QUIETING DOWN AFTER EARTHQUAKE IN THE SOUTH

LOOTING SUPPRESSED BY ARMED FORCE

Catastrophe Predicted in Daily Papers Twenty-four Hours Before It Happened.

PRESIDENT ACCOMPANIED BY MINISTERS TO SCENE

Telegraph Communications Have Been Re-established From Valparaiso to Country at Large.

Valparaiso, Aug. 21.—The opportune arrival of the Chilean fleet, which steamed into Valparaiso harbor, was welcome and helped to save the situation following the earthquake. As in San Francisco, the sailors were landed and placed in charge of the city pending the arrival of government troops.

They patrolled the water front and guarded the wrecked banks and other buildings containing valuables, with orders to shoot thieves and marauders on sight.

The soldiers shot a number of laborers who were caught rifling the dead and robbing buildings, and their bodies were suspended from telephone poles at street corners, bearing large placards reading, "For Ladrones," warning looters.

A strange fact in connection with the earthquake is that the daily papers published prognostications of the catastrophe several hours in advance of the first shocks.

ACCOUNT OF AFFAIR AS SANTIAGO UNDERSTOOD IT

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 21.—Only now can the seriousness of the catastrophe begin to be appreciated. The greater part of many houses are unsafe for habitation and the authorities have organized a special corps to pull down tottering buildings. In most of the streets it is not safe to walk on the pavement owing to falling debris.

Santiago resembles a camp. The public squares and principal avenues are crowded with people sleeping in the open. The night of August 19 was rendered dreadful by the flashing of lightning and pouring rain. Electric cables and wires were snapping as a result of the constant strong earth shocks, which occurred all that night, causing the greatest consternation, which was heightened by pealing fire bells announcing the breaking out of fires in various quarters of the city.

Government's Report to President.

No really definite news has been received here from Valparaiso except the governor's official report to the president, outlining the situation and adding that he was earnestly rushing reinforcements of troops, which today were here, by special marches.

The governor informed the president that he had caused the construction of sheds on Brazil avenue in order to shelter homeless families. He estimated that provisions on the way to Valparaiso would be sufficient to last a month. The water supply, however, was short, owing to the destruction of the water works. Difficulty is experienced in burying the dead owing to the panic prevailing. The state of affairs existing at Valparaiso furnishes a serious outlook for Santiago, since many homeless residents of the former place will make their way here and there is not sufficient accommodation of food in this city for the destitute people of Santiago.

Standing Houses Pulled Down.

The task of the authorities in the present situation became easier today on account of the fact that the telegraph and telephone lines were re-established between Valparaiso and Santiago, enabling the governor of Valparaiso to consult at length with the authorities here.

The people arriving here from Valparaiso confirm the alarming reports as to the extent of the catastrophe, but they declare that the local authorities have taken the most energetic measures to maintain order and prevent pillaging. All persons caught robbing are shot on the spot.

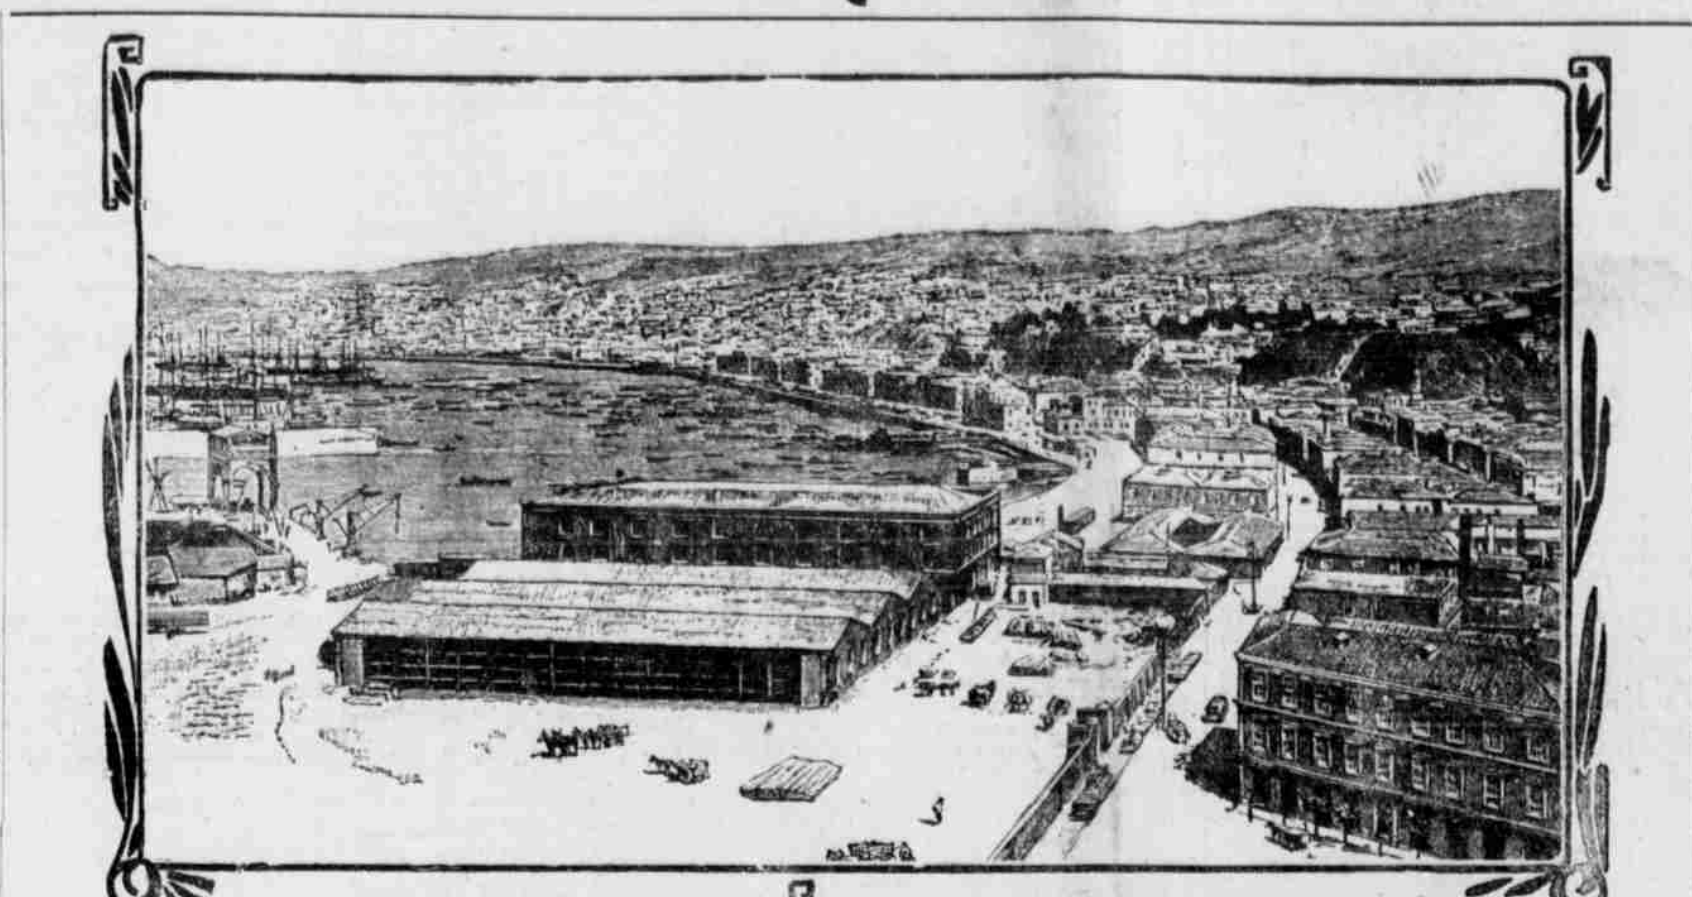

The people arriving here estimate that 82 per cent of the buildings in the Terremote district have been destroyed by fire. All reports agree that Adremiral and the southern districts of Valparaiso suffered the most severely. According to some reports Valparaiso may be said to have been totally destroyed, it being asserted that all the houses which remained standing have been shaken and that they must be pulled down.

Shock Unprecedented in Length.

The first great shock lasted four minutes and fifty seconds. Such a long shock had never occurred before in the memory of any Santiago inhabitant. Experts say that the only thing which saved Santiago from complete ruin was that the motion was circular. The principal shock was from Valparaiso to Santiago and Meripilla with its center at Llanes. The last two mentioned towns were destroyed as were Quillota and Llalilal. Approximately, the earthquake was announced by the naval observatory two days previous to its occurrence.

NEWS FROM OUTSIDE

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 2.—El Nacion today published a special dispatch from La Paz, Bolivia, announcing that 2,000 persons lost their lives as a result of the earthquake shocks and fires at Valparaiso, that 170 deaths from the same causes occurred at Llanes, 40 at Quillota, 35 at Conchal, 11 at Petrada, 90 at La Paellita and six at La Calera. On Sunday there was a strong convulsion at Valparaiso which produced further panic.

THE CITY FROM THE HARBOR, A RANGE OF HILLS HOLDING IT CLOSE TO THE SEA.

A dispatch from Santiago today announces that President Riesco is proceeding to Valparaiso accompanied by ministers of the interior and of war to supervise the relief work.

Inhabitants are Camping Out.

A majority of the inhabitants of Valparaiso are camped on the hills surrounding that city and in the parks and main thoroughfares. Many have sought refuge on board vessels at anchor in the bay. Martial law continues there.

MERRITT AND WHITE WILL OPEN RINK

SECURE PERMIT FROM CITY COUNCIL—SKATING IN A TENT—ALBUQUERQUE SKATER HURT.

The initial steps to the establishing of another skating rink in Albuquerque were taken last night when Messrs. Ross Merritt and Charles White, two well known young business men of this city, appeared before the city council with a request to be allowed to open and operate a skating rink at the corner of Railroad avenue and Fifth street, to be conducted under canvas, presenting with their request a petition from the property holders in that vicinity, who agreed to the establishing of a rink there.

The request of the two gentlemen was allowed by the council, after it had embodied in the ordinance license for operating same. It is the intention of Mr. Merritt and Mr. White to "get busy" with the details of their plans at once. They will secure and erect a large and substantial tent, and put down one of the fine improved section maple floors, the finest floors for skating rink purposes made.

Already they are in communication with the makers of skates and section floors, and will secure the latest style, cushion frame, ball-bearing skates. It is their intention to have the rink in operation as soon as the work necessary to its establishment can be accomplished.

Albuquerque Skater Hurt.

Last evening at the McCoy & Whisman skating rink in the Elks building, while Walter Zanol of this city and George Pepper of St. Louis were giving an exhibition of fast skating, in a match race, the former slipped while making one of the short turns at terrific speed and struck his head violently against the iron supports of the opera chairs which line the walls.

Although dazed, Zanol, with bull-dog grit, strove to his feet and made a few strokes in an endeavor to continue the race, but the blow had been too hard and he fell in a heap, unconscious. His opponent in the race and others rushed to the fallen skater and removed him to another room, where a physician was called and treated his wounds. He returned to the rink shortly afterwards, receiving an ovation as he entered.

VALUABLE LAND FOR THE EFFORTS TO PULL OFF PEOPLE IS YET IN OKLAHOMA

Indian Reservation to Be Soon Thrown Open In the New State.

PRICE IS PUT AT $5 BUT WILL GO HIGHER

Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—One of the best of the few remaining tracts of Indian lands is soon to be thrown open for settlement. This tract is located near Lawton, in Comanche and Kiowa counties, Oklahoma. It comprises something over 500,000 acres, and is known locally as the "big pasture."

The big pasture consists of lands originally set aside for grazing the cattle of the Kiowa, Apache and Comanche Indians, and it is to the survivors of these tribes that the proceeds of the sale will go — or rather it is to them that the interest at 5 per cent will go, the principal being held by the interior department in trust.

The big pasture lands are not to be had free, or even for a nominal price. The plan on which they will be disposed of is a combination of settlement and sale. The law provides that some of the lands can be sold for less than $5 an acre, and it is the plan of the department to sell to the highest bidder. But whether the bidding will be at auction or by sealed bids has not been determined.

Neither has the date of the sale been determined; only that it will come some time before December 5—probably about November 15.

Of the half million acres 25,000 acres are woodland. The rest is rolling pasture, exceedingly rich and well suited to all forms of agriculture. It is expected that some of the lands will sell for as high as $25 and even $30 an acre.

The law provides that purchasers of these lands must be actual settlers in order to secure title. The least time a man can live upon the lands and secure title is fourteen months, and the normal time is five years.

Some of the lands are now leased, and these are to be sold subject to the terms of these leases. In addition to which the law has given lessees a first call on the lands, so that they may buy the lands covered by their leases at a value to be fixed by appraisers, if they so desire.

Purchasers will be required to pay one-fifth of the purchase price at the time the bid is made, and the remainder in four annual installments.

With the deductions for Indian allotment and other purposes there will be about 3,200 quarter sections on which to homestead. If there are on an average of three bidders for each homestead, there will be some 10,000 persons in the game.

TONE OF WOOL IS MUCH STRONGER SAYS THE BOSTON REPORT

Manufacturers Are Now Taking Greater Interest In the Market.

TERRITORY GRADES ARE IN BETTER DEMAND

Boston, Aug. 21.—A steady improvement in the tone of the wool market is reported, with increased interest on the part of the manufacturers. Still there is a feeling that the present basis of prices is likely to prevail without material change. Both washed and unwashed territory grades have been in some demand.

DISTRICT CLERK DAME ABOUT READY TO RESIGN

LEAVES TERRITORIAL SERVICE TO BECOME MANAGER FOR LUMBER COMPANY IN MEXICO.

A special in Monday's New Mexican, purporting to be from this city, states that Clerk Dame, of the district court, will resign upon the return of Judge Ira A. Abbott to this city, and that an active canvass is on among certain Albuquerqueans for the position to be vacated, naming Harry F. Lee, city clerk; Harry P. Owen, court stenographer, and W. A. Bayers, secretary to Delegate Andrews. The New Mexican adds that Mr. Owen's friends claim he has the inside track.

Whether or not it is true that Mr. Owen has the inside track, "The Evening Citizen," or any other territorial paper, is not in a position to state, as definite information, but that the appointment of any of the above named gentlemen would be acceptable, on the whole, to the people of Albuquerque, goes without saying.

Mr. Owen has often acted in the capacity of clerk of the court in Capitan, and is therefore familiar with the duties of the office.

Mr. Lee has had much experience in clerical work of that kind, having been city clerk for several years, and would fill the position admirably. His many friends here are inclined to think he stands an excellent chance of landing the position.

Mr. Bayers is as equally efficient, and would probably make as good a court clerk as either of the above named gentlemen, so that an appointment of any one of the gentlemen mentioned would meet with general approbation here.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS APPOINT DELEGATES

BOTH TO WOOL GROWERS' CONVENTION AND NATIONAL IRRIGATION CONGRESS.

The Bernalillo county commissioners held a short session this morning and appointed delegates to the New Mexico sheep and wool growers' convention, which will be held in Albuquerque during fall week, as follows: Gus Thelin, Ambrosio Candelaria, Francisco Lacro, Andrea Romero, Santiago Garcia, W. R. Metcalf, Etan-alado Padilla, W. H. Hahn, Filomeno Mora and G. L. Brooks.

The resignation of Donacian Garcia as justice of the peace of precinct No. 18 was accepted, and Juan Aldearte was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The commissioners appointed Herman Blucher, John Mann, Felix Lester, Charles E. Glecker and Leonard Hunkle as delegates to the National Irrigation congress, which meets at Boise, Idaho, September 3 to 8.

POLITICAL FIELD IN ILLINOIS

Republicans and Democrats in Simultaneous Session With No Thought of Fusion.

SPEAKER CANNON WILL BE UNANIMOUSLY ENDORSED

Democrats in Bad Buhgle Over Retirement of Sullivan From National Committee.

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 21.—Before the republican state convention met today to nominate candidates for treasurer of state, superintendent of public instruction, and three trustees for the state university, it was conceded that Speaker Cannon would receive emphatic endorsement as republican candidate for president for 1908, and that Shelby M. Cullom would be endorsed for re-election to the United States senate.

DEMOCRATS AIR MUCH DIRTY LINEN AT PEORIA

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 21.—The democratic state convention met today for the purpose of nominating candidates for state treasurer, state superintendent of public instruction and for three trustees of the University of Illinois.

In reality, however, the convention was more a fight for control of the state party machinery between the factions headed by National Committeeman Sullivan of Chicago and the immediate followers of Bryan, who in successive letters has asked the resignation of Sullivan from the national committee on the ground that he was improperly placed two years ago. Sullivan refused to resign and he and his friends resent what they term the interference of Bryan in their state politics.

Before the convention Sullivan claimed that he controlled 1,400 out of the 1,665 delegates. The Bryan people, led by Judge Thompson of Jacksonville and Congressman Rainey, declared that unless the convention repudiated Sullivan they would fight to the last against any endorsement of Bryan by the convention. Sullivan, on the other hand, declared Bryan would be endorsed, whether he liked it or not.

GALLUP IS CONFIDENT OF THE A. & C. ROAD

SOUTHERN PACIFIC CANNOT DO WITHOUT THE COAL IN SAN JUAN AND MCKINLEY COUNTIES.

In this week's issue the announcement appears calling the annual meeting of the A. & C. R. E., which will be held in Tucson on the 17th of next month. This county is surely going to get the road, but the question is when? Litigation is holding the road back in its construction in New Mexico, but surveying and active construction is going on in Mexico, and the S. P., which is behind the A. & C., has turned a ticket on the Phelps-Dodge interests by getting the old concession through the Yaqui valley, which was held by the Phelps-Dodge company until it ran out.

From the latest reports obtainable it is learned that the S. P. interests, or people closely connected with the same, will in the near future build a smelter and copper refinery at a point on the border not far from the town of Naco, and from that point will build into Mexico via the upper San Pedro valley, and thence to tide-water and the Guaymas connection.

To operate a smelter and refinery it will require large quantities of coal and coke, and the A. & C. has coal in plenty along its survey in McKinley county, San Juan county and southern Colorado. The coal in northern New Mexico is coaling coal, just what will be required, while there is no better coal anywhere for fuel purposes than the McKinley county coal, known all over the southwest as Gallup coal. It begins to look as though the building of the A. & C. would be an absolute necessity if the projected industries and extensions of the S. P. are carried out.—McKinley Republican.

APPOINTMENT OF JURIES FOR SECOND DISTRICT

JUDGE ABBOTT RETURNS TOMORROW AND WILL IMMEDIATELY APPOINT JURY COMMISSIONERS.

Judge Ira A. Abbott is expected home tomorrow from his vacation, spent at Haverhill, Mass., and on Friday, accompanied by District Clerk Dame, he will go to Los Lunas to appoint jury commissioners and select juries for the September term of Valencia county court.

On the day following, Saturday, August 25, Judge Abbott will meet with the jury commissioners of Sandoval county at Bernalillo for the selection of McKinley county juries for the ensuing year. Juries for Bernalillo county will be selected on Monday, August 27, and the McKinley county juries will be selected on the 28th. The commissioners meeting with Judge Abbott at Gallup.

BELIEVED THAT DESPERATE CIVIL WAR WILL FOLLOW

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Aug. 21.—Advices here from Guayabin, San Domingue, say that General Guellito, at the head of 500 revolutionists, has left Djajabel to join the troops of General Navarro and make an attack upon Monte Cristi. The movement of Santo Domingo has sent 1,200 men from Merca against the revolutionists. It is believed that a desperate civil war will follow.

GOVERNOR HAGERMAN'S VISIT TO TUCUMCARI

HE SAW THE COUNTRY, BEHELD THE RICHNESS OF ITS AGRICULTURAL FIELD AND MADE EXCELLENT IMPRESSION ON THE PEOPLE HE MET.

The welcome extended to Gov. Herbert J. Hagerman, upon his visit to this place last Monday, was without ostentation or display but better than pomp or parade, it was a sincere manifestation of the people's respect and admiration for the young chief executive.

When the governor stepped from the Southwestern special bearing himself and party, he was greeted by the reception committee and as large a crowd of representative citizens as ever assembled to greet an honor to one to whom honor is due.

A number of carriages were in readiness and, after shaking hands with the members of the reception committee, the governor and party, consisting of Hon. J. W. Reynolds, territorial secretary, Attorney General W. C. Reed and Mr. Carpenter, manager of the Dawson Fuel company, were driven to the court house where they were given an informal reception, after which Governor Hagerman made a brief address which was characterized by his usual earnestness and sincerity; his words were well chosen and fitly spoken, evidencing the independence and courage of conviction that characterizes his official conduct.

After the address the party visited the chief business industries of Tucumcari winding up at the scouring mill. This industry is one of the best equipped of its kind in the country and interested the governor very much.

The committee had arranged for a drive through the country for the purpose of showing the visitors that what has been said and written about the agricultural prospects of Quay county were genuine. The trip was east to the farm ranch of Harry K. Grubbe, from which place the party drove north across the Rock Island railroad and thence east to the farm of O. C. and R. E. Patterson, which was the climax to the day's entertainment.

Here, just on the outskirts of the town is one of the most pleasing farm scenes ever beheld; long rows of Indian corn, its silken tassels waving in the golden sunshine, gives relief to the eye and confirms the belief that with proper cultivation the soil of Quay county will yield an abundance that will soon make the county the granary of the southwest.

Mr. Patterson had been informed of his visit and had a number of choice watermelons on ice to which the party did ample justice, as the afternoon was warm and no other refreshments were on tap.

From the Patterson farm the party returned to town and at 11 o'clock in the evening departed on their special train for Santa Rosa.

Few of our people know the governor personally before his visit here and now that all have met him, we hear expressions complimentary from those who met him last as well as before.

We like his way of doing things, we admire his stand for clean government and regardless of party affiliations will stand by him in his crusade against graft and corruption.—Tucumcari News.

hand, the remarkable growth of Mr. Hearst's gubernatorial boom, standing as he does on a government ownership platform, may convince Mr. Bryan that the time is ripe to declare that policy as a cardinal democratic doctrine.

Will He Be Radical?

Radical democrats everywhere are anxious that Mr. Bryan shall come out flat footed for government ownership and declare that he will stand on that policy. They argue that such a course would be the best of politics, and their argument has a lot of sound logic back of it. The situation, as it appears to the radicals, is about as follows: In 1896 and again in 1900, Mr. Bryan was commended for certain radical preachments. Since then, a republican president has taken up most of those radical preachments, adopted them as his own gospel, and forced them upon his party as good republican gospel. The result: Tremendous popularity for Mr. Roosevelt, and public conviction that those policies have better, certainly as good, chances of becoming law with Mr. Roosevelt at the helm as with Mr. Bryan. In other words, Roosevelt has stolen Bryan's thunder. The thing for Mr. Bryan to do, therefore, is to get out in public, and the most promising atmospheric disturbance is in government ownership of railroads. Mr. Roosevelt has not gone that far, and there is no chance that he will go that far within the next two years. And the radicals believe that the people will remember that the things which Bryan scared them in 1896 and 1900 are now generally accepted as sound policy, and will not take fright when the "conservatives" shout "wolf" at government ownership.

ABSENCE CAUSE OF POPULARITY

Bryan Realizes This and Will Make Another Foreign Trip Immediately.

DEMOCRATS MAKE ELECTION OF CANNON WITHOUT DOUBT

Division of Parties in New York and Ohio Has Been Drawn On Very Different Ground.

(By Shelton S. Cline.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—The announced purpose of Mr. Bryan to take as small a part as may be possible in this year's campaign is a severe disappointment to Chairman Griggs and the members of the democratic congressional committee. They had hoped that Mr. Bryan would make speeches in practically every close district and were counting largely on his popularity to enthrone the democratic rank and file.

Mr. Bryan's policy has the approval, however, of those of his friends who are looking beyond this year's contest to the larger stage of 1908. The Bryan boom has grown to its present proportions with Mr. Bryan on the other side of the world. Things have been progressing very nicely, so nicely, indeed, that men like Bailey of Texas, who have never been friendly to the Nebraskan, concede his nomination two years hence. What good purpose is to be served, therefore, by Mr. Bryan's return and participation in the campaign? If his nomination be already assured, it is not necessary that Mr. Bryan should do anything to push the boom along. And with him here making daily speeches, there would always be present the possibility of some untoward occurrence that would give the boom a set-back.

And so, there was relief and satisfaction when the word came that after a few weeks in America Mr. Bryan would again set sail for a long voyage to Australia. No arrangement of things could have been better. After a long absence, during which his popularity had had tremendous growth, Mr. Bryan returns, receives the plaudits of his devoted followers, makes graceful acknowledgments, and sails away again, giving to absence a second opportunity to make the democratic heart grow fonder. Thus, both to Mr. Bryan and the democracy, are spared the petty annoyances of daily contact, and the criticisms that come of close scrutiny, and the depreciation that every man, no matter how great he is, must suffer when the people are in constant hearing of his voice.

It is a trite saying, but a true one, that familiarity breeds contempt. And by other aspirants for presidential honors, Mr. Bryan is envied as a lucky man. Were the circumstances propitious, more of them, no doubt, would go abroad. Maybe Mr. Bryan's success will make it the fashion for presidential seekers to go a-traveling. In order that the people may regard them through the telescope, rather than the microscope.

What Bryan May Do.

It is known, of course, that Mr. Bryan will make a few speeches during his brief sojourn at home, and it is expected those speeches will be the democratic slogans in this year's campaign. There is naturally keen anxiety, therefore, as to what issues Mr. Bryan will make paramount. It is the hope of most eastern democrats that he will come out strong for revision of the tariff, and put the soft pedal on other policies for which the Nebraskan is known personally to stand.

Especially anxious are the eastern "conservatives" as to what he may say on the subject of government ownership of railroads. That Mr. Bryan is personally in favor of this policy is well known, but there is hope that he may not press it at this time. Between the attitude of Mr. Bryan on this question and the democratic struggle in New York there is intimate relation. If Mr. Bryan comes out strong for government ownership, there will be nothing logically left in New York but the nomination of Mr. Hearst, should Mr. Bryan make tariff revision paramount. It would largely take the wind out of the Hearst sails, because tariff revision has no conspicuous place in the Hearst preachment. On the other

Canon's Election Sure.

The plans of the labor unions to retire "Uncle Joe" Cannon to the restfulness of private life would seem to have gone agley. It appears that the democrats of the Eighteenth Illinois district failed to comply with the provisions of the new primary law requiring that all parties elect their delegates to congressional conventions at the same time. This would leave Mr. Cannon with only a prohibitionist candidate to oppose him, and there isn't much likelihood that a sufficient number of democrats will be persuaded to vote for the prohibitionist to seriously embarrass the speaker. That he is in no danger of defeat, under these circumstances, becomes especially apparent when it is recalled that two years ago Cannon had a plurality of about 15,000 and a clear majority over his three opponents of nearly 12,000.

The kindness, or carelessness, of the Eighteenth district democrats, therefore leaves Speaker Cannon free to devote all his time to helping less fortunate colleagues without thought of how affairs are progressing at home. One of the first fights in which he will take a hand will be that waging up in Maine against Representative Littlefield. Littlefield and Cannon were among those most conspicuously marked by the labor leaders for defeat, and now that "Uncle Joe" need no longer fear their wrath he hastens naturally to the succor of his fellow outcast.

If the unions succeed in putting Littlefield out of business, it will be a sufficient triumph for their first year in politics, and they can afford to lose their other conflicts. All the influence of the administration and all the power of the republican organization is back of Littlefield, and he has a wide margin of republican votes to go on. Should he be defeated, no congressman who antagonizes the unions will ever be secure in his seat; and, under such circumstances, not many congressmen would antagonize them. It is possible, then, that what may come to have a government of the unions, by the unions, and for the unions. "Oh, well," is the retort, "it might as well be that way as a government of the trusts, by the trusts, and for the trusts." And on one seems to think it worth while to ask where the common man comes in, the every day consumer who is neither a labor unionist nor a trust magnate.

Parties Divided in Ohio.

In New York state both the democrats and republicans are playing in great luck. The democrats are lucky because the republicans are fighting among themselves, and the republicans are lucky because the democrats have inter-party strife.

The democratic conflict, of course, is between Hearst and anti-Hearst factions, with the gubernatorial nomination and control of the party machinery as the prizes. In this fight, however, there is involved the issue of Hearst's doctrines, something that affects the welfare of the people, and the struggle can be viewed without repulsion. The New York republican fight, on the other hand, would seem to have nothing back of it other than the sordid ambitions of two men, the question of whether an Odell or a Higgins shall be boss. It is a pitiful issue upon which republicans are asked to battle, and it is a pitiful choice of evils which the party has.

DEMOCRATS MAKE ELECTION OF CANNON WITHOUT DOUBT

Division of Parties in New York and Ohio Has Been Drawn On Very Different Ground.

(By Shelton S. Cline.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—The announced purpose of Mr. Bryan to take as small a part as may be possible in this year's campaign is a severe disappointment to Chairman Griggs and the members of the democratic congressional committee. They had hoped that Mr. Bryan would make speeches in practically every close district and were counting largely on his popularity to enthrone the democratic rank and file.

Mr. Bryan's policy has the approval, however, of those of his friends who are looking beyond this year's contest to the larger stage of 1908. The Bryan boom has grown to its present proportions with Mr. Bryan on the other side of the world. Things have been progressing very nicely, so nicely, indeed, that men like Bailey of Texas, who have never been friendly to the Nebraskan, concede his nomination two years hence. What good purpose is to be served, therefore, by Mr. Bryan's return and participation in the campaign? If his nomination be already assured, it is not necessary that Mr. Bryan should do anything to push the boom along. And with him here making daily speeches, there would always be present the possibility of some untoward occurrence that would give the boom a set-back.

And so, there was relief and satisfaction when the word came that after a few weeks in America Mr. Bryan would again set sail for a long voyage to Australia. No arrangement of things could have been better. After a long absence, during which his popularity had had tremendous growth, Mr. Bryan returns, receives the plaudits of his devoted followers, makes graceful acknowledgments, and sails away again, giving to absence a second opportunity to make the democratic heart grow fonder. Thus, both to Mr. Bryan and the democracy, are spared the petty annoyances of daily contact, and the criticisms that come of close scrutiny, and the depreciation that every man, no matter how great he is, must suffer when the people are in constant hearing of his voice.

It is a trite saying, but a true one, that familiarity breeds contempt. And by other aspirants for presidential honors, Mr. Bryan is envied as a lucky man. Were the circumstances propitious, more of them, no doubt, would go abroad. Maybe Mr. Bryan's success will make it the fashion for presidential seekers to go a-traveling. FORMER GOVERNOR OTERO DINED BY A SELIGMAN Former Governor Miguel Otero was the guest of honor and Hon. Arthur Seligman the host at an elaborate stag dinner one evening last week at the latter's residence on Palace avenue, says the New Mexican. It was a congenial band of spirits, figuratively speaking of course, that gathered about the table to eat, drink and be merry, and at the same time to extend a cordial welcome home to the ex-governor from his travels in Europe. The menu embraced the delicacies in season. It was a feast fit for the gods and the mortals who partook of it did ample justice. During the discussion of the repeat wit and wisdom bubbled forth unrestrained with an effervescence that rivaled the efforts of the sparkling "chasers." With the last course out of the way choice cigars were distributed and the jolly guests amused themselves with telling stories and occasional songs. Present besides the most and the guest of honor were: Governor Herbert Hagerman, Territorial Secretary J. W. Reynolds, Attorney General W. C. Reid, Judge John R. McFie, Colonel George W. Prichard, Major R. J. Paen, James L. Seligman, A. M. Berger, and Levi A. Hughes.

RATHER SLOW METHOD OF GETTING WORK DONE The Eighty-Five mine has temporarily stopped shipping ore, because of the expense of loading, says the Lordsburg Liberal. When it commenced shipping this spring it shipped over the Arizona & New Mexico road from Oil station. There was no loading platform there, but the company promised to build one. Expecting the platform immediately the haulers consented to do the loading until the platform was built. Superintendent Welch ordered the erection of the platform, but the order must have gone lost. When President Colquhoun returned the matter was presented to him, and he ordered the erection of the platform, and thought it was built. When he was on his way to California, and found it was not built he issued new instructions for its building, but these seem to have got lost in the shuffle, and no work has been done on it. This week the men doing the hauling refused to load the ore, except at an additional price of twenty-five cents per ton, and rather than pay this on low grade ore shipments were suspended. The platform will probably be built some time, and then shipments will be resumed.

MILLIE BROWN'S CASE MAY FREE ISLE OF PINES

AMERICAN GIRL WHO WAS LOCKED UP IN FILTHY PRISON BY CUBANS TO BE AN ISSUE IN CONGRESS NEXT WINTER — AMERICANS ON THE ISLAND BOILING OVER WITH RAGE — STORY OF FAMOUS CASE.

Special Correspondence. Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines, Aug. 21.—Discontent, long prevalent, among Americans on the island, has been brought to the boiling point by the imprisonment of Miss Millie J. Brown, notwithstanding her pardon and release. It has become an international incident and recital of the details will rumble in the halls of congress next winter. This condition is foreshadowed by inquiries received here from statesmen who sympathize with the Americans who want to cut loose from the Cuban rule and have the island placed under the jurisdiction of the United States. When the status of Cuba was settled the Isle of Pines was left out for future settlements and the question whether it shall be attached to the states of Cuba is pending in congress.

MILLY BROWN IN HER CELL IN THE FILTHY JAIL AT NUEVA GERONA.

Miss Brown's case, which has aroused such a storm of indignation, is being brought forward as a sample of the Cuban rule that is being endured by the Americans. It is the "toy telegraph" case. A line, 1,800 feet long, was run at Columbia to connect the homes of Miss Brown and H. L. Augustine and the store of L. C. Giltner. Miss Brown, who is 19, lives with her parents, who came from Iowa, and the family is highly respected. Augustine and Giltner are Cornell university graduates, and hail from New York state. A net telegraph line cost $120, and was entirely on private land. It was constructed in June, and had been in use only two or three weeks when the rural guards called to inquire about it. They were truthfully told that it was not a commercial line, but had been erected for purposes of amusement. No order was given to dismantle it, but early in July the owners of the wires were twice haled before Judge Figueraro, to whom the enterprise was fully explained. That dignitary departed, and Judge Diaz, who had been chosen with a view to "harmonizing" conditions, on the island, succeeded him. Diaz called in the trio on July 14, asked a few questions, and read a typewritten decision, prepared in advance, imposing a fine of $100 with the alternative of each serving 33 1/3 days in prison. They were charged with having violated a military order issued by general "Jai Alai" Wood in 1902, prohibiting the establishment of telephone or telegraph lines without special official authority. The prisoners had never heard of this regulation. The three young people were taken direct from the court room to the prison. They found it to be a typical Latin castle. It was revolting, but they endured it for the principle involved. There were no beds, nor tables, nor chairs in the prison. Miss Brown was assigned to a dark, damp, gloomy room, 14 feet square. The only bedding she had for a few days was the scant clothing loaned to her by a fellow prisoner. She was the only woman in the jail. There were no accommodations for women and no matron. Aside from the two young Americans, her fellow prisoners were a motley crew of Cuban criminals, from murderers of chicken thieves.

There were two weeks of this prison experience. Meantime a committee of island Americans, chosen at an indignation meeting, was sent to Havana and the American legation got to work. The outcome was the pardoning of the prisoners by the Cuban national officials. Miss Brown is the heroine of the big American colony. They called by scores at the prison to praise her courage and self-reliance. Miss Brown has sent a statement of the case to Senator Morgan. In the fight to be made for the island she will figure prominently, as did Evangelina Cisneros, the only other woman ever confined in Nueva Gerona prison, in the contest for the freedom of Cuba.

BEAUTIFUL AND NOVEL CHARITY BUILT UP ON GIFTS OF PENNIES

NEW ORLEANS ORGANIZATION HAS UNIQUE METHOD OF HELPING WORKING GIRLS AT VACATION TIME—POPULAR GIRLS GET SUMMER OUTING, WHILE SOCIETY ENJOYS REST ON THE SHORE OF A BEAUTIFUL LAKE.

WHAT PENNIES CAN DO. Pennies to the amount of $50,000 were collected. Fifteen working girls received a two weeks' vacation, with Pullman transportation and all expenses paid. Scores of working girls were afforded rest and recreation at a pleasant home on Lake Ponchartraine.

Special Correspondence. New Orleans, La., Aug. 21.—The most popular charity in New Orleans is conducted by the Working Girls' Outing association. This society has so high an aim and conducts its business in so dignified a manner that its work can scarcely be called a charity. The association is two years old. The president is J. Kemp Ridgely, a popular passenger agent, and the vice president is Chas. I. Lee, a sporting editor. Many of its members are newspaper men. The work of this organization has become so popular that this year it collected money sufficient to send fifteen popular working girls to the mountains of North Carolina in a special Pullman car, paying all expenses and furnishing spending money and plenty of luxuries for the trip. Besides this, the members turned over to "rest awhile," the home across Lake Ponchartraine in the pine woods country, the sum of $5,000, in cash, to be used by the prominent women who conduct this home for working girls. All of this money was secured by selling votes for the most popular

PUBLIC SCHOOLS IN CITY OF DEMING. The 1906-7 term of the public schools of this city will begin on Tuesday, the 4th day of September. Prof. Dodderer, who finished the term last May, has been employed as principal, and Miss Lillian Gray assistant principal. The other members of the faculty are: Misses Grace Omer, Daisy Allen, Barbara Rathel, N. T. Bergen, Catherine Godden, Violet Bonham, Rose Connolly and Mrs. Alice Smith. George Chester informs the Headlight that the list of children of scholastic age is 900. Pretty good showing, and goes to show that in the years past this enrollment has not been attended to in the thorough manner that it has this year. Whenever George has a thing to do, he does it in a most satisfactory manner or not at all.

The new addition to the school building will not be completed, owing to failure in getting material in time, but it will soon be in shape and then Deming will be able to show a public school that has no rival in the territory. FINANCIAL OUTLOOK

Our foreign trade is on an exceedingly satisfactory basis, not only showing a steady expansion but running on lines that serve to strengthen our credit abroad and help settle foreign indebtedness, says Henry Clews, the New York banker.

The importations for July were also a record breaker, the total being $107,600,000, an increase of $23,100,000 over the same month last year.

With an assured large demand for cotton, wheat and other products, to say nothing of our growing shipments abroad of manufactured goods, we are in an eminently good position as regards foreign trade.

UNANSWERABLE ARGUMENT

Can New Mexico and Arizona have separate statehood? The powers that be have said "No," and they have said so for thirty years.

As representing in part the 5,000,000 people who form the great state of Illinois, I feel it my duty to protest against the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states into the Union.

SENSIBLE VIEW OF CASE

The democratic central committee did the right thing at the right time at its meeting last Thursday in Santa Fe in passing a strong resolution in favor of joint statehood.

That Arizona will vote against the measure, which is not yet a fact by any means, should have no bearing on the action of the citizens of this territory, unless it is to make them all the more earnest in their endeavors to roll up a large majority.

WEEKLY WEATHER BULLETIN

A few light and rather widely scattered showers occurred during the week, principally on the 16th and 18th. Many stations, however, were missed entirely, and rain is beginning to be needed.

The cloudiness resulted in moderate temperature and pleasant weather generally. At El Paso the average for the week was nearly 3 degrees a day below the normal, while at Santa Fe the average was about a degree a day above the normal.

Light seismic shocks still continue at Socorro and a shock on the 12th was felt as far southwest as Rosedale.

Gallup Republican: Right along with the sure advent of the north and south railroad, a great power plant will be built in this country, for it is practically settled that the long talked of plant to furnish electric energy will be put up at Gibson.

According to the Washington Times of recent date, it is not improbable that Henry G. Davis, former democratic vice presidential candidate, will be the democratic nominee for congress in the Second West Virginia district.

Sierra Advocate: The Albuquerque people all take pride in the fair, and all pull together to make it a success. The town is growing rapidly, and as it grows there are more people to put up for the fair and more to spend for the amusement and entertainment of the public.

ONE DAY IN SEVEN REQUIRED IN FRANCE

The French chamber of deputies has passed a bill providing for a compulsory day of rest weekly. The measure is designed to abolish the existing system of unremitting labor.

The necessity of periodic rest from labor is recognized universally from the economic point of view. The worker is strengthened by resting at least one day in seven. He is improved mentally, physically and socially thereby.

The late Senator Doolittle, in occupying the chair at the International Nonsectarian congress on Sunday Rest, held at the Columbian exposition, declared that in favoring a rest of one day in seven he was only recognizing what had been observed in all human history.

Law is the expression of public opinion, and the law has pronounced in France for a weekly day of rest. The compulsion is self-imposed by the French people, speaking through their representatives.

HIGH WAGES ARE MET BY HIGH PRICES

A bulletin just issued by the bureau of labor in Washington shows that the cost of living is higher than at any time since 1890, when the bureau first began to keep the record of retail prices of food.

The average prices of wheat, bread, butter, cheese, chickens, cornmeal, eggs, fresh fish, salt fish, milk, mutton and veal were higher in 1905 than in any year of the sixteen year period.

The advance of bacon since 1896 has been 43.5 per cent, Irish potatoes 43.1 per cent, eggs 41.8 per cent, dry or pickled pork 31.9 per cent, fresh pork 30 per cent, flour 29.3 per cent, cornmeal 28.5 per cent.

On a comparison of the relative advance of retail prices of food and wages in the manufacturing and mechanical industries the report says: "The increase in wages in many industries has exceeded the advance of food, but the increased cost of food has been felt more keenly by those on salaries, as the general tendency is to raise those employed on salaries less rapidly than those employed by the day or week, and whose services are contracted for at frequent intervals."

But to offset this the bureau, in a separate investigation, declares that wages were higher in 1905 than in 1904 by 1.6 per cent, and that this a little more than offsets the increased cost of food.

This report shows that in 1905 the average wages per hour in the principal manufacturing and mechanical industries of the country were 1.6 per cent higher than in 1904; that the average hours of labor per week remained the same as in 1904; and that 6.3 per cent more persons were employed in the establishments investigated.

The average of wages per hour in 1905 were 18.9 per cent higher, than the average for the ten year period from 1890 to 1899, inclusive. The number of employees was 32.6 per cent greater and the average hours of labor per week were 4.1 per cent lower.

WAS BRYAN EVER INTERRED IN FACT?

There are many persons who do not yet understand what they would call the recent violent disinterment of Mr. Bryan. Let us see! First he never was interred. He took a nap in the graveyard but was never dug under. The reasons why hearts that have been cold to him since 1896 have suddenly developed warmth are worth studying.

LONDONERS AS THE GUESTS Of the Boston Bean Eaters. Who Are One Hundred Years Younger.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 21.—Among the many national and foreign organizations to attend and participate in the grand military display of the Jamestown exposition, to be held on the shores of Hampton Roads in 1907 will be the Ancient and Honorable Artillery companies of London and Boston, two of the oldest and most honored organizations in the world.

Some years ago the Boston Artillery were entertained in London by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of that city and at that time the Britishers promised to return the visit as soon as practicable.

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery of London is the oldest organization of its kind in Great Britain, dating back to the year 1537, antedating the "Royal Yeomen," however, by only a few years.

Members are elected to the organization by the ballot of a committee known as the "Court of Assistants." The fees are two guineas annually, with an initiation fee of five pounds.

In its first years, the organization was composed of companies of artillery only, but in later years it has taken in several other branches of the service, retaining its original name, however.

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery of Boston was organized in 1637, just a hundred years later than the London Artillery, of which it is a model. This organization is composed of the descendants of commissioned officers of the Colonial and Revolutionary armies, and like the London Artillery was originally a purely military organization.

MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL FIRST TIME IN MANY WEEKS

Held Last Evening and Much Routine Business Transacted--City Engineer To Be Appointed--Other

MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE TO CITY

The first meeting of the city council to be held in several weeks took place last evening, a quorum being present.

Thank Andrews and Raynolds.

By unanimous vote the council extended to Delegate Andrews a vote of thanks for his good work in securing an appropriation for a public building in Albuquerque and for securing the passage of the bill giving to this city 640 acres of land on the mesa east of the city. Alderman Harrison fathered the resolution. On motion of Alderman Leonard, a vote of thanks was extended Hon. Joshua Raynolds for his latest gift, a town clock, to the city.

Want a Meridian Line.

Upon motion of Alderman Hanley a committee composed of Aldermen Hanley, Harrison and Neustadt was appointed to call upon Delegate Andrews and secure his aid in having the surveying party, now working in this section of New Mexico give this city a meridian line. The matter will be taken up with the directors of the government geological survey. The survey party is now working in the territory taking altitudes.

Property Owners Want Things.

A petition from property owners on West Lead avenue, asking for an extension of the water mains on that street of three blocks beyond their present terminus, were read and referred to the water committee.

Property owners in the vicinity of Seventh street and Roma avenue petitioned the council for a light at the corner, which was allowed, as was a petition for a light at the corner of Lead avenue and South Water street. The lights were ordered put in at once.

Dr. A. B. Henderson's Complaint.

Dr. A. B. Henderson, in a letter read to the council, made complaint against the Colorado Telephone company, alleging that they were charging him office rates for the phone in his residence. The company contends that his office is in his residence, therefore he should be liable for office rates. The matter was referred to the city attorney.

A petition from Walter street property owners was read at last night's meeting, in which they protested against the proposed change of the grade of that street between Railroad and Copper avenues, claiming that any such change would be useless and serve only to disturb the symmetry of the street. The petition was referred to the street committee for action.

Don't Want Grade Changed.

The report of the city officials were then made. City Treasurer Rogers' report showed a balance on hand August 1 of $14,938.84.

City Clerk Leo's report showed licenses collected for the month of July to a total of $2,227.25.

The report of Building Inspector Whitcomb showed eighteen building permits issued during July, representing a total building value of $24,000.

Report of City Officials.

Alderman Hanley stated that he understood that there were several cases of typhoid fever in the city and asked the city physician for his opinion as to the source of contamination. City Physician Carns reported that there were a number of cases in the city, and that he had submitted a sample of the water of some of the shallow wells that abound in the city, to a chemist at Las Vegas, and that this chemist had reported the finding of a large number of the typhoid bacilli therein. He also said that upon the return of the City Chemist, Westfall, he had submitted some of the same water to him for analysis and that this chemist had reported that the water was free of contamination.

City Physician Carns' Report.

Dr. Carns, when asked, stated that it was his opinion that these surface wells were the source of the trouble, and that it would be to the health interests of the city to close these shallow surface wells. He also advocated making a fight on the common house fly, which he said was a great carrier of typhoid bacilli, by screening as much as possible. He recommended a complete connecting up of the sewer system and a general cleaning up, especially of that ever present menace to health, the city trash.

LOOKS LIKE SPORT FOR ALBUQUERQUE

EL PASO BANKERS MAY COME HERE FOR TWO GAMES--PASS CITY SUNDAY GAMES--TEAMS GETTING BUSY.

It looks now like there would be base ball at Traction park next Saturday and Sunday. Manager Kavanaugh is in communication with the El Paso Bankers, and the prospects are good that the financiers will accept an invitation sent them to come here for two games, or if they can't come for two, come for one. The Bankers beat the Browns in the last game played at El Paso on July 4 by a score of 7 to 4. The Browns have strengthened some since then, and believe that they can turn the tables if they should meet again.

At El Paso Sunday, the Bankers beat an aggregation of the Pass City known as the Bolters, which are about the same class as the Albuquerque old timers, by a score of 10 to 8. Lane and Andrews were the battery for the Bankers, and Riordan and Ingersoll were on the firing line for the Bolters.

In a second game played at El Paso on Sunday, the Bankers defeated the Orogrande team by a score of 11 to 0. Knight did the pitching for the Bankers in this game.

Santa Fe is in a quandary what to do next Sunday. They want to play the Browns at the Capital, and they want

PREVENTION OF TYPHOID FEVER

Its Causes, and How to Avoid Contamination--A Timely Treatise By

CITY PHYSICIAN D. H. CARNS

In Line With His Report to the City Council Last Evening.

Inasmuch as the report of the city physician at last night's meeting of the city council dealt chiefly with typhoid fever, which, he added, was now prevalent in Belen, Corrallos and other nearby towns, a representative of The Evening Citizen secured from the city physician the following treatise:

To The Evening Citizen.

In reply to your request for my opinion as to the cause and prevention of typhoid fever for the benefit of your readers will say that typhoid fever has been proven beyond all doubt to be due to a specific micro-organism, known as the Bacillus Typhosus or Bacillus of Eberth, which is taken into the intestinal canal either in water or other fluids or with food. That bacillus comes only from the bowel discharges, the urine and the sputum (spit) of a person sick with typhoid fever; therefore a person who has typhoid fever must have swallowed some of the Bacillus Typhosus which came from the body of a person suffering from that disease.

Unfortunately when the Bacillus Typhosus passes out of the body of a typhoid patient in the bowel movements or in vomited matter or urine or sputum they do not die, but continue to live and multiply in this material almost as well as within the body. Cold, even freezing, does not kill them, but when frozen or when the weather is too cold, they lie dormant, and on being warmed up they at once begin to multiply and are as virulent as ever. This is why the disease is not as prevalent in the colder seasons of the year as during the warmer seasons. The most important methods of conveying this disease are through the medium of water and the common house fly. Whenever the discharges from the bowels are deposited in a common privy vault or in a sewer the eventual destination of the liquid elements is running water, either upon the surface or below the surface of the ground and this running water, whether surface or sub-surface water, not only could, but often does carry the germs to wells or other sources of water supply, which then becomes infected. If the excrement of a typhoid fever patient be thrown upon the surface of the ground or in an open ditch without being disinfected, the bacilli are often carried by the surface water into the wells and streams in the vicinity and even at a considerable distance.

Whenever the bowel movements or vomited matter or urine or sputum of a person sick with typhoid fever are left exposed without being disinfected flies will get at them and very greatly increase the danger of spreading the disease. It has been demonstrated to a certainty that flies do pick up the bacilli on their feet, and not only deposit them on the food of people living in the vicinity, but upon the manure piles and other accommodations of stables, when they breed rapidly and thus spread the infection.

To prevent the spread of typhoid fever it is necessary to prevent the typhoid bacilli being conveyed from one person to another; this would not be difficult if the excrement of all persons sick with that disease were thoroughly disinfected. The trouble, however, is not so much with those who are very sick, for they are usually looked after by the physician, but with the mild or irregular cases, many of whom do not employ physicians, or go to bed, and no attention is given to disinfection. Then, too, a considerable number of the non-typical cases are not recognized as typhoid, and the result is that the stools and other excrement are not disinfected and the health of the community is further menaced.

The first essential thing to do, in preventing the spread of typhoid fever and in stamping out the disease in a community is to insist that each and every case of typhoid fever be reported to the health officer, and also, that every suspicious case be reported as suspicion of typhoid. The reason for this, is that by having complete reports, the Board of Health will not only know the full extent of the prevalence of the disease but they will know just what localities are most affected and they will then be better able to trace the infection to its original source and apply the remedy.

When all cases are not reported, the Board of Health is in the dark as to what localities are most infected and the community is thereby not only exposed to an unnecessary spread of the disease, but an unnecessary expense in discovering and removing the cause.

Second: Insist upon municipal and household cleanliness; do not allow any filthy privy vaults to be maintained; keep all garbage in covered cans; clean and disinfect and keep clean all surface or dry earth privies; allow no other accumulations of filth to gather, and disinfect with the free use of quick lime, or other from which garbage, manure or other filth has been removed. All such places are not only unnecessary, but are dirty and attract and breed flies and are all liable to become infected with the typhoid bacilli and thus to infect the water, and afford an easy opportunity for flies to carry the infection into the houses.

Third: See that your water supply is pure; if there is any doubt about a do not use it for any ordinary purposes or for drinking until it has been thoroughly boiled; don't use ditch water for any purposes without boiling.

Fourth: Protect your house, especially the kitchen and dining room from flies.

Fifth: See that all bowel movements, vomited material, sputum (spit) and urine are thoroughly disinfected immediately after being voided from the body of typhoid cases, or those suspicious of typhoid; and also see that all bedding and all articles of clothing worn by the patient are also thoroughly disinfected.

BOND ELECTION WAS NOT LEGAL

Say the Lawyers Representing N. W. Harris & Co., Who Refuse Bond Issue.

WILL HOLD SPECIAL ELECTION

Sometime in October For Purpose of Having Issue Made Legal.

That Albuquerque's new city building, which was to be the pride of every taxpayer in the city limits, may not be built for some time to come despite the fact that the drawings and plans for the building have been made and accepted, and that the site stands ready to be built upon, and despite the additional fact that the city council, with a certified check in its treasury from the firm of N. W. Harris & Co., to whom they thought the $30,000 bond issue had been everlastingly sold, was in the midst of building plans, is now not only possible but very probable.

All of which was made manifest last evening at the meeting of the city council when City Attorney Hickey read a letter from the law firm representing N. W. Harris & Co., who were the prospective purchasers of the bond issue, in which the lawyers said they were of the opinion that the bond issue was illegal, inasmuch as they stated that the law called for a vote of two-thirds of all taxpayers, real or personal, entitled to vote on the question, to carry the proposition and make it legal, and they further contended that this had not been done, winding up with a request for the return of the $1,000 certified check sent the city council as a guarantee of good faith.

Speaking of the matter, City Attorney Hickey said that Harris & Co. had purchased the bond issue subject to the approval of their counsel, and as their counsel thought the issue was illegal, the sale was off as far as this firm was concerned.

The city's contention that two-thirds of those voting had voted for the issue did not meet with the approval of Harris & Co.'s lawyers, as they maintained the law called for a vote of two-thirds of the legal taxpayers entitled to vote on the question, and they pointed out the fact that the poll books showed a total of some 1,170 legal voters, whereas only about 550 legal voters had voted for the bond issue, thus making it only a half vote of the total number of taxpayers, instead of the required two-thirds.

Attorney Hickey stated that in all probability a special election would be called for some time in October for the purpose of voting on the bond issue, at which time a special effort would be made to get out the entire number of taxpayers and those entitled to vote on the question, in order to make the issue, should it carry again, legal beyond doubt. There is no question but what the people as a whole want the new city hall, and that the bonds can easily be placed when the correct legal form is compiled with, is an assured fact, so that after all it means but a few months delay in the erection of the new city building.

WILSON SUES FARMER TO RECOVER $600

THE DOCTOR ALLEGES HE OVER-PAID THE CONTRACTOR FOR BUILDING HOUSE.

Edgar N. Wilson vs. Henry J. Farmer is the title of a suit filed at the Bernalillo county court house today by Attorney R. W. Bryan. The action is brought to recover $600, which the plaintiff alleges is due him from the defendant. Farmer, who is a contractor, built some houses for Wilson and when the work was finished Wilson paid the defendant in full for the contract. Later he found that Farmer had not paid $600 worth of lumber that was used in building the houses.

HARD LUCK TALES FROM POLICE COURT

Dan Gallegos, the Baseball Fighter, Fined $10 For Assaulting Salazar.

KICKED MAN WHEN DOWN

Hook Stole Chickens--Lake Wanted to Fight--Mastas Just a Plain Drunk.

Because he had not yet recovered his good humor, which he lost in Las Vegas Sunday, when Roy Corhan shielded rocks at him, Dan Gallegos, the native pitcher for the Albuquerque Browns, was in police court this morning to answer to another charge of fighting and disturbing the peace.

Last evening in Toti & Gradi's saloon, Gallegos took on a cargo of liquid refreshments, after which he engaged in a fist encounter with Felix Salazar, a native from the timbers. He landed a deep drop on Salazar's nose, followed this with an out curve on his left optic and when Salazar went to the floor for the count, imagined that he was playing foot ball instead of base ball, and proceeded to kick Salazar several times, until bystanders interfered.

Judge Crawford gave Dan a severe lecture on the unprincipled ethics of "kicking a man when he is down," and wound up by fining Gallegos $10, letting Salazar down with a $5 fine. Gallegos made an x-raise, and went his way, a sadder but wiser ball player.

Says He Stole Chickens.

Mrs. Pearl Dampferwolf, residing on Baca avenue, appeared before Police Judge Crawford this morning, accompanied by her daughter, and swore to a warrant charging one Mr. Hook, who resides at 425 Baca avenue, with purloining chickens from her hen coop. She stated that while down town Hook came to her house, where only her daughter was present. The daughter assured him they were not. Hook went on a tour in investigation in the hen house, and presently emerged with four plump hens. These he took home, the daughter said, and then returned and secured three more and to make it a good haul, returned the third time and got several more. As the complaining witness did not know Hook's full name, a John Doe warrant was issued for him and he will be given a hearing tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Lake Gets Thirty Days.

Charles Lake, a former employee of Trimble's Red barn, was in court this morning charged with being drunk and creating a disturbance by trying to fight. He admitted being drunk, and as witnesses were present to testify that he had attempted to assault a fellow workman Judge Crawford sent him to the county jail for thirty days.

Leon Had a Jag.

Leon Mastas, charged with being drunk and disorderly, positively denied that he was drunk, but cheerfully admitted that he had been disorderly. When Judge Crawford informed him that he was to be disorderly when sober was a much more heinous offense than being disorderly when drunk, Mastas immediately informed His Honor that he was not disorderly, but drunk. He was given five days.

Fined for Shooting.

A small boy with a .22 rifle was in police court yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock for promiscuously discharging his rifle within the city limits. Passersby were in imminent danger, they stated, of being hit by some of the stray bullets. The boy was given a severe lecture by Judge Crawford and fined $10 besides. There have been numerous complaints made of boys shooting with pistols and rifles in the city limits and the police are determined to put a stop to the nuisance.

WM. BRYAN'S BIG FIGHT ON SULLIVAN IN ILLINOIS

STORY OF THE TWO-YEAR ROW WHICH HAS MOVED WILLIAM JENNINGS TO DEMAND THE NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN'S RESIGNATION AND TO YELL FRAUD I BASS VOIL TONES—ILLINOIS DEMOCRACY TORN TO TATTERS AND WILL FIGHT IT OUT IN CONVENTION NEXT WEEK.

"Bryan's letter is presumptuous. When he becomes the nominee for the presidency, and not before, he can name the national committee. And when that time comes I will not be anxious to labor in the vineyard."

ROBERT C. SULLIVAN, Member National Democratic Committee

Chicago, August 21.—"It is a fight between Mr. Bryan and Sullivan," says Sullivan's enemy.

"It is a fight between two discredited democrats who are using Bryan's influence to further their own ends, and the regular democratic organization," says Sullivan and his friends.

There is the squabble in the Illinois democracy in a nutshell. It will be fought to a finish at the coming state convention in Peoria.

The fight which has torn the democratic party in Illinois into tatters and caused William Jennings Bryan to write about as hot a letter as he knew how to demand the resignation of Roger C. Sullivan from the democratic national committee began at the Springfield convention in 1904.

That was a convention to be remembered. Even then there were two factions in the party. One was led by John P. Hopkins and Roger C. Sullivan, who had charge of the state machine. The other was headed by Millard Fillmore Dunlap and Owen P. Thompson of Jacksonville. Both factions packed the convention, both factions were bound to win no matter how they did it.

But the Hopkins-Sullivan faction had charge of the machine and they were victorious. They named their delegates to the national convention and they endorsed Hearst for the presidential nomination. Not that the machine wanted Hearst nominated but because they saw he had no chance and they wanted "harmony" in the party.

And so two delegations went to the St. Louis convention. One of them was the regular delegation headed by Hopkins and Sullivan, pledged to Hearst, the other was a contesting delegation headed by Dunlap and Thompson, bound to Bryan.

The contest was taken before a sub-committee of national committee and there the contestants were turned down. Then it went before the entire committee and was again turned down. The convention's committee on credentials, with but one opposing vote, decided that the contestants had no standing in the convention. Some time after the hearing before this committee closed, Bryan secured the proxy of the Nebraska member of the committee and, before the caucus, made a minority report demanding the unseating of 20 of the regular delegates and substituting a like number of the contestants.

It was then that Bryan made his famous speech, lasting an hour and a half, in which he said, "The evidence shows that no band of train robbers ever more deliberately planned to rob a train than these men planned to rob the democratic voters of Illinois."

But in spite of Bryan's impassioned speech the convention upheld the regular delegates by a vote of 647 to 299. Illinois delegation thereupon elected Roger C. Sullivan national committeeman by a vote of 49 to 5. A year ago there was organized in Illinois the democratic Majority Rule league. It is composed of the enemies of Sullivan and its president is Millard Fillmore Dunlap, one of the contesting delegation in 1904, a boyhood friend of Bryan and an inveterate enemy of Sullivan. Its secretary is Theodore Nelson for 12 years secretary of the Illinois state committee.

"It is a fight between Bryan and Sullivan," said Nelson. "At the Springfield convention Hopkins and Sullivan packed the hall with Chicago toughs who surrounded Chairman Quinn, their tool, and allowed him to do things as he pleased. He gavelled through every motion made by the Hopkins-Sullivan gang and ignored everything else. There was not a roll call during the convention and everything was done as the gang pleased."

Sullivan and his friends resent what they call the unwarranted interference of Bryan, and in a purely local dispute.

"I do not concede, even to Mr. Bryan, the right to question my democracy or my membership in the national committee," says Sullivan.

ROGER C. SULLIVAN, NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN FOR ILLINOIS.

This is a fight between Roger Sullivan and Wm. Jennings Bryan. There is no question as to the result. Candidates for congress, the general assembly and county offices in the state understand that if Sullivan again controls the machinery of the state and dictates the party management there will be no chance of their election."

THEODORE NELSON, Secretary Democratic Majority Rule League.

Judgement as to my democracy rests with the democrats in the district where I live. My title membership in the national committee has been conferred and confirmed by a higher party authority than Mr. Bryan. I hold that office by virtue of the same authority that has twice made Mr. Bryan a candidate for president—the authority of the national democratic convention.

"The Illinois delegation was confirmed by the delegates to the convention by an overwhelming majority. If Mr. Bryan really maintains that the delegates who elected the national committeeman had no rights to delegates, what does he mean by it? Does he deny the authority of the national convention? I doubt it."

"The Illinois delegation as seated by the national convention, elected me national committeeman by a vote of 49 to 5. Mr. Bryan spoke for the seating of only 20 of the contestants. If they had been seated against me, I would still have been elected by a vote of 29 to 25.

"The whole matter goes back to the desire of Dunlap and Thompson to gain control of the party in Illinois. They have misinformed Mr. Bryan. They have told him untruths in order to secure his influence on their side. Mr. Bryan does not understand the situation, he does not know the truth of the matter. Dunlap is his boyhood friend, and in Bryan's first campaign for the presidency it was Dunlap who advanced money for Bryan's personal expenses. Of course he is supporting Dunlap now and believing him. I don't blame him. I'd be a damn bad friend if he did not."

The Dunlap faction will demand the endorsement of Bryan and the condemnation of Sullivan. Both sides are confident of victory.

ANOTHER M' FALL LETTER

Telling His Interesting Trip Through Central America on Hurricane Deck OF THE PLODDING MULE FASTEST BEAST OF BURDEN

In Part of World Nature Works 365 Days in Year But Man Works Not At All.

By Leander McFall.

Seguatepeque, Honduras, Aug. 11.—At last we feel that we may lay claim to the title of explorers. If five days of rowing and swimming and steep mountain climbing in and about Lake Yojoa does not entitle us to this honor, then Stanley and Livingstone and others who have strayed into tropical jungles do not properly belong to that class.

Lake Yojoa is a wonderful body of water about twenty-two miles in length and eight miles wide. It is surrounded on all sides except a narrow portion on the south by the highest mountains in the country. The lake apparently occupies the crater of an extinct volcano, for it has no shore line save the narrow strip mentioned on the southern end. The mountains rise abruptly from the water's edge, and there are covered with dense forests and heavy underbrush. For miles along three sides of the lake not a single landing can be found. The altitude of the surface is 2,250 feet above sea level, and the mountains rise almost straight up 4,000 and 5,000 feet higher, their summits in the early morning and evening being always above the clouds.

We dismissed the moko with our mules on the north shore and took a dugout and started for a six-mile sail to El Cacao, a little point of land extending out in the lake, where we were assured shelter and food would be found. I spoke of sailing over, and this is what we actually attempted. Our sail was a large cotton umbrella and as the wind was favoring for a time, we made excellent progress, although the dugout required very careful handling. The wind shifted and began to blow pretty hard after we got far out on the lake. The waves grew larger and larger and the dugout rocked perilously.

Things looked mighty dark for us, and we turned shoreward, hoping to find some sheltered cove where we might lie until the storm blew over. The rain fell heavily and we were getting soaked. My companion attempted to put on his poncho, and foolishly stood up in the stern to do it. I was paddling for dear life, trying to dodge the big waves which threatened to swamp us, and knew nothing of what he was doing until I heard a shriek and a heavy splash. The dugout sprang forward and almost upset, and then I turned to see what was the matter. The Scotchman was swimming for dear life about fifty feet away, and I was sailing about twice as fast as he could swim. I called for some hard back pedaling on my part, and that was really all that I could do. With the heavy sea, the strong wind and the peculiar type of craft, to have attempted to turn about would have been suicidal. So I held the tub as nearly stationary as I could until the Scotchman grabbed the stern. He could not climb aboard, and I could not help him, so we just drifted into a sheltered place, where he climbed out on the rocks and then we started off again.

It wasn't half an hour before he had a chill, followed by a high fever. The dreaded calentura had him for sure. We had a dozen remedies for it, but we could not get at one of them just then. We finally espied a narrow channel winding shoreward through giant lilies and aquatic plants and determined to follow so as to get out of the reach of the waves. The same evening we made a landing as quickly as possible.

The native and his wife helped us to the house and assisted in disrobing the sick man. He was doped with whisky and quinine and wrapped in blankets close to a fire. In a little while the perspiration streamed off him and then he fell asleep. The accommodations here were miserable. The house was open on all four sides and there was absolutely nothing to eat in the place; so I hired the native to put up in his canoe and take us over to El Cacao as soon as the wind went down. We reached there about 4 in the afternoon, my companion having braced up considerably under my doping.

A motley crew of a dozen full-grown natives and numberless children, most of the latter naked, met us at the landing. We dismissed our boatman and moved our belongings up to the house. I've heard something about the kind of welcome mothers-in-law usually get when they go visiting the new family, and I was struck with the idea that it was about what we were getting here. The same common impulse apparently inspired their actions, and that was not to lift a hand to help us unload. I got out the rifles, hammocks, blankets and other things, and we lugged them up to the house. Calling for the sailors, I invited the Indians to come and help. I had a letter to him from the governor. She took the letter and read it slowly.

Then you should have seen the transformation which took place instantly. It was Juan this, Pedro that; Jesus, take the blankets, Francisco attend the seniors, until every one of the swarthy loafers was on a keen jump and falling over himself to obey commands. Zelaya was up country on a cattle deal and was not expected back for several weeks. We regretted this, as he had been educated in the states, and his counsel upon securing much valuable information from him. Later on we got over our disappointment at not meeting him when we realized how little he had profited by his sojourn in civilized lands. The Zelaya hacienda is located on a small quebrada, or brook, which flows from a flat-topped mountain into the lake. In front the land is flat, extending in a narrow strip out into the water, while back of the house it rises gradually to where the mountain intersects. Here is one of the largest cocoa plantations in the republic.

Mr. Zelaya was not much taken with the American style of architecture, or perhaps he is too patriotic to introduce it, for he has adopted the mud but which is so common everywhere down here, with earth floor and thatched roof. He evidently did not become attached to the spring mattresses, for all the beds in this house are rawhide. We found, also, more than the usual assortment of fleas, flies and mosquitoes, none of which, during our stay, observed the eight-hour schedule while working on us. The cuisine was one of deadly sameness, if we left to the cook. Her bump of imaginativeness had evidently been stunted in her youth, for she furnished a diet of tortillas, frioles and plantains three times a day while we remained. It was only when we invaded the sacred precincts of the kitchen with game and fish that we effected a change, and we usually performed the cooking ourselves. The lake teemed with wild fowl of every description. The fishing at the mouth of the creek was quite good. We caught large strings of a species of sunfish which were delicious when fried.

After dinner we took stock of our surroundings. The sleeping room was also the dining room, the sitting room and the living room, and for a part of the time was freely occupied by the pigs and chickens. It was about twelve in the afternoon, the first night of the twenty people occupied it. As the guests of honor, we were placed on cots near the door, in order to get the breeze, but I have always inclined to the belief that this was a mean native trick, and that we were set up as a bait for the mosquitoes, which literally others slept on un molested. The fleas are everywhere, but this is the first place the mosquitoes have attacked us.

The first morning after our arrival we went down to take a swim in the lake, and we then examined our nipped hands. It was evident that I had suffered far more severely than my companion, and I questioned why. The fleas and ticks seemed to have left him almost unmolested, while I was blighted to such an extent that I could never have passed quarantine. We are in the habit of using a number of ticks crawled up on his legs and then, as if dissatisfied with the surroundings, slid off him and made for me, where they would have inserted their drills if I had not brushed them off. I was mystified until he explained that he had been using sulphur and brown sugar twice a week, and bugs don't like brimstone. I immediately began a course of sulphur treatments and am pleased with the results.

We toured the lake with our dugout, using an improvised sail made of brown paper. It was a visit to every corner of it save one, and then our native positively refused to go, saying that the lake emptied into a great river which flowed through a deep black cave, and that the water rushed through with such force that no boat could escape. This happened on the last day of our visit, and I shall always regret that I did not have an opportunity of verifying this story.

On the last day, about 1 o'clock, we were sailing close to shore, when our boatman called attention to a large, brown-colored form stretched out on a smooth rock a few feet above the water. It was an alligator, and he looked fully twenty feet in length. I coaxed the native to turn the canoe around so that I could try a shot. He didn't like the scheme, but finally swung around so that he could take aim without upsetting the craft. The 30-20 looked pretty small alongside the big game, but I took as careful aim as I could in a craft which the fright of the boatman kept dancing, and fired. The steel-tipped bullet struck just between and back of the eyes and plowed a white furrow an inch wide clear down the center of the back. With a roar like a mad bull the alligator rushed for the lake, into which he plunged with a resounding splash, sending the water fifteen feet in the air. We were not there when he hit. The move that boatman made was the quickest in his life, and the wonder is that he did not upset us. He did not stop paddling until we were fully a mile away. While the lake is said to be full of alligators, we never got another shot at one during our stay.

This is surely the place for the ornithologist. The varieties of bird life are infinite, and one never tires of admiring the gorgeous plumage. We saw hundreds of egrets, whose beautiful plumes are so much prized by the dear, kind ladies up north that the species is almost extinct in our own country. Flamingos, swans of great size, gulls, geese, ducks, fish-hawks, our own blue kingfisher and many other species were here in great numbers.

On the afternoon of the second day a party of us climbed a steep mountain in search of the red deer which is said to be common in this locality. We threw ourselves on the ground to scare them up for us, but by the time we had reached the hunting grounds the poorly-fed dogs had enough and refused to go into the brush. The climb was a most tiresome one, and when we reached the summit we threw ourselves on the ground and suggested that our friends drive the deer up to us. I had so little faith in the success of the expedition that I stood my rifle up against a tree and laid down about ten feet from it. We had been resting about half an hour when I heard a slight rustling in the bushes near us. We never made a sound, and presently a beautiful doe advanced into the opening. She did not see us for some little time, and we had plenty of opportunity to admire her graceful form. Finally she turned her pretty head and for an instant seemed actually paralyzed with fright. It was for an instant only, and then with one great spring she disappeared in the thick jungle. I was really glad the rifle was not handy, for it would have been a shame to have destroyed such a lovely creature.

We landed in Seguatepeque a very tired pair of gringos. We had been on half rations all day, and the way had been long and weary. We experienced some difficulty in finding a place to stay, the accommodations being taxed by a number of pack trains going to the capital. Our good fortune stayed with us, though, and brought us into the company of a generous and hospitable Englishman, who annexed us, bag and baggage, and escorted us to his villa on the hill above the town. Here, under wide porches, we were assigned for two days, enjoying many of the comforts of civilization and eating our fill of good things.

It is dawn upon me, as I view the never-ceasing abundance which nature pours forth in this land, that here lies the secret of the lack of ambition, the absolute, don't-care-a-cuss for tomorrow disposition of these people. Where you burn off a little brush and punch holes in the ashes with a stick and then insert a few kernels of corn in the hole, covering it with your toe and harvest two or three crops a year, where sugar cane never has to be replanted; where cotton grows on a tree; where the barks of trees make the blankets and bread goods on others; where nature is just overabundantly hustling three hundred and sixty-five and a quarter days out of every year, without asking for a single holiday—what's the use of working? These natives were born with the loafing fever, and, somehow, you can't blame them, after all. Nobody works but nature in this country, and she seems to enjoy it.

We shall pass tomorrow through the scenes of an ancient civilization, which existed here before Nero and his fiddle butted into history. Isn't it strange that the place selected by this vanished people should be the only desert spot in this republic? Will someone tell me, please, why all the real ancient people, whoever inhabited this continent and whose ruins give us an intelligible idea of what they did for a living, almost always located in the rainless regions? Look at the ruins in Arizona, in New Mexico, Mexico, Chile and

RAILROAD TOPICS

A large number of railroad dignitaries from both the Denver & Rio Grande and the Southern Pacific were in Denning giving evidence in the suit that has been on for more than a year past between these two giant corporations about the proposed roads that both companies want to build out of the Durango, Colo., coal fields to some point this way, probably Deming. The evidence was taken before a master in chancery. Just what the outcome will be of course no one can say yet.

ACTIVITY IS GREAT IN KANSAS COAL TRADE
Hundreds and hundreds of loaded coal cars passed through Leavenworth, Kas., last week. The cars have been moving on the various railroads for the past month. This coal is destined for different buyers in Missouri, western Kansas and other nearby states that come under the jurisdiction of the Southwestern Coal Operators' association, and the reason given for the immense quantities being shipped now is that the summer coal rate annually established by the railroads is in effect and will continue so until September 1.

LOW RAILROAD RATES FOR BRYAN'S WELCOME
Something of a novelty in excursions is embodied in the order issued by the Pennsylvania Railroad company to its ticket agents, conductors and ticket sellers, authorizing them to sell special round-trip tickets from all points along the company's lines to New York City in honor of the homecoming of William Jennings Bryan. These tickets will be sold for one first class fare plus $2 for the round trip. Mr. Bryan is expected to arrive on August 30. Special tickets will be sold and are good leaving New York city not earlier than August 30 and not later than September 2.

METAL TELEGRAPH POLES TO SUBSTITUTE WOOD
Various railroads throughout the United States and Mexico are preparing to experiment with a metal telegraph pole, which, they believe, will prove a decided improvement in so far as durability is concerned over the wooden poles now in use. The difference in cost between a metal and a wooden pole is not as great as it was made up by the additional durability of the former. A line equipped with metal poles would be practically permanent, it is claimed, and would require but little expense to keep it in good repair. Scarcity of timber suitable for telegraph poles is fast making its purchase prohibitive. Thus another incentive is offered for the proposed experiments. There is some talk, too, of extending the metal poles to telephone lines.

RAILWAYS CHANGE FRONT ON REDUCED RATES
While the railroad managements in Colorado are considering and have already granted some welcome concessions in the matter of freight and passenger rates in different directions from this traffic center, it may have escaped the attention of the average reader that the movement is general, says the Denver News. The great Pennsylvania system recently reduced its passenger charges to an average of 2.5 cents per mile. The New Haven & Hartford system, covering much of thickly settled New England, dropped to a 2-cent-per-mile basis, while such important commonwealths as Ohio, Wisconsin, Michigan and Texas legislated on the subject. In fact, readjustment is in the air, and before 1906 passes into history the more enterprising of the railway managements will have shown that reasonable concession creates business and assures the continuance of phenomenally high profits.

KANSAS LOOMING UP AS FRUIT PRODUCER

PEACH CROP TOO GREAT TO HANDLE AND LARGE QUANTITIES OF THIS DELICIOUS FRUIT IS BEING FED TO STOCK.

Nearly 500 crates of peaches, apples, tomatoes and cantaloupes were shipped from Leavenworth, Kas., last Thursday night by J. C. Jones, who represents the interests of the members of the Leavenworth Fruit Growers' association, who control the many truck gardens near the edge of that city, says the Topeka Journal.

This fruit was contributed from the various truck farms which comprise the association, to the smaller markets of Colorado, western Kansas, Wyoming and Nebraska. Up to last week the fruit growers were shipping their produce to the market at Denver, but the home stuff from Colorado has killed the possibilities of selling the stuff from this part of the country, as far as that market is concerned, for the rest of the season. But the smaller markets around Denver are still profitable and will remain so.

"Our shipments will be light now until Monday," said Mr. Jones last night, "as we can not ship and face the danger of having our fruit laying over Sunday."

When asked as to the nature of the present peach crop Jones said:

"The late peach crop is a fairly good one, considering the damage done to it by the recent storm, which caused the peaches to fall to the ground before ripening. Over one-fourth of the peaches are going to waste, and what is not being devastated by worms. We are feeding a good many of them to our stock. Only about one-third of the crop can be shipped and that will bring us considerable profit, for we can secure better prices from the western markets than what the home buyers will pay."

The newly formed association of local truck farmers and their average daily shipments of their products to the western markets has attracted the attention of truck farmers throughout the state, and Mr. Jones has been overwhelmed with letters recently desiring him to represent them in securing profitable markets in which they can dispose of their bumper crops of peaches and other fruit. "We have enough trouble in disposing of our own stuff without worrying over other fruit," said Jones.

The prospect of a good apple crop is very favorable. Those that are now being shipped are the early specimens of all types. The muskmelon season is becoming better. It will be at its height within two or three weeks. The grape season is nearing maturity also.

The Prison Orchard.
Six hundred bushels of peaches have already been secured from the state prison farm and Warden Hasckel expects to gather this much more before many weeks. The farm at the state prison has supplied considerable quantities for the place this year, surpassing the output of last year. A great amount of vegetables is fed to the prisoners and they are now a contented lot of men through the fact that the warden has been generous to them. Seven hundred gallons of the crop of peaches have been canned and will be used during the winter months. The officers of the institution have each been given one and one-half bushels. A large amount of peaches is also being dried.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

Department of the Interior, Land Office at Santa Fe, New Mexico, July 17, 1906.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the probate clerk at Albuquerque, New Mexico, on September 5, 1906, viz.:

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz.:

Pilar Trujillo, Francisco Olgun, Darío Gutierrez and Juan Apodaca, all of Carpenter, New Mexico.

MANUEL R. OTERO, Register.

Sumner Diarrhoea in Children.
During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stockland, pastor of the first M. E. church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by all druggists.

Galveston's Sea Wall makes life now as safe in that city as on the higher uplands. E. W. Goodloe, who resides on Dutton street, in Waco, Tex., needs no sea wall for safety. He writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption the past five years and it keeps me well and safe. Before that time I had a cough which for years had been growing worse. Now it's gone." Cures chronic coughs, in a gripe, croup, whooping cough and prevents pneumonia. Pleasant to take. Every bottle guaranteed at all druggists. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Mr. Larkin says that Mr. Cheatnam is not a heavy weight he used to be, having lost about fifteen pounds since leaving Albuquerque.

In a letter received from A. G. O. Cooke, secretary of the Horabin-McGaffey company, at Thoreau, the writer states that the item appearing in a morning paper relative to a foot race between Karl Rosecrans and a Navajo Indian at Thoreau some time ago, in which it was said the Indian won, was an error.

Inasmuch as Mr. Rosecrans was the winner. An effort is being made to have those two race here in September during the fair.

Both are said to be exceptionally fast foot racers and as a wager for $500 is already in between them. It is more than likely that the fair association will prevail upon them to pull off the race here during the fair.

DUST IN THE ATMOSPHERE

By Virginia Stanley Lee. Dust has its agreeable and disagreeable features.

When the wind blows on a dry day in summer time we are apt to say "How dusty it is!" and complain about it, and hurry home and drown our sorrows in a tub.

But it is always dusty; invariably, incessantly dusty. Partly open a sun-exposed door or window in an otherwise dark room and watch the millions of dust particles that you can see floating around every which way in the path of the sun's ray, and you will see that the atmosphere is filled with dust.

Then there are millions of dust particles that you cannot see at all without a microscope.

Since there is so much dust it does not seem strange that we, our clothes and our homes need frequent laundering.

If all the dust were to be gathered and other surfaces we would be happier, a healthier race, and we would not have to be so painstaking in the selection of soaps and toilet preparations and creams, most of which contain some sort of grease which is soap under another name.

The prevalence of dust and dirt makes the necessity of that laborious and unpleasant task—housecleaning—and the dust about a house doesn't come in from the outside altogether; the carpets wear out, even the furniture, and each little particle that sweeps off floors, rugs and carpets becomes dust, and after several months these worn out, infestational pieces get so begrimed into the house, so swept into cracks, crevices and other pieces that the more you sweep and "dust," the more you shake up these little particles; in fact you just stir them from one place to another, and it is going to take lots of soap and water and borax to properly cleanse the house and eliminate this germ-conveying dust.

You have noticed the dust balls or feathers and considered how light they were, and how more or less firmly woven together. These are about the nicest germ nests that were ever invented, and every house each spring has several millions of these and these are what make the spring and fall housecleaning such a bugbear, so distressing to all people, and yet so absolutely necessary.

Of course there is no way out of it—the house must be thoroughly renovated—it must be cleaned from start to finish; for sanitary reasons as well as for the look of it, and it will be found that borax water will be of great service for mopping and for cleansing all woodwork and thoroughly removing every bit of dust, and brightening, not injuring the article.

Of course this is particularly so during housecleaning time, but if borax water is used for wiping off dirt and dust throughout the year it will not only remove dust and dirt, but its antiseptic qualities will eliminate the germs and make the place sanitary and clean.

Frequent sponging and wiping of floors, woodwork, rugs and furniture will save heaps of time and labor in the spring and fall. Just try the sponging and moistened cloth wiping in place of constant dusting and see if it isn't easier and if the house isn't more wholesome.

TUCUMCARI IS NOW INCORPORATED AND HAS FULL TOWN GOVERNMENT, ALL BEING SATISFIED, EVEN INCLUDING THOSE WHO VOTED "NO."

At the election held at the court house in this city on the 11th day of August for the purpose of determining whether or not the town should be incorporated, a majority of the qualified voters decided that the question should be decided in the affirmative, the vote standing 65 for and 45 against.

The question was hotly contested as there were several factions interested on both sides of the question, but since the people have recorded their majority in favor of the project, all seem satisfied with the result and content to do what they can toward the upbuilding of the town of Tucumcari as a district municipality.

John J. Pace, H. H. Hargis, Robert S. Coulter, Henry Neafus and Francisco Gutierrez were elected trustees and John M. Lawson as marshal.

Thursday evening the board of trustees met and organized by electing John J. Pace, chairman and Robert S. Coulter, clerk, after which the new board discussed matters of general interest to the town and took a brief survey of the most important things to be done at the earliest possible moment.

Before adjourning Earl George was appointed treasurer and C. C. Davidson city attorney.

The board will meet again at 2 o'clock p. m., on the 24th day of this month.—Tucumcari News.
