NEWSY NOTES.

Gen. Cameron, postal inspector, is now inspecting the post offices of the territory.

It is a wise young man who early makes up his mind that gamblers know more about gambling than he does.

The notorious Jim Wasson was captured in Choctaw Nation a few days ago. He is wanted in Texas for murder.

The coming corn crop is estimated at 1,297,000,000 bushels, against 852,696,000 last year and 812,771,000 in 1882.

William M. Woodside, of Chicago, in a mile race at Boston for professional bicyclers, was defeated a few days ago by R. Jauris, of England, one foot.

An eastern paper says that a dozen girls from New Haven are taking a tramp through the Adirondack mountains. The tramp must be having a good time.

The Duke of Cambridge is going to visit Ireland for the purpose of inspecting the troops stationed there. Great precautions will be taken to insure safety of the Duke in the "enemy's country."

An English manufacturer advertises that his safety matches may be eaten by children with positive benefit to their appetite and digestion. This story seems to have an odor of brimstone about it.

John McCullough, the tragedian, broke down while playing at McVickers theatre on the night of the 20th, and the management announced his engagement ended. He has since become hopelessly insane.

The daughter of Mr. Morosini, who recently eloped with her father's coachman, has concluded to sue her father for the goods of hers which he detained something like $74,000 in fine clothing and diamonds.

William Haynes, of Boston, was lately convicted of using the mails to defraud. He received $6,000 or more by advertising remnants of silk at starvation prices, and usually sent a skein in return for a dollar.

Canadian ranchmen complain that the Piegan chiefs demand ten cents on every head of cattle passing through their territory from Montana to Manitoba, and enforce it by shooting sufficient stock to equal the tax.

Gillie Leigh, who recently perished in the Big Horn mountains, was heir to Stanley Abbey, one of the finest estates in England. A brother of the deceased, now living in San Francisco, is next in succession.

The coachman marriage mania is spreading. W. R. Bartholomew, a coachman employed by W. G. Simmons, a wealthy business man, secretly married Simmons' adopted daughter, Mary Emma Babcock, a few days ago.

The sugar consumption of the United States averages forty-five pounds a year to each inhabitant. One-fourth of all the sugar produced in the world is consumed in the United States, where the sweet tooth seems to be in everybody's mouth.

In Mount Morris, Mich., a family believing its members to be bewitched by an old woman in the neighborhood, nicked the ears of all its pigs and cows to drive out the devils, and now all the unsuperstitious devils in the community are laughing over it.

An Albany paper says: Fruit growers in the state say the crop this year is the largest it has been in their experience. This state is full of apples. There is really no limit to them. The grape crop is large. Pears are abundant, and the best of it all is they are abundant.

If the engines, passenger and freight cars of the United States were placed in line they would reach 5,400 miles, or form one solid train from New York to San Francisco, with lateral trains reaching from Chicago to St. Paul, to New Orleans and Washington, D. C.

Miss C. Q. Well, a wealthy young lady of New York City, perished in a snow storm on September 22nd while descending Long's Peak, Colorado. She had been visiting friends at Colorado Springs. She was accompanied by a young gentleman, who carried her some distance after she was numbed with cold, but when his strength gave out he hastened home for aid. The rescuing party found her frozen to death.

A writer in the Providence Journal says we "must wait until 1892 for Jupiter's next perihelion." Well, if we must wait, though it seems pretty rough. We don't suppose the writer could induce Jove to perihelion next year? There may be two or three persons right here in this town who wouldn't murmur greatly if Jupiter were to defer the exhibition until 1892. They would be willing to wait.—Norristown Herald.

STOCK NEWS.

The number of sheep in the United States is estimated at 53,000,000.

The good old cow has paid off more mortgages and paid for more farms than any other known product.

Mr. J. A. LaRue will start for his Lincoln county ranch in a few days for the purpose of gathering and shipping his steers.—[N. M. Stock Grower.

Gov. Knott, of Kentucky, refused to call an extra session of the legislature to take action looking to the stamping out of the cattle disease. He refuses to be hambugged.

Tuberculosis isn't a big potatoe nor a ten pound turnip, as some might be led to infer, but a term used by some of the scientific sharps to frighten people from improving their herds through the introduction of certain breeds of high-grade cattle.

A well known young man of the stock yards lost several hundred dollars in the neighborhood of Mike McDonald's "store" the other evening. He fell against four axes and injured his pocket book so badly that he had to walk home. To-day his capital consists of a fine stock of experience but no ready cash. Riches have wings.—[Drovers Journal.

It never seems to occur to any of the numerous bovine quacks, who masquerade under the name of veterinary surgeons, that the disease they are pleased to call pleuro-pneumonia, is nothing but the result of bug juice. Both loco and the juice of certain kinds of bugs have been known to affect men as well as steers down here in Lincoln county at times.

An exchange remarks that nineteenth of the unhappy marriages result from human calves being allowed to run at large in society pastures. That looks a little as if the "pastures" ought to be improved. Even a human calf, be he ever so fine blooded, will wear an unhappy, dejected look with nothing but oxeye daisies and social golden rods to feed upon.

The Texas Panhandle says: B. F. Clambitt's mule train arrived from Dodge City Monday with 15,000 pounds of freight. The writer of this knew Frank. He was the veritable "bad boy" of a little town in northwestern Ohio, and where the nocturnal pranks of he and his chum—every boy has his chum—are yet well remembered in that quiet little little burg.

Let the cattlemen of the southwest compose their souls in patience! This disease, known as pleuro-pneumonia, is principally confined to the experts who are perambulating the country working up a little business for themselves. The climate of New Mexico is not a breeder of contagion to any alarming extent, even when diseased cattle are found, which is not the case at the present time.

Cris Herring and William Slane are looking over the country along the Oscuras, north of the Mal Pais, for a suitable cattle range, with the design of locating there if the locality is favorable. Mr. Herring has lately come here from California, where he already has a well stocked ranch, but the climate and grazing lands of New Mexico is so favorable to the production of live stock that he proposes to make his home in the land of grama grasses and fat cattle.

The New Mexico Stock Grower publishes this timely warning to Lincoln county shippers: The Lincoln County Stock Association should appoint an inspector to look out for members' interests in this section. From the new stock yards at Bernal it is expected that a large number of Lincoln county cattle will be shipped this season, and if the protective idea of the association is to be carried out it is certainly necessary that a rigid system of inspection should be carried on at this point.

One of the first raids made upon Congress, at the beginning of the next session, will be by the pleuro-pneumonia cranks. By raising an incendiary alarm, they hope to work up a fat salary for an army of so-called experts who will travel over the country on railroad passes in search of "infection." When this takes place it will be high time for owners of cattle to guard well their herds from the contagion which will be likely to result from too intimate contact with these professional bovine quacks and mountebanks.

The advent of the artesian well borer will mark a new era in New Mexico's development. It has been reported that our grazing territory was all occupied; that all available land for ranches has already been taken up, and that the remaining portion was either composed of mountain ranges or arid, treeless, desert wastes. This idea is entirely erroneous. Lincoln county ranges are not half occupied. The whole northern portion, reaching from the Oscura mountains on the west to Pecos river on the east, embracing the very finest grazing lands within har border, are as yet wholly unoccupied. This whole magnificent region presents one panorama of undulating pasture land, dotted here and there with pleasant groves of cedar and pinon, and covered with a rich carpet of the most nutritious grasses. It is true there are no springs or running water to be found throughout its whole extent, except those in the Gallinas mountains, but a judicious expenditure of money will undoubtedly bring water to the surface and make this the most desirable portion of our county for stock raising, as it is already covered with as fine grass as can be found anywhere in the territory. Lying much lower than the mountains that surround it, the conformation of this whole region would indicate that an abundance of water could be procured at no considerable depth below the surface. The success of the Comery brothers in the one or two experiments made on the Carizozo range goes to prove that with proper machinery for boring, under the care of experienced workmen, will soon solve this water problem and render almost every acre of soil in Lincoln county available for pasture.

A party of round-up cowboys were invited to dinner at Moulting's ranch and a correspondent of the Pioneer gives the following account of the effect the appearance of a young lady had upon the wild dudes of the prairie: After filling up their hungry tanks they were invited by the hospitable hostess to enter the sitting room for a quiet chat. Every thing went on well till a fair maiden of sixteen summers put in her graceful appearance. The sight of the young lady, who are very rarely seen by the wild and reckless cowboy, caused a disastrous stampede—the leaders turning, running over and dragging, caused slight injuries to some of the flock. A great deal of the sidewalk was slightly damaged, and the wire fence which encircled it to keep out the animals was badly damaged the cowboys breaking down about twenty yards of the four-barb wire fence. After careful handling they were rounded up, mounted their steeds, and left for camp in a boisterous manner. The boys ought to go to see the girls oftener and get used to them.

A careful review of the markets for the past six months would go to show that a remarkable steadiness has prevailed in demand and prices, and that average values throughout were a trifle higher than during any previous year. The grass cattle market had no opening, as the mingling of corn-fed roughed over and early grassers was continued longer than usual that no one can tell when the run of grass begun, because they were not moved in numbers until a month later than usual. The early offerings were light and not in the best condition, but prices were maintained between four and a-half and five cents until considerable numbers had been marketed. There was but one great rush, which for seven days upset the market, and a sudden let-up in shipments saved it and caused a restoration in prices.

On the whole there has been a sameness and solidity about beef which is remarkable considering the price of every commodity produced from the soil. When cotton, corn and wheat are being held for want of a market, Texas cattle are only held because the summer range was comparatively dry and the steers required moisture to round them out. The summary of the season amounts in few words to ordinary cattle bringing good prices.—[Texas L. S. Journal.

Information Wanted.

As to the relatives of Nicholas C. Booth, who died at John Randall's ranch, ten miles north of Carlisle, Grant county New Mexico, on the 16th day of September. Deceased was attacked with cholera morbus while stopping at the ranch and lived but a few hours. Among his effects were found letters showing that he had been living in New Mexico for some time. Sufficient money for funeral expenses was found upon his person, and he left a horse, saddle and bridle, which are now in Mr. Randall's possession, and will be delivered to any properly authorized parties. Address: JOHN RANDALL, Carlisle, N. M.

We clip the above from the Silver City Sentinel. This Nicholas C. Booth is none other than "Nick" Booth, who lately lived in the Penasco country, and who is out on $1,500 bail for his appearance at the next term of court. But is he really dead?

A Thin Document.

They are sending out a lot of circulars from Las Cruces for the purpose of hurting Hon. Anthony Joseph with the cattlemen. They copy a part of a speech made by Mr. Joseph in Las Vegas on the 30th of last month, from which we take the following:

"Mr. Joseph denounced the illegal legislature of last winter in no uncertain terms, and demonstrated clearly that under no circumstances could its legality be maintained. He will do his utmost, if elected, to have the whole proceedings annulled by congress, which will effectually kill the penitentiary and capital bills by a short method."

They, we say "they," for there were no names attached to the circular, say such action as Mr. Joseph proposes, if successful, will annul the wholesome stock laws passed last winter, and want the cattlemen to vote against him. That is the thinnest thing we ever saw. New stock laws can be passed that will suit better than the present ones. What the people want is the capitol and penitentiary steals annulled, and thereby save an enormous tax. Mr. Joseph proposes to do all he can in having this done, if elected. Vote for him, cattlemen, and save hundreds of dollars in tax for years to come.

How The Bedouins Conquer Thirst.

In an article on "The Rescue of Chinese Garden," in the Century, General R. E. Colston, late of the Egyptian General Staff, says: "In the Waterless Land, water is the paramount question. If it is asked how a large body of Bedouins, like the ten thousand who nearly destroyed the British squares at Tamai manage to subsist, the reason is plain. In the first place, they do not need the enormous trains required for a European army. They are the most abstemious of men. Each man carries a skin of water and a small bag of grain, procured by purchase or barter from caravans. Their camels and goats move with them, supplying them with milk and meat, and subsisting upon the scanty herbage and the foliage of the thorny mimosa, growing in secluded wadies. These people could live upon the increase of their flocks alone which they exchange readily for other commodities; but being the exclusive carriers and guides for all the travel and commerce that cross their deserts, they realize yearly large amounts of money. As to water, they know every nook and hollow in the mountains away from the trails where a few barrels of water collect in some shaded ravine, and they can scatter, every man for himself, to fill their water-skins. On my first expedition, near the close of the three year's drought, I reached some wells on which I was depending, and found them entirely dry. It was several days to the next wells. But my Bedouin guides knew some natural reservoirs in the hills about six miles off. As they took the water camels at night-fall and came back before daylight with the water-skins filled. An invading army would find it hard to obtain guides, and even if they did, they must keep together, and could not leave the line of march to look for water. Besides, the Bedouins, accustomed from infancy to regard water as most precious and rare, use it with wonderful economy. Neither man nor animal drank more than once in forty-eight hours. As to washing, they never indulge in such wasteful nonsense. When Bedouins came to my camp, water was always offered them. Their answer would frequently be: 'No, thanks; I drank yesterday.' They know too well the importance of keeping up the habit of abstemiousness. No wonder they can subsist where invaders would quickly perish."

The Size of His Soul.

A little woman leading a child walked into the Elks saloon this morning and asked for a small contribution to help her over the road as far as Albuquerque. A la-da-da tourist from the east (Boston probably) was at the counter sucking at a lemonade through a straw. Turning to four or five men who were sitting around the tables, he sneeringly remarked: "Is it possible that you men will not help a poor woman in need?" and reaching down in his pocket he pulled out a dime and laid it in her palm. "Say," said one of the men in rough clothes "do you call that helping a poor woman? Why the only thing she could buy with them ten cents is your dirty soul. Why you son-of-a-gun!"—but before he could get hold of him, the stingy brute had fled through the door and gained the street three steps at a time. "Now then, madam, finish your story and we'll see what can be done for you." She did finish her story and when she left the saloon she had money enough to buy a ticket to Albuquerque and pay a week's board. Clothes don't make the man in this country.—[Optic.

"Clean 'em Out."

He was a man about 27 years old. He had a prominent nose, red neck, fighting jaw and sheet lightning in his eyes. He had been hunting for a certain quarter for half a day without success, and when asked if it was very particular business, he replied: "You'd better bet it is! He wants to engage me to start a boom for him." "Boom?" "Exactly. He wants a county nomination and I'm going to work it up for him." "How do you boom a would-be candidate?" was asked. "Well, it's easy enough. There's three brothers of us. He divides $50 among us as a starter. That makes us solid for Smith. We begin to hurrah for him. Somebody hurrahs for Brown. We pulverize them. We talk Smith in the saloons, on the street, out in the country and all over. Smith's the chap—stands in with the boys—no aristocrat—good fello—honest man—sure to get there—got to see him through."

"But suppose another faction wants Collins?" "Clean 'em out! Lick a Collins man when he begins to whoop for Smith. Keep treating and hurrahing and knocking down till the day of the county convention, and then watch your delegates. Bribe some, lick some—and get others too drunk to sell you out. Just as easy as grease when you know how. Hang it, Smith out to be on hand. I know of two places where I've got to set up kegs of beer to-night, and I expect to lick three different men before midnight. 'Rah for Smith.—[Detroit Free Press.

Might Have Known It.

Mrs. Minks—Oh, I've just made the funniest discovery. You know my husband never would tell me what they do at the secret society he is a member of. Mrs. Finks—Yes; mine won't either. Mrs. Minks—Well, yesterday a big can of alcohol came addressed to him for the lodge. He is a past grand something or other and takes care of things. Well, I noticed him going up stairs with some of the alcohol, and when he got to his room I peeped through the keyhole, and what do you think I saw? He had an alcohol lamp and was putting salt on the wick, and it made the awfulest, ghastliest kind of a light. I was positively scared, and he looked so like a goblin. I suppose they do that at their initiations. Mrs. Finks—Did you ever! Well, I might have known they used alcohol. My husband always comes home smelling of it.—Exchange.

"Do you know, George, I wish you would stay at home to-morrow?" "Why, darling?" "Oh, because this afternoon a terrible looking tramp came here when you were away and ordered me to give him something to eat, so I had to give all that sponge cake I made Saturday, and, George, he says he's coming back to-morrow." "Did he eat the cake, darling?" "Yes; all of it. Yes, every bit." "Well, then, set your mind at rest, dear, he will never come back."—[Boston Post.

A monopoly is a prosperous combination of which we are not one. This makes it wicked, avaricious and dangerous. when we get into it, it ceases to be a monopoly and becomes a union, a brotherhood, a firm, an association or a corporation. This change also involves a great moral change, and it becomes a mighty engine of progress, a developer of our country's resources, a factor in the national prosperity and all that sort of thing.—[Hawkeye.

This is the day after the circus.
DEMOCRATS are now jubilantly singing "All for Joseph all for Joe."

Who was there to weep for the Elongated Buttonwood of the Rio Grande?

It was the people against the politicians and as usual the politicians got in their work.

SINCE the utter demoralization of our opponents, all the disaffected Democrats are coming back into the fold.

THE Republican campaign gun this year shoots both ways and the recoil is proving most destructive. It is riddled to throw both mud and angle worms. However, it only injures those who fool with it. Turn her loose.

A GREAT many of our Republican friends are beginning to learn that they have a ring to fight right here in Lincoln county, but Republicans have been driven in that way so long it is hard for them to kick out of the harness be the lash ever so severe.

THE Democratic party of New Mexico is having nothing but smooth sailing in the present campaign. These is little need of us showing up the corruption and malfeasance of our opponents, since they are doing it for themselves much better than it is possible for us to do. By reading the charges and recriminations in their rival sheets, it is no use to urge any man, who is in favor of an honest administration of public affairs, to go to the polls and assist in turning the rascals out. Paralyze the ring! And the way to do this is, not by supporting either of the Republican candidates to Congress, who have always stood in with the Santa Fe crowd, but by working and voting for Anthony Joseph, whom the Santa Fe crowd had not money enough to buy last winter, and who is running on a platform which means just what it says.

JOSEPH'S JUBILEE.

He Came Down Into the Land of Egypt and Found The Woods Full of Democrats.

HE WILL DELIVER HIS PEOPLE FROM THE HOUSE OF BONDAGE AND PARALYZE THE SANTA FE RING.

A Masterly Argument From an Honest Man.

As soon as it was known positively that the Hon. Anthony Joseph was already on his way to Lincoln, our citizens began to make preparations for a proper reception of the distinguished guest, who for more than twenty years maintained, almost single handed and alone, the fight against that gigantic corporation, known as the Santa Fe ring. Early Tuesday morning flags were flung to the October breeze, buildings were decorated and the town began to assume a holiday appearance.

About ten o'clock the distinguished guest arrived and was at once escorted to the residence of Don Jose Montano, and so eager were the people to grasp the hand of their honored standard bearer that it was impossible for a time for him to even brush the dust of travel from his garments. The afternoon was spent in getting better acquainted, talking over the issues of the campaign and noting the beauties of our delightful valley.

About 7 o'clock in the evening several large bonfires were lighted in front of the court house and the firing of anvils called the crowd together. Every seat in the court room was soon occupied and every foot of standing room was taken up before speaking commenced. Col. Geo. T. Beall was called to the chair who at once introduced C. H. Gildersleeve, Chairman of the Territorial Central Committee, who, in a neat speech of half an hour, laid the issues of the campaign before the people, dwelling particularly on the action of the late fiasco at Santa Fe. His speech was frequently applauded and the enthusiasm began to run high, so that when the main speaker of the evening was introduced, he was greeted with such rounds of applause that there could be no doubt as to the heartiness of his reception.

Mr. Joseph first addressed his native fellow-citizens in Spanish and held them for over an hour, and afterwards, with equal force and eloquence, gave a synopsis of his speech in English which was faultless as that in his native tongue. He recounted the untold outrages and corruptions of the last twenty-four years of Republican misrule in the territory, and compared the present enormous debt and high taxation with the honest and economic administration of affairs under Democratic rule. He also made a scathing arraignment of the Santa Fe clique and their fraudulent methods by which thousands of hard earned dollars are annually ground from the faces of the laboring people to feed a pack of political cormorants. The action of the late fraudulent legislature, in all its machinations, and more specially the Penitentiary and capitol steal, was treated by the speaker in a calm, dispassionate manner, which made the outrage all the more glaring. The speaker then reviewed the course of opposition candidates, invited a rigid investigation of his own public acts, and closed by an eloquent appeal to citizens of all political affiliations to unite in one common cause and turn the rascals out.

The chairman then in a few well chosen remarks closed the first great political mass meeting ever held in Lincoln county and the wildest enthusiasm.

After the meeting, the speakers and some of the prominent citizens on the invitation of Mrs. Ben. Ellis retired to the hotel across the street an sat down to an elegant collation prepared by the genial hostess, and after an hour of pleasant conversation in her parlor, retired to their homes for the night.

On the following morning, Mr. Joseph and Mr. Gildersleeve took their departure for Las Cruces, by way of the Indian Agency and Tularoso, where they go to strip the Elongated Buttonwood of the Rio Grande of some of his foliage.

ATTENTION is called to an article on our third page, entitled, "A Thin Document, which will effectually set at rest one of the many false statements sent out by the opponents of Hon. Anthony Joseph, to defeat his election. These contemptible traducers do not have the gall to circulate their silly twaddle in Mr. Joseph's own county.

AN EXCHANGE says that Belva Lockwood is not making much bustle in the campaign. This is hardly giving Sister Belva a fair tussle. Of course isn't, you see the very first time she undertook to hoop it up to her constituents she ran bang up against Ben Butler hose platform also embraced women's rights, and this led to family complications, which brought both parties up in arms at once. It is therefore useless to waste words as to the issue of the campaign, for it is plain to be seen there is a squall a head.

THE Republicans are trying the experiment of balancing two ring candidates on an anti-rig platform, and this so-called reform platform was manufactured by a former member of the Returning Board of Louisiana of unsavory memory and questionable methods, and given out cold to a confiding constituency. This is a little like serving two kinds of very thin soup at the same time on one plate after it has been garnished with onions to remove the bad odor clinging to it from the unwashed garbage of some former picnic.

THE bug editor of the Chicago Sun takes this paper to task for publishing a receipt to cure lice, and says he would much rather kill them than cure them. There seems to be no valid reason to us why the Sun man should not make a vermin exterminator of himself. We once knew an old lady, who after giving the heads of her own brood a thorough overhauling, called in her neighbor's children and put them through the same ordeal, so that no gently house was permitted to escape. This Chicago fellow may have inherited the same bloody propensity, which would lead him to follow the occupation for pleasure rather than profit.

THE first number of the Las Vegas Daily Chronicle was left on our door step this week. It is a founding, without an acknowledged father or mother, but from certain marks about its swaddling, there is a strong suspicion that Granny Green of the Deming Tribune was present at its birth. Its body is tattooed all over with the name of Judge Prince, and bears a striking resemblance to that embryo statesman, who slips his first name and takes skim milk or taffy alike from the old ladies who run the Santa Fe asylum. This political bantling will be carefully laid away on ice and the funeral will take place on the 4th day of November next.

"TOTE SQUAR"

When You Strike a Cattle Man.
We, the citizens of precinct No. 7, in mass-meeting assembled, desire to express, in no uncertain terms, our disapprobation of the inception and subsequent proceedings of that abortion—miscalled the People's Convention—called in the Leader by a long list of respectable names, and by them intended to be carried out in open daylight, not by concealment and secrecy, as was the case. Notice of the day for the convention to be held was only posted in one place, and from all appearances on the sly, as though they were guilty of some act of which they were ashamed.

Meeting in this unprincipled, sly and ungentlemanly manner, had about three whites, three Mexicans and two gentlemen of color—not as many in the audience as was required for delegates—without any hour designated. When the body of the people arrived at 12 m., the abortion had accomplished the act which the ringmaster designed. And as they, the willing tools of scheming tricksters, supposed that they had succeeded in misrepresenting this precinct in the People's Convention, to be held on the 15th of October, 1884. But we claim that the parties there do not represent the ideas or principles of any respectable portion of the voters of this precinct. And considering the clandestine manner in which it was gotten up, carried on and rushed to a close, we protest against the admission of the self-appointed and self-elected, who will be at the convention by proxy in the pocket of one of the conspirators.
