was proved to contain fully virulent, living tubercle bacilli after thirty days. The contrast is remarkable, tubercle bacilli of the same kind, on the same kind of material, dying in a smaller number of minutes in the sunshine than the number of days they remained alive in a dark room.

As most varieties of disease germs are more easily destroyed by germs than tubercle bacilli, and as tubercle bacilli, in the thin layers in which they are likely to adhere to clothing, blankets, rugs, draperies, furniture, walls, floors, etc., are killed by the rays of the sun in less than half an hour though they remain alive in dark places a month and longer, it is reasonable to draw the following conclusions:

(1) As a general sanitary precaution it is desirable that all dwellings, stables, etc., should be so constructed that an abundance of sunshine can reach their interiors.

(2) As a general protective measure against disease germs, it is an excellent practice to expose utensils for handling milk and milk cans after they have been cleaned to direct sunlight, and to hang or spread wearing apparel, blankets, bedding, rugs, horse blankets, etc., periodically where the sun can shine on all parts of them.

RECALLING VICTORY OVER THE SYRIAN ARMIES

Feast of Hanukkah Reminds Gentle and Jew of a Great General Who Led Israel's Triumphant Soldiers.

While no special services will be held to mark the celebration of Hanukkah, the festival is interesting, to Gentile as well as Jew, in the richness of its historical association.

Maccabean Victory.

The festival of Hanukkah takes place on December 2 (corresponding to the Hebrew date, the 25th day of Kislev), and lasts eight days. It was established for historic reasons and celebrates the victories of the Maccabees over the Syrians. Antiochus, king of Syria, in the second century before the common era, aspired to dominate the countries of the east. He pursued the policy of suppressing all national distinctions and of forcing upon his subjects in the various countries which had come under his control, the religion and civilization of Syria. This, though Greek in origin, was deemed in spirit and practice, the Jews, proud of their traditions and devoted to their pietistic and moralities, resented the intrusion and the violence of the Syrian conquerors, who were respecters neither of the conscience nor of the lives of the Jews. Under the leadership of Judas Maccabee, they made good their loyalty to their faith and homes and met the Syrians on the battlefield. Their defense was valiant and successful, despite the fact that they were few and grappled with a powerful enemy. After signal victories, they achieved their emancipation and re-established the piety practices of their fathers and, true to the spirit of Judaism, they proceeded at once to the re-dedication of their temple.

Feast of Lights.

A legend says that, at the re-dedication of the temple, a cruse of oil filled every lamp so that the great edifice was resplendent with light. In addition to this, Jews believe the festival is lighted in their homes, increasing them progressively every evening of the festival week, culminating with eight lights on the eighth. It is the symbolic expression of the truth that self-respect, moral stamina and loyalty spread and enshrine everybody. Each one has a example and influence for the many folk.

This revelation brought about the establishment of the dynasty of the Maccabees, whose achievements during the course of more than a century were epoch making in the history of the Jews.

A Children's Holiday.

The Hanukkah festival is one of the favorites in the Jewish calendar. Besides its high significance for men and women, it is also a children's holiday and the religious schools celebrate it with elaborate festivities and great heartiness. The home songs accompany the kindling of the lights and the ritual of the synagogue is enhanced by the recital of selected psalms. The social amenities of the week are happy and cheerful, and, in accordance with the general spirit of the festival, the complete entertainment and benevolence in the home and community.

JUDGE POPE MAKES JUDGE CRAIG SOLE COMMISSIONER

Magistrate Will Have Charge of All the Public Land Business in the City Hereafter.

Formal appointment of Judge George H. Craig to be the only United States commissioner in this city was made known today. The appointment came from Federal Judge W. H. Pope of Santa Fe.

During Major Whiting's lifetime Judge Craig was appointed as an additional United States commissioner at Albuquerque. With Major Whiting's death Judge Craig became the only commissioner in Albuquerque.

Judge Pope wrote to ask formally if Judge Craig desired to retain the place. If so, Judge Pope wrote, he would be very glad to consent to the appointment permanent instead of provisional.

Judge Pope also asked if Judge Craig was in Albuquerque to such an extent that he could attend to all the commissioner's business. He preferred that Judge Craig should be appointed commissioner here, provided Judge Craig was in two practically all of the time.

Judge Craig has written Judge Pope, informing him of his desire to retain the place and of the fact that he is in Albuquerque virtually all the time. Judge Craig's acceptance of the place is tantamount to appointment.

All those having land office business requiring attention in this city will find Judge Craig either in his office in the State building or at the United States commissioner's office in the federal building.

FAREWELL RECEPTION FOR REV. MR. FERGUSON

A few years ago Rev. Neil Ferguson came to Albuquerque completely broken in health, since that time he has been completely restored and will leave tomorrow for Montrose, Colorado, where he assumes charge of a church, as the regular pastor during the time that he has lived in Albuquerque he has been a member of the members of the Christian church gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mize on South Walnut street last night, and Rev. Ferguson was invited to be present. The occasion was comparatively to him, and the services were held in a room at the home of Mrs. Mize on South Walnut street.

Rev. Ferguson was introduced by Rev. J. J. Mize, who presided at the services. On behalf of the members, Fred Hill of the university spoke first. Mr. Dawson, superintendent of the Sunday school, and Rev. C. Cook, pastor of the Presbyterian church, followed. Rev. Ferguson was introduced by Rev. J. J. Mize, who presided at the services. MAN WHO ROUSED COURT'S PITY IS REARRESTED

Foster, drug-wrecked scion of good family, keeps promise as to morphine, but takes up vag's role.

J. J. Foster, one-time advertisement expert, son of a well known California family, under suspended sentence for forgery, was arrested yesterday as a vagrant.

Foster was released by Judge Reynolds November 16, under a suspended sentence of two years in the penitentiary. He said that he could find the drug habit instead on him on some day when he was given morphine by a physician after an accident, and how it ruined his career. He admitted that Foster was not his right name, which he explained to have been found from adoption. He said he had found the drug habit and had reduced his daily allowance from ten grains to one grain. He said Judge Reynolds had told him he would not return to the use of morphine, and that was part of the understanding on which sentence was suspended.

The police say Foster has not been providing regarding the drug. He has been hanging about town, however, they say, and they are convinced to treat him as a vagrant. He will probably be given a chance to get out of town. The police say that Foster is not a member of any family. They believe his story that the drug habit grew on him physically and then wrecked him physically and morally.

WORD OF CAUTION AS TO BURNING LEAF PILES

Mayor Boatright Calls Attention to the Danger of Leaving Burning Heaps Unwatched After Nightfall.

Because of the unusual amount of wood fires, most of which have been of a threatening character, Mayor Boatright was moved today to issue a warning to business, householders and others who may be inclined to leave piles of leaves.

Those who set out to burn leaves should see that the fire has been completely extinguished before leaving after dark or when they are about to watch them until they are burned out. Mayor Boatright will be glad to send you a pamphlet on burning leaves after dark, but only when you are in the neighborhood of the fire.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reliable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. HALL'S CATARRH CURE, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It is the only Hall's Catarrh Cure that you can get and it is taken internally, and it is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co., Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price 75 cents per bottle.
