Fire Failed to Injure Manufactured Stone in a Test at the Minne-

The Minneapolis Journal of recent date tells an interesting story about an actual test that was given manufactured hollow stone building blocks at the Minnesota state fair at Minneapolis this fall. The account is interesting because of the fact that practically the same blocks are made right here in Roswell by the Hondo Stone Manufacturing Company, and a number of the nicest buildings in town are made of this material. The article recites that the exhibit of the stone company had been one of the most attractive at the fair, ha

The claims cover parts of sections 6, 7, 8, 18, 17, 20, 29, 28, 33 and 34 in township, 12 south, range 27 east; and parts of section 3 and as far south as 10 in township 13 south, range 27 E. This land is south of the tract covered by placer claims by the Roswell Oil Company, 12 miles east of Roswell, and is said to follow the oil trough described by Mr. Canfield. One of the causes that led up to than in brick buildings. the taking of this new body of land, was the discovery by City Engineer Lucius Dills of a ledge of oil sand stone that crops out of the ground in some of the sections described. This stone is so strongly saturated with oil, that it will burn. Manager Canfield states that he ment was sent for, and after the major part of the fuel in the building had been consumed, the embers were extinguished. The stone was not injured in the least and a noticeable feature was that outside the stone building the heat could not be felt. This went to show that the stone does not conduct heat and thus makes a fire-proof building material. The Christmas German, given by he faculty of the Military Institute 'n the gymnasium last night was atended by at least forty couples, many Roswell young people being present. The building was attractively decorated in the American colors, college pennants and Navajos. A huge United States flag was suspended from the center of the celling.

The German numbers were led by Hapor Pearson and Miss Gertie Wigrins, Captain McClure and Miss Eva Nelson, and proved most interesting. The dancing was especially enjoyable on account of the good floor and splendid music of the Axelson orchestra. Late in the evening a delicious uncheon of turkey sandwiches, pickles, olives, celery and coffee was served in the mess hall. Every one present declared this the most successful party given by the Institute this season. . . .

-Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ogle entertained the R"ond Dozen" Club Friday evening. An elegant five-course dinner was served, and this was followed by a pleasant evening playing 'Flinch."

some evils the only remedy is publicity, and lots of it. I am against licensed gambling in this Territory, and in this I believe that I shall have the hearty co-operation of not only the clergy, but the business man, the wage earner, and the people as a whole, as well. It is harmful to the best interests of the Territory, both at home and abroad, to have the reputation of allowing evils to exist merely as a source of revenue. Mr. Hagerman, who is just in the prime of life, being about 34 years of ago, is very enthusiastic, and confronts the responsibilities that will soon be thrust upon his young shoulders as the chief executive of the great Territory of New Mexico with much optimism.

"I am for joint statehood, because I believe that as a state the great re sources of the Territory now lying dormant and untouched, as it were can be more fully exploited and developed. There is need of capital in the Territory, and men of brains ability and money cannot help but reap a rich reward should they invest here. It will be one of the chief aims of my gubernatorial life to try to induce capital to investigate the many rich resources and great open ings here, feeling sure that an inves tigation will be equivalent to an investment.

"We are far ahead of our sister ter ritory in agricultural pursuits, and with the necessary capital and exploitation of her many mineral re sources, I believe that we would soon surpass her in mineral wealth. The industrial side of New Mexico should be looked to above all others."

Mr. Hagerman has many friends 'n this city, and spent the day renewing acquaintances with them. He was accompanied by his brother, Percy

FOR TOM'S SAKE A Tree Which

By OTHO B. SENGA

[Copyright, 1904, by Otho B. Senga,] MOST wonderful and gorgeous Christmas tree stood in the window of the great store of Warden & Joyce. All day a constantly changing throng of small admirers exclaimed at its magnificence and registered extravagant wishes before it.

Children richly clad and full of joyous anticipations, children in comfortless rags, who knew Christmas only by the sight of the happiness of others, stood side by side and gazed with longg eyes at the bewildering array of stly gifts and brilliant decorations.

A small girl of twelve or fourteen, with face unnaturally old and sharp. unsmiling eyes, critically examined the ree in silence. Up and down, from side to side, her keen gaze wandered. "I bet it' empty at the back," she finally muttered.

Poor child! Her brief experience had drealy taught her the unreality and alsity of many glittering things. She topped quickly into the vestibule where the could see that part of the tree away om the window. A sudden joy flashed ato her face.

"It's true-that tree is true," she whispered eagerly. "The back is as good as the front."

She hesitated an instant and then raised her clasped hands beseechingly "God," she cried, "send me a tree for Tommy!"

Her intense longing made her voice sharply imperative, and the first word truck harshly on the ear of a richly dressed young lady who was passing close to her.

"You mustn't swear, child!" she exclaimed hurriedly.

"I wasn't swearing," the girl answered calmly, without resentment. "I was praying for a tree for Tommy." An elegant carriage waited at the curb, and as the young lady stepped to ed Miss Stanhope joyously, "but be to me." 'For Tommy's sake," murmu girl assentingly. "For Tom's sake," echoed Mis

ope tenderly. The unbending footman wa more disgusted when he was di make another round of the and his bearing was absolutely rigid when he was required to carry a most unbecoming load of bundles up the stairs to the little home on Bur street. That the indignity of a good sized tree was laid upon him also quired the concentration of all his thoughts upon the generous wages Miss Stanhope paid to enable him to endure the present situation.

"I keep house for father and Tommy," whispered Maggie, leading the way. "Tommy's in the kitchen. I left him there in the big chair 'cause it's warmer. We'll take all these things in here"-opening the door of a neat sitting room-"and when we get the tree fixed I'll push him in in the chair."

Surely never before was a tree so quickly made to blossom and bring forth fruit, and it was a "true" tree, with gifts on every side.

Maggle surveyed it with joyful pride. her thin face losing its careworn look and becoming almost childlike with the flush of happy excitement.

"Miss Stanhope," she whispered positively, "prayers are answered-I know t now.

Always, in the way he thinks best," answered Miss Stanhope earnestly, adding in her heart, "Lord, I belleveaelp thou mine unbelief!"

"I'll bring Tommy in now," Maggie said, and went softly out to the kitchen.

She returned almost immediately. "His boss is there!" she exclaimed excitedly. "He got back yesterday. Ain't he awfully good to come so soon to see Tommy? Tommy looks better already! The boss 'll push him in."

'They both turned toward the door as it was opened, and a big armchair with the sick boy in it was pushed carefully over the threshold.

Miss Stanhope gave one look at the all man behind the chair and started forward.

"This is Tommy's boss," began Maggie, mindful of her duties as hostess, but the greeting of her two guests quite disconcerted her, for Tommy's boss caught the aristocratic Miss Stanhope in a close embrace, while Miss Stanhope cried penitently, "Oh, Tom, Tom, I have been so sorry, and I have wanted you so!"

The Origin of Santa Claus,

Santa Claus is of German origin. This is true if only because that is the German name for St. Nicholas. That he is an old man is because in the ancient pagan feasts in celebration of the decay of the old year and the birth of the new an old man played the prin | elpal part. Among the Greeks and Romans it was Saturn, the father of all the gods, and among the Norsemen it was Thor, who was long bearded and white halred. That the saint is St. Nicholas is due to the fact that that venerable personage's feast day was celebrated at about that period. St. Nicholas was a bishop of Myra, who flourished early in the fourth century. He is the patron saint of children and hoolboys, and hence it was natura that he should be a part of a celebration when the children received gifts and when they were allowed to be "beard as well as seen."-New .York Mail and Express.

ABSTRACT CO. 42tf MISS STANHOPE GAVE ONE LOOK AT THE TALL MAN.

the sidewalk the footman threw open the door. She stood for an instant, as if thinking, and then, turning quickly, she went back into the vestibule, where the child was still standing.

"Will you come with me a minute? Out of the crowd," she added hastily as the girl faced her with surprised eyes and an unchildlike, repelling look on her thin face.

"Will you step into the carriage? Please do. I want you to tell me something, and it is so very cold"-

The girl seated herself on the luxurious cushions, the young lady folowed, and the inwardly disgusted footman closed the door.

"Will you tell me your name and where you live?" the lady questioned gently.

The child regarded her earnestly. "Depends on who you are and what. von want. You sin't a charity worker nor a slum visitor?"

The young lady smiled understandingly.

"My name is Margaret Stanhope, and I live on Commonwealth avenue. You -you spoke of Tommy."

The girl's face softened. 'Yes; he's my brother. My name is Maggie Taylor, and I live on Burnham street," adding with a return of ber former manner, "but it ain't a slum atreet, and I don't want uo charity."

Miss Stauhope smiled rad antly. "But I do. Maggie. I am so glad out names are the same. I need just what you do not-charity. Tell me some thing about Tommy." She lingered lovingly over the name, "Why did you pray for a tree for him?" "Because he's sick. He's only twelve and he works in an office, and his boss is away, and Tommy took sick after he'd goue. Tommy feels sure that if he was here he'd send his wages to him just the same, for he's a good boss and awfully kind to everybody, but the other man-his pardner-is different." "Maggie," said Miss- Stanhope earnestly, "I wish you'd help me to have a happy Christmas. I am all alone in the world, without any one to care for me, and I want to do something for some one-far some one named Tommy, because because six mouths ago I did a wrong and cruel thing to some one by that name. It would help make my Christmas happy if you would let me arrange a tree for your Tommy. Will you?"

The girl drew a long breath. "It ain't charity?" she asked doubtfully. "Not to you nor to Tommy," answerChristmas In Rome.

A characteristic sight which precedes a Roman Christmas is the so called cottio, or sale of fish by auction, which ? is held at San Teodoro, near the forum, f in the small hours of the morning, and , every year attracts large crowds of , buyers and sightseers. It is a sight worth seeing, the vast circular market literally packed with row upon row of baskets, in which the scaly fry are carefully arranged, the light giancing off their many colored scales in + thousand prismatic reflections, while the owner of each stall shouts at the top of his volce and the merry crowd goes round laughing and bargaining and trying to cheapen the fish, for at? Christmastide it often reaches fabulous prices, and one is reminded of the extravagance of the ancient Romans, one of whom is said to have paid 20,000 sesterces for a single gray mullet .--London Mail.

A Recipe For Plum Pudding. Crumble a pint of breadcrumbs from the center of a stale loaf and pour over them a cup of scalded milk; when cool add three-quarters of a cup of sugar, a tenspoonful of salt and the yolks of four eggs beaten together; chop a half pound of suet and thoroughly mix with $ it a half pound each of raisins, currants and almonds; add a teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmer, a third of a teaspoonful each of cloves and mace and the whites of the four eggs stiffly beaten; serve with hard sauce.

Encouragement.

Jack (bitterly)-I suppose that young Richman who comes to see you so often will give you such an expensive Christmas gift that you won't want the triffing present I can afford to buy you'

Marie (coyly)-No. I think you had better save your money for-er-future contingencies, Jack.

Brief Glimpses of Splendor Caught in Passing Display Windows. The Christmas window displays in toswell stores have been so many and all so good that we have not the space for detailed description of them, but The Record will say that and artistic arrangement of goods in show windows was ever presented in any town of the size anywhere. . . .

This has been a great year for giving books as Christmas presents. Ingersoll's book store has sold hundreds of gift books. But there were half a dozen or more of stocks in other stores, and all have sold much of their stock. Payton's drug store had a very fine stock. Geo. W. Zink has taken advantage of the holiday season to close out his books. The Pecos Valley Drug Co. did a fine business in this line, Daniel & Daniel disposed of books as well as toys, and some of the dry goods stores had many attractive volumes to offer.

For simple tastiness without osentation or vulgar jumble of everything imaginable into one window display. Morrison Bros. have long held a reputation, and their Christmas effort was another triumph. . . .

One would hardly expect to find much of a display in the window of butcher shop. But the U. S. Market has since the holiday season began from day to day presented as neat and fascinating an exhibit of its goods as those who deal in the dainty fabrics used to adorn feminine loveliness. This market believes in advertising and we are informed that they have had an especially good trade on those sweet mangoes and on prepared mince meat, which has been advertised in local notices.

After having the north window curain closed for a few days, Joyce, W Pruit & Co. have exposed an elaboili rate Christmas design with garlands of holly, and festoons of greenery 101 entwining columns that support at W large bell. Dress goods are incidental ly exhibited. This firm has also a window showing clothing and men's 140 furnishing goods, and another displaying the good things to eat in the 14 grocery department.

Park & Morrison, the jewelers, ave made their whole store a dis play of iridescent cut glass, glittering gold, shining silver and sparkling 11 jewels. "Our display is inside" has been the Christmas Invitation. . .
