Cheer Up

These are dark days for the world. The shadow of war is heavier than ever on all hearts, whatever their sympathies. There is little exultation now even in victories, for we know at what a price victory is won. But there are many things besides war in this world. Except for our active imaginations, most of us would feel life running on pretty much as usual. There is the same sunshine, the same life-giving air, the same autumn odors, the same joy in harvests. There is the same quiet satisfaction of soul that has always come with the fall season, whether in country or city. Here, in our American isolation, we live our lives in spite of wars and rumors of wars. There is need, to be sure, of taking thought for the future, preparing against the time when war may bring home to us the wretchedness that we knew half a century ago and that Europe knows today. But that is a matter of calm decision, not of alarm or fear. We are today the most fortunate nation in the world. There is no reason why we cannot continue so. It is a good time for the nation to take to heart the philosophy that is preached so much today to individuals—the philosophy of confidence, of optimism, of positive thought. It is right and proper that we should feel the way of Europe, and it is our duty to all begin them all we can. But it is wrong to let those wrongs weigh on our spirits until we lose our buoyancy and poise. It is better to regard the war as a doctor or nurse regards a disease—something to be cured, whose cure can be effected not by catharsis of sentimentalism but by intelligent and cheerful service.

Training outweighs Long Service

There is no better proof of this than the every-day scenes of long service, untrained employes at the beck and call of younger men who occupy the big positions because of their training. It's a case of Training vs. Long Service—with the odds in favor of the trained man. Get out of the untrained man, Mark and mail the attached coupon and let the I. C. S., of Scranton, tell how you can qualify for a better position. How you can protect yourself against servitude in your old age. How you can become an expert at your chosen line of work.

That the business of the I. C. S. is to Raise Salaries is shown by the monthly average of 400 letters voluntarily written by students reporting salaries raised and advancement won through I. C. S. help. No necessity for leaving home. No books to buy. Marking the coupon puts you at no expense and places you under no obligation. Mark it NOW!

DEMING, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1915

TOO WEAK TO REMAIN NEUTRAL.

The plight of Greece is a very good example of what fate holds in store for the nation too weak to defend even the poor privilege of neutrality. King Constantine is a true patriot, endeavoring to keep his people from suffering the fate of Belgium and Serbia. The central empires demand that Greece shall at least remain neutral, while the entente allies are pressing her to throw her puny strength on their side and in the way of the irresistible Teutonic machine.

Greece and Serbia are bound together in a defensive alliance, but Serbia could not force Greece to intervene in the war. The allies have the sea power, however, to compel participation, and they can use the few Hellenic warriors in their plans. French, British, and Italian warships have blockaded the coast of Greece and with the threat of starvation are expected to soon compel Greece to keep her treaty obligations.

WILSON'S MILITARY PROGRAM UNPOPULAR.

President Wilson's preparedness program, as recently outlined, suits neither the majority of his own followers nor the opposition parties. In view of the general interest in armament, the plans of the president for increasing the military forces seem inadequate to those that have looked upon far smaller demands as extreme. On the other hand, the peace or any price advocates have all along looked on the present embryo army and navy as a waste of good money that ought to go into the pork barrel fund.

Wilson finds himself at odds with some of his most loyal supporters, because the Democratic party, while not in direct opposition to armament is in spirit against placing too much power in the hands of the military. The Republican party gave the nation the present army and navy. While its less conservative principles have not been averse to the creation of an adequate military force, its leaders have not yet often and consistently been found denying themselves the joys of the pork barrel for the proper defense of the nation. Its leaders now, however, influenced by the trend of world events, the wishes of the people, and a natural inclination, are eagerly advocating a tremendous increase in armament. To them the president's program is totally inadequate. It will be interesting to follow the fight over the army and navy appropriation bill in the next congress and to speculate on the influences which the question will exert in the next presidential campaign.

GETTING AFTER ALLEGED ALIEN LAWBREAKERS.

The government has opened its case against the Hamburg-American officials for alleged breaking of the neutrality laws and treaties of the United States. Captain K. von K., German naval attache, is said to have spent $750,000 in August to supply the German warships in the Pacific and the Atlantic with coal and other supplies.

This case is but the beginning, it is said, of similar actions to be brought against aliens that are believed to have conspired to break the neutrality laws. The conspiracies are believed to be quite widespread.

CESSATION OF IMMIGRATION.

Reports from immigration workers show that there is no sign yet of the resumption of the great movement which placed so many farmers in the Mimbres Valley, as in other parts of the arid West. The large land companies operating in Kansas City and Chicago have had practically no business in the last six months, and very little in the last year.

A great variety of reasons have been given for the cessation of immigration of the land hungry. None of them are fully explanatory. It would seem that immigration is a natural movement that comes periodically in fulfillment of natural laws of which we have but slight understanding. Some believe that the movement will recur in a year or two; others, less optimistic, believe that a much longer period must elapse before another tidal wave of eager homeseekers sweeps over the country. Financial depression, the war, failure of many irrigation projects of the "wild cat" variety, over production of land, and many other reasons are advanced by those that have made some study of the subject. It is probably true that all of the reasons given have contributed to the condition. The essential fact is, however, that immigration of the voluntary order is at an end.

To Deming and the Mimbres Valley the fact is of more than academic interest, involving, as it does, our deepest economic interests. Many of us even yet refuse to accept the truth or shape our individual and civic policies to the hard condition. The situation is not agreeable, but it holds forth the promise of great ultimate good. It is but a temporary reverse and far from an irretrievable disaster. Our land values have been forced down to the normal, based on that which the land will produce. We are going through that painful process of biologic interest, called "weaning" in the vulgar tongue. We are forced, like the howling calf, out into the cold and cruel world. Too pampered to declare our own independence of land speculation, liberty of action and opportunity to develop in a rational way has been thrust upon us.

There are enough farmers in the valley to make this section a productive agricultural country. But the farmers, too, need independence. The farmer is a natural individualist and if left to himself will work out his own salvation. There is too much free advice from Tom, Dick, and Harry as to how farming operations here ought to be carried out; there has been too much misplaced and unappreciated financial aid. The successful farmer is not an object of charity and only wants his needs considered in a business way. Farming is a serious business. It will stand or fall on its own merits. There has been enough of success this season to demonstrate the profitability, in fact the superiority over other systems, of pumping for irrigation. Success will in due time attract the class of settlers which are now sought for in vain.

The city itself has profited but little from purely agricultural activities. The farms of the future will build a new Deming—a magnificent city in a great center of farming. But that is in the future—and quite distant, it would seem at this time. Our thought is of the present in which we live and must get what pleasure and profit there is out of existence. We have a splendid little city and great possibilities for improvement along many lines that will bring it more quickly to its ultimate destiny.

The chamber of commerce has brought all its plans to successful consummation. It has been worth all that it has cost and more. But in passing from one phase to another, new plans in harmony with new conditions must be adapted, if it is to continue to play the important part in our civic life now as in the past.

The Graphic urges no plan; gives no advice; but it does desire to point out the new conditions that must be met. No doubt, there is a Moses for us somewhere—one that will lead us out of the brush of our narrow vision, who will set our feet on the right path and illuminate it with wise publicity. With his close business methods and lack of spectacular display, he will not claim the popular applause as the boosters did in the good old days, but we need him just the same.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 16.—Joseph Hillstrom's execution today for the murder of J. G. Morrison and Morrison's son, January 10, 1914, was followed by Governor Spry's announcement this afternoon that he would "clear the state of the lawless element that now infests it."

The lawless acts can only be appressed according to the officials, through the cooperation of state officers and labor leaders with the federal authorities.

FORMER AUTO SALESMAN IN TRENCHES WITH BRITONS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 23—From star auto salesman and contract expert to a private soldier, doing his humble part in the trenches is the rapid transition of C. W. Eastlake, formerly of the Maxwell company.

Eastlake is a Canadian by birth. When war was declared he patriotically resigned his fine position and enlisted. For some time he has been at the front. Occasionally he manages to get a letter through to his former associates in the motor industry.

According to one of Eastlake's letters, he received an automobile catalog from his former employer and he is quoted as follows: "And, believe me, it sure looked good. It seems funny to sit here with your letter and catalog in front of me, and the rifle fire, and the roar of the big guns, and realize the difference of a year ago, and try to picture where I will be a year from now."

"I never knew there could be so many of one thing as we have here, and that is sandbags. As far as I can see, we are absolutely short of nothing. We have millions of men and money, munitions in plenty, and the artillery is simply wonderful."

"The Belgian people treat us fine. We have lots of money and are not afraid to spend it. The women are fine and they feed you all you can eat. The one thing I envy you shops is a bathroom. We can build a fire and heat water for a shave any time, but, Oh, Ye Gods, for a regular bath in a tiled bathroom and not a hole in the ground!"

"Of course, we don't know a thing about what the big men are doing and we are only a very small part of the line, but a chap can draw his own conclusions and I can assure you we hope it on their side. You'll hear all about it one of these days when we start across Belgium."

"I only hope I get out of this mess with enough of me in one piece to get a place back on your force."

Eastlake's letter bears the date of Oct. 8, since which there have been the major actions along the front as reported by the Canadians.

Yesterday John Steel and Dr. Barbee left the city for a hunting trip in the vicinity of the Minutes Hot Springs.

Joe Cotton, the one-eyed old son of C. M. Cotton, died in Los Angeles, last week. Mr. Cotton left the city in answer to a wire telling of the illness, but failed to reach the bedside of the little sufferer before death intervened.

Fred Sherman motored to Santa Fe last Sunday on a business trip. He will be gone several days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Moreaux have closed their eating house and gone to San Antonio, Texas.

Objects of Charity

Space and copies of his paper go to make up the newspaper man's stock in trade. These two are all that he has to offer for sale to the public, and no one has yet given any sort of satisfactory reason why he should ever be asked by anyone to donate them.

One thing newspaper people will never be able to understand is why any person will walk into a newspaper office and make himself or herself an object of charity and insist on what they would disdain to ask for in any other shop or place of business in the town. The attitude is the same in the newspaper office as in the dry-goods store, the grocery, the drug store and what a great many persons need to recognize it as the cause and get off the newspaper list. Advertising space in the newspaper is for sale, not to give away. It has a certain value in itself that is almost worth money. Copies of the newspaper are for sale—not to give away. If they are worth having, they are worth the exceedingly small price asked for them.

The public, or at least a large portion of it, have some very erroneous ideas about these matters, and it is for our own good that we should let their ideas be corrected in accordance with the same business principles that prevail in all other business establishments.

In a vast majority of cases this generous charity on the part of the newspapers is blissfully taken for granted, and the paper's liberality is abused. That which is purely a favor is accepted as a matter of course, and what should be requests are couched as demands.

When the courtesy has been performed there is rarely appreciation and more often dissatisfaction—generally silence.

The result in many towns and cities is that a law has been put on all free publicity, no matter what its object—even on notices of charitable intent. In these cities such favors as the press bestows are properly appreciated and valued.—The Fourth Estate.

Say "Hello!"

When you see a friend in woe, walk right up and say, "Hello!" Say, "Old Brother, how'd you do. How's the world a-usin' you?" Waltz right up and don't be slow, laugh and shake, and say "Hello!" Slap the brother on the back; bring your hand down with a whack. His clothes are poor—that is no show; never mind, just say "Hello!" That homespun shirt may conceal a great strong heart, true as steel; that old coat and shabby vest puts no ice, but do your best to make him happy here on earth and to feel that he's of worth. Don't you know of such a chap that every day has his nose up? All he needs is hearty cheer to make him happy while he's here. Don't let him think that the earth was dead against him since his birth. Crack his shell, draw him out; don't let him whine, or sulk, or pout. Make him tell you of all the woes of his heart before he goes. Don't tell him he's a clump but tell him to get up and hump; tell him he's not so slow, but get around and say "Hello! I'm alive, what can I do to help myself as well as you?" Do not wait until he's dead to strew bouquets around his head. Nice words spoken out of place, if not said before his face, make him see you are his friend, and will stay such till the end.

Oh! What a Change!

One hundred years ago today When wilderness was here, With powder in his gun, the man Went out and got a deer. But now the thing has changed— And on another plan, With powder on her cheeks, The "deer" goes out and gets the man.

Lieutenant H. O. Morgan, brother of the Rev. E. C. Morgan, pastor of the Methodist church here, who has been acting as captain at the front in the Dardanelles with the British expeditionary forces for nearly four months, has written to his brother to the effect that he has been down with an attack of neurasthenia and has been ordered to permanent light duty as adjutant at Aboukir, Egypt. He has done "his bit", and counts himself lucky to get off with his life.

Phil Estes to Prison

An Albuquerque dispatch of recent date gives the following information in regard to the Estes smuggling case:

"The federal district attorney's office here has been notified that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, at Denver, has affirmed the conviction of Phil Estes of Deming in the United States District Court. He was charged with smuggling cattle from Mexico into this country.

"Estes was convicted here last year and sentenced by Judge W. H. Pope to serve eighteen months in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth. Appeal was taken and Estes was released under bond, pending the outcome of his case in the appellate court."

As soon as the U. S. Marshal received notice of the decision of the court, Estes was notified, and immediately started for Albuquerque, leaving here Sunday evening, and surrendered to the marshal.

Some two years ago Estes was indicted by a Luna county grand jury on the charge of bringing stolen cattle into the state, but before the case could be heard in the state court he was arrested on a federal indictment for smuggling, was tried and convicted. Pending the decision on appeal he has remained here, or near here, all the time. Estes is well known over the southern part of the state. He was in the saloon business here and at Columbus for a time, but for sometime past has been dealing in cattle and horses. The term of his sentence is eighteen months, but this will probably be reduced by good behavior.
