The Peace Conference is About to Fizzle Out—The Worst May Be Coming.

OUTLOOK

IS DARK

EVERY EVIDENCE THAT PEACE CONFERENCE WILL AVAIL NOTHING.

BATTLE WILL FOLLOW

If the Russians Do Not Make Terms Readily, The Japanese Will Begin an Attack on the Army of Their Enemy and the Worst of the War May Follow.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 12.—The meeting of the peace conference this morning lasted little more than an hour. The Russian reply was delivered by M. Witte, and the meeting was adjourned to give Baron Komura and his colleagues an opportunity to examine the document. M. Witte indicated courteously that he would expect the same expedition in the Japanese response as had been observed in the preparation of the Russian reply, and this was readily assented to. The Russian and Japanese envoys both remained at the navy yard.

The Japanese plenipotentiaries have agreed to make their response to the Russian reply at 3 o'clock this afternoon or some time tomorrow. The Associated Press is in position to state that the Japanese believe the Russians have been laying foundation for the claim that if the possibility of a rupture comes, it will have been due to the attitude of the Japanese, and they have decided in case of break in the negotiations to take steps to disprove any such claim.

So pessimistic is the feeling among those in the conference on both sides that the prediction was made that if a meeting should be held this afternoon it might be the last, and the history of the conference would be abruptly concluded today.

If negotiations are broken off Oyama will immediately give battle to Linvitch. The Associated Press has learned from an unimpeachable source that Oyama's plans were perfected, his army ready and only awaits the signal that a rupture has occurred, to launch his attack.

The Russian reply to the Japanese terms declines all discussion upon the two points of indemnity and the cession of Sakhalin Island. Others it accepts, and still others it accepts conditionally. It sets forth reasons and arguments for the decision reached in each case. The argument against the payment of indemnity or cession of territory is based on the theory that Russia is not responsible for the war, and that as Russia is still prepared to continue the struggle and has sought this meeting not as a vanquished country begging for terms, but because she really desired peace if honorable peace is possible, therefore she could neither agree to foot the Japanese bill for war expenses nor cede any territory.

May Come to Sudden End. St. Petersburg, Aug. 12.—Dispatches from Portsmouth make it clear that unless there is a very substantial abatement of the demands of the Japanese plenipotentiaries, which is unlikely, the peace conference will come to a sudden end. The two nations are so wide apart that all hope of agreement is practically abandoned here. It is considered probable that the next session of the conference will end in final adjournment.

and M. Witte may sail for Europe very shortly.

IN THE SOCIAL WORLD.

Misses Evelyn Snyder and Phyllis Nisbet were the hostesses of a very successful party yesterday afternoon from three until five. The affair was given at the home of Miss Snyder and proved to be a very happy occasion for the eighteen young ladies who were their guests. A musical concert was the feature of the afternoon. While Miss Snyder played the many different popular airs of the day, the guests were required to write the different names as she played them. Miss Woods was most successful at this and was given a very pretty book as a prize. Miss Cobean guessed the fewest and received a French harp to encourage her love for music.

Late in the afternoon the hostesses served dainty refreshments.

A crowd of young people, chaperoned by Mesdames Gertrude Johnson and James Sutherland, went up to Elida this morning to attend a House Party at the ranch of Lycurgus Johnson.

They will be the guests of Mr. Johnson until next Friday.

Those who went were Mesdames Sylvester Johnson and Nora Harle, Misses Pearl Johnson, Marie Lewis, Helena Sutherland, Nora Meisner, Leah Reedy and Freda Eckman, Sylvester Johnson, Jr.

The Enter Nous Club enjoyed a supper on the Berrendo Thursday night, coming home by moonlight.

He has been accorded the privilege of continuing his present work in real estate and insurance. The Martins are to rent their Artesia home, furnished, and board in Hagerman for the school year.

TO THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

The Well-Owners will Endeavor to Get His Opinion Through a Test Case if one is Brought.

The meeting of the executive committee of the well owners association, brief mention of which was made yesterday, brought out the ideas of the members as they had not been expressed before. Besides the decision to get the opinions of some of the leading attorneys, provided their price is not too high, was the principal action of the meeting, but it was also decided that in case the attorney consulted does not report that the law is valid, the case will be presented to the district attorney through some suit that will likely be brought by Tax Collector Smith Lea, and from the district attorney, carried to the attorney general, whose opinion of the case, will probably decide it. The opinions of the attorneys will be considered at a meeting of the well-owners, and even if reports are unfavorable, the meeting may decide to carry the matter to the attorney general regardless.

A RECORD MADE IN DRILLING

Made by Cummins and Sherman Just Before They Completed Their Contract With Colonel Elliott.

Cummins and Sherman have just completed their drilling contract with Colonel Elliott, by which they put down a well for him on his Orchard Park land, a distance of 900 feet. Before completing the contract they made a record breaking run with their drill. They went down two hundred feet in two hours. Then they lost their drill, rope and other apparatus and had great difficulty in fishing them out. The well has a flow of 6 1/2 inches from a six inch casing. Finishing touches are being put on the well by other workmen.

REDUCE CITY FIRE LIMITS.

City Council Has a Hurried Meeting to Overcome Difficulties That Came Up Unexpectedly.

The city council held a meeting late yesterday afternoon for the purpose of overcoming a difficulty that arose over the city ordinance relative to constructing wooden buildings within the fire limits. It was learned that the canning factory, Chris Totten's new residence and other buildings in course of construction, are within the fire limits, and are being built of wood. It was not known that the limits extended as far as the blocks in which these houses are located, and thus the owners are blameless. Further, it was considered that the limits extend too far, and accordingly the council passed an ordinance taking out some of the territory not on Hain street. The ordinance providing for the change and giving details, appears elsewhere in this paper.

The old historic Alamo, famous for its brave and noble defenders. The New Alamo Cafe, famous for its turkey dinners.

For Salvation Army Hall. Captain Graham of the Salvation Army yesterday signed a contract with A. L. W. Nilsson, of the Hondo Stone Manufacturing Company, to deliver artificial blocks for the Army's new hall. The building will be covered with cement shingles from the Roswell Cement Roof Manufacturing Company. The new hall will be erected on East Fourth Street and the Army will obtain a solid and beautiful building in which to hold its meetings. This will please all of the people of Roswell, who have helped to make it possible, and the many friends of Captain Graham, who has done great work in the Salvation Army.

THE RECORD IS THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE COUNTY OF CHAVES AND THE CITY OF ROSWELL.

All advertisements to insure insertion in the same day's issue of The Record should be in the printer's hands before eleven o'clock in the morning. Orders for taking out any standing ad. should also be in the office by eleven o'clock to prevent its being run that day.

The Record regrets to say that the weeds have not all been cut. No doubt the few remaining will be harvested before the fair. They are hardly worth preserving as a free street attraction.

The Register, which is itself run by chance, ought to know from its own experience that even as a newspaper cannot be successfully run by the kindergarten class, a city cannot be built by a leaderless mob.

The people of Roswell approve of the spirit of progress manifested by the present city administration, and willingly do their part in improving the town, by following the directions of the men who were chosen to work for the interests of the whole community.

Lest somebody else take it seriously, we might explain that the reference to Lucius Dills in another column as quitting the practice of law to steal cattle on salary is only a joke, but as he is an old newspaper man, he does not care what people say about him.

The people who "dig up the money" to build sidewalks, own them, and their cost is added to the value of the property on which they are built. The whole community is also benefited, and the administration that takes care to prevent any property owner from neglecting his duty to the community deserves credit for executive ability and progressiveness.

Even had all the citizens been willing to build cement walks in front of their property, non-resident property owners would in most cases have failed and refused to build the walks had not the city council taken steps to make them do so. With a broken lot or two in nearly every block of the city, the walks built by the citizens would have been of little use.

The people also pay for the grading of streets and for such undertakings as diverting the flood waters of the Hondo river, but if incompetent or careless men were placed in charge of the city's affairs none of these things would be done. A wise expenditure and economy in the use of public money is more important in the management of a city's affairs than in the direction and supervision of private enterprises.

The Roswell Register, which publishes about thirty lines of original matter per week, thinks the present city administration does not deserve any credit for the building of sidewalks and making other improvements in the city of Roswell. About how long does the Register think it would take the people to volunteer to build cement walks in a city the size of Roswell if there were not men in charge of the administration to pass ordinances and see that they were enforced. A city without an intelligent directing force at the head would worry along without sidewalks or street crossings.

INITIATIVE.
 (By Elbert Hubbard.)

The world bestows its big prizes, both in money and honors, but for one thing. And that is initiative. What is initiative? I'll tell you: It is doing the right thing without being told. But next to doing the thing without being told is to do it when you are told once. That is to say, carry the message to Garcia. There are those who never do a thing until they are told twice; such get no honors and small pay. Next, there are those who do the right thing only when necessity kicks them from behind, and these get indifference instead of honors, and a pittance for pay. This kind spends most of its time polishing a bench with a hard luck story. Then, still lower down in the scale than this, we have the fellow who will not do the right thing even when some one goes along to show him how and stays to see that he does it; he is always out of a job, and receives the contempt he deserves, unless he has a rich pa, in which case Destiny patiently awaits around the corner with a stuffed club. To which class do you belong?

OLD SETTLERS COLUMN.

Lucius Dills landed in this country in June, 1885, and life has never been the same since his arrival. He was bred in Old Kentucky, and is a connoisseur in art and a dabbler in literature as well as a lover of good horse and a judge of what the Indians call conversation water, though he has not tasted any of the real article since he left the bluegrass region. He is a good story teller, and has a large fund of reminiscences stored up in a memory illumined by a lively humor and habit of accurate observation. Farmer, lawyer, cowboy, newspaper man, fine horse breeder, civil engineer—a genuine old timer brought up to date, and always ready for any combination of circumstances that may flag the train of destiny.

Mr. Dills was born at Cynthiana, Kentucky, July 7, 1858. He moved to Texas in 1875, locating in the Panhandle in 1882. He pitched his tent, or unrolled his blanket, in Lincoln county, New Mexico, in 1885. He had practiced law for ten years in Texas, holding office part of the time,—and to show that he was an honest lawyer (the noblest work of God, and in the opinion of some people, the scarcest) he freely admitted that he came to New Mexico to rustle cattle, but as he worked on salary and as nobody knew who the stray cattle belonged to in those days, branding a "maverick" was considered the same as trapping wild game. He came to Roswell in 1887, this being still a part of Lincoln county in which he first tried the life of the cowboy. There were seven houses in Roswell when Mr. Dills came. He farmed awhile in this vicinity, and was married here in 1892 to Miss Gertrude Lea, second daughter of the late Frank H. Lea. Before taking this important step, however, Mr. Dills gave the helm of civilization a turn by establishing the Roswell Weekly Record, March 6, 1891. Associated with him for about eight years in the newspaper business was his brother-in-law, Joseph D. Lea, now of Chihuahua, Old Mexico. The paper was for several months printed one page at a time upon a job press, but the business grew and the paper and its equipment were enlarged accordingly. During the preliminary skirmish prior to the campaign of 1896, the Record was the only straight out gold standard paper in New Mexico, and after the free silver Republican papers of the Territory had been lined up and discovered themselves on a gold platform, they found some of Mr. Dills' editorials much better campaign matter than anything they could write on this particular subject themselves.

Mr. Dills has been engaged in surveying for the past four years. He went in with the present Democratic administration as city engineer. He is secretary of the Roswell Fair Association, and has several other irons in the fire, but he is never too hurried to make a thorough success of whatever he undertakes. He will be one of the prominent speakers at the Old Settlers' picnic, and has promised to write a sketch or two about old times for the Daily Record. He came after the Lincoln county war was all over, and after the buffalo had disappeared, so he has no bloody adventures to relate, but he has observed the actual development of the resources of the greatest artesian district of the world, and has written much of its history, besides helping to make the history.

The buffalo disappeared from this vicinity in 1877 and '78, and Mr. Dills theory is that the fool beasts, not knowing anything about quarantine lines, drifted too far south in winter and died of Spanish fever. He does not believe that the hunters killed them all.

A Fine Orchard for Sale.

Early last spring Mr. Kuster, an energetic young farmer from Kansas, brought his young family into the Valley in search of health for his devoted wife, who was very low from the serious effects of an attack of tuberculosis. He soon saw, as every one must see, that the Valley had a great future. Delighted with Roswell and its citizens, charmed by the beautiful farms and orchards, and encouraged by the young wife and mother who drank inspiration from the floods of sunlight and from the gentle breezes she enjoyed here, he soon decided to cast his lot with us. And in keeping with good judgment, soon decided to make an investment in orchard property.

Through Carlton Bros., Mr. Kuster purchased the McIntire 20-acre orchard, which is the finest small orchard in the Valley. He was delighted with his new home, delighted with the Valley and its people. But he soon saw that the mother of his little children must yield to the fatal effects of the dreaded disease, and today four little children, sad-hearted, play around the door of a motherless home. Mr. Kuster is a thousand miles from his old home. He wishes to return there, that his children may have the care and kindness of their grandmother. In order to do this he will sell his splendid property at a bargain. The fruit from this orchard last year sold for more than forty per cent of the orchard's value. Three fruit crops will more than pay for the property. It will be sold cheap, and is a splendid bargain at the price asked. Mr. Kuster will take in exchange unincumbered city property to the value of twenty-five hundred dollars.

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute but use the old fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If it does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by all Druggists.

Nothing on the Market to Equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This fact is well known to druggists everywhere, and nine out of ten will give their customers this preparation when the best is asked for. Mrs. Obe Wittmer, a prominent druggist of Joplin, Mo., in a circular to his customers says: "There is nothing on the market in the way of patent medicine which equals Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. We sell and recommend this preparation." For sale by all dealers.

A REAL BUFFALO HUNTER.

J. V. Causey, Who Joined the Old Settlers' Society Today, Killed Thousands of Plains Cattle.

J. V. Causey, who lives forty miles east of Roswell, was in the city today preparing to bring his family here the last of August. His wife and four children will live here during the winter that the children may attend school and he will live on his ranch, caring for his cattle. While in the city Mr. Causey joined the Old Settlers' Society, having the sole requisite of membership in that organization—at least twenty years' residence in the valley.

Mr. Causey came here in 1877, having come from Indian Territory and being a native of Illinois. He lived in this section of the country during the buffalo, Indian and cowboy days and tells interesting stories of how the path to civilization was blazed.

In accounting for the destruction of the wild buffalo, Mr. Causey gave a Record reporter an interesting account of the manner in which he and his brother carried on a trade in buffalo pelts during the first years of their residence here. He said that the first winter they were here they killed and skinned 7,800 buffalo. These hides were hauled with ox teams 300 miles to Fort Griffin, as there was not a single settlement between his home and that place at that time. At Fort Griffin they sold the skins at from 25 cents to $1.25 apiece, according to the age and condition of the animal.

Their manner of hunting buffalo was for two to ride as close to a herd as possible. Then one of them dismounted, and turning his horse over to the other, walked to within gunshot of the bunch and started firing. At the first shot two, three or a half dozen would start to run. These were the wildest animals in the herd, usually cows, and often cows with calves, and unless these wild cows were killed immediately the herd would be stampeded and soon be out of reach. When the wild ones were dispatched, a great portion of the herd was then safe. The others would bunch around the fallen sisters, and the hunter could drop them as fast as he could load his gun. The most Mr. Causey ever killed in one herd was 120.

The buffalo were usually found in herds of from a hundred to five hundred, but sometimes they would be massed in a body covering the plain as far as the eye could see. At such times the whole earth would appear as a moving, animate sea of brown-skinned flesh.

In those days, although the hunter killed buffalo mostly for the hides, they salted down as many of the hind quarters of the most tender, juicy cows, as they could take care of. The horns, now worth $5 a pair, were left to rot on the plains, along with the rest of the carcass.

Mr. Causey and his brother hunted buffalo many winters after '77, but with less success than during the first few months after they came, when they slaughtered 7,800.

Mr. Causey could tell many other stories of early times here, but he leaves the next chapter to the next old settler who comes down the trail.
