"I stood appalled on the brink of a blue hole in the ice and called to the others, who hurrled to the spot. The head guide was an hour in advance. Having only one extra rope remaining the guide called down the crevasse and a faint reply showed that Chenoz, the porter, who was far below, was still alive. Six started after the head guide, who was back in an hour and a half, when Chenoz was extricated from an eighty foot depth.

"He was still conscious, but there was no pulse and he was nearly frozen. He was carried to camp and everything possible was done for him, but he died the same night from shock. He had not been expecting to meet a crevasse, and the accident was due entirely to his want of care. My own escape was simply miraculous."

A great rose, its follage and stem all in taupe. may be seem like an absurdity, and so it would be if used alone, but obviously it is the smartest sort of trimming for a hat of white plush or of black velvet that is worn with a boa and muff of taupe chiffon trimmed with taupe ostrich feather fringe or with bands of moleskin. Another horticultural surprise furnished by the milliners is a deep blue. rose that belongs with a boa and muff of deep blue brocaded silk, trimmed with bands of ermine. Clasping the neckpiece under the chin and trimming the front side of the rug-shaped muff is a butterfly bow of crocheted white floss, and falling from under it is a shower nosegay of white silk rosebuds mingling with bits of swansdown supposed to represent snowballs. The deep blue rose with its wealth of deep blue follage is provided as a trimming for whatever, hat is to be worn with the boa and muff set. All of these accessories are genuine "creations." For an amateur to attempt to copy them would be to court the discouraged state of mind usually produced by fallure.
